House rejects plea for Contra aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Tuesday night rejected President Reagan's plea for $14 million in aid to anti-Sandinista rebels in Nicaragua, dealing the administration its biggest foreign policy setback.

The House vote came within an hour of a 53-46 vote in the Republican-controlled Senate to approve the aid. Reagan hailed the Senate vote as a victory and said he would not comment after the House vote. The action by the Democratic-controlled House, by a vote of 248-180, set the stage for a second House showdown Wednesday on other proposals for assistance and a further effort by administration allies to push in the House the concessions Reagan made to win the Senate vote.

In the Senate, 10 Democrats accepted Reagan's last-minute assurances that the aid would be restricted to humanitarian purposes, not military use, that the United States would talk with the Managua government and that Reagan would consider economic sanctions if there is no progress. Left unclear was whether he would use the CIA to administer the aid to the rebels. Nine Republicans voted against Reagan.

The House vote, like the Senate's, followed 10 hours of debate in a day Capitol Hill devoted entirely to the crucial foreign policy issue.

Reagan issued a statement immediately after the Senate vote, saying, "Tonight, the Senate cast a historic vote — for freedom and democracy in Central America."

"A clear majority has spoken in favor of a consistent and effective policy that is true both to our principles and to our interests," Reagan said. He said the Senate vote "will contribute toward bringing both peace and democracy close to the people of Nicaragua" and he urged the House to approve the measure.

Some Senate Democrats apparently did not wish to be portrayed as being unrealistic about the ambitions of the Soviet and Cuban-supported Nicaraguan regime.

Airline expands service

By Jim Ludeman
Staff Writer

ResortAir, a St. Louis-based commuter airline that serves Southern Illinois, announced Tuesday the start of a new service, Trans World Express. The service is a result of an agreement between ResortAir and Trans World Airways.

Officials from ResortAir and TWA announced the service at a press conference at the Southern Illinois Airport.

ResortAir has agreed to fly feeder flights to St. Louis, and to schedule the flights so they coincide with TWA flights to and from St. Louis, George Kreith, general sales manager for TWA, said.

ResortAir will own and operate TW Express. The agreement was the first one between TWA and another airline, Kreith said.

The agreement is for five years, with a five-year option for both parties, said Bob West, president of ResortAir.

ResortAir has asked the Southern Illinois Airport Authority to grant them a long-term lease, he said.

Service will begin in four phases. On August 5, ResortAir will put 19 Beechcraft 1900

Defendant wants new prosecutor

By Jane Grandolfo
Staff Writer

The special prosecutor assigned to the case of four Jackson County residents in connection with voting irregularities in the 1984 primary election should be removed, one of the defendants says.

Precinct 2 committeeman Brady Buckley, who was indicted by a grand jury on charges of forgery, mutilation of election material and ballot box stuffing, claims that the special prosecutor is being influenced by Jackson County State's Attorney John Clemons.

Clemons, who would normally prosecute the case, is not handling it because he is a candidate in the 1984 election.

Hamilton County State's Attorney Alan Downen was appointed to prosecute Buckley, Jackson County Clerk Robert Harrell, Carbondale Township Trustee Freda Stalls, and Mary Lacy.

Buckley filed a petition in Circuit Court as a miscellaneous remedy case. See DEFENDANT, Page 5

Petition requests faculty bargaining election on campus

By David Liss
Staff Writer

The first step toward faculty collective bargaining at SIU-C was taken Tuesday when the United Faculty Association filed its petition to hold a collective bargaining election on campus.

The union filed a petition containing 367 signatures with the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Board, said National Education Association representative Arlene Tobias.

The United Faculty Association is part of the Illinois Education Association, which is part of the NEA.

THOSE SIGNATURES constitute about 35 percent of the union's proposed bargaining unit, Tobias said. The UFA needed the signatures of at least 30 percent of its proposed unit to file with the board, according to the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Act.

The United Faculty Association's proposed unit covers all ranked faculty at SIU-C, "including those faculty who are on a visiting or adjunct basis," said UFA representative Michael Altekruze in a press statement.

"OUR FIRST goal has been accomplished," Tobias said. "We have opened the issue (of collective bargaining) to discussion."

Once a sufficient amount of time has been allowed for other unions to file, the board will schedule a hearing to determine what the bargaining unit will be, according to the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Act.

Two other unions are vying to be the sole faculty collective bargaining agent at SIU-C.

HERBERT DONOW, president of the University Professionals of SIU, said Tuesday his union has obtained over 500 signatures out of a goal of 600. The UP-SIU is affiliated with the Illinois Federation of Teachers, which is part of the American Federation of Teachers, an AFL-CIO organization.

The UP-SIU's proposed bargaining unit includes all faculty and administrative and professional staff employed half-time or more, Donow said.

Emil Spees, head of the SIU-C chapter of the American Association of University Professors, said he is awaiting further indication of "what faculty want the AAUP to do."

IF SUPPORT is strong enough, Spees said, the AAUP may propose its own bargaining unit and try for 30 percent, or it may try to intervene on another union's petition.

An intervener needs signatures of only 15 percent of a petitioner's proposed unit to get on the ballot, according to the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Act.

After a hearing is held and a bargaining unit established, the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Board will order an election on campus, said Tobias. That could happen as soon as next spring, she said.

All eight members of the Undergraduate Student Organization election commission resigned Monday over a disagreement with the Judicial Board for Governance.

The Board decided in favor of Tony Appleman and the Phoenix Party in the party's appeal of an election commission decision to disqualify Phoenix Party members from the Undergraduate Student Organization election April 18.

The election commission members resigned because "the hearing was grossly inadequate" and because the decision was "grossly unfair," said Lamont Brantley, chairman of the commission.

"Last night the election commission was on trial instead of Tony," Brantley said. The resignation of the election commission adds to the confusion surrounding the still unannounced election results because the commission's remaining responsibilities included tallying the ballots and submitting the results for senate validation.

USO officials are unsure as the line of succession to the election commission.

Brantley said the commission. See DISPUTE, Page 5

Unrest continues in India;
death toll increases to 32

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Mobs set fire to classrooms, homes and businesses in western India Tuesday, driving off 3,000 panicked residents in rioting that left at least 15 people dead and about 80 injured, an Indian news agency said. The deaths brought to at least 32 the number of people killed in the past week in the Gujarat state capital of Ahmedabad, 500 miles southwest of New Delhi.

Gorbachev consolidates power, attacks U.S.

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, at a Communist Party meeting marked by a scathing attack on the United States, consolidated his hold on power Tuesday by promoting three followers to the ruling Politburo. Gorbachev told a full meeting of the nearly 500-member Central Committee of the Communist Party that the United States "openly claims the right for itself to interfere everywhere" and "tramples underfoot the interests of other countries and peoples."

South African police detain 3 black dissidents

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South African security police detained three leading black dissidents Tuesday in a crackdown on one of the country's main anti-apartheid organizations. A police spokesman in Johannesburg said the three United Democratic Front members were taken into custody in connection with widespread racial violence that claimed 165 lives in black townships around Johannesburg in 1984 and heated up again over the weekend.

WINSTON SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — Former Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., "an old country lawyer" who directed the Senate Watergate investigation that led to the resignation of President Nixon, died Tuesday. He was 88 years old. Arms director says Soviet position more rigid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Kenneth Adelman, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, said Tuesday the Soviets have moved backward from previous negotiating positions in the last session of arms control talks in Geneva. Dotson clemency hearing date slated by Thompson

CHICAGO (UPI) — Gov. James Thompson Tuesday called an emergency meeting of the Illinois Prisoner Review Board for May 9 to consider a clemency request for convicted rapist Gary Dotson. A Thompson aide said the governor has finished reading transcripts of Dotson's 1979 rape trial and of the hearing held last month on a motion to free Dotson. Dotson, 28, has served six years of a 25- to 50-year sentence for the rape, which the victim now says never happened.

Homeowners win fight against zoning change

By Thomas Mangan
Staff Writer

Homeowners in the Brush Hills subdivision southeast of Carbondale can rest assured that the entrance to their small community will not be cluttered with new construction.

The Carbondale City Council voted 3-2 Monday not to rezone two five-acre tracts of land at the subdivision entrance, but only after a heated debate concerning the city's role in disagreements between homeowners and subdivision developers.

MAYOR HELEN Westberg and Councilmen Patrick Kelley and John Yov voted to approve the rezoning, but a city ordinance requires four votes of approval if the owners of 20 percent of the property adjacent to the land to be rezoned oppose the rezoning.

A group of Brush Hill property owners who own 75 percent of the adjacent land signed a petition forcing the vote.

Councilmen Keith Tuxhorn and Neill Dillard voted against the rezoning.

DEBATE revolved on whether the city can resolve homeowner-developer disputes through the zoning code. Brush Hills homeowners were concerned that if the tracts, owned by Steve Sisulak and Robert Gonzenbach of Carbondale, were rezoned from agricultural to rural residential that a grassy "greenway" area there would be filled with new houses.

Sisulak and Gonzenbach wanted to rezone the area so two houses could be built on the south side of the entrance road which divides the two properties. Two houses have already been built on the north side, one on each owner's property.

CARBONDALE'S zoning ordinance states that agricultural zoning applies to plots of land of at least five acres with one dwelling per five-acre plot. Tracts of land zoned rural residential have a one-acre minimum lot size with one house per lot.

Sisulak, the subdivision developer, owned both tracts of land until selling one to Gonzenbach last December. He asked the subdivision's Homeowners Association to allow the land to be included in the subdivision's "covenants," a list of rules and regulations agreed upon by residents before moving into the subdivision.

BRUSH HILLS' covenants require that no land be subdivided more than once, with one house per land tract. Brush Hills homeowners agreed that the Sisulak and Gonzenbach properties could be included in the subdivision covenants so that no more than two houses could be built in the greenway area if the rezoning was approved.

BRUSH HILLS property owner Peter Carroll told the council that the subdivision developer's promises to homeowners were "consistently changed, broken and violated." He said that he bought his property with the understanding that the greenway area would not be developed, and said he would have to sell his property if the zoning change was approved.

Kelley said it is not the city's business to enforce subdivision covenants and that the primary issue is whether the land use after the rezoning will be consistent with the city's future land-use plans.

Response positive for revised liquor codes

By Bob Tita
Staff Writer

The draft of the revised Carbondale Liquor Code generated a favorable response from the City Council and will be brought back for a final vote on May 5.

The revised code contains long-discussed provisions such as setting a minimum bar entry age of 18 and specifying types of age identification. Acceptable identification noted in the code includes SIU-C identification, driver's license, firearm owner's license and a state-issued photo identification cards.

Liquor license holders will also have to post signs warning people under 21 years old of the possible fines if convicted of drinking or possessing liquor.

THE NEW CODE will require that liquor establishments institute hand stamping of all patrons to verify age after the license holder receives nine underage drinking violations over a six month period. The hand-stamps would be issued by the city for $20. Bars with nine violations would be limited to 12-ounce containers for the sale of beer.

Liquor businesses that are closed, but still maintain a current liquor license are also dealt with. The license holder would be required to come before the Carbondale Liquor Control Commission and explain why the business is closed. The code specifies that closing a business to avoid a penalty would be an unacceptable reason.

THE FINES THAT can be levied against a license holder found guilty of a liquor code violation will be increased. The new code will raise the maximum fine from $1,000 to $2,500 for each violation.

Deputy City Attorney Patricia McMeen, who wrote the revisions, said the new code will be better organized than the present code which had several revised parts added. If approved, the revised code would go into effect July 1. The council will make a final decision on the revised code while SIU-C is still in session.

The liquor commission, which is also the City Council, delayed action of a proposal from Gatsby's owner James Winfree to construct a new liquor store at 603 S. Illinois Ave. The commission will wait until the Carbondale Planning Commission reviews the plans.

WINFREE WANTS TO construct the liquor store alongside a grocery store on property currently occupied by Saluki Texaco, 601 S. Illinois Ave. The two stores would be under one roof, but would be separated by a wall. A self-service gas station is also planned for the front of the grocery store.

In other business, consideration of a union for police sergeants was tabled by the council. The seven sergeants involved requested that the issue be brought up at the May 6 council meeting.

The sergeants have asked the council to allow them to form a bargaining unit to represent them in labor negotiations with the city. A report signed by City Manager Bill Dixon recommended that the council not approve a union for the sergeants since they are considered supervisors. He also said state law does not require the city to institute a bargaining unit for the sergeants.

Ruling for Dotson reason for caution

PUBLIC OPINION SEEMS TO BE in favor of releasing Gary Dotson, the man Cathleen Crowell Webb says did not, in 1979, rape her after all. But it's important to consider what effect releasing Dotson and acknowledging that Webb lied might have on the testimony of rape victims in the future.

The facts of the case seem to be increasingly in favor of Dotson being released. New evidence, detailed in a report in the Chicago Lawyer, says Timothy B. Dixon, a forensic scientist with the state Law Enforcement Department who testified in the original case, erred. A recent study of the same evidence by a "more experienced" forensic expert produced results that contradicted Dixon's. Dixon's testimony was used in the closing argument by the assistant state's attorney to help convict Dotson.

If a new trial is granted to Dotson, he would seem to stand a good chance of being released. The testimony used originally to convict Dotson has been called into question. Crowell has said her testimony was wrong and has even said she will face perjury charges if that is the only way the truth will become known. There also appears to be reason to question the testimony of the forensic expert. If the evidence used to convict Dotson proves to be wrong, the court has no choice but to release him. Failing that, the governor may commute Dotson's sentence or pardon him.

THE DANGER IS THE POSSIBILITY that the court's acceptance of Webb's claim that she was not raped by Dotson — or anyone else — might cast doubt on the testimony of all rape victims.

Judge Richard L. Samuels said in rejecting Webb's new testimony, that he found her original testimony so convincing that he doubted she was lying about the rape in 1979. Her demeanor at the original trial was consistent with that of someone who had been raped. If she was indeed lying, how can judges and juries believe women who are claiming to have been raped?

What must be remembered is that this case is clearly the exception, not the rule. The case is full of extraordinary circumstances. If Cathleen Webb is found to have been lying, this should be treated as an isolated case and not a reason to ponder the truthfulness of all rape victims.

If Webb's testimony was the major reason for sending Dotson to jail, and she says she was lying and is willing to pay the price of perjury to prove it, then Dotson should be released; but judges must be careful not to let Webb's reversal taint their judgement of rape cases in the future.

Ideological debate over Nicaragua spills into 'placid' private college

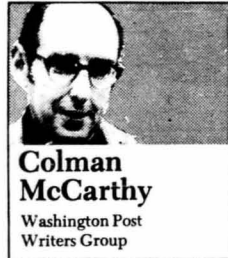

AS ONE OF the loyal Old Boys who keeps up with the affairs of his alma mater — the Kent School, Kent, Conn. — James L. Tyson, '35 had a disappointment. There, on page one of the Kent News, the student newspaper, was a photograph of four Sandinistas in a jungle camp in Nicaragua. Amplifying this unpreppy scene, an accompanying story told of two guest speakers who spoke to the 600 Kent students in chapel against a U.S. policy in Nicaragua they believe is inhumane.

Since the speeches, the serene life at Kent — a private and proper Episcopalian boarding school in northwest Connecticut with a tuition of $10,800 — has been roiled with controversy. An ideological war zone has been created in which alumni who criticize the Reagan policies in Nicaragua are finding themselves attacked by other alumni who see American intervention as all but divinely inspired.

In a few days, ten Kent boys and girls are scheduled to come to Washington. They will not be staying with Tyson, but he is one of many in the capital with whom the children will confer. Others include Sen. Christopher Dodd (D-Conn.), a diplomat from the Nicaraguan Embassy, State Department officials, staff members of the American Security Council, some representatives of the contras and possibly a White House official.

THE STORY of the Kent School and its sudden veering into the debate on Nicaragua illustrates that no one and no place — not even the enclaves of privilege where the wealthy send their children to be expensively groomed — are exempt from the demands of separating truth from propaganda.

Nicaragua was brought to

Colman McCarthy
Washington Post
Writers Group

the Kent campus by Cornelia Keller Biddle, class of '64 and a trustee. Last October, she and her husband — the Rev. Craig Biddle III — spent ten days in Nicaragua and Honduras. At Kent a month later, both Biddles spoke, he to the boys, she to the girls.

Craig Biddle, an Episcopalian priest who is currently the director of IMPACT, an interfaith Washington-based peace and justice agency, counseled the students to pay attention to Nicaragua, if only out of self-interest. He said that if a decision is made to send an invasion force, "You, your friends (and) your brothers could well be part" of it. "Your future may be determined today by U.S. policy in Central America. You must become involved. It will become increasingly unpopular, as the days go by, to uncover the moral decay in our foreign policy toward Nicaragua.... In the name of God, God's Church and this country, learn all you can about the dangerous path we tread upon in Nicaragua before it's too late."

TO JAMES Tyson, the present danger includes the Biddles. In early March, he wrote to the Kent student newspaper that, "The Soviet Cuban and Nicaraguan propaganda organs have been working full-time to influence opinion in this country. The Biddles were apparently misled in the tour they were given around Nicaragua." Another Kent alumnus — '23 — wrote to chastise "our somewhat deluded" Mrs. Biddle. It was, he said, "a real shock to see the communist 'line' so flagrantly spread out for us, with a picture of the Red Star beret on a Sandinista guerrilla" in the Kent News. Still a third alumnus, the decibels rising, said that "Biddle is an unwitting traitor to his country, one of those liberals aptly described by the KGB as 'useful idiots.'" This alumnus, a classmate of Tyson, also expressed shock: Biddle "carries the message of goddess communism into the very heart of a respected religious school.... The chapel (was used) as a one-sided forum for the most evil empire in the history of the world."

The apocalyptic ire of the Old Boy network hasn't impressed the editors of the Kent News. In an editorial, they rejected the accusation "of printing treasonous, left-wing propaganda." They reminded the alarmed alumni that last year at a "foreign-policy symposium," speakers with different views than the Biddles had their day. Kent didn't fall apart then, and it isn't crumbling now.

Openmindedness appears to be thriving at Kent, though not among some of the more excitable alumni. For Cornelia Biddle, the remembrance of such a spirit is what keeps her attached to the school: "At Kent they are developing the tools to think for themselves. That's what Kent did for me and that's one of the reasons I went to Nicaragua and Honduras."

Letters

Meaning of Bitburg letter lost due to tardy printing

Have the editors of the Daily Egyptian been living in a cave?

The DE printed a letter on April 23 written by me. That letter said the president's decision to visit the Bitburg military cemetery was commendable. A clarification is most definitely needed.

I meant that the intent of his visit to the cemetery, — to promote reconciliation between former World War II enemies — was commendable, not the visit itself.

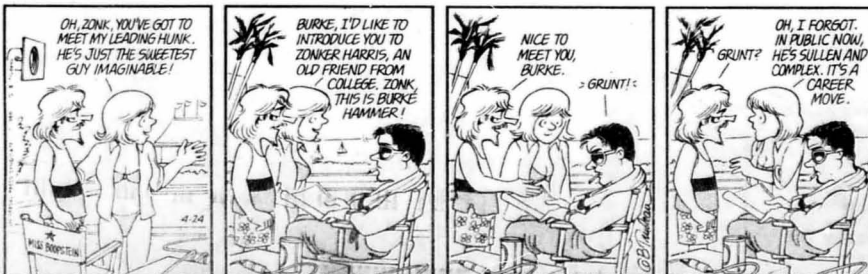

The letter the DE printed was written at least a week before. God only knows why the editors wanted to print it. Events have changed since I wrote that letter. It predates: 1) the president's decision to visit a concentration camp, and 2) the knowledge that German SS troops were buried in the Bitburg cemetery.

I am adamantly opposed to any visit to a German cemetery containing the graves of SS troops. To pay tribute to the killers of innocent people is unthinkable. It insults not only Jews and victims of the Holocaust, but American veterans and the memory of those American soldiers killed in action there.

The decision to print a letter urging the President to visit a concentration camp after he has already chosen to do so does not reflect favorably on the DE or myself. The edited version of such a letter shows poor editorial judgment. If this keeps up, the DE will have the credibility of a Pet Rock. — Dan Sherman, chairman, Hillel Foundation.

Letters Policy

Signed articles, including letters, Viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a Journalism School faculty member.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by mail or directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten, double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters of less than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters submitted by mail should include the author's address and telephone number. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Dean says faculty cuts probable

Keith Sanders, dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts, told nearly 100 cinema and photography students that there is a 99 percent chance that two faculty positions in the Department of Cinema and Photography will be eliminated effective fall 1986.

Sanders met with students Tuesday night in response to their disillusionment with his decision to fire the only two cinema and photography faculty members who teach theory and criticism courses.

The eliminations, Sanders said, is a result of the Universitywide effort to increase faculty salaries through attrition. A 2 percent savings each year for the next five years will be tacked on to faculty salary increases designated by the state. As a result SIU-C faculty salaries will increase 10 percent — instead of 8 percent — for fiscal year 1986.

Unless enrollment increases substantially or other faculty members leave and the faculty decides to maintain Richard Bolton and Tony Williams, they will be gone in 18 months, Sanders said.

He said four of the 10 faculty members to remain are qualified to teach theory and criticism courses and the faculty must decide itself how to distribute the courses.

So far, the two eliminations slated for fiscal 1987 are the only ones within eight departments of the college, Sanders said. Two position eliminations in other departments have been scheduled to begin this fall.

mission's responsibilities will fall into the hands of the senate's pro tempore, Kevin Harris. However, John Rutledge, chairman of the USO's Committee on Internal Affairs, said that the Judicial Board itself may wind up managing the ballot count.

The ballot count won't be easy, Brantley said a computer program designed to tally the ballots has malfunctioned.

"It looks like the ballots may have to be sorted again," Brantley said.

The election commission disqualified the Appleman-Stone ticket and the Phoenix Party in general on April 16.

"We determined his (Appleman's) guilt by more than a preponderance of evidence," Brantley said. "It is up to the person appealing to prove he is innocent. That did not happen last night."

The seven members of the Judicial Board, chaired by Tessa Marshall, focused most of their attention on the validity or non-validity of a few of the filed complaints rather than on Phoenix Party guilt or innocence or even involvement in the alleged incidents.

asking Downen's removal from the case because he allegedly saw Clemons discussing the case with Downen in the vicinity of the grand jury proceedings last week.

Clemons bristled at Buckley's accusations.

"His charges are a complete and utter lie. He makes allegations, but he doesn't back them up," Clemons said Tuesday. "I also find it very suspect that I haven't been served with anything yet."

Downen was unavailable for comment. Buckley's lawyer, Rex Burke, declined to comment on why Clemons has not been served with the legal papers.

In the petition, Buckley claims that Clemons has "personal animosity" toward him stemming from election law violations he filed against Clemons during his campaign for state's attorney in 1981.

The State Board of Elections threw the case out, Clemons said.

Legal interactions between Buckley and Clemons in 1980 and 1981 may also be cause for "animosity," the petition states.

In 1980, Buckley, then a Jackson County sheriff's deputy, filed a racial discrimination suit with the Illinois Department of Human Rights claiming he was fired because he was black. Clemons defended the county in the case, which was settled in 1984. Buckley won the case.

In 1981, Clemons was the prosecutor in a criminal indictment that charged Buckley with aggravated battery for allegedly abusing a prisoner. Buckley was acquitted.

Clemons denies he has any animosity toward Buckley, or that Downen is under his influence.

"I'm just trying to do my job. I defend the county - that's my job. I have never charged him with any criminal offense," he said.

"If Mr. Downen was under my influence, then why did he indict a very close friend of mine, Bob Harrell?" Clemons asked.

Harrell was also indicted on a perjury charge last week by the special grand jury investigating irregularities in the March 1984 primary election.

turboprop planes on line. On November 1, it will add two more planes.

On February 1 and April 28 an unspecified amount of planes will be added, West said.

Kreith said that only cities now served by ResortAir will be covered by the plan. He also said that "any city within 150 miles of St. Louis is a potential area of service."

Any expansion into those cities would involve ResortAir, Kreith said.

An agreement like this is not a first, Kreith said. Both Delta Airlines and American Airlines have similar arrangements with smaller, commuter airlines.

ResortAir will be responsible for 28 daily flights to St. Louis, West said. Flights from Carbondale to St. Louis would be increased, he said.

West said the agreement provides for student fares on TW Express.

The agreement could also mean more jobs, West said.

By Cara Webster
Student Writer

Thirteen years ago, Richard Lawson thought he would try photography as a hobby. Recently, at the Associated Artists' Gallery in Carbondale, he opened an exhibit of his work titled "Altered States and Other Entities." That hobby has now come full circle to passionate artistic expression.

"I thought I would give it a year," says the SIUC English professor. "I figured if it didn't work out, I could always sell the equipment."

It has "worked out" for Lawson, though he reacts modestly to compliments about his work, which range from portraits, landscapes, nudes and motion studies to newer techniques with paper negatives, infrared prints and sliced negatives. The exhibit will be on view through April 27.

"I'm trying to offer a new perspective to physical and emotional beauty," he explains, as he watches closely over a developing print. His willingness and desire to share his ideas with everyone is obvious.

"See?" he asks. "I look for the abstract idea in something normal — the new motion or perspective from something commonplace. That's the idea."

Lawson's first artistic love is literature, but he has expanded his love to the photograph. As an English professor, he is constantly dealing with new interpretations of life and art.

"But photography is the other half of the equation for me," he says. "It's like a good lit class, when we've captured the spirit of a poem or story, and have understood its message."

"I find that the two can be merged. My early life was full of visual ideas — the local myths, rituals, rhythms were all very visual. Now I've come full circle. That is, visual to literary to a magical combination of the two."

Uncovering new means of expression is always a challenge. He is presently concentrating on processes of developing, and most of his recent work is focused on the paper negative and infrared developing.

Lawson does the majority of his printing in black and white. This is, he says, because he simply likes it better.

"I found I could shape the idea better, and it is more challenging than color," he says. "It is also easier to work with as far as facilities are concerned."

The basement bathroom in his home has been turned into a darkroom, and he is never very far away from his work center. It is as if he is afraid something will happen and he doesn't want to miss one moment of creativity.

"I'm still learning and will always be learning," he says. "I guess I will always be propositioning new ways of thinking and seeing. It's certainly a challenge."

As most photographers will tell you, people are probably the most difficult of subjects. Lawson says a photographer looks at his subject in terms of line, form and character.

"Character is probably the most difficult to capture," he says. "It takes a lot of study, a lot of maneuvering of your own ideas, to capture the person visually."

People are the primary reason Lawson turned to photography. He tried to paint people but couldn't get the desired effect. Photography provided the means of achieving that end, and from there he expanded into nature, still lifes, macro-texture studies, sporting events and architecture.

His work has been published in several magazines, and two books of poetry by Steve Tietz, "Isothermal" and "Gnawing the Bark from the Neighbor's Dog," were illustrated with his photographs. He also co-authored and contributed his photographic interpretations in a book titled "Fred E. Meyers: Wood-Carver."

His membership in The Artists' Gallery has been the realization of an artist's dream. The gallery, which was opened in April of 1983 and of which Lawson was a founding member, offers artists a place to exhibit. But more importantly, it offers the opportunity to create without pressure.

"It makes it easier to be more creative without worrying about failure," Lawson says. "We, as artists, can concentrate on creative fulfillment rather than the money market, and that is very important."

The gallery is spacious, and the gleaming white walls invite viewers to take the time and consider what is before them.

Deciding what those viewers see when they visit the gallery, located at 213 S. Illinois Ave., is nearly as important as the creation of the art itself.

"One must feel drawn or led through the exhibit with the artist's eye," Lawson says.

After hauling all the framed photographs to the gallery from his home, Lawson lays out the photographs on the floor and studies them. He seeks that perfect pattern. And the first inclination is not always the one chosen in the end.

"Even after a picture is hung, I may see it in a different light and place it somewhere else," he says. "You have to go by instinct. It has to fit in perfectly and reach out to the viewers."

Lawson's planning and considering does not end with this show. He will present a combined show of new and old works in May at Wabash Valley College in Mount Carmel, and he has been invited to participate in the 24th Old Capitol Art Fair in Springfield, May 18 and 19.

"It's a great honor for an artist," he says. "It's also a share of ideas with them."

Lawson takes another look around the room to check for perfection. Framed quotes from poets and writers are interspersed with photographs. The first one to catch the viewer's eye is a quote from Wallace Stevens:

Beauty is momentary in the mind,

The fufil tracing of a portal,
But in the flesh it is immortal.

The body dies; the body's beauty lives.

Richard Lawson's photographs capture the visual essence of that last line.

BRING BISQUE PIECES TO BE GLAZED & FIRED

The Liberty movie theater in Murphysboro.

Liberty Theater still has old-fashioned looks, prices

By John Huber
Student Writer

In 1981, the Liberty Theater in Murphysboro began charging an admission price from the 1960s — $1.

Harry Daniel, manager of the Liberty Theater, which is owned by Kerasotes Theaters, said he is glad the company has switched to the $1 admission price.

"They (customers) get their money's worth here and they appreciate that," he said.

The Liberty was an old-fashioned look to go along with its old-fashioned prices. It was built in the early 1930s.

THE BLACK-TILED building, structured close to the street, is crammed in between a beauty salon and an insurance agency on Walnut in downtown Murphysboro.

The one-story building has an V-shaped marquee that displays the name of the film currently playing at the theater. Films at the Liberty usually run for a week.

A film plays at the Liberty two to four months after it has been released in the area. Sam Sheridan, district manager of Kerasotes Theaters, said films in their second circulation are cheaper and allow the company to charge low admission prices.

THE AUDIENCE at the

'We wait for a movie to come to the Liberty, because the only difference in seeing a movie late is the price.'

—Mike and Lisa Mathews

Liberty doesn't seem to mind seeing a movie late.

"We wait for a movie to come to the Liberty, because the only difference in seeing a movie late is the price," said Mike and Lisa Mathews of Carbondale.

Sheridan said Kerasotes lowered the admission price at the Liberty after such a plan was successful at a movie theater in Salem. Both theaters are in small towns and had low attendance.

The line of people at the concession stand typically fills the small lobby. The narrow theater is filled with rows of black and red seats, arranged in no particular pattern.

The black seats are upholstered in leather and the red seats in fabric. The two side aisles are a tight squeeze for two people to walk side-by-side.

THE RED, GREEN and blue lighting in the theater shines from the old fixtures on the cream colored walls. Daniel said many of the customers are from out of town.

Helen Hanley of Carbondale, a regular patron of the theater, said she doesn't mind the drive to Murphysboro. "I like the movies the Liberty shows and you can't beat the price," she said.

"The Liberty Theater is a fine community structure that attracts people to downtown Murphysboro," said Murphysboro Mayor Sydney Appleton.

Patty Stokes, bartender at Hunker's Lounge, a couple of doors down from the theater, agreed that the Liberty attracts people to the downtown area.

"We usually get a few people that stop in after the 7:30 p.m. show," she said.

The Liberty is currently showing one film a day at 7:30 p.m. But an afternoon showing will be added beginning Memorial Day.

Panel discusses fair trial, free press rights conflict

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

Resolving the tension between the rights to privacy and a fair trial and freedom of the press can be quite a chore.

That was the agreement of panel members Monday who gathered in Morris Library Auditorium to discuss the issue.

The panel discussion was a Journalism Week event. The members of the panel were authorities on constitutional rights or the journalism profession.

MUCH OF THE discussion focused on the aspects and likely resolution of a local newspaper's challenge to a circuit court judge's order not to print the name of a juvenile murder suspect.

James Santori, managing editor of the Southern Illinoisian, said the judge made the order after the newspaper had already run the name of the 16-year-old suspect twice in news stories on the murder of an Anna High School student.

REPORTERS learned the name of the suspect from local police officials "on the record," Santori said, but he added that the name was common knowledge among Anna residents and that the suspect's mother had no objection to the use of her son's name in news stories.

"Our argument was and continues to be that a judge can't constitutionally force a newspaper not to publish information that it already has, and in fact has already published," he said.

THE JUDGE'S order was upheld by the Illinois Supreme Court on March 29. The Southern Illinoisian has appealed the decision.

Panelist Thomas McAfee, who teaches constitutional law at the SIU-C Law School, said that one of the main issues of the case is whether the name of the juvenile should be made known more than it already has.

He said that courts have a legitimate interest in seeing that juveniles are not branded as delinquents.

"THERE IS A very strong compelling state interest in protecting the name of the individual for purposes of rehabilitation," McAfee said.

However, McAfee said that based on previous Supreme Court decisions, the traditional "watchdog" role of the press and the fact that what is at issue is a prior restraint, which usually come to the court under heavy suspicion, he did not believe that the judge's "gag order" would be upheld if it ever reached the nation's highest court.

RANDALL NELSON, professor emeritus in political science, agreed that "the scales are heavily weighted in favor of the press" in this case. He charged that some intrusion by the press upon individual's right to privacy should be tolerated as the price for freedom of the press, which serves to check the power of government.

"There has been a few cases in which the press has come out the loser in privacy cases but these are relatively few," Nelson said. "I think in cases such as this the newspaper has little to fear."

NELSON ALSO suggested that when the press can publish information that it has obtained citizens are all the better off. He added that government should not allow itself to be used by the press as a supplier of private information about citizens.

Harry Stonecipher, professor emeritus in journalism, reviewed some of the common restrictions that states have included in laws giving the press access to information. He said that there is a growing concern about invasion of privacy by both the press and government.

Hit-and-run under investigation

Jackson County authorities are still investigating a hit-and-run accident that resulted in the death of a Chester woman and injuries to another woman Monday night on Illinois Route 149 west of Murphysboro near Scenic View Hill, a spokesman from the Sheriff's Office said.

Elle Faye Partridge, 83, of 711 E. Opydyke St., Chester, was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident that occurred at 7:17 p.m.

A suspect in the crash, James W. Farrar, 59, of House Springs, Mo., was later identified as having left the scene driving a semi-tractor trailer.

Farrar was apprehended in Chester by Chester police at 7:57 p.m. and cited for leaving the scene of an accident.

Authorities say the accident occurred when Mrs. Partridge's eastbound car struck the rear of Farrar's westbound trailer.

Signs may have caused accident

Temporary stop signs installed at the intersection of University Mall and Illinois Route 13 may have caused at least one traffic accident Monday night, a spokesman from the Carbondale Police Department said.

Jimmy Bonner, 43, of Carterville was ticketed for disobeying a traffic control device after he failed to stop at the temporary stop sign and hit another vehicle at the intersection.

JoAnn Sanders, 51, the driver of the other car, sustained minor injuries from the accident and was taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale.

The stop signs are only a temporary measure until the traffic control lights at the intersection are fixed, the spokesman said.

Americans urged to enter foreign language careers

By Karen Wilberger
Staff Writer

Flags from 31 countries around the world set the tone in Student Center Ballroom D Tuesday as Joel D. Honigberg, an expert in international business trade, stressed the need for Americans to enter careers combining business and foreign language.

Geotrade — "Geo" meaning earth or world and "trade" best describing the exporter's life's work — is a course of study mixing foreign language, geography, cultural and business skills, said Honigberg, co-founder of J.D. Marshall International, a Chicago-based firm that coined the word "Geotrade."

THIS MULTI-DISCIPLINARY course of study is meant to be strongly career oriented. Honigberg told a ballroom filled primarily with Southern Illinois high school students.

"It is meant to train our youth to think clearly and to think globally. The seeds of these ideas must be planted early, at age 16, or earlier, so that by age 21, the individual will be ready to participate productively in useful international business-oriented projects."

The students in Honigberg's audience were part of nearly 1,400 students from 35 Southern Illinois high schools and one Missouri high school who attended the 14th Annual Foreign Language Day — a day which students could do anything from playing foreign language games on Apple computers to competing in the Scholar Bowl foreign language quiz games.

OR THEY COULD sit back and listen to some of nearly a dozen faculty presentations about languages and cultures throughout the world.

Keynote speaker Honigberg's talk, however, had a more serious tone than the other events.

"With dozens of major languages and hundreds of spoken tongues, including dialects, used by more than four billion earth inhabitants, the massive task of assembling the raw materials of the world's nations and the operations of buying and selling such vast amounts of goods are intimately linked with the ability to communicate."

WHEN ENGLISH-SPEAKING people seek a trade contact in other countries, the chance of success is greatly determined by their ability to express thoughts in that country, Honigberg said.

"I ask you to picture in your mind a map of the world. No part of the world is meaningful without the people living in it," he said.

"Because people and language are inseparable, it is valid that we examine Geotrade today in the framework of foreign language expertise."

Honigberg said the United States, unfortunately, has abdicated its position as the world's pre-eminent trading nation. It will eventually forfeit any meaningful degree of participation in foreign markets unless more young Americans acquire knowledge in economics and business and learn how to communicate in foreign languages, he said.

THOUGH GEOTRADE may be a relatively new term, Honigberg said, it is not a new game.

"Its history is as long as Rip Van Winkle's beard. Old Rip fell asleep about 5,000 years ago at the gate of the Temple of Shamash, in the ancient city of Ur, during a tiresome law trial between two important businessmen over a broken contract."

Companies were formed 2,500 years before Christ by the Mesopotamians, who used bars of precious metals called shekels as a measure of exchange, he said.

Then came the time of the Phoenicians, a great trading people for 1,000 years until 500 B.C. and the Roman times, when businessmen were often despised and the hierarchy of the Catholic Church tried to override them.

LATER, HONIGBERG said, the church and business became allied as Christianity spread to Northern Europe. In the mid 1800s, the Yankee Clippers raced English and French ships for the China Trade.

Honigberg stressed that young people interested in careers in Geotrade are characterized by the ability to speak languages other than English.

"Foreign language expertise, coupled with practical views of the business environment and a strong sense for organization, is a starting point."

He said once people are hired into the jobs, their horizons broaden. "The challenge of each overseas job in our revenue-hungry, profit-oriented business world offers an opportunity to succeed."

Honigberg ended with a quote the thoughts of Will Durant, America's popular armchair philosopher:

"The crossroads of trade are the meeting places of ideas. Rival customs and beliefs begin to disappear, superstitions cancel one another, and reason begins."

Most cases of elder abuse go unreported, report says

By John Dyslin
Staff Writer

One of 25 people above the age of 60 are abused in some fashion, and only one of 60 cases are reported, according to a congressional report.

It is estimated that 2.5 million cases of elder abuse occur each year, said Mary Jo Hunt, assistant attorney general. About 20,000 cases of elder abuse are reported each year in Illinois, Hunt said.

Hunt moderated a seminar on elder abuse Monday at the Senior Citizen Advocacy Conference held at the SIU-C Student Center.

The seminar consisted of four panel members who discussed programs and organizations that help fight elder abuse. The members included Perry Patterson of the Guardianship and Advocacy Commission; Dan Marsh, geriatric counselor for the Jackson County Community Mental Health Center; Patsy Jensen of the Shawnee Alliance for Seniors; and Franklin County State's Attorney Terry Green.

MARSH SAID that 76 percent of the elder abuse victims are women and many are 75 years old and older. He said it is difficult to determine the number of instances of elder abuse because so many cases go unreported.

Marsh said emotional and financial matters, poor relationships and poor community acceptance are causes of elder abuse. Many times the caretakers resent the constraints on their freedom that caring for a senior citizen can impose.

"This can change a relationship from one of love and respect to one of anger and a loss of respect," Marsh said.

Jensen defined elder abuse as intentionally and knowingly causing physical harm or taking advantage of the elder financially. She stressed family counseling as a means to relieve the stress of the abuser and change the situation.

PATTERSON SAID organizations need to look after the rights of those that are unable to do so for themselves. He mentioned several programs offered by the Guardianship and Advocacy Commission that are designed to protect senior citizens.

One function of the commission is legal services. The counseling service is primarily for those living in public or private institutions, Patterson said.

Another function of the commission concerns human rights. Patterson said they attempt to solicit information from the public about abuse and possible problems.

A GUARDIAN program provides senior citizens who have estates of less than $15,000 with assistance that they might need.

A major part of elder abuse is the stealing of senior citizens' property, said Green.

"This is usually done by acts of intimidation," Green said. "Threats include things like 'I won't see you, or I'll harm you if you don't give me money.'"

Green said senior citizens can avoid financial crimes by direct depositing their money into the bank and not signing blank checks, loan papers or bank obligations. He also said not to trust door-to-door salespersons or telephone solicitors.

Green said senior citizens should lock car doors, avoid traveling or shopping alone and carrying large amounts of money. Regular contact with a neighbor, friend or family member is also important, he said.

Kilquist says weekend party risky for hosts

By Jane Grandolfo
Staff Writer

The nine SIU-C students who live in the "moat house" probably didn't realize the situation they started and "created a monster," at their 2,000-person bash Saturday afternoon, said Jackson County Sheriff Bill Kilquist.

Technically, Kilquist said, any of the parties could have sued their hosts if they were injured at the party or on their way home from it. The residents of the house, located south of Carbondale on Giant City Road, may also have violated a Jackson County liquor ordinance by charging their guests a $4 admission and serving liquor, he said.

JOHN BARESKY, a resident of the moat house, said the $4 charge was necessary to offset the costs of a sound system for six bands, four portable latrines, 75 kegs of beer and a generator to keep the beer cold.

"It's not like we cleared a profit, we've even said the beer is free," Baresky said.

Kilquist said he is still considering pressing charges for a possible liquor code violation since residents of the house were allegedly selling and dispensing liquor, but the real cause for concern is the private lawsuits that could result from such a large gathering, he said.

"The county ordinance punishment is zero compared to what could have happened. You're talking about a possible multi-million dollar lawsuit," if someone was injured, Kilquist said.

THE REVELERS' spirits were dampened by the 8 p.m. arrival of sheriff's deputies, SIU police and state troopers.

"We shut the beer off at about 11:00," Baresky said.

Law enforcement officials were drawn to the moat house party by an overflow of parked cars lining both sides of Giant City Road and Pleasant Hill Road, Kilquist said. About 20 cars were towed from the scene and traffic was temporarily clogged by the parked cars and revelers walking to and from the party in the middle of the road, he said.

This incident has prompted Jackson County authorities to consider new regulations on mass gatherings. Although there hasn't been much problem with large parties until now, Kilquist said he will meet with members of the Jackson County Board and the State's Attorney to discuss the possibility of new regulations.

THERE WERE no arrests made and in general, the crowd was manageable, Kilquist said. The main problem was the amount of traffic and how the people arrived, he said.

"I saw some passenger cars with 10 to 12 people in it and pick-up trucks with five or six people in the cab and 10 or 15 more in the back," he said. "Both passengers and drivers were also carrying open alcohol in the vehicles."

Rather than make arrests and tie up what limited manpower they had, sheriff's deputies confiscated and dumped out as much liquor as they could, Kilquist said. Even though extra officers were called to the scene, most confrontations were avoided, because "when you have 1,500 to 2,000 people it could easily turn into a mob situation," he said.

Another party at the moat house soon seems unlikely, Baresky said.

"It's real doubtful we'll have another one. It was like our end of the year bash."

Piracy device made for videos

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Looking to crack down on unauthorized duplication of home video movies, a new anti-piracy device has been invented which will ruin the picture's quality when reproduced, officials disclosed Tuesday.

At a news conference Tuesday, Embassy Home Entertainment officials said it will release the first title in the home video market equipped with anti-piracy capability.

The device, developed by Macrovision, will be used in the Wednesday release of "The Cotton Club." The anti-piracy equipment will also be placed in retail stores nationwide.

The process, which prevents people from copying videocassettes and videodiscs, will be made available for licensing to the home video industry, and future plans may include licensing to the broadcast and cable media, said Victor Farrow, chairman of Macrovision.

"Piracy is the single greatest threat to our industry," said Andre Blay, chairman of Embassy Home Entertainment.

Cards' mound ace Andujar wants respect from peers

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Joaquin Andujar says he plans to refuse interviews in the future and let his fastball do the talking — but first would like to get a few things off his chest. "I tell you what," said the St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, "85 percent of the sportswriters think I'm stupid or a clown or something. They think I'm crazy."

"If I was crazy, I'd throw the ball into the stands with the bases loaded. Now, that's crazy. If I was stupid, I'd throw the ball into center field with the bases loaded and a 3-2 count on the hitter. Now, that's stupid."

"I don't know why sportswriters always have to write bad things about Joaquin Andujar."

So, the self-proclaimed "one tough Dominican" is planning a silent protest. But that might be harder than pitching a no-hitter for Andujar because he loves to talk.

So, before his vow of silence is imposed, Andujar has a few more tidbits to share.

He says he just wants to be loved like crowd favorite Ozzie Smith, who receives waves of applause when he performs his traditional cartwheel and backflip to open and close the baseball season. "Nobody says Ozzie is a clown," Andujar said. "Can you imagine what they would say if Joaquin Andujar did backflips on the way to the pitching mound? They'd call me crazy and a clown."

Last year, Andujar was the only pitcher in the National League to win 20 games. He conceded the Cy Young award to Chicago's Rick Sutcliffe for his efforts in leading the Cubs to the NL East Division title. But Andujar questions his fourth-place finish in voting for the coveted prize.

"Can you believe that?" Andujar said waving his hands in the air. "OK, Sutcliffe pitched great. I have no quarrel with him. I never saw anybody pitch like that before. But that's baseball. You never know."

"But I came in fourth. The sportswriters don't know what they're voting on. They weren't honest about it. I led the league in four categories."

A check of the statistics shows Andujar led the league in victories with 20; in innings pitched with 261.1, was tied for first in shutouts with four and was second in complete games with 12. He had 34 decisions in 36 starts.

"Those are good numbers," Andujar said. "Why is there no respect for Joaquin Andujar?"

Those numbers did earn Andujar the UPI Comeback Player of the Year award as he rebounded from a 6-16 season in 1983. Andujar reported to spring training last year 20 pounds lighter at 192 and developed a puzzling change-up to complement his power pitching.

Bowa says he'll never adjust to reserve shortstop role

CHICAGO (UPI) — Larry Bowa says the day he gets used to sitting on a major league bench will be the day he will retire from baseball.

There seems to be differing opinions on just when that will be. Bowa insists he doesn't want to retire and doesn't want to be a reserve.

The Cubs, while not saying Bowa should hang up his spikes, have made it clear if he wants to stay with the club he will have to adjust to becoming a reserve.

Bowa is involved in a much publicized flap with Shawon Dunston over the starting role in the Cubs' lineup at shortstop.

Bowa came to spring training camp thinking he had the job but the Cubs awarded it to their highly-touted rookie.

Bowa exploded, challenging coach Don Zimmer and manager Jim Frey for conspiring to give the job to Dunston all along.

One month into the season, Bowa has calmed down but insists he hasn't given up the fire to play every day.

"When that happens, then I know I'll have to retire," says the 39-year-old Bowa. "I know that when the desire to play every day goes, it will be time to quit. But I haven't reached that point yet."

In the same breath, Bowa will insist he has adjusted to playing behind Dunston and has worked as much as he can to help the rookie.

"I know that Shawon is the starting shortstop for this team and I must make the most of the decision," Bowa says. "I've worked a lot with Shawon. I know that if he can play like they say the Cubs have a double play combination (with Ryne Sandberg, last year's MVP at second base) for the next 10 or 15 years."

Still, the desire to play every day, something Bowa has done for the past 15 seasons with the Philadelphia Phillies and the Cubs, still burns within the veteran.

But Bowa says he is tired of trying to prove his point that he can play in the major leagues.

"I'm tired of doing that. I've done that throughout my entire career," says Bowa, who broke in with the Phils in 1970. "If people don't believe that I can play now, then they never will."

The 5-foot-10 Bowa has had to live with that aura of not having the tools to play in the majors. Each year it would seem that someone would be the man to replace the switch-hitting Bowa. But each year, he would emerge a survivor.

Sometime in April, he will surpass Rabbit Maranville as the National League leader for most games played at shortstop. By the time the year ends, Bowa will have played in more than 2,200 games.

Expos edge Phillies in extra frame

MONTREAL (UPI) — Vance Law drew a bases-loaded walk off Charles Hudson with one out in the 10th inning Tuesday, giving the Montreal Expos a 5-4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Andre Dawson singled and stole second to open the 10th off Hudson, 0-2. After Hubie Brooks struck out, Herman Winningham was walked intentionally and Tim Wallach walked to load the bases. With Law batting, the Phillies brought right fielder Von Hayes in as a fifth infielder, right behind second base. The strategy was wasted, however, when Law walked on a 3-2 pitch to end the game.

Jeff Reardon, 1-0, pitched three hitless innings of relief for the win.

Philadelphia tied the score 4-4 with three runs in the fifth.

Starting pitcher Steve Carlton and Juan Samuel singled and Jeff Stone was safe when second baseman Law dropped the ball on an attempted force play for an error to load the bases.

Hayes singled home Carlton to make it 4-2. Samuel was thrown out at the plate on the play, but Stone took third on Mike Schmidt's fly out and Hayes stole second.

Bucks have Bulls in trouble

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Matadors should have as much success against the Bulls as the Milwaukee Bucks did last weekend.

You want more? The Bulls of Chicago are hurting following two losses in their best-of-five, opening-round NBA playoff series with the Bucks. A loss Wednesday night at Chicago Stadium and Michael Jordan will become as inactive as Michael Jackson has been recently.

"It's a slim chance, but it is still a chance," Jordan said. "We are confident we can win two at the Stadium. We would have to win one game on the road, anyhow."

Jordan is sensational, but he's probably not that sensational. Three straight victories over a Milwaukee team given a good chance to dethrone the Boston Celtics in the East could fall in the "there's no possible way" category.

Chicago coach Kevin Loughery looked to hockey history in his search for optimism, forgetting that the only ice in the Stadium Wednesday night will be used to soothe aching knees.

"The New York Islanders were the first team to lose two and win three," he said. "It can be done."

The Bulls won all three games against the Bucks at Chicago Stadium during the regular season. A first game, if necessary, will be played Friday night at the Stadium.

"We're 3-0 against them here, and we lost all five up there," forward Orlando Woolridge, who got into a heated argument with Milwaukee's Sidney Moncrief at the end of Sunday's game. "We're looking forward to playing them with our crowd behind them."

If a fifth and deciding game is needed, it will be played Sunday at Milwaukee.

"We certainly didn't want to go to Chicago with a split," Moncrief said. "Being up two games to zero, however, we don't want to relax and think that we can coast home."

Kosar allowed to decide own future

NEW YORK (UPI) — NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle ended the squabble over Bernie Kosar Tuesday by giving the University of Miami quarterback the last word on his own future.

Rozelle ruled Kosar, the center of a dispute between four NFL teams, may enter pro football through the league's regular draft April 30 or wait until the supplemental draft later in the summer.

In giving Kosar the right to choose which draft he wishes to enter, the commissioner opened the way for Kosar to play for either the Cleveland Browns or the Minnesota Vikings.

Kosar's father, Bernie Sr., said the young quarterback would make his intentions known Wednesday in Miami.

The Browns have first choice in the supplemental draft and they are the team Kosar has already said he would prefer to play for since they are located near his hometown, Boardman. The Minnesota Vikings had planned to draft Kosar in the first round of the April 30 draft.

Rozelle's ruling was required when both the Vikings and Browns made deals April 9 in hopes of drafting Kosar. Minnesota received the second pick in the regular draft from Houston, while Cleveland acquired the top pick in the supplemental draft from Buffalo.

Buffalo has already used the first pick in the regular draft by signing Virginia Tech defensive end Bruce Smith.

"I always said we had the strongest case in this whole affair, and I'm glad the Commissioner agreed," Cleveland owner Art Modell said. "Now, we can sit and wait for Bernie Kosar to decide what he wants to do."

"I feel optimistic and confident he'll be playing for the Browns next season."

Joiner signs one-year pact with Chargers

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Charlie Joiner, who has caught more passes than anyone in NFL history, signed a one-year contract with the San Diego Chargers, the team announced Tuesday.

Terms of the agreement were not revealed.

Joiner, 37, will play his 17th season next fall and is within range of the all-time passing yardage record held by Don Maynard, who played for the New York Jets. Joiner has 10,670 yards while Maynard piled up 11,834.

Joiner became the NFL leader in receptions last year when he caught 61 passes to bring his total to 657, eight more than Charley Taylor of the Washington Redskins, the former record holder.

Joiner joined the professional ranks in 1965 following a standout career at Grambling University.

Balboni finds stroke, gains Player of the Week honor

TORONTO (UPI) — In addition to battling opposing pitchers, Steve Balboni always felt he was battling for a job in the major leagues.

Balboni spent three seasons shuttling between the New York Yankees and their Triple-A affiliate, the Columbus Clippers of the International League. Soon, he wasn't sure his nickname — "Bye Bye Balboni" — was something said after one of his mammoth homers or while he was boarding a bus for yet another return to the minors.

But this season with his spot at first base for the Kansas City Royals secure, Balboni, 28, has been hammering American League pitchers. And for that, the slugger has been named the American League's Player of the Week.

"There's a lot less pressure this year," said the 6-foot-3, 225-pounder. "Last year I was trying to establish myself. I wanted to play every day and not get into a platoon situation."

"This year, I don't have to worry about home runs. All I have to do is worry about hitting the ball, driving in runs and helping this team win ball games."

Balboni platooned with Dane Iorg, who came to Kansas City in a midseason trade with St. Louis, at first base last season.

Balboni, who clubbed 28 homers in 126 games last season, hit his fourth this year in Monday night's 2-0 victory over the Blue Jays. Last week, he hit .385 with 10 hits in 26 at-bats. Included in his week-long spree were eight RBI, two doubles and 21 total bases.

Despite the terrific week, Balboni was surprised to be named Player of the Week.

"There's a lot of guys that have had real good starts," he said. "I haven't read all the stats. I know there's some guys for Seattle having good starts. There's a lot of guys hitting in the .400s and high .300s."

"It (the award) was the last thing on my mind."

One person happy to see Balboni performing well is Kansas City manager Dick Howser, who engineered the trade that brought Balboni and pitcher Roger Erickson from the Yankees in 1984 for reliever Mike Armstrong and catcher Duane Dewey.

"It's nice to see a guy like Balboni (doing well)," said Howser. "There's been some criticism about his strikeouts. He kicked around another organization for a while. Everybody's pulling for him, me included."

Krukow hurls Giants to victory

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mike Krukow tossed a seven-hitter and struck out 10 and the San Francisco Giants scored twice on an error by shortstop Dave Anderson in the fifth inning to defeat Fernando Valenzuela and the Los Angeles Dodgers, 2-1, Tuesday to snap a seven-game losing streak.

Krukow, 2-0, was in trouble in the first, fourth and sixth innings but came up with the big pitch when he needed it.

In the first, he got Greg Brock to pop out with runners at first and second, in the fourth he got Candy Maldonado to pop out after Mike Scioscia had belted a two-out triple and in the sixth he struck out Maldonado with runners on first and second to end the inning.

The Giants scored off Valenzuela, 2-2, in the fifth after Alex Trevino, picked up in a trade last week with Atlanta, ripped a one-out double. Jose Uribe followed with an infield single to put runners on first and second and, after Krukow sacrificed the runners to second and third, Dan Gladden hit an infield ground — that Anderson misplayed, allowing two runs to score.

Los Angeles did manage to get run in the seventh with the aid of a misjudged pop-up by second baseman Manny Trillo. Valenzuela reached first on Trillo's misjudgement and went to third when Mariano Duncan ripped a single to right. Valenzuela scored when Al Oliver ripped a single to center. However, the rally was killed when Duncan was thrown out at home.

Gibson paces Tigers to win

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Kirk Gibson's two-out "broken-bat" bloop double drove in two runs in the fifth inning Tuesday, lifting the Detroit Tigers to a 4-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

With the score tied 1-1 in the fifth, the Tigers loaded the bases on two-out singles by Chris Pittaro and Lou Whitaker and a walk to Alan Trammell.

Gibson then broke his bat swinging an inside fastball from loser Bert Blyleven, 0-2, but managed to muscle the ball over the head of third baseman Brook Jacoby. Pittaro and Trammell each scored on the hit.

Cleveland got a run back in the fifth on Tony Bernazard's triple and Julio Franco's sacrifice fly. Detroit added its final run in the sixth on an RBI double by Chet Lemon.

Dan Petry, 3-1, struck out two while allowing six hits and one walk over 6 and two-thirds innings. Bill Scherrer pitched two-thirds of an inning before being replaced by Cy Young winner Willie Hernandez, who got the final five outs for his third save. Hernandez yielded his first run of the season.

COOPER: Size doesn't hinder hurdler leading scorer with 96 points.

In the Illinois Intercollegiate State Meet last May at Evanston, Cooper shattered the school record in the 400-meter hurdles in 1:01.3 and helped the Salukis set a school record in the 4 x 400-meter relay in 3:47.5.

But Cooper continued to show improvement this season, setting two indoor school records in the 60-yard hurdles (8.45) and the 500-meter dash (1:17.71), before shattering her outdoor school record in the 400-meter hurdles.

Cooper said her teammates and roommates, Denise and Carlon Blackmon, have pushed her to work harder this year.

"With Carlon coming (a transfer from Drake) and Denise, it kind of makes you want to work a little harder," Cooper said.

"Denise pushes me a lot and encourages me a lot. I guess Denise and I decided this is going to be the year we're going to work a little harder."

Cooper said another reason for her improvement is the intense workouts demanded by DeNoon, who was hired as the SIU-C women's track coach following the resignation of Claudia Blackman after Cooper's freshman year.

Cooper said she needs to improve her endurance in the 400-meter hurdles if she wants to reach the national qualifying standard of 59.40.

"I have a beautiful race until I hit about the 300-, 320-yard mark and then I kind of lose it," she said. "I think if I can maintain my speed in the last half of the race, the final 100 yards, I can get closer to the qualifying time because I have the technique."

"If I don't qualify this year, I'll be disappointed but I know I have one more year to go and I definitely want to do it before I graduate."

An accounting major, Cooper hopes to graduate in the summer of 1986.

"I would like to work in an accounting firm for about two or three years and then I would like to branch out," she said. "I want to get some experience under my belt and then see what the other part of accounting is about, instead of just specializing in public accounting."

BORGSMILLER TRAVELS

Aces sweep baseball team

By Stan Goff
Staff Writer

The baseball Salukis lacked punch from their bats, gaining only 11 hits as they fell 5-3 and 3-2 to Evansville in a double-header Tuesday at Abe Martin Field.

"I'm disappointed with the way we're hitting the ball," SIU-C coach Richard "Itchy" Jones said. "I thought we were going to be a good hitting ballclub."

The series started out good for the Salukis as Jay Burch hit his fourth home run of the year after Gerald Pitchford had reached on an error in the first inning of game one to give them an early 2-0 lead on Evansville right-hander Pat Heck. Meanwhile Paul Saikia was shutting down the Purple Aces through five innings.

In the bottom of the fifth, SIU-C went up 3-0, but blew an opportunity to chase Heck from the game and take an even bigger advantage.

Charlie Hillemann and Kevin Pour opened the inning with singles, and Jim Limperis and Kerry Boudreaux followed with walks to force a run home, but with the top of the order up and nobody out, SIU-C failed to score again. Pitchford hit a grounder to Mike Burger at third, who threw to the plate to force Pour. Mike Gellinger hit a ground ball that second baseman Tom Weinzapfel turned into a double play to end the inning.

Saikia walked the first two men he faced in the top of the sixth, and Jones went to his bullpen, calling upon Rich Koch, who leads the club with five saves and five victories and who entered the contest with a sparkling earned run average of 0.81.

Koch retired the first two batters he faced, but Evansville left fielder Darren Niethammer hit a groundball between short and third for an infield hit. Pour made a fine play to field the ball, but he had no chance at retiring Niethammer and the bases were loaded.

Koch then worked the count full to the Purple Aces' designated hitter Lester Zitkus, who responded with a double to left center field to score all three runners and tie the score at 3-3. Hillemann, coming from his left field position, couldn't quite get his glove on the ball and Niethammer scored the tying run all the way from first.

The Salukis failed to score on Heck in the sixth and on left-hand reliever David Fox in the seventh, so the game went to extra innings, where Koch, who's not used to working more than one or two innings in relief, was touched for two runs in the eighth and his fourth loss of the season.

Once again the Purple Aces scored with two outs, as Niethammer singled up the middle after Koch had retired the first two Evansville batters in the inning. Niethammer then stole second base, prompting the Salukis to intentionally walk Zitkus to face Burger. But before Burger could swing the bat, the Aces had taken a 4-3 lead.

Evansville attempted a double-steal and when catcher Clay Brewer's throw got away from Pour at third, Niethammer scampered home with the lead run. Burger followed with an RBI-single to give the Aces an insurance run and a 5-3 lead.

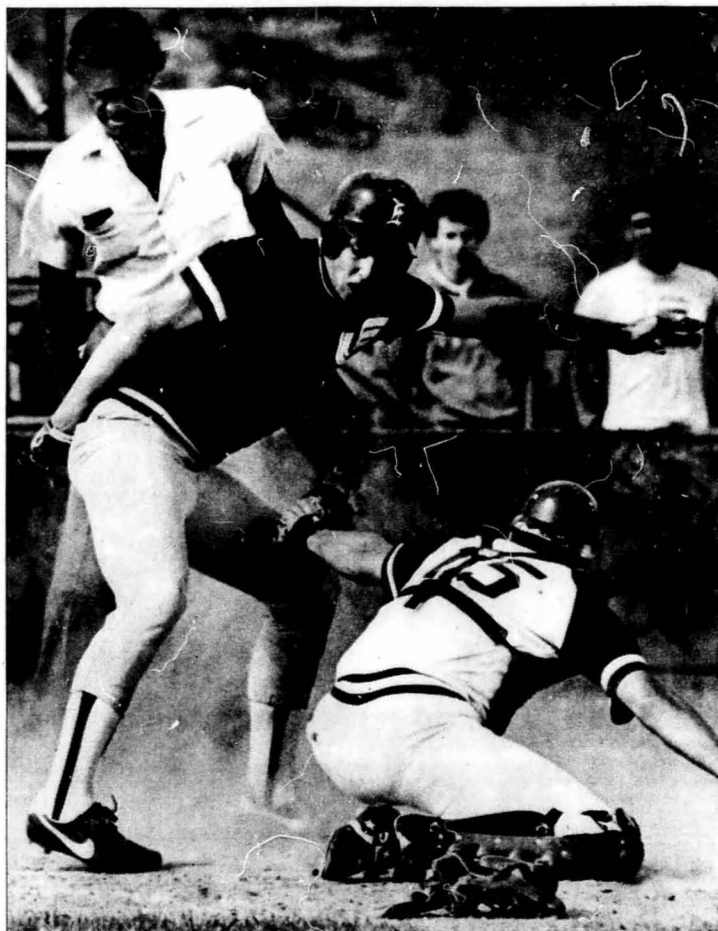

Steve Finley doubled with two outs in the bottom of the eighth, but that was all the Salukis could get off of Fox, who picked up the win in relief.

SIU-C also struck first in the nightcap when Limperis doubled home Chuck Verschoore, who reached base on a bunt single, in the second inning. The score remained 1-0 until the fourth, where the Aces came up with three runs to take the lead for good.

The Aces hit SIU-C reliever Jay Bellissimo (4-3) for three runs and four hits, including a lead-off triple by Weinzapfel and a double by Niethammer. Niethammer was 3-for-6 with three runs scored on the day.

SIU-C cut the gap to 3-2 in the fifth when Jim Kating, who walked to start the inning, scored on Finley's double. But SIU-C failed to score in the sixth inning when the game was called because of rain, and the Salukis' record dropped to 28-19.

The Salukis travel to Charleston Wednesday to take on the Panthers of Eastern Illinois University at 1 p.m.

Men netters to host UT-Martin

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

The SIU-C men's tennis team will attempt to move closer to the .500 mark on Wednesday when it hosts Tennessee-Martin in a 2 p.m. match at the Arena tennis courts.

The Salukis split a pair of matches in Wichita, Kan., last weekend, defeating Tulsa 7-2 before losing to Wichita State 8-1. SIU-C has an 11-13 record.

Saluki coach Dick LeFevre said the match should provide his team with a good tuneup for the quadrangular meet SIU-C is hosting this weekend.

Alabama-Birmingham, Illinois

State and Evansville will join the Salukis in the meet.

"We played against Tennessee-Martin in a tournament last fall and finished second," LeFevre said. "They finished behind us. Based on that, I would think we'll be the favorite."

Allen receives GCAC tennis honor

The Salukis' Amanda Allen was selected as the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference Player of the Week Monday for women's tennis.

Allen, a senior from Galesburg, won three singles matches last week at the SIU-E Invitational in Edwardsville to help the Salukis post a second-place finish.

Allen has won nine out of her last 10 matches to improve her spring record to 10-9 overall.

Including the fall season, she has a 11-1 conference record and is 19-14 overall.

"Amanda is a real solid player," SIU-C women's tennis coach Judy Auld said.

Size disadvantage does not hinder Cooper

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

Karen Cooper, a hurdler on the SIU-C women's track team, said Tuesday she originally went out for track in high school because she was too small to compete in other sports.

"I like to play volleyball and some basketball, but I always felt like I was always too small and the only other sports were soccer and softball," said the 5-foot-3 Cooper. "I couldn't hit a softball too well so I just settled for track."

The decision paid off for Cooper, who shattered her school record in the 400-meter hurdles Saturday with a time of 1 minute, 1.1 seconds at the Eastern Illinois Pepsi Challenge Invitational.

Cooper managed to better her previous best by two-tenths of a second despite running into a 20 mph wind in the final 120 yards of the race.

"I was really surprised at the time I ran at Eastern," Cooper said. "I felt like I was coasting through the first 200 meters, it was real easy."

"When I reached the last 120 meters I was fighting a big gust of wind and after the race, he (SIU-C coach Don DeNoon) told me I ran a 1:01.1. I was like wait a minute, I had to hear it again to make sure the time was correct."

A junior from Ferguson, Mo., Cooper was a four-year performer on the women's track team at McClure High School in Florissant.

Cooper finished fourth in the state meet her junior year in the 200-meter low hurdles and fifth in the 100-meter high hurdles and repeated those performances her senior year.

After graduating from high school, Cooper said she had offers from Northeast Missouri State and Southeast Missouri State.

But she selected SIU-C on the recommendation of Bill Becker, her high school coach, and Frank Goza, her former junior high coach.

"Coach Becker talked me into coming to Southern because he said it had a pretty good program and it was close to home," Cooper recalled.

But Cooper had a disappointing freshman season at SIU-C when she ran the 400-meter hurdles for the first time in her career.

"My freshman season was probably the worst year I've ever had in my track career," Cooper said. "The training was there, it was more like are you motivated to train."

Cooper rebounded from her disappointing freshman year by putting together a solid sophomore season and finishing as the Salukis' fifth-
