Gay march one of biggest in history

Staff Report and The Baltimore Sun

WASHINGTON — Despite being sick and having to drive 20 hours, being part of the gay rights march in Washington Sunday made it all worthwhile for SIUC graduate student Anne Chamberlain.

"I'm still buzzing from the march," said Chamberlain, calling from a phone near the capitol mall shortly after the rally ended. "I woke up with a sore throat yesterday and I'm barely making it, but I'm so glad to be here. There's no place in the world I'd rather be."

Chamberlain, who is a student in cinema and photography from Bloomington, Ind., was one of hundreds of thousands who attended the march and among 100 people from Carbondale who made the drive.

SIUC student: 'No place I'd rather be'

She said she will have to wait to see how the government responds, but the gay and lesbian community certainly showed that it is not going to lie down.

"In terms of why we're here — the civil rights bill, the gay ban in the military — I don't think tomorrow all these things will happen," Chamberlain said. "But we've certainly shown we're not going to retreat."

The hundreds of thousands of gay rights demonstrators streamed through central Washington Sunday on a march where exuberance and sexual liberation overshadowed anger.

It was one of the biggest civil rights demonstrations in U.S. history, but it may not have been the record-breaking one million-plus crowd that organizers claimed it was.

U.S. Park Police put the crowd at 300,000—an estimate that march organizer Billy Hileman called "an insult." That would make it smaller than last year's abortion rights rally, which drew 500,000, and only 100,000 larger than the 1987 gay rights march on Washington, according to Park Service estimates.

The parade was still moving Sunday evening, more than six hours after it began. Organizers said that they hoped a huge turnout would boost their demands—primarily for an end to the ban on gays in the military, protection for homosexuals in a rewritten Civil Rights Act, increased funding to combat AIDS and improvements in women's health care.

Chamberlain was surprised to see so many people she knew in such a large crowd.

"I must have run into 12 people I knew from back home," she said. "It made it seem weird, like I was at home but among this crowd of people."

Chamberlain said she saw Martina Navratilova speak and watched the Indigo Girls perform — although the band was just a speck.

Yeltsin gets support from Russia

The Washington Post

MOSCOW—President Boris Yeltsin appeared Sunday night to be receiving a strong vote of confidence from the Russian people in a nationwide referendum that he hopes will allow him to settle a debilitating power struggle with the country's parliament and push ahead with the transition to a free market economy.

An exit poll for The Washington Post and several other American news organizations reported that around 65 percent of Russian voters had expressed confidence in Yeltsin personally, while about 58 percent had approved his painful free market reforms. Voters also appeared to have called for fresh elections of the country's parliament by an overwhelming margin—but it was not clear whether that question had garnered enough votes for it to be legally binding.

Early unofficial results from the Russian Far East, 11 times zones east of Moscow, seemed to confirm the exit poll's impression of a significant victory for Yeltsin. In several Far Eastern and Siberian cities, up to 70 percent of the electorate expressed confidence in Yeltsin while up to 60 percent approved the "social and economic policies conducted by the president and government since 1992."

If confirmed, the referendum result would represent an important victory for Yeltsin, who wants to sweep away the remnants of the communist political system and institute a much stronger presidency. Parliamentary leaders are scheduled to meet today to decide whether to convene a full session of the Congress.

FOCUS on STUDENTS and RELIGION

THE WAR OF MORALS

Students tell experiences of stereotyping which have created conflicts with others

By Karyn Viverito
Special Assignment Writer

Church has created a war of morals between students on campus, an SIUC professor of sociology says.

Students who have made church a regular part of their college life say they constantly must battle misconceptions of being abnormal "Bible Beaters."

Ed Patterson said this conflict often gives both those who attend, and those who do not, a negative image of each other.

"The students did not invent that conflict because it is one that has come from society," he said. "You can actually consider their conflicts part of the war of morals on campus."

Patterson said many conflicts come from the stereotypes attached to people who regularly are involved with religion.

"It becomes obvious on this campus that not everybody is doing it," he said.

"Students here are part of a low point in relationship to religion, but some may come back to it."

Amy Rubenacker, a junior in elementary education from McLeansboro, said some people can take stereotyping out of context, and paint a picture of churchgoers that goes too far.

"They are the ones that do not understand the importance that it holds for us," she said. "Yet we still go to parties and get together with friends just like anybody else."

Phoenix Committee will try to convince Faculty Senate

By Tracy Moss
Administration Writer

The Phoenix Committee is hoping to get another chance Tuesday to convince the Faculty Senate that a new college will save money.

In the last meeting of the academic year, the Faculty Senate faces a full agenda topped by a resolution to reconsider the proposal to create a new college for the four units remaining in the College of Communication and Fine Arts.

Jervis Underwood, president of the senate, said before discussion can be heard on the proposed college of communication, the senate members must take a vote on whether to reconsider the issue.

"If the members vote to reconsider then there will be an opportunity for more discussion, and the senate will then vote on the resolution to support a free-standing college," he said.

On April 13, the senate voted 13-11 with four abstentions

Braves sweep 3 from Salukis

By Dan Leahy
Sports Writer

The SIUC baseball team took a tumble in the Missouri Valley Conference standings during the weekend, as the Bradley Braves averaged nearly 10 runs a game in sweeping the Salukis.

The Dawgs got off to a bad start in the first game on Saturday, as starter Dan Linton got shelled for 11 runs in five innings pitched. Linton did not help his own cause either, as he walked seven batters during the five-inning stint.

Chris Allison, Lyle Martin and Sean Watkins each collected three hits to pace the Braves' 16-hit attack. Watkins also earned high RBI honors for the day with four.

Bryan Rokar ran his record to 5-1 by pitching seven innings and allowing four runs.

The Salukis collected seven hits, with Jason Smith and Jeff Cwynar leading the way with two each. Smith also knocked in two runs.

In the second game, the Salukis held a 4-2 advantage heading into the bottom of the sixth before the floodgates opened.

The Braves scored five in the bottom of the sixth and added two more in the eighth to make for a 9-4 final.

Bradley managed to go deep three times off of Saluki pitcher Mike Van Gilder, with Pat Graham hitting two homers. Mike Burke also had a dinger and picked up four RBI.

Matt Weisbruch and Jason Simmons held the Salukis at bay, limiting the Dawgs to eight hits and four runs.

Chris Saurich had a good game at the plate for the Dawgs, going 3-for-4 with a solo homer.

Women's tennis takes fifth at Valley tournament

By Kevin Bergquist
Sports Editor

The SIUC women's team shook off a first-round loss and stormed back for three wins to take fifth at the Missouri Valley Conference championships in Wichita, Kan.

After losing to Illinois State, 4-5, Thursday, the Salukis took out Northern Iowa, Bradley and Southwest Missouri State to claim the fifth spot.

"The match against ISU was a real good match; it could not have been closer," SIUC coach Judy Auld said. "The team rebounded well and came back."

On Friday, SIUC buried the loss, and then buried Northern Iowa, 6-0.

Wendy Varnum topped Traci Jesse, 7-5, 6-1 at the No. 1 spot. Lori Gallagher won at No. 2, 6-0, 6-0 over Tiffany Danmer. Leesa Joseph captured No. 3 with a 6-4, 6-0 win over Cherie Cook. Irena Feofanova, who was a perfect 4-0 on the weekend, topped Danielle Farr, 6-2, 6-1 at No. 4. Catherine Pietsch took out Lori Hasenwinkel, 6-0, 6-0, at No. 5. Karen Wasser completed the sweep with a 6-0, 6-1 win at the No. 6 position.

SIUC went to 2-1 on the weekend with a 5-2 victory over Bradley in the consolation semifinals.

Varnum dropped the No. 1 match, 0-6, 6-0, 6-4, to Tamra Payne. Gallagher won at No. 2, 6-2, 6-2, over Katie Borgstrom. At No. 3, Joseph topped Tammy Hall, 6-4, 6-0. Feofanova won 6-4, 6-4, over Megan McGinnis at the No. 4 position, while Pietsch dropped the No. 5 match, 6-2, 4-6, 7-6, 7-5, to Gwen Holdman. Wasser took the No. 6 match with a 6-1, 3-6, 6-4 win over Bridget Stansel, 6-1, 3-6, 6-4.

Gallagher and Pietsch defeated

Payne and McGinnis at No. 1 doubles.

SIUC completed its run with a 5-1 victory over Southwest Missouri State. Varnum dropped the Salukis' only point in a three-set loss.

"We really wanted to win conference and felt we had a shot at the title," Auld said. We regrouped and came back with three good wins. They really wanted fifth place."

Men tracksters fare well at pair of meets

By Jeff McIntire
Sports Writer

The Saluki men's track and field squad split up to compete in two meets during the weekend.

SIUC participated in the nationally televised Penn Relays and the Murray State Twilight Invitational, and gained another NCAA provisional qualifier.

Brian Miller made a personal record shot put of 57-11 3/4 to place third at the Penn Relays, fifth on the SIUC all-time list, and good enough to qualify Miller provisionally for the NCAA championships.

Other highlights from the Penn Relays included a fourth-place high jump of 7-2 1/4 by Cameron Wright, a seventh-place discus throw of 167-1 by Torry King, and a 14th-place finish out of a field of 80 top athletes of 14:46.19 by Garth Akai in the 5,000 meters.

The Penn Relays were nationally televised on ESPN.

"Half of them did well and half of them didn't do a very good job," SIUC coach Bill Cornell said of the Saluki athletes competing in the Penn Relays.

At Murray State, the Saluki athletes placed fifth as a team, with several strong performances.

Kyle Barton placed second in the pole vault, clearing 14-6, and Dan Brazee cleared 6-8 in the high jump to place third.

It was Mark Goodheart who led the way, however, with a second-place discus throw of 155-10 and a third-place shot put of 45-8.

Strong finishes were also made by Neville Brooks, Martin Fysh, Jeff Beaumont, and Neil Lisk.

Brooks finished third in the 800 meters in 1:57.34, and Beaumont finished fourth in that event in 1:57.7.

Fysh placed third in the 5,000 meters in 15:23 and Neil Lisk finished fourth in 15:27.

Cornell said that the weather was blustery, but the athletes had some good performances.

"We had some good performances considering," he said.

"(The meets) helped us a little more in preparations for the conference championships."

SIUC breaks mark at Drake, wins at MSU

By Jeff McIntire
Sports Writer

The Saluki women's track athletes split into two squads, one competing at the Drake Relays and one at the Murray State Invitational meet.

The distance medley relay team of Leann Reed, Shaune Winfield, Jennie Horner and Dawn Barefoot broke the old school record of 11:53.48 (set in 1988) with a time of 11:47.7 at the Drake Relays.

Deborah Daehler moved up to fifth on the Saluki all-time list in the 5,000 meters at Drake, placing eighth with a time of 17:37.2.

SIUC coach Don DeLoon said he was satisfied with the performances at the Drake Relays.

"Any time we break a team record, we're doing well. There is a history of fine athletes here at SIUC," he said.

The squad that competed at Murray State ran circles around the second-place Racers, 160-94. Following the top two were Louisville, Arkansas State and Western Kentucky among others.

There were many highlights from the competition, in which the Salukis featured a first-place finish, nine second-place finishes, six third-place finishes, five fourth-place finishes, and seven fifth-place finishes.

The lone first-place finish for the Salukis was made by Rhonda Brown, who won the high jump with a mark of 5-6.

The relay teams performed, compiling second-place finishes in the 4x100 relay (47.61; Nacolia Moore, Crystalla Constantinou, Katrina Daniels, and Julie Tuttleben), and the 4x400 relay (3:53:50; Daniels, Mary Ann Hornik, LaTonya Morrison, and Constantinou).

The Saluki "B" relay teams finished fourth in each event.

The sprinting group also fared well in the individual events, with Constantinou placing second in the 100 meters (11.88) and the 200 meters (24.60), Elissa Pierce and Jennifer Simonton winning second (1:08.37) and third (1:11.31), respectively, in the 400 hurdles, and with Tuttleben, Morrison, Danielle Melton, and Hornik sweeping third through six in the

Softball takes 3 of 4 league tilts

The SIUC softball team continued its hot play in the Missouri Valley Conference during the weekend, taking three of four league contests.

On Friday, the Salukis swept Illinois State by scores of 4-0 and 6-5.

In the first game SIUC hurler Tania Meier two-hit the Redbirds on the way to her 10th win of the season against just three losses.

Leading the hit parade for the Salukis were Colleen Holloway and Laurie Wilson, who each had 2-for-3 performances. Holloway collected the record for most career hits with 188. It was Holloway's ninth school record.

In the second game, the Salukis found themselves down 5-1, but rallied to capture the win in eight innings. SIUC is now a perfect 3-0 in extra frame contests.

Wilson, Jarai Koss and Christine Knott each racked up two hits on the game.

Angie Mick (11-4) collected the win.

On Saturday, the Salukis went to Peoria and split a pair of games with Bradley.

Karrie Irvin smacked three triples, and Mick (12-4) scattered eight hits and two Brave runs, as SIUC took the first game, 8-2.

The second game saw the Salukis come close to pulling off their second rally on the weekend.

Bradley led the Salukis 6-1, before SIUC countered for four runs before falling short, 6-5.

Wilson and Jenny Kotz each had two hits for the Salukis.

Mick (10-4) gave up 12 hits in taking the loss.

TAIWAN RETAINS HIGH ECONOMIC GROWTH — Befitting an island aspiring to become an advanced industrial society, Taiwan sports European fashions, German cars and American graduate degrees. But the new high life has an exorbitant price. Once known as Formosa—"beautiful" in Portuguese — Taiwan has maintained one of the world's highest economic growth rates for four decades and produced a textbook case of environmental degradation.

JAPAN ISSUES ANTI-AMERICA TRADE POLICY — As befits a political leader whose approval rating is hovering perilously close to single digits, Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa has been searching for ways to regain the initiative. This month, he found one: Say no to America. Miyazawa's unyielding stance against the Clinton administration on trade issues has been a clear success at home, winning him greater popular and editorial support than he has seen in months.

SERB LEADER REJECTS FINAL COMPROMISE — Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic Saturday rejected the last offered compromise on a peace plan for Bosnia-Herzegovina, a move that will bring harsher U.N. sanctions on his patrons in Serbia and probably accelerate the drive for Western military intervention in the Balkan war. "If we accept this, we are dead, finished," a shakken Karadzic told reporters after talks with European Community mediator Lord Owen.

BRAZIL LEADER PLANS ECONOMIC REFORM — Brazilian President Itamar Franco, shunning off criticism of government inaction, announced a broad plan of economic reform intended to combat everything from hunger and homelessness to recession and financial speculation. Outlined during a Cabinet meeting in Brasilia, the three-tiered plan proposes to slash public spending, put Brazilians to work, and feed and house the estimated 32 million Brazilians living in misery.

U.S. AUTO WORKERS MEET TO SAVE UNIONS — Contract negotiations in the auto industry this year essentially have been reduced to a single issue: survival. For the United Auto Workers union, which opens a special three-day meeting in Detroit Monday to prepare its bargaining strategy, the question is how best to protect the union survivors in an industry where more than 20 percent of all cars manufactured domestically are assembled by non-union workers.

TWO CULT MEMBERS DIED FROM GUNSHOTS — Two of the Branch Davidians whose bodies were recovered this week from the ruins of Ranch Apocalypse died of single "gunshot wounds to the head," authorities said. Of six autopsies completed Saturday, Nizam Peerwani, chief medical examiner of Tarrant County, said that a man and a woman whose charred corpses were found atop a bunker had been shot, but he would not elaborate on the location or type of wounds.

KING BEATING BECOMES FINANCIAL SUCCESS — Amateur cameraman George Holliday was the first to collect, receiving $500 from a local television station for his videotape of a man being struck by baton-wielding Los Angeles police officers. Two years later, after two trials, one riot and a national debate over police brutality, few come that cheap. In the time-honored if occasionally unseemly spirit of capitalism, the Rodney King case is a mini-economy fueled by tabloid journalism.

Can't be on-campus?

Want to go home to work or play, but...

You want to take an SIUC course this summer?

Individualized Learning Program courses carry SIUC residential credit applicable toward a degree. ILP courses have no enrollment limits, and students can register throughout the semester. Students use a study guide developed by an SIUC instructor as the course framework and study at a time and place of their choosing. To register in an ILP course, on-campus students need to bring a registration form signed by their advisor to our office at Washington Square "C." Off-campus students should contact the ILP office directly. We must receive payment of $65 per credit hour when you register (Mastercard, Visa, and Discover now accepted). Call the Individualized Learning Program office at 536-7751 for further information.

SIUC debate team awaits funding

By Tina Davis
General Assignment Writer

To the SIUC debate team, placing 18th in the nation out of 250 colleges and universities is not good enough — not when it has been in the top nine for 11 years and No. 1 for four consecutive years.

Because of cuts from the University, the team has lost a graduate assistant, a coach and $6,000 to its travel budget, along with several team members.

SIUC officials disagree who is to blame for the cuts, but if a budget situation may improve next year, said James VanOosting, chairman of speech communication.

VanOosting said despite a history of generous support from the president's office, the debate team has been as vulnerable as all other programs to budget cutbacks.

"However, I believe that, thanks to President (John C.) Guyon's intervention and Dean (John S.) Jackson's cooperation, we may be able to put together a funding package that will restabilize the debate program and ensure its viability into the future," VanOosting said.

He said the package includes hiring a new coach and increasing the debate budget.

Jeff Bile, debate coach, said he did not know who was involved with the budget cutting, but the constant cuts caused the team to fall.

VanOosting said money from the debate team comes directly from Guyon's office, so everything is funded by the president.

But Guyon said VanOosting is the one who makes the budget cuts to the department.

"Some time back, we pieced together some funding for the debate team, and that funding is still in place, most of it. It was reallocated from the vice president of academic affairs office to the debate program and the department of speech," Guyon said.

Guyon said speech communication had a budget reduction over the last two or three years, the same as every other department, and funds were taken from the debate team.

"It's all a matter of priorities," Guyon said.

Bile said he did not think the department understood how hard it is for the debate team to build such a reputation.

"Our budget is less than the top 20 budget and we had to struggle to stay there," Bile said. "The department is letting it slip away."

VanOosting said he understands the deep feelings of loyalty debaters and University alumni have, which is why in another week everything with the funding package should be worked out.

Mass transit needs funds, BOT support

By Katie Morrison
Special Assignment Writer

Students overwhelmingly supported the referendum for a mass transit service last week, but it could take six months to get formal approval, a transit organizer said.

Deve Madlener, chairman of the Saluki Mass Transit Advisory Board and Jackson County Mass Transit District, said the next step for the transit program is the SIUC Board of Trustees for approval. He hopes to have the buses running by fall 1994.

Madlener will meet with SIUC President John C. Guyon Tuesday to discuss bringing the transit idea to the BOT.

"It might take six months to process the proposal," he said.

The committee also needs to start securing federal funding for the program, Madlener said. It will cost $1.8 million to start the service. Funds will come from SIUC students, federal funds and money paid by non-students each time they ride.

Last week, 2,204 students voted in favor of the service and 806 opposed. Students will see a fee increase of $20 a semester for unlimited use of the service.

The idea of a transit service was first introduced in 1985.

Three referendums and seven years later, students approved the idea.

"More students voted yes in this election than in 1986 and 1988, separately," Madlener said.

The students were key in starting the service, Madlener said. He said he does not foresee any problems with the BOT, but he is unsure how SIUC's administration will react.

"I don't know how informed the administration is about the transit program," Madlener said. "There are new administrators working with the committee now since when the committee started. The bottleneck could lie in Woody Hall."

Leaders must follow election with actions

THE ALLIANCE PARTY WILL ASSUME power in Undergraduate Student Government May 17.

President-elect Mike Spiwak, Vice President-elect Lorenzo Henderson and 25 Alliance senators-elect of 39 senate seats will begin an anticipated year of undergraduate student representation, and Student Trustee-elect Mark Kochan will begin his term to represent all SIUC students on the Board of Trustees.

To help in decision-making when they assume power, party members must remember what made them overwhelming winners in an election that had greater turnout than in the past 10 years.

Their actions should show they have reflected on the past and that they are prepared to make strides to improve USG representation in the future.

FIRST, THEY MUST RECALL their most important campaign promises. To ensure the Alliance Party truly will be a voice of the students, members must follow through with their promise to go to the public.

Town meetings with constituents must take place regularly and often. Alliance representatives at these meetings should ask everyone for input on bills and issues USG faces.

Another Alliance plank was to provide a financial aid computer in the USG office for students to use, and the party should keep its promise to help students find financial aid. The computer would provide information on available scholarships, grants and loans.

And Spiwak's group should follow through on its promise to improve student rights to the Student Center. Students pay $40 a semester to maintain the structure; USG should fight to let students brown bag lunches in their own center.

BUT THE NEWLY ELECTED LEADERS also would serve students well by realizing some planks on their platform need improvement. Both are alcohol-related.

The first, resisting a bar entry age increase, is not a leadership stance. Reasons, such as possible increases in keg parties and in driving under the influence, exist for resisting the increase.

But resistance does nothing to solve the pervasive underage drinking problem on campus. Students need leadership that acknowledges the problem and supports University programming that tries to prevent it.

In the same vein, Spiwak should rethink his proposal to help offset the costs of athletic events with sponsorships by beer companies, which would counter SIUC's goals to curtail student drinking problems.

The Alliance Party instead should support efforts by the Athletic Department to attract other companies as sponsors.

TO BE SUCCESSFUL LEADERS, the Alliance Party must recall the progress of its opponents and continue some of the work Brad Cole and the Student Party began.

For instance, the student body's relationships with the administration and with the city have improved during the past years. It is important that the lines of communication remain open and that informed decision-making continue on such projects as the Long-Term Planning Committee.

The Student Party, led by Cole, also has been instrumental in keeping the power of Student Activity Fee allocations in the hands of the students. Spiwak must make sure the power is not taken away from USG. He must keep tight control of funding, and he must keep good records.

The Unity Coalition, a committee of minority leaders set up to advise the USG president, also must continue — and meet more often — to give minorities an active voice.

IF THE ALLIANCE PARTY can keep in sight what it stands for, reflect the student body in its decisions and maintain a willingness to lead and learn, it will be effective.

Letters to the Editor

Instructors set example for behavior

I am writing in response to two recent letters, in which students expressed dismay over the lack of basic courtesy shown toward instructors and other students in the classroom.

As an instructor, I am appreciative of students' remarks that express concern about students' rudeness to instructors.

Students sometimes fail to appreciate what it is like on the other side of the podium, and such remarks are heartening.

Of more general concern is the issue of classroom disruption, which interferes with instruction. It is inevitable that a small fraction of students will be irresponsible.

Instructors do the responsible majority of students a disservice, however, when they fail to curb this irresponsibility.

A healthy learning atmosphere should be provided for the benefit of all, even if it means asking a disruptive student to desist a particular behavior or, if all else fails, to leave the lecture.

Instructors who fail to do this are not good instructors.

In other words, classes are not disrupted by immature students; they are disrupted by instructors who allow students to behave immaturely.

Fortunately, I have never had serious difficulties with students in my classes.

In part, this is because chemistry majors typically are serious students.

But also in part, this is because my demeanor conveys the message that I will not tolerate such behavior.

I encourage all responsible students to take your instructors to task, if a good learning environment is not provided for you. It is your undeniable right. — Joe M. Davis, Associate Professor, Chemistry and Biochemistry

SIUC debate team should take pride in its many achievements

With three two-person teams, each composed of one freshman and one sophomore, the 1993 SIUC Carbondale Debate Program got going when the going got tough.

The Saluki's captured all of 1992-93's top six tournaments since January, won two varsity division championships in the last six weeks of the season, and had three of the top six performances of the 92-93 season between March 11 and 30 ("March Madness").

During this period the debating daws claimed two of the top four team finishes at the JV National Championship and two of its teams selected for the CEDA Varsity National Championship "Round of 64."

One of these SIUC teams reached 17th place and the other lost a first-round split decision to defending 1992 National Champion and eventual 1993 tournament champion Kansas State University.

Dream signals lack of unison

I had a dream last night — a noted playwright, author and graduate student at a midwestern university wrote a play, which its theater department presented; cinema students blocked, lighted and directed; radio and television students produced and edited the play onto videotape (and audiotape for the radio play); journalists from the campus newspaper covered and reviewed it, and the television station videotaped, broadcast and distributed the play nationally, bringing acclaim to the college and to the University which fostered this forward thinking project — then I woke up, laughed at the implausibility of my dream, and vowed never to eat brownies and beer before bedtime. — David R. Lecturer provides insight into world of art censorship

By Christian Kernerly
Special Assignment Writer

A lecture Thursday night titled "War On Art: Censorship in American Government and Culture" provided insight into the steadily increasing trend of criticism and suppression of art.

The slide presentation, narrated by assistant professor Jed Jackson of the School of Art and Design, gave examples of how censorship has manifested itself in societies from the ancient Greeks to modern times.

Jackson said the ancient Greeks readily accepted male nudity in art, but heavily censored female nudity and passed laws against it.

He said Plato, who is often considered one of the more radical fathers of modern thought, was actually a staunch critic of innovation and thought art was a threat to the public good.

Jackson said present day America has gone through many stages in determining the societal standards for art, and that Sigmund Freud's works on sexuality helped change the way people think about sex in art.

Modern censorship in art of all forms is inconsistent, and the way America judges sex and violence in art varies greatly, he said.

"Violence against women is more acceptable. It is more palatable in our imagery," Jackson said. "Go to the movies and what do you see? You see in many cases women in their underwear being chased by psychopaths."

He said photography often receives heavy criticism for the choice of subject matter, but that this criticism exemplifies the double standard in America.

"Turn on the news and see what you see. You will see brutal pictures in graphic beautiful video color of people being maimed and tortured," he said. "It's happening right now in front of the cameras and we don't censor that. But we sure get upset about two men about to make love."

Jackson said the importance of symbols in American society creates problems over issues such as flag burning. Americans have a hard time separating the ideals behind our symbols from the actual physical object that represents it, he said.

Censorship of art in America largely is dependent on the artists themselves, he said.

with church, said a happy medium can be found in making religion part of college life.

"It is still possible to be wild to an extent, but just because you are involved with religion, does not mean that you are not having fun."

On the weekends, Jenn Carril can be found getting together with friends, going to the bars or a movie, or going on retreats with her church youth group.

Carril, a sophomore in psychology from O'Fallon, is another student who has found time to schedule church activities as part of her social life at SIUC.

And she said being involved with religious activities is something that was easy to do.

"It is only once a week, so it did not take time away from anything else that I wanted to do," she said. "It was also a lot of fun, and I made a lot of friends through attending."

Carril participates in the group Teens Encounter Christ, an Illinois group that brings together teens from churches all over the state.

But she said she realizes that many college students are not like her.

"Most students stop going to church when they go away to school, and I think there are mainly two reasons for it," she said. "One, they are not really interested in the church to begin with when they leave home, and two, because of the stereotype that goes with it."

Carril said most people misconceive churchgoers as only practicing what they preach, and those not involved with religion are condemned to hell.

"Others can see us as 'bible bangers' who don't drink or smoke, and walk around preaching religion constantly," she said. "People are always tiptoeing around because they feel that they can't do anything but bad around us."

Jackie Badger is a student who had been away from the church for about seven years and became reinvolved once he came to college.

Badger said he has noticed the stereotypes, and feels that there is some misconception.

"I think people see the church as being very organized and formal, but not all religion is like that anymore, and I think students can find that churches are a lot more caring," he said. "People also start to think that the church does not accept any change from the written word and they stay away for those reasons."

Badger said because of this fear, students try to do other things to make up for it.

"People feel more comfortable with the image of doing something good for people and the environment, but they do not feel comfortable doing things in the image of the church," he said.

Carril said being involved with religion means people can do some good for themselves, and it does not condemn one to a certain lifestyle.

"Just because you are involved with the church does not mean you have to walk around with your hands folded 24 hours a day," he said. "All you have to do is be who you are."

against a resolution to endorse the creation of a free-standing unit of the departments remaining in CCFa. No one from the four units had a vote.

Five departments from CCFa relocated to the College of Liberal Arts during the fall semester, leaving the remaining units to find a new home or create their own unit.

Underwood said the issue was placed on the agenda a second time because a senator who voted in the majority against the proposal motioned for a reconsideration of the issue.

"There was a question that perhaps some information was not presented in the first meeting and that information could change some people's minds," he said.

William Elliott, chairman of the Phoenix Committee, said committee members are looking forward to presenting their proposal and expressing the importance of the college to the University.

"We will cover questions related to the budget and staff," he said. "We want to be able to demonstrate that this is a significant reduction in budget."

Underwood said the members also will be considering a resolution urging the governor and the General Assembly to support a bill requiring continued funding of the state pension systems.

Alan Karnes, Faculty Senate member and representative to the State Universities Retirement System, attended an SURS meeting in Springfield and will report to Faculty Senators that the state government is underfunding the retirement system for all state employees.

The senate also must elect new officers and form new committees for the 1993-94 academic year and allow time for these committees to meet for the first time.

"The last meeting of the year is usually a pure formality, but not this year," Underwood said.

She said she could see the group on screens but the sound of the music took a couple seconds to catch up with the images.

President Clinton sent a message of support that was read on his behalf by Rep. Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., a leading supporter of gay and lesbian rights in Congress.

"I stand with you in the struggle for equality for all Americans, including gay men and lesbians," he wrote, urging Americans to "put aside what divides us and focus on what we share."

He promised also to announce soon a new AIDS coordinator to improve health care for AIDS sufferers and establish a national prevention plan to fight the spread of the disease.

Clinton, who angered some gay activists by not addressing the crowd personally or, as organizers had hoped, by live television, was in Boston, speaking to a meeting of newspaper editors as the marchers streamed past the White House. He said last week that he did not think it appropriate for a president to address a protest rally.

"Don't forget," Pelosi told the crowd. "It's not that Bill Clinton isn't standing here, but that he is standing up for the end of discrimination against gay and lesbian Americans."

Ben Chavis, the new executive director of the NAACP, acknowledged that some in the nation's oldest civil rights organization questioned his decision to speak at the march. Last week a group of black church officials and local NAACP members in Washington criticized the national organization's decision to endorse the gay march.

"We must be against all forms of discrimination," Chavis said.

Camp to bridge culture gap

By Candace Samolinski
International Writer

A multicultural awareness camp will give young adults a chance for an educational experience on an international level.

Bridges to Other Cultures is a multi-cultural awareness camp sponsored by the SIUC Division of Continuing Education.

The camp will provide people between the ages of 13 and 18 an opportunity to learn about other cultures.

The camp will be July 25 through July 31 at Thompson Point. Registration will be July 25 from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m.

The cost of attendance is $270 which includes lodging, meals and materials.

Interested students who need assistance with expenses may want to look into obtaining a sponsorship from local service organizations or businesses.

Participants will encounter fashions, foods, hobbies, music and sports from places such as Africa, Latin America, the far East and South Asia.

International students will be on-hand to serve as group leaders.

Activities for the week include creating artwork such as Japanese origami, ikebana and Chinese calligraphy, learning traditional dances, creating international snacks and discussing differences in dating and family styles.

There also will be an opportunity to learn basic words and phrases from other languages.

The grand finale of the week will be an international festival.

The festival will include multicultural entertainment and an awards ceremony.

Parents are encouraged to attend.

During free time participants will have access to SIUC's recreation facilities for sports.

Social activities also are planned throughout the camp.

For more information on the camp contact Shelly or Carol at 536-7751.

Journalist uses experience as career advice for women

By Tina Davis
General Assignment Writer

When the sawed-off head of 6-year-old Susan Degan was discovered in a Chicago sewer in 1946, Virginia Marmaduke was the only newspaper reporter around, thus making one of biggest news stories of its time.

Marmaduke drew on this experience as well as many others as she was the guest speaker of the Public Relations Student Society of America's meeting Wednesday.

She originally was to speak on "Today's Women in Public Relations," however, she ended up speaking on her life experiences of being a professional woman in the '40s.

She was born in Carbondale in 1908 and grew up in a log cabin on the outskirts of Pinckneyville.

"I am very proud to be an all Illinois gal," Marmaduke said.

Marmaduke became one of the first and most esteemed women to succeed in journalism at a time when journalism belonged in the hands of men. After 50 years of participation in newspapers, radio, TV reporting and covering some of the most dangerous yet prominent stories in the world, Marmaduke knows what it takes to make it in a man's world.

"I wanted to be sure that I could do a job as good as any man around," Marmaduke said refusing to sit down during her speech.

She then told the story of how she and her photographer hid in the closet of the hospital room across the hall from a dying mob leader.

When the cameraman took his picture the flash caught the attention of a visitor who opened the closet and then attempted to wrestle the camera away.

"I took off one of my spike heeled pumps and beat on a gangster's hands until he let loose of the camera," she said. "By that time, the hospital guards came running and he ran to an exit."

Marmaduke, also known as

Duchess, was one of the first crime reporters and sports writers in Chicago.

She was a writer for Chicago in the Sun, the Sun-Times, the Tribune Sunday magazine, editor of the Herrin, and a "Coffee with the Duchess" radio show and a "Date with the Duchess" radio show that moved to television.

Along with other TV shows, the Duchess was appointed by Mayor J. Daley as the first female to be a member of the Board of Health in 1957.

With various other awards, Marmaduke was inducted to the Chicago Journalism Hall of Fame, in 1992.

"The one thing I can stress to young women is that no woman is ever allowed to sleep on the job," Duchess said.

She said she feels women should not sleep on the job or rather use their sex to get them places.

"We hurt ourselves by trying to overlap our sex," Marmaduke said.

"By trying to be too domineering, men almost become afraid of a possible harassment problem," she said.

Gail Swanstrom, a junior in advertising from Gibson City, said she had two words to describe Marmaduke: spunky and stubborn.

"She's 85, giving a speech and she didn't even want to sit down," Swanstrom said.

Rosline Gerome, a junior in public relations from Evanston, said she was an exciting woman and a dynamic speaker at her age with a very impressive background.

"As much as I like to go as I please, my doctor has been urging me to act my age," Marmaduke said. "That just gives me the excuse to grab the arm of a handsome young man!"

Marmaduke remains active in journalism and working with students. She has endowed four journalism scholarships to SIUC and pops up whenever necessary for appearances.

Losing faith?

Religion often left behind when students leave home

By Karyn Viverito
Special Assignment Writer

Carrie Hoehn's first memory of going to church was a rainy Good Friday on which the pastor performed a special service for her first grade class.

Going to church became a vital part of her life from then on, as she attended Sunday mass weekly with her parents all the way through her senior year in high school.

But Hoehn's church habits changed when she came to SIUC. She still hears the church bells ring on Sunday, but does not attend.

Hoehn is not unlike many SIUC students who do not continue going to church while away from home.

Rev. Karen Knodt, a campus minister with University Christian Ministries, said there is no way of telling the exact number of students attending some kind of church service or program, but it is not a large amount.

"To give a rough figure, let's say there are 20,000 students on campus," she said. "About 2,000 of those students would be actively involved with religion, so that would account for about 10 percent of the student population."

Knodt said although 10 percent may seem low, the church participation of SIUC students is typical for University towns.

Father Sam Citero, a priest at the Newman Student Center, said the three services at the center each Sunday draw anywhere from 300 to 500 students. But he said it could be more.

"Our services draw the biggest number of students but we also offer programs like a liturgy and bible study," he said. "But those activities are not a big attraction."

Ed Patterson, a SIUC professor of sociology, said the relationship between religion and students on campus now is different than it was in the 1960s.

"Hare Krishna's used to beat on their drums outside the student center, and the free forum area used to be filled with students inviting others to come join them in their worship."

whatever it may be," he said. "Friday night's were also a big night for students to get together and participate in religious activities." Patterson said in today's society, you do not see much of that anymore.

"The religious movement on campus is not as radical as it used to be, and it can be related parallel to politics," he said. "After the 60s, there seemed to be a resurgence of conservative forms of activity, and it caused a drop in the vocal movement that urged students to participate in the church."

One reason students stop going to church or participating in their religion is the parental pressure is gone when the student reaches college, Citero said.

"Church is something that is usually started with parents' encouragement and is not something that the child picks up on its own," he said. "When a student arrives at college, the pressure to participate is not there and it is easy to let go of."

Hoehn said she had to contemplate why she stopped going to church and realized its main supporters were not her: to go with her.

"I always went to church with my parents, but now that they are not here there is no one to make me go," she said. "There are so many other things that I could do, that I usually just choose not to go."

Even though Hoehn does not attend mass anymore, the thought of going to church still is present.

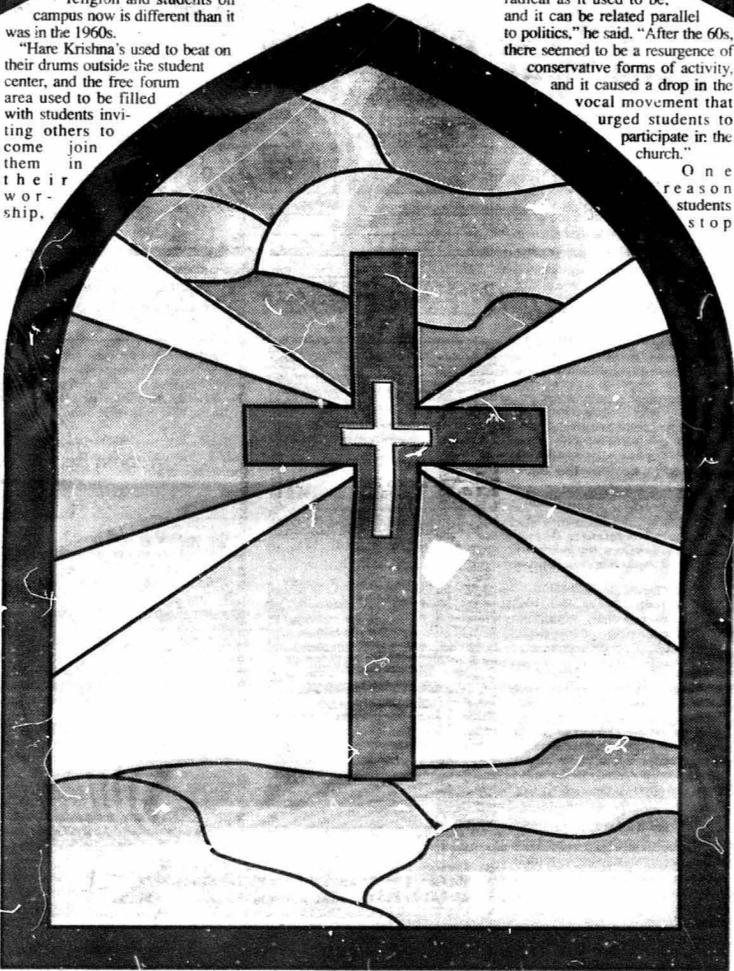

"Sometimes I sit and think, and I know that I should be at church instead of sleeping in, or just hanging out," Hoehn said.

Jackie Badger, a senior in economics from Millstadt, said the influence from parents is more social than spiritual.

"A lot of main-line churches act largely as a social club, with most adults not attending church until they had children," he said. "They start going just to be seen there, but there is more behind that, and it should seem that it should not be that way, but it is."

Badger, who is involved in activities at the Interfaith Center, said dropping becomes easy when growing up in that kind of religious environment.

"With the main-line churches presenting religion in that matter, the child's religious education has

Religious groups work to incorporate church into college

By Karyn Viverito

It was a cold, rainy day about two weeks ago that Lloyd Roberts set out to distribute New Testament Bibles on the SIUC campus, but the message and response of the day was enough to make it a sunny one.

Roberts and other members of the Jackson County chapter of Gideons International, were trying to reach college students' needs and interests.

Roberts said it is important for students to realize the words of religion are there to help.

"This is the time students are making decisions about life's questions," he said. "We feel the Bible can help answer those questions."

Father Sam Citero, a priest at the Newman Student Center, said college is a time when students make choices of what they want to be, and what they want to do with their lives.

"We could be helpful in planning and making a balance in their lives," he said. "We could talk to students and show them how the quality of their life could be enhanced."

Gideons International is an international ministry that passes out New Testaments on college campuses all over the country.

Roberts said passing them out to college students has been a positive experience.

"About 90 to 95 percent of the students that I gave a Bible to on that rainy day had a positive response," he said. "I think that quite a few students are asking questions that are related to religion, or are ones which from religion can help."

Citero said the Newman Center tries to encourage students to come out and seek the help they need, no matter what kind it is.

"We just want to encourage students to get

After serving his nation for more than two decades, a local ROTC officer was recognized with a parade in honor of his retirement.

"Off We Go Into The Wild Blue Yonder" echoed throughout McAndrew Stadium Thursday as AFROTC cadets wished a final farewell to their detachment commander.

With flags waving and music playing, more than 90 cadets marched throughout the stadium as Lt. Col. Darryl Fowler took his final bows.

"It's been a great tour of duty," Fowler said. "It's been a real highlight of an Air Force career being down here and having the opportunity to work with the cadets. They're a great group of people."

Fowler said he would stay in the area even though he was retiring from AFROTC.

"We had the parade and ceremony, but I won't be retiring until the end of May when the new commander comes on board," Fowler said.

Ricky T. McGlothlin, cadet colonel in AFROTC and a senior in vocational education from Orange, Texas, said that Fowler will be missed.

"He's done an outstanding job," McGlothlin said. "After serving his country distinguishedly for the past 22 years, he determined it was time to move on."

To express their gratitude for Fowler's contributions to the program, the men of Detachment 205 presented him with several gifts: an encased U.S. flag previously flown over the capital; a "Shadowbox" consisting of ribbons, medals, and badges symbolizing his rise through the ranks; an all-championship basketball from the University of Indiana; and a retirement certificate.

Fowler served as AFROTC commander and an aerospace professor at SIUC. He earned a bachelor's degree in biology, a master's degree in education and was commissioned through the Air Force ROTC while he attended Indiana University.

Police investigate shooting of man from Mt. Vernon

Carbondale Police still are investigating a shooting that hospitalized a Mt. Vernon man Friday night.

Police were called to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale after Major Germain Monroe, 19, of Mt. Vernon, came to the hospital for treatment of a small caliber gunshot wound in the back.

According to Monroe's statement to police, he was walking on a street somewhere in the city when he felt a pain in his back. Monroe then went to a friend's house, where he examined his back and determined the seriousness of the wound.

Monroe did not hear the sound of a gunshot when he was injured, police said.

Monroe's statement said he was not familiar enough with Carbondale to know the area where he had been shot. Police say that he was possibly in a residential area on the city's northeast side.

Monroe was released from the hospital Saturday.

Anyone with information on the shooting can call the Carbondale Police at 457-3200 or Carbondale Crime Stoppers at 529-2677.

1993 Spring Semester Final Exam Schedule

The examination schedule attempts to avoid examination conflicts by providing separate examination periods for Tuesday-Thursday lecture classes. Other information about final examinations is listed below:

1. The class final exam period is scheduled based on the meeting time and days separate examination periods for Tuesday-Thursday lecture classes. Other information about final examinations is listed below:

08:00 T TH
09:00 10:50 W
The listed starting time for the first line of the entry is "8:00". The meeting days of that first line are "T TH", and therefore are in the category "Only T or TH or T TH". The Exam Date and Period is by the attached Spring '93 Final Examination Schedule to be Thursday, May 13 at 10:10 a.m. - 12:10 p.m. Please note that University policy indicates that exams are not to be given prior to exam week, or at times other than those scheduled.

2. Classes should plan to hold their final examination in their regularly scheduled class rooms. The space scheduling section of the Office of Admissions and Records will forward to departments information relative to the location for examinations for those classes that cannot hold their examinations in their regularly scheduled rooms because of a space conflict. This will be done sufficiently in advance of the final examination days to provide adequate notice for all.

3. Students who find they have more than three examinations on one day may petition, and students who have two examinations scheduled at one time should petition their academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such a make-up examination period does not mean that students may decide to miss the scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during this make-up period. This period is to be used only for students whose petitions have been approved by their dean.

Educating, staying neutral priorities of court reporting

By Shawna Donovan
General Assignment Writer

The daily joining of courts and journalism is one of the oddest marriages because of the complications and surprises dealing with recrimination after the fact, according to a legal media reporter.

"One of the oddest marriages in our culture is the union or the partnership we have in the courthouse of the daily joining of the law and journalism," said Lyle Dennison, a legal affairs reporter for the Baltimore Sun Papers who spoke during the Fair Trial/Free Press seminar luncheon on Friday inside the Student Center Ballroom A.

"A hard-working reporter, with a fair amount of intelligence, a decent portion of resourcefulness, and a large dose of stubbornness can get the story."

—Lyle Dennison

Dennison, along with other legal and journalism professionals who were paneled, had a seminar on Friday to examine the relationship between the press and the courts, and their impact on each other.

The seminar concluded that the role of the media is to educate the public about the courts without affecting case verdicts.

Stephen Spomer, chief justice of the First Judicial Circuit, said the media has to be careful and not let sensationalism affect a fair trial.

"The first priority of the media is to not affect or have impact on a fair trial and the second priority is to educate the people," Spomer said.

"These two can be accomplished all the time if the media is careful. This is the fascination with people and the press," he said.

Ken Keller, Illinois News

Broadcasters Association secretary said the primary role of the media is an educational tool.

"The role of the media is to inform the public about the court system," Keller said.

"If the process is done well, the education comes out," he continued.

"It is a plug for TV in the courtroom," Keller said.

Spomer said a reporter has to be concerned about accuracy and the reporter has to be educated first.

"You have to put stresses on the reporter to be educated first," Spomer said.

Charles Grace, Jackson County state's attorney and panelist, said the press commit common errors when reporting on the courts.

"Some common errors that I know is the failure to follow up or to get the big picture," he said.

"A large misunderstanding of procedure and terminology always causes problems," Grace said.

"I think the most important thing is if the reporter is responsible, they will be OK," he said.

Dennison said the journalist should be educated to a point.

"You would not ask a journalist to go to law school if they were covering the courts," he said.

"You can have a problem with that if the journalist is too close," Dennison said.

"It is a problem that impacts both the reporter and the objectivity of the information," he said.

"A journalist should always be a stranger to the courts," Dennison said.

"Journalists do not need to be specialists to cover the courthouse or any other specialized beat," he said.

"A hard-working reporter, with a fair amount of intelligence, a decent portion of resourcefulness, and a large dose of stubbornness can get the story," Dennison continued.

"In fact, I would say the reporter can get any story," he said.

Panelists concluded journalist need to know what to cover and how.

The discussion of cameras in the courtroom was discussed but not in as great of detail.

Female judge fulfills dreams on Illinois court

By Shawna Donovan
General Assignment Writer

On Dec. 7, 1992, Justice Mary Ann McMorrow became the first woman to sit on the Illinois Supreme Court in its 173 year history. McMorrow, who has been involved with trial and appellate courts for more than 16 years from Cook County, said she will try to become a leader for the court.

"I hope to bring leadership and bring humanity to the court," she said.

The justice was the first woman to prosecute in Illinois and the second woman in the appellate court. She graduated from Loyola University law school in 1953 as the only woman in her class.

"All my wonderful experiences have been in the appellate courts," McMorrow said. "It was here I got my confidence."

McMorrow said the barrier for women and minorities in law is gone and in the year 2000, 35 to 40 percent of lawyers will be women.

"Women in law are a welcome addition," McMorrow said.

"I never dreamed of being on the Illinois Supreme Court," she said. "It was an impossible dream but sometimes you have to dream those the most."

Jeanette Nyden, Women's Law Forum president and second-year law student, said McMorrow is not like a typical judge.

"She is the most gracious and lovely lady that I have ever met," Nyden said. "She is nothing like what people would think of as a judge."

The Women's Law Forum hosted a reception for Justice McMorrow Thursday night.

High SIUC student turnout helps blood drive succeed

By Karen Ham
Health Writer

An overwhelming response by students and community members helped the Red Cross collect 792 pints of blood in last week's blood drive, 77 pints more than the week's 715 pint goal, a regional coordinator said.

Vivian Ugent, regional coordinator of the blood drive, said she was pleased by the response of the students.

"I'm very pleased with the response of the students who donated blood," she said.

"I'm also pleased with the fraternities, sororities and Emeritus Association who volunteered their time," Ugent said.

"This blood drive was a very wonderful week," she said.

"It was really gratifying to see the response of the community, especially the students," Ugent said.

"I hope this is something they will continue to do for the rest of their lives," she said.

Ugent said although the response was better than expected the blood drive will return this summer and needs the same support from the community.

"We are going to offer the same variety of locations and times at the next blood drive, and hopefully get another great response from the community," Ugent said.

The next blood drive is scheduled for June 21 at a variety of campus and community locations, Ugent said.

On, off court, it was one strange season in NBA

The Hartford Courant

As training camp nears an end, Dennis Rodman still has not reported in Detroit. His Pistons teammate, Bill Laimbeer, calls to extend a personal invitation. Rodman hangs up.

In Chicago, Horace Grant flies into a snit when he sees Scottie Pippen gets to sit out wind sprints. Grant is thrown out of practice. Grant doesn't have to run the sprints, either.

New Jersey Nets Coach Chuck Daly looks at Tate George and says, "He's a one (point guard) and he's a two (shooting guard). I don't know what he is." This is it: the 12th man. (Later in the season, one informant says Daly told George, with rancor, "I don't like your game.") In the NBA, that's as harsh as it gets.

After getting sideways glances from teammates and a show of nonsupport from fellow Dream Teamer Karl Malone, Magic Johnson retires, this time for good. Malone receives two tons of mail, much of it informational literature from AIDS groups.

Said the, er, Mailman: "Send me some, OK. But not truckloads." Backed by Grateful Dead guitarist Bob Weir, Warriors guard Sarunas Marciulionis sings the Lithuanian national anthem before Golden State's home opener in Oakland, Calif.

New York Knicks Coach Pat Riley says Tom Gugliotta, the Washington Bullets' rookie, is "the closest thing to Larry Bird I've ever seen." After Gugliotta goes 0-for-8 with seven turnovers against the Knicks, Riley says, "Hey, I even saw Larry Bird go 5-for-27."

December

NBC announcer Marv Albert discloses to The Village Voice that Air Supply would be among his musical preferences if he were stranded on a desert island. Air Supply? Later, when confronted, Albert explains: "In fact, they put on a great show. Right up there with Megadeath, in my estimation."

Jerry Tarkanian, a man without a point guard, becomes a man without a job Dec. 18 when he is fired as coach of the San Antonio Spurs after a 9-11 start.

Boston Celtics point guard Sherman Douglas, a man without minutes, becomes a man without footwear when he removes his sneakers while sitting on the bench during a game in Minneapolis. Douglas takes five days off to "figure things out."

Note: Rodman will become known for removing his shoes during timeouts and "figuring things out," but let it be known that he stole the shoe set from Douglas.

On Dec. 21, more than 23,000 show up to watch the Phoenix Suns practice. Phoenix forward Charles Barkley reveals he likes to watch his highlights on ESPN's late "SportsCenter."

"I don't (often) get a chance to see how good I look, like other people do," Barkley says.

Philadelphia 76ers Coach Doug Moe says: "We have a nondescript team, we don't have any style. We're brutal."

He is not talking about the uniforms.

The Chicago Bulls beat the Knicks 89-77 Christmas Day. Bulls Coach Phil Jackson says of the Knicks: "I think they're old. They've got Patrick Ewing, who's 30 and Rolando Blackman, who's 33. They're players with a lot of habits, an accumulation of public failure. But my team can only go up."

January

After the Celtics lose four games on a West Coast trip, USA Today columnist Peter Vecsey opines: "This would have never happened if Red Auerbach were alive."

Chuck Person makes public what everyone suspects—the Minnesota Timberwolves are not too chummy with rookie Christian Laetner.

Said Person: "He can be stubborn, yeah, but he has a heart somewhere, I think." Said Laetner: "My ego or confidence or whatever isn't crushed by it."

After coaching the Kings to their 18th victory, Sacramento's Garry St. Jean passes Jack McKinney (1-8), Draff Young (0-3) and Bill Russell (17-41) on the team's all-time victory list.

Days before he is fired as Dallas Mavericks coach, Richie Adubato dreams that his team had eight victories with 10 games left in the season. When asked if the Mavs won at least two more in his dream, thereby avoiding the ignominy of eclipsing the 1972-73 Philadelphia 76ers (9-73) on the all-time NBA depth chart, Adubato says: "I don't know. I woke up before we got there. I go back every night trying to find out what's going to happen, but I haven't had the dream again. You've got to sleep before you dream."

Those nutty Warriors show up at a Bay Area college to practice, only to discover nobody had turned on the heat. Coach Don Nelson cancels practice.

"All I know is I could spell my name with my breath," Nelson says.

Celtics rookie Marcus Webb says he's pulled over by police in either Brookline or Newton, Mass. Then again, maybe Webb wasn't even pulled over. About the incident, Celtics General Manager Jan Volk says, "I don't know that any of us here know who actually killed Kennedy, and here we are, umpteenth years later."

The Sixers are playing well enough for Manute Bol to talk trash. After rejecting yet another unsuspecting Portland Trail Blazer, Bol screams, "Don't you guys get cable out here?"

February

Bird's No. 33 is retired in a gala at Boston Garden. Later, Kevin McHale can picture the night they retire his No. 32, and Robert Parish's No. 00. Said McHale: "They'll probably do it during a 20-second timeout."

At 5 o'clock one Thursday morning, police in suburban Detroit get a call from a friend of Rodman, who says Rodman and his .22-caliber rifle are missing. At 6:30 a.m., Rodman was found at The Palace of Auburn Hills shooting baskets, his gun in his truck. Rodman was taken to his psychiatrist, then driven home.

The promotion of the year takes place at The Summit in Houston, where Barkley and the Suns play the Houston Rockets. The first 100 fans who show up for a complimentary head-shaving (in Barkley's honor) will receive two tickets to the game. Any woman who has her head shaved gets two tickets to every game for the rest of the season. Everyone who participates is entered in a drawing for a trip for two to see the Rockets play in Phoenix April 19. Barkley has agreed to have his picture taken with everyone who wants his or her head shaved. George Foreman is the celebrity barber.

Speaking of The Summit, it is the site of the Celtics' worst loss of the season (119-84). Afterward, McHale is asked if he would be retiring after the season, as rumored. Said McHale: "If I was going to retire, I wouldn't do it in the Houston locker room after a 98-point loss."

March

Washington Bullets Coach Wes Unseld is unhappy after Miami Heat center Rony Seikaly attempts to give himself an alley-oop pass in the latter stages of a horrific Washington loss.

Said Unseld: "If he tried that in my day, he would have been wearing his intestines on the floor." Amazingly, Detroit Pistons management is tiring of Rodman's escapades.

"Dennis has made it very clear that he doesn't want to be here," player personnel director Billy

McKinney says. "And when we get a deal that is right for us, we'll move him. If we don't, Dennis can stay here until he rots."

Mavericks rookie Jimmy Jackson, who held out more than half the season, scores 19 points against the Suns, prompting Phoenix guard Kevin Johnson to gush: "Awesome. Unbelievable talent. He's the real deal."

Since the stat came into existence a little more than a decade ago, Kevin Gamble becomes the third Celtic to get a triple-double when he has 23 points, 11 rebounds and 10 assists against the Warriors. The others? Bird (59) and Parish (one).

Barkley announces he will be endorsing a new line of shoes called "Air Max." Why not "Air Charles?" Simple. "So people who hate me still will buy them," Barkley says.

not developed any kind of spiritual growth," he said.

"Spirituality is an important part of religion, and some children are still left looking for it," he said.

Citro said losing interest in religion is part of the process when students come to college and are able to try new things that give them different interests.

"Letting go of church at this time of life is a normal part of a person's development," he said. "Church will always be there; college will not."

Knott said religion can be forgotten physically by a busy college student, but it remains mentally.

"Religion and church staff is real intangible in some ways because one can feel like they are holding on to it without really doing anything about it," she said.

Knott said she has a concern with this, however, because there can be a loss in faith development.

"What does concern me is when they leave the church and don't go for a long time, they mature and become more sophisticated in some areas, and then they turn back to their faith and their faith has not kept up," she said.

Citro said even though students may take a break from it, religion and church will stay with them.

"It would not hurt students to attend church or other religious activities, but I am not worried that they are not coming," he said.

"It will start to take up a regular time space in students lives again when they get married and have children," Citro said.

into the church, and from there they can just sit and watch if they want," he said. "We do not demand anything from them except that they respect one another."

Mailings, advertisements, schedule postings and word of mouth are devices the Newman Center relies on to get students involved.

Citro said in no way are these methods meant to pressure students into being involved.

"We understand that this is a time of progress and there is no pressure on the student to do anything," he said. "It is the kind of thing that they can come and get as much out of it as they want."

For some it is the center of their life; for some it is not — but that is alright, Citro said.

The Rev. Karen Knott ministers at the Interfaith Center on campus, and uses some of the same methods in trying to grab the interest of students.

"We send newsletters and put ads and briefs in the paper, trying to get the interest of any students that will listen," she said.

Knott said the problem lies in the fear some students have about getting involved with religion.

"I talk to students and tell them to come to bible study and worship, but they shy away from it," she said. "I do not know what type of stereotype they picture, but it is as if they have some kind of phobia with it."

Knott said she knows the thought is there among the students, and she just wants to be able to help them understand it.

"People want to do it, but they hear the words bible study or worship, and they do not know what it's going to entail," she said.

400 meters.

The distance runners also came through, with Karri Gardner placing second in the 5,000 meters (18:51), Stacy McCormack placing third in the 3,000 meters, Kelly Elliot placing fourth in the 800 meters (2:23.8), and Jennifer Kostelny placing fifth in the 1,500 meters.

In the field events, Brown's jump led the way to a sweep of the top three places, as Annette Kleit placed second, clearing 5-4 and Stephanie Smith placed third, clearing 5-2.

Nacolia Moore added a second-place triple jump (37-5 1/2) and a third-place long jump (18-4 1/2) to her finish in the 4x100 relay.

Amy Personett threw the javelin 113-0 1/2 to grab second place, April Cokely won second place in the shot put with a throw of 43-1 1/2, and Stefany Saracco placed fourth (41-1) in the shot put and third (138-3 1/2) in the discus.

In the finale, the Salukis managed to hold the Braves' offense down, but the Dawgs did not produce in clutch situations in the 6-2 loss.

Saluki hurler Mike McArdle gave the Braves a run in the second to spot them a 1-0 lead. With two outs, McArdle walked Pat Graham and threw two wild pitches allowing Graham to score.

The Dawgs tied the game at 2-2 in the seventh on an RBI single by Clint Smothers, but Bradley was quick to answer.

The Braves used two hits, a walk and a sacrifice to take a 4-2 lead in the bottom of the seventh, and then added two unearned runs in the eighth to make it 6-2.

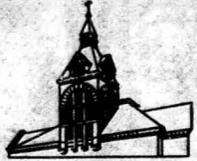

SIUC head coach Sam Riggleman said the Salukis hurt themselves at the plate.

"Offensively, we couldn't get the big hit when we needed it," Riggleman said. "We stranded seven runners on the day, five of which were in scoring position."

Riggleman said he was encouraged by McArdle's performance.

"I thought McArdle did a good job most of the game, but fell into trouble late in the contest," Riggleman said.

The weekend's action drops the Salukis to 21-19, 5-7 in the MVC. Their next game is at home Tuesday against the Evansville Purple Aces.
