Bargaining units split on endorsing possible strike

By Jean Ness
Staff Writer

A possible campus-wide janitors' strike received divided support from two more collective bargaining groups Thursday.

Marvin Kleinau, president of the Carbondale Chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), said Thursday that his group will not honor picket lines if the University custodians strike.

However, Lee Hester, chairman of the Civil Service Bargaining Organization (CSBO), pledged his support for the custodians by saying, "We have to honor fellow unions."

Their comments come in the wake of personal statements supportive of a strike made Wednesday by Herbert Donow, president of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers, (CFUT) and Aristotel Pappelis, organizer of the United Faculty Association of Carbondale (UFAC).

Building Service Workers Local 316, which represents the University's custodians, voted Saturday to strike.

A strike could cripple the day-to-day maintenance of University buildings and grounds.

A final strike decision will not be made until after Friday when union representatives meet with University officials. Hollis Harrison, union president has said.

The custodians are asking for higher wages, although union spokesmen will not say exactly what or how much they are seeking.

Denouncing any obligation to honor a custodial strike, Kleinau said, "We are not going to support the strike. They (custodians) are not part of the organization we support. We support teachers, not industrial unions."

Referring to his union as an "academic model," Kleinau said the AAUP is independent from any other kind of industrial union. "We are concerned only with faculty specifically," Kleinau said, "We do not and will not have any affiliation with industrial unions."

On Wednesday, both Pappelis and Donow had said they would support the custodians' picket lines in the event of a strike.

"I believe all people who are union-oriented should honor picket lines," Pappelis said.

Janitors, SIU strive for agreement

Business agents for Building Service Workers Local 316 will meet with University officials at noon Friday in an attempt to work out a contract agreement.

University custodians have been working without a contract since Aug. 1, and the union has voted to strike. However, a final strike decision has been delayed until after Friday's meeting.

One of the union's business agents, Bob Brewer, said Friday night that several area legislators have been invited by the University to sit-in during the meeting. However, Brewer, former president of the union, said he did not know who those legislators are.

Hollis Harrison, current union president, said he expects the union to decide whether it will strike sometime after Monday, when the business agents report back to the custodians.

The custodians are asking for higher wages, however union spokesmen will not disclose specifically what the custodians are asking for.

Police release composite to aid search for attacker

By Andria Strassman
Staff Writer

University police Thursday released a composite of the man they say committed a deviate sexual assault against a woman on Sept. 10 in the 900 block of South Wall Street.

Capt. Carl Kirk of the Security Office described the white man as being 5 feet 10 inches to 6 feet tall, weighing 175 to 200 pounds, and having light brown hair.

Kirk also said the man is between 25 to 30 years old.

The composite shows the man wearing eyeglasses.

"As far as we're concerned, we're pretty sure they're prescription glasses," Kirk said.

When the man attacked the woman, which was on a Saturday night, he had a weapon which Kirk termed as "some sort of pistol."

The woman was attacked sometime between 10:15 and 10:30 p.m.

Kirk said a deviate sexual assault is "a sexual assault other than the sexual relations which most people consider normal."

The composite was formed from a description given by the victim.

The plastic "identikit" which has different transparent overlay components for such facial features as hair, nose and eyes is used to put together the composite.

Kirk said the composite is a "recall from the victim."

"It's not a picture (of the person)," he said. "It's a look-alike."

The man University police are looking for, however, is not the same one sought by Carbondale police.

This man is described by city police as being of "medium height and weight" and having "shoulder length" hair. Police have estimated the man's age as being in the mid-20's.

The man has allegedly been responsible for several attacks against women in a city block defined by West College, West Walnut, South University and South Poplar streets.

The attacks have included one deviate sexual assault and two attempted assaults.

Composite of a man University police are seeking in connection with a deviate sexual assault. A composite is made by using an "identikit" which combines transparent overlay components of facial features with the victim's description.

Clyde Choate

Witness says bribery suspect used Choate's office, stationary

By Tom Casey
Staff Writer

A man on trial for a $1.3 million bribery charge in Chicago used Clyde Choate's Springfield legislative offices to accept phone calls and to send messages, a government witness has testified.

Choate, who is SIU director of external affairs, was serving at the time as state legislator from the 59th district.

William J. Benton, the government's star witness in the trial of eight men charged in a Chicago Sanitary District bribery scheme, testified Wednesday that Franklin H. Weber, one of the defendants in the case, accepted phone messages in Choate's office and used Choate's stationary to send messages to Benton.

Choate was out of town Thursday, and unavailable for comment. Benton, who was given immunity from prosecution in exchange for his testimony, did not directly implicate Choate in any wrongdoing in the bribery scheme.

Benton is the former vice-president of Ingram Corp., a New Orleans-based firm which allegedly used bribery to obtain a $43 million contract sludge hauling from the Chicago Sanitary District.

Weber was an engineering consultant to the sanitary district at the time of the alleged bribery scheme.

Benton testified that he tried several times to contact Weber through Choate's office, the number of which Weber had given him, and that Weber had sent him several notes written on Choate's stationary.

Benton also testified that Weber said that he was planning a trip to Europe in July, 1975 with Choate and two other Illinois legislators, Rep. Roman J. Wasinski, D-Chicago, and Rep. Tobias Berry, D-Ladd, now an Illinois appellate judge.

The testimony did not make clear whether Choate or the other two legislators made the trip to Europe with Weber, or if any of the legislators were directly involved with the bribery scheme.

Eight men have been charged in the case, including current or former officials of Ingram, the Chicago Sanitary District, the Illinois General Assembly, and Joliet Barge and Company, a Joliet-based barge firm.

Choate served for more than 30 years in the Illinois House before retiring in 1977 to accept the external affairs post at SIU. As external affairs director, Choate is SIU-C's chief lobbyist in Springfield.

Federal, state taxes reduce Canut-Amoros final settlement

By Melissa Malkovich
Staff Writer

The settlement reached by SIU and Marisa Canut-Amoros last week involved the most money ever given out in a sex discrimination case.

But when Canut-Amoros, former professor of applied technology, received her check from SIU, with taxes taken out it was for $53,110, not $90,000.

As one of the terms of the agreement, SIU will pay the Internal Revenue Service $24,915 and will pay the Illinois' revenue service $1,975 worth of taxes from the $90,000 sum, Richard Higginson, assistant SIU legal counsel, said.

The agreement, reached last week in Washington, D.C., ended the case after six years of disputes, four University administrations and the intervention of four agencies.

Arthur Sussman, SIU legal counsel, said last week the document says SIU never discriminated against her on the basis of sex.

He said the $90,000 settlement was reached because the decision had been made by the University to end the issue.

Canut-Amoros, the Department of Health Education and Welfare and the Department of Labor officials divided the $90,000 into several categories including $20,000 for damages to her professional career, reputation and for giving up the right to be employed at SIU; $10,000 for attorneys fees; $5,500 for back pay from December 1968 to June 1971; and $44,500 for a loss of salary resulting from her leaving the University.

Annie Woodbridge, researcher and instructor in Morris Library, visited Canut-Amoros and her husband, Jose at their home in Madrid, Spain this August.

She said the Amoros' live in a nice home and as a vice rector of the University of Madrid, Jose Amoros is provided with a chauffeur.

Canut-Amoros works with the National Science Foundation in Madrid. She gave up the right to be employed at SIU in the agreement.

The issue began in 1971 when Canut-Amoros filed a complaint with HEW.

She complained she was paid $230 to $360 a month less than her male colleagues; she was denied summer teaching and research work and that her sabbatical leave was not changed from a full year at half pay to a half year at full pay because she was a woman.

As a result, she resigned from the Department of Technology that year.

She said her resignation was wrongfully interpreted as a resignation from the University. This was then used against her to keep her from being employed elsewhere in the University, Canut-Amoros claimed.

After reviewing her case, HEW officials agreed that Canut-Amoros was discriminated against. The officials ordered she be compensated back salary and reinstated as a faculty member.

Problems over the agencies' jurisdictions resulted in a delay of the settlement.

News Roundup

Vance terms SALT accord 'unlikely'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and the Soviet Union resumed strategic arms limitation talks and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said it is "likely" the two sides will be unable to reach an agreement to replace the expiring SALT I treaty. The main issues are still unresolved," Vance said. The expiration date of SALT I is 11 days away—Oct. 3. On previous occasions that Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko met, Gromyko accused the U.S. of attempting to seek unilateral advantage.

Lance returns home to 'get a little rest'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bert Lance returned to Georgia as a private citizen still facing large debts, government investigations and an uncertain future. After eight months and one day as President Carter's budget director, Lance plans to "get a little rest," but has made no decision yet about any other job. In Atlanta, John Stembler, chairman of the board of the National Bank of Georgia which Lance ran until last January, said, "Bert can have the job of chairman if he wants it tomorrow."

'Ultimate resort for gays' stirs debate

HILLBURN, N.Y. (AP)—The landmark Motel-on-the-Mountain embarked on a new policy of catering to homosexuals and irate local residents said they feared it would change their community. The motel sits atop a large hill 30 miles northwest of New York City and advertised itself as the "ultimate resort for gays in the Northern states." By some estimates the homosexual population in New York is as high as one million. Residents talked of enlisting the support of Anita Bryant in the case.

Bill permits generic brand substitution

CHICAGO (AP)—Legislation to allow pharmacists to substitute low-cost, generic name drugs for brand-name products specified in prescriptions was signed into law by Gov. James R. Thompson. "This is an important initial step toward the lowering of health care costs, particularly for those who must live on fixed incomes," Thompson said. "Overall the cost of prescription drugs should be reduced. Under the measure, physicians who write prescriptions may bar pharmacists from making a substitution. The drugstore themselves also may elect not to switch from a brand name to a generic name."

Student committee to act on littering

Enacting an ordinance which would prohibit littering on campus is one of the projects planned for the new Special Service Committee, Sam Dunning, student body vice president, said Thursday.

An amendment was passed Wednesday by the Student Senate to combine three committees to form the Special Service Committee. There are now four standing senate committees instead of seven.

"Examples of things we could do to help keep the campus cleaner are pushing for more efficient garbage pick up and issuing tickets to people caught littering," Dunning said.

An ad-hoc committee for the Rape Prevention Program is now being formed, Young said. This is another project for which he said he wants senate participation.

"This morning I met with Virgil Trummer, director of SIU Security Police, and others to get ideas for the program," Dunning said.

Next week Dunning said he is going to meet with women's organizations to try to formulate support for the Rape Program.

State to pay delinquent loans under bill signed by governor

By Mark Edgar
Staff Writer

Lending institutions, suffering from the growing number of students who default on educational loans, will now pass the deficit costs onto the state under a bill signed by Gov. James Thompson.

Thompson said the measure would encourage banks and credit unions to continue issuing scholarship grants because the state would be responsible for paying back delinquent loans.

Many lending agencies, faced with one of every six persons who gets a loan refusing to pay back the money, have threatened to pull out of the university loan programs.

To combat the high number of students who skip out on their obligations, the bill also reduces lender administrative costs and establishes a state commission to provide early identification of students who default.

Thompson approved legislation earlier this month that gives the Illinois state Scholarships Commission authority to cut off awards to students who fail to repay loans.

In other action, the Republican governor signed a bill giving student representatives on university governing boards, including the SIU Board of Trustees, the right to attend executive sessions and to make and second motions.

The two student representatives on the SIU board already have those powers, including the right to make advisory votes, but student members on some community college boards did not.

Ray Huebschmann, Graduate Student Council president who attended the bill-signing ceremony, said Thompson favors a measure giving student board members full voting rights.

Huebschmann said Thompson urged the General Assembly to pass legislation allowing the students an official vote.

Speech class surveys TV viewers

By Michael Gonsaules
Staff Writer

If you were one of the millions of viewers nationwide who watched the recent ABC-TV six-night special "Washington: Behind Closed Doors," you may also have been one of the 450 Jackson County residents telephoned by SIU students who were conducting a survey measuring the program's influence on its audience.

Students from Speech 335, "Persuasive Speaking," and Speech 382, "Research and Public Communication," were each given 50 names—picked from local telephone directories at random—and asked to contact those persons a few days before the first segment of the series was telecast on Sept. 6.

"Viewer's may have 6% more with the program than the program did to them," said Keith Sanders, professor in speech communications and a coordinator of the survey.

Sanders said that through the survey, he hopes to find out, among other things, to what extent viewing the mini-series changed viewer evaluations of recent United States Presidents or changed viewer attitudes towards the office of the presidency, C.I.A. and other institutions portrayed in the series?

Those portrayed in the show—Richard Moeckton, Esker Anderson, and Carl Tessier—were apparently caricatures of Richard Nixon, Lyndon Johnson, and Henry Kissinger respectively, Sanders said.

The survey consisted of thirteen-minute interviews that were conducted on 450 people by student interviewers during a five-day period before the series was aired. About 350 of those people were surveyed again during a three-day period after the series concluded.

Sanders said he anticipates that viewers who were surveyed before the telecast of the first program showed some change in their evaluations of the mini-series as a result of the questions they were asked during the survey.

However, he added that official survey results will not be available until about December.

The survey consisted of a rating scale in which the person called rated Presidents Eisenhower through Carter on a scale from one to ten, with one being the lowest rating and ten being the highest.

Opinion & Commentary

EDITORIAL POLICY—The general policy of the Daily Egyptian is to provide an open forum for discussion of issues and ideas. Opinions expressed in the editorial pages do not necessarily reflect those of the administration or any department of the University. Signed editorials represent the opinions of the authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, which is composed of the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a member elected by the student news staff, the managing editor and an editorial writing instructor.

LETTERS POLICY—Letters to the editor are invited and writers may submit them by mail or in person to the Editorial Page Editor, Daily Egyptian, Room 1207, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and should not exceed 250 words. Letters which the editors consider libelous or in poor taste will not be published. All letters must be signed by the authors. Students must identify themselves by classification and major, faculty members by department and rank, non-academic staff members by department and position. Writers submitting letters by mail should include addresses and telephone numbers for verification of authorship. Letters for which verification cannot be made will not be published.

Prolonged drought in California inspires new Dehydrated Look

By Arthur Hoppe

Thanks to a two-year drought, Californians have developed yet another new life-style that may well sweep the nation. It is known generically as "The Dehydrated Look."

With the drought on everyone's mind, the problem is not merely to conserve water, but to convince one's friends and neighbors that one is doing one's utmost to conserve water.

An example that leaps to mind is a well-to-do fellow I know in parched Marin county who had the foresight to drill his own well. He thus had enough water to run his sprinklers night and day, keeping his lawn lush and green. He didn't dare. His lawn today is as desiccated and brown as any in his neighborhood—a classic illustration of the peer group pressures that have created the new Dehydrated Look.

While lawns require only minimum lack of care (most nurseries sell "Dry Sod" to replace those tell-tale green spots), maintaining the Dehydrated Look around the house and in personal grooming presents a challenge for the fastidious.

Undoubtedly one of the most intimate problems Californians face in this latter category is underarm odor. When one has to convince one's fellow workers or dinner partners that one hasn't had a shower in days, one worries constantly about underarm odor.

Probably one of the most effective products on the market in this field is a new underarm odorant called "No Sweat," which is made especially for those who don't perspire. Thanks to a secret ingredient for combatting problem dryness, No Sweat is guaranteed to provide lasting wetness for up to 24 hours.

While dryness is a problem in some areas, it is a goal in others. Several new "facial drying creams" are now available for slightly cracked and wrinkled skin and there's a new Chap-stik for chapped lips. These and a $29.95 electric hair splitter to create fashionable split ends should go a long way toward helping any housewife achieve The Dehydrated Look.

For beardless youth and women with bald legs who must prove to the world that they aren't shaving, there's a new pilatory out called "Ape," which cures the heartbreak of wanted facial hair.

Members of neither sex will wish to be without a new throat-constricting lozenge produced by The Smith Sisters, whose bearded portraits appear on the box. The lozenges come in three flavors, alum, talc and sand.

Among the many, many household products the look has engendered are an instant plant wiper for use when unexpected guests arrive, a dingy spray-on film for cars and kitchen floors, a permanent spot fixative called "Ring Around the Collar," and soiled paper plates for impressing the garbage man.

There will be some Easterners who will be unable to tell a fashionable Californian from a slob. But that's never stopped a California trend from catching on before.

Health fee increase should be last resort

The formation of a six-member student committee to investigate the debt-ridden Health Service is a positive step toward reducing the projected $377,000 deficit.

By initiating the committee, which was appointed by student leaders, Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, has demonstrated an openness to student input. He is to be commended for delaying final decision on solving the Health Service's financial problems until the committee has had time to study alternatives and make its recommendations.

While there is agreement that the Health Service needs to cut costs and increase funding, there is wide disagreement on just how that should be done. Health Service proposals for wiping out the deficit include raising student fees $9.50, charging $7.50 per visit to the Health Service, reinstating health fees for part-time students and cutting staff and health programs.

President Warren Brandt has said that health care is "basically an off-campus service" and that "there are good arguments that they (students) should pay all of it." Brandt also has said he will not ask for increased state funding to bail out the Health Service.

Student Body President Dennis Adamczyk, who previously opposed any increase in student health fees, now says he would support a fee increase if the state guarantees a percentage of Health Service funding. He also has suggested forming a student Board of Trustees for the Health Service.

We believe the committee should be guided by a belief that health care is both a vital necessity and a right. To suggest that students bear the full cost of health care would be to put that right out of reach for many students. And we question administrative priorities which dictate that state-appropriated funds should be used to support undercover drug enforcement groups but not health care.

While the committee should investigate all alternatives, we feel the following are among those which merit strong consideration:

- Re-establishing student health fees for students taking five hours or less.
- Eliminating preventive health maintenance programs which are used by few students.
- Appealing vigorously for increased funding.

Swinburne has admitted that eliminating the part-time student health fee was a "mistake" which cost the Health Service $67,000 in revenue this semester. That mistake should be corrected and the fee reinstated.

Health Service programs such as Human Lifestyling and Human Sexuality have merit, but the emphasis should be on funding those programs which provide the most good for the greatest number of students. Because of budgetary restraints, the Health Service should cut the frills and concentrate on basic health care delivery.

And despite administrative reluctance to seek increased state funding, that avenue should be explored. Part of the Health Service deficit has been blamed on a $74,000 decrease in state funds last year. The administration should make a significant effort to increase the level of state support for the Health Service.

These alternatives should be explored before any increase in student fees is recommended, and certainly before any increase is approved by the Board of Trustees.

Copeland Principle should be made federal law

By James J. Kilpatrick

Barbara Copeland may not have endeared herself to her superiors at the Consumer Services Administration, but by a nice reverse twist she may yet lend her name to legal history. What might be termed the "Copeland Principle" ought to be written into Federal law.

Ms. Copeland was involved last month in an historic decision by U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt here in Washington. These were the circumstances: Ms. Copeland, a black female, went to work for CSA in 1969. The court found that in the years since then, "she has consistently used grievances, threats of filing grievances, and the EEO process in general to harass her supervisors and to improperly further her career and enhance her office status."

Now the court had to consider still one more complaint that her superiors had denied her a promotion because of her race or as a reprisal for her prior course of conduct. Judge Pratt found no credible evidence to support her charge. On the contrary, "the evidence demonstrates conclusively that the employee intentionally conducted a vendetta against the supervisor and other members of management, harassing them by virtually every means available including the use of the EEO process to bring baseless charges of discrimination."

Because of these "intentionally vindictive and abusive actions," Judge Pratt found her complaint "baseless and frivolous." The court ruled that she had acted "vexatiously, maliciously, wantonly and in bad faith," and then came the cruncher: The court ordered Ms. Copeland to pay the costs of the litigation including reasonable attorneys' fees.

Accepting the court's view of the case, we may cheerfully cry hooray. It sounds as if justice has been done. But how much more gratifying it would be if the Copeland Principle could be applied in reverse! That is to say, whenever a court finds that the government had acted maliciously, vexatiously, frivolously, and through an intentional abuse of the judicial process, make the government lawyers personally liable for damages, court costs, and the fees of defense lawyers.

This is all but impossible now. It is of course possible to sue the government for damages under the Federal Tort Claims Act, but that law exempts damages that result from an agency's "discretionary acts." Under the 1976 Buckley Amendment, applying solely to the Consumer Products Safety Commission, it is possible for an individual or a company injured by CPSC action to sue the Commission, but the authority is limited to grossly negligent exercises of power and even this authority expires on Dec. 31.

For all practical purposes, government prosecutors are wholly immune from personal responsibility for their blunders, harassments and frivolous proceedings. They can ruin a small businessman, drive him to bankruptcy or near bankruptcy, destroy his reputation, waste his time and tie him in knots of litigation for ten years—and laugh about it. Agency lawyers have the limitless power and purse of the Federal government behind them. Against such massive power, the individual is often helpless.

Yet the record of recent years abounds with instances of palpable abuse of power. To judge from mail reaching me, the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission is the worst of the offenders. The EEOC apparently will impose its capricious oppressions upon any employer, anywhere, under any baseless circumstances that come along.

The EEOC is not alone. In times past, the Consumer Product Safety Commission has prosecuted an importer of dolls on grounds so transparently frivolous that two Federal Judges instantly dismissed separate prosecutions. Inspectors of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration have put employers to heavy expense for nit-picking violations apparently recorded out of a desire on the inspector's part to look good.

It is nonsense to contend, as bureaucrats do contend, that a Copeland Principle would put such a chill on regulatory agencies that enforcement proceedings would halt. The law of false arrest has not prevented police from doing their duty. If an officer's discretion is supported by probable cause, he's immune from successful suit. The only effect of the Copeland Principle, applied to EEOC, would be to make the agency's lawyers think twice before prosecuting a baseless charge. What's wrong with that?

Beer exports vital to world military balance

By Tom Casey
Staff Writer

Here's a hearty raspberry to U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, who, in his crusade to cut government spending, has questioned an expense that is vital to the well-being of American troops stationed in Europe.

Apparently Simon has discovered that the Pentagon spends nearly $1 million per year to send American-brewed beer to U.S. troops stationed in West Germany, a country considered by many to be the home of the world's finest beer.

In a newsletter to constituents, Simon called the exporting of beer to West Germany "like sending high-sulfur coal to Southern Illinois."

Nonsense. The two are hardly related. Indeed, the sending of American beer to U.S. troops in West Germany is, at least, a patriotic move that strengthens our national security.

It should be the belief of every American that our country's fighting men should be equipped with everything needed to make them happy, healthy and well, so that their morale remains high. Any belief outside of this can only be thought of as being against our country's best interests.

If America's fighting men want to drink Schlitz, Budweiser and Old Milwaukee while they are valiantly serving our nation in the P.X. barrooms of Europe, they should have the right to do so. And we on the home front should defend this right with all the resources at our command. Besides, the Army beer drinkers in West Germany are merely following the accepted

For example, what would happen if the beer export program were stopped, and American troops were forced to drink only German beer? The Russians, with their advanced intelligence systems, would pick this information up in a moment and would respond accordingly with a massive program of importing Russian vodka to Warsaw Pact troops in Europe.

The consequences of this shift in military supply policy could be devastating to our interests in Europe. A Communist offensive, led by troops fortified with alcohol from home, could easily erase NATO troops demoralized by the loss of their American beer.

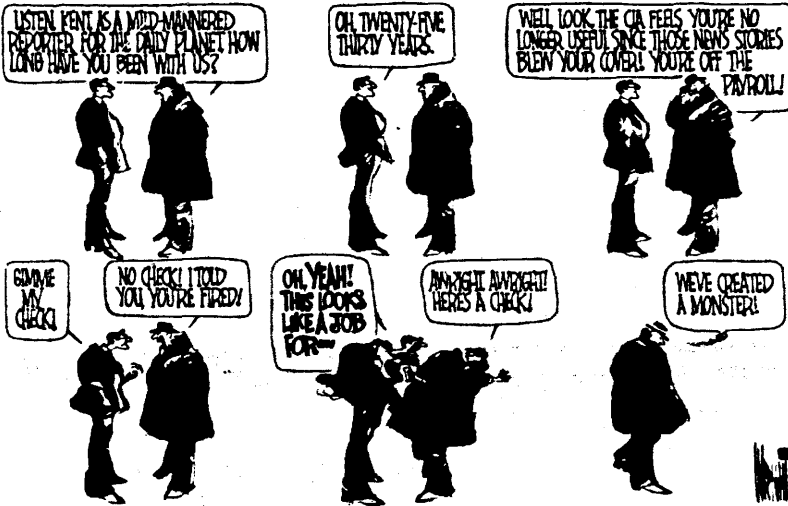

One million dollars for American beer in Germany is a small price to pay when the fate of the world could hang in the balance. Any move to cut this vital program from America's defense budget should be stopped immediately.

And so, here's a toast to America's fighting men. American beer may not be the same as Mom's apple pie, but it sure tastes better with hot knockwurst when you're out defending the free world.

Commentary

rules of beer drinking experts, who have claimed for years that imported beer is the best in the world. Our military should be given nothing less than the best.

Paul Simon is to be congratulated for seeking out areas of waste in our defense budget, and he should continue to do so. But he must remember, as defense experts have been telling us for years, that certain parts of our defense spending cannot be touched, else we endanger the military balance of the world.

Letters to the editor are welcomed and writers may submit them by mail or in person to the Editorial Page Editor, Daily Egyptian, Room 1247, Communications Building.

In order to expedite printing of the letters, certain procedures and policies have been formulated:

1. Letters should be typewritten, double-spaced, and should not exceed 250 words. Letters exceeding 250 words will be edited with care to maintain the gist of the article.
2. Letters which the editors consider libelous or in poor taste will not be published.
3. All letters must be signed by the author. Students must identify themselves by classification and major, faculty members by department and rank, nonacademic staff members by department and position.
4. Writers submitting letters by mail should include addresses and telephone numbers for verifications of authorship. Letters for which verification cannot be made will not be published.

Rally planned to keep Kent protest alive

In May of 1970 thousands of students across this country rose up and shut down hundreds of colleges across the United States to protest Richard Nixon's invasion of Cambodia. In response to this outrage students were gunned down by police at Kent State University. The war had come home.

Since May 4, 1970, people have been trying to obtain justice through the courts for the murders of four people and the wounding of nine by the National Guard on the Kent State campus.

This struggle to bring about the truth about the murders took on a new twist in November 1976 when the Board of Trustees announced their plans to erect a new gym on the site of the 1970 protest and murders. The trustees perceived that after seven years the students on our campus would have forgotten the Vietnam war, would have been too young to remember or care about Kent State, and more generally would be too concerned about "making it" to get involved in protesting something they knew was morally wrong.

However, the trustees, received a rude awakening. Three hundred students, outraged at the actions of the trustees, took over Rockwell Hall at Kent State on May 4 of this year to show their opposition to the callous treat the trustees have shown the people's concerns about May 4.

Since then, throughout the summer, through hundreds of arrests, through hours of police harassment, in spite of outrageous jail sentences and lost jobs, thousands of people have supported, sustained and moved forward the struggle to move the gym.

Our strength in blocking construction until now has been in the fact that large numbers of people have participated with us, and our strength in the future will lie in the mass actions of our supporters.

We are now at a crucial point in our struggle. We have run out of courts and restraining orders. Construction looms imminent. This is the reason we are making a major call for all people of conscience who are concerned with the coverage of history at Kent State to come to the rally at the Kent State Commons at noon on Sept. 24. Housing will be available.

At Columbia University, students, together with thousands of supporters, halted construction of a gymnasium by seizing the site and occupying it until their demands were met. There is now a park where a gym foundation once was begun at Columbia. The coalition firmly believes that the mass actions of people can stop the construction of the Kent State gym before the foundation is even begun. We feel it is crucial that people show the trustees at Kent how they feel about the desecration of the Kent State shooting site.

We believe that a large number of supporters can back the trustees into moving the gym. IT CAN BE MOVED! We can learn from the lessons of the sixties, the people united will never be defeated!

Police ignored promise to get tough on rape

A letter appeared in Wednesday's Daily Egyptian from a woman who had appealed to a Carbondale city patrolman for help. The woman, walking home from work after dark, became frightened and asked a patrolman in a squad car to give her a ride home a distance of only four blocks. The patrolman refused. Before the woman reached home she was accosted by a man with a knife. She was fortunately able to escape her would-be attacker and did reach home safely.

Only last week the police chief and other members of the Carbondale Police Department appeared at a local forum on rape. The forum was organized in the face of an appalling number of recent rapes and attacks on women in Carbondale. At this forum the police chief and others assured the audience of their deep concern and commitment to dealing with the problem of rape.

I would like to ask the police department what happened to that "commitment" this week? Rape is an ever-present risk; the situation in Carbondale only points up the magnitude of that risk.

Why, in the face of this recent rash of attacks, are the police unwilling to respond to a woman's request for help? If there is, in fact, some "regulation" which prevented this patrolman from giving the woman a ride, why couldn't he have at least followed her home?

Must we all wait until we have been attacked before the police will pay more than lip service to their "commitment" to deal with the rape problem in Carbondale?

Viewers take heart to 'Lovers'

Kathy Flanagan
Entertainment Editor

"The Last of the Red Hot Lovers" premiered Thursday on the Main Stage of the Communications Building. Unfortunately the premier was somewhat untimely.

Not to imply that the play was less than entertaining. On the whole, the theater department's adaption of the Neil Simon comedy suffered in only two areas, neither of which were foremost to its quality.

The point is mainly that its presentation was rough. The edges of the play hadn't been smoothed out to their fullest extent and this had a two-fold consequence.

First, the story is set, so it seems, in the late 1960's. Fortunately Simon's style never goes out of date and the story line of the middle-aged man who decides to find infidelity in his 23rd year of marriage stays fairly up to date.

Unfortunately, there's still a gap. Attitudes have changed and promiscuity is more widely acceptable than ever. This makes the viewer less likely to over-react to Barney Cashman's three attempts at an affair. But it also makes his bumbling and fumbling, especially in the second act, a little out-of-place.

Second, the actors, professionalists in their own right, stumbled over dialogue every so often, not entirely enhancing the work. It wasn't so noticeable on Cashman's lines, he was supposed to "Lovers" is well-rounded, entertaining and a lot of fun to watch. The play's adaption fit fairly well, the stage design fit exceptionally well and the curtain call, all done on the basis of a very long tango, was far more creative than any done before.

A Review

be a nervous and bumbling adulterer, but at other times the tripping over lines and scenery was annoying.

While this all may sound over-critical these points didn't deter the audience from enjoying the show, and that's what's important. The house roared at the performance of Donald S. Davis as Barney. Gretchen Genz came across in Barney's first affair as the cynical Elaine Navazio almost perfectly. Marjorie Koch was exceptional as the precocious and somewhat spunky Bobbi Michele. The outstanding performance, with the exception of Davis, was Jan O'Connor as Jeanette Fisher.

Dessert Playhouse features musical trio

MUSICA ORBIS

The Loose Brothers, a musical trio from Omaha, will perform in the SGAC Dessert Playhouse Monday, Sept. 26 in the Student Center Ballroom D.

The trio plays the music of Bob Dylan, Joni Mitchell, Randy Newman and John Prine using a mandolin, bongos, congas, acoustic 6- and 12-string guitars and a flute as well as other instruments.

The group, Paul Connor, David Rarger and Michael Fitzsimmons, will also play some original compositions.

To give the public a flavor of their style, the Loose Brothers will give a free 30 minute performance at noon on Monday in the Oasis Cafeteria in the Student Center.

Tickets for the Dessert Playhouse will cost one dollar and can be bought only at the door.

The Dessert Playhouse has had two performances so far this semester. The first featured Tom Chaping and Erin Isaac. The second featured Jim Prael.

The Playhouse tries to recapture the intimate atmosphere of the coffeehouse, said Barry Richman, chairperson of the Student Center programming committee. A choice of desserts and coffee, milk, tea or iced tea is served during intermission.

The Loose Brothers, who started out as a bar act, prefer the coffeehouse setting according to the group's manager.

Rock, jazz, classical, pop...

are its tributaries.

It is stronger than them all.

October 11-8:00 p.m.

We've heard of word-of-mouth, but this is ridiculous.

"HAROLD AND MAUDE", a nice little movie comedy that arrived without much fanfare, played for over two years in Minneapolis.

What accounts for such a phenomenal success is hard to say. "HAROLD AND MAUDE" received good reviews, true, but it started slowly. And began to build. And build. And build. One person told another person and now "HAROLD AND MAUDE" has become a cult movie. One fan in Minneapolis has seen it 138 times. He is a "HAROLD AND MAUDE" freak, as are many people in Minneapolis and Detroit and Atlanta, wherever they see this funny, tender movie about two people who love life and death equally.

Like "Billy Jack" and "Walking Tall", which were also discovered in the Midwest and became two of the biggest cult movies ever, "HAROLD AND MAUDE" is a movie that seems to mean something to all kinds of people, from college kids to over thirties to—anybody.

Now it has come to Carbondale, and you can join the rest of the country in the love affair they're carrying on with two very unusual and wonderful people, "HAROLD AND MAUDE".

South African youths throw stones; riot police open fire into gathering

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Riot police said they fired on groups of stone-throwing youths Wednesday in Johannesburg's black Soweto township where the death of black leader Steve Biko has stirred new antipolice sentiment. A radio report said one youth was believed killed, but there was no immediate confirmation.

Biko, 30, widely regarded as the founder of the black consciousness movement in South Africa, died a week ago Monday in security police detention in Pretoria.

Police said they fired when the stone throwers attacked them. Brigadier Jan F. Visser confirmed the incident and said, "At this stage we do not know whether anyone was hit." No reason was given for the attack.

In another incident, two white policemen whipped mourners who had gathered in the yard of the Regina Mundi Roman Catholic church at Rockville in Soweto during a memorial service for Biko, the Johannesburg World reported. It said the police used sjamboks, which are large leather whips usually made of rhinoceros hide.

An official cause for Biko's death has not been given, pending completion of an autopsy report.

The delicate art of scrimshaw not a waste of time for 'family'

By Rich Gabbe
Staff Writer

The original definition of the word scrimshaw is one who wastes his time in idle pursuit.

But Jim Sorenson, who is employed by the Alaskan Silver and Ivory Co., has been out for the last ten months traveling coast to coast displaying the art of scrimshaw and disproving the original definition of the word.

Scrimshaw is the art of homemade jewelry, using fossilized ivory from mastodon and walrus tusks. The scrimshander engraves pictures of animals, floral designs, or just anything the artist is inspired to do on pieces of 10,000-year-old ivory.

Ivory that is not ancient is never used. Nor are any complete tusks cut up and used, Sorenson said.

Any complete tusks that are dug up in the frozen wastelands of the upper Alaskan Northwest are donated to museums. "It would be a shame to cut them up," Sorenson said.

"It is the only product that is up to 20,000 years old and doesn't stink," Sorenson added.

The tools that Sorenson uses are somewhat different from what one might expect. He uses a phonograph needle as one of his engraving tools. A friend gave it to him to try out, and now he uses the needle as if it was a professional engraving tool. The needle is an old model, used in stereos made in the 1950s, Sorenson explained.

The other main tool is a knife with a razor-sharp edge. The ivory Sorenson uses costs $250-a-pound before it is cut into smaller pieces. Sorenson said every piece of jewelry that is made by any scrimshander is an original piece of art that cannot be reproduced.

When Sorenson travels around the country, he puts on demonstrations, explains the process and sells the wares that he and members of his company produce.

Sorenson's workday can last up to 18 hours, and this leaves him emotionally drained. "I get peeped out," he explained. Some of the public Sorenson has met has been rude, but he said he has made many friends that he keeps in contact with. "In big city shows, the people are in too big of a hurry," he said.

Richard Melick

Jim Sorenson displays the art of scrimshaw at a Carbondale shoe store. The process involves hand engraving on pieces of fossilized ivory.

The price of the finished work is not cheap, because of the price it takes to complete a piece.

"John Denver just bought a piece from us that cost $15,900," Sorenson said.

"I'd rather have a person buy it because he likes it, not because it is valuable," Sorenson said. He rarely wears engraved ivory himself, just untouched pieces.

For doing each scrimshaw demonstration, as he did Sunday at J. C. Penney's at the University Mall and Monday at Zwitsch Shoe Store, 702 S. Illinois Ave., Sorenson receives $50. The rest of the profits go back to the company.

Sorenson explains he is not making a quick killing financially. In fact, he left a $30-an-hour job as an artist in Denver to get away from the city.

Without a job, and not knowing where he would live, he headed northwest and hooked up with the Alaska Silver and Ivory Co. in Washington. His starting pay was $2.25 an hour.

Recently, Sorenson bought a five-acre piece of land near Ellensburg, Wash. Now he operates a branch of the company in that area.

The company, or "family" as he referred to it, is in need of more artists, so now he helps train new people.

As Sorenson dashes around the country to places like Tucson, Albuquerque, Dallas and Hollywood, hard work and long hours help to revive the ancient art of scrimshaw.

$7,500 van taken from auto dealer

Don Vogler, of Vogler Ford at 301 N. Illinois Ave., told Carbondale police that a new Econoline Club Wagon Van had been stolen between the closing of his business on Sunday and its reopening on Monday.

Vogler Tuesday estimated the van's value at $7,500.

Police have no suspects but are continuing the investigation.

Police arrest man for theft from auto

Carbondale police arrested Michael Tippy of Murphysboro Wednesday and charged him with theft from a motor vehicle.

Police were called to Smith Motor Sales at 1412 W. Main by employees who said they had observed a man trying to take tires from a car on the lot.

Tippy was released after posting $1,000 bond.

Homefolk express grief over Lance resignation

CALHOUN, Ga. (AP)—The folks in Bert Lance's hometown expressed sadness and bitterness after his resignation as federal budget director.

"It's a horrible mistake," said Harbin King, probate judge of Gordon County. "I began practicing law in 1946, when Bert Lance was a teenaged boy. I've observed him all his life, and I know him. He was the strongest member of the Carter administration and without Bert Lance, Jimmy Carter wouldn't be in the Oval Office today."

"It makes me feel real, real sad," said Rev. Bob Maddox, a Baptist minister who joined King and a handful of businessmen in the Chamber of Commerce office Wednesday to watch President Carter's somber announcement of Lance's resignation.

"Bert has spoken in all the churches as a lay speaker. If he met you, he never forgot your name," Maddox said, giving reasons for Lance's popularity in this prosperous county seat of 5,000.

"He was a real personable guy, and he gave a lot of time and enthusiasm to this town."

The resignation came one week to the day after some 1,500 persons turned out for an emotional Calhoun rally to show their support for Lance.

Survey says M'boro wants rec facilities

By Bruce Redman
Student Writer

Recreational facilities, a restaurant and rest areas are three items downtown Murphysboro needs most, according to respondents of a questionnaire sent out by the Murphysboro Redevelopment Committee.

The questionnaire was mailed this summer to the approximately 3,500 households in the Murphysboro area. About 800 of the surveys were returned to the Redevelopment Committee.

The survey listed ten possible projects for downtown revitalization and asked respondents to rate them in order of importance.

Development of recreational facilities received the most votes—182. A "good quality restaurant and lounge" received 137 votes, while rest areas and mini-parks got 114 votes.

Committee Chairman Richard Strothmann said the least popular projects were development of one-way streets, creation of a mini-bus transportation system and removing all parking from Walnut Street.

The Redevelopment Committee, composed of 25 members, was appointed as an advisory body to the city council. The committee sent out the questionnaires in order to get citizens' suggestions on downtown redevelopment.

In the past two years, the central business district has suffered two major fires and several store closings.

At a meeting Monday night, the committee voted to turn the questionnaires over to Terry Alliband, assistant professor in the community development department of SIU. Alliband will study the questionnaires to determine what form a follow-up survey should take.

Alliband and Frank Pallini, graduate assistant in community development, made presentations at the meeting on the possibility of a follow-up survey.

Alliband and Pallini are scheduled to report to the committee again after one month.

At the meeting, Murphysboro Mayor Michael Bowers also reported that the Murphysboro City Council had entered into a contract with the Urban Planning Corporation of America.

Kennedy trial date set

The trial of former Carbondale police chief George Kennedy has been scheduled for Oct. 31 in the Jackson County Circuit Court.

A grand jury returned two indictments against Kennedy in April, after a state police investigation into procedures of Carbondale's police department.

One indictment accuses Kennedy of taking $1,800 in cash held by the Carbondale police in connection with a grocery store robbery.

A second indictment accuses the former police chief of planting false evidence by putting $1,800 in a police locker to conceal the theft.

Kennedy is charged with theft of more than $150 and obstruction of justice.

Kennedy resigned from his position as police chief on Feb. 17.

Wrong numbers ring phones

WAYLAND, Mich. (AP)—Telephone directories with incorrect listings have the bells ringing—or not ringing—for residents of five small Allegan County towns.

"I guess the first we learned of it was when the city manager went to see the mayor and told him the phone company was saying the mayor's telephone had been disconnected," a switchboard operator at Wayland City Hall said. "I could name you dozens of business places that have had this problem," she added.

Problems began in February when Michigan Bell Telephone Co. notified about 300 Wayland customers that their numbers would be changed.

Recycling Center to increase hiring of handicapped workers

By Chuck Wilkins

Student Worker
While reducing the solid waste problem by recycling cans, glass and paper, Resource Reclamation Inc. in Murphysboro, is also providing handicapped persons with jobs.

During the non-profit organization's six years of operation, more than 20 handicapped persons have been employed on various jobs such as crushing cans, baling paper and metal and removing metal rings from glass bottles.

According to Lowell Solterman, volunteer and spokesman for the program, there are four full time employees, one is handicapped.

Currently the objectives of the program are to get a new building and to staff the program with more handicapped persons, Solterman said.

"When we get a new building and a new system suitable for the handicapped, then we'll begin hiring more," Solterman said. "But for now we're cramped for space and working conditions aren't the greatest."

Located in the old Stecher Brewery Building on Rover Street in Murphysboro, Resource Reclamation Inc. operates all year. The building is used for the storage of paper and machinery. When it rains, the mountains of paper to be recycled must be covered with plastic to keep from getting wet.

Solterman, a six-year volunteer, said that he hopes to build recycling machinery simplified enough for handicapped persons to operate efficiently.

"I'd like to see it set up in such a way that handicapped people could work at recycling processes," Solterman said.

The program to include handicapped persons in the recycling process started in 1971 with the University recycling program on campus. In 1973 the program moved to Murphysboro, where it was coordinated with the Jackson Community Workshop.

In the summer of 1975, the workshop leased some equipment and the building to the program. The work continued, but only due to the hard efforts of women volunteers, Solterman said.

The program is primarily funded from the sales of paper, glass and metal, and from contributions. Last year, Carbondale contributed money towards the purchase of a new truck. Handicapped persons working in the program are able to acquire funds from the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA). Memberships are available, and over 150 members help fund the program with personal contributions.

Solterman feels that recycling is becoming more important and that it is an excellent way for handicapped persons to contribute to society.

"If they're involved in such a program, they're making a contribution to the environment and to everyone," Solterman added.

Presently, Resource Reclamation Inc. collects only glass and paper. Drop off points in Carbondale for glass are found underneath the overpass on Rt. 51 near the SIU campus and in the parking lot of the Lewis Park Shopping Center. Paper is collected on the third Saturday of each month in the Westown Shopping Center. Murphysboro residents can drop off items at the recycling center on Rover Street, Solterman said.

Naturally Accurate.

When developing High-Fidelity speakers, accuracy is the goal of every engineer.

Obviously, not every engineer agrees on which principal is the most accurate.

So how do you know which speaker is accurate enough for you? Act natural. Do what you think you should do. Sleep around. Listen to a lot of speakers.

Compare them to each other. Compare prices.

Then listen to the Standard of Performance speakers by GRAFYX.

For most people, their search for accuracy stops right there. In fact, whether they hear SP speakers first or last, most seem to agree that for the money, SP speakers truly deliver the most accurate and natural sound without distortion, noise or coloration.

What could be more natural? SP. You'll be hearing more from us.

U of I trustees appoint UCLA man to succeed Peltason as chancellor

CHICAGO (AP)—The University of Illinois trustees have announced the appointment of William P. Gerberding, 48, as new chancellor of the university's Champaign-Urbana campus.

Gerberding, who is currently executive vice chancellor of UCLA, will succeed chancellor Jack Peltason Jan. 1. Peltason is leaving to become president of the American Council of Education.

At their meeting Wednesday, the trustees also voted to submit a budget request of $321.1 million for the 1978-9 academic year and provide a 10-per-cent pay increase for all employees.

The budget request, which is $34.1 million higher than the current university budget, must be approved by the Illinois Board of Education and state General Assembly.

In defending the proposed pay raise, university president John Corbally said faculty salary levels at the U of I are currently among the lowest in the Big 10.

Corbally said the proposed 12 per cent budget hike would also provide $400,000 for expansion of evening classes at the university's Chicago Circle campus.

Another $496,000 would go for the recruitment of inner city high school students at Chicago Circle and the tutoring of minority women who have been out of school for at least 10 years.

Theatrics at Will County courtroom backfire when actor imitates accused JOLIET (AP) — The real defendant stood up, pulled off his wig-mustache-glasses disguise and grinned.

The other "defendant" on the stand told the judge he was a Chicago model hired by the defense to test witnesses' powers of identification.

But the ploy flopped. Defense lawyers Louis Bertani and Martin Rudman must show cause why they should not be held in contempt for unorthodox courtroom theatrics. Judge Michael Orenic of Circuit Court issued the order Tuesday.

Earlier this month, three accusing witnesses took the stand and pointed to an uncomfortable-looking man at the defendant's table. They told the judge he was the man they saw rob a grocery store in Crete in January. It looked bad for the defendant, Chester Gow, 44, of New Lenox.

Then the lawyers played their ace. The "defendant" took the stand and told the judge he wasn't the defendant at all. He said he was Thomas Lavin from a Chicago model agency and was hired by the defense to appear to test the witnesses' power of identification.

Suddenly, the real Chester Gow arose from the spectators' section and whipped off his disguise.

Judge Orenic was flabbergasted. The young defense lawyers looked as if they had an open-and-shut case of acquittal because of mistaken identity.

The judge hastily called a recess and a few days later resumed the bench trial. The witnesses this time identified the correct defendant. The judge found Gow guilty and scheduled his sentencing for November.

Gow, who had no prior criminal record, was arrested for robbing the grocery store of $85 as the three witnesses watched.

Burglary reported at Thompson Point

University police reported a burglary at 205 Bowyer Hall, Thompson Point, in which items valued at $85 were taken.

Police said someone entered the room, leased by Diane Kiczuk, a junior in technical careers, and took a plastic night guard for dentures valued at $30 and a photograph album valued at $5.

The burglary occurred sometime between 3:30 and 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Kiczuk told police her room has been entered several times in the past week and thefts and vandalism have occurred.

Kiczuk also told police the lock on her door had been changed last week.

University police said they have no suspects.

Student car dented near east campus

University police report a car belonging to Bruce Flowers, a sophomore with an undecided major, was vandalized in parking lot 106, west of Brush Towers.

Police said damage to Flowers' car, which was vandalized sometime Wednesday, included a dent in the passenger door, a broken antenna and scratches over the entire body of the car.

No damage estimate was available.

Cannon blast kills Missouri student

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — An explosion from a simulated Civil War cannon which killed one University of Missouri-Rolla student and injured six others at a fraternity gathering was caused by the use of smokeless rather than black powder, officials said Wednesday.

The cannon exploded as it was being used in a ceremony inducting 10 women into the Kappa Alpha fraternity's auxiliary organization, the Daughters of Lee. About 50 fraternity and affiliate members attended the ceremony on the back lawn of the fraternity house.

Randall L. Crustals, 26, a senior from Potosi, Mo., and a member of the fraternity, was killed in the explosion. He died of head injuries from flying metal. He was about 30 feet from the cannon.

$3.4 million pelts get heavy guard

NEW YORK (AP)—Some 5,000 pelts of wild Russian sables were delivered to the chic Bonwit Teller department store under heavy guard Wednesday.

Little wonder. The shipment represented a cash outlay of $3.4 million, store officials said.

"It was also the largest collection of the rarest, most beautiful sables in the world," said Ronald Gabe, a representative of Grosvenor Canada, the largest manufacturer of furs in North America.

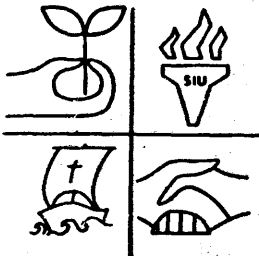

The sable for the new fur salon at Bonwit Teller was purchased by a Grosvenor buyer at a sable auction in Leningrad.

Free School names new co-directors

Janie Kurtz Weiss and Walt Rehwaldt have been named co-directors of Carbondale New School for the 1976-77 school year.

Weiss taught "Language Arts" part-time at the New School while also working half-time as one of the coordinators of the New Life Center in Carbondale. Weiss has been involved with New School in some capacity during the last three years.

Rehwaldt is a former chairperson of the New School's Board of Directors. A resident of Carbondale, Rehwaldt taught for a number of years in St. Louis and is now completing a doctorate in Higher Education at SIU.

The co-directorship is a new model which has never been tried in the past.

Landlords report fewer tenant problems

Gertha Coffee staff writer.

Area landlords are not having as many problems with transient tenants as they did five years ago, said Paul Ayala, chairman of the Arbondale Landlords Association.

"The trend seems to be that tenants care more about their property and others. Or it could be we're better landlords," Ayala said.

Ayala, manager of the Wall Street Quadrangles, said that the Landlords Association, a division of the Arbondale Chamber of Commerce, has about 35 members—landlords who rent both to students and to the general population.

"Our purpose is to communicate to landlords an awareness of anything happening in the area that may affect rental property owners, such as taxes or city ordinances," he said.

Ayala said that membership in the organization is automatic for anyone who is both a member of the Chamber of Commerce and a rental property owner.

"If a certain problem comes up, we meet. We collect ideas and may come up with a solution. We will discuss whether a stand needs to be taken on an issue. And if the answer is yes, it is processed through regular chamber channels," Ayala said.

Five years ago, the landlord division sought a resolution that would halt zoning law exceptions for the building of multi-family rental units in single family areas.

"But there has been no legal problems since then," said Ayala.

In the three years that he has been chairman, Ayala said the association has never been asked to participate in matters relating to the Student Tenant Union.

"If a student has a problem with a landlord, he goes directly to the

San Diego voters stop beach nudity

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—"We'll still go nude, they won't stop us," a disappointed backer of America's only municipal nude beach said after voters ordered a halt to "swimsuit optional" bathing in San Diego.

San Diego's first referendum on the nude beach summoned a near-record turnout Tuesday, and the message to the City Council was clear: Rescind the 1974 ordinance designating the 800-foot swath of beach as "swimsuit optional."

With nearly all the votes counted, the tally was 86,113 in favor of rescinding the ordinance, 70,884 against the move.

The ordinance is expected to be withdrawn within a month, a council spokesman said.

Foes of nude bathing had warned of promiscuity and crime at Black's Beach, and that apparently helped spur a turnout of 43 per cent of the registered voters, six per cent above pre-election predictions.

landlord," he said.

He said renters tend to have more problems with transient tenants than with those who are going to stay in a place for two or three years.

"As a result, rent is higher. More problems involve greater expense. There is more wear and tear on a place. There are higher costs involved in the administrative process.

"We have 12 months of fixed costs with a nine month lease. That means higher utility bills, higher repairs and a higher turnover rate. To process a contract and check a person in and out every nine months is more expensive than doing it once every three or four years," Ayala said.

But, Ayala said the association does not involve itself in the problems of individual members unless it believes the person is being harassed.

"As an organization, we would not speak for or against an individual. We don't get involved in personal problems. If a person feels he is being harassed and brings it to our attention, it goes through regular channels. Then it goes to the Board of Directors to determine if a formal stand should be taken," he said.

He said that although the city sometimes seeks the association's opinion in an advisory capacity, such as the recently passed city lock ordinance, the group does not involve itself in problems related to a landlord receiving a citation from the city's department of Code Enforcement.

"It's up to the individual and code enforcement," he said.

Ayala found it difficult to determine whether more housing is needed in the area.

WE'LL PROVE Tempest IS NOT JUST ANOTHER LOUDSPEAKER

TEMPEST is called the total experience loudspeaker because it fills the air with sound of stunning clarity and impact. No other bookshelf speaker comes close because TEMPEST is the first and only popular priced, super high efficiency system to use the unique Heil air-motion transformer — the revolutionary tweeter acclaimed world-wide as the first new speaker principle in 50 years.

We think TEMPEST is the best sounding speaker you can buy for the money and the TEMPEST Lab Series by ESS starts as low as an incredible $168. If you've never heard a Heil air-motion transformer speaker system come in and find out why people pay up to $1132.00 for a pair.

Card win may mean playoff spot

By Jim Misunas
Sports Editor

When the St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Bears play football at 1:05 p.m. Sunday in Busch Stadium, a wild-card berth in the National Football League (NFL) playoff is may be at stake.

The game will be televised locally by channel 12 from Cape Girardeau since it's a sellout. The St. Louis CBS affiliate, channel 4, will televise too. NFL games sold out 72 hours before game time can be shown on local TV.

The Bears-Cardinals game has been sold out for longer than a month.

While it may be a bit early to start thinking about playoff berths since it's only the second week in the NFL season, it's a realistic approach. Often playoff spots lost in December are actually lost earlier in the year.

Since NFL wild-card winners are decided by a tie-breaking system, the game is important to both teams. If St. Louis and Chicago tie with 9-5 records at the season's end, the winner of Sunday's game will advance to the playoffs.

The chances of both teams finishing that well is good, since the Bears have improved enough to contend for a playoff spot and the Cards have been perennial playoff contenders since 1974.

The game is doubly important to the Cardinals, who lost, 7-9 to Denver last week. Another loss Sunday and the Big Red will go into next week's road game at Washington with a 0-2 record. The Cards usually have a tough time winning in Washington and Dallas invades St. Louis the week after that game.

In other words, the game means more to the Cardinals and they will probably win the game by a score of about 20-13.

The Bears don't want to lose, but after their first game win over Detroit, 30-20, they probably won't be as motivated as St. Louis will be.

Walter Payton rushed for 160 yards on 23 rushes to lead the Bears to their first game win. It was the 10th time Payton has rushed for over 100 yards in his pro career and his second highest yardage total as a Bear.

Payton said, "With blocking like that anyone could have done it. All I did was run."

But Walter's wrong. Not everyone could rush for that kind of yardage. The Cardinals defense will surely be stacked trying to stifle Payton, but he'll still get his yardage.

For the Bears to win either Roland Harper must have a good day or quarterback Bob Avelin will have to throw for about 150 yards passing.

The Bears were fortunate to win their first game. Detroit outplayed the Bears on the line of scrimmage, but Chicago came up with big plays in the end.

Payton's 73-yard run set up one touchdown and Steve Schubert's 70-yard punt return scored another.

A. Beas blocked a Lion punt to set up a 48-yard Bear touchdown drive.

The Bears can't be expected to spring big plays like that every week and one can expect that the Bears will have a slight letdown after defeating an intradivisional foe.

Watch the Bears defense. With All-Pro tackle Wally Chambers and linebacker Doug Buffone, it can be an intimidating force. Doug Plank, who usually plays free safety, won't play because of a knee injury suffered in preseason play, but the Bears defense will still be tough against the run.

Card quarterback Jim Hart, an SIU graduate, will be able to exploit the Bears' secondary. The Bears secondary, Allan Ellis, Virgil Livers, Craig Clemons and Gary Fencik, all play the run well, but don't excel at stopping the pass.

The Cards played musical chairs with their offensive backfield last week, but look for fullback Jim Otis and Metcalf to carry the load Sunday.

Against Denver the Cardinals defense shined. All-Pro cornerback Roger Wehrli and teammate Kenny Reeves are tough in the secondary and play the run and pass well.

Although the Cards may win, the Bears still have a good chance to make the playoffs. Two wild-card teams make the playoffs this year from each conference and the Bears, if they finish 9-5, will have an excellent chance of nabbing a playoff spot.

Broadcasts slated

Three area radio stations will broadcast the SIU Arkansas State football game Saturday night. WJPF, 1340 on the AM dial, will air the Rey Dempsey show with sportscaster Mike Powell at 7:05 p.m. WSIU, 92 FM, will begin its pregame show at 7:20 p.m. with Joe Paschen. Golfers play at Murray State

By George Szalik
Staff Writer

Golf Coach Jim Barrett is going for two straight correct predictions, as he again picks his golf team to finish second, this time in the Friday and Saturday at Murray, Ky.

"I think we can finish second, because the tourney will be played at Murray Country Club, and Murray State will have the advantage. But unlike last week, we have a few who have played the course before. Walt (Siemsglusz), (Jim) Reburn and (Jay) Venable have played it before," Barrett said.

The Salukis finished second last weekend in the Illinois State tourney. Illinois State won due to the fact, Barrett said, that the tournament was being played on the Redbird's home course.

Five golfers qualified for the tourney from SIU and participated in an 18-hole practice round Thursday. The golfers will play 36 holes Friday, and 18 on Saturday.

Siemsglusz, last week's third-place finisher, and Reburn, who finished eighth, automatically qualified to go by their performances last weekend.

Other qualifiers included senior Venable and juniors Jeff Linn and Mark Spielmann.

Spielmann shot a two-over-par 142 in his two-day, 36-hole, qualifying practice round at Midland Hills earlier in the week. Linn finished with a four-over-par 144 and Venable shot a five-over-par 145.

The tournament will consist of eight teams including Illinois State.

Austin Peay, Missouri, Murray State, Eastern Kentucky, Bradley, and Indiana State.

"I think we can beat Illinois State now that they're off their home course," Barrett said. "I'm not sure how tough Austin Peay is, but I know that Eastern Kentucky is a powerhouse in Division 2. They're an awfully good team."

Brown, on the other hand, said that he knows the course pretty well, and "they will have a big advantage, but we can play with them."

The course is not a long one, according to Brown, but it is pretty tight.

"The fairways are lined with pine and cedar trees," Brown said. "If you get in there, it may take you two or three shots to get out."

"There is water on two or three holes, and the par threes are pretty tough, but I think our guys should do pretty well. Most of them can hit the ball straight," Brown said.

Brown and Barrett agreed that the putting will be difficult because of a different type of grass.

"The course has Bermuda grass greens, and we'll have trouble putting," Brown said. "Bermuda is much grainer than bent grass, which is common north of Kentucky. It can cause problems in reading the greens."

Walk-on Glidewell waits for chance

By Rich Gubbe
Staff Writer

A walk-on can be classified into two categories - the coach either has heard of him before and knows he is trying out for the team, or he can be completely unknown.

Charlie Glidewell, a freshman walk-on from Gorham, was not given a four-year sports scholarship before he came to SIU for baseball. But head coach "Icky" Jones is very aware of his desires to make the varsity team.

"We know he's got good potential," Jones said.

But potential doesn't make a team. Glidewell will have to rely on his pitching skills. Glidewell, a 6-1, 170-pound right-hander will get his chance this weekend.

Jones said he plans to have him pitch three innings against Three Rivers Junior College, along with other players who are trying to earn a spot on the roster.

Glidewell got in plenty of work this summer when he played for two different teams. He rolled up a 9-1 record while pitching for the Murphysboro American Legion team.

One of his victories came against the Cincinnati Storm Club, the same team Rick Keeton used to pitch for. "They were supposed to be the best legion team and I shut them out 1-0," Glidewell said.

Glidewell, who also played for Neunart, Mon-Claire, a locally sponsored team, says his best pitch is a changeup. Along with a fastball he also throws a curve and a slider. While a junior in high school Glidewell threw a perfect game against Valmeyer, Ill.

Area residents might recognize his name from his father's. Louis Glidewell pitched for the Chicago White Sox in the mid 1960's. While in the Army, he defeated a highly respected Japanese team 5-3 and went on to receive the Most Valuable Player award for the Far East region.

Jones said he is taking the best players with him to play Murray State Saturday & Murray, Ky.

Ex-Selukis Rick Murray and Neil Fiala are helping Jones with the arduous task of deciding who will be cut and who will make the final roster that Jones will open the season with next Spring.

Blatchford wins; handicap race set

Rick Blatchford, an SU graduate student, scored an upset victory in the Southern Illinois Road Runners' 6.1-mile race Sunday.

Blatchford's time of 32:37 left him more than three minutes ahead of defending champion Ed Zeman, who faded to third after leading the race for more than four miles.

As a result of the win, Blatchford will be the last starter in next Sunday's handicap race over the same course. With starting positions based on last Sunday's results, Blatchford will give a three-minute head start to second-place finisher Greg Guard, a three-minute, seven-second head start to Zeman and a 21:59 head start to Norman Doornbos, the last finisher of the handicap setting race.

The handicap race is scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday with the start and finish in front of the west entrance to the Arena. Newcomers to road runner events will be assigned scratch starting positions with Blatchford.

The handicap race will be preceded at 1:30 by the weekly Sunday fun runs. Distances for this week's fun runs are one-half, one and three miles.

State golf tourney slated; 1976 champion returns

By Rod Vandersnick
Staff Writer

The Women's state golf tournament at Crab Orchard Golf Club in Carterville Friday and Saturday could be a repeat of last year's affair because Illinois is in a strong position to repeat as champion, says SIU Coach Sandy Blaha.

Illinois won last year's tournament, which increases from four teams to five this year with the appearance of Northern Illinois. SIU finished second last year and Illinois State and Western Illinois tied for third. Blaha says the results could be similar this year.

"Illinois is definitely the team to beat," Blaha says. "We are going to have to play very well and also get a few breaks to beat them. We should be able to beat the other teams."

Western Illinois State last weekend on its home course (in the Illinois State Invitational) so I feel confident we can beat them. We should also be able to beat Western Illinois if we play well. I don't know much about Northern Illinois because this is the first year it has had a golf team since 1974."

The tournament will be populated by several familiar faces. Becky Beach and Diane Miller of Illinois, whose first and second place finishes in last year's tournament were mainly responsible for their team's championship, will be in the field again this year. Sandy Lemon and Judy Dohrman are the keys to SIU's chances for a title. The two finished in a tie for fifth place at last year's tournament.

Lemon says she will not be satisfied with another fifth place finish. She is also not conceding the team title to the Illinois.

"I think we have a good chance of winning if we play well," Lemon says. "We should easily finish at least second. I should finish higher than I did last year. I have been hitting the ball really well, but I've had some problems with my putting and chipping."

Tea off time at Crab Orchard Friday for 40 golfers from the five schools is 8:30 a.m. with Saturday's round getting underway at 8:20 a.m. The course will play to a par of 71 over a 5,938-yard layout for the tournament.

The golfers will find the greens rough because they were aerated and top-dressed Tuesday and Wednesday. The process punches holes in the greens to let in moisture and air to the lower levels. The process is done once in the fall and once in the spring.

After practicing on the greens this week, Lemon says they will have an effect on the scores. She says the roughness of the greens can be frustrating.

"There is not too much skill involved with the greens in the shape they are in now," Lemon says. "The ball bounces all over the place."

Blaha says she thinks the scores will be good despite the roughness of the greens. She expects a score of 154-156 to win the tournament.

Marilyn Hollier, Jo Idoux, Penny Porter and Robbin Ernest will be the designated team scorers for SIU along with Lemon and Dohrman.

Marc Galassini

No. 1 women's golfer Sandy Lemon, a sophomore from Covington, Va., will head SIU's contingent in Friday's and Saturday's state tournament. In 1976, she finished in a tie for fifth.

Field hockey team will play weekend game at McAndrew

By Steve Couran
Staff Writer

The women's field hockey team will get an opportunity to play on astroturf this Saturday when it faces St. Louis and Lake Forest in McAndrew Stadium.

"They are getting a little better on it, but they are still hitting the ball too hard," Coach Julie Illner said. "When the ball goes twice as fast as it does on natural grass, you shouldn't hit it as hard."

SIU faces St. Louis at 11:30 a.m. Saturday in what Illner expects to be "the much tougher game."

"They are really fast and are a fairly physical team," Illner said. "They have more body contact than I like to see. I don't know whether it is because they don't bother to get out of the way when they are beaten to the ball or maybe they are going too fast to stop. They are familiar with the astroturf, though."

Last year SIU and St. Louis tied, 1-1, in their only game against each other.

Illner expects her team to have trouble adjusting to the artificial surface. She plans to make some changes on offense and defense.

"We will play our coverage five to ten yards deeper than on a grass field," Illner said. "Our goalie is going to have to come out a little more because of the speed of the ball."

In the other varsity game, SIU faces Lake Forest at 2 p.m. The junior varsity team plays Lake Forest at 10 a.m. Saturday, also on the astroturf. "I think we can beat them if we can score," Illner said. "That was our problem last week."

The women return to the natural grass on their own field from the Recreation Building Sunday when they face Missouri. The varsity plays at 1 p.m. and the junior varsity game is at 11:30 a.m.

Ailing Salukis to play Arkansas State

By Jim Misunas
Sports Editor

Maybe Saluki coach Rey Dempsey will call his locker room a medical ward because that's what it looks like after last week's 14-9 loss to Indiana State.

Despite the injuries, only backup quarterback Reggie Evans probably won't make the trip for Saturday's 7:30 p.m. game against Arkansas State, says Dempsey.

"Evans is still on crutches and his knee is still swollen," Dempsey said. "Until the swelling goes down we won't know how serious the injury is. He's out indefinitely."

SIU's other three injured backfield men are expected to make the trip to Arkansas, although none of the Salukis will be 100 per cent recovered.

Quarterback Bob Collins is not fully recovered," Dempsey said. "He started practicing Wednesday, but he's still not 100 per cent. He's going to start, but his ankles are hurt."

Dempsey said tailback Clarence Robison, who hurt an ankle against Indiana State, started practice Wednesday, but is still hurting.

"We hope Robison can play, but he won't start," Dempsey said. "We'll start Bernell Quinn at tailback and give Wash Henry a chance at fullback."

Dempsey said freshman Joe Croft, who filled in for Robison last week, did well, but Henry and Quinn give SIU its best backfield possible.

Tailback Gary Linton, who hasn't played all year due to cartilage damage on his knee, will also make the trip to Jonesboro, and will probably play, he said.

SIU's back-up quarterback is still undecided, Dempsey said. Ramon Carson, who has played defensive back most of the year, will probably be the No. 2 quarterback, he said. Senior Jim Dickson, and freshman John Cernak and Gerald Carr may also make the trip.

"We've been working on ironing out little things in practice," Dempsey said. "We've got to get the proper depth when we line up, and have the blockers get their spacing and run good pass patterns."

He said SIU's defense, which permitted only one touchdown last week, is improving.

"Our total defense is getting better," he said. "Everybody is doing their jobs. Mark Michuda (a defensive end) has been especially good."

He said Tom Pihl, a 225-pound freshman from Berwyn, would start at noseguard and Tim Cruz will start at cornerback in defensive changes. They replace Marty DeVolder and Alvin Reed in the starting line-up.

He said SIU's offensive line is also getting better."

Byron Honors, a sophomore from New Orleans, earned this week's best lineman award and will start at guard with Joe Blume. Center John Hall and tackle Hugh Fletcher and Jack Vagas are the other starters on the line.

Dempsey said sophomore wide receiver Kevin House, who caught four passes for 68 yards against Indiana State, was awarded the best back award.

Arkansas State is probably not as good as they were last year, when it defeated SIU 41-10, Dempsey said.

"They're not as good as last year, but they are still about 10 points better than Indiana State," he said.

Their offense is better than their defense. They move the ball well. Their quarterback (Kennon Taylor) is a good passer and runs the option play well.

"They have fine backs in (Larry) Lawrence and (Joe) Griffin," he said. "They have good, quick runners."
