'67 Budget Hits Record $113 Billion

Football Field May Be Built This Spring

Construction of a new football field may begin this spring, according to John S. Rendleman, vice president for business affairs.

Plans for the field, to be situated west of the SIU campus on McLafertry Road, have been completed. If funds are released in time for a spring start, the field could be ready for use by the 1967 football season.

The new field is needed because construction of a general administration building, scheduled to begin in 1966, will affect part of McAndrew Stadium, John F. H. Lonergan, landscape architect, said the purposed new field will be an excavated bowl.

It is planned that steel bleachers now at McAndrew Stadium will be moved to the new site. Another set of steel bleachers, purchased from Busch Stadium in St. Louis, will be installed for a total seating capacity of 13,000.

Preregistration To End March 18

Advisement and Sectioning for spring quarter will be open until March 18. Any student who is in school winter quarter and does not preregister by March 18 may not be able to get the school for which he is applying.

Students who do not keep their advisement appointments will not be able to make new appointments until March 1. This in turn presents the problem of closed classes for students with late appointments.

Students who have transferred from General Studies to another academic unit should make their advisement appointments with their new academic unit.

Students who wish to avoid the lines at the Sectioning Center may have their advisor meetings with the receptionist. Machines will take care of the sectioning process and the students' fee statements will be mailed to them.

Cost of Peace, War Reflected

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson presented to Congress Monday a record-shattering $113.6 billion 1967 budget—a vast financial blueprint for waging war, pursuing peace and promoting the "Great Society" in the year ahead.

Johnson called it a balanced, responsible, flexible "program for action." Once again, the President pledged his administration to an incessant search for peace.

The President nevehistorically manages to find extra funds for favored domestic programs—the anti-poverty campaign, war on crime, plans to help commuters get rapid transit service, expanding education and others. For what Johnson calls in "Great Society" items, there was a net rise of $2.1 billion.

At the same time, in a $10,000-word message to Congress, the President waved the mailed fist and asked billions more for defense. More than 51 cents of every dollar in income tax collected from individuals will be funneled into defense in the 1967 fiscal year which begins July 1.

Furthermore, there were hints of possible tax increases—on top of boosts and adjustments the President already had announced he would seek—should even more money be needed to combat communism in Viet Nam or to punch "unforeseen inflationary pressures."

Johnson left open a definite possibility that any escalation of the war they have again started will escalate the cost of it.

Vietnamese Children Have Toothbrushes, Thanks to Spirit of Christmas Donations

Vietnamese school children may not get to brush after every meal, but thanks to SIU students who donated to Operation SOC, the Spirit of Christmas, some of them do have toothbrushes now.

Last November students from Thompson Point wrote a letter to the Army's 1st Brigade, 101st Airborne Division, asking them if they could assist the brigade.

Specifically the students asked what they could send for the men for Christmas. The original plan was to assist individuals who contribute to the group's account "Line of Dimes" to raise funds for the March of Dimes. The members will be out in the cold again today and Wednesday to collect more money.

Generosity Appreciated

LINE OF TIMES—Denis Seltke, (plaid jacket) an enthusiastic member of Phi Kappa Tau social fraternity braved the cold to put pressure on fellow students to contribute to the group's account "Line of Dimes" to raise funds for the March of Dimes. The members will be out in the cold again today and Wednesday to collect more money.

iranian Education to Be Discussed

Clarence Hendershot, assistant dean of international services, will talk on "Glimpses of Iran With Special Reference to Education." at 7:30 o'clock tonight in Morris Library Auditorium.

Slides of Iran from 500 B.C. to the present will be shown by Hendershot, who joined the International Services staff this month.

Convocation credit will be given for the program, sponsored by the International Relations Club.

A statement released by the Information Office of the 1st Brigade said that the gifts have been used to improve the sanitation facilities and personal hygiene of school children in the Phan Rang area.

U.S. Army Medical Corps physicians had cited the lack of individual health measures as a basic cause of 75 to 85 percent of all illnesses they treat.

Capt. James M. Nichols, head of the civil affairs section for the brigade, was "staggered at the amount sent," according to the release.

"The effects of this generosity," said Capt. Nichols, "are threefold: one, upon the personal hygiene; the second, upon American-Vietnamese relations; the third, upon the sanitation facilities and personal hygiene of school children in the Phan Rang area."

About Sex Strike, Peace

Players’ Cast Begin Rehearsal For Greek Comedy ‘Lysistrata’

Yvonne Westbrook will be cast in the title role of Lysistrata, the high-born Athenian lady who plots a sex strike among the women in order to force their menfolk of Athens and Sparta to negotiate a peace settlement. The strike is effective but not before a hilarious series of episodes takes place. One of the most humorous scenes involves Myrrhina, played by Maurie Ayllon, teasing her husband, Kinesias, played by Peter Goetz. Another highlight of the play is the scene in which all the women hide from their husbands in the Acropolis.

Christian Moe, assistant dean of the School of Communications, will direct the play, which will have a special music score composed by Larry Sledg. Other members of the 34-person cast are Pam Worley, Judy Mueller, Joan Blauche, Kathleen Buchanan, Karen Harrison, Judy Sink, Kathleen Best, Ann McLeod, Marilyn Sledge, Donna Beth Held, Jane Chenoweth, Judy Lites, Hazel Burnette, John Callahan, Alfred Erickson, Paul Ramrez, Robert Wiley, Peter Moore, Michael Flanagan, John Gedraitis, Jerry O’Malley, Bruce Ports, Naggy Fal- tis, Bruce Logsdon, Larry Memel, James McMahon, Al Young.

Show 'Value' of Higher Education in U.S.

By Robert M. Hutchins

The academic year 1965-66 will go down in history as the one in which the value of higher education was finally established.

If you want to know the meaning of the word 'value', look it up in a commercial dictionary. Now we know that there is money in education, money available only to those who have completed at least three and a half years of strenuous work at a college or university, money traceable directly to the experience of higher education and inaccessible to those who have not had that experience.

Presidents of the United States from Hoover to Johnson, to say nothing of count­less minor authorities, had assured our young people that the longer they stayed in school the richer they would be. But there was no proof. We all wanted to believe it, because otherwise there was no reason for aspiring to or staying in school and, if they didn’t stay in school, what was there for them to do?

But we had a guilty conscience that they get more and more education because the causal connection between the education to which we condemned them and the money we promised them always seemed a bit obscure.

We could not point to the value of training for specific jobs, because those jobs might be filled with alternatives which would change or fall off by others before they could get to them. We could not claim that the intellectual power they would accumulate would be helpful in getting rich, because we had no evidence of any relationship between intelligence and wealth, and anyway American education does not aim at intellectual power. Of course, there was the case of the graduate students in mathematics at the University of Chicago who broke the bank at several gambling casino resorts by applying what the university had taught them. When last heard from, they were on a yacht they had bought, bound for Monte Carlo.

This episode must be regarded as exceptional. At least it has so far had little effect on enrollments in mathematics departments, even the one at Chicago.

But 1965-66 represents what is called a ‘breakthrough’ in American football. In young men, even before completing the freshman semester of the senior year, they have received fortunes ranging from $10,000 to $100,000 solely on the basis of their success in higher education.

These young men, you will agree, represent all that is good in American life. They are quick. They are determined. They are competitive. Yet they are filled with team spirit. They play the game. The game, of course, is football. What they learned at the university was football. (I have some knowledge of a hero of a somewhat earlier day who was in the same in the multiplication table.) These young men were specificing educational attention to universities for the lucrative careers they have chosen. They could have had the training nowhere else. To them the university has indeed been Alma Mater, a Nourishing Mother.

I am not speaking about the money they have received as impressive. But the figure I cannot get out of my mind is the size of the collar worn by the scholar from the University of Texas whose picture was on the cover of Life. It is 19. This is just right for a defensive linebacker who has to spend his afternoons ramming his head into the stomachs of other capitalists weighing 300 pounds and coming at him at the rate of 120 miles per hour.

This student was ‘every­body’s first choice’ in the draft. His neck, therefore, represented an educational ideal. The University of Texas has led the way in shifting public attention to the neck, from what is above it.

I am also aware that the reason many students come to SIU is the low cost. With this mandatorily increase many students who are having financial difficulty at present will find increasing difficulty financing their education at SIU.

The bill as it is planned, however, is completely unjust and unfair. The football team receives 100 grants-in-aid. How many will go to the fine women’s and men’s gymnastic teams, the excellent basketball and baseball teams, the tennis, swimming and wrestling teams? This discrimination between sports within the Athletics Department is an arbitrary decision that will leave a number of teams dissatisfied.

I would like to suggest what hope is a constructive alternative. If an activity fee increase is enacted, one-half should go for athletic grants-in-aid and the other half should be for academic scholarship. Possible variations within this proposal are numerous. The student could have the choice of designating the fee, either athletic or academic, to which his payment would go. He might also abstain completely if he felt that he was financially able.

I believe that these alternatives and all others should be seriously considered before any program is enacted.
Editor’s Note: Because some question has been raised about the lack of depth in the Senate’s investigation into the new Saluki Sports Network, the following article is being presented.

Why does SIU have two sports broadcasting networks? Senator David Boydston raised the original question during the basketball season. He pointed out that most other universities have only one radio outlet from campus. He also asked if there should be one SIU radio network.

Dr. Boydston said that the Athletics Department is not paying for this service and is not making anything on it. The costs are taken care of by the sponsors, Boydston said.

A member of the Senate asked Robbins if there have been any problems concerning this service and whether he had any other problems with WSUI. Boydston said that there has been constructive criticism and complaints but these are to be expected in any broadcast setup.

Robbins went on to say that commercial stations can appeal to WSUI for assistance.

Robbins said the people on WSUI are trained and competent. Later he was asked if he thought there should be one SIU radio network. He said that in his opinion there should be only one professional voice for the University.

A member of the Senate said that if the new network was taken off the air there would be an uprising in his dorm. He said Ron Hines is a better announcer.

Later a student from the Broadcasting Service got out to defend Donald Thompson and pointed out that he was in the room. He also said that the announcers are getting along and are competent as Hines.

Hines was asked about his background and his job. He said that he is Fred Huff’s assistant, as a sports publicist. He travels with the team and visits radio stations and newspapers to give information about the team. Boydston asked if Hines does the show on his own time and he: paid only for the part of his time that he spends on the show. Hines said that Hines does not get paid for the announcer job.

Hines said that he worked for a station in Columbia, Mo., while he was at the University of Missouri. He was a journalism major, and was graduated in 1960.

He said he was hired by the Information Service, works for the Athletics Department and gets paid by the Broadcasting Service. He said the special report was wrong when it stated that he keeps statistics at the games.

Boydston said that John O., Anderson and Dean Horton C. Taylor and other members of the administration of the School of Communications are looking into the situation.

He said he has been trying to meet with Anderson but has not had the opportunity as he says that the Athletics Department will abide by their decision.

Boydston said he did not envision all of these problems. He resolved that the network was referred to as the Athletics Department Network.

During this time the members of the Senate and the student body executive officers debated the question of whether or not the Athletics Department furnishes a license of services or whether it was a monopoly. The discussion also spread to members of the audience.

Among those for the two networks were Moore, Lowend, and Paluch.

Those favoring only WSUI were Griswold, Levy and approximately 12 members of the audience who were affiliated with WSUI.

The discussion lasted about 90 minutes.

War and 'Great Society' to Cost $113 Billion; Least Deficit in 7 Years Foreseen in Budget beyond the $10.3 billion now contemplated in the new budget, as well as the total of $60.5 billion for national defense. Congress reacted along lines that the $32.3 billion for all other costs of running the government, including $23.9 billion for the "Great Society," might stand some trimming, particularly if war costs go up.

Some Republicans sounded a cry for cuts. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana acknowledged there might be some.

One point, widespread agreement developed: Congress is likely to go along with Mansfield's prediction that it will hand the President everything he needs for the conflict across the Pacific.

With Mansfield's prediction it is likely to go along with the $52.3 billion in estimated federal income that it will hand the government, including the $80 billion mark. The President has asked for $70 billion for national defense and $1.8 billion for national defense and $5.6 billion for the military accounts.

Reds Shell Da Nang; Allies Launch Attack

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) - The Viet Cong launched about 40 mortar shells into a big U.S. Marine base of Da Nang early today, aiming at barracks and an oil storage area. A U.S. military spokesman said first reports indicated one American killed and a few wounded.

There were no reports of fire although eight to 10 rounds of 60mm and 81mm mortar fire fell on the base, including the oil and gasoline storage areas. Armed Marine helicopters took off from the base, 360 miles north of Saigon, to hunt the attackers.

The spokesman said the attacks indicated the Viet Cong was planning to attack against the base. No Marine planes were hit, he added.

Earlier, U.S., South Vietnamese, South Korean, Australian and New Zealand forces launched what were described as major search and destroy operations, but few details were given. All forces reported light initial contact with the Communists in the long gloves and rice paddies.

With the expiration of the third day Allied lunar new year truce at 6 p.m. Sunday, U.S. Air Force planes went into action and struck a major Viet Cong encampment about 90 miles southwest of Saigon.

A forward air controller estimated 190 Communists were killed at that airstrike. U.S. spokesmen said the planes destroyed 30 buildings, damaged 35 and touched off an explosion that could have been a fuel container dump.

The Viet Cong raised a new threat to U.S. prisoners. A rider on a train taking the United States and South Viet Nam "had to bear full responsibility" if they imprisoned or executed three Americans arrested Jan. 7 with 265 pounds of explosives near Saigon. The three were plotting to bomb the U.S. Army billet in Saigon, Vietnamese police said.

American's 'Suicide' Unclear; Autopsy Report Is Guarded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Embassy said Monday night an autopsy showed the American Newcombs Mott apparently died of a crushed throat while a prisoner of the Soviet Union.

"But there was nothing in a carefully worded embassy statement to support the official Soviet explanation that Mott committed suicide," an embassy spokesman said. The Russians did not disclose the instrument which made the fatal wound. A doctor and a consular officer from the embassy attended a three-hour and 15-minute medical inquiry into Mott's death Monday.

The statement said the autopsy also showed there were multiple fractures on both wrists, elbow joints, stomach and neck of Mott, 27, a tourist from Sheffield, Mass. The embassy statement drew no conclusions about these cuts or whether they indicated a possible struggle.

The spokesman said the embassy has promised a full investigation, including further reports from the Service, and detailed identification of the instrument used.

He said bruises were inflicted on Mott's body after death, but that the autopsy showed there were minor bruises and due to normal handling of the body in transporting to Moscow.

The spokesman made the comment after being told that Mott's father in Massachusetts said the bruises had been inflicted on his son's body after death.

Mott died last Thursday night in a train taking him from a jail in Murmansk to an unspecified labor camp. He was serving a 15-month sentence for illegally entering the Soviet Union from southern Norway last summer without a visa.

Guard, Reserves Out for Draftees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Selective Service system said Monday it has instructed local draft boards that young men under orders for induction into the Army should be permitted to enlist in the National Guard or Reserves.

A spokesman said a bulletin was sent to all state draft directors and local boards last week which changed an Aug. 5 directive to provide for cancellation of induction orders only to permit enlistment in the regular forces — Army, Navy and Air Force. The new directive was issued to aid in an intensified recruiting effort.

The revision was based on a recommendation of the assistant secretary of defense for manpower.

The Selective Service spokesman said no estimate was available as to the number of men that might be affected.

"The doctor is not too confident it'll work," a spokesman said. The native of Boulder, Colo., flew a three-rocket Mercury mission May 24, 1962, in the Aurora 7 spacecraft.

Gemini10 Pilots Named

WASHINGTON, Tex., (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced Monday the selection of the original seven astronauts for the flight, astronaut- scientists and has been promised a full investigation, including further reports from the Navy, which ordered Mott's death.

"And, the 40-year-old astronaut said, 'I'm not too confident the doctor will do it.'"

He said calluses formed on his left arm bone just below the elbow after he broke it in a motorcycle accident in Bermuda in July 1964, hampering his ability to rotate the arm properly.

Lutheran Center Progresses; Temporary Facility Provided

Basement foundations have been completed and preliminary plumbing work is under way for the new University Lutheran Chapel and Student Center located two blocks north of the SIU campus on University Avenue.

The Rev. Reuben C. Baerwald, pastor of the Lutheran Center, said temporary facilities have been set up in a four-room building at the rear of the new location with entrance on Thompson Street. He added that cold weather has not hampered construction and the contractors are awaiting arrival of structural steel.

The new facility, scheduled to be completed by August of this year, is being built by R. B. Stephens Construction Co. of Carbondale. In addition to a chapel, the building will contain library, lounge and meeting room facilities, the Rev. Mr. Baerwald said.

Groundbreaking for the project was held on Parent's Day. Mr. Baerwald said many students were under the impression that with the removal of the old two-story building used as the Lutheran Center, no facilities would be provided until completion of the new building. He said lounge and study facilities for students and meeting rooms for Gamma Delta, Lutheran students organization, were provided in the temporary facility.

Mr. Baerwald said in his first year on the SIU campus, he formerly served 11 years as pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, Alton.

...Four rooms were under the impression that the new building will provide lounge and study facilities for students and meeting rooms for Gamma Delta, Lutheran students organization, were provided in the temporary facility.

From Batman to Helen Keller, They're All Students' Heroes

By Rose Austerino

Housewives are avid fans of morning TV serials, idolizing doctors and lawyers. However, they have favorites, especially the star athlete in Sunday afternoon football games. With the variety of popular singing groups teenagers are inclined to have some new hero, too. "What about college students? Do they have heroes? Possibly they admire such people as Batman, the Beatles, or Bertrand Russell. Here is what several SIU students have to say on this subject.

Moe, Payne Win
Playwriting Prize

Christian Moe, assistant dean of the School of Communications, and Darwin Payne, instructor of theater, have been awarded first place and $200 in a writing contest sponsored by Humboldt State College, Arcata, Calif.

The play, "The Strolling Players," was staged as an experiment on the SIU campus in 1963. It may again be produced through Humboldt College in connection with the contest. "The Strolling Players" is the story of a group of players who come to a town in the Middle Ages and put on a play. The players portray an unhappy man who is searching for the apples of happiness, according to Moe.

SIU Student Wins $250 Scholarship

Kenneth A. Rank Jr., a junior majoring in marketing, was recently presented a $250 scholarship by the Jewell Tea Co. of Barrington.

The scholarship, awarded to 15 of 250 college men employed by the company during the winter months, was presented to Rank by Robert W. Goodwin, Eastern sales manager of Jewel Tea.

Completion of the two towers will increase the capacity of the University Park project to 3,600 students.

SIU Registrar Nips Hershey
Over Draft Report 'Confusion'

SIU does not report the disciplining of students to local draft boards, Registrar Robert A. McGrath said Monday.

McGrath was asked to clear up a draft policy statement issued by Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Richardson, director of Selective Service, which includes a statement that "the institution, when this is reported to the local board," Hershey continued, "is causes reclassification and, as is current policy, very early induction."

Beverly Jo Wilson, supervisor at the Registrar's Office, who is in charge of reporting to local draft boards, said that only attendance at SIU is reported automatically. If the local board requests it, the student's progress is divulged, but so far there has been no request by the Selective Service System to report on discipline cases.

"Hershey is making a lot of statements these days," said McGrath, "and it's creating a lot of unnecessary confusion."

Saturday was a pretty lousy day for most people. Except for the kiddies, few people enjoyed the first real snow of the winter. Cars got stuck and trees got blue.

But the situation began to change that night. Whether there was little else to do or whether they were generally interested, 9,200 people jammed into the Arena to see the Salukis pound Tennessee State 84-71.

The crowd was the second largest in the Arena's two­year history. The largest was last year's Evansville con­test.

Many of the fans were probably drawn to see the Tigers' highly-touted offense by the prover­bial tail from the start.

Their leading scorer, Henry (Boo) Watkins, was limited to only 10 points. Below his average. Watkins didn't even score his first point until midway through the first half and did not score again until the middle of the final period.

Southern's outstanding backcourt combo of George McNeill and Dave Lee led the scorers with 22 and 19 points respectively, while Randy Goin chipped in 17, McNeill hit two free throws again with his twisting layups, while Lee pumped in 11 of his points in the second half.

The game got off to an exciting start with the teams not more than three points apart for the first six minutes. But Southern then began to build up a consider­able lead on two-point scoring streaks, another of five points and a final nine-point apart just before the intermission.

The loss was only the second of the year for the Tigers, who had started the week unbeaten in 11 games. They were knocked off Monday by Lincoln (Mo.) University and lost bol­larine Friday before falling to the Salukis.

The Salukis are now 10-3, and will play their next game at home against the University of Richmond on Thursday.

SIU trackmen broke four school records last weekend at the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics indoor invitational meet at Kansas City, Mo.

George Woods put the shot 61 feet, 2.75 inches, to win that event and break his own previous school record in the invitational's high jump event, with 6 feet, 7 inches. Rich Ellison took second in the pole vault, with a 14 foot, 6 inch effort, losing to West Germany's Klaus Lenhertz, who soared 15 feet, 4 inches.

Lenhertz was third in pole vaulting in the Tokyo Olympics last year. Al Ackman took second in the mile, with a time of 4 minutes, 24.5 seconds. Not everybody on the track squad was in Kansas City over the weekend. Oscar Moore was invited to represent a pros and the 2-mile invitational's high jump winner, Jan. 19.

Oscar Moore was third in the 2-mile event. Moore's time was 8 minutes, 54 seconds, only one second off of first-place winner Dave Ellis of the Toronto Track Club, George Scott of the University of New Mexico was fourth, and Moore, a freshman, will be eligible for varsity competition next season.

Eligible for the year because his jump of 6 inches, set last year, was in the invitational's high jump event, with 6 feet, 7 inches. Rich Ellison took second in the pole vault, with a 14 foot, 6 inch effort, losing to West Germany's Klaus Lenhertz, who soared 15 feet, 4 inches.

President Delyte W. Morris left Sunday on a second trip to Tombouctou, Mali. Malian Ambassador Moussa Leo Keita invited Morris to be present at the opening of a landing strip, a power station and a road connecting Kabara to Tombouctou. While in Tombouctou, Morris will visit with Eric A. Sturley, science and technology division, and the other members of the SIU contract team in Bangako, Mali.

Including Sturley, there will be six SIU representatives in Mali before the end of the winter quarter.

The contract team is in Mali to assist the local government in establishing a pedagogical institute within the existing university. The Institute is a part of the higher teacher training college. The SIU advisers are training and assisting the men who are setting up the institute.
