Staff council denounces IBHE plan

By Mike Springston
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Administrative and Professional Staff Council (APSC) voiced strong opposition to the Illinois Board of Higher Education's staff draft of Master Plan—Phase IV (MP4) at a meeting held Wednesday.

An APSC committee will write up formal opposition to the plan on Friday and submit it to President Warren W. Brandt Monday.

MP4 will provide guidelines for and status of all universities in Illinois when it is completed.

APSC objected to a number of articles in the plan.

If MP4 is adopted, state universities would be forced to raise their tuitions to levels comparable with private universities. MP4 would also specify the academic programs that each individual university could carry.

"It assumes that students are mobile and affluent," Barbara Spears, APSC chairperson, said. "I don't assume that of most students at this university (SIU)."

Other articles objectionable to the APSC would limit academic research to practical fields, would take away SIU's Board of Trustees' representative's vote on the state board of trustees and would limit universities' community services to academic related programs. The plan also recommended that state universities should be liable to public demand rather than have a policy of self-determination.

"Educational institutions should be leading the public, and here we are supposed to sit back and let the public tell us what to do," Spears said.

In other action, the agenda was set for the APSC fall general constituency meeting to be held at 3 p.m. Nov. 12 in Student Center Ballroom C.

Mary Helen Gasser, affirmative action officer, will explain administration and professional equity; Donald Ward, personal services manager, will discuss the APSC handbook; and Kendall Adams, professor of marketing, was selected to explain grievance procedures. The APSC will also present a Civil Service system's list that will name the administrative and professional staff members who are exempt from civil service.

Spears also presented the APSC with a rough draft of the guidelines for entry and advancement in administrative and professional staff positions. The rough draft called for chairpersons to have a degree and associate deans and directors to have a degree and three years experience in higher education. Deans and directors should have either a doctorate and three years experience, a master's degree and five years experience, or a bachelor's degree and 10 years experience. Presidents and vice presidents should have a doctorate and five years experience, or a master's degree and 10 years experience or a bachelor's degree and 15 years experience.

Personnel could advance either by increasing their level of administrative responsibility or by contributing "years of outstanding University service."

The APSC did not act on the draft because salary figures included in the guidelines did not meet present University standards.

Center director to advise in programming

By Ray Urchel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Student Center Director Search Committee agreed Tuesday night that the next director will serve in an advisory role for programming within the Student Center.

Applications from 15 or 16 persons who have already applied for the job were also shown to the committee behind closed doors.

Clarence G. Dougherty, present director of the Student Center, was named director of campus services by President Warren W. Brandt in June.

Bruce Swinburne for Student Affairs, said Tuesday that an acting Student Center director may be named to enable Dougherty to assume his new position.

The committee adopted a plan suggested by Student Senator Kevin Crowley and Chairman of Student Government Activities Council (SGAC) Keith Vyse which leaves the fiscal responsibility for the Student Center Programming Committee and SGAC with Student Life.

Swinburne had expressed objections to the proposed plan at the previous meeting, but after a meeting Friday with Vyse and Crowley he accepted the proposal.

"I am convinced in Keith's (Vyse) sincerity, and others in wanting the programming function to work," Swinburne told the committee.

Vyse said the organizational structure "could work and fulfill both of our objectives."

The search committee also approved a job description for the position and another document outlining the screening process to be used for the search.

The director of the Student Center "is responsible for the administration of all areas within the Student Center, including activities advisement, business management and building operations," the document states.

Salary for the position depends on the amount of experience the job description states.

Deadline for application for the position is Jan. 5, 1976.

Advertisements for the job opening will be placed in several higher education publications as well as the Daily Egyptian.

Swinburne, who is chairman of the committee, said the search procedure will be done in accordance with Affirmative action guidelines.

"We will not likely fill this position (Student Center director) unless we have agreement from the Affirmative

E. St. Louis drug raid nets nearly 60

EAST ST. LOUIS (AP)—About 160 policemen carrying pistols and grand jury indictments swept the East St. Louis area Wednesday arresting nearly 60 people on drug charges.

Gary Bossio, director of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southern Illinois (MEG), said as the raids continued into the afternoon, "Total arrests are 55. We have approximately 20 more planned. A couple of teams are still out."

Bossio's agency directed the round-up, an operation based on a seven-month undercover investigation conducted by his lieutenants and the Illinois Bureau of Investigation (IBI). Eighty suppressed indictments were issued by a St. Clair County grand jury earlier this month after it heard testimony from the officers.

They charged unlawful delivery of controlled substances, marijuana, and related offenses.

William R. Barrett, local IBI director, said the raids were the largest in the area's history. Most of the arrests were made in East St. Louis, Cahokia and Centreville.

with Vyse and Crowley he accepted the proposal. "I am convinced in Keith's (Vyse) sincerity, and others in wanting the programming function to work," Swinburne told the committee. Vyse said the organizational structure "could work and fulfill both of our objectives."

Two Americans kidnapped in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Two American Embassy officers were abducted Wednesday by gunmen manning a street barricade in a district of strife-torn Beirut dominated by leftist Moslems and their Palestinian guerrilla allies.

Seizure of the two men, who were forced from an embassy car, was part of a wave of kidnappings that police said accounts for at least some of the 120 persons missing in Lebanon's Christian-Moslem civil war. The conflict has torn this tiny country for seven months. Sporadic street shooting and sniper fire accounted for four new deaths Wednesday.

The embassy identified the two kidnaped as Charles Gallagher, 44, of Roanoke, Va., and William Dykes Jr., 50, of San Jose, Calif. Gallagher is director of the U.S. Information Service printing plant in Beirut, and Dykes is his deputy.

Turkish ambassador killed in Austria

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Three men armed with submachine guns shot the Turkish ambassador to death in his embassy at noon Wednesday and sped away in a white Mercedes-Benz. There were conflicting reports that they were Greek or Greek Cypriot or Armenian.

Austrian police threw out a dragnet to try to find the car and picked up more than a dozen foreigners who fitted the reported size and "Mediterranean look" of the killers. There was no indication that any of them had been linked to the killings.

Police said the killers of Danis Tunaligil, 60, left their guns behind at the embassy, along with the bags in which they apparently carried them.

Members of the embassy staff first told police the intruders were "English-speaking Greeks," but the Turkish Foreign Ministry in Ankara later said its information indicated one spoke Turkish.

Kissinger ends China visit on muted note

PEKING (AP)—Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Thursday he was satisfied with his talks in China. But his visit was ending on a muted note.

In a toast at a dinner he gave for Chinese leaders, the secretary set a rather chilly tone by pointing out that self-interest, not friendship, governs relations between Peking and Washington.

"We ended our isolation from each other because of our perceptions of our national interest," he said. "And we will nurture our relationship by respecting each other's views regarding our national interest."

Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua's answering toast did little if anything to warm the air. "Our talks," he said, "have enabled us to have a clearer understanding of each other's views, this is useful."

Historian Arnold Toynbee dies at 86

YORK, England (AP)—Arnold Toynbee, the British historian whose monumental work on the rise and fall of civilizations brought him world fame—and the accusation of being a prophet of doom—died in a nursing home Wednesday.

He was 86 and had been a patient in the nursing home since suffering a stroke 14 months ago. There was no immediate indication of the cause of death, which was announced by the Purey Cust Nursing Home.

Toynbee, professor emeritus of London University, honorary fellow of Balliol College, Oxford, and Fellow of the British Academy, was a prolific writer and scholar. He also worked in the British Foreign Office research department during two world wars and for a while was a foreign correspondent for the Manchester Guardian newspaper, covering the Greek-Turkish war in 1921.

Labor officials say inflation receding

WASHINGTON (AP)—Americans paid more for just about everything but groceries in September as consumer prices rose one-half of one per cent during the month, the Labor Department reported Wednesday.

But it said the 12-month increases in prices of 7.8 per cent—for the period ending in September—was the smallest 12-month increase in two years, showing that inflation is continuing to recede.

Prices so far this year have increased 5.1 per cent.

The Labor Department said there were sharply higher prices in September for college tuition, doctors' fees, gas, electricity, clothing, pork and transit fares.

Scott ordered to testify in Hearst case

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—A federal judge today ordered two reluctant witnesses to testify before a federal grand jury investigating the harboring of Patricia Hearst in a Pennsylvania farmhouse last year.

U.S. District Court Judge R. Dixon Herman told Micki McGee Scott and Martin Miller that they faced contempt if they refused to testify. Both refused to answer questions previously before the grand jury.

Attorneys for Ms. Scott, 27, of Portland, Ore., who prefers the feminist designation, and Miller, 28, of New York, told the judge they should not have to testify because the government's questions were based on information from illegal wiretaps and the government had instituted a pattern of harassment against them.

Train shortage threatens grain crop

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—A shortage of railroad cars is threatening much of Illinois' record harvest, Agriculture Director Robert J. "Pud" Williams said Wednesday.

"Already there is corn stored on the open ground because of the bumper crop we've got this year," Williams said.

"The elevators are full, there are no rail cars to move grain out, there is still corn in the field and it will continue to come in. The farmer just can't leave it there, and he doesn't have that much storage himself. The only thing to do is pile it on the ground at the elevator, and...left out there long enough, the corn will very simply rot," he said.

Daley to lead Walker veto override rally

CHICAGO (AP)—Mayor Richard J. Daley plans to lead a massive rally in Springfield to urge the General Assembly to override Gov. Daniel Walker's cut-back in this year's school aid appropriation, his aides said Wednesday.

One Daley ally, Ald. Roman C. Pucinski, told newsmen at a luncheon meeting that the mayor would take 25,000 persons to the state capital for the rally Thursday.

Pucinski said Jayne Byrne, the mayor's consumer affairs chief, already has chartered an Amtrak train to transport women from the city and surrounding communities to the Statehouse gathering. He said Daley and 45 aldermen will go to Springfield by plane to press for the override.

Program advisory duty will go to center director

Action Office that we have a reservoir of females, minorities and handicapped persons, since we will be doing this (filling the position) after Jan. 1," Swinburne said.

Recently, Gov. Daniel Walker signed legislation prohibiting job discrimination because of physical disability. The law becomes effective Jan. 1.

Swinburne said the committee expects to receive between 100 and 150 applicants for the position.

Several members of the search committee will screen all of the written applications for the positions between Jan. 5 and the beginning of spring semester, reducing the candidates to about "40 or 50," he said.

"Some of the eliminations will be pretty obvious," Swinburne said. He explained that a person who has just completed his doctorate degree is not as likely to be considered for the job as another person with previous experience.

He told the committee that they should be looking for a person with the minimum of a master's degree, although "that is not an absolute" and that a person with Student Center experience would also be considered.

Swinburne said he hoped the search committee could recommend "about seven" finalists for the position to him by Feb. 1, adding that he hoped the position could be filled between Feb. 15 and March 1, 1976.

Former missionary to meet with Vietnamese refugees

Lewis Meyers Jr., a missionary in Vietnam for 15 years, will speak at two meetings scheduled Saturday and Sunday for Vietnamese students and refugees.

Truong Chi Nguyen, president of the Vietnamese Students Association, said Meyers will meet with students from 6 to 8 p.m. Saturday at University Baptist Church, South Oakland Avenue and West Mill Street, and with refugees from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday at the Baptist Student Center.

The meetings are to discuss programs available for aid to Vietnamese in this country, Truong said.

The Rev. Myron Dillow said Meyers, who served in Vietnam for the Southern Baptist Mission Board, will also speak at the 10:45 a.m. worship service at University Baptist Church.

Police shoot it out in target competition

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Local police shot it out Wednesday at the District 13 Illinois State Police headquarters in DuQuoin.

Competing in teams and individually, between 45 and 50 police and sheriff's deputies took part in the annual Illinois Policeman's Association (IPA) shoot. The shooting match is sponsored by the IPA to promote marksmanship among policemen, but it is not a police force qualifying test.

High scorer for the day was Jack Flanagan, SIU security police. Flanagan scored 272 total points out of a possible 300 in the three-event competition.

"The three events were a five-minute slow fire, a 20-second timed fire and a 10-second rapid fire," Earl Creath, Illinois state trooper and range master, said.

The shoot at DuQuoin is one of six matches which were held state wide Wednesday, Creath said. Scores made here are submitted for statewide competition. "Some shooters in the state will score as high as 290," Creath said.

"Gusting winds may have been responsible for some officers' low scores, but some of these guys can't even use that as an excuse," Creath quipped.

Jackson County Sheriff Don White participated in the target match along with Deputy Steven Mitchell and Willie Mason, jailer. White outshot his jailer with a score of 223 to 173 but was outscored by Mitchell who blasted a 234.

White and his officers used regulation police revolvers.

"Some of the men use, better revolvers which don't have as much recoil but most of these men are using the guns they carry every day which is what this match was designed for," Creath said.

The police shot at 25 yards into a 20 ring bull's-eye. Creath said the match is called the Camp Perry Course.

About 450 to 550 officers across the state participate annually in the match and Creath estimated 10 per cent of the state's shooters use the DuQuoin range.

White said the match was beneficial because it "helps the man get to know his weapon a little better." He said he encouraged his deputies to participate in the contest.

Mitchell said the officers used .38 caliber special target ammunition designed for lower recoil and less danger of ricochet.

"The scores usually drop as the time allowed for firing decreases," Creath said.

The competition gives the officers a chance to correct bad shooting habits and also helps supplement the department's firearm's training program, he said.

Senate votes to lift natural gas price control

WASHINGTON (AP)—After voting a temporary price break for consumers, the Senate passed a bill Wednesday night that gradually would remove all federal controls from the price of natural gas.

The vote of final passage was 58 to 32, with Republican and oil-state senators forming the majority.

Passage of the far-reaching bill came after senators twice refused to order the break-up of the largest oil-gas companies.

The bill, which culminates a 21-year campaign by senators from energy-producing states, eventually would mean sharply higher prices for the natural gas used to heat American homes and to run U.S. factories.

But the Senate acted to delay for several years the impact on consumer prices that removal of price controls would bring. Sponsors say this provision will save consumers $5 billion by 1980.

The bill, which also includes special emergency provisions aimed at averting a serious shortage of natural gas this winter, now goes to the House, where final action this year is considered unlikely.

However, House leaders have pledged they will attempt to pass the emergency provisions quickly to avoid the gas cutbacks that threaten some factories as early as Nov. 1.

Should only those emergency provisions pass the House, the Senate probably would be forced to back down and eliminate from the bill the sections removing price controls from gas.

In two separate votes earlier Wednesday, the Senate rejected liberal amendments that sought to break up the giant oil-and-gas-producing companies that control much of the world's energy supply.

By a 50-40 vote, the Senate defeated an attempt by Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., to prohibit such oil producers as Exxon and Gulf from engaging in refining, transportation and marketing.

Then, on a 53-39 roll call, the Senate rejected an amendment by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that would have blocked the 20 largest oil-gas companies from producing or distributing other energy sources, such as coal or uranium. Oil firms control 35 per cent of coal reserves and 50 per cent of uranium reserves.

An administrative law judge and the Justice Department, in other actions Wednesday, also indicated a reluctance to tie the hands of oil companies during an energy shortage.

Administrative Judge Alvin L. Berman told the Federal Trade Commission that it should consider dropping its antitrust action against the nation's eight major oil companies because of the energy crisis "one of the most crucial issues this nation has ever faced." He recommended a full investigation of the industry instead.

In another report, an FTC task force concluded that the federal government is failing to get a fair return for development of the vast energy resources on public lands. It said current procedures for energy development leases are antiquated.

In the Senate action, the Hart amendment, the second such proposal defeated this month, would have required the largest oil-producing companies to dispose of their pipelines, refineries and service stations.

Hart and his supporters contend such companies are so involved in every segment of the industry that competition is hindered and higher prices result.

But opponents said such radical solutions as the Hart divestiture amendment would spell doom for the nation's efforts to reduce dependence on foreign oil.

Congressional Democrats generally agree on the need for somewhat higher gas prices but argued that removal of controls altogether would mean skyrocketing prices with no assurance of greater supplies.

The Senate bill would try to prevent the immediate shortage by, in effect, allowing the big interstate pipelines that serve most states to purchase gas this winter in the "intrastate" market.

Intrastate gas, which is about one-fourth of U.S. production, is sold in the same state where it is produced—mainly Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma. This gas, free of price controls, sells in the field for an average of $1.25 per thousand cubic feet (mcf).

Prophecy colored on chart

Custodian preaches Christ's return

By Nancy Landis
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Predicting an imminent return of Jesus Christ, one SIU janitor hopes to spark a fire of repentance in modern man.

"I only have one message—repent or perish," James T. Sparks, building service worker, said Tuesday while taking a break from his work at Pierce Hall.

In a first floor lounge, Sparks spread a 15-foot, multi-colored, cloth chart across the clean floor.

The chart aligned Old and New Testament prophecies, depicting the evolution of the world into a "hell on earth" and the return of Christ.

Sparks said he made the chart and uses it in a Bible study class held at 7 p.m. Saturdays in the Student Center Mississippi River Room.

Mouse-gnawed and 20-years-old, the chart has been used for delivering the "message" many times, Sparks said.

"I realize how unwelcome that message is," Sparks said. Sparks said he has been delivering the message for 24 years.

Sparks said he was born and raised in West Frankfort and now lives in Johnston City. He said he has 10 children, ranging in age from 15 to 25.

Sparks said he has delivered the message in Illinois, Kentucky, Indiana and Missouri.

"I'm an undenominational preacher," Sparks said. He said he is not ordained by any organization.

"The only church is of those who have been born again," Sparks said, speaking of spiritual rebirth through belief in Jesus Christ.

"The Bible clearly reveals that there will be a world church that is corrupt," Sparks said. He said the church will be used by an anti-Christ figure to gain control over the world.

The anti-Christ will probably come from Syria after a seven-year peace agreement is signed between Israel and Syria, Sparks said.

A world government will be formed with the anti-Christ as leader, Sparks said.

"The same bribe offered Christ (to become physical ruler of the world) by the Devil will be offered to the political head, and he will take it," Sparks said.

After gaining control of the world, the anti-Christ will build an idol of himself and demand that people worship him, Sparks continued.

"It will be all nations under one head to oppose the literal return of Jesus to the Earth," Sparks said.

Israel will accept the anti-Christ, and seven years of "Great Tribulation" will follow, Sparks said pointing to the right end of the chart which he said that period of time.

"Just prior to the Great Tribulation, God will catch up his own," Sparks said. He said Christians who have experienced spiritual rebirth will be removed from the world, and those remaining will suffer through the "hell on earth."

"Christ is the only hope," Sparks said. He said he preaches that man is basically evil, not basically good.

"All men are in need of repentance," he said.

Sparks said he could not predict when the second coming of Christ would occur, because if he did he would be a false prophet. He said, however, current events seem to indicate Christ's return will be imminent.

"So, we're about to be invaded from space again," Sparks said in conclusion.

Cut high salaries

By Constantine Karahalos
Student Writer

Webster's dictionary defines a university as a "corporation of teachers for the teaching of higher education." This definition implies that the most important employes of a university are the professors engaged in higher education. Yet, if salary is any indication of importance, then SIU professors rank second to the University administrators.

Although some professors are paid more than some administrators, the median annual salary of professors and assistant professors at SIU is below that of administrators. Administrators argue that part of the reason for their higher salaries is because they work twelve months of the year while the faculty work only nine. Therefore, they are paid for twelve while faculty are only paid for nine. But their increase in salary is more inflated than just an added three months of pay.

One example is the promotion of an associate professor to the post of assistant dean of his college. Not only was his salary paid for the extra three months, but his original salary was increased $400 a month for all twelve months. This gave him a raise of $4,800 a year, not including the increase he received for working twelve months rather than nine. His annual salary rose from about $13,500 to over $22,000. As a professor, he may have needed to publish two more books before receiving that kind of raise, books that would be researched an written during his three months of the year spent away from teaching.

But administrators still contend that they deserve a higher salary because they have larger responsibilities than faculty members. This is not necessarily so.

If a university is indeed an institute of higher learning then its main responsibility is to the teaching of "higher education" and not its business matters. The professors, not the administrators, are the most important employes of the university. It seems a distortion of values to say the management of university is more important than education. Yet, this is what SIU is saying by paying its administrators more than its faculty.

Still, the problem is not one of under-paid faculty as much as it is one of inflated administrative salaries. The solution seems to rest in cutting back the salaries of administrators in order to create more of an equilibrium between academic and administrative salaries.

Compensation mess

By Cathy Tokarski
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Government bureaucracy is making its presence all to well-known for Illinois residents who are trying to receive unemployment compensation.

Recent statistics show that although nationwide unemployment dropped from 8.4 per cent to 8.3 per cent between August and September, Illinois unemployment rose from 9.1 per cent to 9.3 per cent, and from 11.6 to 11.9 per cent in Chicago.

Despite Illinois' disproportionately high rate of unemployment, trying to get a check has proved almost as difficult as trying to get a job.

For example, in suburban Lombard, the unemployment office handled 21,000 claims for a 15-day period in September. Because the office employs only 10 or 12 workers, some people have had to wait between four to eight weeks before they received any money.

These delays in payment have prompted Sen. Charles Percy (R., Ill.) to censure the Illinois Bureau of Employment for "flagrantly violating the existing time limit for processing appeals." According to the Manpower Development and Training act of 1962, payments are supposed to be made promptly after a two-week waiting period.

As a result, Percy has written to Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop, urging him to force Illinois to comply with the federal law. Percy's warning to the Illinois Bureau of Employment deserves credit, but without the enforcement of the Labor Department, it cannot initiate any real improvements.

The Labor Department must take heed of Percy's letter and take action to untangle the mess created by Illinois bureaucrats.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in yesterday's column by Mary Gardner that C.B. Hart was the dean of Communications and Fine Arts. Actually, C.B. Hunt is the dean.

UFO people drop in with far-out ideas

A couple calling themselves "The Two" claim to have arrived on earth in space ships from the same origin as Jesus Christ. They started in Ventura County California last spring, wending their way around the country, picking up members for their cult.

Ventura County Sheriff Charles Rudd identified "The Two" as Marshall Herff Applewhite, 44, and Bonnie Lu Trusdale Nettles, 43. Rather Anglo-sounding names for outer spacers. Something less Christian and more cosmic would have been more appropriate.

Hayden Hewes, a self-styled UFO investigator from Oklahoma City, has spoken to "The Two." He said the message they carry is one that, according to them, has been perverted and twisted through the human religion called Christianity. Their religion involves wandering around a lot, leaving material things behind, and eventually become a non-human creature.

"The Two" claim their authenticity will be proved within a few months. They will be assassinated and three days later will rise from the dead. The assassination will take place in either Salt Lake City or San Francisco. A betting man would take San Francisco as the odds-on favorite. Just as Gerald Ford.

"The Two" assure their followers that they won't have to die before getting to ride on a spaceship to another life. With an offer like that, who can resist? It's almost as good as airline flight insurance.

"The Two" call their belief HIM—Human Individual Metamorphosis. The title is definitely sexist. Why not call it HER—Human Evolutionary Redevelopment, or better yet, IT—Individual Transformation. As long as everyone is leaving their families, selling their possessions and giving up sex and alcohol, why not give up sexual identities too?

"The Two" have taken their cult from California to Oregon, Colorado, Illinois (the Fox Lake area) and Texas.

In Texas, Applewhite was arrested and sentenced to four months in a Brownsville jail for failure to return a rental car reported stolen. Let's hope he's not renting his spaceship. Interplanetary law might be stricter than Texas law.

The people that have joined the cult are from varied backgrounds. In Oregon, between 21 and 26 people picked up and left everything behind. For a couple who have made a strong verbal denouncement of all material possessions, "The Two" have managed to acquire quite a little nest egg.

In Los Angeles, Joan Culpepper, who describes herself as a teacher of metaphysics and a psychic, turned over $433 to the cult.

"They encouraged us to bring as much money as possible and they told us when we arrived at camp we had to turn over all our money to the communal fund. I think they got from $13,000 to $35,000 from the Los Angeles group," Culpepper said.

A member of the sect confirmed that the money was turned over to a group member called "Moneybags". All members of the group were taken care of, whether they had contributed money or not, the member said.

"The Two" have offered an ultimatum to "the highest authority in human offices" which says, in part, "if your nation and others do not immediately stop interfering in the natural evolutionary process which requires that each individual and each group be left alone to his own development according to his own religion, then the civilized structure around the world will be destroyed. Post haste."

There have been a lot of invasions of personal rights in this country in the past few years, but religion has remained an exceptionally personal and private belief. We may be bugged, polluted, gyped and lied to, but our freedom of religion has remained unscathed. Cults like HIM are protected under law. Only when harm comes to others, in the form of violence or deceptive practices does the law intervene.

"The Two" have technically broken no laws as far as their religion is concerned. The money they have acquired has come from consenting adults. What these adults don't seem to realize is that a complete freedom of religion is available here. They don't need to go to far off planets to have freedom of religion.

Ideas of rising from the dead are silly. No one has done it yet and certainly won't happen with "The Two".

Problems concerning human beings can only be solved by human beings. The answers are here on earth, not on some foreign planet a thousand light years away.

Ford is a America's "accidental" President

By Arthur Hoppe

President Ford obviously needs help. He's fallen down airplane boarding ramps, been shot at and now, worst of all, he's been hit by a car.

Fortunately, he wasn't hurt. But as any motorist knows, no greater calamity could befall any man.

"Hi, Betty, I'm home. Again."

"That's nice, dear. Did you have a good time in wherever you were this trip?"

"I think it was Connecticut. But nothing much happened. Oh, I did have a little traffic accident. But I wasn't even shaken up."

"Good heavens! Who ran into you, dear?"

"I didn't stop to get their names. I guess they didn't see our motorcade. So they came through this green light..."

"You mean you ran a red light and left the scene of an accident? Really, dear, that's not going to help your law and order image. You'd better call you insurance agent right away."

So he calls his insurance agent who isn't in for three days. "Another accident, you say?" says the agent when he finally gets through.

"It's only a little dent in the fender."

"Well, I'll mail you a report to fill out in quadruplicate including diagrams, weather conditions and your grandmother's maiden name. Then, after you've gotten three estimates on the cost of repairs, we'll settle your claim."

The report arrives a week later. He manages to fill it out in a single afternoon. But then he has to drive all over town getting three estimates. The lowest is 499.99.

"For a little dent in the fender?" he says.

"Well, we have to take off the coreopsis, remove the crenilated fanshaw and give the entire body six coats of paint," explains the repair man. "But we can have it for you in three days." He leaves the car and takes the bus to his office, which requires transferring four times. "What am I going to do for a car, Betty?" he asks when he gets home.

"Why don't you borrow one of your sons?" she says.

He does. The next day he's stopped for straddling a double line. "I've always steered a middle-of-the-road course," he explains. But the cop busts him when he finds a joint under the seat. "What's a joint?" he says.

Two weeks later his car is ready. The bill is $1362.83. "We had to mogrify the calipsis, porticate the franges and replace a windshield wiper," explains the repair man. "But don't worry, $499.99 is covered by your insurance."

"That's true," says his agent. "But unfortunately, you're carrying $500 deductible. Or you were. We've cancelled your policy. You're obviously accident prone."

Finally he gets back to his desk only to learn that war is imminent in the Middle East.

"It sure feels great," he says with a sigh of relief, "to be dealing once again with easy problems."

"FELL DOWN THE STAIRS, TWO ASSASSINATION ATTEMPTS BUMPED HIS HEAD, AUTOMOBILE WRECK--THANK GOD NOTHING ELSE CAN HAPPEN!"

Compulsory unionism is a threat to freedom

To the Daily Egyptian:

This is correct a gross error in your September 30th issue. Your staff writers Daniel Hofmann and Lenore Sobota in an article about the Symposium on Collective Bargaining, referred to Professor Lowell Jackson from the University of Wisconsin, as "a representative of the National Right To Work Foundation, an anti-union organization."

Actually Professor Jackson was at SIU as a representative of Concerned Educators against Forced Unionism, a division of the National Right To Work Committee, not Foundation.

The National Right To Work Legal Defense Foundation is a totally separate entity that involves it's self only in defending the civil and human rights of workers who want to take legal recourse against a compulsory union situation.

Give them the vote

To the Daily Egyptian:

I must say I agree with those seventh-graders who want the right to vote...not that they would be as adept at it as, say, someone who voted for Nixon (twice). It's just that they have the best spirit of any citizens of this country. Every time I see seventh-graders, they are always wearing those "vote" t-shirts. When was the last time you saw Ted Kennedy in a "vote" t-shirt?

While we're at it, maybe we should give all the guns to seventh-graders, too.

Thanks for the CEC picnic

To the Daily Egyptian:

Being one of the several hundred in attendance at the Council for Exceptional Children (CEC) picnic last Sunday, I would like to express my sincere thanks to all those who made it possible. It was well organized and certainly one of the most enjoyable activities that I have attended. You made a lot of people very happy.

Richard A. Jacobs
Senior
Special Ed./Elementary Ed.

The Right To Work concept is not, and never has been, "anti-union". We will support and defend a persons' right to join a union just as vigorously as we stand up for the right to refrain from having to pay tribute to a union as a condition of employment.

Freedom is based on choice. Where choice is denied, individual rights and freedoms are destroyed.

Professor Jackson attended the symposium because of his concern over the effects of compulsory unionism (agency shop and related forced fee schemes) on academic freedom. We are already seeing cases of college professors being fired from their jobs simply because they refuse to pay "taxes" to a union; which they personally oppose.

In the words of Professor Leon Knight, North Hennepin Community College (Minnesota), "In education and particularly higher education...the idea of academic freedom, the idea of the dissident person, the idea of the person who marches to a different drum, is very precious. And yet unionism is coming in and saying I must march to that drum. If they can determine, not what I teach in the classroom, but whether I teach at all, that is the ultimate threat to academic freedom".

I hope the faculty members of SIU who value their individual freedom will seriously consider the threats presented by compulsory unionism.

Keep to the right

To the Daily Egyptian:

In todays' society, we walk, ride, and drive on the right hand side. In driver's education, we are taught to always keep to the right in any head-on emergency. Bicycling daily, I find people walking and riding on the left hand side. Surely there can't be that many exchange students from England.

I was, unfortunately, involved in a bicycle and pedestrian accident. This mishap occurred last Monday on the curving walk leading to Mill St. just north of Wham. This bush-lined curving sidewalk is a notorious hazard for bikers as well as walkers.

Riding at a cautious speed on the right side of the walk, I suddenly faced three people walking abreast. Naturally, I swerved to the right ignoring the bushes, but still collided head-on with a young lady walking on my side of the walk. I say "my side" because I have always known it to be orderly to walk on the right. I felt very bad about the whole scene. I was not hurt (physically), but the girl obviously suffered bruises and scratches.

After apologizing, I rode away, visibly upset. I didn't want to hit her and tried desperately not to, but she jumped to her left, in front of me. It was a disheartening experience to injure an unknown person after trying to avoid it. There would be fewer accidents like mine if people would remember to walk and ride on the right hand side (to promote order) and to always keep right when disaster is imminent.

Albums offer 'Winter' rock, 'Who by Numbers' soft music

By Keith Tuzhorn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"The Who by Numbers"
The Who
MCA-2161

"The Edgar Winter Group with Rick Derringer"
Blue Sky PZ 33798

These two albums come from mainstays in the rock and roll music division: one from the Who, charter members from the early 1960's, and one from the Edgar Winter Group, relative newcomers into the club. And it turns out that the new kids do a more convincing job than their forefathers.

The Winter Group's album brings with it a lot of rhythm and blues and jazz flavor, since this is what Edgar played for many years, both with his brother Johnny and his previous band, White Trash. But this style has evolved into rock in the last three years, partly because of Winter's interest in playing rock, and partly because of the influence of band members Rick Derringer and Dan Hartman.

A Review

Outside of four "make-you-feel-good" soft and slow songs, the album drives throughout without letting up. The band adds flavor to the album giving a reggae feel to "Infinite Peace in Rhythm," a disco beat to "Cool Dance" and "Good Shot" and a heavy metal sound to "Chainsaw."

But regardless of the feel of the various songs, the feeling that this is a rock and roll album is conveyed because of the spirit that comes across in the songs. Everything is played with confidence and enthusiasm, and you just know the band is having a great time performing. It's that cockiness and positive spirit that makes a rock and roll album work, and the Winter Group's new album utilizes both of these to the hilt.

At the same time, "The Who by Numbers" is lacking in both of the above things, and the album suffers. It sounds like the Who had to make an album but didn't really want to.

The matchless drive and enthusiasm of "Who's Next" and "Quadrophenia" are in evidence here on only two cuts, "Slip Kid" and "In a Hand or a Face." The other five rockers, though all quite fine, don't really capture the mood they need.

Oddly enough, two soft songs are the best on the album. "Imagine a Man" holds Roger Daltrey's best vocal showing, and a very melancholy mood is set. The best cut is "Blue Red and Gray," a very pleasant song featuring just Pete Townshend singing and playing guitar.

But the album as a whole is not convincing, and we're left wondering when a full dose of rock and roll in the classic Who style will come our way again. Here's hoping this doesn't spell the beginning of the end for the band, because they are, the finest that can be found. "The Who by Numbers" is a nice album, but it's not rock and roll.

Hunt club to open fox season

The Wolf Creek Hunt Club will officially begin its sixth annual season of fox hunting this weekend, with two days of activities planned. On Saturday the club will hold hunter trials at the Wolf Creek Hunt Club's clubhouse, located on Wolf Creek Road about 25 miles southwest of Carbondale. Gene Lasher, Metamora, Mich., will judge the event. Classes include green working hunter, regular working hunter, amateur owner and hunter teams. Classes are open to the public, and entrants will be charged $5 for each class, or $20 for the whole show.

The first hunt of the season will get underway on Sunday, beginning with a stirrup cup at the clubhouse at 8:30 a.m. The hunt will begin at 9 a.m., and a breakfast will be served afterwards at the clubhouse. Non-members who wish to ride in the hunt must be guests of members.

Anyone interested in riding in the hunter trials or in the hunt should contact Beth Lockwood at Springer Ridge Stables, 549-3922.

Service to be held for former dean

A memorial service will be held for Lucy K. Woody, former dean of women at SIU in the Home Economics Building at 7 p.m. Friday.

The ceremony is open to the public and will include addresses by Martha Clark, representing the Methodist Churchwomen; Genevieve Myers, P.E.O., a women's organization of which Mrs. Woody belonged, and Charles Tenney, professor emeritus at SIU.

Mrs. Woody died Oct. 3 at the New Haven Center in Carbondale. Woody Hall, first opened as a women's dormitory, in 1953 and now serving as an administrative building, was named after her.

They picketed the theatre, but "Harold and Maude" didn't budge.

"Harold and Maude" is a bizarre comedy with a bizarre history.

It opened here in 1972 and, to put it kindly, failed to distinguish itself.

Then it opened at the Westgate Theatre in Minneapolis, and something strange began to happen.

At first, a basically middle-age audience came to see "Harold and Maude", and loved it. The run was extended.

Then the college dating crowd found out about it. They came, they saw, they were conquered. They went again. The run was extended again.

Then it was the teenagers. Then the younger kids. Then, gradually, everyone was going. After about 24 weeks, the Westgate began to suspect something was going on.

Thirty weeks. 35, 40, 50, 75. Then 100 weeks, breaking the all-time Minneapolis record previously held by "The Sound of Music."

Some neighbors picketed outside demanding a change of fare (they were tired of looking at the same marquee for over two years!) "Harold and Maude" began its third year at the Westgate. And still audiences came, many of them seeing the film for a second, or tenth, or twentieth time. One young man saw it 138 times. The film played for an incredible 114 weeks before it finally ended its run.

The second Carbondale premiere begins today. Could we request that after you see it once, you give someone else a chance, before you try to see it again.

School offers courses for outdoorsmen

Outward Bound is a school which enables its students to take courses in hiking, mountain climbing and canoeing. The school, which has seven locations in the United States, offers a standard course in which conditioning and skills are stressed in the field the student chooses.

Outward Bound has schools in Colorado, Maine, New Hampshire, Minnesota, North Carolina, Oregon and New Mexico. Instructors for the courses are selected from hundreds of qualified applicants, and chosen as much for their ability as their desire to work with people.

The school claims that many colleges give credit for its courses, but SIU does not, according to Jerre Pfaff, associate director of admissions. SIU does not give credit for courses taken at another school unless that school is fully accredited, said Pfaff.

Outward Bound recommends applying for courses long in advance, and requires that tuition and expenses are paid 60 days prior to the first class.

Arena prepares for arrival of "Greatest Show on Earth"

By Judy Vandewater
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Clowns, trained animals, trapeze artists and the big top are all integral parts of the circus. But it is tradition that ties the show together and has made "Greatest Show On Earth" an American institution.

The arrival of Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus will be heralded by a traditional animal walk from the circus train to the Arena. The circus train is scheduled to arrive at 5 p.m. Monday at the Illinois Central and Gulf loading area behind Vogler Ford on Oak Street, according to Joel Preston, publicity director for arena events.

Elephants, thoroughbred horses, llamas and zebras will march to the music of the Carbondale Community High School Band. Mayor Neil Eckert and SIU President Warren Brandt will ride atop elephants in the parade.

The animal walk will begin at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Illinois Central and Gulf loading area. It will proceed up Oak Street, turn left on University Avenue and continue South to Campus Drive, Preston said. The animals will go past the student center and into the arena parking lot.

Tents and stables to provide shelter for the animals will be erected at the Arena parking lot on Monday, Preston said. The caged animals will be moved to the Arena on Monday night.

Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus boast the largest aggregation of performing circus animals in the world. They undoubtedly have one of the world's largest feeding bills. In one week the animals of the red unit, which will appear at SIU, consume 11 tons of hay, 1200 pounds of oats and 1500 pounds of straw. "Three weeks ago a gentlemen came into town to buy locally all the feed for the animals," Preston said.

Extensive advance preparation is necessary to ensure everything will run smoothly when the circus arrives. Preston said the Arena Manager's Office began preparations in June. An advance man, who handles publicity and travel arrangements for the circus arrived in Carbondale at the end of August.

Dean Justice, the arena manager, began negotiations to bring the circus to SIU five years ago, according to Preston.

Ticket sales have been "terrific" according to Preston. Tickets are still available for all performances of the circus. Matinees are scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Tuesday and 11 a.m. Wednesday. Evening performances will be given at 8 p.m. Tuesday and 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Ticket prices for the general public are 3.50, 4.50 and 5.50. SIU students and children under 12 receive a dollar off the admission price at matinee performances.

Preston said that only bleacher seats are still available for evening performances. "There are very good chair seats left for the matinee performances," Preston added.

Students from 35 Carbondale area schools will attend the matinee performances. The schools "snapped up" the majority of bleacher seats at the matinees, Preston said. A few bleacher seats remain for the matinees,

Student negotiates with Navy for sale of antique helicopter

By Jim May
Student Writer

Clifford Smith, an SIU student and certified helicopter instructor, is currently negotiating a trade with the U.S. Navy for his airworthy antique Kaman-240 twin-rotor helicopter.

Smith of Murphysboro and Earl Romer, Cape Girardeau, own the Kaman-240 helicopter and want to trade it to the Navy Air Museum at Pensacola, Fla., for another aircraft. Smith said he would try to negotiate for another helicopter he could work on and resell.

The Kaman-240, also known by the Navy as HTK-1, was used by the Navy in flight training. Twenty-nine HTK-1's were ordered by the Navy in 1951 and Smith has the only one still in existence. The engineering features of the helicopter are twin rotor blades with servo-flaps attached to them to steer the aircraft and a tail fin in place of a tail rotor.

The Navy negotiators are headed by Capt. Grover Walker, ret., from the Navy air museum. The Navy has agreed to take the helicopter but the negotiations on a trade are still in progress.

Smith has declined offers to sell his helicopter to buyers who wanted to use the rotorcraft for crop dusting because, he said, "It just didn't sit right in my mind."

"If someone flew it and crashed it then there would be no more of them," Smith added. He wants to see the aircraft in a museum where people could appreciate it because it is the only known Kaman-240 with a piston power plant in existence.

Smith bought the Kaman-240 from an aircraft dealer in Oklahoma. When he bought it there were minor repairs to make on it before it could fly. He also received two extra fuselages, 20 spare rotor blades, a complete set of special tools for the helicopter, engineering diagrams for spare parts, 12 transmissions, three engines and an old Navy log book for the Kaman-240's. Smith said he received 18,000 pounds of new surplus parts.

After transporting the helicopter back to Carbondale, Smith repaired it to working specifications and made a few test flights in it. It is airworthy and is currently parked at the SIU airport.

Blacks braid tradition, style into African cornrow hairdo

By Joyce Thomas

Cornrowing, or braiding, has found a place beside the afro at SIU.

This not-so-new hairstyle is African in origin. The creative braid designs can be traced to West African nations such as Nigeria and Ghana.

In ancient days, women took great pride in the intricate patterns they wove with their hair. Women in Africa still wear their hair this way, according to Ralph Akinfeye of Nigeria, journalism graduate student.

In this country it has been a matter of convenience for mothers to braid their little daughter's hair in tight rows. Recently this style has been popularized by famous blacks such as Roberta Flack and Cicely Tyson.

"It looks good on me," said Kathy Taylor, freshman in general studies, "and I don't have to comb it everyday." If the hair is tightly braided it can stay in for three to four days, according to Janet Green, journalism senior.

The convenience of the style makes up for the time spent braiding. Depending on the texture, length and whether the hair has been straightened, styling can take from one-half to five hours.

To braid hair in cornrows, the hair is divided into three sections.

More hair from each section is picked up in the braiding process until the row is completed. The braid is in underhand style and no tie is used. African women use ties as part of the style, according to Akinfeye.

A survey of Carbondale beauty salons showed none had ever styled cornrows and only one, Campus Beauty Salon, said it would be willing to try. However, since the shop had never attempted the style, the price was unknown.

Black men also wear the braids, a new American twist to the old style.

"In Africa you never see a man do it. The moment you do, he's crazy," Akinfeye said. "It's an embarrassment to see a guy braid his hair and walk on the street."

In Nigeria only one man wears braids once a year, during the Sango (god of thunder) Festival, when he serves as chief of the worshippers, Akinfeye said. Ebony magazine attributes braided black male hair to theories that the hair grows faster if braided, makes a fuller afro and expresses black militant sentiment.

Course to study ethics, values

A course which studies values and ethics man creates in his social systems and their relationship to other systems in the animal kingdom will be offered spring semester, said John Dotson, acting director of General Studies.

GSA and GSB 200E, "Values, Systems and Society," is the second in a series of courses in systems science. The first course in the series, GSA and GSB 125, "Systems Nature of Man's World," was offered last year.

Hans Rudnick of the Department of English, principle instructor of the new course, said it is designed to study the role values play in man's social system and how his system generates these values.

Rudnick said three other instructors will be involved in the course. Risieri Frondizi of the Department of Philosophy, Hermann Hass of the Department of Zoology, and John D. Muller of the Department of Anthropology will discuss various aspects of systems analysis as it relates to man.

SIU student dies after two-car crash

Ronald D. Chambers, 22, and an SIU student, died Saturday following a two-car crash near his home in Champaign, Ill. He was a junior in physical education.

According to the accident report, the compact car Chambers was driving turned left at 5:30 a.m. Saturday, in front of a Champaign police squad car which was responding to a call. The police car skidded 76 feet trying to avoid a collision.

The squad car, which police estimated was traveling 40 miles per hour in a 35 m.p.h. zone, rapped around the front of the Chambers car upon impact. Together the cars slid about 57 feet until the squad car hit a curb located on the 500 block of South Mattis Avenue in Champaign. The Chambers car then ripped free of the squad car and rolled 36 feet before coming to rest on its roof.

Chambers was pinned inside the car but was rescued within minutes by ambulance attendants using pry bars and a 'pota-power' machine. He was taken to Burnham City Hospital in Champaign where he died about noon Saturday. The policeman involved in the accident was treated for minor injuries and released.

Chambers' car was demolished and the squad car sustained heavy front-end damage, the report said. An inquest will be held to determine the cause of death.

Chambers is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chambers, of Champaign, three brothers, Robert and Milton, both of Austin, Tex., and John, of Champaign, and a sister, Anne, of Champaign. He was a 1971 graduate of Champaign Central High School.

Chambers was buried Tuesday in Anderson, Ind.

Eagles make comeback on Mississippi

CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP)—It appears things are looking up for eagles, especially along the Mississippi.

"More and more eagles are coming into the Mississippi River Valley to fish," says Elton Fawks, among the country's foremost specialists on the winter habits of the lofty predator.

Most encouraging, the 67-year-old ornithologist says, is that the ratio of immature to mature eagles is climbing steadily, indicating greater breeding success in outlying nesting areas.

Fawks, who has studied the bald eagle for 20 years and is a consultant to the National Wildlife Federation, recently published a one-day count of eagles made early this year by more than 700 people from St. Paul, Minn., to Tennessee.

According to his figures about one-third of all the bald eagles in the country now turn to the Mississippi for winter fishing grounds. Conducted in February, the count recorded 1,131 bald and 16 golden eagles along the river and adjacent wildlife refuges.

From 1962 to 1966 the average for the same area was just 601 eagles. For 1967 through 1971 the average rose to 745. For the past three years the average shoots to 1,028—almost double the first.

Nearly 30 per cent of those sighted since 1972 have been immature, compared with 20 per cent in the 1962-66 period.

In the past, most of the birds were thought to have flown in from the north—Canada, Michigan, Wisconsin and especially Minnesota.

"Up north, things are increasing every winter," Fawks said in a telephone interview at his East Moline home. "But your numbers coming down should be fairly stable."

"Apparently eagles are coming here from other areas besides just north. I think they come from the duck-hunting areas east and west. It's the only explanation we have for the increase in numbers."

Fawks reasons the immature eagles feed on the easy pickings in waterfowl hunting areas—carrion and wounded birds—until the fish is exhausted. Then they move into the valley.

In time, a few may settle permanently. "If they keep on increasing there is a possibility they'll come back to Illinois," he said. "If they do come back in Illinois, there will be just scattered pairs here and there. But I'm encouraged," he said. "They are not declining and they are increasing. If we can protect their roosting areas up and down that river and keep on controlling pesticides there is a good chance, an excellent chance, the eagle will survive."

YOU PAY FOR WHAT YOU GET

The city of New York awoke from a disastrous dream last spring. For decades it had lived beyond its means. Many of its citizens had come to believe they could get something without paying for it—"free" college educations; huge welfare benefits; wage increases for city employees double and triple those in the federal government; extravagant, fiscally unrealistic pensions.

Result: The city found itself $750 million short of meeting its current operating expenses, and was forced to pay close to $2 billion yearly on its past debts. "No other city in the United States has provided such a range of free services and diversions," reported one news magazine.

The only problem was, those "services and diversions" were not free at all. In fact, the most elementary economic truth is: Few things are really free. We must always pay the piper when the dance is over.

In our personal lives, this pay-the-piper principle seems so logical, so matter of fact, that we seldom question it. Whether we're offering a child piano lessons, buying an air conditioner or choosing steak over hamburger, we weigh the benefits to be derived, and we expect to pay the price.

But somehow we seem to abandon this logic when we venture upon "social goals"—from poverty programs to health care to aid to education. The two most common signs of public departure from economic reality are the statements, "Let the government pay for it," and the currently popular "Tax the big corporations—let them pay for it." But who really does pay? Let's examine just one case.

The Union Carbide plant at Alton, W. Va., which produces ferro-alloys for the steel and aluminum industries, used to be known as "the world's smokiest factory." It poured out 41,000 tons of particles a year, more than that emitted by all of New York City. In 1971, Union Carbide began to take steps to meet a clean-up schedule developed with state environmental officials—and today the air is clear over Alton. Thanks to a vast complex of environmental equipment that requires almost as much room as the plant itself, emissions have been reduced by 47 percent.

What has the Alton clean-up cost? Union Carbide spent $33 million for the elaborate anti-pollution devices. Operation and maintenance of the system cost more than $5 million a year. As a result, plant operating costs have risen more than 10 percent. Who will pay this cost? The company initially, certainly. But ultimately the clean-up has to be reflected in the prices of alloys for high-strength and specialty purposes, and for aluminum products. Eventually, all of us, in buying goods made from steel and aluminum, will feel the economic impact.

Most would agree that the clean air was worth the cost. Yet in setting each new social goal, we, as the people who ultimately pay, must ask ourselves: Are the benefits worth the costs?

Nothing is free: money from Washington, new safety devices for your car, the reduction of industrial pollution. In the final analysis, the bill lands in your lap.

Such decisions are easily resolved at the personal level. (Is the extra room on the new house, the tape deck for your car, worth the extra dollar outlay to you?) But when it comes to social goals, we may not be fully aware of the facts, mainly because the decision-making is in the hands of our surrogates—Congressmen and regulatory agency officials.

Whether the decisions they make for us are wise or unwise is ultimately decided by the voters—although it may take a long time. But whether these decisions will cost us money has already been immutably decided by economic reality. Americans, for instance, have spent an estimated $2.4 billion extra on their automobiles since 1972 to accommodate various government mandated combinations of wires, lights and buzzers to force them to buckle their seat belts. Ordered "on behalf of" the public, these devices proved to be overwhelmingly unpopular, and the law requiring them was finally rescinded by Congress as a "social goal" not worth the cost.

As you read this, other bills for social goals—many of which we may find admirable—are being tacked up. We will pay for what we get, so we must be sure that as a nation we want, need and can afford them.

In the steel industry, for example, we must be prepared for the possibility that new, stiffer government anti-pollution standards will cause steel industry costs to increase by $25 to $30 a ton over the next eight years. Other costs—energy, raw materials and labor—will also drive prices up. The companies will bear the brunt initially, but we consumers will finally pay. (Steel men don't profit their own money; they make it by selling their products.) Part of the increased cost of a new car or refrigerator will go toward clearing the air over Chicago, Baltimore, Pittsburgh or Birmingham—wherever steel is made.

Or consider, for instance, the effect of a proposed federal regulation to require tire manufacturers to mold coded information regarding traction qualities, tread resistance, and resistance to generation of heat into the side of each new tire. Some companies estimate that this regulation will add at least 75 cents to the retail cost of each tire. In other words, according to the manufacturers, if you buy four tires, you will pay $3 for both symbols you can't understand and additional testing that will add nothing to the safety already required by previous regulations. Presumably, astute consumers will bone up on traction, wear and heat-generation information before they buy their tires. We must ask ourselves: Is this regulation really worth the cost?

Another example: flammability standards for upholstered furniture suggested by the Consumer Product Safety Commission. The regulations, aimed principally at cigarette-caused fires, are expected to increase prices of upholstered sofas and armchairs by up to 25 percent. The furniture industry fears that the standards could eliminate about 70 percent of fabrics now made for upholstery. If we, through our surrogates, decide that it is correct for the government to impose such flammability standards, then we must be prepared to pay the cost the next time we buy a couch. And we may not like the feel or look of the new or nonflammable fabrics.

What all this means is that we, as part of a complex and interrelated economy, cannot merely wish for or advocate some benefit for a "remote" part of our society. We must also be prepared to accept a part of the financial burden. Are we prepared to pay higher electric bills when we ask a utility in our area to provide more generating capacity with less harm to our environment? Are we committed to reducing auto emissions and increasing auto safety to the extent that it may add as much as $1000 to the price of our cars?

Only when we realize our fundamental financial role in the laws passed and regulations promulgated by our public officials, will we be sure to set wise and realistic goals.

Members of the Two Penny Circus, a touring troupe which emphasizes clowns, exhibit some of their theatrical elements.

The troupe will hold a workshop and perform at Homecoming.

Theatrical troupe of clowns to enhance Homecoming plans

By Linda Henson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"A small masque, a round, red clown nose, helps us to discover the clown in ourselves and in our audiences. We perform for everybody. We are clowns, we live in the world of clowns. We are The Two Penny Circus."

That is the motto of an intimate theatrical touring troupe that emphasizes clowns. This group is one of the main attractions for SIU's "A Three-Ring Wing Ding" Homecoming, sponsored by the Student Government Activities Council.

The Two Penny Circus has planned two performances for the Homecoming weekend, which begins Thursday. Both performances are scheduled for Thursday night in Ballroom D of the Student Center. A children's show is scheduled for 6 p.m. and a show aimed at the adult audience will be from 9 to 10:30 p.m. Thursday.

The small circus group will be adding more to the Homecoming scene than just two performances. It will also contribute time to judge the Zaniest Circus Acts. The student activity is cosponsored by WIDB Radio and Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus. It is a competition of clown ability in many areas.

The Two Penny Circus will also hold a workshop dealing with clown improvisation, finding a person's clown and clown make-up. If a student signs up for the activities, all three must be attended. Persons attending the workshops will help the Two Penny Circus put on a half-time extravaganza at the Homecoming football game at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

The circus plans to have a float in the Saturday morning Homecoming parade to transport the "Clown Town Band" along the parade route. The parade, scheduled for 10 a.m., will begin at the corner of Walnut Street and University

Men's lib to be seminar topic

"Liberation: What's Happening to Men" is the topic for discussion during the women's seminar scheduled for noon to 2 p.m. Thursday in the Student Center Illinois Room.

The seminar, seventh in a series of eight, is based on the idea that "men are just realizing they are forced into roles that do not have as much freedom as they thought they did," said Ginny Britton, coordinator of Women's Services. Carolyn Zimmerman, a graduate student in Avenue, go south on U.S. 51 to Campus Drive and stop at the Student Center.

The Two Penny Circus has been in existence as a touring theatre since January, 1973. It grew out of a clown show directed by Donald Osman. Members of the Two Penny Circus think of themselves as the result of a very natural growth and coming together of individuals with varying theatrical backgrounds.

community development, co-sponsors the seminar with Britton.

Britton said the questions discussed at the seminar will be similar to those discussed at men's consciousness raising groups. She said questions include men and achievement, emotions, other men, women, sexuality-sensuality and self-disclosure. The seminar is free and open to the public, Britton said. Participants are invited to bring a sack lunch. Coffee will be provided.

GROCERY SURVEY

All stores were surveyed during the first week of October and were re-checked the following week. Every attempt was made to insure that the prices given are regular store prices, not sale prices.

The list is based on past IPIRG surveys and USDA surveys of food prices in selected cities. The list is not intended to reflect a personal shopping list. The stores are ranked in order from least expensive to most expensive.

IPIRG staffers in this survey were Pam Henson, Jerry Middeke, Phillip Roseman, Debbie Thornburgh and Tim Power, Survey Committee Chairman.

Specialist says gas shortage threatens Midwest economy

CHICAGO (AP)—The Midwest is facing the most severe economic crisis since the Great Depression of the 1930s because of the expected natural gas shortage, an energy specialist said recently.

Dr. Charles Cicchetti, director of the Wisconsin Office Emergency Energy Assistance, testified before a subcommittee of the Congressional Joint Economic Committee on jobs and prices.

He said he was concerned over what he termed the lack of leadership in energy policy at the national level, noting that at the same time there is a natural gas shortage in the U.S., "the entire city of Tokyo's natural gas supply is imported from Cook Inlet, Alaska."

"The Midwest has a great need for Alaskan gas," he said. "But even if it were made available, the situation would not end, but only stabilize."

Cicchetti told the committee, chaired by Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minnesota, that the "President's plan, which will decontrol the prices of petroleum products, will harm the economy."

He said, "In my opinion, economic recovery and inflation would be set back at least for a one to three-year period if sudden price decontrol is allowed to take place."

He recommended that a single crude oil price be set which the economy can afford. For a long term solution to the natural gas problem, he recommended doing away with pricing intrastate gas and interstate gas at different prices.

Comments of some other witnesses:

Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago—"The primary function of government is to meet the needs of people—all the people."

Milton Friedman, professor of economics, University of Chicago—"The major problem facing this country is cutting down the size of government and the extent to which it controls our lives. We have been creating a Frankenstein...Beyond a rather modest scale, growing government both retards economic growth and destroys human freedom. New York City today teaches that lesson no less than

Great Britain, Chile, Argentina and India."

Bishop Joseph A. McNicholas of Springfield, Ill., chairman of the committee on social development and world peace of the U.S. Catholic Conference—"The current levels of unemployment are unacceptable and their tremendous social costs are intolerable. Official unemployment figures underestimate the true extent of joblessness and mask its inequitable distribution."

Robert Johnston, director Region 4, UAW—"If we are going to find a cure for unemployment the corporations are going to have to tighten their belts. . . periodically accepting less in order that the people can have more. They will not do this voluntarily, at least they never have."

"This exposes the phoney slogan that President Ford is using about getting government out of business. We are in trouble because big business has become government, particularly Ford's administration, and I don't see any sign that he and his cabinet intend to get out—not voluntarily."

Supreme Court okays teachers spanking pupils

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has ruled that public school teachers may spank a pupil against the wishes of the child's parents.

The court affirmed Monday without comment a decision of a three-judge federal court in North Carolina upholding corporal punishment and spelling out procedures to be followed.

The lower court said the pupil must be informed beforehand that specific punishment might cause a spanking and that written explanation should be furnished to a parent on request.

It also required that padding not be resorted to unless other means of discipline had failed, and that a second school officer must witness the punishment.

The decision was appealed by Virginia Baker of Gibsonville, N.C., on behalf of herself and her son, Russell, a sixth grader who was paddled in December 1973 for throwing a kickball outside of designated play time. She said she had asked school authorities not to use corporal punishment because she was opposed to it and Russell was a frail child.

Couple promises followers trip to space

WALDPOR, Ore. (AP)—"The Two" promised celestial bliss and a trip in a UFO. Some say it's an elaborate hoax, but a handful of people from three states may have followed them to a secret camp in Colorado to prepare for the journey to a better life.

After preparation of an undetermined length at the yet-to-be-located camp, the followers were told they would be transported to an undefined but new and better life.

That's what the couple, known only as "The Two," told hundreds of people at recruiting meetings in Oregon, California and Colorado over the past several weeks. People were told by the mysterious middle-aged couple to shed their personal belongings and relationships, and that no children would be permitted.

"The Two" called their group Human Individual Metamorphosis or HIM.

Doug Baker, a columnist for the Oregon Journal says he was told the UFO story is "nothing more than a wild and wonderful hoax perpetrated by a pair of college students preparing a paper on 'Psychological Reactions to Panic in a Small American Community.'"

In Thursday's editions of the paper, Baker said the students confessed the scheme to a prominent Waldport citizen "who chooses to remain anonymous."

Police is some areas suspect fraud but have no evidence. Nor do they have any firm figures on the number of people who joined HIM. Since those who left told friends and relatives, they are not considered missing persons by police.

HIM began to get attention in the media when about 20 persons who attended a Sept. 14 meeting in a Waldport, Ore. motel and a second gathering near Eugene, Ore., left the area suddenly.

Bob Thompson, a computer programmer at the University of Oregon, recalled one of "The Two" talking in vague, Biblical terms and avoiding direct questions.

"The implication was that you might leave in a UFO. They really didn't say so in so many words," Thompson said.

Bradford Rudd of Newport, Ore., shared a house with Robert Rubin, 24, before Rubin left to follow "The Two." He gave Rudd his share of the house before he left and gave 10 acres and a cabin to Jo Ann Borrell, 20.

Rudd described Rubin as "secretive and stary-eyed."

Borrell got a letter from Rubin on Sept. 25, postmarked Denver and reading: "We are all going home. It is real. It is the Second Coming."

Other cards have come from Fruita and Nederland, small towns in Colorado. But officials in those towns have never heard of HIM nor have they encountered camper and car convoys of followers.

Dan Stagg, 43, of Springfield, Ore., wrote his mother: "I am on the way. I will be travelling extensively, and you won't hear from me again."

About 500 persons showed up for a HIM meeting in San Jose, Calif., recently. It had been cancelled in a letter to the San Jose Mercury News and a telephone call to local police.

"We are very concerned about the panic the newspaper's creating about the people 'vanished' from their children and homes," said the letter signed by a Paul Morgenstern. A man using that name had reserved a hall in the public library for the meetings.

"This is no fraud, nor is it sponsored by the Manson family," the letter continued. "These 20 individuals chose, on their own, to leave their homes and families in Oregon. There are now people all over the United States preparing to leave on a UFO and physically rise to a higher level."

U.N. Day to be commemorated

The Baha'i Club of SIU will be sponsoring a solicitation booth to disseminate information on the United Nations Friday, Oct. 24, at the Student Center.

The booth is in conjunction with United Nations' Day, the international celebration of the signing of the U.N. charter.

Friday night the Baha'i Club will sponsor a lecture and discussion on the "Prerequisites to World Unity." Speakers will be Robert Sulski and John Woodall, both SIU students.

The lecture and discussion will be in two parts, the first dealing with a systems approach to world unity by taking the examples of principles which govern a cell and a human body, then applying these principles to world unity. The second part of the lecture will be a documentation of recommendations from the Baha'i world community in the last 100 years which have supported the establishment of world order; that is, letters to kings and rulers in the latter part of the 19th century such as Napoleon III, Queen Victoria, Kaiser Wilhelm I and the Pope, and to the League of Nations and to the United Nations.

The public is invited to share in the discussion.

Financially troubled WFL folds

NEW YORK (AP)—The World Football League, unable to overcome the backlash from its horrid first season, folded Wednesday in the 12th week of its unsuccessful second year.

"Our decision not to proceed is due primarily to our collective inability to penetrate markets in WFL franchise cities," League President Chris Hemmeyer told a news conference.

Pointing out that attendance has fallen to an average of 13,300 per week, Hemmeyer said crowds had declined 28 per cent over the past five weeks, causing severe financial drains on each franchise.

In announcing that Birmingham and Memphis would petition the National Football League for admission, Hemmeyer said the WFL's football operations were being immediately terminated.

That apparently means that such

WFL players as Larry Csonka, Paul Warfield, Jim Kick and Anthony Davis can be immediately signed by the NFL teams holding their rights.

Hemmeyer estimated that expenditures by this year's 10 WFL franchises had exceeded $10 million. He said officials estimated it would take between $25 and $40 million to continue the WFL for another two years.

He said officials "determine that this enormous capital expenditure in light of an unstable economy, continuing inflation, no insurance of national television revenues and a softening market for new leagues in professional sports was an unwise investment."

The decision to fold the league was made Wednesday afternoon in an hour-long conference call linking Hemmeyer and officials of the 10 franchise cities.

The WFL, reorganized this year by Hemmeyer following last year's series of disasters in which $20 million was lost, simply could not attract the crowds necessary to keep the 10-team league afloat.

The league appeared dead after its disastrous first season in which some clubs falsified attendance figures, most failed to pay their players over the last half of the season and some teams continually lied to the public and press.

An energetic effort by Hemmeyer, a Hawaiian businessman who conceived a financing formula under which players would be paid a percentage of the gate, revived the league.

But the attendance the supporters hoped for never came. Only Memphis and Birmingham attracted crowds large enough to approach breaking even.

An official of the Birmingham club said that the Vulcans and Memphis will seek entry to the NFL "as soon as documents can be properly prepared. We are planning to go to big league football and we'll make our pitch at the proper time."

Floor hockey season winds toward playoffs

By Rick Korch
Student Writer

About one month remains in the intramural floor hockey league, and most of the teams entered are still in the running for the playoffs.

Play will end Nov. 15, and all teams with a .500 or better record will be eligible for the playoffs. About 15 or 20 teams of a total of 32, are expected to compete in the playoffs which will begin after Thanksgiving break.

After last weekend's games, eight teams remain undefeated, and there will be at least one good divisional race in the seven divisions. James Gang, 2-1 and Um Tut Sut, 3-1, are battling it out for their own division championship.

Canadian Club, going after its third straight league championship, is 3-0 and, along with any other undefeated teams, will get a bye in first round of the playoffs if it remains undefeated.

Jack May, graduate assistant in charge of the league, says "It will take a lot to beat them. Canadian Club has the superior talent in the league."

May went on to say that the only way to beat Canadian Club would be to be very high for the game, on a day that Canadian Club is overconfident.

Team Canada is expected to give a good showing in its quest for the championship, and is now 4-0. Other teams which could put up a good challenge are the Poobahs, 2-0; Floor Hockers, 3-0; and the Puckin Krauts, 3-0.

"Interest in the league has been good," May commented. "There haven't been a lot of forfeits." Usually, the teams that have no chance to make the playoffs forfeit their final games.

The SIU women's varsity and junior varsity volleyball teams each have a pair of matches on tap Saturday. Pearl Koswoski will have plenty of opportunities to float overhand serves over the net as the varsity plays matches at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. in Davies Gym. ## Volleyball teams victorious

Both the volleyball varsity and the junior varsity won games from Southeast Missouri State at Cape Girardeau Tuesday.

The varsity squad beat Southeast Missouri, 15-12, 13-15, 15-12, while the junior varsity was victorious 15-10, 10-15, 15-8.

Earlier in the season both teams lost to Southeast Missouri at SIU. This Saturday SIU will host volleyball teams from Eastern Illinois University and Indiana State.

SIU will play Eastern Illinois at 11 a.m. and Indiana State at Indiana

State at 2 p.m. in Davies Gym. The junior varsity meets Eastern at 10 a.m. and Indiana State at 11 a.m.

Booters nab win

Ahmedh Abbas scored four goals as the SIU Soccer Club romped over Illinois State University Saturday in its home debut at McAndrew Stadium, 8-2.

ISU used a physical, fast breaking game to hold SIU to a 3-2 advantage at the half. Scores were by player-coach Ibrahim Adel, Anwar, Alhaj and Abbas.

SIU desperate for homecoming win

By Dave Wiczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

In a word, the SIU football situation is desperate.

And quarterback Leonard Hopkins is not afraid to admit it just three days before homecoming.

"We're desperate for a win," he said while relaxing in the sun before Wednesday's practice. "We definitely need a win. It has been a long time since we've won."

Hopkins could not have been more correct if he had said the Salukis needed a win six games ago. The Salukis (0-5-1) are now working on a seven game losing streak (not counting the tie with Illinois State) dating back to the Central Michigan game last year. SIU's last hurrah was against Northern Michigan, a 14-9 win in "old" McAndrew Stadium. The Salukis could match an eight game losing streak they suffered through a couple of seasons ago, unless they beat the 2-3 Wichita State Shockers in the homecoming game this weekend. Game time Saturday at McAndrew Stadium is 1:30 p.m.

Hopkins, a senior from West Frankfort, did not mean to imply that the Salukis could not win.

"Every team we played this year we could have beaten," Hopkins said bluntly. "It's a natural depression everyone is in now, but I don't think it will carry on until game time."

"Maybe some guys are starting to think back to last year's losses too, but nobody is giving up."

After five losses and a tie, everyone from the coaches to the hot dog vendors are beginning to evaluate and second guess SIU. Hopkins says he evaluates the team's play after every game, although it is not very consoling.

Following the pummeling in DeKalb (NIU 52, SIU 12) Saturday, not much has been said according to Hopkins. And the locker room was as quiet as the county morgue Wednesday afternoon.

"We haven't talked about it much," Hopkins conceded. "There's no explanation. We had a lack of points and they had too many," he said, trying to make light of the situation.

More seriously, the quarterback said, "We thought we could move the ball on the ground and the first couple of series we moved the ball well. We had good chances to score, but didn't. We have to take better advantage of the breaks we get."

Mistakes were the reasons for not scoring more against Northern and every other team the Salukis faced this year. Hopkins said they have been making the same mistakes all year and he is not sure why.

"Lack of concentration," he suggested. "We'll get a long drive going and then need a big play. It's been a long drive and then we get nonchalant. There's a let-down for a play or two and we make a mistake and stall the drive."

The breakdowns could be for various reasons, but not because practices are getting easier.

"Things are getting tougher in practice this week—practice is tougher every week when you're losing," Hopkins said frankly.

Thanks to some diligent work by the Sports Information Office, trivia fanatics might get some pleasure out of the following information.

SIU's 51-year homecoming record is 26-23-2. The Salukis did not play their first homecoming until 1923. In all those years, 21 shutouts have been recorded. SIU's worst defeat was to Tulsa in 1965, 55-12. Last year the Salukis lost 41-16 to Arkansas State, making it three homecoming losses in the last five.

The biggest crowd ever to witness Saluki homecoming was in 1967 when the somewhat questionable estimate of 15,500 was recorded.

SIU quarterback Leonard Hopkins fakes a handoff to Aaron Byas in carrying out the options of the wishbone offense in a recent home football game. Hopkins has been the starting signal caller all season long for the Salukis. He is scheduled to be at the helm Saturday when SIU meets Wichita State in the homecoming tilt. (Staff photo by Chuck Fishman)

Fall Classic antics drawing fans' raves

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Tuesday night the local bowling alley was shaking from cheers and cursing.

This outburst wasn't directed at a 300 game, but was the result of the sixth game of the World Series. Bowlers were grouped around the two television sets, leaving only to bowl a frame and then come back.

Such is the hold the World Series has on people, even those confused individuals who don't even know what position Ken Griffey plays.

This year's series has been even more exciting than those games in the recent past.

Four of the six games have been one-run productions and the fans are reaping the benefits.

One of the changes this year has been the night games. In one sense, this change isn't a plus.

There won't be any need to find an excuse to skip work and the old traditions of bringing a radio to the office will go out of vogue. It's a shame. There was a holiday air about the plants and shops while the series was being played.

Shots by Scott

These informal sessions around the office radio seemed to lighten the work load, and now that's lost.

Another minus to the night games is the threat of even colder weather for the games. Can you imagine playing baseball in Montreal on an October night?

Some unkind souls have suggested baseball play its championship series in a southern city, ala football. However, this would be a dirty deal to a team's fans. If people are going to support a team for the entire season they should be able to support the club during the championship games.

Football suffers from this mistake. While the Super Bowls certainly draw the crowds, they seem to be lacking that extra spirit that Boston and Cincinnati have provided for it's teams. Just the sight of Luis Tiant walking on the field Tuesday night was enough to set hometown fans screaming.

My only complaint about the series this year is the pain of watching it on television. Not only do I regret not being there in person, it's not easy to sit through three hours of Curt Gowdy, Joe Garagiola, and Tony Kubek. These broadcasters won't let the fan settle back and muse over a brilliant play or consider Sparky Anderson's strategy. Everytime there's a break in the action these gentlemen fill the air with talk, talk, talk.

With the series as good as it is, why don't they let the play speak for itself. They make it difficult to concentrate on the game. And to make it worse, Gowdy and Garagiola switch off on the radio and television, so you can't get away from them.

Garagiola is terrific on his pre-game show. It's usually off-beat and interesting, but his cute chatter wears thin over three hours, let alone seven games in week-and-a-half.

Women's Gymnastics Club prepares for season opener

The women's intramural Gymnastics Club will take part in three gymnastic meets during February and March, according to Jean Paratore, director of women's intramurals.

The first meet is scheduled for Feb. 7 at Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau. The club will then compete in the Southern Sectionals Feb. 14. That meet will be held at SIU and will be run through Women's Intercollegiate Athletics. The third meet, also to be held here, is on March 6 against Southeast Missouri. All SIU female students are welcome to participate, Paratore said. The level of competition will be for beginners and intermediates.

"Any student who would like to compete should start coming to club meetings to work on routines," Paratore said. "Others can come and not compete." The Gymnastics Club meets every Tuesday from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. in Davies Gymnasium.

Standings in autocross tighten

The Grand Touring Auto Club held its second autocross of the Fall Championship Series, Sunday. The results caused the tightening of the point standings for the club.

W.J. Kohlenberger in his Chevelle Malibu took first in the Class A-Sedan Division with time of 49.1 seconds, in the club's largest event.

In the Class B-Sedan Division, Tom Fleur won in his yellow Capri 2800. Joe Maloney turned in the fastest time of the day, 46.9 seconds to take Class C-Sedan honors.

Rob Bates beat his brother John in a run-off to win the Class B-Sports Division. The Class C-Sports Division was won by Stan Waytowicz in his MG Midget.

Sunday's results leave Bruce Dinkheller tied with Jim Keistler for the lead in Class A-Sedan Division. Class B-Sedan Division is headed by Fleur, while J. R. Schneider leads the Class C-Sedan Division. Rob Bates leads the Class B-Sports Division.

The next autocross will be held at the Arena parking lot at noon Sunday.
