'Bucky' will find a crowded hall

By Gary Houy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

R. Buckminster Fuller will return to SIU to speak on "Technology and Overpopulation" at 7 p.m. Sunday in the Newman Center.

Tickets for the lecture, sponsored by the Catholic Knights and Ladies of Illinois, were distributed in about a week, said Steve Short, public relations coordinator for the Newman Center. "But we have a lot more standing room," he said.

Fuller, 78, was a member of the SIU design department on the Carbondale campus from 1959 to 1971, when he moved his office to the SIU Edwardsville campus. He is now a "fellow in residence" with four colleges and a university near Philadelphia, Pa.

Fuller designed the "Skybubble" U.S. exhibit at Expo '67 in Montreal, a giant geodesic dome. Small-scale domes of this type house part of the SIU Department of Design.

Three of Fuller's works were published by the SIU Press in 1963. These were "Education Automation: Freeing the Scholar to Return to His Studies," "No More Secondhand God," and "Nine Chains to the Moon." In 1968, the SIU Press also published Fuller's "Operating Manual for Spaceship Earth."

Known for his writings on design, mathematics, philosophy, the future and other subjects, Fuller created the "World Game" strategy of world problem-solving. The world game idea is for nations to experiment with strategies to determine methods of raising the standard of living with a minimum amount of resource waste.

In the fall of 1972, Fuller removed all of his personal papers from Morris Library and took them to Philadelphia. Harry Perk, design instructor, said this was a major loss to the University.

Time Magazine has featured Fuller in articles, and Public Broadcasting System and CBS have made documentary studies of him.

Fuller holds more than 25 honorary degrees, has U.S. patents on more than 20 inventions and holds patents on inventions in 50 other countries. Besides the geodesic dome, Fuller has invented a stockade building system, a dymaxion (three wheeled) car and a submarine island.

The SIU design department has courses and summer workshops dealing with Fuller's ideas and films dealing with his world game concept.

Fuller is currently working on a giant dome structure for East St. Louis. He is a planning consultant to the Indian government for an international jetport.

Festivities underway

Visitors pack Carbondale for 23rd Kappa Karnival

Visitors continued to pour into Carbondale Friday for the 23rd annual Kappa Karnival.

The Karnival, which began Thursday and will continue through Sunday, is sponsored by Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity.

A check of license plates Friday indicated visitors from as far as Mississippi, Georgia and Ohio, with the majority coming from within the state of Illinois.

The Amtrak train from Chicago was "hot and crowded," one weary visitor said Friday afternoon.

An Amtrak spokesman said another group was expected to arrive on Friday night's train.

Saturday's activities include a basketball tournament at the Arena with the visiting fraternity chapters competing; a parade through downtown Carbondale beginning at 5 p.m.; and the Karnival at the Arena where the Karnival queen will be announced.

Fourteen women are competing for this year's title of queen. The winner is selected on the basis of ad sales for the Karnival patrons' books and their rapport with the fraternity brothers.

Petitioners request vote on pool bonds

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Petitions containing about 300 signatures have been submitted to the Carbondale Park District asking for a special election on the planned sale of revenue bonds to build a swimming pool.

If the petitions are verified, the sale of $320,000 in revenue bonds by the park district will be voted on by registered voters in Carbondale.

Robert Coatney, park district director, said the petitions containing 324 signatures were handed to him Friday morning.

Coatney said the park district board will discuss the petitions and the possible special election at its meeting May 1.

The park district board approved the revenue bond sale April 4. The money from the bonds is to be matched with a $259,000 grant from Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for the construction of the 50-meter L-shaped swimming pool.

The tentative site for the pool is along Almond Street between Rigdon and Kennicott Streets. The site was picked by HUD from a list of three possible sites submitted by the park district.

According to state law, the park district could sell the bonds if no petitions asking for a special election were filed. A petition containing 100 signatures of park district residents is needed to call the special election.

Charles Hines, attorney for the park district board, said the first thing he will do is examine the petitions to determine if they are in accordance with state statutes.

Hines said that will include checking to see if those who signed the petitions are registered voters in Carbondale, as required by law.

If the petition is in accordance with state law, Hines said a referendum would be set for voting on whether the park district can sell the bonds or not. All registered voters in Carbondale would be eligible to vote in the referendum.

William Henrickson, a physician at SIU Health Service, engaged an attorney to draw up 25 petitions with space on each petition for 30 signatures.

Henrickson lives in the area where the pool is planned and said he is not against the construction of the pool but the location.

Henrickson said he received many phone calls from persons who either wanted to sign the petitions or to help circulate the petitions.

"This is a real ho issue," Henrickson said. He said he hoped to circulate the petitions around the town. Most of the people who signed them were either against the pool or the location, he said. Some said they thought the money should be used for something other than another swimming pool.

The petitions submitted to Coatney Friday were the ones drawn up by his attorney, he said. All of the 25 petitions have not been collected yet, he said.

The revenue bonds for the pool would be paid back by revenue from the pool and not from tax money.

The park district had originally planned to partly finance a $1 million ice skating rink-swimming pool complex with general obligation bonds. Those bonds are paid back partly from tax money.

The $750,000 general obligation bond sale was defeated by Carbondale voters in a Nov. 10 referendum.

Sweet strains

A pensive look marks Eric Johnson's face as he gives a solo performance at the Suzuki Music class show Friday in the First Presbyterian Church. The Suzuki method relies on the parents learning the instrument along with their children. Election turnout considered low

By Brenda Penland
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Election Commissioner Ralph Rosynek expressed disappointment with the process of replying to the complaints.

Election Commissioner Ralph Rosynek expressed disappointment with the light voter turnout in Wednesday and Thursday's elections. He said about 3,000 students voted.

"I'm a little discouraged that you can't get more than 25 per cent of the student body out for any election," he said.

He said he thought the election itself went very smoothly. "The poll workers did a fantastic job."

The winners of the presidential, vice presidential and student trustee races were announced Thursday night.

Dennis Sullivan and Robert Seely, Tea Party Now members, were elected president and vice president, respectively. Matthew Rich won the student trustee race.

Rosynek released the unofficial Student Senate results Friday but said write-in votes and the students' choices for University president still have to be tabulated.

The results for off-campus senatorial districts are: East-Side Non-Dorm, seven seats open; Norman Porter, 215, Nora Lee Cronin, 205, Brock Kasnick, 203, Van Larson, 198, Mary Hartzell, 193, Leonard Swanson, 176 and one write-in to be announced.

Small Group Housing, one seat open; Bennetta Pennisi, 93, Tom Feltes, 18, Mike Helderbrand, 17 and eight write-in votes.

West Side Non-Dorm, seven seats open; Chris Panfil, 240, Jim Wood, 193, Mike Smith, 190, Greer Knopf, 175, and three write-in candidates.

Commuter District, two seats open; two write-in candidates to be announced and School of Technical Careers, one seat open; one write-in candidate to be announced.

Results for the on-campus senatorial districts are: University Park, one seat open; David Stevens, 190.

Thompson Point, two seats open; Jim Wire, 188, Rose Czaicke, 135, Nancy Rossell, 83, Bill Roper, 66, and Eugene Desavouret, 45.

Brush Towers, two seats open; Mike Baker, 308, Ben Barron, 163 and Richard Starysk, 125.

Rosynek said anyone who wants to contest the election has until 6 p.m. Saturday. He said he has received about 10 complaints so far and is still in the process replying to the complaints.

The new officers, with the exception of senators filling seats vacated by resignations, will take office the first day of summer quarter.

Kindergartners to register soon

Pre-registration for kindergarten students for the 1974-75 school year will be held from 8:20 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. May 3 at Lakeland, Springmore, Thomas and Winkler Schools.

Entrance requirements for children attending kindergarten in elementary school district 95 next year are:

—Children must be 5 before Dec. 1, 1974.

—Documentary evidence of birth, such as birth or baptismal certificates, must be presented at pre-registration.

—Children must have legal residence within district 95. Tuition pupils, however, may be accepted.

—Each child must attend half-day sessions.

—Children are required by law to have medical and dental examinations before enrolling. Each child should also be immunized against measles, rubella, poliomyelitis, diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis.

Examination result forms must be returned to the school before children register for the 1974-75 school year. Examinations will be given at the Attucks Multi-purpose Center.

Park to offer folksy events

Mandolin players and auto-harpists, turtle races and peanut butter making, will be a view of the attractions bringing a "down home" flavor to "Southern Illinois Country Days," April 26 to 28.

Sponsored by the Illinois Department of Conservation, "Country Days" will be celebrated at Ferne Clyffe State Park, near Goreville.

Charles Tamminga, of the department's program services section, said the purpose of the celebration is to give visitors a glimpse of the cultural heritage of Southern Illinois and to focus attention on one of the state's most beautiful, scenic and least known state parks.

Some of the events planned for "Country Days" are frog jumping contests, Jews harp competition, and demonstrations by area artisans of pioneer arts such as making apple butter, bonehandle knives, apple dolls, and chair caning and wood carving.

There will be strolling folk singers, programs on herbal remedies, nature hikes, two "bluegrass" bands and two gospel singing groups, as well as a number of other attractions.

"Country Days" will kick off with square dancing at 7:30 p.m. April 26 and conclude at 6 p.m. on the 28th.

City plans 'White Way'

(Editor's note: These items were drawn from stories originally published in the Carbondale Free Press and the Southern Illinoisian.)

50 Years Ago

Carbondale city officials and businessmen worked together on a proposal that would provide modern lighting for the city's business district. Nicknamed the "White Way" plan, the proposal called for 47 new lamp-posts to be erected at a cost of $10,000.

The Carbondale City Council boosted peddler's fees in the city from $2 to $4 per day. The increase was made to help in cutting down the number of salesmen in the area who were annoying housewives "with goods of little value."

The fee increase did not apply to farmers who brought their crops into the city to sell.

20 Years Ago

Expansion of a runway at Murdalo Airport was delayed as airport commissioners negotiated with area property owners over the relocation of a dirt road.

Airport regulations stated that a DeSoto Township road was too close to the runway to ensure safety to landing aircraft.

Persons living on the road refused to accept the commissioner's plan to curve the road away from the runway, saying that moving the road would inconvenience them.

Chimney sweep business up

NEW HAVEN (AP)—Business is booming for chimney sweeps.

One Connecticut company said it has cleared flues that may not have been touched since the Civil War.

Business is up, cleaning companies said, because more people are counting on fireplaces to help them through the cold winter months when supplies of home-heating oil are cut back.

They also said that a soot-choked furnace and flue are less efficient and burn more oil.

Sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, the show featured products for the home and family. Thirty-one booths and three automobile displays comprised the show.

10 Years Ago

Powell spoke at the dinner, designed to raise funds for his campaign for the office of Illinois Secretary of State. Rep. Ken Gray (D-West Frankfort) and SIU General Counsel John Rendleman also spoke at the dinner.

One hundred and ten SIU students, after eating dinner at the Saluki Arms cafeteria, all became ill and reported to the Health Service.

The Illinois Health Department Laboratory tested the dessert served with the meal, but found no sign of contamination. Meat, potatoes and vegetables also served had been thrown out before laboratory tests could be made.

The weather:

Light rains expected

Saturday: Partly sunny and a 60 per cent for light showers during the morning. The high temperature will be in the upper 70s to lower 80s. The wind will be from the southwest at 8-18 mph. Barometric pressure will be dropping off as low pressure moves in from the southwest.

Saturday night: Partly cloudy and warm with low temperature in the upper 50s. Precipitation probabilities will be decreasing to 40 per cent tonight and tomorrow.

Sunday: Partly cloudy and somewhat cooler with the high around 65.

Friday's high on campus 76, 5 p.m., low 54, 2 a.m.

County jobless rate up

Jackson County's unemployment rate increased from 4.5 per cent of the work force in December 1973 to 5 per cent in February, according to figures released by the Bureau of Employment Security, Department of Labor this week.

The study attributed the increase to "further layoffs in construction and reductions in retail trade."

The February figure is about .2 per cent below February 1973's 5.2 per cent of the work force unemployed. Payrolls have remained at higher levels this year, the report said.

The number of jobs in Jackson County is expected to rise by almost one per cent from February to April because of projected seasonal factors.

The report said employers expect the number of jobs to climb 2.6 per cent from April to June, due to the opening of the new shopping mall and expected seasonal conditions.

The Jackson County February unemployment rate of 5 per cent of the work force was above the state figure of 4.1 per cent, but below the 5.7 per cent national percentage.

The expected job increase of 2.6 per cent from April to June represents about 650 jobs.

"Agriculture and construction expect further expansion seasonally. With the opening of a new shopping mall, retail trade and nonprofessional services anticipate additions," the report said.

Council to complete budget review

By Dan Haar

The Carbondale City Council will review the two last sections of the 1974-75 budget at a special meeting at 7 p.m. Monday in the University City cafeteria.

SIU enrollment down for spring

Enrollment dropped for spring quarter 1974, according to preliminary figures released Friday by the SIU Office of Admissions and Records.

Tenth-day figures for this quarter give total student enrollment at 17,086; down 4.7 per cent from 17,928 enrolled on the tenth day of spring quarter 1973.

The decline was "not at all unexpected," according to B. K. Browning, assistant dean of Admissions and Records and Registrar.

Browning said the final "official" enrollment numbers will be available "sometime next week." These figures will be divided by classes and will include late registrations, Browning added.

Browning predicted figures on the final enrollment count will still reflect "only about a four per cent decrease."

Women's athletics gain extra monies

By Brenda Penland
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The women's athletic department has been guaranteed a $50,000 base allotment for the fiscal year 1974-75, Charlotte West, director of women's intercollegiate athletics, said Friday.

The situation was so bad that the women's athletic department planned to file a complaint with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) Friday, Ms. West, said.

She said Acting SIU President Hiram Lesar persuaded her to delay filing the complaint by promising an increase in budgeting and an investigation into personnel problems.

"The president said he would guarantee that we have a $50,000 base allotment for next year," Ms. West said.

She said she told Lesar the women's athletic department will have to exceed their $37,000 budget to meet commitments already made for this year.

"So he (Lesar) said he would give us additional money for this year," she said.

Ms. West said she also expressed concern over and insufficient number of personnel which she said is the most serious problem.

The women's 12 varsity teams have the equivalent of two full-time coaches. The men have only 10 varsity teams yet have the equivalent of 14.8 full-time coaches.

Ms. West said Lesar will meet with Keith Leasure, academic vice president, and T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services, to discuss the personnel problem.

The Women's Athletic Department may still file the complaint with HEW, Ms. West said.

She said she will inform the women coaches of her conversation with Lesar and it will be up to them to decide what to do.

"Some will probably think it's another stalling technique and others will vote not to file the complaint," she said. "It depends on what the majority wants."

Police teams searching for 'Zebra' killer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Despite protests from some leaders of the black community, teams of policemen fanned out again across the city Friday in search of suspects in the "Zebra" killings of 12 white persons.

By Friday, more than 100 young blacks had been questioned and given one of the 1,600 2-by-4-inch white "Zebra" cards designed to prevent their being interrogated again, police said.

But despite the massive manhunt and the police tactics of stopping persons who fit a composite drawing of a suspect—a thin young black man with a moustache—no progress in the 5-month-old investigation was reported.

Police believe at least two men are involved in the apparently random killings that have terrorized the city since last November. Police code-named the case "Zebra" after the radio channel used in communications.

In addition to the 12 dead, six persons have been wounded, all of them white. In nearly every case the victim was minding his own business when a black assailant opened fire for no apparent reason.

Police said their manhunt had encountered little objection from young black men stopped and interrogated in the street. But there have been angry protests from community leaders.

"Most people are law abiding and ready to cooperate with the police—black, white or whatever," said Lt. William O'Connor. "These men seem to appreciate the police have a tough job in this case."

Police Capt. James Ludlow said the Zebra interrogation of a man stopped because he resembles the composite sketch profile: takes more than 15 minutes because a computer check is made on each man.

He said one man objected vigorously to a checkout on Thursday. Officers found out that he had given a false name and eventually the man was booked for more than $300 in outstanding traffic warrants.

The latest Zebra victim was Nelson Shields IV, 23, who was shot three times in the back Tuesday night as he helped a friend move a rug. He died instantly.

Meanwhile, police were told a man who claimed to be the Zebra attacker beat Frank Carlson, 25, to death and raped his wife, Annette, 24, in a midnight attack on their home Friday. Police said the man set fire to the two-story flat before fleeing.

Police said the raid on the Carlson home did not fit the Zebra pattern, but they said Mrs. Carlson would be questioned after she recovered from shock and surgery. The Carlsons are white.

Before undergoing surgery, Mrs. Carlson said the young black assailant wore a thin moustache. Police emphasized she made her statements in a condition of severe shock.

Industry wastes fuel

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (AP)—The amount of fuel used to produce compressed air that is wasted by industry would heat a community of some 200,000 persons for a year, according to a survey made here.

"About 10 per cent of the compressed air used by 1.2 million industrial and service establishments in the United States is being lost, according to our plant—surveys," says Donald Sickelsteel, vice president of Scovill's Fluid Power Division, a maker of air control equipment.

section and the utilities section of the budget.

An amount of $3,185,992 has been budgeted for special funds. These funds include the motor fuel tax, public benefit fund, general obligation bond fund, civil defense fund, special assessments, ambulance service fund and the Lenus Turley Park fund.

The public service enterprises include the parking fund, University City fund, refuse collection and disposal and the Eurma C. Hayes Center. About $250,000 has been proposed for these funds.

The entire 1974-75 budget will be reviewed by the council at a public hearing April 29. Copies of the budget are available for inspection by the public at the City Clerk's office in City Hall.

Council members will also consider a proposed agreement between the city and teamsters local 347. The agreement provides that employees will receive no pay raises and that four employees, scheduled to be laid off because of the tight budget, will be kept on.

The 35 Teamsters work on street building, sanitation and equipment maintenance.

City Manager Carroll Fry has recommended that the agreement be approved by the council. Fry commended the agreement, calling it an "innovative approach."

Other topics on the council agenda include —A request by the Makanda Township for renewal of a fire protection contract with the city.

—An ordinance adopting state rules and regulations for fire prevention.

—A request for council support of the Carbondale Teen Board.

Ex-Teamsters official pleads innocent to kickback charges

SPRINGFIELD, (AP)—A former Teamsters Union official pleaded innocent Friday to charges of embezzlement and participation in an alleged kickback scheme.

Harold L. Gangnath, 52, of Rockford was indicted March 29 by a federal grand jury.

Judge Harlington Wood Jr., of U.S. District Court set June 17 for trial on the embezzlement charge and set no date for a trial on the charges connected with the alleged kickback scheme.

Gangnath, former chairman of the Illinois Conference of Teamsters and Employers Welfare Fund, was charged with embezzling $1,500 from the fund.

A U.S. Justice Department spokesman, John Birkby, said he faces a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine if convicted of the charge.

Gangnath also is charged with receiving $1,875 in kickbacks from SIU trustee Richard Rowe, the former president of Central Mutual Fund, Inc. of Jacksonville, in return for investing $200,000 of Teamsters and Employers Welfare Fund money in the mutual fund.

Gangnath and Rowe, who has also pleaded innocent, face maximum prison sentences of 19 years and fines of up to $50,000 on those charges, the Justice Department spokesman said.

Gangnath presently is executive director of the Northern Illinois Building Contractors Association of Rockford. He could not be reached for comment.

To the Daily Egyptian:

Recently, the Staff Lounge Committee of Morris Library issued a memorandum stating that, in view of the increased vandalism of the vending machines in the staff lounge, members of the Staff Lounge Committee... recommend that the lounge be made "off-limits" for student breaks."

Despite the fact that there is not one shred of evidence linking student workers with this vandalism, the Committee has arbitrarily decided to penalize student workers by refusing them the privileges of using the lounge.

The sheer pettiness of this act would seem incredible, were it not for the fact that this is only the most recent in a series of trumped-up grievances against student workers.

For at least four years, student workers have been arbitrating for a lounge of their own. Each proposed location has been rejected by the administration.

As it is recommended that workers not go to the Union for their breaks, they are now in the position of having no place to go.

It is indicative of the attitudes of some of the library staff and administration that suitable facilities for students have not been found in four years.

A question of identity

To the Daily Egyptian:

In response to the letter written on April 17 by Stanford W. Jones, Black Affairs Programming Chairman:

Everybody is interested in getting out of SIU what they put into it financially. But most only expect an education and a learning experience. I don't expect anyone but myself to pay back the loan I've taken out for my education.

You say that the nation and SIU are sick "if money is the only means of obtaining respect." Doesn't the whole issue of the April 3d Student Senate meeting center on financial funds and how your budget has been cut? Does this lower the respect others have for you? I feel respectable despite the fact that I am not personally receiving an allotment from the Student Senate.

Do you actually plan to be an administrator of justice, when you so blatantly condemn the existence of another minority group such as Gay Liberation and its constituency? By labelling black homosexuals as "black sissies" you are completely adopting white middle class values of what is right and what is wrong—what is socially acceptable and what is not. Have you dropped your identity, Mr. Jones?

A letter from home

Main street

Charles Colson, a former aide to President Nixon and commonly known as "Mr. Tough Guy," once had little use for religion. But after four years in the White House, Colson called on Tom Phillips, a former client and friend, who is president of Raytheon Company.

To Colson's surprise, Tom Phillips was no longer the hard-driving, nervous executive barking instructions to subordinates. Asked about the dramatic change, Tom answered, "I have given my life to Jesus Christ."

To put it mildly, Colson was taken aback. Yet he couldn't deny the change in Phillips. He wanted to know more, so Phillips shared his faith in detail.

Later the two men spent an afternoon reading from C.S. Lewis' book, Mere Christianity. It was a chapter on the ego that really hit Colson. For the first time, he saw that his whole world centered around himself. Not long after, Colson made Christ the center of his life and "received an enormous sense of relief."

When the story of his conversion broke in the Washington Post last November, Colson was not too happy. In fact, according to Moody Monthly, he was "a bit offended and responded rather angrily." You see, Charles Colson is under indictment for complicity in Watergate. He didn't want anyone to think he was playing Christian to get sympathy.

Regardless of the outcome of his indictment, Charles Colson has admitted a big mistake in his life. And that mistake was thinking he could do anything he set out to do—all in his own strength.

Or to put it another way, he stopped playing God. Which is a good idea for anyone, whether he lives in Washington or on Main Street, U.S.A.

Keep Hambletonian in DuQuoin

DuQuoin, Illinois, home of the Hambletonian for the past 17 years, may again be in the running to keep the prestigious so-called Kentucky Derby of trotting in Southern Illinois.

Up until last Tuesday, it appeared that DuQuoin had lost the race contract after this year to Liberty Bell Park in Philadelphia. But as the date neared for closing the deal last Saturday, the Philadelphians decided to abandon the agreement.

The Hambletonian Society, sponsors of the event, had rewarded the Philadelphia track the race last October for a three-year term beginning in 1975.

When the time came to sign the contract, Edward J. Dougherty, president of Liberty Bell, was prepared to sign, but John J. Rooney, head of William Penn, refused. "There were more requirements than in the contract we bid for," Rooney said.

William Hayes, owner of the old contract and a society member, said, "I hate to stir up any hopes that the race will remain in DuQuoin. But I suppose anything can happen."

Society members will consider the situation April 28 in New York. Along with DuQuoin, both Saratoga Springs and Syracuse, N.Y., are anxious to get the bid.

However, of the three, DuQuoin seems to be the most deserving to keep the race. Situated in the rural atmosphere of Southern Illinois, the DuQuoin race track projects the image of the history of harness racing in America.

Also, in DuQuoin, the race has remained exactly that, without the influence of off-track betting and gambling.

Still another reason is the genuine interest the people of Southern Illinois have had in the race in the past. This is not just an interest from DuQuoin but from the entire state. Last year the state made a promise to see a record purse put up by Illinois trotting interest if the Hambletonian remained in DuQuoin.

In the 17 years that DuQuoin has served as the host of the Hambletonian, records have been set, and the crowds have always been enthusiastic. In a sense, it has become the major attraction of Southern Illinois.

"For Sports Sake. Keep the Hambletonian in DuQuoin."

To change schools, teach parents

The temptation over the past decade has been to give up on the idea of directly changing the existing schools, because school systems have become so very large and complex and are weighted down by complicated procedures. Instead, many administrators, teachers and parents have hoped that by starting from scratch on a small scale, they could design "alternative" or "experimental" schools to emphasize individualized methods.

The result—motivated and enthusiastic students and hence better learning—as the reasoning goes, would pressure the traditional public schools to change by the force of such accomplishment. Three educators of such persuasion—Richard Johnson, Donald Moore and Thomas Wilson, who had had experience in teaching and educational research and evaluation—worked on the arduous task of helping to develop Chicago's Metropolitan High School, a public alternative school not far from the city's busy downtown area. Metro allows its students great individual choice and encourages other-than-classroom learning by initiating courses at everything from art museums to businesses.

In an effort to capitalize on Metro's experience in alternative education, Johnson, Moore and Wilson formed the Center for New Schools in Chicago to provide information and to help public systems throughout the Midwest that wanted to start alternative schools. The Carnegie Corporation backed the Center with a grant as part of its developing program in elementary and secondary education, which is focusing on the process by which schools are able to incorporate changes. Without some research and technical assistance to guide new programs and a place for people to learn about what has worked—and what had failed—in alternative schooling, such endeavors risk being little more than a fad. The Center does not assist just teachers or administrators, but insists that effective education requires the commitment of many groups—administrators, school boards and parents as well as teachers.

Over the last two years, the Center has had its successes in effecting change in public schools; but is interesting—and not altogether typical—is how knowledge gained from their successes have in turn, reoriented the work of the organization. Explains Center associate Moore: "We've found that an alternative school may do great things for 350 students, but in itself is incapable of changing the system." The lesson, says Moore: "The people who can best exert a meaningful force to change the schools are the parents who are 'there' and who are concerned not with the system's philosophy but with their children." As one mother puts it, "I know that 'change' has to relate to my kid and I want to be effective in my school."

In a black neighborhood, Ida Fletcher deserves credit for schools within its district where children scored very high on national tests. She felt: "Parent participation is not taken seriously. School people feel community people are ignorant, and parents don't know what to look for when they go into a school so they can't really count." District superintendent Joseph Rosen agreed that without some training, "neighborhood groups often become 'complaining councils,' and teachers naturally turn off and withdraw from them." But he also felt that parents shouldn't be stifled by the schools. "They should learn how to work together."

In response, the Center helped run 26 weekly three-hour sessions for 29 parents, community people, teachers, principals and the district superintendent on how to prepare questionnaires and interviews to study the problems of parents and teachers, and somehow endured highly charged discussions, where Mrs. Fletcher says: "We sat there with tears rolling down our faces."

What helped the group most perhaps in creating a sense of the human problems of parents and school people trying to change their schools together was video-taping parents acting the role of principals talking down to hesitant, submissive parents played by teachers, and other typical scenes that often turn opportunities to communicate into hostile confrontations. The end result: Teachers who said they got more out of such training than from their college education and a district superintendent who insists that, "These sessions really enhanced our ability to work together and made us more sensitive to what people want and how to go about doing it."

In still another community, parents and teachers have had the Center create training workshops for them. Other parents have established a school action center which helps parents deal with concrete problems, such as an abusive teacher or incorrect placement in classes for slow learners. Most important, parents have found a way to be heard by their school. Says a mother, reflecting the Center's philosophy, "We don't want to be a threat to the schools, we must be a helping hand. After all, we're talking about our children and we don't want them to make us sit on the sidelines."

Stockholders report II

To the Daily Egyptian:

I found the "Stockholders report" in Saturday's Daily Egyptian by the Dean of Admissions and Records sufficiently interesting to arouse me as a faculty member from slaving dead and to lead me to contribute another item for the report. Of all the persons to know that something is wrong with the university, who should know better than the man whose office has reported the continual decline in enrollment of thousands of students. Why have thousands of students left Southern, and other thousands decided not to come here? Don't the stockholders also deserve that information?

As one of the stockholders, and also as an employee, who cherishes the dream that the greatness of Southern may some day recover from the near-mortal if not mortal blow dealt it by apparent administrative lack of sensitivity to "what's wrong with Southern", let me add a few more comments. A body dying from cancer is not cured by dismissing the cancer symptoms. Southern has shown all seven danger signs—decline in number of students, in number of faculty, in diversity of offerings, in growth of budget, in quality of leadership, in prestige, and in the recognition accorded it by the Higher Board. Don't tell me a bad press invented all these.

The Number One jewel in Illinois doesn't seem to have suffered from declining birth rates and development of the junior college system. Sure, they do affect enrollments. The stories I hear are that the basic causes of our present difficulties are primarily too many hassles for students. Add to this a blockage to faculty creativity and productivity by a lack of direction or action from the administration. The nuts and bolts of University functioning (such as textbook supply) could stand some attention. We are losing various units and operations which are being phased out with a cloak-and-dagger professionalism that would make Hollywood blush. Who knows, the faculty and students might even have some good ideas on how to dismantle a university if indeed it has to be done.

I support those few courageous faculty members who are trying to help illuminate the difficulties that have eaten away at the heart of the university and may yet cause greater and continuing distress. The "Stockholders report" may have been the beginning of a valuable dialogue. I offer a toast to the future—"Where there is no vision the people perish".

Petitioning set for campaign reform

The League of Women Voters in Carbondale will sponsor a petition drive calling for reform in campaign financing.

A booth will be set up at J.C. Penney's afternoons Sunday through Friday. The league is seeking 1,600 signatures in the Carbondale area. Citizens 18 years old or over are eligible to sign the petition.

The petition calls for a limit on private donations to campaigns, access to public funds for campaign financing, full disclosure of intake and expenditures and independent enforcement, free of incumbent pressures and party bias.

Volunteers set luncheon

Jane Weinberger, former U.S. Army Nurse Corps member and now active with volunteer activities, will speak at the annual Volunteer Services, Inc., luncheon Wednesday in Student Center Ballroom B.

Ms. Weinberger works in Washington, D.C. with Project Hope, senior citizens, a child health center, a hospital auxiliary, library board, Heart Association and a mental health association.

She is the wife of Caspar Weinberger, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

The third annual luncheon will last from noon to 3 p.m. Registration for the $3 luncheon may be made by writing Volunteer Services, Inc., 2209 W. Main St., Marion, 62959 or by calling 997-3714.

The luncheon is to honor outstanding volunteers who have served the area in the past year and to interest new volunteers. Paula Sloan, district director of the Carbondale Volunteer Services office said.

Secretaries plan banquet

The Carbondale Chapter of the National Secretaries Association (NSA) will sponsor a Boss's Night Banquet and a luncheon and style show in observance of the 23rd annual Secretaries Week, April 21 to 27 according to June Klein, chapter president.

The theme of the observance is "Better Secretaries Mean Better Business."

The Boss's Night Banquet is slated for Tuesday at the Holiday Inn. The luncheon and style show will be held at 1 p.m. April 27 in the Student Center, Ballroom B.

"All secretaries are invited to join in focusing on the vital contribution secretaries make to the successful operation of business, industry, education, government and the professions," Ms. Klein said.

Ball to aid society

The Egyptian Charitable Society will sponsor a Springtime Charity Ball at 8 p.m., April 27 in the Skyroom at the Southern Illinois Airport.

Tickets are $15 per person. There will be dancing to the Sweet Jasmine band and an open bar.

Proceeds from the affair will be given to the Jackson County Chapter of the American Cancer Society.

Reservations can be made by contacting Mrs. James R. Brigham, R.R. 4, Carbondale, 457-7215.

Saturday mass cancelled

The 5 p.m. mass Saturday at the Newman Center has been cancelled because the Knights of Columbus-

Shriners chicken and dumpling dinner is being held in the building at that time.

The mass is scheduled as usual for the rest of spring quarter, according to Steven Short, public relations coordinator for the Center.

Rev. Masten, troubador-minister from Big Sur, will present a program at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Unitarian Fellowship, 301 W. Elm St., Carbondale.

Masten reads and sings his own poems on life, human relations and love.

Summer workshops

A summer workshop on "Exploring Careers in Child Care" will be offered by the Home Economics Education Department at SIU July 29 to Aug. 9.

SIU is one of a group of colleges and universities selected to introduce new teaching materials on this subject to teachers and teacher-candidates, according to Dorothy Keenan, professor of home economics education, who will conduct the workshop.

Miss Keenan will attend a briefing workshop in Cincinnati July 20 to 21 on use of the new materials, developed by McKnight Publishing Co. and "field-tested" in a number of schools in Illinois and elsewhere. "As a leader in teacher education, SIU is a 'natural' to give first consideration to participation in this curriculum development work," an official of the publishing house wrote in requesting the SIU department to offer the summer workshop.

The workshop will be conducted as a section of Home Economics 407 and will provide two quarter hours of advanced or graduate credit.

Bible studies set

A family hour of singing and Bible study is conducted by the Evangelical Presbyterian Church, 933 W. Walnut, at 6 p.m. each Sunday, according to the Rev. Wyatt George, pastor.

The congregation and guests participate in a program of singing which includes special singing by the Expandables, a children's group.

About 20 minutes of the hour is devoted to an adult and teenager examination of Scripture while the children have their own activities.

The public is welcome, the Rev. George said.

Equipment displayed

In an effort to better inform the Carbondale community of new dimensions in local television programming, Carbondale Cablevision, Murdale Shopping Center, will hold a public open house from 2 to 8 p.m. Monday, according to Doug Goodman, general manager.

The open house will give community people an opportunity to see recently purchased color television equipment in operation, Goodman said.

The equipment was put into operation this month to improve the quality of programming on Channel 7, a locally originating cable station telecast through Carbondale Cablevision, Goodman said.

"THE JAIL"

"Candidly exploring most aspects of jail life, THE JAIL is fair and at the same time provocative."—New York Times

The Jail was filmed during the spring and summer of 1972 in the San Francisco County Jail. Because the filmmakers had the full cooperation of the newly-elected sheriff, no restrictions were placed on them. They were allowed to film when and where they wanted.

THE JAIL succeeds in conveying a vivid sense of the day-to-day prison experience. Frank discussions with staff and inmates define the problems common to most prisons, and the film is particularly effective in examining the sexual pressures and conflicts that charge the atmosphere of the jail. The depiction of the "queen deck," where homosexuals are segregated, is straightforward without ever being sensational.

Concert Choir to perform

The concert choir of MacMurray College, a private four-year liberal arts college in Jacksonville, will perform at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the United Methodist Church, 1500 Pine, Murphysboro.

Featured in the program will be "Halleluia Sing," by Wilkinson; "Requiem for the Masses," by Kirkman; "How Excellent is Thy Name," by Eugene Butler; "Ah, Lovely Springtime," by Jans Leo Hassler and excerpts from "Company" by Stephen Sondheim.

The 40-member choir will perform under the direction of Charles M. Fisher, chairman of the music department and professor of voice at MacMurray College since 1965.

The Murphysboro appearance is part of the MacMurray Choir's seven-day spring tour that includes appearances in Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Louisiana, Arkansas and Illinois.

Arrangements for the program were made by the Rev. Donald L. Batz, minister at the United Methodist Church.

The MacMurray Choir has performed before audiences in more than 20 states in the past five years, including some performances on area and regional television programs.

Fisher has been president of a number of music associations and has published more than 20 articles in national professional periodicals. He has served on the board of governors of the National Association of Schools of Music. Ferrante and Teicher play Shryock Monday

By Dave Stearns
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Approximately 150 seats are left for the Ferrante and Teicher concert, set for 8 p.m. Monday in Shryock Auditorium.

The top price tickets are sold out, according to the Student Center Central Ticket Office, where tickets may be purchased at student prices of $3 and $4 and public prices of $4 and $5.

Ferrante and Teicher began playing together at the age of six, as students of the Julliard School of Music in New York City.

From there, they made their first hit in a recording of the theme music from the film "The Apartment," backed by a full orchestra. Since then, they have chalked up ten gold record awards and have had three million-selling singles, a majority of them being movie themes.

Among their best known arrangements include themes from "The Knack," "Man and A Woman" and of course, "Exodus." Their constant popularity over the years has brought them several television appearances, including Ed Sullivan, Dean Martin, Johnny Carson and The Bell Telephone Hour.

Good garden needs love and affection

By David Ambrose
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"Anyone can have a good garden with a little care, a minimum cost and a great deal of love and affection," said William M. Marberry, retired SIU professor of botany.

"It doesn't take money, a greenhouse, a Ph.D. or four or five gardeners," a said.

Marberry noted that the least expensive way to start plants is with seeds.

"Most people start them to soon and they get tall and spindly before its time to replant them," he said. "The first of April or even now is a good time to start seeds."

Marberry said Sarah Lee cake pans with holes punched in the bottom make good containers for starting the seeds.

Use a prepared soil mix such as Jiffy Mix Pro-Mix or an ordinary blotter to start the seeds, Marberry said.

The retired botanist said prospective growers should place two or three layers of newspaper in the bottom of the pan, then the blotter and the seeds. The pan should be covered with a piece of plastic or glass to keep the inside warm and humid. After the seeds sprout the blotter is removed and the pan should be turned often during the growing period until the plants are old enough to be replanted.

"Another way is by cutting," Marberry said. "By buying vigorous plants and cutting starts from them to be rooted in a jar of water."

The jars in which stems are started should be brown or green because roots normally grown in darkness.

"If you don't have a dark jar," Marberry said, "you can wrap a clear jar in Reynolds-Wrap."

In selecting the plants to cut from, Marberry said the buyer should examine the color of the leaves.

"Dark rich green leaves indicate good health and vigor," Marberry said. "Pale or yellow leaves mean the plants haven't had enough light or have been held over in the store too long."

"You can't always knock the plant out to examine the root system," he said, "but the plants should have a nice, vigorous root system. The roots should fill the pot but not overflow it."

"Don't go on size," Marberry continued. "A short stubby plant is better than a tall spindly one."

A short plant with low branches will form a well-rounded plant when replanted, he said. Marberry said buying seedlings in 12-packs is a good way of buying plants.

"They're generally cheaper than singly planted plants," he said.

The same criteria for judging singly potted plants hold true for the 12-packs, Marberry explained, but the buyer should "see that all the plants are of equal vigor."

"If some of the plants are smaller and weaker than others," Marberry said, "don't be afraid to ask for a discount."

In replanting the plants from pots to yard, Marberry said the smaller the replanted plants are the better. Again, persons have a tendency to replant to soon, he said.

"A small vigorous plant, planted after May will often overtake a large stunted plant," Marberry said.

Lastly, the gardener should choose the right kind of plant for the area. Some plants are suited for wet areas, dry areas or sunny areas and the plant must be suited to the area for success, Marberry said.

Ag advisor tips gardeners

By David Ambrose
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Organic gardeners who buy praying mantises and lady bugs to control harmful insects in their gardens may be "spending their money for little or no return," said Bob Franks, University of Illinois Extension adviser in agriculture.

Franks said the control factor in introducing insects to a garden comes when the released adults reproduce and the nymphs (young insects) begin to feed on the harmful insects. He used lady bugs which feed on aphids as an example.

"If they're already aphids in the garden then the released adults may stay," he said. They will reproduce because the young will have something to feed on, but in the time it takes for the ladybug to reproduce the aphid population will expand.

"Then the lady bugs expands its population," he said, "but by that time the harmful insect has already done its damage."

The biological control by ladybugs is virtually valueless unless there already is an aphid population in the garden when they are released.

Without the aphid population, Franks said, the released ladybugs fly away to find an environment in which they can survive.

Franks said studies done by University of Illinois entomologists show the insect prefers a heavily foliated, moist environment—just the opposite of most gardens.

"It's the same old story," Franks said, "either the mantises perish or move out."

Franks noted that even when biological control is effective, it only controls thirty to forty per cent of the harmful insects. This is not enough to avoid economic damage to the crop, Franks said.

SIU zoology professor, John McPherson said the biological control concept was "not the most successful in the world."

"It works in large areas, such as citrus plantations," he said. "but in a garden situation, the experience has been that when you release them they fly away."

He said that while introduction of beneficial insects in a garden might not help, it wouldn't hurt anything either.

"If you have one praying mantis in an area where before you had none, it's going to help," he said. "But just because you release 200 praying mantises in your garden doesn't mean you're going to have 200 there next week."

A more reasonable practice for organic gardeners, Franks said, would be to grow vegetables that aren't prone to insect damage such as tomatoes.

Tomatoes only are subject to damage by the tomato horn worm which can be picked off by hand to avoid using insecticides, Franks said.

He noted that vegetables such as cabbage and cauliflower hardly could be raised "without some sort of control."

Franks pointed out that bacterial compounds had been developed which were organic in nature to control parasites on such plants.

A recent Chicago Tribune article reported that Sears Roebuck and Co. and Montgomery Ward still sell insects for biological control.

"There's still a feeling the insects somehow help," Franks said. "Introducing more insects won't do you any more good than the ones that are already there."

"I'm afraid a lot of people have been conned," he said.

Interpretive programs set for Giant City Park

Interpretive programs at Giant City State Park will begin this weekend.

Bird banding demonstrations will be given at 10 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Saturday, an interpreted hike on the Post Oak Trail will begin at 11 a.m. Persons interested in these programs should meet at the park's visitor center.

An interpreted hike on the Giant City Trail will begin at 2 p.m. Saturday, starting from the trail's entrance. The final Saturday program will be on snakes, followed by a slide show on spring wildflowers in the park. Both of these activities will take place at the Family Campground Interpretive Theater.

A demonstration of candlemaking over an open fire will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, at the visitor center.

A second activity planned for 2 p.m. Sunday is a wildflower hike on the Trillium Trail, meeting first at the visitor center.

There will be no interpretive programs at the park next weekend, due to the celebration of "Southern Illinois Country Days," at Ferne Clyffe State Park.

Tim Merriman, nature interpreter at Giant City, said the interpretive programs have been offered for the past seven years, and this year's activities will run every weekend until the end of October.

By the light of the moon

Plant by 'signs', says gardener

By David Ambrose
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

By planting by the "signs," a gardener stands a better chance of producing a successful garden, said 60-year-old Chester McMeen of Carbondale who has planted his garden by the signs for about 25 years.

The practice of planting by the moon signs is "more or less a mystery," McMeen said. "Some people don't believe in it and criticize people who do believe in it."

Back in 1950 McMeen was attempting to raise cucumbers on a plot of ground in Chester. His vines died.

He then visited Jake Herschback, an old German gardener at Chester, and complimented him on the pumpkins Herschback was growing. "Those are cucumbers," he said. "You plant when the sign is in the heart and the bugs won't bother them," McMeen recalled.

The following year McMeen planted with the sign in the heart—Cancer.

"I had about six or eight hills and those cucumbers took the garden," McMeen said. "I had all the cucumbers I could use or give away and we finally had to pull the vines up and throw them away."

Since then McMeen has tried to plant his garden under the proper signs.

"I don't live by it," he said, "but I've found that when I go by it, everything goes in my favor."

McMeen determines the signs by referring to an almanac which assigns a particular constellation as the sign of the date. The signs then refer to different regions of the body.

"Generally, the signs in the upper part of the body are best for planting crops that mature above the ground," McMeen said. "Signs in the lower part of the body are better for root crops."

Planting by the moon runs along a similar pattern, McMeen said. Root crops are planted during the dark of the moon and above the ground crops are planted in the light of the moon.

There also are signs for cutting weeds "if you want to kill them," castrating livestock and dehorning livestock, McMeen said. There's even a sign to plant under for keeping weeds out of the garden.

"You can't go by the book 100 per cent because you may not have your ground in condition," McMeen said. "But if you can have your soil prepared and then catch the right sign then you have a better chance of having a good garden."

He suggested anyone interested in the practice should get a good almanac and "try it."

"I tried it and was pleasantly surprised," he said.

He said a good book would be the "Moon Sign Book" available from the Farmer Seed & Nursery Co., Fairbault, Minn.

"Don't get an almanac with the Zodiac signs because it won't be true," McMeen said. "One with the signs of the constellations is the best one to follow."

"I sincerely believe that a lot of successful truck gardeners around here go by the signs and are afraid to admit it—afraid people will think they're superstitious," he said.

Don Satchell, SIU Plant Industries, said there "probably is something to" the practice of planting by the signs, but they are rules of thumb usually worked out in a "fairly local society."

"It works fine in a local community where you can work out those little rules," Satchell said, "but you can't take rules and move them and expect them to work. Even if you change the plant variety, you change part of the system."

But McMeen said the signs "are good anywhere."

A story in Friday's Daily Egyptian incorrectly reported that the walkathon to raise money for the Archway school building was scheduled for Monday. The correct date is April 27.

Archway is a school for handicapped children. The walkathon is among the first in a series of events scheduled to raise money for the school building.

Persons who wish to sponsor a walker should call 549-4442.

Demand for tools is high, dealers say supplies are low

Leah Yates
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
Demand is up but supply is down. That's the way it is with lawn and garden supply dealers this spring in the Carbondale area.

"We've had lots of people asking for tillers, but we just don't get them in supply. The manufacturer can't get the steel to make them fast enough to keep up with demand," said Terry Hiller, co-owner of Ace Hardware in Carbondale.

Hiller said the demand for other lawn and garden equipment has been consistent with the last few gardening seasons.

Beckman's Implements in Murphysboro have sold more of the small gardening tractors to meet the demand of more people gardening this year, said Betty Beckman.

She added that when people come in to buy the tractors they usually buy the attachments usually the tiller or plow.

She cited the high cost of food as the reason for the increase in gardening. "Even people who have a little patch of grass in the backyard are now turning it into gardens," she said.

Compost spreaders are on the most popular items for the Beck-mans. "Gardeners are using the leaves from their yards to help fertilize the garden," she said.

A grass trimmer that cuts with a fishing line instead of a metal blade is the new item on the market this year at Hillside Nursery and Garden Center in Carbondale.

Their demand for tillers also is not being met by the manufacturers, David Bork said.

Bork said the small tractors are in short supply. He said engines and transmissions are unavailable to the manufacturers.

Gary Beck of the Penney's Outdoor Shop said they are having the same difficulty of supplying tillers to fill the requests.

He said the 19-inch push lawn-mowers are the big sellers for the shop. "People are buying these and staying away from the riding mowers because of the cost," he said.

Despite limits, gardens possible for students

Most students have limited garden space, little time, little money, but a big desire to produce nutritional food.

This is possible if students plant the right kinds of vegetables according to a Department of Agriculture newsletter.

The best types of vegetables to plant are carrots, onions, beets, broccoli, cabbage, winter squash, spinach, snap beans, cauliflower and tomatoes. Radishes, lettuce and garden peas provide less nutrition for the space they use.

The newsletter points out that the home garden might not pay off as far as money is concerned.

The cost of seed, fertilizer and freezing or canning utensils might not balance out money-wise. But the newsletter points out the non-money benefits of higher quality vegetables, better diet and the satisfaction of growing your own vegetables.

The newsletter also warns against removing leaves or grass clippings from the garden. The leaves or grass should be used to mulch between the rows to reduce weeding and conserve moisture.

Another effective mulch is old newspapers, laid between vegetable rows and covered with grass clippings or leaves.

The newsletter also said it is important to harvest vegetables when they are in prime condition. For example, beans should be harvested when they snap and are not stringy, and peas when they are sweet and the pod shows signs of drying.

The newsletter advises home gardeners to contact a county extension agent to help with garden problems. The Jackson County extension agent may be contacted at 687-1727.

Rep. Hart introduces amendment

State Representative Richard O. Hart (D-59 District) has announced that he introduced a bill into the General Assembly that would amend the Animal Control Act passed in the last session.

Hart's proposed amendment would do away with the $4 registration fee for all dogs and the $15 fee for kennels where dogs are confined that the present act provides for. The new bill retains provisions for rabies and stray animal control.

County boards are the enforcing agency in the present act and may, with the approval of the Illinois Department of Agriculture, revise the act. They have until July 1 to put the act into effect.

"Many Southern Illinois counties are presently attempting to lower the registration fee, but must first get the approval of the Department of Agriculture," Hart said.

Hart said other Southern Illinois representatives have joined him as co-sponsors of the bill.

The Southern Illinois Wildlife Association met and appointed a committee to try to get the present Animal Control act amended after a Benton Evening News article publicized the bill's details. The committee contacted Hart for his assistance.

Public meetings were held at Benton, which Hart attended, and the amendment was drafted from these meetings with the hope it could be passed before the July 1 deadline.

Petitions have been circulated throughout Illinois urging the General Assembly to amend the Animal Control Act. More than 2,000 signatures have been received by Hart so far.

Charles Tate, R.R. 2, Benton, has additional copies of the petition available for anyone who desires to circulate or sign it.

Vergette exhibit starts Sunday

A memorial exhibition of the works of the late Nicholas Vergette, British sculptor and former SIU art professor, will be shown at the Mitchell Art Museum in Mt. Vernon from Sunday to May 12.

The exhibition will include examples of Vergette's work in ceramics, sculpture, painting, bronzes, mosaics, prints, photography and plaster molds.

While at SIU, Vergette presented to the university in 1965 a prize winning sculpture, "Burning Bush" and in 1972 was commissioned by the University to do a stoneware glazed fire clay sculpture, "Here," which is located on the hill south of Wham Building.

Museum hours for the memorial exhibit will be Monday to Friday from 10 a.m. to noon and 2 to 4:30 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. Admission is free.

Advice offered for garden ills

Buying resistant varieties of plants and seeds for the garden is the best way to control garden diseases, Gerald Courts, chairman of the Plant and Soil Science Department at SIU said.

Most common garden vegetable varieties have been bred against the most prevalent diseases. Gardeners should ask about specific characteristics before buying, he said.

Ordering from seed catalogs is a good way to buy because characteristics of seeds are described.

Diseases like rust and wilt are difficult to control. Buying resistant varieties is the best bet, Courts said.

Wilt attacks the vascular system causing the plant to dry up. It is common to many vegetables including tomatoes, snap beans, cucumbers and squash.

SIU women golfers to host invitational tournament today

The SIU women's golf team will be host for the 18 hole SIU Invitational Golf Tournament Saturday at Crab Orchard Golf Course. Tee-off time is set for 8 a.m.

Western Illinois, Eastern Illinois and Illinois State University will challenge SIU for first place. The Illinois State Redbirds are expected to provide SIU with the toughest competition. Illinois State has good depth with their top five or six golfers shooting in the middle 80's.

SIU's team will consist of Sandy Blaha, Sarah McCree, Marty Search, Jean Obourn and Mona Holm. Of the five, all were with the team last year except Ms. Holm.

Ms. Blaha has been with the team four years and is SIU's top woman golfer. In 1972, Ms. Blaha captured first place in the Indiana University Invitational and the SIU Invitational, in which she shot a three over par 75 to win.

Last spring, Ms. Blaha had a dual meet with the University of Georgia with a two over par 74 and finished first against Illinois State University with an eight over par 83.

Ms. McCree is the No. 2 golfer and shoots in the low to middle 80's. Her major weakness is a lack of tournament experience.

Salukis' Hoscheidt sweep doubleheader

By Mark Tupper
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

"Things fell into place for me down South," sophomore Saluki centerfielder John Hoscheidt recalled between games Friday.

And they fell into place for him in game one against Indiana State, as Hoscheidt went five for five, scored five runs and picked up three RBI's leading SIU to a 20-1 shelling of the Sycamores. SIU won the second game, 4-1.

Hoscheidt set the pace for the Salukis' 22-hit assault, tying the school record for most hits in a game and most runs scored in a game. The record for most runs is shared by Saluki Coach Itchy Jones, who set the mark when he was a player at SIU.

The Salukis scored two runs in the first, six in the second, four in the fourth, two in the fifth and six in the sixth inning.

SIU raised the .339 team batting average as they clubbed two Indiana State pitchers for nine extra base hits including five doubles and four triples.

The Sycamores only run came off starter Jim Bokelmann in the fourth inning on a walk, a double and a sacrifice fly.

Bokelmann picked up his fifth win of the year for the Salukis although he received relief help in the seventh inning from Bob Leja.

Hoscheidt's hits came on four singles and a fifth inning triple. "I've gotten used to the SIU baseball system this year," Hoscheidt said, "and Itchy has really stayed with me. I worked on getting my hands ready to hit and now I feel like I'm ready every pitch."

SIU's 4-1 win in the second game increased the Saluki win streak to 16 games, only three short of the school record. Ron Hodges (4-1) went the distance for SIU.

The Salukis, 23-5, did all of their scoring in game two in the second inning. Catcher Frank Hunsaker got things going with a double down the left field line.

Wayne Rueger ran for Hunsaker at first and moved to second when Howie Mitchell walked. After Bert Newman's fly out to the centerfielder, Mike Wilbins lined a single to left, scoring Rueger.

Hoscheidt picked up right where he left off in the first game, ripping a single to left that drove Mitchell home. Steve Shartzer walked to load the bases and Wilbins and Hoscheidt both scored on Jim Locascio's single to left. SIU did not get a hit after the third inning.

The Sycamores lone run came in the third on back-to-back singles and Mike McGee's long double. A second runner tried to score on the play but Mitchell's relay throw from short right field to Hunsaker was perfect and beat Dave Wheeler's slide to the plate.

The Salukis and Sycamores will meet in another doubleheader at noon Saturday at Abe Martin Field. SIU will host Southeast Missouri State in a 1 p.m. single game, Sunday.

SIU trackmen take 880; qualify for 440, mile finals in Kansas Relays

By Bruce Shapin
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

LAWRENCE KAN.—SIU Track Coach Lew Hartzog said earlier this week, "We have a good chance to win all three relays, the 440, 880 and mile." After the first day of the Kansas Relays, Hartzog's prediction is coming to life as the Salukis qualified for Saturday's finals in the 440 and mile relays, while winning the 880 relay Friday.

Gerald Smith, Terry Erickson, Lonnie Brown and Mike Monroe ran a 1:24.1 to finish one second ahead of Texas-Austin taking the 880 relay. Brown and Monroe had some trouble with the baton exchange, but Monroe was able to hang on and edge out Texas-Austin's Don Sturgal.

"We couldn't have run two worse races and still won, but we were lucky," said Hartzog of the 880 team. A dropped baton by Erickson on the second leg of the preliminary 880 caused a scare, but the Salukis made up the ground to take third in their heat due to some outstanding legs by Erickson, Brown and Monroe.

Eddie Sutton, Erickson, Smith and Monroe ran a 40.5 to qualify for Saturday's finals in the 440. The Salukis were ahead from the beginning as Monroe finished 3.3 second ahead of Purdue's Larry Burton. Texas-Austin and Kansas qualified at 40.4 in the 440.

Kansas sun, Monroe sat out the mile relay preliminaries and was replaced by Ed Wardzala. The mile relay team qualified for Saturday's finals with a 3:11.5, as Wayne Carmondy, Wardzala, Brown and Erickson won their heat. Oklahoma and Texas-Austin qualified for Saturday's mile relay with a 3:10.5 and a 3:11.2 respectively.

Southern's Phil Robbins triple jumped 53-1 3/4 for third place, as Illinois' Charlton Echieucel jumped 54-6 to take the first place honors. Reuben Fairfax from Memphis State jumped 53-6 1/4 for second place. Fairfax jumped 51-7 earlier in the day to set a Kansas Relay triple jump record. The final jumps were not counted towards the record books due to a 10 mile per hour wind aiding the jumpers.

Illinois' Mike Durkin won the mile with a 4:01, his best outdoor time ever.

Durkin commented on his performance by saying, "I wasn't as ready mentally as I normally would be, but I felt I ran a good race. I'm not totally surprised that I ran my fastest time today. The track conditions were good." SIU's Dave Hill finished in 4:10.

The highlight of the day came in the 100 yard open dash, as former Saluki Ivory Crockett, now running for the Philadelphia Track Club, ran a 9.3 for first place. "My time was pretty good. I've ran three consecutive 9.3's. I haven't been conditioning as much as I did in college, but I feel like I'm in pretty good shape," Crockett said.

Bill Hancock came back after the decathlon competition to qualify for the finals in the high jump. Hancock qualified easily, jumping 6'8."

The Kansas Relays concludes Saturday with finals in all competition.

Netters capture tenth win, tame Memphis State 7-2

The SIU tennis team picked up its 10th win of the season with a 7-2 taming of the Memphis State Tigers Friday afternoon.

The Salukis took four of the six singles matches and swept the three doubles matches. Dane Petchul and Jorge Ramirez were the losers in the No. 1 and No. 3 singles.

In the No. 2 singles match, Wayne Cowley defeated the Tiger's Keith West, 6-1, 6-3; Felix Ampon bested Howie Kallenberger, 6-4, 6-2; Scott Kidd defeated Roscoe Nichols, 6-3, 6-2 and Mel Ampon defeated Jim Ladyman, 6-0, 6-1.

In order to sweep the doubles matches, the Salukis were forced to go three sets in two of them. Petchul and Cowley teamed up to defeat Leopold West, 3-6, 6-1, 7-6 in the No. 1 doubles; Kristian Gee and Steve Temple Combined their talents to defeat the Tiger's Nichols and Ladyman, 5-7, 6-3, 6-2 in the No. 3 doubles match. In the No. 2 doubles, Ramirez and Kidd defeated Chamberlain and Kallenberger, 6-3, 6-2.

The Salukis will be back in action Saturday with a 9 a.m. meet with Missouri, followed by a 2 p.m. contest with Oklahoma State.
