Poshard bill would cut acid rain level

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

Congressman Glenn Poshard, D-Ill., said Friday he is proposing an acid rain bill which would reduce acid rain levels without destroying the Illinois coal industry.

Speaking at the University Coal Research Center in Carterville, Poshard said his bill recognizes the need for cleaner air, a thriving coal industry based on clean coal technology and the potential that both are possible without sacrificing either one.

Poshard's bill sets a 10-year time frame for reducing sulfur dioxide emissions in Illinois coal.

"Seven or eight states which have the high sulfur coal should not bear the entire burden," Poshard said.

The bill would require sulfur dioxide emissions to be 10 million tons below 1980 levels, achieved in two phases.

President George Bush has submitted a comprehensive clean air bill to Congress that would place the burden of cutting down acid rain levels on states that produce coal with high sulfur concentrations.

The most common theory on the origins of acid rain is that it originates when burning coal releases sulfur dioxide emissions into the air.

These high-volume acid particles enter the air and return to the ground as acid rain.

Coal containing a naturally higher sulfur content, therefore, is more likely to produce these emissions.

The president's proposal singles out the states, including Illinois, which have sulfur-concentrated coal to pay for reducing acid rain.

Bush's acid rain proposal calls for a 10-million-ton reduction of sulfur dioxide emissions by the year 2000. If enacted, 50 percent of sulfur dioxide emissions would be reduced.

Jerry Jones, United Mine Workers of America District 12 leader, said the president's proposal poses a serious threat to Illinois mine workers.

"We (UMWA) are planning lobbying efforts at least to get out of the argument in," Jones said.

Jones estimated that 6,000 miners would be out of a job if Bush's plan was implemented.

City gets final OK for couple

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

Carbondale received final approval Friday from the Illinois Department of Transportation to complete the controversial east-west couple.

Jim Sammons, spokesman for IDOT's District 9 office, said the planning stage for the couple is over and the final design has been approved by our Springfield office.

The completed couple will change the two-way section of West Walnut Street into a one-way segment of Illinois 13, in order to control traffic congestion in Carbondale.

However, IDOT is still in the process of negotiating deals with property owners who are selling land to be used as part of the couple.

Property owners who feel they are not getting a fair price for their property have the right to a court hearing, Jack Martell, an engineer working on the couple, said.

Martell said if there are no major roadblocks, the construction bids will be submitted by February and construction should start soon afterward.

The couple was approved 4-1 by the City Council in November of 1988. Councilman Keith Tuxhorn was the only council member to vote against the couple because he said there was widespread support from the city for a bypass on Illinois 13 North.

Tuxhorn said he had strong reason to believe that the state would grant the city the funding for the bypass if the council voted against having the couple.

There also was additional opposition to the couple from the Project to simulate man's brain function

By Carrie Pomeroy
Staff Writer

Two engineering professors are working on artificial neural network projects that will allow robots and computers to simulate the functions of the human brain.

Artificial neural networks, which originated at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, can be trained to simulate brain functions like voice recognition and motor control through the programming of commands through computer algorithms, Assistant Professor Farzad Pourboghra said.

Pourboghra is researching a system that will allow robots to control their own movements. Assistant Professor Botros' research involves the programming of a voice recognition system in computers.

"I want to divert from conventional methods for controlling robots," Pourboghra said.

Pourboghra said the neural network he is researching "will not only control its movements but can improve its behavior."

He has simulated this network on computers but has been unable to build the system because neural network hardware is not available yet.

Computer chips with a large number of neurons are needed to implement his system, he said.

"We can only teach the neuron to do very simple things. Human ability comes from our large number of neurons," he said.

Pourboghra, whose three-year-old research project has been funded mostly by the University, said his model will have many practical applications.

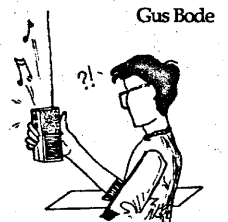

Robots would gain the ability to control their own motions and to learn from its mistakes, he said.

"We can enhance the motion and control of a robot in many areas," he said, including aerospace technology, underwater research and industry, mining, and nuclear technology.

Neural networks give scientists the ability "to make specific, intelligent machines," Pourboghra said.

Botros, who has researched artificial neural networks and their

Annual COBA telefund drive surpasses goal

By Sean Hannigan
Staff Writer

The College of Business and Administration could collect a record $50,000 during their annual telefund drive.

Thursday night, COBA surpassed its goal of $45,000. Sunday, in the basement of the Student Center, students, staff and paid volunteers worked the phones trying to contact the last of the alumni, Rebecca Fournier, assistant dean of COBA, said.

Last year, COBA raised more than $42,000, up $11,000 from the previous year.

"If we can do that every year now, we'll be in great shape," Fournier said. About 6,000 alumni will be contacted.

"There are some people we've called six times. We try hard to reach them," she said.

Fournier credited hard work by volunteers, but said paid callers were an asset in surpassing their goal. The college hired 30 student workers at $5 an hour to give them a full staff of callers at all times.

Charleston struggles to recover after Hugo

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — The mayor of Charleston issued a nationwide call for help Sunday as the wrecked city struggled to get organized amid the devastation left by Hurricane Hugo.

"This is a grand opportunity for members of this community and the rest of the country to help those less fortunate," Mayor Joseph Riley said from the roofless city hall as church bells pealed across the historic port city.

As Charleston entered its third day with no electricity, no drinking water and no homes for more than 75,000 people, hordes of ragged-looking residents put down their hammers and chain saws and streamed into churches for special "Hurricane Hugo" services.

The powerful storm killed 16 people in the United States and 24 in the Caribbean. Damage estimates range into the billions of dollars and thousands were left homeless.

"We need to give thanks for what we have left," said a muddy-shoed man spouting a scruffy beard on his way to worship.

The mayor vowed to rebuild the 300-year-old city "in record time" with the help of civic-minded survivors and generous assistance being offered from across the country.

"Our goal was when the hurricane hit to do the best job any city ever did in preparing its people,"

Egypt coordinating moves to advance peace with PLO

JERUSALEM (UPI) — The Egyptian ambassador to Israel said Sunday Egypt is coordinating its moves to advance the peace process with the Palestine Liberation Organization. "Egypt will not agree to anything that the PLO will refuse," Ambassador Mohammed Bastouny said in an interview with Israel Radio. "So, we always coordinate and cooperate with the PLO." Attempting to allay Israeli fears about the PLO's participation in the peace process, the ambassador said the PLO did not pose a threat to the security of Israel. "The real military threat against Israel is not from the PLO, but from other Arab countries."

Prince Phillip visits Royal Marines barracks

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Phillip visited the Royal Marines barracks Sunday where a bomb killed 10 military bandmen and said the attack "certainly won't help the IRA win anything." The tour by the Duke of Edinburgh, who is captain-general of the Royal Marines, coincided with church services in the seaside town of Deal, 75 miles southeast of London near Dover, at which prayers were said for the casualties of Friday's bombing that was believed to have been caused by the outlawed Irish Republican Army. The husband of Queen Elizabeth said he could not understand how anyone could carry out such an act.

Bush, Latin American leaders address U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — President Bush, three Latin American heads of state and the chairman of the non-aligned movement will address the opening Monday of the 44th session of the U.N. General Assembly. For Bush and Argentine President Carlos Saul Menem, it will be their debut at the world body grouping 159 nations. But Bush is a familiar figure at the United Nations, where he served as a U.S. ambassador from 1971 to 1973. U.N. officials said delegates to the 44th session will benefit from the improving relationship between Washington and Moscow.

Poll: Public opposes television censorship

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An overwhelming majority of Americans oppose government regulation of TV programming despite believing the sex and violence portrayed in the medium are harmful to society, a poll published Sur Jay said. Respondents surveyed by the Los Angeles Times Poll said they believe people — except children — should be allowed to make their own choices. More than half the respondents indicated they oppose religious or social groups trying to pressure advertisers and programmers. They split more evenly on their opinion of advertiser and program boycotts by individuals as a way to indicate dissatisfaction.

Security adviser hails U.S.-Soviet progress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — National security adviser Brent Scowcroft said Sunday that "clearly progress has been made" between the Soviet Union and the United States on arms talks as a result of agreements announced by the two sides in Wyoming. Scowcroft made the remarks to reporters in Kennebunkport, Maine, where President Bush is spending the weekend before addressing the U.N. General Assembly in New York Monday. Secretary of State James Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze spent two days of intense talks Saturday that resulted in a breakthrough of strategic arms negotiations.

House opens debate on revenue, deficit bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In what one Democrat said would be "the crucial week of this Congress," the House opens debate Monday on a revenue and deficit cutting bill filled with contentious issues like capital gains, catastrophic health insurance and child care. The showdown between President Bush and the House Democratic leadership, pitting Bush's proposal to cut the capital gains tax against a Democratic alternative to reinstate tax deductible individual retirement accounts and trim the deficit, tops the list of divisive issues in the $16.5 billion bill. The political stakes in the battle escalated last week when Bush vowed to veto the bill if the Democratic plan passes and House Speaker Tom Foley, D-Wash., challenged him to do just that. "We will certainly not go along with capital gains in order to avoid a veto," Foley said.

Reporter gives account of first skydiving outing

Staff Photos by Hung Vu

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

There were jokes about "the Last Supper" at the dinner table Friday night.

Earlier that day my name had been pulled from a hat containing the names of four reporters who wanted the same assignment: to parachute from an airplane Saturday. I was excited, but nervous.

The SIU Skydivers Club had sponsored my first jump Saturday morning at Hunter Field in Sparta.

Classes began at 11 a.m. and lasted until 5 p.m., with a lunch break in between. The class consisted of 21 people who had never made a jump before. In class, we learned how to jump, land and what to do if our parachutes didn't work properly. I paid close attention — very close.

After the classroom instruction, we received some hands-on instruction on how to operate the parachutes and how to leave the plane. We practiced the latter in a plane that was on the ground. We all took turns slowly placing our feet on the step, grabbing hold of the wing strut of the plane and then hanging from the strut until the jump instructor, referred to as the jump master, said, "Look up."

At that point, we were supposed to say, "Dot, go" because we were supposed to look at a dot on the wing as we let go of the wing strut.

We waited for the wind to die down enough for us to be able to make safe jumps. Wind of 20 mph or more will make landing difficult, because the parachutes could pull us along after we had landed, John Lemming, the instructor, said.

At 6 p.m., we were given the go-ahead to begin our jumps. The planes were started and students headed for the sky.

Hung Vu, the photographer who accompanied me, watched beside me on the ground as a minute spot appeared on the side of the plane. "He's on the wing," Vu said, watching through his telephoto lens. Suddenly the spot, actually a person, fell from the plane and about two seconds later the parachute was open. I swallowed, Vu smiled.

Slowly the first student sailed down, and then the next, with directions from Dave Verner, the owner of Archway Skydiving Center.

Nancy Fitzgivens walked to the hanger with her parachute in her hands.

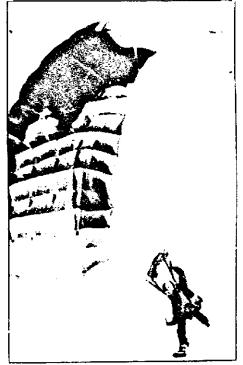

Our plane flew skyward in what seemed to me a very dangerous angle. I was sitting right in front of the door of the small single-engine plane with only one seat.

When the plane flew over the drop sight, it was nearly dark. My body was stiff. I made myself relax, but it didn't seem to help. Dan Wright, our jump master, hooked my static line, which would automatically open my main parachute, up to the airplane. Every jumper had a reserve parachute as well.

Our jump master opened the door. "Put your feet on the step," he said, as he looked directly into my eyes. Slowly my feet reached the step. "Get all the way out," he said. I moved myself out of the plane and slid my arms far out on the strut. I took my feet off the step and held on by my hands only now.

There was only one thing left now. I was feeling very strange.

"Look up," he said. I remember yelling "dot," just like we were supposed to. And then, for a moment, I was away and there was nothing holding me up. The plane and its noisy engine were a blur.

My chute was pulled open. We were supposed to count to five and then check to see if it was open, but I watched it open. Counting was forgotten, but the parachute had opened correctly. It was about 7:10 p.m. and the sun had just set.

The town of Sparta was off in the distance and the ground lay some 3,000 feet below me. City lights were visible and bright for about 20 miles. Above me the stars were already visible.

For a minute, I was all alone, except for the soft fluttering sound of the parachute. The plane and Vu were forgotten. Finally, Verner started directing me down and landed me on my feet.

Students interested in joining the club should contact Dave Aut at 549-2137.

Bill of Rights debate good for America

TODAY MARKS the 200th anniversary of the passage of the Bill of Rights by Congress.

The Bill of Rights has enjoyed a long and prosperous life that is far from over, but early indications wouldn't have predicted the same popularity.

In 1787, the U.S. Constitution gave America's citizens a document, which likes had never been seen before. But individual liberties were still a hope, or unknown dream, of the future.

Thus, the Bill of Rights.

At the time, James Madison, known to us as the Father of the Bill of Rights, believed it would be unnecessary and worthless to government.

For many years after its passage, there were laws that limited it, including the Alien and Sedition Acts, passed seven years after the bill's ratification, which made it a crime to criticize government officials.

The Bill of Rights could have been considered a dormant aspiration until 1925 when the Supreme Court ruled that freedom of speech and press under the First Amendment were fundamental enough to be applied to the states. Prior to this, the Bill of Rights did not apply to states.

In the years that followed, the Supreme Court's role in enlarging the scope and interpretation of the Bill of Rights became more important than ever.

INTERPRETATION OF the 10 amendments contained in the Bill of Rights became what could be called a more liberal view of what the bill meant.

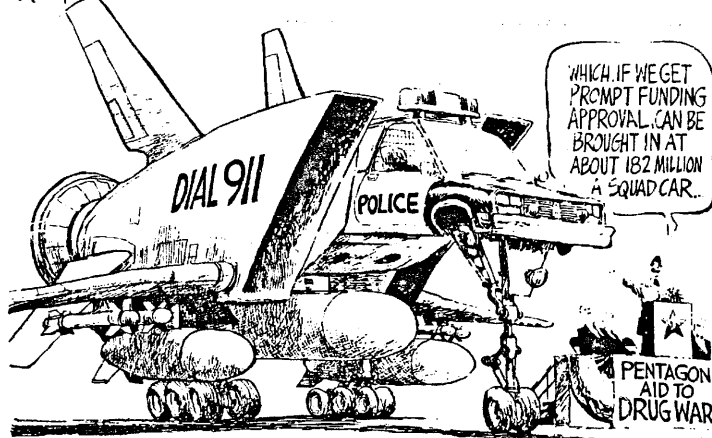

We still see the guarantees under the Bill of Rights argued on a daily basis.

Recently, the topic of debate was the flag-burning controversy, which birthed the idea to amend the Bill of Rights, something that has never happened. Still on the lips of America, and Southern Illinois, is the controversy over the right to bear arms interpreted under the Second Amendment. Capital punishment is a reason for discussion and heated debate for many who claim protection from cruel and unusual punishment under the Eighth Amendment.

Fuel for argument concerning the Bill of Rights is in definition. From the ambiguity of the language contained in the First Amendment to the simplicity of the Tenth Amendment, there may be reason for debate.

Debate keeps a nation and its freedoms healthy and tested. Debate is essential for interpretation of the amendments tested by the Supreme Court. Peaceful debate is welcome and, most of all, guaranteed.

Carbondale needs different events to replace annual Halloween bash

I'm both glad and mad to see Halloween go. Glad because the drunkathon associated with it is gone. The bottle and can throwing is gone, the property damage is gone, the drunken slobs shrieking at 3 a.m. are gone.

But, what gets me bent out of shape is the fact that Carbondale and SIU don't feel the need to replace it with something better. With nothing else to do but drink, Carbondale is the most boring place in Southern Illinois.

It has the largest concentration of liquor establishments in any place that I can think of. What other well advertised, walking distance service does this town offer? Carbondale runs on alcohol.

Carbondale sorely needs other diversions, other attractions. As far as I know, Carbondale is the only town in this area that doesn't have some kind of carnival, festival, or other mass gathering (of course, there was Halloween...).

Murphysboro has the Apple festival, Du Quoin has the state fair and the Street Machine Nationals. Where is all the financing for the so-called Carbondale Tourism Board going? Up someone's nose?

They've spoken about getting things done, getting more people to come to this town, but I have yet to see any kind of results.

Come SIU and Carbondale, get off your butts and do some original thinking. How about having something like a jazz fest or rock fest or food fest?

It's no small wonder that students (both college and highschool) choose drinking and getting stoned as a major pastime. What else is there to do?

Sure, you could hop in the ol' car and drive to Giant City, but that wears thin after... say...

thirty or forty visits. What about the Spillway? Crab Orchard? Bald Knob Cross?

Everybody doesn't have a car and an interest in those kinds of things. Mayor, chancellor, Tourism Board, you can't rely on attractions in other towns to sustain interest here.

We are bored here, and we can't go elsewhere. So start thinking about the people around here instead of yourselves.

We're not a bunch of stray dogs to be thrown whatever scraps you choose. It's your duty to serve us, and you can always be voted or pressured out of office.

So enough with the rhetoric about what might be in the future, rhetoric won't wash it. Action will. Put something in our future to look forward to, besides alcoholism. — Karl Rademacher, senior, radio and television production.

Pornography, obscenity masqueraded as "art"

Recently this week we have heard the cry of "censorship" by numerous articles in the Daily Egyptian.

The Jesse Helms bill as quoted in the DE would prohibit the use of federal funds to promote, disseminate or produce obscene or indecent materials including but not limited to depictions of sadomasochism, homoeroticism, the exploitation of children, or individuals engaged in sex acts; or material which denigrates the objects or beliefs of the adherents of a particular religion or non-religion.

It would also bar grants for artwork that "denigrates, debases or reviles" a person, group or class of citizens on the basis of race, creed, sex, handicap, age or national origin." (If you oppose any of the above you are obviously a "Yahoo.")

As was mentioned in the DE article, this bill centers around photographs by the late Robert Mapplethorpe that included homoerotic and sadomasochistic images and a photograph by Andres Serrano that showed Jesus Christ on a cross submerged in urine.

The photograph was titled "Piss Christ." Andres said his next work will be a picture of Christ submerged in semen (I wonder what he will call that work...)

It is time that we quit allowing pornography and obscenity to be masqueraded under the guise of "art."

The Helms bill cannot be classified as "censorship." The artist can still produce and show their works. They just don't have to expect the public to fund it!

I think there are a lot of people that are tired of some "artists" polluting art exhibits with their anti-God, anti-family, anti-mortality "art" and having their tax money used to proliferate it.

— Wayne Helmer, professor, mechanical engineering and energy processes.

Is this really 1989? After reading today's Daily Excuse of a paper I've asked myself this question several times. The answer is yes, chronologically, yet the trash I see in this and other so-called newspapers tell me otherwise.

I open up the DE and they show my Afreekan brothers talking about buying crack. I guess Afreekans have a monopoly on buying, using and selling crack.

Now everytime you see a news story about a crack bust or drug use there's always an Afreekan man or woman front and center.

I go to get a fish sandwich from a famous place located on the strip and on every register is a picture of a pregnant sister.

After taking a closer look my spirit became vexed. They show her drinking beer out of a bottle while a brother in the background smokes a cancer stick and watches.

First of all, I know very few Afreekan women who drink beer. Secondly, most Afreekan women drink out of glasses not bottles.

The pictures wouldn't be racist if they show all the races instead of just the Black one. When will all this madness end?

George beats around the Bush talking about crime in the inner cities. Yet the real scoop isn't ice cream. This is Babylon's new excuse to imprison my brothers.

The reason there is concern about the inner city is young Afreekan males with arms. Babylon is afraid that these brothers will revolt. That's the real deal!

Drugs are not an issue. Drugs were put in the inner city to keep Afreekans dazed, confused and at each other's throats.

The drawing of a huge swine called the New York Racial violence placed the DE at a new low. This not only is disrespectful to Afreekans, but also shows no respect to Islam by showing minister Farrakhan being breast fed by a swine.

I guess freedom of religion doesn't exist for Afreekans. I demand a formal apology to any Afreekan who may have seen this trash, and to the people of Islam.

No one with decency would disrespect a way of life practiced by millions of people all over the world.

Most of you are wondering why I used Afreekan instead of African or African American.

United we stand Afreekan. In the words of St. Peter (Peter Tosh), "Don't care where you come from if you're Black then you're an Afreekan." — Ras Nyabinghi I (Herman Braggs), senior, University studies.

Hugo survivors pack highway searching for ice, fuel, food

ORANGEBURG, S.C. (UPI) — Eighty miles inland from storm-ravaged Charleston, cars with coastal-county license plates line up at gasoline pumps, and cash registers ring continuously with record sales.

Desperate patrons clamoring for ice, fuel and food scurry through the aisles of any store they can find open as utility trucks, military vehicles and construction equipment thunders down the highway outside.

The 110-mile stretch of South Carolina's Interstate 26 between Charleston and Columbia has become a lifeline for the survivors of Hurricane Hugo.

"On one shift we had $39,000 in sales," said Phyllis Montgomery, assistant manager of a Chevron gas and convenience store at the I-26 Orangeburg exit. "They're all stocking up on water, gas and ice. Some are talking about hoping they have a home to come back to."

Montgomery said the crowds have been streaming in since the morning after Hugo blew through and "it's never slowed down."

Hugo knocked out water supplies and electricity in the Charleston area, forcing stores and restaurants out of business and making gas stations unable to use their electric pumps.

Up to a half-million customers across the state were without power as late as Saturday night, utility officials said, and most coastal communities still had no running water. Those whose water was running were ordered to boil it before drinking because of contamination from ruptured sewer lines.

"This is the closest place outside Charleston that has gas," said Randy Evans, making his second trip in as many days with his wife to stock up on supplies.

"We waited five hours in Columbia for ice. We came back today for gas, ice and candles," he said, pleased that his red pickup truck was now only third in line from the pumps.

A few gas stations were open in Charleston where the owners had managed to find generators, but lines were long, supplies were short and prices were ranging from $2 to $5 a gallon.

At a Kentucky Fried Chicken stand across the street from the Orangeburg Chevron store, employee Monique Windborne paused to take a break after the Saturday night dinner rush.

"Usually we have three to four customers at a time," she said. "Today it's been like 25 to 40 at one time. They wanted ice and buckets of chicken. Two 21-piece buckets - it's all been big orders when we usually only have small ones."

Thirty miles closer to Charleston at an interstate Texaco station, the manager and his wife raced to serve a throng of customers packing the store and 30 cars waiting in a gas line out front.

Doug Olds sat outside in an old Datsun 280-Z sports car waiting for his turn to gas up.

"Basically we're all after the necessities of life," said Olds, a sailor stationed at Charleston Navy Base who was traveling along I-26 looking for provisions.

Riley said. "And now our goal is to do the best job any city ever did in recovering from it."

The mayor announced that city council members in a Saturday night emergency session formed a new governmental agency called the Department of Volunteer Labor to coordinate rebuilding efforts and offers of aid pouring into City Hall.

Riley said all 500,000 residents of the Charleston metro area were still without power and that 300,000 served by the water system could not be certain that their drinking water was safe.

"The pressure is acceptable but when you shut down a water system you run the risk of the water being contaminated," he said. "We don't think it was contaminated but if it was it would be a terrible thing."

Riley said the city was testing the water and should know by noon Monday if people can resume drinking tap water.

The mayor had no estimate on how long electricity would be out.

"This is a herculean task, and getting power back is our top priority," he said. "Hospitals are out first priority and then maintaining the water and sewer system. High on that priority list are obviously grocery stores and gas stations."

Riley said the city council also adopted an ordinance in the Saturday night meeting outlawing price-gouging by entrepreneurs capitalizing on the high demand for scarce necessities.

Some of the few gas stations operating were charging upwards of $5 a gallon.

applications in voice recognition systems since 1986, said.

"If everything goes right, by the end of this semester, we'll be able to demonstrate a system that can recognize a limited number of words using neural networks."

Botros said his system works through extraction of vocal features, which are stored in the computer. Through comparison of vocal features, the computer can be taught to recognize and respond to voice patterns, he said.

Botros said, presently, his system can recognize fifteen words. He said the words must be played from a tape because the system cannot tolerate the differences in word pronunciation found in normal speech. Words must also be isolated very distinctly for the computer to recognize them, he said.

Botros, whose research has been funded by NASA and the National Science Foundation along with University funds, said his model will have important uses.

"Voice recognition is our third hand," he said. When hands and eyes are occupied, voice can be used to command robots and computers, Botros said.

This capability would be especially useful for astronauts to move objects and gears in the zero gravity of a space station, he said.

Botros said the model also could be adapted for people who do not have the use of their hands and legs or who are blind.

Botros said the electrical engineering department is trying to establish a neural network research center. He said neural network research is being conducted at universities across the country and he emphasized the importance of this research.

"If neural networks prove to be very good pattern classifiers, they will have a tremendous effect on computers' speed and accuracy," he said.

Carbondale Historic Area Association, which claimed the couple would destroy the historical appearance of the neighborhood that has been on the National Register of Historic Places since 1975.

Robert Pauls, president of the historic area association, said he supported having a northern bypass because it would skirt the northern edge of town, instead of running through a historical neighborhood.

When the council voted in 1988 to have the couple, Pauls said he would try to stop its construction by suing the city, but a lawsuit never surfaced.

Councilman John Mills said the "damage to the historic district has been drastically overemphasized" and he supports the couple.

Larry Meyer, IDOT planning and programming engineer, said the couple should be completed by the fall of 1991.

telefunds, said, "COBA hires the most workers. I think this is definitely the wave of the future. The College of Business tends to be a trend setter."

Mullins said finding volunteers is a problem because incentives are needed to get people to work.

She said she enjoyed working with the wage workers because they learn the skill of talking to alumni and are present for all the sessions. On Sunday they worked a double shift.

The departments of marketing, finance, management and the School of Accountancy will receive 60 percent of the money raised. The rest of the money will go to the de n's office and will be used for various alumni activities, Fournier said.

Mullins will work with all the colleges this semester on their telefunds. The goal for the entire colleges combined is $285,000. She said COBA's $50,000 is a major part of that goal.

Douglas' character too much for action movie 'Black Rain'

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

In the midst of a slew of action movies and cop-buddy movies, Ridley Scott's "Black Rain" is a thoroughly watchable, if not original, movie.

Michael Douglas stars as a New York cop who has to take a young Asian mobster to Japan. Upon losing the criminal at the Japanese airport, Douglas and his partner, Andy Garcia (of "The Untouchables") try to recover him with the aid of the Japanese police force and eventually stumble into a mob war.

The film has an interesting premise and some eye-catching camera work, but Douglas' character is just too overbearing to be believable.

His character verbally attacks Internal Affairs investigators in New York, wins motorcycle races against local street toughs and physically intimidates the mobster all the way to Japan. Even though Douglas is getting up there in years, all this is plausible.

Where things get bad is when

Film Review

Douglas and Garcia arrive in Japan. The New York cops are unfamiliar with Japan and its culture in general and can't speak enough of the language to order coffee. Despite all this, they strut through the movie making unreasonable demands of the Japanese police and pushing their way through the Japanese underworld.

Douglas' character is especially unrealistic. He is frequently being reminded that he has no business or authority in Japan, but continues to interfere. His character is overbearing, overmacho and overacted. Douglas' character really doesn't fit into the structure of this movie.

What is really annoying is that Douglas gets away with it. The police put up with his behavior, the Japanese he meets take his abuse of their system and culture. His partner allows himself to be dragged from one bad situation to another and the underworld lets Douglas damage it. Why? Just once it would have been nice to have someone tell him "Hey, sit down and shut up."

The characters are annoying, but the storyline and the action are good. The Japanese mob makes for a good villain organization, and their disinterest in a pair of New York cops shows class. The story is predictable in places, but never so badly that it ruins the film. There are some good fight scenes, and the body count is nice and high.

As an action film, "Black Rain" isn't bad. It's the little things that get in the way. Douglas' domination of the Japanese police department and the underworld is ridiculous. The ideological discussions about American and Japanese culture are out-of-place. Douglas' love interest (Kate Capshaw, the only American woman in the film) is completely unbelievable. Also, the statements the film makes about American cops and their poor morality is poorly expressed.

It's not that Douglas isn't giving a good performance, it's just that he plays a square peg of a character that doesn't fit into the movie. If his character wasn't so intense and so completely mismatched to the story, "Black Rain" would be an exceptional film. As it is, the movie is just an above-average action flick in a long series of action flicks.

Study shows increase in Third World life span

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The average life span has increased dramatically in Third World nations over the past 40 years, but one-fifth of people around the globe remain sick or hungry, the World Health Organization reported Sunday.

A WHO study found the average person in a developing country now lives 59.7 years, compared to 41 years four decades ago.

Since 1949, the average life expectancy in China and East Asia has risen from 42.7 to 69.9 years, while Africa saw an increase from 38 to 51.9, the study said. Residents of South and Central America now live to be 66 on the average, compared to 51.2 four decades ago.

The average life expectancy in developed countries, including the United States, is about 73 years, WHO spokeswoman Majory Dam said.

WHO attributed the lengthening of life in Third World countries to "health improvements and medical advances."

Despite those improvements, WHO estimates about 1 billion people — or 20 percent of the world's population — suffer from disease or malnutrition.

The WHO report marks the first time the international health agency "has stuck its neck out and offered its best guess of what the overall situation of world health really is," Dam said.

Some of the top health problems listed by WHO are:

- Sexually transmitted diseases, which affect about one of 20 teenagers and young adults worldwide each year. Five million to 10 million people are infected with the AIDS virus.
 - Tuberculosis, which kills 3 million people annually despite improvements in drug treatment.
 - Malaria, which strikes about 100 million people each year.
 - Diarrhea and pneumonia, each of which annually claims the lives of 4 million children.
 - Schistosomiasis, a serious parasitic disease that afflicts about 200 million people in 76 nations.
- WHO estimates about 30 percent of people living in sub-Saharan Africa are ill and malnourished, while about 40 percent of people in India, Indonesia and surrounding countries suffer from such problems.

Dr. Hiroshi Nakajima, director general of WHO, said, "This is a preventable tragedy because the developed world has the resources and technology to end common diseases worldwide. The missing ingredient is the will to help."

The WHO analysis showed annual health expenditures in the poorest nations, like Haiti, averaged less than $5 per person, while the United States, Japan and Western Europe spent about $400 per person on health care.

Commission starts program to help poor kids in America

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Commission on Children embarks today on a mission to make Americans "understand we can no longer be hypocrites about our kids," says the group's chairman, Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va.

The commission will go to Chicago to hold its first in a series of field hearings as part of an effort to prepare a report by March 1991 detailing what government and society must do to improve the health and welfare of children, about one in five of whom now live in poverty.

"We are really doing wrong by our kids in this country. We will not face up to it. I want to trigger ... a national obsession with kids," Rockefeller said in an interview last week. "I want Americans to understand we can no longer be hypocrites about our kids."

"There is this ethic in America about how good we are about our kids — except that we're not. Parentally, we are insufficient. In terms of government programs, we are insufficient. In terms of private and voluntary programs, we are insufficient."

The bipartisan commission, established by law as a children's forum, includes 35 members appointed by the president and Congress ranging from actor Bill Cosby to representatives of government, business, education and health care.

"There is this ethic in America about how good we are about our kids — except that we're not."

—Sen. Jay Rockefeller

Rockefeller, noting that 100 babies die each day in America before their first birthday, said the commissioners going to Chicago — who will not include Cosby — will focus on the topic of "healthy mothers and healthy babies."

They will begin their day with a visit to the neonatal unit of Cook County Hospital and then head to four community-based programs that provide health services to low-income families. In the afternoon, the commission will hold a hearing on topics including babies born with AIDS or addicted to drugs.

Upcoming commission activities will include the first-ever tracking poll of children, a series of interviews with a "focus group" providing an ongoing account of "what children think in honest and brutal terms," Rockefeller said.

"If we can get the country ... to hear that, we will respond. I'm convinced of that," he said. "We are still that kind of country."

However, Rockefeller said one obstacle the commission will face is "the present 'chicken' game that the two political parties are playing with each other about resources and what's important and what's not."

"This 'chicken' business of each waiting each other out, I'm personally sick of," he said. "I'm sick of the Democratic Party's hypocrisy, the Republican Party's hypocrisy, the president's hypocrisy."

"We have to learn in this country either through tax money ... or personal involvement ... that accepting responsibility in its various forms has to become part of (what we do). We used to do that. We have to get back to that."

Outbreak of violence kills eight

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Eight people were killed and five wounded in a weekend outbreak of gang violence, including three slain early Sunday by a half-dozen men armed with rifles and pistols, authorities said.

Cornelio Perez, 18, Vincent Salazar, 20, and a 17-year-old boy, all of suburban Pomona, were hit in a flurry of rifle and pistol shots fired by three to six gang members, Pomona police Sgt. David Johnson said.

Police found the victims lying wounded on the sidewalk and in the street, Johnson said.

Salazar and the 17-year-old boy were pronounced dead at the scene of the 2 a.m. attack, Johnson said. Perez died at a hospital.

Detectives said the victims, who had no gang affiliations, had earlier been involved in a disturbance with other Hispanic men at a convenience food store a few blocks away.

"This happened right in the middle of a very nice area and we have a lot of neighbors who are very upset," Johnson said.

About two hours later, a 22-year-old reputed gang member was fatally shot at a hamburger stand in South Los Angeles, Sgt. Thomas Haley said.

"Two suspected gang members walked up to him and shot him in the head," Haley said. The victim, whose name was withheld, died at a hospital. The assailants remained at large.

Earlier, in South Central Los Angeles, Samuel White, 15, was fatally shot as he stood talking with a young man on a street corner in South Central Los Angeles Saturday night, Sgt. Thomas Jones said.

The shots were fired by three to four men standing east of the intersection, Jones said.

The suspects fled in a car.

Another 15-year-old boy was killed in a shooting at a party in East Los Angeles about 11:10 p.m., sheriff's deputies said. He died at Santa Marta Hospital.

Another gang-related shooting killed Jose Juan Espana, 19, of Venice, Saturday, police said.

Cadets rappel Giant City cliffs for annual Army ROTC clinic

By Tony Mancuso
Staff Writer

SIU-C was the host institution for the annual Army ROTC rappelling clinic at Giant City State Park Saturday.

Cadets from Southeast Missouri State University also participated in the event.

"The cadets are freshmen to seniors in the ROTC program. Some of the cadets have never rappelled before," said Cadet Capt. George Frisch, a member of the ROTC Ranger company.

The Rangers are a group of seasoned cadets who study additional tactics, have a higher standard of physical fitness and help out at clinics, such as the one at Giant City.

Frisch said rappelling is a basic skill every soldier needs to know.

"Rappelling allows a soldier to bypass obstacles in order to carry out maneuvers. For instance, a soldier may be in a unit operating in a mountainous environment, where he must bypass large cliffs," Frisch said.

He said soldiers may also learn to rappel out of helicopters, which enables units to drop into an area with a dense population of trees.

Cadets can use their experience when they rappel 34- and 55-foot towers.

The Army is very safety conscious when it comes to rappelling. Frisch said the soldiers use two ropes, tie their own Swiss seats-harnesses which are tied around rappellers' waists and are required to wear helmets at all times.

Frisch said rappelling is also a confidence builder.

"The cadets can overcome their fear of heights, which is important," he said. "These cadets are training to become officers and they have to be able to put aside their fears and look confident to their men, who are looking at their leaders for example, will also overcome fears."

ROTC Battalion Commander Eugene Leddin agreed.

"An officer will be leading about 40 men, and he must remain in control. In this army, the officers lead from the front," Leddin said.

Frisch said the cadets will use their experience with heights when they attend advanced training camp next year, at Fort Riley, Kan., where they will be required to rappel 34- and 55-foot towers.

"Some of the cadets will go on to air-assault school, where they will learn to rappel out of helicopters, and others will go on to airborne school, where they will jump and parachute out of airplanes," Frisch said.

Study: Drug arrests up 52 percent in five states over four-year span

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The annual number of arrests in five states increased 18 percent between 1983 and 1986, with drug offense arrests up 52 percent over the four years, a Justice Department study showed Sunday.

The study by the department's Bureau of Justice Statistics also shows that drug convictions increased 71 percent and jail and prison sentences were up 104 percent between 1983 and 1986 in the five states — California, Minnesota, New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

"Drug offenses showed the largest growth during the period — arrests increased 52 percent, prosecutions rose by 51 percent, convictions grew by 71 percent and prison and jail sentences were up by 104 percent," the study said.

Of the 1.9 million people arrested on felony charges in the five states, about 39 percent were sentenced to jail or prison terms.

Sixty-two percent of the 1.9 million arrests ended in convictions of probation sentences and penalties other than incarceration.

The study said the number of felony prosecutions in the five states rose from 369,945 in 1983 to 433,335 in 1986, largely because of a 61-percent increase in the number of drug-offense prosecutions and not the greater likelihood of prosecution.

Police arrest 31 in house at Ball State

MUNCIE, Ind. (UPI) — Police arrested 31 people for underage drinking early Sunday morning at a house near the Ball State campus, authorities said.

The majority of those arrested were Ball State students, police said, although exact figures were not available.

Indiana Excise Police made the arrests just after midnight Saturday. They were assisted by campus police, Muncie police and the Delaware County Sheriff's Department.

On Sept. 15, 48 people were arrested near the Ball State campus for underage drinking and selling alcoholic beverages without a permit. In April, police arrested 181 near campus on similar charges.

"During the four-year period the percentage of convicted defendants who were sentenced to a jail or prison term increased for every offense category," the study said.

"The greatest increase was for drug offenses — in 1983, 71 percent of the men and women convicted for drug offenses were sentenced to incarceration; by 1986 this had risen to 83 percent."

The study said 86 percent of the people arrested on felony charges were male, 62 percent were white and 66 percent were under 30 years old.

Disney accused of killing wild birds, faces up to $30,000 in federal fines

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — The company that built an entertainment empire around Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, Bambi and other lovable creatures faces charges involving the abuse and killing of wild birds, it was reported Sunday.

Investigators said workers at Walt Disney World's Discovery Island fired a rifle at hawks, beat vultures to death with a stick and destroyed the nests and eggs of egrets and ibises. They said the supervisor at the 11-acre zoological park sanctioned the alleged abuses.

The two-month investigation has resulted in 16 state and federal charges against Disney and five employees, most involving the deaths of vultures crammed into a tiny, overheated shed for days with limited food and water. The Orlando Sentinel reported.

The Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums is considering launching its own investigation, citing an 18-page report by the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission, and could revoke Disney's accreditation.

"It looks very, very bad," said Robert Wagner, executive director of the accreditation association in Wheeling, W. Va.

The Sentinel said Disney officials at first blamed the problems on misunderstandings about the conditions of a federal permit that allowed the company to trap and relocate 100 black vultures.

But state officials ridiculed that response. When confronted with details including the confinement of 72 vultures in a windowless, airless shed legally big enough for only three, the beating of trapped vultures by workers and attempts to shoot hawks, Disney officials had no comment.

"We're still proud of what Discovery Island is and will work very closely with wildlife officials to make any corrections that need to be made," said spokesman John Dreyer.

Representatives of Disney have been ordered to appear Oct. 5 before a U.S. magistrate to face three counts of unlawful trapping or trying to trap vultures, ibises and egrets, all protected species. Disney could be fined up to $30,000 on the federal counts and could lose permits from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service which allow it to operate the facility.

Disney and the Discovery Island curator, Charlie Cook, are due in state court Oct. 30 to face charges of illegally trapping birds, improperly holding vultures while in captivity and improperly caring for them.

Disney apparently decided to get rid of the vultures and other protected birds kept at the park after they attacked other animals, destroyed furnishings and generally made trouble, the state report said.

Army Ranger defends home against gun-toting assailants

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — An Army Ranger who faced his first firefight in a wild exchange of gunshots with neighborhood drug dealers vowed Sunday he would not leave his home "without a fight."

More than 100 rounds were fired late Saturday night in the exchange of gunshots between "gangsters" and a group of off-duty soldiers helping to defend the home of Staff Sgt. William Foulk, a 12-year Army man.

Police said no one was hurt in the firefight and only two people—suspected drug dealers—were arrested on assault and weapons charges.

The gun battle erupted late Saturday evening in the Hilltop area of Tacoma, a rundown neighborhood police have said is being taken over by drug dealers and gang members.

Police, hampered by too few officers for too much crime, advised the neighborhood to organize itself, Foulk said.

with wide receiver Glen Arterburn for a 10-yard score. Duncan's kick gave the Racers a 14-3 lead at the half.

Both defenses started the third quarter forcing their opponent to punt on two consecutive possessions.

On the Salukis third possession, the offense began to click under the guidance of quarterback Fred Gibson. With 8:27 to play in the period the Salukis began a drive on their own 46 yard line.

Gibson took the Salukis to the MSU 9-yard line before fumbling the snap from center Bob Grammer and turning the ball over to the Racers. The Salukis fumbled five times during the game and lost three.

Proctor and company took over and drove 89 yards on 11 plays to give the Racers a commanding 21-3 lead with 1:35 to play in the third quarter.

The Racers added an 18-yard Duncan field goal with 5:41 to play in the game for a 24-3 lead to close out their scoring.

Saluki sophomore Scott Gabbert played for the first time this season and accounted for the Salukis' only touchdown of the game.

Gabbert replaced Gibson with 1:31 to play in the third quarter after Gibson banged a knee on the artificial turf and experienced some swelling.

Gibson ended the day completing 13 of 25 passes for 118 yards and one interception while rushing for six yards on five carries.

Gabbert completed two consecutive 17-yard pass plays to tight end Yogi Henderson on his first two plays from scrimmage. Gabbert fumbled on the next play again turning the ball over to the Racers.

Gabbert said he "didn't know what to expect" when entering the game. "I felt pretty good and I wasn't nervous."

The fumbled snap on his third play had nothing to do with the exchange from Grammer, Gabbert said.

"It was more adrenalin than anything else," Gabbert said.

Following MSU's last score, Gabbert drove the Salukis 65 yards on eight plays for a touchdown and two-point conversion.

Tight end Ransom Funches caught a 6-yard pass from Gabbert with 2:41 to play for the score. The Salukis went for two and Funches caught another Gabbert pass for the completion and the final score of the day.

Gabbert finished with 118 yards on nine of 13 passing, one touchdown and no interceptions.

Smith said Gibson will start next week if his knee is healthy. However, the Salukis may have lost junior defensive back Monty Foster for the remainder of the season with a knee injury sustained in the second half. Foster left the game with nine tackles and one interception.

Coming into the game, Proctor had been averaging 317 passing yards a game. Proctor finished the day completing 10 of 19 passes for 172 yards.

The Salukis were led on defense by tackle Martin Hochertz who finished with 15 tackles. Linebacker Kevin Kilgallon followed with 14, safety William Perry had 12 and tackle Shannon Ferbrache finished with 10.

The Salukis, 1-3, next travel to 5th-ranked Arkansas State University this weekend.

Women's golf finishes fifth in Lady Northern

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

The SIU-C women's golf team gave the Big Ten Conference a run for their money as the Salukis finished in fifth place in the 16-team Lady Northern Tournament in Minneapolis, Minn.

The Salukis were in fifth place after the second round of play Saturday and maintained its position with a team total 329 strokes Sunday for a three-day score of 991.

Indiana University won the tournament with a score of 954.

The University of Iowa was second, 962, Ohio State University third, 978, and University of Minnesota finished fourth with 985.

Coach Diane Daugherty was pleased with the team's finish.

"We're really happy to be in the top five," Daugherty said. "The only teams able to beat us were Big Ten schools. For us to beat the other six teams from the Big Ten was great."

Senior Lisa Johnson paced the Salukis with three-day scores of 78-78-85 for a total of 241, putting her in a tie for fifth place overall.

Volleyball improves to 7-5

The volleyball team improved its record to 7-5 after splitting four games this weekend in the Eastern Michigan Tournament.

The Salukis won against Northern Illinois 8-15, 15-8, 5-15, 18-16, 15-7. Sophomore setter Terri Schulteheinrich had 58 assists and Nina Brackins had 23 kills to lead the team to a victory over the Huskies.

The Salukis started tournament play on Friday with a win over the Villanova Wildcats 15-7, 15-3, 8-15, 15-8. Brackins had 14 kills and Dana Olden 11 kills against the Wildcats.

Against host team Eastern Michigan, the Salukis lost 5-15, 11-15, 15-13, 8-15. Brackins has 13 kills and Olden had 11 for the match.

Bowling Green State beat the Salukis 15-3, 11-15, 15-11, 15-9.

For the tournament the Salukis went 2-2, advancing their overall record to 7-5.

The Salukis next game will be against Arkansas State at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Davies Gymnasium.

Harriers' finish eighth in Kentucky Invitational

Injury, eligibility keep top runners out of action

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

The SIU-C men's cross country team finished eighth in the 17-team Kentucky Invitational Saturday without the services of two of their top five runners.

"I was relatively happy with how we did considering we were without David Beauchem and Neal West," Head Coach Bill Cornell said.

Beauchem still is temporarily ineligible because of an NCAA ruling against him participating in two races during his 1985 red-shirt season. West was unable to accompany the team because of a leg injury.

Ohio University of the Mid-American Conference won the Kentucky meet with 85 points. Finishing behind Ohio were Western Kentucky with 101, Cincinnati Track Club 134, Kentucky 166, Edinboro College 169, Indiana 187, East Tennessee 216 and SIU-C 222. Sophomore Mark Stuart was the Salukis top finisher. Stuart was 11th with a time of 25:36. Freshman Gerallt Owen finished 12th in 25:37.

"Stuart and Owen both had exceptionally good times," Cornell said.

Sophomore Vaughan Harry finished 49th Saturday with a time of 26:32; Paul Burkinshaw was 71st with a time of 26:50; Mike Kershaw was 96th in a time of 27:15; Edwin Taylor was 128th with a time of 28:01 and Mike Danner finished 134th in a time of 28:11.

"When you compare our times this year with what we did on this same course last year, we are ahead of last year's schedule," Cornell said. "Stuart's time last year was 27:12 compared to his time of 25:36 this year."

The Salukis top three finishers including Stuart, Owen and Harry are all underclassmen, leaving Cornell optimistic for the future.

"Our top three in this meet included two sophomores and a freshman," Cornell said. "We have some young runners and the future looks bright for us."

Edwards each won two of three matches this weekend. Varnum is now 8-2 this fall and Edwards is 8-1.

Varnum and Toye sparked the Saluki effort in doubles competition going 3-0. They are now 7-2 for the season.

"They (Varnum and Toye) work well together," Auld said. "Their styles compliment each other well."

Boardman and Edwards won two of three in doubles this weekend.

Freshman Lori Gallagher saw her first action of the season against Southwest. Gallagher teamed up with Jeffrey in doubles competition. They were defeated 6-1 and 6-4.

"She (Gallagher) was nervous and rusty in her first match," Auld said. "You have to get that first match out of the way though. It's a shame it had to come against Southwest but I think Lori and Michele will make a good team." The Salukis aren't at full strength yet, so Auld has worked in some other players this season. Nancy Mullins competed in three singles matches this weekend, winning Saturday against Chicago State.

Reckless play aids in Racer victory

By Daniel Wallenberg
Staff Writer

MURRAY, Ky. — Murray State University coach Mike Mahoney told his players before their 24-11 victory over the Salukis Saturday to go out and play reckless and not to worry about mistakes. That advice proved to be the difference in the Racer victory.

On the opening play of the game, before a second had elapsed from the game clock, the 15th-ranked Racers put the Salukis in a hole which they were never able to dig themselves out of.

The Salukis won the coin toss at the start of the game and elected to defer to the second half. The decision to kick or receive was given to the Racers. Mahoney decided to kick off to the Salukis and defend the north goal.

Mahoney said the decision was based on the wind conditions at game time. Winds were out of the north at 20 mph with gusts up to 30 mph.

The Salukis' Tim Callier and Yonel Jourdain were deep in Saluki territory awaiting the kick. With the wind at their back, the Racers kicked off and charged down field.

Both Callier and Jourdain approached the short kick but neither made an attempt to catch it and the ball hit on the 10 yard line and bounced into the end zone. Racer defensive back Robby Lanon recovered the ball for a touchdown. Greg Duncan made the extra point, giving the Racers a 7-0 lead with a full 15 minutes to play in the first quarter.

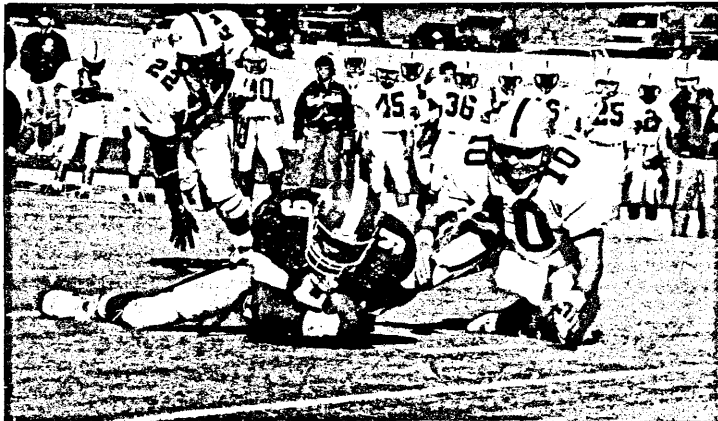

Kickoffs, unlike punts, are live after traveling 10 yards and can be recovered by either team, even if not touched by the receiving team. The game clock does not start until the return team touches the ball.

Saluki Head Coach Bob Smith said the error resulted from a lack of communication between the return men.

"Callier is the communicator," Smith said. "He either says 'me, me, me, or you, you, you' and apparently he said you, you, you and Yonel didn't hear him."

Mahoney said he had never seen a team score without the clock moving in his 25 years of playing and coaching.

"What a great way to start a ballgame," Mahoney said. "It definitely set the tone of the game."

Murray State linebacker Greg Seaphus recovers a fumble by SIU-C quarterback Fred Gibson on the nine yard line in the third quarter Saturday as running back Tim Callier looks on. The Racers, ranked 15th in Division I-AA, beat the Salukis 24-11 in Murray, Ky.

The Salukis scored their first points on a 37-yard Steve Wedemier field goal with 11:28 to play in the first half, making the score 7-3. The Racer offense, lead by All-American quarterback candidate Michael Proctor, did not score a touchdown until late in the second quarter when Proctor connected

Men's tennis wins 23 invite matches

By Greg Scott

The SIU-C men's tennis team won more matches than any team in the Redbird Invitational, despite running into injury problems this weekend in Bloomington.

Six teams participated in the Invitational. No team champion was declared but the Salukis finished with 23 wins. Illinois State University had 18 wins and Northern Illinois University finished with 16.

The Invitational was divided into three divisions labeled A, B and C flights.

Mickey Maule won the A flight singles title by forfeit Saturday when teammate Joe Demeterco strained his back in a doubles match.

Demeterco and Maule were doubles partners. They defeated the DePaul University doubles team of Knox and Gentile 6-1, 6-2 in the semifinals. But Demeterco's injury occurred in the second set of the doubles partners' championship match with Mats Persson and Eric Andersch of Northern Illinois.

Maule and Demeterco had to forfeit after winning the first set 7-5.

George Hime also was injured. Hime sprained his ankle in a doubles match.

Hime and doubles partner Richard Stenstrom received a bye in the first round. Hime and Stenstrom then defeated Northern Illinois' doubles team of Halligan and Kramer 6-4, 7-5.

In the semifinals, Hime and Stenstrom led 6-5 in the first set, but had to forfeit to the Bradley doubles team of Velez and Burwald because of Hime's injury.

Hime had to forfeit to Blong Ly of DePaul in the B flight singles semifinals after suffering the injury in the doubles match.

"I am concerned about the injuries," Saluki coach Dick LeFevre said. "Demeterco's injury is a recurring problem and Hime's ankle was swollen. We just hope they will be alright for next week."

Freshman John Brown won the C flight singles title beating freshman teammate Tim Derouin 3-6, 6-1 and 6-2.

Netters rebound from loss

After losing a tight conference match to Southwest Missouri Friday, the SIU-C women's tennis team came back with two victories at home Saturday to go 2-1 for the weekend.

The Salukis lost to Southwest 5-4 on Friday before defeating Eastern Illinois (7-2) and Chicago State (9-0) on Saturday. SIU-C improved its overall record to 4-2.

"It was disappointing losing to Southwest and overall I still think we are stronger than them," SIU-C head coach Judy Auld said. "We still have to prove ourselves in this conference and if we lose the close ones right now, maybe we can catch some people unexpectedly as the season goes on."

Three SIU-C players, Beth Boardman, Michele Jeffrey and Michele Toye, went undefeated in singles play this weekend.

Boardman, closing in on her 100th career win, has a career mark of 91-39 at SIU-C. Boardman has gone 7-3 this fall in the No. 1 singles position.

"Beth had a pretty good play from Southwest," Auld said. "Beth's opponent made her work a lot. Beth was commenting that she felt good with the victory mentally and felt she was able to stay in the match because she was better conditioned."

Jeffrey improved her career mark to 63-26 after her three victories this weekend. Jeffrey, competing in the No. 2 position, has a fall record of 9-1 and has won six matches in a row.

Toye improved her career mark to 43-20 and also has won six consecutive matches. Toye is 8-2 this fall in the No. 5 spot.

"They all had good wins for us this weekend," Auld said. "They gave us some consistent performances."

Salukis suffer first loss in softball

By Tracy Sargeant
Staff Writer

The Saluki softball team advanced to second-round play Sunday before losing for the second time to host team Illinois Central College 2-0. The Salukis suffered their first loss of the season, 3-1 against ICC Saturday at the Illinois Central Invitational. The Salukis' record now stands at 13-2.

"We didn't play well. We gave them the game," Saluki coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said. "We've had 11 great games, this was an average game. It was bound to happen."

The Salukis opened the bracket play on Sunday, beating Bradley 4-2 before encountering Illinois Central for the second time around. "We are tired and it's been cold and nippy with the wind blowing in the 38 degree weather. That takes a lot out of you. We were a little slow to get started. Our defense didn't back up the pitching," Brechtelsbauer said.

In the first round on Saturday, freshman pitcher Angie Mick shut out Ball State 5-0. "This was her first competitive game in college since she had (hand) surgery," Brechtelsbauer said.

The Salukis beat Bradley 4-1 and 4-2.

Junior Mary Jo Fimback had the hot batting streak for the Salukis, Brechtelsbauer said. "In the first game against Bradley she had 3 RBIs with a bases loaded double. She came through with a big hit when we needed it. In the Ball State game she had 1 RBI and drove in the only run against ICC."

"Overall we had a pretty good tourney, not as good as last week though. We should be ready to go again on Tuesday with regular practice," Brechtelsbauer said.

Cubs' magic number three, Cardinals keep pace

CHICAGO (UPI) — Steve Wilson and four relievers combined on a six-hitter Sunday, guiding the Chicago Cubs to their fourth straight victory, 4-2 over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the Wrigley Field regular-season finale.

Wilson, 6-4, gave up three hits, struck out four and walked two in five-plus innings to snap a personal four-game losing streak. The only run he allowed was a solo home run to Bobby Bonilla in the fourth. Dean Wilkins allowed two hits in three innings.

Mitch Williams started the ninth, but walked the only two batters he faced. Paul Assenmacher struck out Andy Van Slyke before Jose Lind hit an RBI double to cut the lead to 4-2. Jeff Pico recorded the final two outs for his first save.

The Cubs reduced their magic number over St. Louis to three for clinching the National League East.

Chicago scored a run in each of the first three innings to take a 3-0 lead on Jeff Robinson, 7-12, who was 4-0 lifetime against the Cubs coming into the game.

Ryne Sandberg doubled and scored on Dwight Smith's RBI single in the first. In the second, Domingo Ramos stroked an opposite-field triple into the corner in right and came across on Joe Girardi's two-out single. Sandberg's third-inning groundout scored Marvell Wynne from third.

Bases loaded walk gives Cardinals lead in eighth to beat Phils

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Pinch hitter Tony Pena drew a two-out walk with the bases loaded to snap a 1-1 tie in the eighth inning, giving the St. Louis Cardinals a 2-1 victory Sunday over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Terry Pendleton singled with one out in the eighth off Jeff Parrett, 12-6. Parrett walked Jose Oquendo and Milt Thompson to load the bases. Charles McElroy relieved and walked Pena to make a winner of Ted Power, 7-7. John Costello pitched a scoreless ninth for his third save.

The Cardinals, winners of seven of their last eight games, remained four games behind Chicago in the NL East with six games remaining. The Cubs and Cardinals end the season with three games against each other at Busch Stadium.

The Cardinals took a 1-0 lead in the first inning. Ozzie Smith singled with one out and moved to second on Bruce Ruffin's wild pitch. Todd Zile then singled up the middle, scoring Smith.
