USO plan would merge WIDB, SPC

By James Derk
Staff Writer

WIDB may become affiliated with the Student Programming Council under a plan disclosed Wednesday by Undergraduate Student Organization President Jerry Cook.

Cook said the affiliation is just one alternative he is considering to help WIDB with some of its fiscal problems.

"We at USO are very interested in resolving the problems that WIDB faces," Cook said. "We would like WIDB to be relieved of its financial burden so that it might evolve into the radio station that it has the potential to be.

"Along with previously disclosed alternatives, we have continued to try to find other alternatives, one of them is affiliation with SPC," Cook said.

Cook stressed that no decision on the plan has been made and he plans to discuss the matter "at length" with members of the WIDB staff.

WIDB General Manager Jim Haggarty said the proposal is "just talk" at this point.

"Before I jump into anything, I am going to have to see the plans drawn up and weigh my other options," Haggarty said. "I will have to learn a lot more and have a lot of questions answered before I move in any direction."

Haggarty said he plans to meet with Cook later this week to discuss the proposal.

SPC Executive Chairman Dale Shepherd said, "The change would be great for WIDB. I have seen programs like this on other campuses and they have worked very well." Shepherd said the plan would benefit both the station and SPC.

"We are happy with the initial proposal," Shepherd said. "We are willing to help work to make the station better."

Cook said he plans to meet with the staff and management of WIDB next week to gauge their opinion on the proposal and discuss the feasibility of the project.

"The affiliation with SPC could serve a dual purpose for both organizations and the student body," Cook said. "WIDB could be utilized as a vehicle for SPC promotional events and any funds invested into WIDB for promotion would be a simple recycling of student fees."

Haggarty said he would be willing to consider the plan, but many questions would have to be answered first.

"The idea was brought up while I was out of town," Haggarty said. "The plan may be Jerry's idea for WIDB, but it may not be mine. A lot of questions have to be answered first."

Future bleak for bill to close Law School

By James Derk
Staff Writer

State Rep. Michael Tate said Wednesday he doubts that the bill he introduced which would close the SIU-C Law School will make it out of the House Higher Education Committee.

"I honestly doubt I have enough support to get the bill out of committee," said Tate, R-Decatur. "I have broader support on the House floor, but I seriously doubt it will get that far."

Tate was scheduled to meet Wednesday night with Clyde Choate, SIU-C director of external relations, to discuss the bill.

"As far as I know, Clyde will meet with Tate and discuss the merits and demerits of the bill, but mostly the latter," said Keith Sanders, SIU Governmental Relations Officer.

Law School Dean Dan Hopson said, "Of course we would hope the bill would die in committee, but we are taking it very seriously nonetheless."

"We have a quality law school here and we produce quality students," Hopson said. "Our goal is to improve the quality of the education here and this bill hasn't helped any."

Tate's House Bill 672 would phase out the law program at SIU-C and Northern Illinois University and close Governor's State University in Chicago. The money saved would be used to fund other programs.

"We are spending $4 million to educate 500 lawyers at SIU and NIU when there is already an overabundance of lawyers in Illinois," Tate said. "These programs are expensive and unnecessary."

Hopson criticized Tate's figures, saying the number of lawyers in the state is determined by the Illinois Bar Examiners and not the law schools.

"The numbers of lawyers in the country is not the issue when you close law schools," Hopson said.

Hopson said the figures are also misleading because they don't take into account the large concentration of lawyers in metropolitan areas.

Hopson said a large percentage of SIU-C's law graduates stay in Southern Illinois to practice. There is only one lawyer for every 530 residents in Southern Illinois compared with one lawyer for every 206 residents in Chicago.

Many University officials, including Sanders, will appear at the upcoming committee hearings to testify for the value of SIU-C's law program, according to Hopson.

"Even though the bill doesn't stand a chance of getting out of committee, we have to take it seriously," Hopson said.

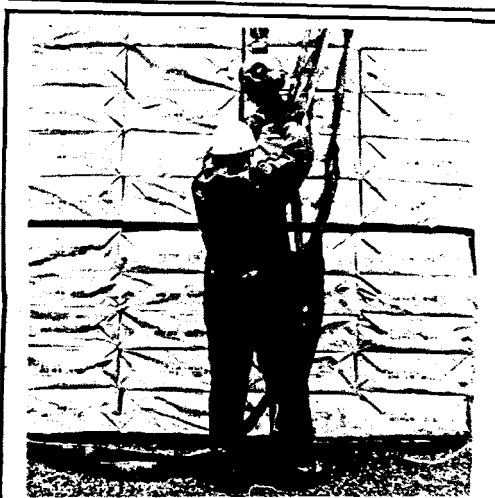

Tate said the bill would probably die in committee due

SIU-C sues president of Phoenix VI

By Rod Stone
Staff Writer

The president of the television production company hired by SIU-C to telecast selected Saluki sports events has been named in a civil suit in which SIU-C is seeking $45,036 in damages.

The suit, filed by the SIU Board of Trustees in Jackson County Circuit Court, charges William C. Addison, president of Phoenix VI, with breach of contract.

Shari Rhode, associate legal counsel for SIU-C, declined to discuss the suit Wednesday.

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs and the University official in charge of athletics, was not available for comment.

Phoenix VI was contracted by the University to produce eight telecasts of Saluki athletic events this season, but only three football games were

Westberg, Crim offer different views

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

Voters who complain there are no differences between candidates these days should be happy with the Carbondale mayoral race.

Candidates Robert Crim and City Councilwoman Helen Westberg, who will square off at a debate Thursday night, have differing views on several city issues.

Crim, speaking at a rally last weekend, outlined his position on several city matters and accused Westberg of ignoring the issues.

Westberg, in an interview Wednesday, presented her views on city matters — often disagreeing with Crim.

The 65-year-old Westberg, a Carbondale resident since 1952, has been on the council since 1973. Prior to that, from 1964 to 1973, she served on the Citizens Advisory Council. She has also been the council's liaison to the

Mayoral candidates' debate set

A debate between mayoral candidates Robert Crim and Helen Westberg is scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday in Student Center Ballroom D. Following the debate, an open forum is planned for the six candidates vying for the three open City Council seats. The election will be April 12.

The debate is sponsored by the Undergraduate Student Organization and the Student Programming Council.

Questions for the mayoral candidates will come from audience members, who will be asked to write questions on cards as they enter the ballroom. The cards will be given to a screening committee which will select four questions to be addressed by both candidates.

Each candidate will have two minutes to address the question and one minute to rebut their opponent. They also will be allowed to make three-minute opening and closing statements.

Following the debate, the council candidates will each be given two minutes to discuss questions from the audience.

The Carbondale League of Women Voters also has sponsored a candidates meeting, open to the public, at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the City Council Chambers.

Carbondale Industrial Corp. and Attucks Community Services.

Crim, a lifelong Carbondale resident and 1958 graduate of SIU-C, has also been active in community affairs.

The 46-year-old retired Air Force major served on the Jackson County Board from 1980 to 1992. He is a member of the Community Development Steering Committee and the Council on Problems of the Aged, Inc.

He has also been a member of the Southern Illinois Enforcement Group, the Criminal Justice Advisory Board and the Greater Egypt Regional Planning and Development Commission.

Crim, who has declared himself the "alternative candidate," has said his opponent supports the "status quo" and offers no new ideas for the city.

Reagan plan: Soviet dismantling with cuts in U.S. deployment

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, accusing the Kremlin of failing to offer serious arms control proposals, spelled out a new plan Wednesday calling for the United States to install new nuclear missiles in Europe and the Soviet Union to dismantle part of its arsenal.

Reagan proposed that the United States cut back the planned deployment of Pershing 2 and cruise missiles late this year if the Soviet Union agreed to reduce the number of warheads on medium-range missiles throughout the world. Both superpowers would be limited to an equal number of warheads on medium-range weapons. Reagan did not propose specific limits, and a senior administration official said that would be open to negotiation.

Reaffirming his goal of eliminating all medium-range missiles, Reagan said, "It would be better to have none than to have some. But, if there must be some, it is better to have few than to have many."

Speaking to NATO diplomats invited to hear his address, he said, "If the Soviets will not agree to the total elimination of these weapons, I hope they will at least join us in an interim agreement that would substantially reduce these forces to equal levels on both sides."

His speech was part of an intensified campaign to win worldwide support — particularly in Europe — for U.S. arms proposals and to put pressure on the Soviets to move toward an agreement.

After the address and a meeting with Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda, Reagan flew to California for a five-day stay and a speech Thursday in Los Angeles on curbing nuclear arms, chemical weapons and cutting the size of conventional forces in Europe.

In his address, Reagan noted that the Soviet Union has rejected the zero-zero formula for eliminating all medium-range weapons, and said Moscow "has failed to come up with any serious alternative. They insist on preserving their own monopoly."

The senior administration official, briefing reporters on condition he not be identified, said the United States wants the Soviets to agree to a global reduction in medium-range weapons. That is to prevent them from taking missiles targeted on Europe and aiming them elsewhere, such as Asia.

Economic gauge rises 1.4 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's main economic forecasting gauge rose 1.4 percent in February, the sixth straight increase and an encouraging sign that recovery from the recession can be sustained.

The gain reported Wednesday for the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Economic Indicators was less than half the 3.5 percent of January — the biggest increase in three decades — but no one had expected a repeat of that jump. Except for January's gain, the February increase was the biggest since the spring of 1981.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said he was encouraged by the report, and a private analyst predicted even better figures in coming months.

In a separate report Wednesday, Commerce officials said orders to factories for new manufactured goods dropped 2.2 percent in February after rising strongly the previous two months.

The decline had been expected in light of a previous report that orders for military hardware and other durable goods — which make up about half of all factory orders — had dropped last month.

Manufacturers' inventories declined for the 12th straight month in February, the report said.

to lack of support.

"I have found some support in the committee for the bill, but I doubt it is enough to get it out of the committee onto the floor," he said. "Even if the bill dies in committee, I think I will have made my point. These programs and others like them waste money."

"At a time when there is obviously not enough money to go around for higher education, we have to start cutting back on some programs," Tate said.

videotaped by the company. Three basketball games, one gymnastics meet and one swim meet were scheduled to be covered by the company, but were not.

Addison notified the University in February that Phoenix VI would be unable to honor the remainder of its contract with the University because it lacked funds.

SIU-C paid Phoenix VI $25,000 last fall to cover production costs of videotaping the eight events. In return, the University was to receive 51 percent of the advertising revenues from the telecasts. As of February, SIU-C had not received any revenues from Phoenix VI.

Desegregation plan accepted

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Narrowly beating a court-imposed deadline, school district attorneys agreed Wednesday on details of a plan to implement the first widespread voluntary school desegregation between a major U.S. city and its suburbs.

The five-inch document, filed less than an hour before a federal judge's deadline, was accepted by attorneys for the St. Louis County School Board and all 23 school districts in St. Louis County, said Bruce La Pierre, the court-appointed special master.

Congressmen seek natural gas cuts

By The Associated Press

Sen. Alan J. Dixon and U.S. Rep. Thomas Corcoran said Wednesday they will pursue legislation to slash natural gas prices by reforming a gas supply system that Dixon contends "defies logic and denies fairness to the ... consumer."

Illinois Commerce Commission Chairman Philip O'Connor, whose agency previously recommended the legislation, said it would slice Illinois ratepayers' bills by up to 25 percent.

Dixon, D-Ill., told news conferences in Chicago and Springfield the bipartisan legislation will be introduced in Congress next month after the Easter recess.

Caterpillar awarded Army contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army awarded a $125.2 million, five-year contract Wednesday to Caterpillar Tractor Co. of Peoria, Ill., but a company spokesman said it would be too optimistic to predict it would cut high jobless rates in the central Illinois industrial belt.

The contract to produce earth-leveling, commercial construction scrapers was the third for Caterpillar from the Defense Department in many months. Earlier ones were for $112 million to manufacture Army road graders and $6 million to $20 million for Marine Corps tractors.

EPA-Gary pollution suit settled

CHICAGO (AP) — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency on Wednesday announced settlement of a 5-year-old water-pollution suit filed by the federal government and the state of Indiana against the city of Gary and its sewage-treatment agency.

The suit was triggered by the Gary Sanitation District practice of dumping raw sewage into Lake Michigan, state and federal officials said.

State board to monitor elections

The State Board of Elections will be keeping a watchful eye over the April 12 general election throughout the state. About 100 staff members will be at polling places to monitor the election and give assistance to county clerks and voters. About 40 of the "election specialists" will be posted throughout Chicago. Three people are assigned to the southernmost counties of the state, said Chairman of the Board J. Phil Gilbert. "They are not so much looking for fraud or wrongdoing as they are there to give assistance to local clerks and voters," Gilbert said. However, if they do spot anything suspicious they will report it to the board, he said. The election specialists are trained in election procedures and will be able to respond to legal questions that may arise in the election process, Gilbert said.

The April 12 election is the second in a series of three consolidated elections in 1983 which either nominate or elect various local government officials. In Carbondale, voters will be electing a new mayor and three City Council members.

Summer class may be CCHS's last

Carbondale Community High School will offer one summer school course this year with a limited enrollment of 35, but students shouldn't count on summer school for 1984. Assistant Superintendent Margaret Hollis said Wednesday.

Hollis said 35 students have already preregistered for the American government course to be offered this summer, but they are not guaranteed enrollment in the class until they have paid tuition. The cost is $75 for the one-credit eight-week course or $40 for one-half credit if the student attends for only four weeks.

The CCHS Board of Education had considered eliminating summer school this year to cut operating costs and may have to next year if the school district's financial situation doesn't improve, Hollis said. A decision on the 1984 summer session will not be made until next year.

The date the summer class begins has not been set, Hollis said, but it is usually one week after the end of the regular session.

Manager Carroll Fry as a "red herring" that surfaces during every city election.

"This is something we've all heard in the past," she said. "It's true that more often than not we agree with the administration's recommendations, but we do sometimes reject them and many times we make modifications."

"I think it would be rather odd if we rejected a majority of the recommendations that are worked out by the professional city staff."

Westberg and Crim are also at odds on the controversial downtown conference center and parking garage proposal. Crim recently said the city should consider building the center away from the downtown area in a place where it would create less traffic problems and not force downtown property owners to sell their land to the city.

Westberg continues to support some type of downtown project. She said moving the site somewhere else would jeopardize the $2.071 million federal grant the city received to purchase land for the downtown development.

"We did not get that grant to build a conference center," she said. "We got it to rebuild and revitalize a blighted area of our city."

The mayoral hopefuls also differ on the issue of district-based city elections. Crim said he thinks such a system would make council members more responsive to citizens and ensure equal representation on the council. Westberg said she thinks a ward system would divide the city into competing sections, to the detriment of the whole city.

Return the gift of life

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS may have seen the "me generation" die a not-so-quiet death this month. With a tremendous outpouring of time, energy and money in the cause of Harold McFarlin, the beast of selfishness has been temporarily beaten back, if not slain. A community is only as good as its people, and the people of both SIU-C and Southern Illinois have shown just how good this community is.

In a flurry of fundraisers, they have raised over $14,000 to help McFarlin, an instructor in the history department for over 13 years, pay for a new heart transplant. But this as far short of the needed $80,000.

Many businesses, University employees, students, area residents and the Carbondale City Council have shown they care and they have a right to be proud of themselves.

BUT HAROLD MCFARLIN needs more. He needs more money and he needs more help. And help is on its way. Displeasing that rock n' roll idols are aloof, REO Speedwagon has pledged to play a basketball game against the staff of WCIL-FM Thursday night at 7 p.m. at the Arena. Admission is only $1.01 and the proceeds will go for a good cause — the life of a fellow human being.

McFarlin has been accepted as a candidate for heart transplant surgery at Stanford Medical Center. Without the operation, the 46-year-old McFarlin is expected to live only a year or so. With the heart transplant, doctors say, his chances for a healthy life are good.

We urge you to contribute to the Harold McFarlin heart fund — to attend the dinners, the dances, the bingo games, the basketball game. We urge you to give not only of your money but of your time.

McFarlin gave 13 years of his life to the SIU-C community. We all should help give some life back to Harold McFarlin.

John Doe's lesson

SOCIETY CAN come up with all the computer readouts and identification numbers it wants to tag each of us. It can come up with all sorts of fancy proposals and schemes to make the system foolproof. The lesson that Professor "John Doe" taught the country is that the system is not foolproof.

The elusive professor was caught red-handed for theft by deception, tampering with public records and false swearing, but not before proving how he could elude the system. He masqueraded as Professor John Bryon Hext at Shippensburg State College some days of the week while the others he spent as Professor Peter H. Pearse at Millersville State College 75 miles away. One day he taught computer science; the next he taught economics.

Pennsylvania Attorney General Leroy Zimmerman and other officials called the professor "crafty," perhaps because no one knows what else to call him. His identity remains unknown. "This individual has taken the bright people on a merry chase that hasn't ended yet," Zimmerman said.

IF THE BRIGHT people in Pennsylvania have been had, one must wonder how many other bright people are still being had. Guffaw all you want but is the person guffawing next to you really who he says he is?

When we stop guffawing, it wouldn't be too foolish to look at our own "foolproof" system with a more critical eye. Are our own search committees any more foolproof than those at Shippensburg State or Millersville State? Police found documents belonging to Professor Doe testifying to his academic record not much different, no doubt, from credentials various search committees at SIU-C might look at for all the professors and administrators wanting to become part of SIU-C. Once part of the system, professors who are not held accountable for their office hours and days not spent on campus could have as much opportunity to pull the sheepskin over our eyes as the "professor" in Pennsylvania did to his students and colleagues.

You may not be a professor at all, Professor John Doe, or whoever you are, but you taught a valuable lesson.

Letters Community pleas for McFarlin

He's our friend

This is a plea to save Harold McFarlin's life.

One hopes that SIU-C students are aware of the grave situation facing Harold McFarlin. He taught history at SIU-C until two years ago but has been too ill to teach since then. He is in need of a heart transplant in order for his life to continue. I was shocked to learn that only $14,000 of the necessary $80,000 has been raised. Like most others, I have waited for someone else to get the job done.

All my life I have been told that one can't put a dollar figure on life. I was told that a person's life was priceless. Is $80,000 really that big of a goal to maintain something that is priceless?

The goal is not unreachable. Consider that 20,000 people (the number of students at SIU-C) could raise the money by donating $4 each. Let's show our strength as human beings. Each of us makes a difference.

I had Mac as a teacher as both a freshman and sophomore. I felt he was as interested in his students as in the subject he was teaching. He communicated to each student that he cared about each one individually. He had the rare gift to make his students feel they were friends.

So I (we) have this friend who has a money value on his life. Please help save his life. He made a difference in my life; let's make a difference in his. I'm calling on you to help because if you don't, would anyone else?

Please participate by attending the basketball game Thursday night in the Arena. The rock group REO Speedwagon will play against the staff of WCIL-FM with all proceeds going to the heart transplant fund. The game begins at 7 p.m. and admission is $1.01.

If you can't attend the game, you can drop off your donation at the History Department or mail a check payable to "McFarlin Heart Transplant Fund," at University Bank, Carbondale, IL 62901. — Tim Sheehan, Senior, Electronics.

Helping him out

I congratulate you for the prominent front page news

IRA 'fights' while others 'work'?

As a son of Irish immigrants, I watched the controversy over this year's New York St. Patrick's Day parade with special interest. This letter does not support nor oppose the Irish Republic Army.

However, I observed that the American media labeled the IRA as an evil group of individuals. For example, in the March 21 issue of Newsweek, an article on the controversy in New York appeared, and it included the following sentence: "The fight over Flannery has become the latest battle in an escalating nationwide propaganda war between IRA sympathizers — fighting to oust the British and reunite Ireland — and those working for a peaceful resolution of Ulster's agony."

Notice that the IRA sympathizers "fight" while the others "work." It should also be noted that many members and supporters of the IRA do not have reunification as a primary goal. Under the present Protestant rule in Northern Ireland, Roman Catholics are denied civil rights that are granted to others. Many IRA members are hoping to be given basic civil rights and are not very concerned with reunification.

It can be said that the Catholics in the IRA vehemently hate Protestants, but no more than the Protestants in the Ulster Defence League hate Catholics. The Ulster Defence League is one of a few Protestant organizations that form an equivalent to the Catholic IRA.

A number of Irish-American politicians voiced their opposition to the selection of Michael Flannery as grand marshal of the St. Patrick's Day Parade in New York. It seems that Mr. Flannery's crime wasn't so much that he brought politics to the parade, but that he brought the wrong politics to the parade.

For example, Sen Patrick Moynihan of New York in the past has marched in the parade, waved to the spectators and has used the event to gain a few more votes. But in Michael Flannery's case, he was chastised for trying to gain support for the IRA. This double standard hardly seems fair.

It would be a good idea for the American politicians to not make such a big deal out of one man's political opinion, but that might cost them a few votes and some precious access to the American media.

As for Flannery, he seemed to be the only principle figure in this controversy who spoke honestly and from the heart. His Irish brogue seemed to be the best reason for his selection as grand marshal, and really, that was all that was necessary.

I hate to think that he could have been denied his role as parade marshal just because of his politics. — James McCormack, Senior, English.

Let's share the goldmine

Several months ago we began a campaign against this University's salary policies — particularly those policies which have resulted in hundreds of highly qualified (mostly female) clerical workers' salaries being far below those of other state universities and clerical workers within the local community. It has also been our observation that hundreds of (mostly male) unskilled workers' and administrators' salaries are far above those of the local community and the other state universities.

This campaign has been directed at both those responsible for this situation here at SIU-C and at some of the state legislators responsible for higher education funding. Not surprisingly, the University officials have blamed the legislators, the legislators blame the University officials and both continue to take the "evade, ignore, avoid or patronize" line of inaction. Meanwhile, month after month, year after year, the unskilled laborers and administrators walk off with the gold mine and the clerical workers get the shaft.

We are tired of hearing how "very concerned" everyone is about the SIU-C clerical workers' sad salary situation. But concern doesn't pay our bills.

The DE (March 25) reported that "the administration is still looking at what to do with the ($500,000) support reserve." We would like to propose that the administration use that $500,000 support reserve money, plus the 5 to 6 months interest on the whole of the salary money that was withheld since January, to give catch-up raises to the hundreds of underpaid civil service workers — most particularly to those who are making less than $5 per hour (and there are a great many.)

We propose that the administration stop talking about the pitiful salaries of clerical workers and start doing something about them! —

Valerie Fox, Civil Service Worker, Carbondale.

Heart Transplant Fund at the University Bank, 1500 W. Main.

It's not that small of a sum," said Nadler.

The recent Willie Nelson Concert raised $500 in collections. "We had expected to raise more than $500 at the Nelson Concert but, for our first attempt at soliciting donations,

"Our greatest task is to make everyone in the area aware of McFarlin's condition and how they can help get him his transplant," commented Nadler.

Dan Nadler, IFC president, member of Phi Sigma Kappa Fraternity, said the organization will organize fund-raising efforts at six up-coming events at the Arena and Shryock Auditorium.

He said the IFC had donated $200 to the McFarlin fund to get the Greek-letter groups' drive going.

MacFarlin, a history professor, has been accepted as a heart transplant patient by the Stanford University Medical Center but needs $80,000 for the operation.

The fraternity solicitors will be present, Nadler said, at an REO Speedwagon vs. WCIL benefit basketball game, March 31; "Children of a Lesser God," March 31; REO Speedwagon Concert, April 1; "Mum-menschanz," April 7; Journey Concert, April 10; and Leon Redbone Concert, April 16.

Budgeting vital to survival of unemployed

By Duane Schombert
Staff Writer

Being unemployed is a job, so believes Donald Shay, executive vice president of University Bank in Carbondale. "The job is to find employment," Shay said Tuesday night at St. Frances Xavier Church in the first of a series of discussions sponsored by the Interchurch Council which deal with the unemployed.

Initiative course is seeking participants

An opportunity to undertake the Group Initiatives Teams Course at Touch of Nature will be from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, April 9, with a group of women from Women's Services. The course is designed to introduce participants to the philosophy and techniques related to individual and team initiatives.

The outdoor experience involves 15 physical and 10 abstract obstacles and the activity's emphasis relates to concepts such as trust, cooperation, challenge, decreasing fears, creativity, problem solving, team work, initiative and safety.

Author Ann Beattie to give presentations

Novelist-short story writer Ann Beattie will discuss her work Monday and Tuesday at SIU-C.

Ms. Beattie will appear immediately after screening of the film "Head Over Heels" Monday in the Student Center Auditorium.

The film, which is based on Ms. Beattie's novel, "Chilly Scenes of Winter," is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

She will discuss the novel and its film adaptation.

Tuesday Ms. Beattie will read passages from her works at 8 p.m. in Davis Auditorium of the Wham Education Building.

Both events are open to the public. Ms. Beattie's most recent novel, "The Burning House," made the New York Times 10 best books of the year list in 1982. She has had more than 40 short stories published in The New Yorker magazine.

Her visit is sponsored by the Department of English.

Shay stressed an honest and straightforward approach with a financial organization as the first key to achieving this goal.

The cost is $4. Registration is required by April 1. When the maximum number of participants is reached a second group will be added for the course on Saturday April 16.

Interested persons may register at Women's Services, Woody Hall B 245. More information is available from Mary Finley, 453-3655.

Shay said that learning how to deal with budgeting and financial organizations is important in order to survive financially while unemployed. "A person is going to have to do certain things in order to keep body and soul together as he looks for a job," he remarked.

Shay said although balancing a budget isn't easy, it is an effective way to maintain some sense of order in a person's life.

Shay explained that the budgeting process begins by figuring out what is owed, how much cash and marketable security such as stocks and bonds the person has, does anyone owe him money and the amount of charge cards, loans and bills.

Once those items are totaled, Shay added, they should be matched against current liabilities. For example, if a person's total current items are $1,700 and the total current liabilities are $1,550 then the person can convert his assets to pay what is due.

This budgeting process will attune a person, to where he stands financially, said Shay, and a person can then figure where to make cuts in their budget and how to spend his money.

"However, without total family support through tough times," Shay said, "a person is not going to make it. If only one family member is trying to take the whole brunt of the situation, someone's going to suffer or get mad. Normally, other family members get mad. Financial institutions won't get mad."

Shay offered a checklist for successful budgeting for both the unemployed or employed.

He said to be honest with oneself and family, cut back on spending as much as possible, don't panic, don't heighten responsibility to any one person, contact a lawyer and find out benefit rights, utilize all state and county organizations and don't allow pride to interfere in the budgeting process.

Chapter of novel-in-progress, 'unconventional' poetry read

By Cindi Rector and Alan Cockrell
Staff Writers

Judy Little, who considers herself primarily a scholar, shared her poetic self with her Quigley Lounge audience Tuesday evening. The many stages of her poetry showed a bit of her development as both thinker and artist.

Little, who teaches two English classes emphasizing sex roles and women writers specifically, shared some poems from her feminist manifesto, "A Legend of Women," published in 1977.

The poems displayed the emergence of her feminist consciousness, "back when feminism was new." Yet, before she read from her anthology of poems, she qualified it by saying "Although I don't take anything back, I don't feel this way now." The first poem she shared from the collection was a clever play on nursery rhymes and the Genesis story. The second was about ovulation, "something one-half of us experience."

Next, Little read from "Provinces," her second collection of poetry, published in 1982, which she said deals with "psychological territories, personalities, attitudes and behaviors." "Inside Passage" was a picturesque 19th-century-style nature poem centered in Canada. The details were solid enough to hold onto yet lit with enough clean images to leave one breathless.

One of her most powerful poems, "Inauthentic Attitude," had as its protagonist a mole scurrying in front of a shrine of the dead Lord held by His mother. The poem brimmed with points familiar enough to sting each person's triviality, confusion and faithlessness like sharpened chips of dry ice.

After sharing other unconventional poems from her "religious phase" she ended her 40-minute reading with the most intriguing poem of the evening, "Media Archive." The poem was a view from afar of a bustling, screaming pluralist planet Earth and its climatic hush into one ecumenical whisper.

Little's latest is a critical work titled "Comedy and the Woman Writer: Woolf, Spark and Feminism." She's also busy working on a third anthology of poems.

Victor Walker finished the English Department's Tuesday night reading. Instead of choosing to read short stories or a chapter of a published novel, Walker took an unusual, but refreshing, approach. He read the second chapter of a novel-in-progress.

The work deals with the life of a 66-year-old cab driver who is in his 30's when the section read takes place. He has a passion for the mainstream jazz of the 1930s and 40s, and Walker uses this as the basis for a dichotomy between blacks and whites.

When whites snap their fingers or otherwise keep time with music, Walker said, they snap on the beats. Blacks snap between the beats, he said, and his main character lives in between the rhythms of life. He recalled Ellison's "Invisible Man", who is invisible because of the same life between rhythms.

Walker's tale reads aloud much like "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty." The characters' dreams and lives seem to overlap, even when the protagonist's wife is criticizing him for not having taken part in combat during World War II.

There is a certain charm to the style Walker uses, especially in the way he accurately gives the impression of an urban black family's mode of speech without caricaturing it. Strong language is used as part of the dialogue, not just for its own sake, and vocabulary is remarkably structured to fit the personalities of those uttering it.

Women's international role studied

By Charles Victor
Staff Writer

At the Third Asia and Pacific Population Conference, Dr. Atiyya Inayatullah of Pakistan said, "Women and girls form more than half the world's population, work two-thirds of the work hours, receive one-tenth of the world's income and own one-hundredths of the world's property."

At SIU-C, at least one group of women conscious of this disparity is doing something about it. Women In Development, a campus group that grew out of an U.S. AID grant to the School of Agriculture, has organized a conference on women's role in the "Social and Economic Importance of International Development in the Third World."

The conference, April 5 to 7, will feature Cornelia Butler Flora, Kansas State University sociologist, as keynote speaker. She will speak on "Incorporating Women into International Development Programs," at 4 p.m. April 6 at the Morris Library Auditorium.

The conference will open April 5 at Quigley Lounge. A panel discussion of whether the United States should be involved in international development will be held.

Richard Grabowski, of SIU's Economics Department, will discuss who really benefits from international aid programs — recipients or participating individuals — in the closing session on April 7.

WID at SIU-C has organized a number of conferences, seminars and speeches.

"Our most successful project was the seminar to publicize the dangers of the use of infant food formulas from the Best by mothers in the Third World," Ciyata Coleman, acting president, said.

WID is a result of Sen. Charles Percy's 1973 amendment to the U.S. Foreign Assistance Act to make foreign aid programs more effective. The amendment requires that foreign aid programs pay particular attention to women in recognition of the fact that women play a "significant role in economic production, family support and the overall development process."

"More attention to women in development means two things," said Kathleen Goodman, faculty adviser to WID at SIU-C.

"One is to focus on women as the subject of programs, improving their educational, social and economic lot and participation. The other is to have women as implementer, consultants and designers of projects," she said.

"Most of the agricultural work in the world, for example, is done by women. Yet in agricultural projects it is the men who receive the training, information and all the attention. The true but invisible workers, the women, are often left out."

WID is not a "for women only" organization Norm Goodman, a founding member of WID, said. "The name puts many men off but the organization is really one for people, not just women."

Stephenson gives LPGA new look

By Hal Beck
AP Sports Writer

The prim and proper Ladies Professional Golfers Association, usually concerned with nothing more volatile than sand traps and water hazards, has been shaken up before by glamorous Jan Stephenson.

Well, hang on, she's at it again.

Stephenson posed for a pin-up poster recently with her skirt billowing like Marilyn Monroe's did in The Seven Year Itch. The poster was a hit.

So's Jan, who goes after the $400,000 Nabisco-Dinah Shore Invitational at Rancho Mirage, Calif. this weekend. The last two rounds of the tournament Saturday and Sunday will be shown on NBC television. Don't look for the Stephenson poster, though. It may be a bit too risqué for the network. That's what the folks at Taylor Made clubs thought and that was how the poster began gaining notoriety.

"It was supposed to be a promotion for Taylor Made," said Stephenson. "They said they wanted some cheesecake."

So, cheesecake was what she provided.

"I see it as a new image for women athletes," she said. "Nobody has done that kind of poster before. Farrah Fawcett, maybe, but no women athletes. So I put on a wet shirt and went to work on it."

It took five hours or so for Stephenson and the photographer to get the effect they wanted. Then she added a caption that reads, "Play A Round With Me!!!" Perfectly innocent for a golfer, unless you're into double entendres.

"I was pleased with it," said Stephenson. "I thought it was great." But when they showed it to Taylor Made, some jaws dropped.

"They said it was a little too much. They pulled out."

That left Stephenson with 5,000 paid-for posters, too many for her den at home in Fort Worth, Texas. The disposal solution was found last month in Tucson when Jan was playing in and winning the $150,000 LPGA Open.

The University of Arizona women's golf team found the posters and asked Stephenson's permission to sell them as a fund-raiser. The provocative pose and the way Jan was dominating the tournament proved to be an unbeatable combination. The university's golf team made a bundle and Stephenson became a pin-up queen.

Jan's victory at Tucson was by a comfortable five strokes. That's the kind of finish she likes, where the pressure is off at 18.

"When you're winning, and you walk down that 18th fairway, it's an unbelievable exhilaration. It's a rush, a high. It's all you've worked for. I get goosebumps and become emotional."

Some LPGA types weren't thrilled with the whole affair. But then, she has ruffled their feathers before. Remember her photo layout in a negligee a couple of years ago?

"I got some flap about cheapening the image of the LPGA, turning it into a carnival with commercialism," said Stephenson.

Take Charge At 22.

In most jobs, at 22 you're near the bottom of the ladder.

In the Navy, at 22 you can be a leader. After just 16 weeks of leadership training, you're an officer. You'll have the kind of job your education and training prepared you for, and the decision-making authority you need to make the most of it.

As a college graduate and officer candidate, your Navy training is geared to making you a leader. There is no boot camp. Instead, you receive professional training to help you build the technical and management skills you'll need as a Navy officer.

This training is designed to instill confidence by first-hand experience. You learn by doing. On your first sea tour, you're responsible for managing the work of up to 30 men and the care of sophisticated equipment worth millions of dollars.

It's a bigger challenge and a lot more responsibility than most corporations give you at 22. The rewards are bigger, too. There's a comprehensive package of benefits, including special duty pay. The starting salary is $17,000—more than most companies would pay you right out of college. After four years, with regular promotions and pay increases, your salary will have increased to as much as $31,000.

As a Navy officer, you grow, through new challenges, new tests of your skills, and new opportunities to advance your education, including the possibility of attending graduate school while you're in the Navy.

Don't just take a job. Become a Navy officer, and take charge. Even at 22.

"It's going to be a tough, tough road to win it," he said. "But we aren't expected to and that may be the difference."

The Salukis are coming off a split weekend, losing 6-3 to Indiana and defeating Evansville 7-2.

The highlight was freshman Per Wadmark, who continues to win for LeFevre. The Molmoe, Sweden, native is 9-4 and ranks among the top 11 freshmen in the nation. He is ranked 98th overall according to the latest Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association Poll.

It may not happen, but a showdown with Saad is imminent. If so, it could be a sneak preview of the MVC singles final to be held in Carbondale late next month.

The top half of the lineup will stay the same. John Greif, David Filer, Gabriel Coch, Rollie Oliquino and Scott Krueger will join Wadmark.

LeFevre will also take freshmen Chris Visconti and Paul Rasch for doubles play.

Unsung tracksters ready for date with Indiana, Illinois

By Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

The thought of Indiana University brings back not-so-fond memories for women's track coach Claudia Blackman.

Here is what happened the last time her tracksters tangled with the Hoosiers.

"We got stumped," she said. And she isn't talking about the sympathetic, gentle stomp one would do on ants. She means the dig-in-turn-you-foot-around-in-circles stomp one would do on deadly spiders.

"We've had this triangular with Indiana and Illinois the past five years. We won it in 1979. But Indiana has won it the last three times. They have been pretty dominant."

Well, Hoosiers, sorry to spread bad news before the big blast, but this isn't the same SIUC team which scored only 19 points last year. This is the team that is just as good — or better — than the 1976 squad that won the state title.

"It should be close," Blackman said with a smile. "I look to return to the same type of meet we ran in 1979. I really don't have much information on the two schools, but I know no one is going to walk away with it."

The two members of the Big Ten may have different opinions on that one.

The Hoosiers' most notable performer is Annette Bohack, a 52-foot-11-inch shot putter who ranks among the best in the nation. But other than that, it's hard to pinpoint where they are most potent.

Shelia Montgomery, Barb Annin and Roseann Barnan shoulders the burden in the middle distances. Montgomery is a good half-miler, running the two-lapper in 2 minutes, 10 seconds last year. She can also take a step down to the 400. Her best there is 60.74. Annin's 2:12.89 in the 800 adds a one-two punch in that event. Barnan's specialty is the mile, where she ran 4:58.55 last year.

Indiana isn't much to brag about in the sprints. Their top ground gainers are freshman Tina Parrot and Karla Battaglia, who may double in the hurdles and long jump. But that doesn't make things easier. Illinois will compensate.

Illini freshman Kim Dunlap has been awesome. She has already smashed school records and finished fourth in the 300 at the conference meet. She is a threat in the shorter distances and will probably challenge SIUC's Denise Blackman and Ann Lavine in the 100- and 200-yard dashes.

Rolanda Conda is tops in the 400. She won the Big Ten title last year in 53.98, but is coming around slow this year because of an extensive distance program. She has run only 56.48 so far. In the distances, Julie Cantis and Gretchen Grier will lead the way. Cantis was second in the conference and eighth in the national meet in 1500-meters. Versatile Grier can do anything from the 400 to the two-mile.

"How well we do depends on how well we compete," said Blackman. "If we compete, we'll be right up there."

The biggest blow to the Salukis may be the loss of Nina Williams. The Salukis' top long jumper and member of the 400-meter relay was called home for personal reasons and may not return in time for the meet.

"It changes a lot of things," said Blackman. "We don't know when Nina will return right now. She is a valuable member of the relay and her long jumping has been coming along quite well."

Saturday, Williams was a double Saluki Relays winner, capturing the long jump and running with the 400-meter relay squad.

The Salukis will go with the reliables. Joining Lavine and Blackman in the 200 will be Debra Davis, owner of the Saluki 400-meter record outdoors. She will also compete in that event.

The distances will include Therese Kent, Sally Zack, Lori Ann Bertram and Dyane Donley as well as Odette James, Lisa Reimund and Laura Falci. Rose Mitchell will compete in the 1500. Rhonda McClausland and Cynthia Joy will compete in the weight events.

Either way it goes, the Salukis will have their hands full this weekend.

Proposed NBA strike still a possibility

By William R. Barnard
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association and its players union agreed Wednesday to meet into the night in hopes of reaching a contract settlement that would prevent a threatened strike after Saturday's games.

There have been published reports that a tentative agreement already has been reached, but so far both sides have not gone beyond saying that serious discussions are continuing.

"No agreement has been reached," said Alex Sachare, the NBA's director of information. "If they had an agreement, why would they be negotiating today?"

The two sides, who have been discussing a proposed contract with several provisions unique in professional sports, met for two hours Wednesday afternoon at the NBA offices.

"Some progress was made," NBA spokesman Brian McIntyre said after the meeting. "The fact that they are meeting is a good sign and basically they are just having serious talks, but to speculate beyond that would be premature."

A meeting of the NBA Board of Governors is scheduled for Thursday, to be followed by a news conference. The board is made up of the 23 NBA owners or their top-level representatives.

The final settlement is expected to include a guaranteed percentage of gross revenues for the players, maximum and minimum salary limits for each team and profit sharing.

Oklahoma City next for netters

By Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

Men's tennis coach Dick LeFevre will take his up and down netters to Oklahoma City this Thursday for the four-day Oklahoma City Invitational.

It's wishful thinking to say the 6-3 Salukis will come out of this one above the .500 mark, but if you've been around as long as LeFevre has, you get instincts that say things may not be as bad as they appear.

"Sure, it's going to be rough," said LeFevre, "but that's why we're going."

"We're up against some pretty good tennis teams but it's nothing unfamiliar. We'll just go out there and see what happens."

What will happen depends on how his Salukis play, but there's no getting around the eight-team field which includes Wichita State, a top 20 team, and its No. 1 player Roberto Saad, who ranks among the top 30 in the nation. The defending Missouri Valley Conference champions will be joined by always-tough Tulsa.

The Salukis will open against Oklahoma State, another toughie. And it doesn't get any easier. Others include Oklahoma, Nebraska, Oral Roberts and host Oklahoma City University.

But being the underdog seems to be just what LeFevre likes.

'World' soccer tournament starts

An SIUC mini-version of World Cup Soccer starts Saturday afternoon at McAndrew Stadium in the second International Soccer Tournament, sponsored by the International Student Council and the Health Service.

Eight teams will participate in the tournament, which ends with the championship game on April 17.

On Saturday, Malaysia faces Venezuela at 1:15 p.m., Hellenic and Palestinian teams play at 2:25, and India and Africa at 3:35.

On Sunday, China and Iran square off at 9:30 a.m. Four more games follow that one, with the last beginning at 3:10 p.m.

The quality of soccer during the tournament will be of high-level as it is the major sport in most of the countries and the students are experienced players, according to ISC president Aris Kotsioris.

"The field out there isn't perfect for soccer, but most of the games will be of very high quality," he said. "The teams have been practicing for a month. By restricting groups to one team, the people selected by the organization will be the best players. I believe the champion can play any team."

One team the champion will play is the winner of an international soccer tournament at Southeast Missouri State, he added.
