SIU may be fined for pollution violation

By Gene Charleton
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The State of Illinois could end up paying a fine to itself if SIU is unable to meet air pollution standards imposed by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Emissions from the Physical Plant smokestack don't meet EPA standards scheduled to go into effect in 1975. If the standards are not met, the Pollution Control Board (PCB) could fine the University until the violation is abated.

The dilemma facing the University is that funds earmarked for development of emission control devices for the smokestack were eliminated from the 1974-75 SIU budget as a low priority item. Yet without the development funds, SIU may be subject to proceedings by the EPA and PCB.

Michael Ginsberg, a lawyer in the EPA variance section, said Thursday he thought the University could be fined by the PCB, even though it is an agency of the state.

"My initial impression is that they are subject to the same provisions as everyone else," he said. The fine would have to come out of the University's own funds, Ginsberg said.

Most University funds come from state appropriations passed by the legislature.

Although he said he would have to look into it more thoroughly to be sure, Ginsberg said air pollution fines have been imposed against municipalities. The University would probably be in a similar situation, he said.

The manager of the EPA standards section, Marshall Monarch, said SIU has several alternatives if it is unable to meet the standards. The most usual of these would be for the University of petition the PCB for a one-year variance.

Monarch said if the University was to seek a variance, it would have to petition the PCB. The EPA would evaluate the petition and submit comments on it to the PCB, which would then rule on the request.

Excessive financial burden is one of the grounds which has been used to petition for variances from the PCB regulations, he said.

Northern Illinois University applied for a variance from the 1975 emission standards on financial grounds about one week ago, Monarch said. He said the PCB has not acted on the petition.

Monarch said he didn't have any definite information on the number of variances from the 1975 standards granted by the PCB.

PBK questions Allen case

SIU unlikely to get chapter

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Three years may pass before SIU is allowed to open a chapter of the national scholastic fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa (PBK).

A complex weave of bad timing and ironical inconsistencies is likely to cause PBK to pass over SIU in its August meeting, said Lewis Hahn, philosophy research professor. Although PBK's criteria for granting a chapter are purportedly academic, he said the American Association of University Professors' (AAUP) censorship of SIU-C will likely work against the decision.

Hahn said that PBK's national executive secretary told him PBK's advisory committees "never recommended a chapter at an institution that was on the AAUP censure list."

SIU's censorship is based on the refusal of tenure to Doug Allen, a controversial former professor. The decision, made in Dec., 1971, apparently influenced the visitation team from PBK, whom Hahn said were initially "quite favorably impressed," with SIU.

PBK was "particularly impressed with the faculty and the library," Hahn said. But he predicted their recommendation for a PBK chapter will be cancelled in PBK's August meeting. The next such meeting will be three years after that.

Allen's tenure case is presently in U.S. District Court in Illinois' eastern district. Even if a decision were quickly reached concerning Allen, Hahn felt it is too late for SIU's application to PBK to be implemented.

The Board's decision on Allen was made before President David R. Derge assumed his duties with the SIU. Despite AAUP's censure being based on the Allen case, Derge said the "core of the issue" deals with academic freedom.

"Higher education in general has operated for a long time with a general lack of specified criteria", concerning promotion, salary and tenure, Derge said. This lack of definite guidelines for advancement was the main cause for the confusion in the Allen case.

Derge said one of the first things he did at SIU was set up a task force to study and suggest a solution to setting up precise, contractual requirements for faculty advancement. The group's report has been completed and SIU is in the process of implementing such guidelines.

"The ironic thing is that, by and large, our record's been pretty good," Hahn said. of SIU faculty advancement. He said that a PBK spokesman told him that SIU would likely have been recommended for a local chapter, if the Allen case had been just six months later. If PBK does not grant an SIU chapter next month, Hahn said, the University will have the three yearly meetings of AAUP in which to revoke the blackball.

Nixon denies demands for tapes, committee votes to sue President

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon Thursday defied demands from Congress and the government's special prosecutor for Watergate-related tape recordings and documents. The Senate Watergate committee voted unanimously to sue him, and the prosecutor challenged him in court.

Thus, an issue which began with a burglary 13 months ago was launched into an unprecedented constitutional test of strength certain to climax before the United States Supreme Court.

Nixon said through a White House spokesman that he would abide by a definitive ruling by the high court and expressed confidence that the eventual decision would uphold him.

The day's events began unfolding when Nixon notified the Senate

Watergate committee by letter that he would not comply with the committee's two subpoenas. They demanded that he turn over his tape recordings, memoranda and documents bearing on the Senate's investigation of last year's wiretapping and burglary at the Watergate headquarters of the Democratic National Committee.

Nixon also wrote U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, in answer to a subpoena from special prosecutor Archibald Cox, that he would not release nine-tape recordings Cox sought. Nixon did, however, produce two "of the documents Cox's subpoena asked.

Cox immediately asked for a court order requiring Nixon's compliance with the subpoena and Sirica gave the White House until 10 a.m. EDT, Aug. 7 to respond.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, read Nixon's letter to him at the opening of the day's nationally televised hearings. In the letter, Nixon said he would not give up his tapes but would produce some documents if the committee would be very specific about what documents it wanted.

Ervin branded that response totally unacceptable.

"We are not clairvoyant," he said. "You can't identify a document you've never seen."

White House has more plumbers

WASHINGTON (AP)—John D. Ehrlichman told the Senate Watergate committee Thursday that there was another White House "plumbers" unit investigation that cannot be made public.

Ehrlichman said revealing the activity would compromise national security.

The disclosure came hours after the committee voted to challenge President Nixon in court over his refusal to turn over tape recordings and documents bearing on the Watergate scandal. Ehrlichman, a former top aide, defended the President's stand.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., noted that a memorandum in evidence before the committee had one paragraph left blank and asked Ehrlichman if he would provide it.

"I'd probably be violating two or three statutes if I provided this," Ehrlichman said. He added it involved a 1971 investigation no way related to the Watergate affair.

"Is it a co-mingling of Watergate and other matters?" Baker asked. "Not inherently," said Ehrlichman, but an inquiry into Watergate leads to an inquiry into this matter which would compromise it.

The known activity of a special

White House investigative unit known as the plumbers includes the break-in of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office investigation into leaks concerning the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, and a probe of White House discussions about the Bangladesh civil war.

In refusing to turn tape recordings over to the committee, Nixon had said conversations about Watergate were mingled with discussions of other topics—and disclosure of one would lead to disclosure of the other.

Ehrlichman's lawyer, John J. Wilson, produced a recent letter from White House special counsel J. Fred Buzhardt "directing us to claim executive privilege on a matter identified only as a fourth instance of the activities of the plumbers."

Ehrlichman said he would tell the senators about it in a closed session if the White House agrees.

Ehrlichman had intimated Tuesday that other activities of the plumbers had not come to light, but this was the first specific exploration.

Ehrlichman had intimated Tuesday that other activities of the plumbers had not come to light, but this was the first specific exploration.

Ehrlichman testified that former Nixon campaign treasurer Hugh W. Sloan Jr. came to him in July last year to discuss his fears of possible White House involvement in the Watergate break-in the month before.

"I don't know what Sloan wanted to tell me," Ehrlichman said. "After I learned he felt he had some exposure but hadn't talked to an attorney, I felt it would be grossly unfair to hear him out until he had taken the advice of an attorney."

Sloan had testified June 6 that Ehrlichman seemed to interpret his conversation as personal fear and that the White House aide said, "Don't tell me any of the details, I don't want to know." My position would have to be until after the election that I would have to take executive privilege.

Ehrlichman confirmed only that he suggested Sloan get a lawyer.

He also said Nixon "turned the FBI loose" on Watergate for the most extensive investigation since the probe into the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963 after assurance that Central Intelligence Agency activities would not be compromised.

The White House then got a report that only the seven men indicted and later convicted were involved, Ehrlichman said.

The committee hearing was recessed several times to enable members to vote in Senate roll calls on campaign financing legislation.

House approves aid overhaul: foreign food, birth control

WASHINGTON (AP)—Overhaul of U.S. foreign aid to focus $718 million on such needs as food production and birth control was approved Thursday as the House began voting on sections of a $2.8 billion authorization bill.

A series of amendments designed to chop the poor nation funding were rejected one by one.

Focus of money on poor nation problems was one of two major reforms in the bill. The other was creation of a $1 billion-a-year credit fund to boost U.S. exports to poor countries.

The bill would provide $1.8 billion for military aid and $1 billion for economic development assistance. Included was a Nixon administration-requested $632 million for Indochina reconstruction.

One aim of the reforms, already approved by a Senate committee, was to win authorization of foreign aid which has been snarled in Congress for two years.

The effort to chop the $718 million redistribution of aid was made by Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, long one of the most outspoken foreign aid opponents.

The $718 million includes $300 million a year for food production and nutrition; $150 million for population planning and health; $115 million for education and certain job training and $153 million for selected development projects.

Gross' amendments would have cut the food allocation to $150 million; the health and education allocations to $75 million each, and eliminated the rest.

Chairman Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, told the House the reforms "are designed to meet the realities of a changing world."

Morgan said the new Export

Development Credit Fund is intended not only to boost U.S. goods to poor countries but to recapture part of those markets from Japan and Europe.

The House and Senate have been snarled over foreign aid since October 1971 when the Senate voted to kill the entire program.

The Senate later approved a revised foreign aid program but the House and Senate could not agree on a program that year or last year.

Foreign aid has continued around the world throughout that period, under so-called continuing resolutions that extend spending authority pending Congress' approval of a regular authorization bill for the program.

Major oil companies report big profits as prices soar

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Major oil companies are reporting substantial profit gains while motorists are paying higher prices for gasoline which is reported in short supply.

With the nation undergoing a fuel shortage, the companies that produce it enjoyed perhaps their most profitable quarter in April, May and June.

Earnings gains ranged to 50 per cent and higher over the comparable period of last year.

Demand has grown faster than the supply, and prices have climbed. In some areas, gasoline is being rationed by service stations whose supply has been limited by the producers.

Reporting second-quarter and first-half results, oil company executives said their refineries were running full blast in an effort to alleviate the shortage.

California Standard's second quarter earnings leaped 42 per cent to $181.7 million, or $2.14 a share, from $128.3 million or $1.51 a share, a year earlier.

Atlantic Richfield's profits soared 50 per cent, and a company spokesman said the biggest factor was higher gasoline prices. The company earned $68.4 million, or $1.20 a share, compared with $45.7 million, or 81 cents a share, in the like 1972 period.

Nixon denies demand for tapes

The committee vice chairman, Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., then proposed that the committee take the President to court and the motion was adopted unanimously.

"The chair recognizes that there is no precedent for litigation of this nature," Ervin said. "I think this litigation is essential if we are to determine whether the President is above the law, and whether the President is immune from the duties and responsibilities of this kind that evolve upon all the other mortals that dwell in this land."

In a White House briefing, Charles A. Wright, an attorney for Nixon, told newsmen the President was prepared to turn over documents that deal strictly with political matters or that do not threaten the confidentiality of his relations with advisers.

SIU unlikely to get PBK chapter

"I'd hate to have our students denied the chance at joining Phi Beta Kappa... (on a) basis of irrelevance," Derge declared. He felt that the PBK regard for the AAUP censure is improper, since PBK honors proficient students, and "not the University, faculty, state or taxpayers." He also pointed out that the PBK membership is conferred only to undergraduates, while Allen was a doctoral student.

Another irony, Hahn said, is once PBK grants a chapter to a university, it is not withdrawn if the institution comes under censure.

Derge detailed the legal difficulties of SIU responding to the censure charge in order to clear the air. The University's lawyers in the Allen case have advised against any official administration reaction to the case or the censure. Derge agreed that any such statement would be prejudicial to the court's decision.

The result of "censure by default," Hahn said. Even when the Allen controversy had not gone to court, he said, the University was advised against making any public statement, on the grounds that the matter soon would be in a court of law.

"The only encouraging thing," Hahn said, "is that in terms of faculty programs and the library here, the responsible Phi Beta Kappa committee thinks we should have a chapter."

Derge said he does not know what AAUP reaction will be "after things are tidied up." Derge hopes to show

AAUP that, "perhaps, more than other universities in the country, we've sharpened up and made precise the criteria" for faculty advancement. Hahn felt, however, that even this achievement would not temper PBK's likely decision next month to withhold SIU's chapter.

Despite the likely denial, Derge is still happy that specifications for tenure, promotion and salary are being established. Every faculty member, he said, has a right to know exactly what will be required for advancement. Knowing the contractual requirements when signing with the University serves assurance that the instructor can not legally be deprived of his due," Derge said.

Richard Grunz, legal counsel for the Board of Trustees, said that the new guidelines will have no effect on the present Allen case. He said that "new guidelines can not be used to show something should have been there before."

Grunz also mentioned that the Allen case is still pending while the judge considers a motion to dismiss the suit.

Vending machines should allow students a choice of foods

There are more than 300 vending machines spread out over the campus. These machines generally contain cigarettes and junk foods which are bad for your health and teeth.

Cigarettes have been proven to be harmful to health, a major cause of cancer. Cigarette commercials have been banned from TV and radio. But still, in just about every building that has vending machines there is a cigarette machine.

Should cigarettes be this easy to get? Shouldn't the university make a stand on cigarettes one way or another?

President David Derge has ordered that there be no smoking in many buildings on campus, especially in classrooms. But these same buildings, in which smoking isn't allowed, contain cigarette machines. Either these cigarette machines should be removed from these buildings or the policy or rule should be withdrawn.

Candy and pops are bad for one's health and teeth, but these and cigarettes are basically the only machine-sold items on campus. There are few machines selling milk, juice, sandwiches or other more nutritional foods.

The reason the vast majority of the machines contain cigarettes, pop and candy is that these are the most requested items. George Patterson, coordinator of the vending machines on campus, said, "These machines bring in from $85,000 to $100,000 a year to the university so they are here to stay. But I'm not saying these machines should go. People who want pop and candy shouldn't be denied this privilege but people who care for their teeth and health and those who would prefer something different should also have the privilege of a choice.

In most cases there are two or more pop machines setting together or near each other and there is generally more than one candy machine in the same general area in a building. Some of these could be replaced with machines selling other things. This way persons wanting candy and pop would still have machines right there and the other persons would have a choice as well.

Joint SIU-Carbondale ambulance service healthy idea all around

On July 1, the SIU Health Service took over the responsibility of providing an ambulance service for Carbondale, in addition to continued service to the University. Glancing at the reasons and facts of such a move may provide a better understanding of the situation.

Years ago, when the city decided an ambulance service was needed, the responsibility of providing such a service fell to the fire department. Never happy with the arrangement, the fire department has been one of the chief supporters of the recent agreement.

While the fire department had the ambulance service, its average yearly cost came to about $40,000. Besides losing money for this reason of high costs, there was the matter of non-payment of bills for ambulance service. Roughly 80 per cent of the bills went without payment year after year. Coupled with the firemen's dislike of the former arrangement and the high costs, these reasons would be enough to justify the change.

But the agreement does more than appease the feelings of the firemen. In order to provide SIU with an ambulance service, the Health Service also was spending around $40,000 a year. Now with the combined city-university service, the cost for one year is projected at between $40,000 and $45,000. So instead of spending $80,000 for separate services, there should be a saving of 50 per cent.

With its savings, Carbondale is improving the fire department with new and better equipment. Thus, Carbondale is getting a better ambulance service along with better fire protection.

Economics is not the sole selling point of this new arrangement. Carbondale will receive better service because of the higher quality equipment and better-trained personnel. The Health Service gives its personnel rigid training, and many workers have had previous experience.

Many of the students working in the ambulance service had experience in the armed services. All have medical training and lean towards medical careers in one capacity or another. Besides earning money, they are gaining valuable experience and doing something they enjoy.

Taking all of these reasons together, it seems that both the city and SIU are gaining something, both economically and personally. Better service, saving money, job experience. That adds up to a good deal for both parties and something we can all live with and use.

Fred, Flossie find men, broads not overly equal

By Arthur Hoppe
Chronicle Features

Once upon a time there were twins named Fred and Flossie Frisbee. They were fond of each other. So when they got out of college they decided to apply for a job together.

They chose Megabucks Conglomerated, Inc., because it was an equal opportunity employer. It even stressed in its advertising that it scrupulously gave women equal pay for equal work.

"Isn't it wonderful that the sexes are equal now in the business world?" said Miss Frisbee. "I'm so glad times have changes."

They made an appointment for a joint interview with Personnel Director Homer T. Pettibone. "Well, well, a brother-sister team," he said. "Tell me, Frisbee, have you any experience in giving dictation?"

"No, sir," said Frisbee eagerly. "But I'm sure I can learn."

"That's the spirit," said Mr. Pettibone. "And you, Miss Frisbee, can you type?"

"Yes," said Miss Frisbee, frowning. "But, actually, I have a degree in business administration and..."

"Nothing to apologize for, Miss Frisbee," said Mr. Pettibone. "Unlike some stuffy firms, we don't consider girls with a college education overqualified. Now, Frisbee, are you married?"

"Just engaged, sir," said Frisbee. "But we're planning on having a large family."

"Good, good," said Mr. Pettibone. "We like family men around here. Much more stable. What about you, Miss Frisbee?"

"I don't even have a steady beau," said Miss Frisbee.

"That's fine," said Mr. Pettibone. "We've found that trying to mix a marriage and a career is just too tough on you girls. When you think that you have to be here promptly at 8:45 every morning to fire up the coffee pot..."

"Is that the starting time?" asked Frisbee.

"Oh, not for the men, Frisbee," said Mr. Pettibone. "We're not slave drivers, you know. We're one big happy team. In fact, we rather hope you'll stop off for a drink with the fellows after work and...Which remind reminds me, I trust you don't frequent bars, Miss Frisbee?"

"Not up to now," said Miss Frisbee.

"Of course, I should caution you, Frisbee," said Mr. Pettibone with a wink, "that we have a lot of attractive girls around here. And if you want to engage in a little—ha, ha—hanky-panky, I hope you won't do so on office time." He gave Miss Frisbee a stern look. "But we don't indulge home-wreckers, Miss Frisbee."

"I can think of one I'd like to," said Miss Frisbee. "Now, Miss Frisbee, you'll be expected to keep your desk neat at all times and not tie up the phone with a lot of idle female chit-chat," said Mr. Pettibone. "On the other hand, Frisbee, we like to see our men with their desks piled with papers, a phone in each hand drumming up business. Busy and creative, that's the ticket. But I think you two can work together as a great team."

"We'll be working together?" asked Miss Frisbee, surprised.

"Certainly," said Mr. Pettibone. "Frisbee will have an office with a window and you'll be just outside his door in the secretarial pool, Miss Frisbee."

"Ms. Frisbee to you, Mac!" And with that, Ms. Frisbee heaved a book end through the window and stomped out, shouting, "Women's Lib forever!"

Mr. Pettibone sighed. "Well, we're glad to have an ambitious young man like you with us, Frisbee," he said. "But you can see why we don't hire many girls these days. They're so downright pushy."

A cursory glance at the Nixon presidency

To the Daily Egyptian:

Even a cursory glance at the Nixon presidency reveals the stubborn, mule-headed character of Richard M. Nixon.

He has sought to obstruct attempts to unravel Watergate. He authorized patently illegal bombing of Cambodia in 1971 and 1972 and then, with an obdurate audacity becoming only Richard Nixon, authorized the cover-up and falsification of those bombing reports.

He is responsible for bringing into the highest levels of government, men whose right-wing ideologies are surpassed only in the Soviet Union; nearly every member of the White House senior staff has come from his own law firm in New York or the image-makers of J. Walter Thompson advertising agency in Southern California.

Nixon's attitude toward Congress is not one of sharing the power of government but one of defiance. Congress is not even damned if they do and damned if they don't, they are simply ignored under the guise of Presidential prerogatives.

Nixon has taken us closer to totalitarianism under the guise of national security interests and preservation of the Presidency. He should be regarded as the jackass he so closely imitates.

A recent Watergate book ("The Impeachment of Richard Nixon," by Leonard Lurie) best sums up what Nixon has done to the country: "A wound has been inflicted against our system of government. It will not heal until the dirt has been cleansed from it." Richard Nixon is the dirt of the filthiest degree and must be washed from the system.

Meat price lid stays amid shortage warnings

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dismissing industry predictions of impending meat shortages as exaggerated, the Nixon administration made clear Thursday it will stick by plans to maintain the price ceiling on beef through Sept. 12.

Spokesman for the meat industry have been predicting serious shortages of beef starting next week if price relief is not granted at once. Beef is the only food item still under a price ceiling. President Nixon lifted the price freeze for the rest of the food industry last week.

Both Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers dismissed the meat industry warnings and said the administration has no intention of lifting the price ceiling early.

Shultz said at a news conference that the government has been keeping daily track of the beef supply and found the meat industry is overstating its problems.

"We have checked reports of 12 closings of meat packers and 9 were untrue," Shultz said.

Illinois adopts noise pollution regulations

CHICAGO (AP)—The Illinois Pollution Control Board adopted new noise pollution regulations Thursday which it says are the first of their kind to be adopted by any state.

The regulations, designed to limit noise that may be emitted beyond a person's property, go into effect immediately for new noise sources. Existing sources have one to three years to comply.

Under the regulations, the allowable noise level varies between different type of property. For example, a factory across the street from a residential development could not emit as much noise as if it were next to another factory. Noise levels must be lower at night than during the day.

The new regulations were immediately criticized as "unworkable, premature and inconsistent" by Lester W. Brann, Jr., president of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

"These noise controls don't attack the noise problem at the source, disregard the fact that present abatement technology simply can't do the job, and ignore all economic aspects," Brann said in a statement.

Brann contended that industrial noise is not the major noise polluter, that economic impact of the regulations on industries has not been considered, and that noise pollution should be dealt with on the local—rather than state—level.

The pollution board said the regulations, adopted after 16 public hearings, will be a model for other states to follow.

Juvenile rehabilitation, therapy fragile, child care expert says

TYLER, Tex. (AP)—A child care specialist testified Thursday that maintaining therapy and rehabilitation for juveniles in big correctional institutions is "a very fragile situation."

Dr. Jerome Miller, director of the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services, testified in the fourth week of testimony in a class action suit brought against the Texas Youth Council by present and former inmates. The TYC operates Texas' reform schools.

"There is a large body of evidence to show that, in the very least, large institutions do not work," he said. Miller moved to his Illinois post early this year after serving over three years as a commissioner in the Massachusetts Dept. of Youth Services.

In that position he supervised the closing of the large training school facilities for juvenile delinquents in Massachusetts.

The Massachusetts system has moved to small community-based facilities such as those recommended for Texas by other witnesses in the trial.

Recent news stories have spurred law suits questioning the treatment of Illinois children in some Texas institutions.

And a Texas legislative investigating committee said it is looking into the activities of two former Illinois officials now working in Texas.

Miller said brutality against inmates of large institutions is very difficult to uncover. "In a closed institution brutality can go on for years without even administrators knowing about it," he said. The difficulty arises, he said, from the fact inmates accept the way of life at institutions and don't report incidents.

Raid victims again meet grand jury

ALTON (AP)—The victims of a mistaken drug raid in Collinsville were scheduled to testify Friday before a federal grand jury impaneled to investigate a series of such raids.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gigliotto moved from Collinsville early this month claiming they were being harassed for speaking out against the April 23 raid in which they said narcotic agents terrorized them and ransacked their apartment.

The special grand jury is looking into the possible violation of the civil rights of the raid victims. It is the third grand jury to probe the mistaken raids.

GSC to consider fee sharing, restructuring

Restructuring the Graduate Student Council (GSC) and setting up a Fee Allocation Board for fall are among the items due before the GSC meeting Friday.

Sharon Yeaglin, executive secretary, urged all representatives to either attend the meeting or send a proxy. She said the proposal to reorganize the council form of representation and the decisions on graduate student fee allocations have an important bearing on this fall's Graduate School.

GSC will also determine whether to implement an orientation program for incoming graduate students. If such a program is desired, the methods and responsibilities for it will be assigned at the meeting.

Election of GSC representatives to replace present council members on the University Senate will also take place at the meeting, at 3 p.m. in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

Weightlessness causes body to shed unneeded muscles

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—As the Skylab 2 astronauts prepared for 59 days in space, scientists said Thursday the Skylab 1 crew's 28-day mission showed the human body apparently adapts to weightlessness by shedding unneeded muscle tissue, calcium and red blood cells.

At a news conference, medical scientists said the decrease in muscle tissue and calcium shown by the three Skylab 1 astronauts was similar to losses exhibited by people confined to bed for long periods.

They said the decrease in the number of red cells in the astronauts' blood—which averaged about 14 per cent for all three—apparently occurred because the spacemen breathed air that was at lower pressure and had a higher oxygen content than the normal air of earth.

The Skylab 2 crewmen—Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma—flew to Cape Kennedy from Houston, Tex., Thursday to begin final preparations for Saturday's 7:11 a.m. (EDT) blastoff to the orbiting scientific laboratory that is to be their home for two months.

The medical researchers said data from the Skylab 1 mission, which ended last month, showed that a 59-day stay should cause no serious medical problems. But the data raised some questions about the debilitating effects of the month-long flights necessary to reach Mars and other planets.

Dr. Michael D. Whittle, a Royal Air Force medical officer working with NASA, said the Skylab 1 astronauts experienced the greatest weight loss in their legs.

"We now think this weight loss is a pure and simple adaptation to weightlessness," he said.

"In orbit, they are using their legs very little, and we have information that the amount of muscle in their legs dropped off considerably," Whittle said.

The calcium loss seemed to be a result of decreased stress on the leg bones, Whittle said, adding that the loss was only about one per cent of the total amount of calcium in the body.

"The loss would have to continue for a year before we would have to worry about a man breaking bones, but it may be a problem when we get to Mars," Whittle said.

U.S. swordfish smuggling probed to curb mercury contamination

BOSTON (AP)—Federal officials are moving against a swordfish smuggling operation off the coast of Massachusetts. The illegal practice developed because consumers want the fish despite federal warnings that it may contain dangerous amounts of mercury.

U.S. Atty. James N. Gabriel said his investigation into the smuggling operation is in a preliminary stage but his office has determined "there is a substantial amount of swordfish coming into the country on an illegal basis."

He said American fishermen have been meeting Canadian fishermen at least once a week beyond the 12-mile territorial limit and transferring about 15,000 pounds of Canadian-caught swordfish to U.S. vessels.

The American fishermen sell the swordfish through regular markets and split the profits on an even basis with the Canadians, he said.

Federal officials explained that American fishermen are unable to meet the domestic demand for swordfish from catches within the 12-mile limit. All foreign swordfish must meet federal inspection standards for mercury contamination.

The procedure began a year ago when the government determined that 95 per cent of the swordfish coming into the country contained dangerous levels of mercury, officials said.

However, Dr. George Michaels, director of the Division of Food and Drugs in the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, said he does not agree with the federal regulation.

"The amount of mercury contained in swordfish is so small that it does not constitute a hazard to health," he said.

U.S. Atty. Gabriel said he expects to return a number of indictments against fishermen involved with the smuggling operation. He declined to say how many fishermen now are under investigation.

"I don't think we can take any action against the Canadian fishermen unless they come within the 12-mile limit," he said.

Elderly hard hit by rising food costs

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Rising food prices have forced many retired people living on fixed incomes to eat fewer meals and some have even resorted to shoplifting food and vitamins, officials said Thursday.

Social workers and store officials said the situation was particularly acute in Miami Beach, where 61 per cent of the population of 85,000 is aged 65 and over.

Max Friedson, 74, chairman of the Congress of Senior Citizens, which has 100,000 members in Florida, estimated that some 500 to 1,000 elderly people in Miami Beach "simply cannot make ends meet" and are too proud to go on welfare.

"They get $80 to $90 a month in Social Security, they can't get on welfare and apartments cost between $110 and $150 a month," Friedson said. "They simply can't do it. For a couple, food costs about $100 a month. Some are existing on two meals a day."

In a one-mile-square area of south Miami Beach, Friedson said, 37,000 old people are living on fixed incomes, many of them union pensions.

For many the bright spot of the day is a 50-cent meal at a Methodist church in Miami.

Flora Sherman, 79, formerly of Nashville, Tenn., lunched there Thursday on baked chicken, string beans, potato salad and fresh tomatoes and talked about their problems.

"There's nowhere else you can get a meal like this," beamed Mrs. Sherman as she pointed to her tray.

Friedson said his organization has had to help with the legal defense of some elderly people who have been caught shoplifting.

"This is terrible. We should set an example to the young. We should be elder statesmen. There should be other ways to make ends meet than shoplifting," he added.

"Some of the older women put little packages of meat in their bras. They steal what they need at the time—vitamins, cans of tuna fish," said Frank Curcio, security chief for Grand Union stores.

Hugh Fitzpatrick, southern division security manager of the Food Fair supermarket chain, said 90 per cent of the shoplifters caught are not professional thieves and many are elderly.

He added that if an old person is a first offender he might get off with a lecture.

"We treat them like you would mom or dad. Some feel because they gave the store their business in better days they are entitled to whatever they want to take," he said.

Miami Beach police said that in the year ending June 30, 89 people were arrested for shoplifting in the city and "the great, great majority are very elderly people."

Other police officials pointed out that the majority of people picked up in stores for shoplifting were not prosecuted.

Nixon lawyer wants early, not hasty subpoena decision

WASHINGTON (AP)—The lawyer who will argue President Nixon's Watergate subpoena case in the courts said Thursday he wants an early decision, but without racing "helter skelter merely to set a new speed record."

GS registration starts Monday

Fall registration for new and continuing General Studies students is nearing.

New students may register Wednesday, Aug. 6, 7, 9 and 10. John W. Voight, dean of General Studies, announced Thursday.

Continuing students may register only on Wednesday and next Friday.

to withhold Watergate-related tape recordings subpoenaed by the Senate Watergate committee and special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

While the White House said Nixon "would abide by a definitive decision of the highest court," Wright said some Supreme Court rulings are "less than definitive," suggesting that in such an event Nixon might feel justified in continuing to challenge the subpoenas.

A professor of law at the University of Texas employed by the White House as a $150-a-day consultant, Wright discussed the seemingly inevitable court test with newsmen and said:

"I would like to have it end as soon as it possibly can end. The sooner we can get to the bottom of Watergate, the better off the country will be."

The sandy-haired, 45-year-old constitutional law scholar is scheduled to argue Nixon's case in U.S. District Court here.

Chain-smoking at the rostrum in the White House briefing room, Wright declared:

"We are not going to race helter skelter merely to set a new speed record."

The Texas professor gave no hint as to how the White House will go about presenting its case, except to say he wants an early but not hasty decision.

Asked if there might be a way to move the subpoena dispute directly from the District Court level to the Supreme Court, Wright said the Circuit Court of Appeals could be bypassed. But he added he did not know whether either side in the subpoena case would want to go around the appeals court.

A native of Philadelphia, the twice-married Wright has been at the University of Texas since 1955 with time out to serve as a visiting professor at the Yale, Harvard and University of Pennsylvania law schools.

The White House recruited him as the burden of legal work associated with the Watergate investigations burgeoned last spring.

Phnom Penh readies for attack, thousands of rebel troops amass

PHNOM PENH (AP)—Cambodia's chief military spokesman says up to 30,000 insurgent troops are massed around Phnom Penh preparing for an attack, but he expresses confidence government forces won't balk.

The spokesman, Col. Am Rong, said Thursday that American air strikes had caused heavy rebel losses and that the front lines were stable.

He said most of the insurgents were concentrated along the Prek Thnot River, due south of Phnom Penh. The area has seen heavy fighting for more than a month.

The population of Phnom Penh has swollen from 500,000 to 1½ million because of the influx of refugees.

According to intelligence reports, Khmer Rouge rebels have denuded almost every other front in order to bolster their strength around Phnom Penh.

Budget, trade deficits reduced

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Nixon administration Thursday happily reported reduced deficits both in the federal budget and the trade balance, and forecast a balanced budget for 1974 without any increase in taxes.

Administration spokesmen said the reduced deficits are important both in helping to reduce inflation at home and stabilize the U.S. dollar abroad.

"We're getting somewhere on the trade side just as we're getting somewhere on the fiscal side," Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said at a news conference.

Schultz said the budget deficit for fiscal 1973 was $14.4 billion, the difference between total federal expenditures of $246.6 billion and receipts of $232.2 billion.

The deficit was substantially below the January deficit forecast of $25 billion and compares with a fiscal 1972 deficit of $23.2 billion.

In a statement issued by Shultz, President Nixon said that with the continued "budgetary responsibility" shown by Congress, the nation should have a balanced budget of about $269 billion for fiscal 1974. The last time the United States had a balanced budget was in 1969.

"We held the budget line in the year just passed without raising taxes," Nixon said. "I believe we can do so again—and, in fact, achieve a balanced budget—in fiscal year 1974."

The Commerce Department, meanwhile, reported the United States had only a $15.5-million trade deficit in June and an over-all trade surplus of $22.9 million for the second quarter, the first period that imports exceeded exports since the first quarter of 1971.

The figures have been adjusted for seasonal variations.

Exports during June totaled $5,781.1 million compared with imports of $5,793.6 million.

Nixon said the improved budget figures for fiscal 1973, which ended June '80, were made possible because Congress helped keep spending within the $250-billion maximum that he called for last year.

Government receipts for fiscal 1973 were 7.2 million above January estimates because of a big increase in receipts from corporate and individual income taxes, largely created by the country's business boom.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said at another news briefing that the major cause of the country's inflation rate has been a 15 per cent decline in farm output since 1971, most of it this year.

Coupled with sharply rising income at home and increasing demand for U.S. agricultural goods abroad, the reduced output has "generated enormous pressure," he said.

Rise in infanticides triggers concern in Tokyo courtroom

TOKYO (AP)—A 19-year-old coed is on trial for killing her newborn child and abandoning it outside her college dormitory in Tokyo.

The prosecution has demanded she be convicted and sentenced to four years in jail, explaining it was asking for such heavy punishment to stop "the spreading recent trend toward making light of the lives of babies."

The prosecution had reason to be concerned.

In one week alone, the bodies of two new-born children were found in railway station lockers here and in Nagoya, central Japan.

Police said that at least 55 children under the age of 1 year were killed in Japan last year, 45 of them by their mothers. Infanticide has grown in recent years. There were 21 in 1969, 34 in 1970 and 30 in 1971. In nearly all cases the women were held responsible.

It is not unusual for a Japanese woman who decides to commit suicide to kill her children out of pity or concern for their future without a mother.

Some of the infanticides, therefore, were presumed to have resulted when the mother planned to kill herself, too, but didn't.

Why such a high incidence of child killings in a country where parents are known for pampering their children, especially little ones?

Psychologists Hitoshi F. Aiba of Tokyo's Waseda University, Yorihiko Kumasaka of New York University and Robert J. Smith of Cornell University compared crime patterns in Tokyo and New York last year. They said in their study that women in Tokyo are "far less often involved in assault cases" than women in New York but are "twice as many times involved in homicides," many of the victims being their own infants.

The psychologists concluded that Japanese women, "generally inhibited in expressing their hostility," may vent it upon the innocent "when their anger reaches its limits."

Meat industry exaggerates beef shortage, Nixon advisors claim

The beef industry and the government in confrontation Thursday over the possibility of a beef shortage. The industry warned of increased shortages; Nixon administration officials said the shortage talk was exaggerated.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and Chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers said the price ceilings on beef will remain through Sept. 12 as scheduled.

Shultz said at a news conference in Washington the government has been keeping daily track of the beef supply and found the meat industry is overstating its problems.

Stein said at another briefing that there is "a tendency to whomp up an appearance of crisis; certain people benefit from that."

The American Meat Institute in Chicago denied the administration charges. In New York, representative of nearly 60 meat purveying and supply companies agreed to fight the beef price ceiling by seeking a court injunction.

Under Phase 4 announced by the President last week, the price freeze on the food industry was lifted, except on beef. Since then beef industry officials have been predicting serious shortages, possibly leading to a black market operation.

Later Thursday, Swift Fresh Meats Co. of Chicago announced it is closing two of its seven packing plants because of "the abnormal marketing of cattle since the beginnings of Phase 4."

Wholesalers and supermarket officials contacted by The Associated Press Thursday said beef supplies were tight and could dwindle to a trickle.

In dismissing the shortages, Stein said he recognized that because of the price ceilings "there is a certain tendency for beef to be withheld. But there is limited time one can profitably alter the date that it goes to market," indicating additional slaughter steers might be sent to market soon.

The New York group pledged $22,000 as a campaign war chest to fight the ceiling.

"At this stage of the game, I don't think letters, telegrams, protests mean a thing," said Alfred Mayer of Edmund Mayer, Inc., one of New York's biggest wholesalers. "We're up against a stone wall."

Herrell Dr. Graff, president of the American Meat Institute, said in Chicago that despite the comments of Shultz and Stein he was still hopeful. Meeting he requested Wednesday with White House officials might be set.

"We cannot understand how the administration can be unaware of the threat of serious shortages of beef which affect consumers in the next several weeks," De Graff said in a statement. He said there is "chaos and disruptions occurring in all segments of the cattle and beef industry."

Weekend films: Schmalz to Hitchcock

By Glenn Amato
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A Review

Talk about gamut-running — three films on tap this week travel the route from the kirche-kuche-kindergarten of a Victor Herbert-type operetta to a definitive filmization of the decline of the outlaw to prime Hitchcock and back.

"The Sound of Music," which is at the Varsity, supplies, of course, the schmalz, but it's all happily inoffensive and, yes, a very good family-type musical. The fact that Robert Wise's direction and Ernest Lehman's screenplay predate the cinema age is a minor quail.

Indeed, the stage version, starring Mary Martin, ran nearly four years on Broadway, and its longevity was sufficient assurance for Wise to assume that what made it popular in the theater would make it equally popular onstage.

Business-wise, Wise is no fool. — To be sure, he has used his cameras to set a magnificently graphic scene in and around Salzburg, which is nestled in the Austrian Alps. By means of a helicopter, he zooms over snow-capped peaks and down into the green regions, just as he zoomed down into New York's crowded streets in his memorable film version of "West Side Story."

Wise has used the handsome Frohnburg Castle to represent the exterior of the Von Trapp villa, whose prettified story is told, and he has also used such colorful landmarks as the Mirabell Gardens, Nonnberg Abbey and the Mozart Bridge. The eye is engaged whenever the intellect is not.

Furthermore, Wise has Julie Andrews to play and sing the role of the postulant nun who leaves the abbey to try her hand at being governess to the seven children of the widowed Captain Von Trapp — and remains, after the standard digressions, to become their stepmother. It is Ms. Andrews' appearance of plain-Jane wholesomeness and her ability to make her silly dialogue as vivid and appealing as she makes her songs that put the film over.

Despite the hopeless pretense of reality with which she and the others have to contend, especially in the last phase, when the Von Trapps are supposed to be fleeing the Nazis and their homeland, Ms. Andrews treats the whole thing with the same air of supremely controlled self-confidence that she has when we first come upon her trilling the title song on a mountain top.

There are other pleasures, too — Richard Rodgers' score, which bounces along pleasantly enough; Oscar Hammerstein II's lyrics; the dignity with which Christopher Plummer invests the role of the stuffy Captain Von Trapp, and a lovely folk dance between Ms. Andrews and Plummer midway through.

My biggest complaint against "The Sound of Music" is that it inspired some pretty dreadful 'big-budget' musicals. Does anyone out there remember "Doctor Dolittle," "Star!" (which Wise also directed and in which Ms. Andrews starred), "Half A Sixpence," "Camelot" (which is at the Fox) and "Finian's Rainbow"?

"The Wild Bunch," the late show Friday and Saturday at the Fox, caused an uproar among critics and audiences when it was released in 1969. Sam Peckinpah's film is so full of violence that it prompted a lot of people who don't know the real effects of screen violence to write unsubstantiated condemnations of it.

The screenplay, written by Peckinpah and Walton Green, is about the decline and fall of an outlaw gang at the end of the frontier era, when Pancho Villa was at odds with the corrupt Mexican government while the United States watched from across the border.

The film follows the Wild Bunch from San Rafael, a small Texas border town where they elude an ambush that has been set up for them, to Mexico, where they become involved with a sadistic Mexican general fighting Villa.

Members of the Wild Bunch carry comradeship to a neurotic degree (two of them actually prefer having their whores in series), so that the climactic massacre is a logical extension of their stubborn refusal to surrender their concepts of masculinity, greed and passion.

The film's opening and closing sequences serve as framing devices for the Wild Bunch's initial triumph over the bounty hunters who set the ambush in San Rafael and the final massacre, in which only one member of the Bunch survives.

The violence is shocking simply because it takes place in a realistic universe that has no moral or just boundaries. Everyone in San Rafael — temperance marchers, children, dogs — is placed in the position of victim because violence, as we have come to know in the past few years, is anything but selective. The film is beautifully photographed, but its tone is ugly and knowing.

Peckinpah's actors — William Holden, Ernest Borgnine, Robert Ryan, Edmond O'Brien, Warren Oates, Jaime Sanchez and Ben Johnson — acquit themselves well. Holden and O'Brien in particular are splendid, looking worn and bored. The film's fascination, as well as its turning-point status in the history of the American western, remains intact.

Finally, "I Confess," directed by Alfred Hitchcock, will be shown Friday and Saturday in the Student Center Auditorium. Set in Quebec, the film's immediate concerns are ethical. Should a priest, sworn by the sanctity of the confessional, reveal the identity of the murderer who confessed to the crime? There is a neat, straightforward chase sequence through the city's streets and buildings, and Montgomery Clift makes the priest's ethical dilemma frightening.

A word or two is in order about the Student Center Auditorium itself. Although it is large, the sightlines are decent and the seats comfortable, the sound and projection systems are deplorable. I attended last Friday's showing of "The Damned" and, even though I had seen it twice before, I was thoroughly confused. Throwaway lines and intimate exchanges were lost to my ears, and the projectionist, who was having difficulty adjusting the focus, actually stopped the proceedings cold during a reel change. The situation needs attention.

'Sons of Occupied Territory' vows more moves against 'imperialism'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—A group claiming to speak for the pro-Palestinian guerrillas who hijacked a Japan Air Lines airliner and blew it up in Libya promised Thursday more operations against "imperialism in its stronghold."

A statement signed by the "Sons of Occupied Territory" was thrust under the door of The Associated Press office here. The note, drawing upon Marxist terminology, listed several reasons for the hijacking. The sky pirates identified themselves during the hijacking of the Boeing 747 jumbo jet as belonging to the "Sons of Occupied Territory," an organization unheard of until then. All other Palestinian guerrilla groups disavowed themselves from the hijackers.

The main reason given in the note for the hijacking appeared to be that Japan paid $6-million compensation to Israel last year for the Lod Airport massacre, perpetrated by three members of Japan's United Red Army. That group is a revolutionary organization allied with the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

"This assistance should have been given to Palestinian refugee camps which have been shelled and bombed by American-made Israeli Phantoms almost daily," the note said.

Libya arrested a Japanese and three Palestinians after they ordered the passengers off the hijacked jet and blew it up at the Benghazi, Libya, airport Tuesday. The explosions ended a four-day ordeal that took the jetliner from Amsterdam to the Persian Gulf sheikdom of Dubai and then to Damascus.

Ice cream social Sunday

An ice-cream social sponsored by the United Methodist Youth Fellowship will be held from 5-9 p.m. Sunday at the First United Methodist Church dining room.

The social is being held to raise money used to fund projects the fellowship will hold.

Homemade ice cream, cake and cookies will be served. The cost is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Anyone can order ice cream to take home by calling Gordon White 549-5884 or Stephen Warner, 549-8328 by Friday. The cost is $1.25 per quart. The social is open to the public.

Bill O'Brien to referee All-Star game

The College All-Star football game, slated for Friday evening in Chicago's Soldier Field, will feature a familiar name to area residents.

Bill O'Brien, chairman of the Department of Recreation, will be wearing No. 83 in his position as field judge.

O'Brien has been a high school referee in the Southern Illinois area since 1948. Two years later, he began refereeing on the college level. He has been working with the National Football League since 1966.

As a field judge, O'Brien will be responsible for the area surrounding the defensive line and backfield.

"I've been in training for a long time, both physically and mentally," O'Brien said of his part-time refereeing duties. "I've taken an examination on my own time and took a comprehensive exam at a meeting in St. Louis last weekend."

"I study the rules and techniques and confer with league officials on my own time also," he continued.

In the All-Star game, professional rules are used because those on the All-Stars have most likely signed with a pro team and will be playing the pro rules that season.

Underdog collegians battle Dolphins

By Jerry Liska
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—An impressive and cautiously groomed College All-Star squad will strive to shatter a nine-year Pro domination against the heavily favored Miami Dolphins in the 40th All-Star football game here Friday night.

The Dolphins, who wrapped up a perfect 1972 National Football League season with a 14-7 Super Bowl conquest of the Washington Redskins, are tabbed almost a three-touchdown favorite despite injury and contract problems.

This 40th renewal of a Soldier Field series sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities will be telecast nationally by ABC beginning at 8:30 p.m. CDT.

All-Star Coach John McKay of Southern California's national champion Trojans has astounded both pro and collegiate observers by sending his 51-player squad through only one real scrimmage in three weeks of preparation.

But the innovation was happily accepted by the All-Stars, virtually all of whom will be headed for pro camps soon after the game.

McKay, who also canceled the customary scrimmage with the Chicago Bears and limited drills to one instead of the usual two-per-day workouts, explained:

"I assume these boys can play. The pros paid $10 million because they also believe they can play. I told my players 'I'm not going to mess up your chances

Allen to return

CHICAGO (AP)—Star first baseman Dick Allen of the Chicago White Sox, injured June 28 against the California Angels, will join the club for workouts Saturday at Bloomington, Minn., the team said Thursday.

Dr. Gerald Loftus, Sox physician, said Allen's injured leg had healed well but Allen will remain on the disabled list indefinitely.

$250,000 charity match

Secretariat, Riva Ridge to race

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Meadow Stable's Triple Crown winner Secretariat and Meadow Stable millionaire Riva Ridge will meet in a $250,000 match race Sept. 15 at Belmont Park.

Helen Tweedy, operator of the stable, said Thursday the $250,000 would be given to charity.

The distance for the race, to be televised nationally by CBS, will be 1 1/2 miles.

The race was announced at a news conference by the New York Racing Association and Philip Morris Inc., which put up $200,000 of the purse for the event to be called the Marlboro Cup. The other $50,000 will be posted by the NYRA.

The weights will be announced 10 days before the race by NYRA Racing Secretary Kenneth Noe, Jr.

Jack Krumpke, president of the NYRA, said "our current thinking is that it will be a no-betting race." The event is subject to approval by the New York State Racing and Wagering Board.

"I'm very excited about this race," said Mrs. Tweedy. "They probably wouldn't have met under normal circumstances and in my heart I've always wanted them to meet."

Krumpke said a panel consisting of Noe and racing secretaries Frank E. "Jimmy" Kilroe of Hollywood Park and Kenny Lennox of Monmouth Park unanimously selected Riva Ridge as the most valid challenger for a match race with Secretariat.

Secretariat, the ninth 3-year-old ever to win the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and Belmont Stakes, is next scheduled to run in the $50,000 Whitney Aug. 4 and then in the $100,000-added Travers Aug. 10, both at Saratoga.

The Whitney, which also will be televised by CBS, will be Secretariat's first meeting with older horses.

The 4-year-old Riva Ridge became history's 12th millionaire horse boosting his earnings to $1,009,727 when he set a world record of 1:52 2/5 for 1 1/4 miles in winning the Brooklyn Handicap July 4 under Ron Turcotte, who also is the regular rider of Secretariat.

Lucien Laurin, who trains the two colts, said he would decide a few days before the race which one Turcotte would ride.

7 IM contests scheduled today

The following softball games have been scheduled for Friday by the Office of Recreation and Intramurals.

5 p.m.: Bonapartes vs. Moe Foe's, Field 2; Merlins vs. Vet's Club, Field 3; Yuba City Honkers vs. Burns, Field 5.
6 p.m.: Buffalo Bob's vs. Jim's Pizza, Field 1; Arrechos Boys vs. Neely 3's, Field 2; Tommy's Boys vs. Duckers, Field 3; Hey Now vs. Kymograph Kids, Field 5.

In Thursday's action, The Mothers beat Merlins 13-11, Vet's Club nipped Tommy's Boys 11-10, 5th Floor Neely edged Arrechos Boys in a slugfest 17-16, Animal Farm and Buffalo Bob's defeated Kymograph Kids and Neely 3's, respectively, 11-1, Hey Now whipped Econ-Math 11-2, Booby's clouted Nerds 14-4 and Duckers smashed Nupes 13-6.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in Thursday's Daily Egyptian that two sessions of the Dick Towers Football Camp will be held early next week.

The football camp has been cancelled this summer since it's against Illinois High School Association (IHSA) regulations.

The IHSA rules state that it is illegal for high school football players to participate in any training camp after Aug. 1. The Towers camp would have ended on Aug. 11.

to make $40,000 or $50,000 a year by getting you hurt in camp."

Typical of the All-Stars' reaction was this comment by quarterback Bert Jones of Louisiana State, No. 2 NFL draft pick by the Baltimore Colts: "If we had scrimmages two-a-day, we'd all be vegetables now. But we're fresh. Our mental attitude is good."

Jones and Joe Ferguson of Arkansas, who is headed for the Buffalo Bills, will share the quarterbacking for the All-Stars, studded with fine running backs and receivers and boasting the heaviest squad in All-Star history. The offensive and defensive line each averages 254 pounds.

McKay took a realistic view of the game which finds the All-Stars trying to score their first victory since 1963 when Otto Graham's squad nipped the Green Bay Packers 20-17.

"Basically, the pros should win," said McKay. "But if we play our best game

Cubs, Pirates split twinbill

CHICAGO (AP)—Richie Hebner's tie-breaking home run in the fourth inning carried Dock Ellis and the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-2 victory over Chicago Thursday after the Cubs had posted a 10-9 triumph in the completion of a suspended game.

Chicago held a 10-8 lead after six innings of a contest called because of darkness April 21. The only additional run the Pirates picked up was a homer by Rennie Stennett with two out in the ninth. Reliever Bob Locker completed the game to gain his fifth victory in nine decisions.

Hebner led off the fourth frame of the regularly-scheduled contest with his 15th homer of the season off loser Rick Reuschel, 10-8.

The Cubs had taken a 1-0 lead in the second inning of that game on singles by Jim Hickman and Ron Santo and an error by Stennett. But the Pirates went ahead in the third on a single by Dal and they have a poor night, we have a chance to upset them."

In contrast to McKay, Miami Coach Don Shula has cracked the whip in the Dolphin camp to the extent that several key players have been hobbled. One is fullback Larry Csonka, who is expected to face the All-Stars despite a pulled leg muscle.

But Mercury Morris, who was a 1,000-yard rusher along with Csonka last season, and linebacker Mike Kolen, have been ruled out of the game because of injuries.

Also absent was star safety Jake Scott, the Super Bowl's Most Valuable Player, who is a holdout.

About the game, Shula said "we're going with the idea of getting our No. 15 ready to play." That includes quarterback Bob Griese, whose aerial shots to such receivers as Paul Warfield, Howard Twilley and Ron Sellers could be the toughest All-Star defensive problem.

Maxvill, Stennett's run-scoring double and a single by Al Oliver.

Chicago tied it in the bottom of the third on singles by Glenn Beckert, Hickman and Santo.

In the suspended game, Oliver had four runs batted in for the Pirates, while the Cubs' Jose Cardenal also knocked in four. A two-run homer by Oliver in the top of the first had given Pittsburgh a short-lived 2-0 lead before Chicago exploded for six in the bottom of the first.

The six-run outburst, which saw the first eight Cub batters hit safely, was triggered by Rick Monday's leadoff homer.

Chicago also batted around again in the fourth inning, when they increased their lead to 10-4, while Pittsburgh narrowed the gap with a four-run outburst in the fifth against Ferguson Jenkins and two relievers.
