Hearings begin today on parking tickets

By Rafe Klinger
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Swearing and kicking tires over a University parking ticket won't help—but appealing the ticket might help. Hearing officers and the Traffic Appeals Board begin their review of contested parking tickets at 10 a.m. Wednesday and will continue Monday-Friday from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. in Room 211 of Building C, Washington Square. Fifteen administrative hearing officers, eight law students and seven faculty-staff members were appointed

Monday through the office of T. Richard Mager, vice president of development and services.

Five members of the Traffic Appeals Board, which reviews appeals from the hearing officers, were also appointed. According to Section 7-105 of SIU Vehicle Regulations, the five-man board "must include a student, faculty member, non-academic staff member, civil service employee and a University administrator."

Parking officials refused to divulge the names of those serving as hearing officers or on the appeals board without the consent of Mager, who was out of town Tuesday.

Some 300 ticket-holders, since the beginning of the quarter, are awaiting hearings, said August LeMarchal, parking division supervisor. The most common fines are $1 for meter violations, $3 for illegal parking and $10 for vehicles lacking a decal, LeMarchal said. If the first two tickets are not paid at the Parking Division Office, Washington Square, within five business days from the violation date, a $2 penalty fee is assessed, he said.

Persons desiring a hearing on their ticket must appear at the parking office within the five days and fill out a form, LeMarchal said. They then have 14 days to appear for a review before the hearing officer. No hearings are granted after the original five-day period expires, he said.

Richard Higginson, University Legal Counsel, said the hearing procedures are the same as last year. However, the hearing officers are authorized to amend the procedures and may do so at a later date, he said.

Presently the ticketed individual, with a copy of his ticket and his hearing application, must appear and plead his case before the hearing officer, Higginson said. The officer is empowered to either affirm the ticket or void it if he feels the ticket was unjustified, he added.

If the ticket is affirmed, the individual has 14 days from his hearing date to file an appeal. He may personally appear before or send in writing his reasons for voiding the ticket to the five-man appeal board.

The decision of the Traffic Appeal Board is final, Higginson said.

Concerning moving violations ticketed by SIU police, Higginson said these are considered a state ticket and are not handled by the University's traffic hearing officers or appeal board.

Ombudsman support panel reestablished

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An Ombudsman Advisory Panel is being brought back to life by the University Senate.

A resolution introduced at the Tuesday senate meeting called for reestablishment of an Ombuds Panel made up of one representative from each constituency of the senate. The resolution was tabled when it was learned the senate's executive committee has already begun forming a similar panel.

Senate President John Hawley said students are presently being sought for the advisory panel, and he expects the panel's first meeting within one week. Hawley said the panel will meet with Ombudsperson Kris Haedrich and Dean of Students Bruce Swinburne to prepare the panel's formal charge and also discuss its general operation.

"The advisory panel should be a body to assist in any future decision about the Ombudsman Office," Ms. Haedrich said to the senate. The panel will participate, she said, in discussing Ombudsman operations, decisions on how and with whom the office will function and questions about Ombuds staffing.

"Any recommendations or concerns affecting the whole University community wouldn't be made from the Ombuds office itself," Ms. Haedrich said. "The responsibility of such (large-scale) recommendations is terribly important and shouldn't be made by one person alone."

Advice and consent of the panel would come to bear on recommendations such as calling for University permission to drop classes up until the fifth week rather than the fourth, Ms. Haedrich said.

Hawley hopes to include as many constituency vice presidents as possible on the panel. He said one or more representatives from various constituencies would be acceptable on the panel.

Ms. Haedrich said the panel will represent an autonomous tie with the U-Senate. Working with the panel, she said, will enable ties to the administration to be dropped by the Ombuds office.

Student trustee vote slated for Dec. 5

By Terry Martin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The general election for the student trustee will be Wednesday Dec. 5, the same day students vote on filling vacant senate seats, Mike Carr, student body president, said Tuesday.

Carr said applications for students wishing to run for senator or student trustee will be available in the Student Government Office from Nov. 9 to Nov. 16.

Times and polling places for the Dec. 5 election will be announced later, Carr said.

Carr and Sharon Yeargin, executive secretary of Graduate Student Council (GSC), met Tuesday to discuss implementation of the voting procedure as a result of last week's Student Trustee Referendum.

About 40 per cent of the students voting in last week's referendum chose a general student body election as the method by which a student trustee will be selected.

Carr and Ms. Yeargin will meet again at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday to finalize the campaign and voting procedures.

"The main reasons we decided to have the trustee election at the same time as the senate election is to cut down on costs and we don't feel we can ask the kids to come out to vote three times," Carr said. Carr said petitions for senator will have to have at least 50 signatures while the trustee petitions will possibly require 200 signatures.

Every student can vote for a student trustee but only undergraduates can vote for senators, Carr said.

The reason for the winter election of senators, Carr said, is that some seats are vacant while others are up for reelection.

"By having the trustee election Dec. 5, we can hopefully have a student seated on the board by the Dec. 13 meeting," Carr said.

Funding priorities go through many channels

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The setting of University spending priorities begins at the scholastic department level and ends with the governor, Danilo Orescanin told the University Senate Tuesday.

Orescanin, executive vice president and vice president for administration, went to the meeting to clear up questions of spending priorities after recent publicity over funding problems

Campus Transit operates private shuttle service

By Kathy Wilken
Student Writer

Your Campus Transit driver may be better than your barber or beautician when it comes to campus gossip, meeting as many people as he does.

Campus Transit "exists to move University personnel on University business," Rasche said. The transit cars are available from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and make runs anywhere within the city limits and to Southern Illinois Airport.

Campus Transit, the University's private taxi service, operates with 16 to 18 drivers, who drive from four to six full-size sedans, depending on the demand, Carlton F. Rasche, director of Auxiliary and Service Enterprises, said recently.

Travel Service includes Campus Transit Service and Intercampus Bus Service and is part of Auxiliary and Service Enterprises.

Unit six months ago, Campus Transit operated with only one car. Data is now being accumulated on the usage of the greater number of cars.

Campus Transit cars are radio-equipped just like private taxis. A University employee desiring transportation calls a dispatcher operating from the Physical Plant. The dispatcher radios the car assigned to that area, and the driver arrives in minutes. The passenger must give the driver a ticket, which his department or office has purchased in bulk for 50 cents a piece, regardless of the distance of the ride.

Campus Transit is still in the experimental stage, Rasche said. It exists to provide rapid movement of personnel and to help alleviate the parking problem. Rasche said the service welcomes comments from its patrons.

In addition to Campus Transit, the Inter campus Bus Service transports students to and from the Carbondale and VTI campuses and Southern Illinois Airport. The bus service is free to students and University personnel with SIU identification.

There are 17 buses, making 17 runs Monday through Friday, 11 on Saturday and five on Sunday. A study made spring quarter showed that the bus service transported 40,000 riders during the quarter. The Carbondale terminal is north of University Park at Marion and E. Park Streets.

The buses are also available on charter to University personnel. The fee charged for charter service is 45 cents a mile. Rasche said the fees cover costs of maintenance, personnel and equipment replacement.

The bus service originated as part of Southern Hills (originally built for married veterans) to provide transportation to campus. The fare then was 10 cents.

for Saluki Stables, the stadium and other areas.

There are basic rules for the assignment of monies, Orescanin said, and many times the sources of money for various University operations are not interchangeable. Funds for the stadium, he explained, cannot be peremptorily shuttled from another area or fund.

The question comes down to how much money a unit requests and how much the state approves, Orescanin said. Fund requests from departments and division heads are supplemented by administration requests, and the whole budget goes to the Illinois Board of Higher Education (BHE).

"In essence, BHE said to the governor to cut this item, this item and this item," Orescanin said. The trimmed budget returns and SIU is forced to live with it. Orescanin pointed out the administration has only two per cent discretionary power in reassigning monies within the final budget amount.

After saying priorities for spending are begun at the department level, Orescanin did not dwell on the actual setting of spending priorities. There is no fixed formula for setting priorities, he said, and depending on what matters are discussed, consultation may or may not be appropriate.

Much of the trouble in getting money lies with BHE, Orescanin said. BHE does not consider SIU's budget in terms of "cost structure," he said, and they instead assign monies according to a "formula percentage bases."

This method of budgeting does not agree with the state-recognized Phase III of SIU's master development plan. Phase III calls for budgeting in terms of expansion and development, such as money for setting up a new graduate program. The slash in state funds comes as BHE neglects Phase III goals and forces total money reductions.

SIU simply does not have the desired control over its own spending, Orescanin said. The state is controlling the budget, and the problem of money control looks like it is going to get worse, he said.

The survival of schools is at stake Orescanin said, and it is "scary" to watch Illinois' educational centralization causing people in Springfield to determine what is good for Southern Illinois.

Addresses Republicans

Blair labels Walker hypocrite

By Diane Mizialko
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

W. Robert Blair (R-Park Forest), speaker of the Illinois House of Representatives, attempted to rally his party from its Watergate slump Tuesday night, when he told an audience of more than 150, "Dan Walker is the biggest hypocrite in the history of Illinois politics."

Blair was in Southern Illinois to address a Jackson County Republican Central Committee dinner at the Student Center.

The state of the nation is dismal, Blair said. He predicted the current "crisis of confidence will leave permanent scars."

Blair asked each Republican to "accept part of the responsibility for finding the way back." Turning from Watergate to his attack on Walker, Blair characterized the current state administration as "government by press release" and the Governor as a "power hungry demagogue."

Kissinger to visit Cairo, maybe Israel to speed negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger plans to visit Cairo and maybe Jerusalem and other Mideast capitals in a bid to speed negotiations between Israel and its Arab foes, officials said Tuesday night.

Kissinger probably will go on from the Mideast to China, where he is scheduled to meet with Chinese leaders in Peking Nov. 10.

The Kissinger mission to the Egyptian capital was to have been announced at the White House on Wednesday after Ismail Fahmy, the acting Egyptian foreign minister, met with President Nixon.

Prime Minister Golda Meir of Israel will call on Nixon Thursday as the pace quickened in three-sided exploratory talks involving the United States, Egypt and Israel.

Kissinger originally was due in Peking this month, but the conflict in the Mideast caused him to postpone the trip.

EPA must make reduction decision

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Court of Appeals has ordered the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to reach a decision within 30 days on its proposal for a phased reduction of lead in all grades of gasoline.

The action came in a suit against the EPA filed by the Natural Resources Defense Council and 12 other organizations. The council disclosed the ruling Tuesday.

The suit was filed last Jan. 10 after then-EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus proposed the reduction be further discussed, and postponed the adoption of the program for one year.

Downstate Illinois will be hurt by a "Walker-Daley deal," Blair said, referring to the recent political reconciliation between the Governor and Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago.

"It's a deliberate scheme to siphon off your highway road funds—to take downstate dollars and give them to Daley," Blair said.

Blair urged his audience to fight back at every level of government in upcoming elections and defeat the "pandering brand of demagoguery oozing from Dan Walker."

Prominent local Republicans sharing the speakers' table with Blair were: Norbert "Doc" Springer, Chester, Illinois House member and candidate for Kenneth Buzbee's State Senate seat; Gale Williams, Carbondale, candidate for the Illinois House; John Hoffman, Jackson County Sheriff; Charles Gray, Jackson County Board chairman; John Austin, Okawville, candidate for U.S. Congress and Ray Doerr, Jackson County Republican Chairman.

Austin joined Blair in defending the Republican party against Watergate-related criticism. Critics of President Nixon, Austin said, "are people who react—not act."

"We don't need people to tell us what is wrong," Austin said. "We need people who get in there on Saturday and play the game and play it right."

SIU's new employe newsletter goes to press

By Diane Mizialko
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The University Record, SIU's new employe newsletter, is ready to go to press.

The first run of 5,000 copies should be ready for mailing by Nov. 5. Don Hecke, director of Communications, said Tuesday.

The first issue will carry eight pages of information of "interest and value" to all classifications of SIU employes, Hecke said.

The lead stories of the Newsletter's first number are on the University Senate and Division of Continuing Education program. Also in the first issue are stories explaining recent legislation which affects state employes.

The University Record is written by the staff of the University News Service. The issue is laid out at News Service and goes to University Printing Service in camera-ready form. University Printing does the camera and press work necessary to produce the offset publication.

The newsletter contains no art work—photos or drawings—as an economy measure.

"We wanted an economy publication, but one still attractive enough from an informational standpoint so that employes will read it," Hecke said.

Hecke estimated the cost of the newsletter at $460 a month, or less than a dime an issue. The estimate includes third-class bulk non-profit postage.

The approximate $5,500 needed to finance the newspaper for a year is charged against University News Service's budget, Hecke said. Extra funds were allocated to the University News budget by T. Richard Mager, vice-president for development and services, to cover the expense, Hecke said.

The newsletter is funded through June 30, 1974, Hecke said, but it will take from six months to a year to evaluate audience response. "The publishers need time to settle on the best format for readers' needs and it takes about the same time for readers to respond," Hecke said.

University News Service will select material to run in the newsletter and Hecke will review the contents. Tim Turner, University News Director, said material for publication will be judged on the basis of timeliness and interest to the readers.

No editorial comment or opinion will be published in the University Record, Hecke said, and contributions of this nature will not be accepted. "Backgrounding" articles, explaining and interpreting campus events will be published, however.

Contributions to the monthly newsletter may be directed to University News Service. The copy deadline for each month's issue is the 20th of the preceding month, Hecke said.

Says no censorship

Reporter testifies at hearing

By Terry Martin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A staff writer for the Daily Egyptian told a Student Senate investigative committee Tuesday she has no knowledge of any form of censorship at the paper.

Diane Mizialko, who covers the administration and board of trustees, was the second witness to testify before the Academic Affairs Committee in its investigation of DE editorial policies.

The investigation was authorized Oct. 10 after Fred Whitehead, assistant professor of English, told the Student Senate a letter he wrote concerning SIU President David R. Derge and the Kalmback Trust Fund was refused for publication by Howard R. Long, fiscal officer of the DE.

"The implications of Whitehead's letter do imply guilt by association," Ms. Mizialko said. "I don't feel the paper I work for should assassinate any individual's character."

Ms. Mizialko said the letter was libelous because it implied Derge had something to do with the American Nazi Party.

Committee members repeatedly asked questions concerning individuals who had been and are involved with the editorial policy of the DE. Ms. Mizialko responded by saying the committee would have to ask those persons to the hearings if they wanted to know their opinions.

"I've never been told anything was too controversial to be printed," she said. "If there were, I'd probably quit my job."

Asked by Garry Seltzer, committee chairman, if she had ever been restricted in investigative reporting of the administration and Board of Trustees, Ms. Mizialko said, "Of course, there are some things people who are interviewed don't want published. Then, I use my own judgment."

Ms. Mizialko said she has never been pressured by Derge not to print an article.

"Derge didn't and wouldn't tell me not to print an article," she said. "He's not that dumb."

Ms. Mizialko, who has been a staff writer since April, said under two managing editors, (Bill Harmon and Ed Horn) she has never been discouraged from pursuing a story.

"I've been encouraged to dig for stories—never discouraged to investigate," Ms. Mizialko said. "Ed (Horn) wants things to be fair and accurate. Editing is not censorship."

Much time was spent on last spring's allegations that the DE censored stories and editorials derogatory of Derge and the administration.

Ms. Mizialko suggested the committee ask Harmon, last year's managing editor, to testify.

Asked why Long eliminated the student editor positions after last spring, Ms. Mizialko said, "You have to ask Long. It may have been an economy measure and it might not."

The committee is scheduled to meet again at 6 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Government office to hear John Sheridan.

Sheridan is an undergraduate University senator, who claims he has in-depth files from research he has done on the newspaper. He was scheduled to testify Monday but was on military alert over the weekend.

U-Senate endorses

Saluki Stables need backer

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The University Senate passed a resolution Tuesday endorsing the Saluki Stables operation, providing the stables can become self-supporting.

Although numerous senators expressed doubts about the financial viability of the stables, all agree that the stables were a desirable part of the University community.

Rick Pere, chairman of an interim student senate committee, interested in saving the stables, said the U-Senate decision shows senators are aware of the stables' importance. Further, he said, the senate was agreeable to the present research which aims to provide an alternative to closing the stables outright.

"I don't really feel comfortable going on record unqualifiedly saying, 'Yes, keep the stables open,'" said Senator Russell Trimble. Senator Isaac Schechmeister echoed Trimble's doubt, and expressed concern over the number of people who actually use the stables.

However, Rich Lange, vice chairman of Pere's committee, said petitions supporting the stables continuance had gathered 4,000 signatures to date. He said the committee was seeking 5,000 signatures, and that number represented more people than have ever voted in a student election.

Lange also pointed out that interest in the stables is a recent thing, with most students not knowing about the stables until the beginning of this quarter. As student awareness of the stables is rising, Lange said, so is their interest.

Senate discussion on the difference between claiming interest and giving financial support to the stables ended with Senator H. Arnold Barton's amendment to the resolution. He said the stables could better receive senate support of the resolution recognized the necessity of the stables' becoming financially independent.

A suggestion from Kris Haedrich, Ombudsperson, that the resolution call for an extension of the Nov. 15 closing date was not discussed. Ms. Haedrich said as long as research about stable funding was in progress, time should be granted to insure the stables' finding a meaningful scheme of self-support.

Senator Mark Klopp said Pere and Lange were seeking a vote of confidence for the stables, and there was no other commitment to be made by the senate. Pere agreed to this, and was satisfied with the final senate action.

Derge will ask, answer questions at Student Senate

SIU President David R. Derge will ask and answer questions at the Student Senate meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Ballroom A of the Student Center.

Jim Kania, senate vice president, said in addition to Derge's appearance, the senate will hear many committee reports.

The Finance Committee will present its recommendations for funding the following clubs: Rugby, Soccer, Spirit Council, Volleyball, Sport Parachute, Sailing, Bowling, Trap and Skeet and Orienteering.

Other reports are slated to be given by Murray Mann and Steve Nuckles, related to the Student Trustee Referendum; Academic Affairs Committee, on its investigation of the Daily Egyptian editorial policy; and the Internal Affairs Committee, on what constitutes an election district.

Kania said impeachment procedures will be brought against three senators because of their absence at the meetings this quarter. Those senators are: Terry Carrell, Yvonne Mitchell and Mike Nairne, each representing eastside non-dorms.

Bills on the funding of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism fraternity and the impeachment of President Nixon are also scheduled and may be given immediate consideration, Kania said.

Student Center opens faculty room Monday

By Mary Gabel
Student Writer

SIU's faculty members will have a place to call their own in the Student Center when the Orient Room opens its doors as the Faculty Room Monday.

Sixty-five seats are available for the social spot, which is located just outside the Student Center Cafeteria's turnstiles. "The room has been designated to be used by the faculty; they can eat lunch there and visit with colleagues," said James Sheppard, assistant director of the center.

The room will be open from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Tables and carpeting, in orange and gold color scheme, are similar to the other "Town Rooms" (Corinth, Thebes) decor and the general design of the cafeteria.

"All faculty members are encouraged and are welcome to use the area," said Sheppard.

Although the Student Center is mainly for students convenience, Sheppard said, the building is offered to all the campus community and all campus factions have to be supported.

"I'm sure faculty members might take a student there upon invitation," he said.

Currently, consumption of alcoholic beverages is not allowed in the student center.

The assistant director hesitated to speculate on future beverage regulations but said, "I don't think I would be in favor of any BYO (bring your own) policy in the center because it would create an uncontrollable situation."

Placing the room on indefinite reserve was suggested by Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost Keith Leasure.

Come on DuQuoin, take them at the finish!

What now DuQuoin

With the loss of the Hambletonian, its major attraction, there may be a temptation on the part of many Southern Illinoisans to say the DuQuoin State Fair is in real trouble.

Is this traditional show of horses doomed to become a second-rate event due to lack of interest? Will "the people" who know and understand the enterprise which three generations of the Hayes family have labored long and hard to develop sit silently unalarmed by the decision of the Hambletonian Society?

This matter concerns all who believe in the future of Southern Illinois.

In regard to the future, there are some alternatives for Bill Hayes and his associates of the people of the area will rally together. Losing the Hambletonian need not be looked upon as a disaster to the DuQuoin Fair or Illinois racing enthusiasts, but rather as an opportunity for a new direction, continued growth in a traditional sense, and greater achievement for tomorrow.

Given the support and devotion shown before this year's fair, perhaps the DuQuoin State Fair could become the "Home of the Southern Illinois Classic," harness racing's newest and most exciting achievement.

More specifically, the Hayes organization has the know how, the prestige, and the bankroll to develop a race for Southern Illinois second to none. Funds pledged by Illinois government leaders and spurred by the Hambletonian Board, if reassigned to this purpose, would assure a permanent home at DuQuoin for a trotting race of world renown.

The facilities and track at DuQuoin maintain a racing record that speaks for itself in the finest harness racing circles in the country. Its heritage and history have made it a prominent place and type face to the words "harness racing."

Without being sentimental, one has only to reflect upon the lifelong dream of W. R. Hayes, who sincerely felt he could make a worthwhile contribution to a sport for which he had deep affection. The dream was of hosting the world's most glamorous harness race in surroundings reminiscent of the grass roots setting in which harness racing was born.

Today that setting is known as Hayes Fair Acres, and we should hope to perpetuate what the Hayes' devotion to the sport of harness racing, particularly in Southern Illinois, has helped to create.

There is no guarantee of success in whatever is done to replace the Hambletonian. But there is the certainty of failure if nothing is done.

Carbondale's dogs

Herds of stray dogs on the streets of Carbondale have become as common as flocks of geese in the air, herds of deer in the woods or schools of fish in the water. In fact, the problem of having an abundance of dogs has reached epidemic stages. These dogs can be as harmful to the public as they are to dogs that are well taken care of.

There are over 15 million stray dogs in the United States. Carbondale has adequately contributed it's share to the above figure. From Apr. 1, 1972 to Mar. 30, 1973, the Jackson County Humane Shelter dealt with 3,892 stray dogs. Out of these dogs, 16 percent were placed in homes and 14 percent were returned to their original owners. That leaves the remaining 70 percent of 2,724 dogs to be destroyed. The Humane Shelter keeps the dogs that they receive for seven days. If these dogs are not placed in homes or returned to their owners, they are destroyed to make way for next week's batch of dogs.

Most of the stray dogs are inadequately fed so they turn to the nearest garbage can and ransack it from top to bottom usually leaving much of the garbage strewn all over a yard. By feeding out of these insect infested garbage cans, many of the stray dogs catch diseases such as distemper, kennel cough or tracheal bronchitis. These diseases are not only passed on to other stray dogs but also may be passed on to dogs that are well cared for.

Stray dogs are also a hazard to the children of this community. An unsuspecting child may go up to one of these dogs and be treated with anything but friendliness. Many of these stray dogs have not received their rabie shots. The dog may bite a child, run off and never be seen again. A painful tetanus shot will have to ensue for the child to insure its health.

The problem lies within the proper control and containment of the rapid growth of these dogs. Owners of their dogs should have their dogs sprayed. It is a simple operation taking only 15-20 minutes to complete and it is painless. Another method for controlling the population of dogs in Carbondale is to keep the dog away from other dogs when it is in heat. It may take a bit of careful watching on the part of the owner, but it will only last for three weeks and it happens only two or three times a year.

The Carbondale Leash Law fines the owner of a dog $10 for not having his dog on a leash and tied up or not having the dog in an enclosed area where he cannot get out. This law is hard to enforce since dog tags in Carbondale do not have the owners name or address on them. The name and address of the owner should be placed on the tags so that dog owners wouldn't be so nonchalant about the whereabouts of their dog. People should be fined for having their dog in areas disallowed for dogs just as they are fined for parking their car in a no parking zone.

The best solution remains in the hands of the dog owners themselves. If dog owners keep on failing to take care of their dogs by not feeding them or letting them run wherever they please, the problem will never be solved no matter how many dog catchers there are. Dog owners should know where their dog is and what it is doing at all times.

What others say

Teach them English

The study of black culture has become popular among students of all races on American college campuses during the last five years. As a result of the interest in this long-overlooked area, some blacks believe that Afro-American children should be taught an African language or black English.

Is there a need for Afro-American children to study a language other than standard English? Dr. Marcus Allen, chairman of the modern foreign languages and literatures department at the University of Missouri-St. Louis, is among those black academicians who think not. "A black child in the ghetto doesn't have to be taught a black language—he hears it everyday," Dr. Allen said in an interview. "There's only one important language—the language of employability—and in the United States, that's English."

Although he feels black studies have been neglected too long in the United States, Dr. Allen feels the new emphasis by some black leaders on the need for a separate black language in the United States is more of a fad than a serious pursuit.

"This emphasis will soon pass," he says. "A student can do as he wants outside of school, but good English is hard enough for any student to learn as it is."

Dr. Allen stressed that the recent outcry concerning black studies wouldn't have been necessary if that area had not been neglected in American schools for so many years. "The only attention given to black studies in the past has been during 'Negro History Week' once a year. That was farcical."

Although he agrees with the need for expanded black studies, Dr. Allen isn't sure whether academic degrees should be awarded in the discipline. "It would be difficult for a student to earn a living in this field," Dr. Allen says.

Dr. Allen, who studied in France in the late 1940s on a Fulbright scholarship, feels the black studies field has matured during the last few years. "You might say the wheat has become separated from the chaff," he says. "In any field, there initially are going to be some charlatans out to exploit the people. There have been charlatans in medicine and charlatans in religion. You'll always have some Marjoes and Elmer Gantrys in any field."

Dr. Allen stresses that students should look beyond the mere popularity of black studies. "A lot of people are finding out that it is a serious discipline," he says. "It's more than just sitting around in rap sessions, which students can do by themselves any Saturday night."

The blatant neglect of Afro-American heritage in U.S. schools, Dr. Allen says, should prevent the interest in black studies from disappearing for a long time. "The field is becoming a little more conservative now. I think it's settled in for a long time."

In regard to the demand for the study of a separate language for black students, Dr. Allen says there has been little of it at UMSL during the years he has been in charge of the foreign language department.

Learning from Cairo's troubles

Publication by the Federal Commission on Civil Rights of "Cairo, Illinois: Racism at Floodtide," by Paul Good, has caused some pain in Cairo.

David Cain, publisher of the Cairo Evening Citizen, was the first and for a time the only resident of Cairo to receive a copy. Mr. Cain, aggrieved, promptly said, "Labeling a place on the floodtide of racism is not going to help the people in that town, black or white." (More to the point, being on that floodtide is not going to help.) Mr. Cain feels that the 93-page report will not help attract the new industry needed to ease Cairo's chronic unemployment.

Mr. Good, the writer, was unhappy too: "I'm thoroughly disgusted.... It took the commission an entire year to get the report published." He found it "despicable" that the commission released his report without first distributing copies in quantity in Cairo.

That some influential Cairo citizens would deplore Mr. Good's report is natural enough; they do not look good in it. But surely it is wrong to judge the substance of a federal commission's report, or the manner of its distribution, in terms of only the community which is the subject of the report.

The objective of the Commission on Civil Rights is not to boost Cairo, but rather to "serve as a national clearinghouse for information...and to submit reports, findings, and recommendations to the President and the Congress." A bureaucratic delay of a year may surprise Mr. Good, but the delay could have been greater. As for scaring industry—any business considering locating in Cairo would have information about that town's well known troubles independently of Mr. Good's report. And what could giving Cairo a preview accomplish beyond stimulating an attempt to prevent general distribution of a useful document?

Cairo is an instructive example of how race prejudice, discrimination, and segregation can make people angry and hostile, and injure the economy, morale, and institutions of a town. Mr. Good's documented essay, derived in large part from a hearing by the Commission on Civil Rights in Cairo in March, 1972, gives its readers a salutary lesson.

Readers outside Cairo can take warning from that unhappy town's self-inflicted troubles. Readers in Cairo could resolve not to compound past mistakes, rather than resolving to defend and repeat them. The report on Cairo can do some good both in and beyond Cairo if people give it the attention it deserves.

Presidents and the press

"No government ought to be without censors, and where the press is free none ever will." Thomas Jefferson said that before he became president; as president he sometimes looked at the role of the press more critically, as presidents have often done since. None have been more critical, however, or more consistently emotional, than President Nixon.

At his Friday press conference Mr. Nixon used such words as outrageous, vicious, distorted, frantic and hysterical to describe reporting of his Administration. It was language seldom heard at a press conference. What made it more remarkable was that Mr. Nixon had boasted that "the tougher it gets, the cooler I get." That was before he lost his cool.

Then it turned out, as he went on and on, that he was not singling out all the media but mostly television—no, not television, but the networks, and no, not the networks, or their newsmen, but their commentators. It was not an apology and was not accepted as such by the visibly angry newsmen from all segments of the media.

This was, of course, not the first time Mr. Nixon had viewed the press as his personal enemy. When he lost the election for governor of California years ago, he told reporters bitterly that they wouldn't have "Dick Nixon to kick around any more." As President, he unleashed Administration leaders from former Vice President Agnew on down to attack the integrity of the media.

It is all very strange. For while many persistents have had their disputes with the press, most have tried to live with it, and some have tried to make the best of the situation. Franklin Roosevelt deliberately chose weekends for major announcements to assure himself of a good Sunday or Monday press, and exploited radio for his fireside chats. Harry Truman attacked publishers as mostly Republicans but made a careful distinction in behalf of the working newspapermen. John Kennedy made masterful use of the televised news conference. Lyndon Johnson had trouble with much of the press over the Vietnam war, but never stooped to a public tirade against it.

It is not, as some politicians say, that "you can't win a fight with the press." It is rather, as Thomas Jefferson suggested, that the country and its government are healthier when the press can inspect, report and challenge what government is doing. In this respect the duty of the press is quiet the opposite of paying constant homage to presidents and their policies, and most presidents have accepted the ranking fact. Why not Richard Nixon?

Assertiveness called key to woman's role

By Debby Ratermann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An assertive woman "stands up for her rights as a person," but she is "too often accused of being aggressive, and nobody likes an aggressive woman," Yvonne Hardaway counselor at SIU's Counseling Center, said Tuesday.

Ms. Hardaway and Lois Rasche, also a counselor at SIU's Counseling Center, led a discussion of "The Assertive Woman" at the "Being A Woman" seminar sponsored by their department each Tuesday.

"An assertive person stands up for her rights without violating the rights of others," Ms. Rasche said. "Aggression violates other persons' rights."

Ms. Hardaway said women shy away from asserting their rights because of conditioning. "Women are taught that patience is a virtue; that they should smile tolerantly and act passive no matter what happens."

"Women are also taught that men have fragile egos and it is up to the woman to protect and nurture that ego at all costs, even if it means relinquishing her basic rights," Ms. Hardaway said.

"Women want to be attractive, and men tell us we're not attractive if we're too assertive. The two get equated: unattractiveness and being assertive or competitive. Men tell us it's not feminine," Ms. Rasche said.

"It's a lot easier to be assertive with someone you don't know," Ms. Rasche continued. "When you're dealing with someone important to you, you're afraid you'll hurt the relationship if you demand your rights." "Many women don't even realize they have rights," Ms. Hardaway said. "You have the right to control your time, your possessions, your body. These are yours to give, but you should give them because you want to, not because it avoids a hassle." "When you're insulted or embarrassed in public, you have the right to say you didn't like the remarks," Ms. Hardaway said.

Ms. Hardaway said non-assertive men and women "are very much alike, but cultural injunctions work against the non-assertive woman."

The Counseling Center holds co-educational assertive training groups each quarter which are free to students and staff. Two groups will be forming winter quarter, Ms. Hardaway said.

The 30 women and one man at the seminar tried a few of the assertive training methods by dividing into groups and acting out roles when they should have been more assertive.

Situations included having to make coffee for the office, facing authority figures, and dealing with male-female relationships.

LONG PLAYING RECORDS AT A SAVING!

Thompson defends himself against Clark's accusation

CHICAGO (AP)—The U.S. district attorney in Chicago, James R. Thompson, said Tuesday that former Attorney General Ramsey Clark wants to use him as "a whipping boy" for the Nixon administration.

Thompson made his comment in response to a remark by Clark at a news conference in Champaign Monday. Clark said Thompson should be disbarred for calling former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew "a crook."

Thompson, who represented the Justice Department in one phase of the Agnew case, made his comment at a news conference after Agnew pleaded "no contest" to tax evasion charges. Under such a plea a defendant neither admits nor contests a charge.

Clark said Thompson "tells us he has read the file on Spiro Agnew and that he's a common crook. That is such reprehensible conduct, professionally that he ought to be disbarred. It should be a violation of law."

Informed of Clark's statement, Thompson commented that Clark "obviously is using me as a whipping boy for the administration. It's part of his act on the lecture circuit."

"Former Vice President Agnew was convicted of income tax evasion, and there was a 40-page public document with Agnew's plea. I based my remarks on that document," Thompson stated.

Clark also said that the fired Watergate prosecutor, Archibald Cox, showed "great restraint and rare professional discipline" in contrast to actions of "some of the people in the executive branch, including James Thompson."

Clark said that the firing of Cox should not be grounds for impeachment unless President Nixon is shown to have done it obstruct justice.

He also said he believes any new special prosecutor should be subject to being fired by the President.

Clark, an attorney general from 1967-69 in the administration of President Lyndon B. Johnson, said he is considering running for the U.S. Senate in 1974 against incumbent Jacob Javits, R-N.Y.

Self-awareness programs start in November

A group self-awareness program will be sponsored by the Vocational-Educational Counseling Unit of the Career Planning and Placement Center beginning early November.

The program, offered in five parts, will be held weekly. Group meeting times will be arranged according to student schedules.

Dr. Diane Tinsley, Coordinator of Vocational-Educational Counseling, and Rene Brisbin and Freeman Humphrey, vocational-educational counselors, will serve as group leaders for the five sessions.

According to Ms. Brisbin, topics such as student values, interests, abilities and personality traits, the utilization of decision-making strategies and occupational information will be discussed.

To apply for the group sessions, interested students may come to the Vocational-Educational Counseling office at Woody Hall C-202, or phone 336-2096.

Disinterest cancels planner's meeting

The Resources, Reuse and Recovery Conference scheduled for Nov. 1 to 3 at the Student Center has been cancelled due to lack of response.

The conference had been planned by the Greater Egypt Regional Planning and Development Commission and the Illinois Planning and Conservation League. The planning commission will return checks to those who had advance registered for the meeting.

Bob Hein and Sherri Erich

Midwest Pioneers pair here to promote Roller Derby duel

By Tom Finan
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A bouncy energetic blond with a bright smile drew plenty of appreciative looks as she hurried through the Student Center Monday—but her Roller Derby wind breaker may have helped.

Sherri Erich, 20, a two-year veteran of the Midwest Pioneers was at SIU with Bob (the Bald Eagle) Hein to promote their team's appearance against the Jolters at the SIU Arena Saturday.

Hein, 37, reminds one of a gentle-natured farmer or construction worker. Only the sculptured piece of gold and diamond on his finger and his timepiece hint that he's pulling in $40,000 per year.

It wasn't always that way, though. When he started 15 years ago he was only making $50 weekly.

That's about $35 less than what Ms. Erich was making when she came out of training school.

She entered the school after seeing a live roller skating match soon after her high school graduation.

"That's when I more or less got interested, because of the speed and the physical contact," she said.

Hein said that while the speed of the sport makes physical contact inevitable, some of it, particularly the fights, isn't as bad as it seems.

"What happens is if the crowd isn't reacting enough, I go over to the biggest guy and start bumping him."

Once he finally manages to aggravate the fellow into action, Hein said, the results aren't as devastating as they might seem. For one thing, he explained, roller skates don't allow the attacker to put the maximum amount of leverage into his punch. Even if he manages to connect, the object of his affections simply rolls away on his skates, absorbing only a fraction of the blow.

Bob was drafted from his parents, Oregon roller rink. Sherri was lucky to make the team in three months Bob said. Some people pay the training schools for years without ever being called for a team.

Once out of school the skater plays some minor league games and then is placed on a team with salary, expenses and hospitalization paid.

This last benefit is extremely important to the skaters. In his career Bob has experienced seven concussions, two broken arms and has had his knee broken in three places.

Sherri dislocated a knee and was out for two months. She said she has never thought about quitting.

She feels the image of the women skaters has been maligned and said they are underpaid, with which Bob agrees. Sherri is considering quitting "in about five years," and going back to school. Marriage has crossed her mind, but marriage to another skater is definitely out.

Bob has tried to quit, but even with good jobs in other lines, he keeps coming back.

"I've tried to quit a couple of times.

It's like show business—you just can't quit."

Consumer conference set for today

A consumer conference open to the public is scheduled to begin with registration at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday in the Gallery Lounge of the Student Center.

Charles Helwig, instructor in the Division of Continuing Education said the registration fee is $3 which includes a lunch.

"The conference is open to the public but primarily structured for people in home economics extension division work," Helwig said.

A panel session will be conducted at 9:15 a.m. in Ballroom B by Catherine Carter, state technical and vocational education division consumer consultant. A question and answer period will follow.

The panel will then break into three smaller meeting groups with sessions to be held in the morning and afternoon in the River Rooms of the Student Center. Discussion topics will be health, metric systems and the energy crisis.

Oma Jones, Jefferson County extension advisor, will conduct the health session; Carolyn S. Crynes, instructor in the Department of Family Economics and Management, will conduct the metric systems session; and Jeri Parrish, nutrition and consumer educational specialist with the University of Illinois extension service, will conduct the energy crisis session.

Sponsors of the consumer conference include the Division of Continuing Education; Department of Family Economics and Management; Southern Illinois Division of Dairy Council; District and Regional Units of the Illinois Department of Public Aid; Illinois Homemakers Extension Federation; University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Services; Illinois Home Economics Association; and the State Vocational Education Division.

Balloon trip falls short for millionaire publisher

There was a country-fair atmosphere Tuesday as Malcolm Forbes inflated his hot-air balloon and lifted off on his flight across the United States. Cars jammed the rural lane leading to his farm pasture launching pad and seven busloads of schoolchildren were there to wish him luck.

Forbes, 54, of Far Hill, N.J. touched down in the pasture Friday on the Missouri-Illinois leg of his voyage. A weekend's rest and adverse winds delayed his departure until Tuesday morning. His trip began Oct. 4 at Coos Bay, Ore. on the Pacific shore and is to end, wind and weather willing, sometime next on the New Jersey coast.

Making the journey with him are a ground crew of 16 and an assortment of escort vehicles including a helicopter and a chase plane. He figures the cost of the excursion at about $75,000. But, as he says, he can afford it. He's a millionaire and the owner of Forbes Magazine, a business weekly.

Forbes claims that no one has crossed the continent in a balloon. A few years ago, he said, someone almost made it but had to switch balloons when his original craft hit a power line. Forbes says that was about the time he became interested in becoming the first person to travel coast-to-coast by balloon.

A search of newspaper files shows that the last time a balloon came to Dix was in 1858. Then the occasion really was a country fair. The owner sold rides until the balloon broke away with two small children aboard. They came down safely near Mount Vernon, a few miles to the southeast.

Job in action, volunteerism in most people's minds, has meant doing something for someone else. That's true with the Action programs, Peace Corps and Vista but you'd be surprised what Action can do for you, like great credentials for a job when your project's over like a language you can use for other overseas jobs and while you're getting all of that experience and you're still helping someone else, teaching your skills and running practical programs in 59 countries around the world and of the United States. Action recruiters will be at Southern October 29 to November 2 looking for volunteers with majors in agriculture, engineering, health, home economics, business, education and even liberal arts. See them in the International Center Education lounge or in the Library. BC2522

Orienteering meet slated; registration closes Friday

By Kenneth Piliarski
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Outdoor enthusiasts will get their chance to test their knowledge and ability of the outdoors at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Outdoor Laboratory at Little Grassy Lake during SIU's Intramural Orienteering Meet.

All SIU male and female students are eligible for the meet. Registration is now in progress and will continue through Friday at the Office of Recreation and Intramurals.

A meeting to discuss instructions is scheduled at 12:30 p.m. prior to the start of the meet.

In an orienteering meet each competitor is given a map before he starts the race. He follows a marked trail to the control description sheet or master map area. There he is assigned a course which he must copy onto his map. From this point he enters the course set out for him and goes from one assigned point to another in the swiftest manner possible, using only his compass and map for guidance. The winner is the participant who finishes the assigned course in the

Soccer club to battle with Murray State

SIU's International Soccer Club will try to improve on their present 0-1 record when they battle Murray State at 12:30 Saturday at McAndrew Stadium.

On Sunday, the club travels to Terra Haute, Indiana to play against Indiana State.

least amount of time.

There will be two divisions, one for beginners, who have had very little or no experience in orienteering and one for novices, who have had prior experience. Students who have completed GSE 106 must compete in the novice division.

All necessary equipment for the meet, compass, map, etc. will be provided by the Office of Recreation and Intramurals. Each participant is advised to bring a wristwatch.

Participants are warned against wearing red clothing during the meet because the patrols will be wearing red and confusion could result.

Due to the thickness of the underbrush, clothing should be sturdy enough to withstand briars and branches, while bringing comfort.

Any style of footwear may be worn.

Each competitor runs the race independently and hanging on to another runner is not allowed. Any violations of this rule should be reported to an official.

Any participant dropping out from the race or otherwise failing to complete the race must report to the finish line officials as soon as possible. Once a competitor has reported his withdrawal from the race, he may not re-enter the competition area for any reason.

Competitors who have turned in their score cards at the finish line shall not go back on the course prior to the conclusion of the meet.

Each participant is solely liable for any damage, injury or loss suffered during the meet.

McAlley catching on to option offense

By Mark Tupper
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Although SIU's heart-stopping 14-13 squeaker over Akron Saturday might rightly be called lucky, Saluki Coach Dick Towers said he wasn't even excited when Akron placekicker Brian Ellis missed his last second field goal try. In fact, Towers said he knew the Salukis would win it all along.

"No, I wasn't excited," Towers said after the game. "Either he made it or he didn't. There wasn't anything I could do about it. And if he would have made it, we would have run back the kickoff to win it. There was no way we were going to lose today."

Towers spoke proudly of his team and continually said how happy he was for the players sake. "They deserved it so much," Towers said of the victory. "I'm just real proud of all of them. They worked too hard in practice all week to lose this one."

Towers said he was pleased with the performance of the offense and noted the fact that there had been no turnovers on fumbles or interceptions. One of the reasons for this, Towers said, is the improved play of Fred McAlley.

"Fred is getting much more confidence in the offense and in himself," Towers said. "Against Akron he showed very good judgement as to whether to run, the ball or pitch it on the option play. A couple of times he kept the ball when ordinarily our quarterbacks have pitched it," Towers continued. "In each instance, keeping the ball turned out to be the correct decision."

Towers also said he was very pleased with the play of the defensive secondary, aided by the move of Phil Jett, a senior speedster from Memphis, Tenn., to defensive halfback from wide receiver.

Towers gambled with Jett, who was playing only his second full game on defense, by putting him man-on-man with Akron's premier wide receiver, Mac Thomas. The move proved successful as Jett held Thomas to only one reception until the final three minutes of the game.

"I thought Jett played Thomas very well," Towers said. "The only way they hit him on the touchdown pass was to move Thomas into the slot and force us to cover with our safety."

Towers also commented on his use of Melvin Moncrief and Larry Perkins in the same backfield. "Larry and Melvin give us an outstanding one-two combination," Towers said. "At times it helps us to put them in the backfield at the same time."

The duo combined for 262 yards on the ground Saturday, and each improved his individual statistics. Perkins has run for 614 yards in 121 carries, averaging 5.5 yards per carry.

Moncrief has picked up 572 yards in 124 carries for a 4.7 yard-per-carry average.

Perkins needs to average 97 yards per game to go over the 1,000 yard mark and Moncrief needs to average 107 yards per contest.

Altogether the Salukis have racked up 1,227 yards running, an average of 246.8 yards per game. By contrast, the Salukis gained only 122.7 yards per game last year for a seasons total of 1,227 yards.

The Salukis will travel to Muncie, Ind., Saturday to meet the Ball State Cardinals in a 1:30 p.m. contest. Ball State is currently 4-4, coming off a 34-3 win over Middle Tennessee.

The Cardinals are led by quarterback Rick Scott, receiver Kevin Canfield and eight running backs who have each gained over 100 yards this season. The Salukis lone victory last season came against Ball State in Carbondale, 13-7. In that game the Cardinals were terrorized by 12 fumbles on quarterback-center exchanges.

The Salukis will be playing only their second game of the year on natural turf. The other game was against Dayton, when SIU lost 23-19, and had trouble establishing its running game on the slippery, muddy surface.

Orioles' Weaver voted top pilot

BALTIMORE (AP) — Earl Weaver of the Baltimore Orioles, somewhat miffed in the past at being overlooked humbly accepted his award Tuesday as American League Manager of the Year.

"It's nice to have," Weaver said, "but I wish it would have come in a year when we were at least American League champions. I don't feel we were losers, though. We did win the division."

The Orioles have won four division titles in Weaver's first five full seasons as manager, and have played at a .617 pace, 543 victories against 337 defeats, since he replaced Hank Bauer on July 11, 1968.

The Orioles won more than 100 games three consecutive years while capturing pennants in 1969-70-71, but Weaver was bypassed by sports writers and broadcasters participating in the annual Associated Press poll.

A new kick

Mini-soccer catching on in collegeland

By Kenneth Pilarski
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Mini-soccer, the new game sensation for midgets? Not exactly, mini-soccer is simply a variation of regular soccer and the Office of Recreation and Intramurals, in their never ending search to find new and interesting activities for SIU students has scheduled a five-man indoor mini-soccer tournament.

The tournament will be at 6:30 p.m. on Nov. 14-15 on the playing floor of the SIU Arena. All male students are eligible to enter the tournament and can pick up mini-soccer rules and team roster blanks at the Office of Recreation and Intramurals, Room 128 of the Arena.

A team managers meeting is scheduled for 4 p.m. Monday, Nov. 12 in Room 121 of the Arena. Team rosters must be submitted at this time for approval. A discussion of rule variations between indoor mini-soccer and outdoor soccer will be held during the meeting.

Dan Habel, coordinator for the tournament, gave several reasons for the popularity of indoor mini-soccer at the college level. "The main reason," Habel said, "is incoming freshmen have had more exposure to interscholastic high school soccer than ever before."

Habel credited the growing number of larger high school physical education programs which have incorporated soccer into their basic physical activity program as the other reason for mini-soccer's popularity.

Each mini-soccer team will consist of five players, with one man designated as the goalie, who will wear a colored shirt to indicate his position.

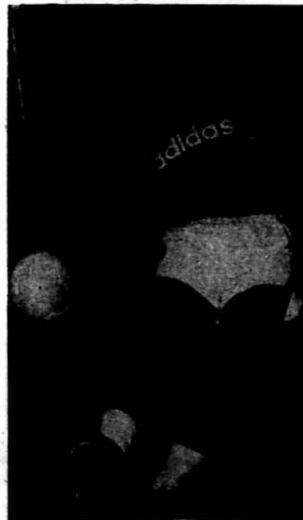

Games are played with 12 minute halves. The playing area is a regular basketball court with a seven foot high and ten foot wide goal.

The ball is smaller and heavier with a lower bouncing property than a regular soccer ball. Regular tennis or jogging shoes are required (soccer shoes are not permitted).

For additional information, contact the Office of Recreation and Intramurals at 453-2710.

'Dry run' drains yacht

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP)—One of the yachts entered in an around-the-world race is named Trente Tours Expert, after a French beer. The crew, however, sailed the first leg of the race from Portsmouth, England to Cape Town, bone dry.

Balancing act?
