Orescanin, Leffler indicted for tampering with records

Danilo Orescanin, former executive vice president of SIU and Thomas Lef-fler, chief of the SIU Security Police, were indicted Thursday by the Jackson

Orescanin, former campus treasurer, and Leffler were charged with two counts each of tampering with public records and released on $1.000 recognizance bond each.

Stakes growing in police board fight

By Dave Ibata Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A court battle faces Carbondal which could result in a return of the old Board of Police and Fire Commissioners dismissed in February, the nullification of major civic decisions and even the loss of home rule privileges.

Dismissed members of the police and fire board have teamed up with two policemen's associations to take on the city.

on the city.

The points of dispute: Did the Carbondale City Council follow proper procedure when it transferred hiring and firing powers from the police and fire board to the city manager? And did the council violate state statutes when it dismissed the old board and appointed a new one? ted a new one?

In January, City Manager Carroll Fry proposed that he be given the power to hire and fire police and fire chiefs. While the city council reac-ted favor ably, the three members of the police and fire board hesitated.

The old board of commissioners had agreed to transfer power to Fry, as long as a referendum was held to approve it, Hawkins said. Of the several public meetings held to discuss the proposed ordinance, no one came to support the city's position, Hawkins added.

The city council passed the or-dinance transferring the powers, and when the commissioners and when the commissioner refused to surrender these powers, Mayor Neal Eckert recommended their dismissal. In mid-February the council voted to remove the dissidents, and appointed a new board.

Rosemary Hawkins, former police and fire board member, said Friday that the plaintiffs do not dispute whether the council had the authority to transfer hiring and firing powers to Fry. What they question is the way the transfer was carried out, she said.

"When you alter your form of government, it can be done only by a referendum of the people," Hawkins said. "That's our case."

The city council gave no specific reason for dismissal when it voted to remove Hawkins and her fellow board members. "Even then due board members. "I process was denied.

"It's our position that we were never removed through due process; therefore the decision was illegal," Hawkins said. She said that if the transfer of powers or-dinance was found to be illegal, all three dismissed members would be But if the former hoard members

But if the former board members and police associations win, everything the present Board of Police and Fire Commissioners decided and every commission power Fry exercised might be negated, Hawkins said. Thus may even include Fry's choice for new police chief, if the case should last that long that long.
The three former board members

Southern Illinois residents disregarded the hot, humid Sunday weather to enjoy the 1,000 gailons of cold beer and some 600 chickens barecued to perfection. The blue and white beer truck rolled in early and left late. The six cooks donned chefs' garb and began cooking by 8-48 a.m.

Each dinner cost $2.75 but when residents pushed back from the table they knew they had tucked away huge portions of chicken, salads and vegetables.

When mid-day meals had been eaten, Jacob Day patrons left the shelter set up for the meal and engaged in the activities scheduled for the day.

The poker booth was a favorite stop. Ten players gathered around the large U-shaped table trying to break the booth. The table was rarely empty. A quarter was all it took to enter the game and get a crack at the prizes, a six-pack of beer or soda.

quilts, bread, coffee cakes and other trinkets. The store's variety was brought to the attention of patrons by a voice proclaiming "If you can't find it anywhere else, you can find it at the country store."

The country store was also the scene of the raffle. The first winner went home with a handmake quilt. Other prizes included a wall clock, carving knife, transistor radio and a needle crafts book.

For the athletically inclined, there was a doubleheader. Festival goers basked in the sun or took refuge from it next to some nearby trees and watched the games. Teams playing for the first game were dif-ficult to tell apart as three uniforms were worn on the field.

When the second game had been completed the dancing began. The floor of the shelter was cleared and waxed and Butch's Polka Kings

Joint effort on ambulances nets savings

Ry Carl Courtnier Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Working together, SIU and the Car-bondale community have managed to reduce at least some of the local impact of nationally skyrocketing health care

In the year since the University con-tracted to provide ambulance service for the city, elimination of that duplicated service has resulted in a saving to Carbondale taxpayers and SIU students approaching $25,000.

The movement toward integration of services started four years ago when the SIU Board of Trustees determined a direction for health services at

"In 1970," Sam McVay, ad-ministrator of the SIU Health Service said, 'the board directed the president 1970." Sam of the University to integrate the student health system into the com-munity care delivery system at the earliest practical time."

This was done largely, McVay said, under the influence of Richard H. Mov. dean of the SIU Medical School, which was being formed at the time. The philosophy of the medical school, under Moy's direction, holds that clinical experience should take place in the "real community setting.

Further, it is maintained that perhaps the greatest responsibility of the medical school is long-range health needs of the community in which the school is situated.

As Dennis Morgan, an emergency medical technicion trainee with the SIU Ambulance Service, and medical school applicant put it. Of what value would the school or the doctors it produces be if both remained ambivalent and aloof to the actual needs of the school's community

Essentially, McVay maintained, separate health care systems for community residents and for students are expensive in terms of duplication of services, "Medical and health costs are duplicated when a community the size Carbondale maintains two x-ray systems, two emergency rooms and so on," he explained. "We can maximize the overall use of all resources by combining many of them and avoiding un-necessary duplication."

In at least two areas, SIU and Car-bondale have already moved toward fully corrdinated services. July 1 marked that start of the second year that SIU and the community have conthat Ste and the community have con-tracted for ambulance service and for after-hour, weekend and holiday emergency room service. Under an agreement with the City of service within the city limits.

On June 13, the Board of Trustees approved the second annual contract r the service, holding in part that: ...the health of the students, staff and community (is) inseparable and the good health of the entire community (is) in the best interests of the mission and purpose of the University. The board in action in November of 1970 inthe student health services with the community health care system, and this contract represents a significant part of the integration process in that through this agreement, the people of the greater Carbondale community the greater Carbondaie community have available to them a high-quality emergency ambulance service. This contract provides for maximum emergency service and a minimum cost to students and community alike.

Under the contract, the city pays SIU $50 a call for emergency ambulance runs. That cost is billed in turn to the victim. "We try to extend the service beyond the limits of the city to the outlying community," McVay ex-plained. This means we must then bill the caller directly but we try to keep the costs within actual limits."

In 1972, SIU and Carbondale each paid about $48,000 or about $96,000 total to separate ambulance service

In 1973, the first year SIU provided the service for the city, the total co was cut to $71,388.60," McVay said.

The contract for the emergency room service is between SIU and the Shawnee Regional Health Maintenance System, a non-profit organization set up to further coordination of health care resources in Southern Illinois. Shawnee contracts with Doctors Memorial Hospital for use of the emergency room during the hours the Health Service is closed. Finally, the hospital contracts with an organization called the Carbondale Emergency Medical Service Cor-poration (CEMSC), made up of local physicians willing to staff the emergency room during the contracted

While the Health Service is integrating some aspects of its services into the city, the 1974-75 school year will also mark several new additions to the Services available for the first time this year will include limited specialty care, hospitalization insurance and possibly added general medical insurance.

Dilemma of sex

To the Daily Egyptian:

This is a response to Mary Bulliner's comment in the July 25 DE.

I agree that because of the constant struggle for I agree that because of the constant struggle for power between men and women it may appear that the sexes are becoming more alienated from each other. I do not believe, though, that this struggle for equalized sexuality is a conflict between the sexes. It is a conflict within oneself.

men and women who compete for physical labor jobs in order to prove to each other that they are equal do not realize that they are only trying to convince themselves. They do not yet understand the true purpose of sexual equality. They realize their potential but need to become more aware of their inner potential as well.

Perhaps this conflict is apparent when men and women try to communicate with each other as women try to communicate with each other as humans without any male-female expectations. Sometimes this may create problems because one or both of the sexes has not totally accepted the other as a person. Men and women can co-exist together equally if each person will recognize his and her contribution to their dilemma.

A visit to Woodlawn Cemetary

By Marion W. Mitchell (Twelfth in a Series)

By the turn of the century, Woodlawn Cemetery, out on the east side of Carbondale, held many of the pioneer settlers of the Carbondale area. The Civil War had, of course, taken a heavy toll of Carbondale's 'first generation.' There are at least 60 soldiers of the Civil War buried in Woodlawn Cemetery. They came from all over the United States and there are some from the Confederacy. The best single source of Civil War burials in Woodlawn Cemetery is a recently-published brochure which was compiled by John W.D. Wright and published by the Jackson County Historical Society.

The cemetery was established in 1855. As might be expected, Daniel Brush, Asgill Conner and Dr. William Richart were the directors of the Carbondale Cemetery Association. Although Conner died in 1875, the Association apparently remained active until Brush's death in 1890. Upon Brush's demise, the the Brush's death in 1890. Upon Brush's demise, the Association's activities were taken over by the city. Since that time, various civic groups have, at one time and another, developed spurts of interest in the beautification of the old burial ground. New trees, flowers, shrubs, etc. appear rather frequently upon the premises.

A stroll through the cemetery is well worth the time and trouble. Standing near the center is the most imposing stone on the grounds. It is, appropriately enough, a dark red sandstone monolith marking the grave of James M. Campbell. Campbell, as you will recall, was Brush's close friend and the contractor who was killed early in the construction of the "Normal". The stone is made of stone from the same quarry where the stone for the Normal was acquired. Campbell's marker, along with several others set in the late 60's and through the 70's is signed by a "D. Johnson, Carbondale, Ill." Several others made of the same material, while not signed by Johnson, bear the unmistakable mark of his chisel. While Campbell's stone is relatively simple, other stones signed by Johnson boast gracefully carved flowers, drapes, and scrollwork—all artfully worked in the old Boskydell sandstone.

One of the more interesting stones in Woodlawn Cemetery is that of George W. Tiffany. The following inscription covers a good part of one side of the small obelisk: A stroll through the cemetery is well worth the Near the front entrance to Woodlawn Cemetery—in fact, about a dozen steps east of the flagpole, is the well-weathered stone of Capt. Edmund Newsome. Newsome just a year before his death in 1896 had published a History of Jackson County. Newsome is one of those people about whom a certain mystery prevails. We first hear of him in 1854 or '55 when lames Green recollects building a house for him. prevails. We first hear of him in 1854 or '55 when James Green recollects building a house for him. In his History of Jackson County, he writes as if he must have been privileged to attend a wide variety of meetings. He served for some time as County sur-veyor. Newsome was a captain of the 81st Illinois Volunteer Infantry. We know that he was captured and served a goodly stretch of time as a POW of the Confederate. Ho, write a book describing his ex-Confederates. He wrote a book describing his ex-periences as a POW. But there is much we do not know about this individual.

Elisha Boyd, who in 1858 built the house which was to later become Dr. Allyn's home rests under an undated stone a few steps southeast of the center of the cemetery

The family of Asgill Conner, a co-founder of Car-bondale, is buried in Lot 2, just to the south of the Brush plot. Conner's gravestone is badly weathered, but the following inscription is still decipherable:

"Capt. Asgill Conner a native of Jackson County, III. and a man of perfect honor. The Originator of the town of Carbondale

The Pricketts had come to town early, and early they began to inter their dead at Woodlawn. One Prickett plot, 57, in the southwest sector of the cemetery, was filled by 1870. John and William Prickett had been killed the same day at Fort Donelson when the 18th Illinois had taken the brunt of the fierce Confederate counter-attack.

The strangest interment in Woodlawn Cemetery is that utilizing a massive sandstone sarcophagus. The hugh stone box is placed on two stone pediments which hold it well above the ground. This entombment, in the southeast sector of the cemetery bears an almost eerie account of its origin.

It was during the Civil War, so the story goes, that the wife of a Carbondale man sickened and knew that she would soon die. Being of Southern birth, she could not tolerate the thought of having her body permanently placed in Northern soil. She therefore, exacted a promise from her husband that such should not be the case. True to his word, upon her death, he fulfilled his promise by placing her remains in a large stone vault. Later, the story continues, after the war, the husband made a pilgrimage to his deceased wife's home state. There he procured an amount of her native soil, brought it back to Carbondale, and deposited it in the sar-he procured an amount of her native soil, brought it back to Carbondale, and deposited it in the sarcophagus with her body.

On February 10, 1890, Colonel Daniel H. Brush, now 75 years old, was busily writing his memoirs. He had been applying himself to his work for some time now, and he had brought it up to early 1861. Adjacent to his home was the new Brush School on a parcel of land Colonel Brush had donated for such a use. Some improvements were being made around the school improvements were being made around the school grounds and Brush, unable to sit still when there was any activity in which to participate, laid aside his pen and went out to "supervise" the operations. A tree was being removed and, to direct its fall, a long rope had been attached to it. Brush seized the rope to lend his weight to the endeavor. Suddenly, the tree began to sway. Then, it suddenly jumped the wedges designed and placed to direct its fall—and toppled in the opposite from its intended direction of fall.

Evidently to get a better grip on the rope, Colonel Brush had looped the end of the rope around his wrists. the falling tree jerked Brush into the air. The subsequent impact upon the earth killed Brush instantly stantly.

Brush and a large part of his family occupy Lot 1 in the center of the cemetery. On the Brush plot is a large memorial to Elkanah Brush. A few yards away, under a smaller stone, rests the remains of Brush's brother-in-law, former business partner, bitter enemy, and Lieutenant-Governor of Illinois, Alexander M. Jenkins.

Daniel Brush was the last of the "Old Guard." With his passing, things changed even more in Carbondale and, by 1900, not only a new century but also a new age was opening up in Carbondale.

Rowe's trials will start Dec. 2, Jan. 27

Several pre-trial motions were for ruling on the motions, but it will taken under advisement and trial dates were set in the insurance kick-back case of SIU Board of Trustees

According to James McGurk, law clerk at the U.S. District Court in Springfield, Rowe's attorney, Thomas P. Sullivan, made a motion to suppress a statement made by Rowe to the Internal Revenue Service. This and seven the uncertain. vice. This and seven other pre-trial motions were taken under ad-visement by U.S. District Court Judge Harlington Wood Jr.

Wood has not set a definite date

Rowe was indicted March 29 on charges of conspiracy and par-ticipating in an alleged insurance kickback plan. Rowe has denied the Trial dates for Rowe, his brother Richard and three other men also indicted were set by Wood. Rowe and Harold Cangnath will go on trial Dec. 2. Rowe, his brother, Elvin E. Hughes and Warren Jacoby are scheduled to go on trial

Rowe and his brother Richard are officers of Central National Life In-surance Company in Jacksonville.

The alleged scheme involved Louis Organized Crime Strike payment of $15,000 to obtain Teamsters Union insurance business.

A former state representative Rowe faces a maximum sentence of 16 years in prison and a $40,000 fine.

Rowe is currently chairman of the Morgan County Republican Party. His seven-year term on the SIU board expires in 1977.

The indictments arose after a two-year investigation conducted by the Internal Revenue Service, the Department of Labor and the St.

The five-piece combo will be playing in public for the first time, according to Pete Allison, co-director of the not-for-profit foun-dation. They are scheduled to play from 1:30 p.m. until 4 p.m.

The center, located at 100 E. Jackson, will open its doors to the public at noon Sunday. Among the exhibits will be an art gallery featuring works of a half-dozen disadvantaged artists in the Southern Illinois area.

"It's an open house type of affair," Allison said. "The public can come in, look around and buy pieces if they want."

Accidental death declared in case of former student

The drowning death of Dwight Campbell, SIU student body president from 1969-70 was ruled ac-cidental Monday at a Cook County Coroner's inquest.

Campbell was dead on arrival at 4:30 p.m. on July 9 at Billings Hospital in Chicago, according to an official at the coroner's office. The accident occurred in a swimming pool located at the 50th on the Lake lotel in Chicago.

The occurrence was ruled ac-cidental because there were no wit-nesses to prove to the contrary, the official said. The coroner's report also questioned, according to the of-ficial, 'the ability of the deceased in swimming procilvities."

Campbell was born July 7, 1949 and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell of Chicago.

Med school gets share of grant

Congressman Kenneth Gray announced Friday the approval of a grant of $579,736 to Doctors Memorial Hospital at Carbondale and the SIU School of Medicine.

The grant is to upgrade the medical facility at Doctors Hospital, which will be used in conjunction with the SIU School of Medicine.

In addition to viewing various works of art, Sunday's visitors will also have the opportunity at creating their own work of art.

Marty Martin, another co-director mary Martin, another over-decore of the foundation, has donated his car, a 1963 LeMans, to be painted in-side and out. For only 25 cents, visitors will be able to create a "socially disadvantaged painting," Martin explained.

Grand Tower to name queen

"Miss Huthmacher," the queen of the Aug. 2 to 4 Grand Tower Homecoming celebration, will be crowned at 10 p.m. on the closing night of the celebration.

Named in honor of the Huth-macher House, a mid-19th century home being restored as a center for the Southern Illinois Arts and Crafts Guild, queen contestants must be between the ages of 16 and 21, live in the southernmost counties of Illinois, be single and never have been married.

Contestants will sell tickets for merchandise which will be awarded during the celebration. The Lions Club will sponsor the winning contestant in the Murphysboro Apple Festival, Sept. 12-14.

Information on the contest is available at Hale's Restaurant in Grand Tower. The proceeds of the contest will be used for the restoration of the Huthmacher House

The County Clerk's Office will be open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday for persons who need to vote in person by absentee ballot. "It will allow people to create their own piece of live art. The cen-ter is suggesting that persons wishing to paint should bring their own paint, but some paint will be available here."

Martin said the proceeds will go to the foundation.

The center will also have different types of video tape equipment on hand. Visitors will be able to see what types of equipment will be available for future use in the foundation's access free video center.

"It will be sort of an introduction to video. We'll give the visitors a camera and let them play around with it and then they'll see their own product." Martin said.

Saturday night there will be a party with a special guest State Senator Kenneth V. Buzben (D. Carbondale). Invitations to various state, local and university officials have also been sent out.

Refund checks awaiting many area residents

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) reported Friday that about 433 central and southern Illinois tax-payers have undelivered income tax refund checks waiting for them at their local IRS offices.

These checks have not been delivered because of certain errors and omissions on the tax returns. Persons in the Carbondale area may pick up undelivered checks at the Carbondale office of ohe IRS, 606 E. Main, or call the IRS toll free at (800) 252-2921.

On all refund inquiries taxpayers should be prepared to provide the name and address as it appeared on the return, the actual name and address if different, social security number and the type of form filed. Undelivered refund checks not picked up by Oct. 1 will be cancelled

Local rates to be raised by General Telephone

The Illinois Commerce Com-mission (ICC) handed down an order this week which allows General Telephone Company of Illinois to raise local service rates by 7.7

This will be the first general rate increase in local service for General Telephone in 14 years. General Telephone serves more than 730,000 telephones in 40 per cent of Illinois' geographical area.

New local service rates will become effective Aug. 1, 1974. Long distance rates will not be affected.

According to L.R. Kimberly, Service Office Manager for General Telephone in Carbondale, his office is currently filing appropriate documents with the Commission

Appaloosa show to be presented

The Mt. Carmel Saddle Club will bost an "All Appaloosa Show" at 9 a.m. Aug. 4, at the old Mt. Carmel fairgrounds. For further information contact Astruk Knight, R.R. 4, Mt. Carmel, or call 298-2023 which will show various proposed increases in local service based on the ICC's order.

"Once the Commission approves the new schedule, we plan to an-nounce the new local service rate for Carbondale," Kimberly said.

Kimberly also said this infor-mation is expected to be available within the next week.

Book fair nets $1.044 to further cancer research

The Children's United Research Effort (CURE) collected $1,104.74 during the fourth annual Hematology Book Fair at the Mur-dale Shopping Center, July 11-13.

The money will be sent to St. Louis Children's Hospital to further research in cancer and leukemia. Last year's book fair in Carbondale netted $860.35, according to Nelda Hinckley, book fair chairman.

Books left over from the sale have been sent to St. Louis to be sold in the CURE Book Bazaar, Sept. 10 to 16. Persons who wish to donate books for next year's sale should contact Hinckley at 549-5640 or Ida Wargel at 549-2813.

'Operation Red Ball'

Police to distribute fire deecals

By Dave Ibata Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Decals for "Operation Red Ball," a program designed to save the lives of children and invalids, will be distributed in town this weekend for the second year, according to Officer Norman Horner of the Carbondale Police Community Service Center (PCSC). Center (PCSC)

A four-inch wide stick-on red cir-cle placed on a bedroom window or a front door will tell firemen whether children or invalids might be trapped inside a burning home,

"'Red Ball' is a co-project bet-ween the Carbondale Jaycees and the Carbondale police service unit," LJ. Wayne Booker, commander of the PCSC, said Friday. "Basically, it's just to let the firemen know where the children are."

Penney's from 10-5 Saturday, and at area banks, supermarkets and fire houses, Booker said.

Parents are asked to display one red ball for each child in the upper left hand corner of their children's bedroom windows. Booker said. Red balls placed on front doors will indicate an invalid occupant, Booker added.

Lou Morgan, assistant city financial director and former Jaycee president, said that "it's been proven by statistics that if there's a fire in the home, the child will hi in his room." With these red balls, "firemen will know which coom to go to first," Morgan said.

During Oct. 7-13, Fire Prevention Week, firemen will visit area schools and distribute the red balls to schoolchildren, Morgan said.

"Operation Red Ball" was con-ceived in 1971 by Addison, Ill. Jaycees and was adopted as a state project by other chapters, Morgan said. Morgan estimated that over 200 Illinois cities have "Red Ball."

'Ah, Wilderness!' good despite its length

By Michael Hawley ly Egyptian Saff Writer

The problem with Summer Playhouse '74's production of Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilder-ness!," is that of the playwright's verbal overflow. No play needs to be 2½ hours long, and "Ah. Wilder-ness!" suffers for that reason.

By the middle of the third act, it becomes doubtful the affair will ever end. A play which reaches its climax in the beginning, "Ah, Wilderness!" continually loses altitude until you have forgotten the terrific start to which it got off.

Set in a small Connecticut town on July 4, 1906, the play deals with the loves and troubles of the Miller family. "Ah, Wilderness!" begins loves family. "Al tamily. "Ah, Wilderness!" begins with the playing of period background music ("Sweet Adeline" "Take Me Out to the Ball Game") complimented by blown up slides showing turn of the century houses and settings projected on a large hackfron screen. large backdrop screen.

Members of the Miller family

casually approach the breakfast table, chat and eat, with the theatre house lights still turned up bright. The lights dim and the play begins. It's perfect.

I had originally objected to the play being promoted as a nostalgia piece, but that's what it ends up being, and rightfully so. "Ah, Wilderness!" projects attitudes of a time far from our own; a time when the works of Oscar Wilde and the poet Swinburne were considered scandalous and parents worried themselves sick if their teen-age son wasn't home by 10 p.m.

AReview

In "Ah, Wilderness!," the teenage son is the Miller family's Richard, a young man madly in love with his youthful rebellion, 'scandalous' writers and a girl named Muriel. Muriel's father finds pieces of the dirty Swinburne poetry Richard has been sending her, and forces her to write a farewell forever letter to Richard. Internally wounded, tuchard runs off to a sleazy night spot and is introduced to liquor and cheap women. He returns home blind drunk, promissing never to touch the stuff again. In the play's final scene he is reunited with Muriel at a

As Richard Miller, Richard Bryant knows he is the star of the show and assumes the authority given him. He plays to the other acgiven nim. he justs to the other ac-tors extremely well, yet maintains the play's demanded distance of a loner. His stage movements and in-flections are all in character, but unfortunately being the star, he was in the two scenes which were most badly in need of cutting.

Two other performances which were particularly outstanding were those of Patty McCormick as Richard's mother Essie, and James Gulledge as Richard's Uncle Sid. McCormick's motherly warmth and over concern for everyone remained constant throughout the play, being the kind of woman who tells her husband, "Punish Richard hard', but please be careful how hard' but please be careful how you do it." Gulledge's portrayal of the pitiable, yet humourous alcoholic uncle was of equal stature.

None of the performances in this production of "Ah, Wilderness!" can be termed 'bad,' Many of them are victims of O'Neill's laborious babbling, particularly Marily Som-mer's as Muriel, who never appears until the next to last scene.

Deserving special note are Maureen Conway as the sassy prostitute, Christopher Adams in the small role of a fun seeking salesman, and Nancy Boykin as Lily Miller, although ineffective makeup causes her to look like a teenager rather than an old maid.

In the prominent role of Nat Miller, Richard's father, is Leonard McCormick. Although he creates some fine moments, McCormick is often uncomfortable and insincere in the role.

Ignoring some preview night roughspots and the play's excessive length (which is not ignorable), "Ah Wilderness!" is not as bad as it might have been. Many of the scenes, particularly the bar and beach scenes, could have been generously shortened. Director and set designer Archibald McLeod remedied the problem somewhat by having two sets on stage at one having two sets on stage at one time, allowing the action to be cut back and forth from the Miller home to the other scene. This eliminated wasted time for scene

A good play for costumes, Mary Lou Baker's period clothes for "Ah, Wilderness!" were great. The play also featured the sound effects of firecrackers which sounded more like grenades.

Being Eugene O'Neill's only comedy, much of the humor in "Ah, Wilderness!" is very dated. But once you accept that, a lot of fun can be had with the play.

'Ah, Wilderness!" will be performed by Summer Playhouse '74 on the University Theatre stage Satur-day and Sunday night at 8 p.m. Tickets are $1.75 for students and

Fighting threatens cease-fire

NICOSIA Cyprus (AP)— President Glafcos Clerides threatened Friday to resume fighting to stop Turkish advances on his island nation.

At the United Nations in New informed sources said some fighting had already broken out near Kyrenia where Greek Cypriots resisted Turkey's expansion of its beachhead on the north coast.

In Turkey, witnesses reported seeing supplies and reinforcements being shipped to Cyprus. The National Security Council in Ankara called on the government to take all necessary measures to protect the Turkish Cypriots.

Clerides charged at a news conference in Nicosia that Turkey was violating the U.N.-sponsored cease-fire by making massive land grabs and warned he would resume fighting unless they stopped.

He said, 'time is running out. It will be with the greatest reluctance that I will appear before the Greek people of Cyprus to invite them to fight to the last man and to the end.

Usery, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said he would take personal charge of Usery asked the striking players to meet with him Monday and asked Theodore Kheel, counsel for the league owners, to meet with him Tuesday Negotiations between the two parties would resume Tuesday afternoon, following the Kheel-Usery meeting, it was learned Friday.

telegrams sent Friday, Usery : "A continuation of this conflict said: "A community of this cannot can only bring hardship to the parties directly involved and to those who are caught in the middle, including the communities in which professional football has become an important economic factor

"The best interest of the players, the "The best interest of the players, the owners, managers, and stockholders, and the thousands of employes and operators on ancillary service industries whose income depend upon an uninterrupted season will be best served through the negotiation of a nutually acceptable agreement of the remaining issues."

The players' association called the strike. Several unsuccessful attempts have been made since then to resolve the dispute.

the dispute.

There have been no talks since last weekend, when the owners broke off negotiations with the players' represen-tatives and the mediators.

The owners have made some movement -$4 million worth, by their account—on many items in the dispute but the primary hangup continues to be the so-called freedom demands of the These include elimination Rozelle compensation rule, waiver and option clauses and fines as punishment for routine infractions.

According to Usery's schedule, he will meet with the players committee at 4 p.m. Monday, with the management committee at 10 a.m. Tuesday, and with both sides at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

It could not be learned whether any breakthrough in the stalled positions of both sides had been reached. However, the presence of Usery, chief of the mediation service, indicates new urgency to the talks.

Resumption of the talks Tuesday would come 30 days after the beginning of the strike by the players, who are demanding that they be allowed to demanding negotiate with any team they wish, that the option and reserve clauses be eliminated and the the disciplinary owers of coaches and owners be shar

It comes as the NFL teams move toward their exhibition season without most striking players, although there has been a stronger movement on the part of veterans to cross picket lines in recent days

The NFL Management Council, bargaining agent for the 26 owners, said Friday that 184 veteran players were in the league's training camps. It said 54 of those players were starters last year. Teams with the most veterans im camp according to the management council's tabulation were Cincinnati Miami with 16, Cleveland and Houston with 11 each and Atlanta, Baltimore, Oakland and Washington with 10 each.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Player's Association, which is the striking union, said the number of veterans would not have any effect on the talks or on a settlement of the walkout

"From our point of view, everything is going very well," Garvey said Friday. "We've had problems with Cincinnati and Miami, but you really can't get uptight about it because as you run down the list of teams we're in good shape. It's going to be awful rough to watch Cincinnati and Miami all year."

Garvey said there we no trend of veterans to report to aiming camps, and charged the management council with trying to create a false impression that there was

Children wanted for swim study

Jane Henderson, a grad student in recreation, is looking for non-swimming children between the ages of three and five to participate in a study of two methods of swimming instruction.

As part of her masters dissertation she hopes to get parents to accompany their child to a series of free swimming lessons to be held in the Pulliam Pool.
She and a number of Water Safety Instructors will separate the children into two groups to determine the different effects of the parent-child method of instruction and the instructor method.

She said that the children must be non-swimming children who have never before received swim instruction. parents will be required to attend the free lessons.

For more information, contact Henderson after 5 p.m. at 549-8457.
