Parties bicker over deficits as Congress, White House talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators from the White House and Congress resumed talks Thursday on reducing federal budget deficits with no agreement in sight, out plenty of partisan bickering over what to do and who is to blame for the red ink.

Meanwhile, the tax-writing committees in the House and Senate began work on their own deficit-reduction packages.

In his nationally broadcast news conference Wednesday night, President Reagan — who called for the talks to find a $100 billion "down payment" on eliminating deficits — urged the bargainers to "get down to business."

The president also said he does not favor tax increases or military spending reductions as a method of trimming deficits, projected at $180.4 billion in the fiscal 1985 budget Reagan submitted to Congress earlier this month.

The first meeting, Feb. 8, resulted only in agreement that reductions in Social Security were off limits as a method of cutting deficits.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said before the talks resumed that the administration was hopeful the meeting "can proceed in good faith."

On Capitol Hill, Democrats insisted that taxes and military spending cuts are necessary to achieve deficit reductions.

"What first must be settled is whether military spending and the huge revenue losses caused by the 1981 tax bill are open for consideration," said Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, representing House Democrats at the talks.

"If in fact they are not, then any pretense at making truly meaningful deficit reductions would be no more than a charade," Wright said.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., warned Democrats not to walk away from the president's invitation to negotiate.

"The country will not forgive the Democrats if they spurn that offer," Baker said.

But Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia virtually dismissed the talks, reiterating his view that they are "a sideshow."

Cable TV quality standards sought

By Paula J. Finlay
Staff Writer

Promises of better quality cable television service aren't enough, the Carbondale Cable Television Commission said Wednesday as it pushed for quality control standards to be added to the city's cable franchise.

Carbondale Cablevision, the franchise holder, has agreed to have an upgraded 20-channel system in operation within one year of rate determination by the City Council. A $2.75 monthly subscription rate increase and changes in the cable franchise will be considered at a public hearing before the council March 5.

With the upgraded service will come better reception, according to Cablevision manager Craig Perica.

Commissioner John Gregory suggested that the franchise be rewritten to include a possible penalty for poor quality service.

Commissioner Charles Shipley agreed, but added that more specific quality standards would be needed to enforce a penalty.

"The franchise is very vague," he said.

The commission voted to set up quality standards to review technical service, and to notify City Manager Bill Dixon, Perica and the council of the plan.

Requirements for a public hearing before the council prior to any future rate increases and an annual financial statement from the franchise holder are among the proposed changes in the franchise.

The commission had recommended that the financial statement be audited one and Gregory proposed that the stipulation be reinstated. The commission agreed unanimously.

Because Telecommunications Inc., Cablevision's parent company, has a monopoly on cable television service in Carbondale, the company should be required to provide an audited financial statement as a monopoly utility company would, Shipley said.

Simon may win endorsement of Freeze Voters

By Phillip Fiorini
Staff Writer

Two delegates from Southern Illinois will carry their endorsement of Paul Simon's Senate candidacy to the Illinois Freeze Voters Convention in Peoria and are hopeful that the other 60 delegates will do the same.

However, Joyce Fry, of Anna, a delegate and member of the Mid-America Peace Project, said her endorsement of the Makanda congressman will be with one reservation.

Fry said freeze voters support Simon's stand on the nuclear freeze but disagree with the congressman's approval of the deployment of cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in eastern Europe.

She said that 23 people pledged $10 each to the Freeze Voters and caucus to decide which candidate to endorse at the convention.

Simon voted against postponing the deployment of missiles in Europe because he said it was a "bargaining chip" in arms negotiations with the Soviet Union, Fry said. The Soviets were forced to leave the arms negotiating table after the United States refused to halt the deployment of the missiles, she said.

The contenders for the Democratic nomination on March 20 are state Senate President Philip Rock, Hinsdale attorney Alex Seith and Comptroller Roland Burris. All four candidates have confirmed that they will participate in the pro-freeze forum Sunday afternoon.

The Democrat nominated on March 20 will attempt to unseat three-term U.S. Sen. Charles Percy in the November general election. Percy, the primary target of the Illinois freeze movement, supports a nuclear weapons buildup, not a freeze.

GPSC votes to fight added tuition boost

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

The Budget Advisory Committee on Wednesday voted 6-4 to ask for a 10 percent tuition increase for next year to boost SIU-C faculty salaries by 7 percent, according to John Baker, executive director for planning and budgeting.

But the Graduate and Professional Student Council passed a resolution against the proposal Wednesday night, urging instead that more state funds be provided to raise faculty salaries.

Anticipating only enough state dollars to fund a 5 percent salary increase, Baker said the BAC voted to favor a tuition increase and about $655,000 in internal reallocation, which would entail budget cuts to be decided by campus vice presidents.

Four members were absent from the BAC meeting, and Baker said he would solicit their votes before taking any recommendations to President Somit Baker, who votes in the case of a tie, said Thursday afternoon he had talked to two of the absent members, and said the vote was getting closer.

GPSC President Ann Greeley, a member of the BAC, said she voted against the tuition increase at the meeting, but favors faculty salary increases.

Without additional state support for increased salaries, Baker said there were two options: reductions in other areas and tuition increases. The cost of funding an additional salary increase would be split between the options, he said.

GPSC passed a resolution asking the Illinois Legislature and Gov. James Thompson to the candidate, he said.

Stein said he expects about 300 freeze supporters and delegates from 14 of the 22 congressional districts to attend the convention.

Fry said MAPP will meet next week to determine whether freeze supporters in Southern Illinois should endorse state Sen. Ken Buzbee or former congressman Kenny Gray, two Democrats seeking Simon's congressional seat.

the freeze," she said. "He's already voted for that issue, whereas the others just say they will."

Simon voted for the freeze resolution and against the MX missile and a buildup.

Robert Stein, director of the Freeze Voters, said Thursday that the Freeze Voters will endorse a candidate who they believe would show more leadership than Percy in the Senate.

"We'll be picking someone who can defeat Charles Percy," Stein said. An endorsement might entail a contribution to

GPSC opposes proposed plan to reduce GE course selection

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

Calling a proposed core curriculum plan not flexible enough, the Graduate and Professional Student Council on Wednesday passed resolutions opposing the plan and suggesting an alternative.

In one resolution, the GPSC urged a more liberal policy for substitutions of departmental courses to fulfill general education requirements. The second resolution stated the GPSC's opposition to General Education Curriculum Committee proposals, which were presented by John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs.

The proposed plan would allow students to choose from a few courses to fulfill two of their three required courses in each general education area. For example, to fulfill area C core requirements, a student would have to choose two of six courses, and then one elective course from 11 other courses. Currently, students may fulfill area C requirements by taking any three courses, as long as the courses are in different departments.

The GECC proposal eliminates 66 general education courses, cutting the number of available courses in half. GPSC members questioned Guyon on several points of the GECC recommendations, including the elimination of specific courses and the effects on graduate teaching assistantships.

Kathryn Henningson, a graduate student in health education, said she was upset that certain "life skills" courses, such as Socialization of the Individual and consumer and statistical applications classes, were recommended to be cut.

Nancy Bandy, a graduate student in higher education, said she was disappointed to learn that women's studies, black studies and sociology courses would be taken out of the general education course offerings.

Guyon wouldn't address specific course cuts suggested by the GECC, but he said the courses wouldn't have to be eliminated. Courses could still be offered by departments, but not for credit toward general education requirements.

"Over the last three or four years our general education curriculum has been considered to lack validity and intellectual content," Guyon said. When a GPSC member said that SIU-C students wouldn't be free to make their own course decisions, Guyon said the University has an obligation to tell students "what we think they should learn."

The GPSC also passed a resolution asking that the Campus Natural Areas Committee be made permanent for the purpose of developing and overseeing long-term natural area management plans. The resolution suggested that the committee report to SIU-C President Albert Somit and that the GPSC have a representative on the committee.

In other business, the GPSC voted to make the election laws part of its constitution by-laws, and approved 21 revisions in them.

Iran, Iraq battle reports vary

By the Associated Press

Iran claimed its biggest victory Thursday in 3½ years of war with Iraq, saying its forces thrust 25 miles into southern Iraq and cut the Baghdad-Basra highway in two places.

But Iraqi military communiques said the new Iranian offensive in the Basra region was "totally wiped out with thousands of (Iranian) bodies left on the battlefield."

The Iraqi communiques said Tehran had claimed victory to divert public attention in Iran from the crushing of its offensives and its huge losses.

U.S. poverty rate up by 11 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Poverty grew sharply between 1979 and 1982, but official estimates may exaggerate the number of poor Americans because the figures ignore such benefits as food stamps and Medicare, according to a Census Bureau study.

The nation's poverty rate — the share of people below the official poverty level — could be up to one-third smaller if non-cash benefits for food, housing and medical care were considered income, the report says.

But by any calculation, poverty has grown.

AMA asks doctors to freeze fees

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association is asking all U.S. doctors to voluntarily freeze their fees for a year in an effort to help the nation's economy, officers said Thursday.

The AMA made a similar appeal in 1978, according to Dr. James H. Sammons, AMA executive vice president. He said doctors responded widely to that request, citing as evidence figures showing doctors' fees increased at a slower rate than the consumer price index for the years 1978-1980.

furnish additional state funds, instead of paying for a faculty salary increase with a tuition increase. Greeley said she had heard that a 10 percent tuition increase is expected to cut student enrollment by 4 percent.

At a faculty salaries panel discussion last week, John Jackson, a political science professor, said the salary of full professors at SIU-C is $5,082 less than the average salary at other Illinois public universities. Joel Thirer, associate professor of physical education, said he favors a plan that would raise salaries, but believes a tuition increase which would drive away significant numbers of students would leave the overall money pool with less.

"Too large an increase would be like 'robbing Peter to pay Paul,'" Thirer said. He added that the University of Illinois has decided to raise tuition 10 percent to fund salary increases, but that it probably won't create a drop in enrollment.

Dixon calls for more frugal defense spending

By Phillip Fiorini
Staff Writer

U.S. Sen. Alan Dixon said Wednesday he supports a strong national defense, but the Pentagon must spend the taxpayers' money more prudently and not at the expense of domestic programs important to Illinois.

Dixon, D-Bellefonte, said President Reagan's budget requests show a "disturbing" deficit of $180 billion, with an 18 percent increase for defense. Dixon said he was confident there would be bipartisan objection to the budget.

"An increase in defense spending of about 6 percent would seem reasonable to me," said Dixon. "That would allow us to maintain the current defense effort, and then some." Dixon was recently appointed to the Armed Services Committee, which determines the budget for the Pentagon. Dixon said he believes that Congress will give the president less than he has requested for defense and more than he wants for domestic spending. The defense budget represents more than a third of all federal spending.

"The economy has improved," Dixon said, "but these persistently high deficits, and the high interest rates they bring, will surely make recovery more difficult, if not impossible."

Dixon said that the Pentagon must maximize the use of competitive bidding on contracts and seek greater regional balance in its spending. He said that Illinois ranks 45th among states in federal defense contracts.

"Illinois isn't getting a fair share now at all," he said. The senator said that a strong force in the Armed Services Committee could be beneficial to small businesses in Illinois interested in bidding for defense-oriented expenditures. Some congressmen have abused the appropriation system and served their own interests, Dixon said, while Illinois has been denied its share of contracts.

Dixon said he didn't see a problem in trying to gain more defense bids for Illinois businesses, in light of ballooning deficits. He said that the defense budget has grown, even under the strictest circumstances.

"The budget could increase 5 or 6 percent and Illinois could still get bids to enlarge our share, without drastically increasing the amount that is expended," he said.

Dixon, principle sponsor of a proposed constitutional amendment to give presidents line item veto power, said the Reagan administration can work with Congress toward balancing the budget without making cuts in domestic programs.

The amendment, which Dixon said could save the country billions of dollars, would give the president the authority to reduce selected items in legislation without vetoing entire bills.

"It would be very possible to come back with recommendations for realistic balanced budget reductions in defense, as well as other cuts," he said.

Dixon said the amendment is not the easy way out of a "budget mess."

"It's a dual responsibility of the president and Congress to act on the budget," he said.

Surgicenter appeal to be dropped

By Bruce Kirkham
Staff Writer

Comprehensive Health Planning in Southern Illinois will withdraw its appeal of a state board ruling that denied the certificate of need necessary to get state licensing for Memorial Hospital to construct a surgicenter facility.

The withdrawal of the appeal of the Illinois State Health Facilities Planning Board decision is the last of three conditions specified by the ISHPB that could open the way to the awarding of certificates of need to Memorial Hospital and the Carbondale Clinic.

In addition to the withdrawal of the CHPSI appeal, the Carbondale Clinic, Memorial Hospital and CHPSI have agreed to waive rights of appeal on future ISHPB decisions concerning ambulatory surgicenters in Carbondale.

Memorial Hospital has also agreed to withdraw its appeal of the ISHPB denial for a certificate of need, according to George Maroney, administrator of Memorial Hospital.

Maroney said that ISHPB members have indicated that the board will consider a proposal to license two surgicenter facilities in Carbondale.

The ISHPB has agreed to consider surgicenter certificate of need applications from the clinic and the hospital at the same time, Maroney said.

James Blair, spokesman for CHPSI, said that the CHPSI decision to withdraw its appeal was based upon a recommendation by Memorial Hospital and agreement of the state board to consider the applications of the hospital and clinic at the same time.

The CHPSI decision was not unanimous, Blair said. One board member dissented, expressing concern about CHPSI's total withdrawal from the process, giving the ISHPB final jurisdiction, he said.

Blair said that CHPSI postponed a decision on whether to review the clinic's application.

CHPSI recommended denial of the original Carbondale Clinic application and approval of the Memorial Hospital application, Blair said.

Maroney said that the ISHPB will discuss the Carbondale surgicenter status at its March 2 meeting and will advise the hospital and clinic on further procedures.

Clean, open campaign better than dirty one

AT THURSDAY night's press conference, President Reagan was asked to respond to a comment made by Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale that the nation is being governed by "amnesia."

With remarks like that, the current election year seems poised to degenerate into the quadrennial spate of mudslinging that is too often characteristic of political campaigns.

But you don't have to look beyond the confines of Southern Illinois to find a bit of election-year verbal knifing. State Sen. Ken Buzbee, who seeking the Democratic nomination for the 22nd District congressional seat, recently departed from the substantive issues in the campaign to pitch a little dirt at his opponent, Ken Gray.

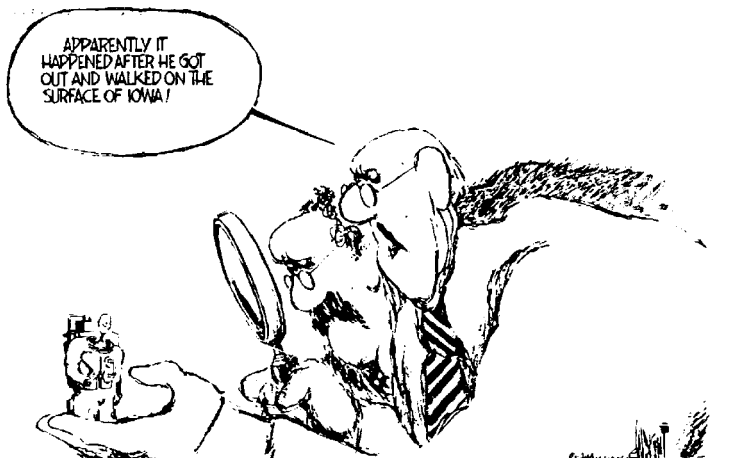

The occasion was Buzbee's release last week of his financial records for the past 11 years. Buzbee also challenged Gray to follow and release details of his own personal finances.

WHILE WE APPLAUD Buzbee for his openness and initiative, it is unfortunate that in doing so he implied, without giving any reasons and without citing any evidence, that his opponent might have cause to be reluctant to fully disclose his finances.

That's the type of campaigning that contributes absolutely nothing to helping voters make informed decisions about which candidate is more qualified for office. If Buzbee has some hard information relevant to Gray's integrity, he should release it. If not, he should not use innuendo.

Gray, for his part, should be more forthcoming with his records. Gray's response to Buzbee's challenge to disclose his finances — that his financial records are available at the Board of Elections office in Springfield — was inadequate. Voters in Cairo who might be interested, were probably little impressed by Gray's suggestion that all they had to do was drive 200 miles to Springfield to try to find out if his record is clean.

DISCLOSURE IS one means to guarantee that candidates have no hidden financial obligations that might improperly influence their actions in office. Both Gray and Randy Patchett, the Republican candidate for the congressional seat, should be willing to follow Buzbee in making their finances public, locally, so that the campaign can settle on more important issues. Both Gray and Patchett have said they have nothing to hide. They should back their words with action.

Tax story riddled with errors

I am writing to correct the errors presented in the story, "Free tax assistance for students," run Feb. 17 in the Daily Egyptian. The corrections are as follows:

- 1) My name is Jerry Berg, not B-U-R-G.
- 2) The student volunteers in our program are accounting students, not finance students.
- 3) The service is available every Monday at the Eureka C. Hayes Center except March 12. The story failed to report our being closed for spring break as I mentioned during the interview.

4) Dave Joy, our faculty advisor, is an accounting instructor, not a finance instructor.

5) The filing deadline for individual income tax returns for 1984 is April 15, not April 15 (due to the 15th falling on a Sunday).

In addition to making the above corrections, I would like to mention that the VITA Program is being administered through the honors accounting fraternity Beta Alpha Psi which was instrumental in renting the rooms at the Student Center.

In closing, I would like to thank the Daily Egyptian for publicizing our program. I hope the article helps more people take advantage of our free service. For more information on free income tax assistance call Dave Joy at the Department of Accounting, 453-2289. — Jerry Berg, Senior, Accounting and Finance

Olympics editorial gets no gold medal

Your recent editorial, "Pursuit of medals shadowing Olympics' original purpose," once again shows a lack of professionalism that is evident in so many of your editorials. Your reference to Reagan's statement about America "standing tall" is clearly misinformation. In making that statement, Reagan was referring to the significant increase in the quality of the people and equipment in our armed forces. He was not making any reference to our Olympics athletes.

have not been winning as many medals as the Soviet Union or East Germany. So, what is the point of your editorial?

In reading the title of your editorial, I thought you were going to write about how we need to put less emphasis on medals. However, you then state that "our Olympics contestants have fallen on their collective faces" because they

Casting a vote is a sign of concern

Voting is a privilege granted to citizens by our Constitution. Students used to protest, saying, "If we are old enough to die for our country, we're old enough to vote!" Then our Constitution was amended to allow 18-year-olds the right to vote.

But there is a problem now. Students don't vote. Representatives, congressmen, aldermen, and even presidents know students don't vote. Why not?

Government continually cuts funding to higher education and says students do not care because they don't vote. We may lobby for higher education spending. We may write letters to our representatives. But we still don't vote.

I am not registered in Jackson County, but rather in my home county. I urge everyone to vote. Even if you are not registered in Jackson County, register in your home county and apply for an absentee ballot. The ballot is free and is even supplied with a stamp for the return mail. Voting only takes five minutes of your time.

Go out and vote. Take five minutes and show your representatives, governor, congressman, and president you care. Whether you vote in your home town or Jackson County at the polls, or by absentee ballot, go out and vote. — Mark Case, Senator, Sophomore, Forestry

Library texts target for defacing

"The southern extension of Lake Michigan was unknown until Joliet and Marquette paddled into it with their canoes as they left the Chicago river.

"French ceded in 1763 all their western possessions to the English."

These and many more highlights have been pointed out in the signed first edition of copy "The Story of Old Fort Dearborn," written in 1912. Also, an 1812 edition of "Domestic Manner of the Americans" was similarly highlighted. Not to mention 90 percent of the books in Morris Library.

"Underline key sentences and circle key words. Read each paragraph as a unit of thought. Look for the most important sentences and underline them — especially those that express the theme and the major points used to support the theme.

"Take notes in the margins. Try to summarize each major point in a few words directly beside the key sentence that makes the point (Rackham, 1980)."

Rackham is the author of "From Sight to Insight" the GSD 101 text. On page two of "Writing and Reading Across the Curriculum" (GSD 117), the exercise is as follows: "Read the following passage. Underline the essential information. You may want to make brief notations in the margins." On page seven, a 6-step process for writing summaries is given:

1. Read the passage carefully.
2. Reread. This time divide the passage into sections or stages of thought. Underline key ideas and terms."

And so on. It has been argued that the authors did not mean for readers to write in library books. Where does it say that? Assume nothing. — Seth Allen Raila, Freshman, Anthropology

Recycling efficient way to save resources

Recycling first appeared in American dictionaries in 1960. It is a concept in constant tug-of-war with many people's current and strongly entrenched throwaway ethic.

For those people who currently incorporate recycling into their lifestyle, I commend them. For those who do not recycle, I would like to present some reasons to start.

Conservation of natural resources is probably the most well publicized reason presented for recycling. Again then, consider this, currently the United States imports 33 percent of our iron ore, 40 percent of our oil, and 91 percent of our bauxite for aluminum. As these materials become more difficult to obtain due to competition and resource depletion, it will be all of us who will swallow the increased costs of exploration and production for our extravagance of throwing away today.

Currently, the technological capacity is available to increase the recycling rate of steel and paper two-fold. If we take advantage of this capacity, not only would we conserve resources but also save the energy equivalent of 500,000 barrels of oil per day — or the amount of power generated by 14 nuclear power plants. Eficiency of resources and energy go hand in hand.

Reduction of pollution is another very noteworthy cause to recycle. Think of your local landfill: by reducing the amount of waste you generate you reduce the need for more and more landfills. Since the key to pollution control is prevention, you will also reduce water, air and land pollution. Everyone pays for waste disposal. Recycling is a means to shrink municipal spending as well as generate untapped sources of revenue and create jobs.

Last year the city of Chicago received a Waste Recycling and Job Creation Plan developed by the Resource Center located within the city. Chicago generates 2.5 million tons of residential waste each year. This waste cost $100 per ton to dispose of. Recycling 36 percent of this waste would save the city $109 million over a 5-year period. From the sale of recyclable materials, the revenue gain would be over $200 million over the same time period. In addition, 5,000 jobs would be created without the elimination of current street and sanitation jobs. These new jobs would be paid by revenues saved and generated through recycling and waste reduction.

Where can you recycle? Several recycling programs are available and active on campus. We've all seen the Reuse News bins around campus for recycling newspaper. The University also has a used motoroil collection tank located near the Physical Plant and a ledger pick-up service that collects from offices.

If you want to incorporate recycling into your lifestyle or would like to take a more active role in maintaining and expanding the University's recycling program, I encourage you to contact Pollution Control at 536-7511. — Susan O'Leary, Senior, Geology

STRING BEAN JENNINGS RETURNS TO THE BARN WITH COUNTRY FIRE
In the last two years, Country Fire has become the hottest indigenous country group in Southern Illinois. They have moved up from the small clubs and honky-tonks circuit to the large hall circuit including Dubois and Shelbyville.
With the recent addition of String Bean Jennings on fiddle, banjo and steel, FRED'S can honestly say Country Fire is the best in local country music.
1. Their music is big time in Southern Illinois.
2. For all those who like the good ole' days, you'll remember Jerry Jennings as the side-tuck and counterpoint to Barney Hampton of the Pioneers. When you seniors and juniors were just freshmen, Barney and Jerry were drawing crowds of 800 to FRED'S on any Saturday.

Jasmine duo will perform Sunday

Jasmine, the musical duo of Michele Isam and Carol Schmidt, will perform at 9:30 p.m. Sunday at Mainstreet East.

Jasmine's material reflects the influences of 1960s rock, early Motown soul, a variety of 1940s musical styles and contemporary women songwriters such as Joan Armatrading, the Roche Sisters, Laura Nyro and Rickie Lee Jones.

Jasmine's self-titled debut album includes seven original tunes and has been well received by critics.

Mike Joyce, of The Washington Post, wrote, "Pianist Carol Schmidt and saxophonist Michelle Isam...have lovely contralto voices, a flair for crisp, staccato harmonies and a contagious affection for swing and jive." Joan Lipkin, of The St. Louis

Globe-Democrat, wrote, "These two live wires have sent up sparks wherever they perform."

And, Michael Buckman, of The Riverfront Times, wrote "Powered by a dynamic stage presence, Jasmine's music is infectious. Michelle's horn and vocals soar. Carol's piano rolls; her guitar playing is diverse, running chordal, finger-picked and flat-picked songs in succession."

Admission for Jasmine is $3.50 in advance and $4 at the door.

Countrified 'Annie' coming to Shryock

"Annie Get Your Gun." Irving Berlin's ever-popular musical about a battle between the sexes, will come to Shryock Auditorium on Friday, March 23. The traditional score has been given a contemporary country flavor and will feature country-western stars Helen Cornelius as Annie Oakley and Dave Rowland as her lover — rival Frank Butler.

Backed by their own bands, Cornelius and Rowland will deliver a combination of music, comedy and romance as Annie Oakley learns she "can't get a man with a gun."

Tickets are $12.50 and $14.50 and can be purchased weekdays from 11:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Shryock Box Office. For more information, call 453-3378.

Reception Friday for sculpture exhibit

The exhibition, a class project for "Art 447: Introduction to Museology," will run through March 8.

SIU-C students Blaine

A grant from the National Endowment for the Arts Folk Arts Program funded the fieldwork of Sharon Celsor. Through photographs and taped interviews, Celsor documented the women ethnic artists, their work, personal histories and working environments.

Representative items from the show will be exhibited locally by the University Museum after the museum exhibit closes April 10.

Located in Faner Hall, the University Museum is open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free.

Gerhard and Lisa K. Horning, with supervision from the staff of the museum, prepared the display for the exhibit as a student practicum project.

The show includes 20 glass, ceramic, metal and wood sculptures made by SIU-C undergraduate and graduate students. Admission is free.

Escorts available at Thompson Point

The Thompson Point Executive Council will offer an escort service for female residents of Thompson Point on a trial basis through March 9. Male residents will be available from 8 to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday to escort female residents to and from campus, according to Susan Walsh, a council member.

To request an escort, women may call the council's office at 453-3724 to arrange a meeting place. Escorts will be required to identify themselves to women who use the service, Walsh said.

Brown Hall has sponsored the service in the past, Walsh said. The council decided to try the service because support from Brown Hall residents was low, she said.

Visiting artist at home at McLeod

By Lisa Nichols
Staff Writer

When the curtain goes up on "Die Fledermaus" in McLeod Theater on March 1, Randall Black will feel right at home. Before leaving to study music at Indiana University in 1979, the Carbondale native spent four years performing in plays and musicals at SIU-C.

Black, a Carbondale native, is here as a visiting artist to play the central role in "Die Fledermaus." A tenor, he has appeared with the Indianapolis and Atlanta symphonies and with the Memphis and Santa Fe opera companies and has among his credits roles as Ferrando in "Cosi fan Tutte" and Ernesto in "Don Pasquale."

He said that his most popular role at SIU-C was as Curly in the 1979 Summer Playhouse performance of "Oklahoma!" All eight performances sold out and another had to be added.

In "Die Fledermaus," one of the most popular operettas ever performed, Black plays the Gabriel von Eisenstein, who plays a practical joke on his friend Dr. Falke. When they are returning from a costume party late one night, Falke, dressed as a bat, passes out. Eisenstein decides it would be a great joke to just leave him there.

The next morning, Falke awakens and has to walk home to the sounds of his neighbors and their children taunting him. After that day, he becomes known as Dr. Bat. "Die Fledermaus," (the bat) is the story of Falke's revenge on Eisenstein.

Director Michael Blum, who translated the show from German to English, said that the show is suitable for the whole family to watch. The set and costumes are colorful and lighting.

Performances will be at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 1 through 3, and at 2 p.m. Sunday, March 4. Tickets are $4 for the Thursday and Sunday performances, and $5 for the Friday and Saturday shows. Tickets can be purchased at the door or from noon to 4 p.m. at the McLeod Theater Box Office.

Art students get soup and bread Thursday afternoon in the starving artists' soup line.

Soup line nets funds for scholarship

By Dean Jones
Staff Writer

A joke between two art students about starving artists, hard times and the return of soup lines sparked an idea that netted $37.50 Thursday for the Art Students League and the Tony Fehm Scholarship Fund.

Zan Lombardo, president of the ASL, said the idea came up as she and senior Viki Kominos were sitting around talking about how broke we were," Kominos said it wouldn't be long before the return of soup lines.

In only 30 minutes, starting at noon Thursday, nearly 75 people were served through the ASL's 1984 version of the Depression-era lifesaver in the Allyn Building to eat a 50 cent lunch of vegetable soup and bread, donated by Megli's Produce and Cristaudo's Bakery.

"It's about the way artists are today — starving," said Rick Pere, senior in art history, over a mug of soup. "It's a good symbolic gesture, and we need the money for the scholarship."

Lombardo, who prepared the soup, called the event a big success and said, "We're hoping that by next fall we can begin awarding the scholarship."

Lombardo said the size of the award will depend upon future fund-raising efforts and that the recipient will be an undergraduate art history student.

The scholarship honors the memory of Sherwood "Tony" Fehm, associate professor of art, who died in July 1983 following open heart surgery. He taught art history at SIUC for six years.

Lombardo said that in April the league plans to participate in a "Paint the Buick" contest, sponsored by the Buick Motor Co. in St. Louis, that could add $1,000 to the scholarship fund.

Rumanian music, slide show slated

A lecture with slides and field recordings entitled "The Rich Variety of Rumanian Folk Music" will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the University Museum Auditorium in Faner Hall.

Harold Dennis-Jones, of Tunbridge Wells, England, an expert in ethnic music, will give the lecture, which is being sponsored by the Anthropology Department and the University Museum.

Dennis-Jones has done extensive field recordings of village and orthodox church music throughout Eastern Europe.

Play wrings humor from divorce

By Terry Levecke
Staff Writer

"The Wager" by Mark Medhoff offers theatergoers a look at a contemporary tragedy — divorce — presented with an almost absurd sense of humor.

The play, director Ken McCoy's thesis project for his master of fine arts degree, will be performed in the Laboratory Theater in the Communications Building at 8 p.m. Friday.

Medhoff defined himself in a preface to the play, which was first performed in March 1967 at the University of New Mexico, as a writer who creates "humor wrung out of things that really aren't a damn bit funny."

The humor of this play was successfully achieved in this production because of the timing and delivery.

What isn't funny about this play is that Honor, played by Brigid Corrigan, sophomore in theater, decides she never loved her husband, Ron, played by Dennis Moran, graduate student in English.

She decides to divorce Ron and fool around with Ward, one of her neighbors, played by Stan Windhorn, senior in theater. Ward is the "stud" physical education graduate student.

What is funny is how Ward's roommate, Leeds, a cynical English graduate student played by Bill Dwyer, senior in radio-television, deals with the craziness around him and within himself.

Leeds' apathy and insensitivity somehow draws every other character to him for help. It's he who Honor really wants, but she settles for Ward just to get at Ron.

Ron goes to Leeds for advice on how to handle the breakup, and Ward constantly seeks his companionship — that is when he's not grading the performance of the last woman he was with or pursuing someone else.

Even murder is a possibility in this play, and three of the characters are really quite tragic, but the clever lines and triangle of action make this one of the funniest performances staged in recent seasons.

Author's short stories succeed by looking at life's peculiarities

By Terry Levecke
Staff Writer

Jonathan Penner is a man of his world. And with his words he entertained about 100 people in Quigley Lounge Tuesday night, reading from his latest published work, "Private Parties."

The book, a collection of short stories, was published after Penner received the Drue Heinz Literary Prize through the University of Pittsburgh Press. Penner's unique humor and poignant observations "life are in their finest form in this collection dealing with human relationships."

Penner visited SIUC as part of a five-day reading tour. Hearing the author read his own words accentuated the humor that results from the unique perspective of his characters.

"Fiction crosses the threshold and begins to seem very much like life when you can get a certain closeness of details in here," Penner said. And he does that very well by including secular things in life, such as he uneasiness felt from a dog sniffing at everbody's crotch, which is included in the magery of "Uncle Hersch," or getting your ear drained at the doctor's office, which is included in "Thing To Be Thrown Away."

"Private Parties" represents the fruit of 25 years of story writing," Penner said. Some of the stories have been worked and re-worked over the years. One of the stories, "At Center," is 17 years old, he said.

The visit to Carbondale was more than just a promotional stop for his book, however. He returned to see friends he made while he taught fiction here in the 1976-77 school year.

He is currently a guest writer at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn. This summer he will pack up his family and head for Yugoslavia on a Fulbright Fellowship, where he will tour and attend "Literary Manifestations," he said, the Yugoslavian title for writers' workshops.

Penner keeps writing in the family. His wife, Lucille Recht Penner, is a food writer, and has two published books. But, he said, he'll be happy if his 8-year-old son and 2-year-old daughter become readers.

Penner has two other published books to his credit, "Intelligent Traveler's Guide to Chiribosco," and "Going Blind," in addition to having short stories published in literary magazines such as Harper's and The New Yorker. "Intelligent Traveler's Guide to Chiribosco," a novella, was published after Penner won a short novel award through the Galeo Press.

"I wrote that for fun," he remarked. "It is a guidebook to an imaginary land. It's told by a person who has something at stake in telling the story, and is justifying himself in pleading his case."

Penner wrote "Going Blind" in 1977 for his dissertation at University of Iowa, where he earned two master's degrees and a doctorate in fiction. He studied medieval literature for his doctorate and incorporated his research into the hero of the book.

Penner was first drawn to language in high school, when he was forced to memorize poetry. He continued to write poetry through high school, and wrote his first short story as a freshman at the University of Bridgeport, Conn.

He got a chance to measure himself against other young writers while attending summer school at Harvard with Bernard Malamud one year and John Updike the next.

Although Penner has written a novel and short stories, he said he is more comfortable writing short stories.

"You can finish it much more quickly and get the gratification," he said. "You show it to people, and then get it published. All of this happens much more quickly than with a novel. You can work on a novel for five years and it can be

'Woodpecker' mixes odd pair

By Liz Myers
Staff Writer

A modern day princess, an outlaw who loves to use dynamite and a multitude of other characters stepped out of Tom Robbins' novel "Still Life With Woodpecker" and onto the Calipre Stage Wednesday to create a mixture of silliness, comedy and a solid acting performance.

"Still Life With Woodpecker," directed by Ronald J. Pelias, revolves around the lives of a pair of mismatched lovers, Princess Leigh-Cheri and Bernard Mickey Wrangle — the Woodpecker — and the bizarre antics that infiltrate their affair.

Tammy Rosa, a junior in theater, plays Princess Leigh-Cheri, a naive redheaded princess who falls for the criminal Woodpecker despite the wishes of her parents, Queen Tilli and King Max.

Although Rosa is the star of the play, Matt Deichmann steals the show as the Woodpecker, a dynamite-fiend who wears an absurd curly black wig, Snoopy sunglasses and carries several sticks of dynamite with him wherever he goes.

Deichmann, a senior in radio and television, handled his wisecracks expertly Wednesday. He kept the audience in an uproar as he dazzled them with a spectacular performance.

"Outlaws are the can openers in the supermarket of life" is the self-righteous philosophy of the Woodpecker that allows him to explode buildings without a trace of guilt.

The plot of "Still Life" focuses on the shedding of the sheltered princess' exchequerleader values as she is swept off her feet by a con-man and a criminal, the Woodpecker.

Through the use of clever pantomime and versatile acting, the Calipre Stage was transformed into an array of places including Hawaii, an airplane and a prison.

The success of the show lies not in the entire performance, which at about two hours seemed too long, but instead in certain moments of anarchy.

Another performer who deserves praise is Mary Fabey, who portrayed Queen Tilli.

Although her role was not large, Fabey, a senior in theater, enlivened the play considerably with her zany interpretation of a modern-day queen without a country.

The play was a lighthearted and successful attempt to bring Robbins' novel to theater. Ronald Pelias, Adam Fogelson, who adapted the play, and the talented actors proved that a lot of hard work and imagination can transform even the strangest literature into a live performance.

Tickets for performances at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday may be purchased through the Department of Speech Communications or at the door. Ticket price is $2.50.

had."

Penner blazes his own trail in fiction style by producing humorous pieces with sensitive imagery as exemplified in

"Frankenstein Meets the Ant

People," which is about a handicapped boy, his prospective stepmother and his ant farm.

Penner said it's difficult to remember where he gets inspiration for his stories.

"Once you complete a jigsaw puzzle do you remember which piece you put down first?" he said. "All that matters is that there's something tugging at your imagination, you should trust it. It's like the silk handkerchiefs tied together that a magician pulls out of his pocket. The story is there somewhere inside you."

Parr to speak at Student Center

State Senate candidate P.L. Parr will hold a press conference to discuss coal and utility issues at 10 a.m. Friday in the Illinois Room of the Student Center.

Parr, a Union County farmer, is seeking the 58th District seat vacated by Sen. Ken Buzbee, who is running for Congress. He is seeking the Democratic nomination on March 20.

The other contenders for the nomination are Murphysboro Mayor Sydney Appelton, Randolph County Coroner Gary McClure and former Murphysboro Mayor Bill Wheelert.

An assortment of homemade and handcrafted items made by civic, church and other non-profit organizations will be for sale at the University Mall Community Bazaar on Saturday.

DeNoon picks Illinois State to win GCAC meet

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

Women's track Coach Don DeNoon said he thinks it is time for his Salukis to "wake up and perform like their capable of" at the Gateway Conference indoor meet Friday and Saturday at Cedar Falls, Iowa.

"It will be competition that we should have had at the beginning of the season," DeNoon said.

Although SIU-C will try to improve upon last year's sixth-place finish, DeNoon said he is picking defending champion Illinois State to win the meet over Drake, because of the Redbirds' depth.

"Illinois State is stronger than Drake because they have kids who will finish fourth, fifth, and sixth," DeNoon said. "Drake might get five first place finishes, and then drop off."

Four GCAC opponents finished ahead of the Salukis'

13th place finish last week at the 21-team Illinois Invitational. ISU finished third with 56 points, and edged fourth-place Drake by one point. Eastern Illinois and Western Illinois tied for 11th place.

The Redbirds are led by All-American Wendy Van Mierlo and Rosalind Cassidy. Van Mierlo has recorded the best conference times in the one-, two- and three-mile runs and Cassidy has the best conference times in the 880 and 1000-yard runs.

DeNoon said he expects the Salukis to challenge for third place with Wichita State, Eastern Illinois, and Western Illinois.

"If we have a banner day we could finish as high as third," DeNoon said. "I don't think we'll finish lower than sixth."

The Salukis' top hopefuls are Denise Blackman — if she is healthy — Debra Davis and Rhonda McCausland.

DeNoon said he isn't sure if

Blackman will compete because she has fluid in her lungs from running a couple of weeks ago in the cold weather.

"If Denise is well enough to compete, we expect a couple of first place finishes from her and we expect some points from her in the relays," DeNoon said.

Blackman has the best conference times in the 60-yard dash at 6.86 and the 300-yard dash at 35.90. She will be challenged by Karen Brown of Wichita State in the 60, whose best time is 7.01.

Blackman's top challengers in the 300 will be her twin sister, Carlson, and Julie Kauls, both from Drake, and Brown. Blackman will also run in the 4x220-yard relay, and the 4x440-yard relay.

Davis has the third best time in the 440-yard dash at 57.56.

behind Drake's Blackman at 55.41 and Western Illinois' Kathy Turley at 57.3. Davis will also run in the 4x220-yard relay, and the 4x400-yard relay.

"There is a shot Debra can finish second in the conference in the 440," DeNoon said. "I think we're going to see good results from Debra and I wouldn't be surprised if she comes close to the national [qualifying time of 55.4."

McCausland, who has the conference's best throw in the shot put at 49 feet, 9.25 inches, could easily win the competition. McCausland's closest challenger will probably be Jusie Tindel of Western, whose best throw this year is a 44-7.5.

Netters to seek first win against unbeaten Purdue

By George Pappas
Staff Writer

Unbeaten Purdue will invade Carbondale Saturday to face the winless Saluki men netters 2 p.m. at the Egyptian Sports Center.

It might appear that this match could be an easy win for the Boilermakers.

"Not necessarily," Purdue first-year Coach Ed Dickson said. "Even though the Salukis haven't won this season, they've been up against some tough competition. Our two victories have been against mediocre teams so I think it will be a tough match. Whoever plays well will win."

The Boilermakers have beaten Illinois State 9-0 and Evansville University 5-4. The Salukis, 0-5, beat Evansville 7-2 last semester in the practice fall season but they also had No. 2 Rollie Oliquino playing then. With Oliquino out of the lineup with knee problems, Saluki Coach Dick LeFevre said the Salukis will be facing a good match.

"We'll be going after them," LeFevre said. "I'm well aware of their team and I think we have a good chance of winning or at least coming close."

The Boilermakers feature

three-time All-Big 10 player Adam Abele at No. 1 singles. Abele is the all-time winningest player in Purdue history with a career record of 67-21. He is 2-0 this season. He will face Per Wadmark who lost to Abele last year. Wadmark has yet to win in five matches this year, and his career mark has fallen to 17-15. But, even though the odds are against the sophomore Wadmark, LeFevre said he is still optimistic.

"Per is finally getting the practice he needs and is coming around," LeFevre said. "He'll put up a good fight."

At No. 2 singles will be the clash of the freshmen. Saluki Lars Nilsson will face Scott Gregory. Gregory is 2-0 this year whereas Nilsson is 0-5. But Nilsson is back on his feet after being sick with the flu the last two weeks.

Gabriel Coch, 2-3, is the Salukis' top winner this year. He will go up against Bill Slattery, 1-1, at No. 3 singles. At No. 4, Chris Visconti, 1-4, is still sick with a cold but he will play and face Boilermaker Mark Coza, 1-1.

If Paul Rasch is over his illness, he will face unbeaten Mike Seimeca at No. 5.

Netters to end two-week layoff

By Jim Lexa
Sports Editor

It has been two weeks since the SIU-C women's tennis squad has seen competition, but the Salukis could see plenty of action at the Eastern Kentucky Invitational Friday through Sunday.

The eight-team invitational will be fought, with no team scores kept.

Saluki Coach Judy Auld said she's glad to have her squad in the tournament.

"The playing time is the main thing of the tournament," Auld said.

Auld's Salukis, 0-1, will each play a minimum of two singles and two doubles matches. If any of the players lose their first two matches, then they are out of the tournament.

SIU-C will be competing against West Virginia, Louisville, Kentucky, Wake Forest, Illinois State, Miami of Ohio and host Eastern Kentucky.

Only six of the seven Salukis will make the trip, Auld said. Stacy Sherman will miss the tournament because she has to go to New York to take a state certification test for court reporting.

With the tournament flighted, there will be three groups of singles instead of six. Salukis' Alessandra Molinari and Heidi Eastman will play in flight 1, Mary Pat Kramer and Maureen Harney in flight 2, and Amanda Allen and Kathy Harney in flight 3.

All the doubles teams will be placed in one bracket. Molinari and Eastman will team together as the pair did in the squad's season opener at SIU-Edwardsville two weeks ago. However, with Sherman not playing, the other two doubles teams will be split up. Maureen Harney and Kramer will team together as they did last fall, while Allen and Kathy Harney will pair up.

Injuries, illnesses and a lack of practice have hindered the Saluki squad this season. Conditioning has helped Molinari's injured foot, Auld said. Allen has been able to practice for just three weeks after suffering a muscle strain in her back.

"Alessandra is definitely starting to get her game back," Auld said. "She is starting to play better. She was behind everybody at Edwardsville. She still needs competition, though."

Auld said that Allen's game has improved in the last two weeks.

"Amanda's timing is picking up a little better," Auld said. After competing in the fall and then having the winter layoff, Auld said it is tough to regain the "competitive drive."

Women stressing score in tri-meet

By Jim Lexa
Sports Editor

Salukis women's gymnastics Coach Herb Vogel has been stressing throughout the season that his squad's record is not too important, but how his team scores is.

Heading into a triangular meet with Illinois State and Indiana at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Arena, Vogel's squad carries a 1-10 mark, but is ranked second in the central region.

Even though the Salukis took third out of four at the Illinois Collegiate Classic Sunday, their 178.45 score was labeled a victory by Vogel, for it replaces a 168.50 mark in SIU-C's four-meet average. The top six teams in the central region, based on their four-meet average, qualify for the regional meet.

SIU-C is ranked second in the region, ninth nationally, with a 177.77 average. The Salukis' low score of their four is a 174.20.

ISU jumped to fifth in the central region after posting a 180.10 in the ICC. The Redbirds are averaging 176.575. Indiana, meanwhile, is down on the central region list, carrying an average of about 172.

Vogel said he thinks his squad can beat ISU this time, and also knock off Indiana, but once again, he is not worried about the win.

"Our basic objective is to remove another low score from our average," Vogel said. "If we can again post a score in the high 170s, it will be a victory for us. Winning the tri-meet would be frosting on the cake."

Vogel said ISU and the Salukis could be even after the meet's first two events, the vault and the uneven parallel bars. If that is the case, then SIU-C could be in trouble heading into the balance beam, which Vogel calls an "animal."

At the ICC, ISU overtook the Salukis on the beam, averaging 1.04 for its five scores, while the Salukis could manage just an 8.576 average. SIU-C lost the ICC by 2.5 points.

The all-around competition should be a battle between SIU-C's Michelle Spillman, averaging a school-record high of 37.175, and ISU's Betsy Cekander, who won the ICC all-around competition with a 37.75. Cekander has also posted a 37.30 and a 37.

Spillman's average would place her No. 18 on the NCAA list of season-best performances, where Spillman ranks second. The NCAA does not have a ranking of average scores available.

Indiana's Mary Estavillo will be making a homecoming of sorts. Estavillo graduated from Murphysboro High School.

Entries, fees due for racquetball

Entries are due by 5 p.m. Monday for the 1984 Saluki Open Racquetball Tournament.

An entry fee of $10 will be charged to entrants with SRC user cards, while it will cost $15 for entrants who do not have a SRC user card. The tournament will be at the Recreation Center March 2, 3, and 4.

Trophies will be awarded to the top three finishers in each of four men's divisions and three women's divisions.

Swim squads lead at NIC meet

By Scott Rich
Staff Writer

After the first day of competition at the National Independent Swimming and Diving Championships in Columbia, S.C., the SIU-C men's and women's swimming teams have taken an early lead.

But the controversy concerning Saluki diver Nigel Stanton still continues. Stanton has been withheld from competition because of questions raised by the NCAA regarding his collegiate eligibility.

Kirby Browning, director of SIU-C admissions and records, said "We have no specifics on the matter, but an investigation is pending by the NCAA."

Men's swimming Coach Bob Steele said his team is off to a good start, but the Salukis will miss Stanton's contributions.

"Nigel could have contributed as many as 30 points," Steele said. "This puts the pressure on Tom Wentland and Jim Watson to give well and make up the ground. We'll be depending heavily on them."

Both Saluki teams are off to good starts in defending their

NIC titles.

The SIU-C men lead the 10-team field with 159 points. Miami is second with 122 points, while South Carolina is third with 117 points.

The Saluki women, ranked seventh in the nation, won three of four events on the first day of competition and lead the 21-team field with 228 points. South Carolina, ranked No. 15, is second with 213 points and Florida State, ranked No. 17, is third with 171 points. The other 18 teams in the NIC meet are far behind the three top squads.

The Saluki men took the top three places in the 500 free, with Andrez Grillhammar taking first at 4:25.5. Grillhammar's time was a NIC record and just five-tenths of a second off his season-best.

Gary Brinkman was second in the 500 free at 4:27.8, Erwin Kratz took third, 4:29.2, and Chris Crook was sixth at 4:32.7.

Tom Hakanson was second in the 50 free with a time of 20.72, three-tenths of a second off the NCAA qualifying pace.

In the 200 individual medley, Joakim Sjöholm was third with a lifetime-best of 1:52.5. Carlos Henao was fifth at 1:53.8, while Chris Shaw took seventh at 1:55.2.

The Saluki women took four of the top five places in the 500 freestyle, with Janie Coontz finishing first with a time of 4:51.14. Coontz's time bettered her NCAA qualifying time, turned in earlier this season, by four-tenths of a second and gives her the sixth-fastest time in the nation this year.

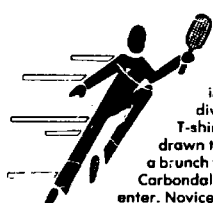

Roxanne Carlton was third in the 500 free with a time of 4:54.34. Carlton has already qualified for the NAAs in the event. Barb Larsen was fourth in the event at 4:55.77 and Stacy Westfall was fifth at 4:56.11.

Amanda Martin and Pam Ratcliffe gave the Salukis a one-two finish in the 200 breaststroke.

in Tulsa's 82-80 overtime win at Creighton Feb. 16.

"We have the type of team," Spivery said, "in which any one player can come through for us offensively. That's the key to this ballclub. We don't rely on one guy."

In recent games, Tulsa has gone inside to the 6-10, 240-pound Vanley more often.

"You've got to keep your big guy happy," Coach Nolan Richardson said. "Since we've been getting him the ball, he's regained his confidence. He likes to get the ball."

The Salukis, who had lost five of their last six games before their ISU game Thursday night, will be looking to upset the Hurricane and gain some leverage on Creighton and Bradley, the other two teams that are vying for fourth place along with SIU-C.

As always, Spivery said, Tulsa must be on guard to avoid a letdown.

"We can't afford to slip so we'll have to be ready," he said. "We know the Salukis will be coming at us. Our ranking gives every team we play incentive to knock us off."

The key to beating SIU-C, Spivery said, is stopping Nate Bufford, the Salukis' second-leading scorer.

Tulsa may not have to worry about Bufford. He missed Thursday's game and will probably miss the Tulsa game, according to Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle. He scored 24 points against Tulsa two weeks ago.

Salukis upset Illinois State

By Daryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

The Saluki basketball team stunned first-place Illinois State 105-96 in a wild game before 6,235 screaming fans at the Arena Thursday night.

The 105 points were the most scored against Illinois State in nine years.

With floor leader Nate Buf-

ford sidelined with a knee injury, Saluki captain Roy Birch, 20 points, and Bernard Campbell, 27 points, took control for the Salukis, who evened their Missouri Valley Conference record to 7-7, and are 15-10 overall.

The loss dropped Illinois State, 19-5 and 11-2, into a first-place tie with Tulsa. SIU-C remains in a tie for fourth with Creighton, a 93-87 winner over West Texas Thursday.

The Salukis led by 10 points at halftime and by 17 after a Chris George stuff with 12 minutes left, but Illinois State rallied to close the gap to 98-96 on a basket by Lou Stefanovic with 2:15 left.

By that time, Saluki starters Birch, George and Cleveland Bibbens had fouled out. Campbell, who missed SIU-C's last game due to a suspension, took charge for the Salukis, hitting a 12-foot jumper and two free throws to give the Salukis a 102-96 lead with 1:10 left.

Campbell's efforts stymied a second-half comeback by ISU, led by sixth-man Brad Duncan. The Redbird guard scored 18 points in the second half.

Sixty-four fouls were called in the contest, 39 on Illinois State, turning the game into a free-throw contest. The Salukis made 35 of 51, while ISU connected on 20 of 29.

SIU-C dominated the boards, pulling down 54 rebounds compared to 37 for the Redbirds. The Salukis outshot ISU 55 to 49 percent from the field.

"A great win for the players," Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle said. "Birch did a super job"

Men gymnasts set for Nebraska battle

By George Pappas
Staff Writer

"It will be their all-arounders against our specialists," Saluki Coach Bill Meade said of the men's gymnastics meet between the Salukis and the five-time defending NCAA champions Nebraska.

The fifth-ranked Salukis will host the second-ranked Cornhuskers 2 p.m. Sunday at the Arena.

The Cornhuskers, 5-2, will use three all-arounders and five specialists Sunday whereas the Salukis, 10-1, will use one all-arounder and eight specialists in the nine-man lineup.

"The key to our win will be to beat their fourth and fifth man on the events," Meade said. "I suspect that a score of 281 will be the deciding factor."

Neither team has reached that mark this season, but they've both come close. The Salukis scored 279.35 against Iowa State on Feb. 12 and Nebraska scored 279.30 against Iowa State and Oklahoma State last weekend.

"We have such a deep lineup," Meade said, "that it is possible for one player to spark the team. But, this weekend, we're going to need all nine men."

In the all-around, senior John Levy will have to face Mikus, Riegel and Suter. Levy's high score this year has been a 55.95 compared to Mikus's 57.70, Riegel's 57.60 and Suter's 57.30. Levy, though, said he isn't worried about it he'll win the all-around.

The big matchup will be Saluki Herb Voss against Hibbitts on the pommel horse. Since the pommel horse is the weakest event for both teams, all eyes at the Arena will be focused on Voss's and Hibbitts's performance. Voss has scored a 9.8 twice, while Hibbitts has reached 9.75 three times. They have faced each other twice this season with each winning once.

Lawrence Williamson will face Riegel, Nebraska's best floor worker. Both can score 9.8. On the rings, Gregg Upperman will have a go at Mikus. On vault, Price will be tested against Mikus and Riegel, both with a 9.7 average.

On the high bar, Levy and Kevin Mazeika will meet Mikus and Suter, both with a 9.53 average. On the parallel bars, Riegel and Mikus are averaging 3.48. The best Saluki on bars is a tossup between Levy, Luterman and Price.

Women cagers shocked

The SIU-C women's basketball team was stunned 76-63 by Wichita State Thursday night at Wichita.

The Shockers shot 66 percent from the field, and 70 percent in the second half, when they won going away. It was 35-33 at halftime.

"They played great," said Coach Cindy Scott. "They would have beaten just about anybody the way they shot."

SIU-C, 18-5 overall and 12-2 in the Gateway Conference, is now only a half-game in front of Drake. The two teams are even in the loss column.

Lisa Hodgson scored 25 points for the Shockers. SIU-C was led by Char Warring's 20 points. Petra Jackson had 16 and Connie Price had 12 before fouling out. The Salukis shot 44 percent.

Rematch with SWMO worries Scott

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

Saluki women's basketball Coach Cindy Scott worries about Southwest Missouri, SIU-C's opponent Friday night, even though the Salukis beat the Bears by 32 points on Jan. 27.

SIU-C returns home against Loyola at 4 p.m. Sunday at Davies gym. Loyola has a better team, but is a non-conference team, which diminishes the games importance to Scott.

"Southwest Missouri scares me because they're the type of team that doesn't quit," Scott said. "They come at you from all over the court and they're the type of team that can take you out of your game."

The Saluki game is slow, patient and usually deadly. SIU-C has ground out huge wins over most of its Gateway foes. But the team showed some run-and-gun flash in wins over Western Illinois and Bradley last weekend, and the Bears may decide to call off any notion of pressing the Salukis.

The Bears are led by the jumble-barreled attack of Jeanette Tendai and Cindy Hauteur, who are second and fourth respectively in Gateway scoring. Tendai, a 6-foot center, averages 21.8 points and 10 rebounds, and Hauteur, a 5-10 forward, averages 16.6 points. The duo rank two-three in free throw percentage behind Drake's center Lorri Bauman.

SIU-C returns home to play Loyola in a game that means a lot to the Lady Ramblers. Loyola made the move to Division I basketball last year with a vengeance, and can put themselves on the map with an upset. SIU-C won 75-60 last season.

The Lady Ramblers, playing in the fledgling North Star Conference, have reeled off 15 straight wins heading into a Saturday night clash with Evansville.

The team's 20-2 record may attract at least cursory notice from NCAA officials when they invite at-large teams to the five NCAA tournament, but the Lady Ramblers are more likely to wind up in the National Invitational Tournament, according to Loyola sports information director Paul Mettwie.

Loyola is a carbon-copy of SIU-C. The Lady Ramblers get balanced scoring, rely on fierce team defense, like to get the ball inside and are sparked by a flashy guard — ballhandler extraordinaire Faith Mimnaugh.

Mimnaugh, a 5-2 point guard, is averaging nine assists per game, and oversees the team's stack offense, which operates with two piveters on the low post.

The Lady Ramblers are 5-11, 6-0, and 6-1 on the front line, but are led in scoring by guard Kathy Leyden, 13.9 points per game, who keeps defenses honest with outside shooting.

Loyola has four starters

SIU-C trimmed 10-point deficits to four on two occasions and trailed 71-68 with four minutes left before Tulsa pulled away. SIU-C will travel to Tulsa for a Missouri Valley Conference matchup Saturday. The tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m. at the Tulsa Assembly Center.

Tulsa ran its win streak to five and its record to 22-2 with a 105-97 win over Wichita State Saturday. The Hurricane trailed Illinois State by a half game, before ISU's clash at

SIU-C Thursday night. Although Tulsa's highly touted guards, Steve Harris and Ricky Ross, lead the team in scoring, center Bruce Vanley, forward Herbert Johnson and the Tulsa bench have contributed lately.

Johnson had 30 points and eight rebounds against Wichita State, and freshman Carlton McKinney came off the bench for 10 points and five rebounds

Tulsa assistant coach Rob Spivery has bad news for SIU-C's men's basketball team. "In our last three or four games we've gotten better," said Spivery of the 10th-ranked Hurricane. "We feel we're peaking just about now."

That is not news to the Salukis, who battled hard, but lost to Tulsa at the Arena just 13 days ago, 86-76. In that contest,

SIU-C trimmed 10-point deficits to four on two occasions and trailed 71-68 with four minutes left before Tulsa pulled away. SIU-C will travel to Tulsa for a Missouri Valley Conference matchup Saturday. The tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m. at the Tulsa Assembly Center.

Tulsa ran its win streak to five and its record to 22-2 with a 105-97 win over Wichita State Saturday. The Hurricane trailed Illinois State by a half game, before ISU's clash at

SIU-C Thursday night. Although Tulsa's highly touted guards, Steve Harris and Ricky Ross, lead the team in scoring, center Bruce Vanley, forward Herbert Johnson and the Tulsa bench have contributed lately.

Johnson had 30 points and eight rebounds against Wichita State, and freshman Carlton McKinney came off the bench for 10 points and five rebounds averaging between 10.4 and 13.9 points per game, and five players average between 4.5 and 8.1 rebounds per game.

The Ramblers are shooting 49 percent, and average almost 76 points a game. Defensively they hold opponents to 39 percent shooting and 61 points per game by mixing zones, match-up zones and player-to-player defense.

Loyola gets into trouble when it doesn't hit free throws (only 63 percent). When Mimnaugh gets out of control and has a bad night the entire offense suffers. "They have a nice team," Scott said.

A loss to Loyola would hurt SIU-C's seeding in the NCAA tournament (if they win the conference title), but would not be as disastrous as a slip-up against a conference opponent.

Gateway Conference notes — Drake, 11-2 in conference play and one game behind SIU-C. plays Northern Iowa Friday. Last place UNI is 1-21 and is losing games by an average of 30 points. Bauman leads the league in scoring (28.8 points), minutes played (38.3), free throw percentage (86 percent) and is second in field goal percentage (60.5 percent). Teammate Wanda Ford leads the league in shooting (61.2 percent), rebounds (14.3) and is third in scoring (17.7). Another Drake player, forward Kay Riek, leads the league in assists. Drake is shooting 55 percent as a team.

SIU-C continues to lead the conference in scoring margin (plus 16.3), rebounding margin (plus 9.4), team defense (56 percent) and field goal defense (38.6 percent). Char Warring is sixth in scoring (15.6), seventh in rebounding (7.9) and third in field goal percentage (59.5). Connie Price is fifth in rebounding (8.0) and fourth in shooting (57.4).
