Activist to give commencement address

After more than 30 years and two stints at SIU-C, Dick Gregory — civil rights activist, comedian and author — will receive a degree from the University.

Gregory will give the summer commencement address and receive an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree Aug. 8. About 2,700 students will graduate during the ceremony at the Arena.

When Gregory left Carbondale in 1956, he was just a few credits shy of a degree in business administration. His first college career, from 1951 to 1953, ended when he was drafted.

A recipient of the Outstanding Athlete Award in 1953, Gregory attended on an athletic scholarship and was captain of the track and cross country teams. He set a school record in the half mile that stood for eight years.

Gregory used his stand-up comedy routines to cause blacks and whites to look at serious issues, attracting the attention of Medgar Evers and Martin Luther King.

University administrators have asked the Student Programming Council to consider some options to cut alcohol consumption during Springfest 1988. Bruce Swinburne, vice president of student affairs, said.

The suggestions include the banning of alcohol from all future Springfests.

"We want to promote a safe and fun Springfest, but the amount of alcohol sometimes has gotten in the way," he said.

In a letter from John Corker, Student Center director, to Sandra Moore, the University's program director for SPC, several suggestions were made for the next Springfest.

Sun blinded hit, run driver, attorney says

By Bill West
Staff Writer

The driver of a car that seriously injured a SIU-C student was blinded by the sun — not drunk — at the time of the accident, her attorney said at a bench trial Thursday.

Debra L. Porter, 22, is on trial for felony driving under the influence, leaving the scene of a personal injury accident, failure to give information and render aid and obstruction of justice.

The non-jury trial is before Judge Robert Howerton in Jackson County Court.

Police say Porter was the driver in a July 15, 1986, accident on Giant City Road, in which Christina Copland, graduate student in physical education, lost her left leg. Copland was riding on a motorcycle going south when the car crossed the center line near Fox curve.

"Evidence will show that a tragedy clearly took place, but won't support a felony DUI charge," Robert Van Derhoff, Jackson County public defender, said.

Porter was distracted by a passenger shouting and blinded by the glare of a cracked windshield, Van Derhoff said.

A toxicologist will testify he can determine whether Porter was intoxicated from information provided by witnesses who saw her drinking, John Clemons, Jackson County State's attorney, said. No blood, breath or urinalysis tests were performed on Porter.

The defense claims the toxicologist's estimated alcohol content in Porter's blood was between .051 percent and .234 percent. Under Illinois DUI law, a person is considered intoxicated if their blood alcohol content is .1 percent or above.

A witness, Rosa True, said she could not identify Porter as the third member of a party who had been drinking at her trailer before the accident. The trailer is at the Touch of Nature Center near Little Grassy Lake. The two other people drinking that day have pleaded guilty to charges stemming from the accident.

Diana Quigley, 22, Carbondale, was sentenced to two years in prison after she pleaded guilty to obstruction of justice. Arlene Stafford, 22, Lawrenceville, was sentenced to 30 months probation and six months in jail after she pleaded guilty to similar charges. Both were passengers in the Porter car.

Housing moves toward revising mattress policy

By Luana Graves
Student Writer

University Housing will change its procedures for disposing of old mattresses because more than 325 mattresses from Neely Hall were distributed to low-income families without formal approval.

The mattresses — distributed by the Carbondale Women's Center and the Jackson County Housing Authority — were given away without a written record of the transaction and officials were unclear as to how many mattresses were involved.

"We must look into finding a more accurate procedure for distributing mattresses," Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said.

"To my knowledge, this is the second or third time that housing has distributed mattresses," he said. "An exception was made in our

Officials suggest alcohol-free Springfest to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

—Ban alcohol sponsorships or consumption and set up fences to control access and eliminate alcohol at Springfest.

—Design a program that might have a football game scheduled in the afternoon during Springfest.

Swinburne said he has considered closing traffic on campus during the event.

Students will be asked for their input next semester, he said.

Swinburne also is concerned, he said, about liability if an underage drinker has an accident.

"We are concerned with Springfest being a family affair and at times the atmosphere has become intimidating for families," he said.

U.S. supporters contribute to IRA funds, source says

LONDON (UPI) — The outlawed Irish Republican Army receives a large portion of its annual war chest of up to $8 million from U.S. supporters and "occasionally" receives money from Libya, a high-ranking British military source said Thursday. The source, at a briefing for U.S. reporters, said the IRA's annual "total income" is estimated at between $6.5 million and $8 million to finance its campaign to end British rule in Northern Ireland.

Ailing cosmonaut aborts record attempt

MOSCOW (UPI) — An ailing cosmonaut, forced to abort an attempt to break the space endurance record because of heart trouble, and two space colleagues returned to Earth to a hero's welcome Thursday, Radio Moscow said. Alexander Laveikin, 36, was so weak he was lifted aboard the retrieval helicopter while the other two cosmonauts, who had been in space six days, walked briskly to the aircraft, Radio Moscow said. The report described Laveikin as weak and pale after almost six months of weightlessness. He had been in space since Feb. 5.

Johannesburg car bomb explosion injures 68

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — A car bomb exploded Thursday outside the Witwatersrand Army Command headquarters, injuring 68 people, including children walking to a movie theater and soldiers waiting to collect their pay, authorities said. Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok blamed the outlawed African National Congress for the attack. The mid-morning explosion shook buildings a mile away and blew out glass storefronts and the windows of offices and apartments within three blocks.

Sri Lankan sailor clubs, injures Gandhi

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (UPI) — A Sri Lankan sailor, apparently enraged by an Indian-Sri Lankan pact to end a rebel insurgency, clubbed Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi with a rifle Thursday, slightly injuring the leader as he inspected a color guard. He said he suffered bruises on his neck and head. Gandhi, 42, arrived in Sri Lanka Wednesday to sign an accord to end the 4-year-old war between the Sinhalese-led government and India-based Tamil rebels demanding independence for the Tamil minority in the north and east.

Reagan takes steps to deny abortion funding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, rallying the politically faithful, announced a series of steps Thursday to bar federally financed family planning programs from encouraging or advising pregnant women on the option of abortion. In a move applauded by anti-abortion activists and denounced before the Senate Labor Committee, Reagan said the Department of Health and Human Services will tighten restrictions on 4,500 federally supported family planning centers.

House delays crippled farm system rescue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican delaying tactics forced House Democratic leaders Thursday to slow down an effort to ram a rescue of the financially crippled Farm Credit System through the House by next week. House leaders agreed to consider the legislation after Congress returns from its August recess. The issues are so intractable that lawmakers are uncertain how large the bailout should be of the FCS that lost $4.6 billion over 1985 and 1986, but the House Agriculture Committee was considering $3.6 billion.

Congress launches AIDS testing, funding bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senators and representatives of both political parties said Thursday they would sponsor a bill increasing funding for voluntary acquired immune deficiency syndrome testing and guaranteeing counseling, privacy and non-discrimination to those tested. Announcing the "Federal AIDS Policy Act," Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., said it would offer money to expand testing for exposure to the AIDS virus and would provide strong federal sanctions to prevent discrimination against those who test positive.

Man convicted for booby-trapped flower attack

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal court jury convicted "bouquet bomber" Shaun Small Thursday for the booby-trapped flower attack on the estranged wife of his alleged homosexual lover. The jury deliberated 4½ hours before finding Small, 27, guilty of possession of a bomb and malicious destruction of government property.

Asbestos control could gain funds in legal settlement

By Jacke Hampton
Staff Writer

The University could benefit from a legal settlement being negotiated by the state and one of the largest manufacturers of asbestos in the nation.

The Johns Manville Corp. has agreed that asbestos in the state's buildings is a problem and has agreed to pay some of the costs of controlling it, Phillip Mueller, a spokesman for Attorney General Neil Hartigan, said.

Hartigan filed a $50 million lawsuit against the company two years ago.

Money recovered from any company would go toward abatement of the asbestos problem. Mueller said a task force formed by Hartigan and state Senate President Phillip Rock gathered information in public hearings Wednesday that will back up the suit by determining the extent of the problem and the cost that will be incurred in dealing with it, Mueller said.

"One of the problems is that there has been no statewide survey," he said. "The task force hopes to develop a method of surveying. All we have now are estimates."

The task force's report on the hearing, which should be complete in about a month, will include recommendations on how to deal with the problem, Mueller said. The two most widely-discussed methods of reducing the health risks of asbestos exposure are removal and encapsulation — sealing the asbestos in an impenetrable material.

Removal often worsens the problem, Badi Boulos of the University of Illinois at Chicago, said. That position is shared by Pollution Control Director John Meister. Both Boulos and Meister argued that removing asbestos often releases large amounts of the material into the air. Tests in one building where asbestos was removed showed that the material remained there for six months in higher concentrations than before the removal project, he said.

Most of the state's public schools, which are under a federal mandate to inspect their buildings and report by January on the extent of the asbestos problem, must be inspected at night or in the summer when students aren't attending classes. An extension in that deadline — as well as one that requires abatement programs to be completed by July 1989 — will be sought, Mueller said.

Governor James R. Thompson last week approved a $1.4 million appropriation to help fund the study but he hasn't acted on Hartigan's asbestos abatement act, which would create an Asbestos Abatement Authority and an Asbestos Litigation Division in the attorney general's office.

SIU unrepresented at asbestos hearing

By Jacke Hampton

SIU was not represented at an attorney general's task force hearing on the asbestos problem in public buildings.

Dozens of witnesses testified at the hearing but none were from SIU-C, Phillip Mueller, a spokesman for Attorney General Neil Hartigan, said.

The University has two representatives on Hartigan's Illinois Asbestos Task Force, but both were out of town. Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit, one of the members, is at the end of a three-week tour of Europe on University business.

The other member, Richard Moy, dean of the SIU school of Medicine, is on a retreat dealing with University business, Cathy Walsh, an assistant to Pettit, said.

Hartigan had originally planned to conduct three hearings: one in Rockford and one in Marion, as well as the one Wednesday in Springfield.

"The governor's cuts took the legs out from under that plan," Mueller said. "We had to go with one statewide hearing."

Recruiting will aid minorities, SIU-C

THE UNIVERSITY MADE a good move when it stepped up efforts to recruit minorities, and now those efforts are paying off.

Minority enrollment increased to 2,970 in 1986 from 2,500.

Whenever the University recruits quality students, it is helping not only the students, but itself and the world they enter once they graduate.

Minority students have been an untapped resource in the past, and like any new resource, they will provide the University and its community with new qualities and new knowledge.

It is irrelevant that they come from a minority; what matters is that they are good students who will be able to go to college.

BRUCE CHRISMAN, ACADEMIC adviser for the minority engineering program, said a big reason for increased efforts to enroll minorities in engineering is they are under-represented in the work force.

"Blacks make up about 10 percent of the work force, but less than 2 percent of the engineering work force. This is an effort to make things a little more equal," he said.

He also said the impetus for many minority enrollment programs was legislation backed by minority members of government.

Howard Webb, vice chancellor for academic affairs, called it "the socially and educationally responsible thing to do."

That applies whatever the impetus for the programs. Chrisman perhaps put it best when he said, "If it's fair, if it's just, it's the right thing to do."

It is the right thing to do.

Opinions from elsewhere

The Kansas City (Mo.) Star

Amidst all the complaints about the U.S. aviation system, one fact is continually and conveniently ignored by millions of passengers. Airline travel can be very dangerous.

For good reason, carriers do their best to make people forget that. Or overlook it. Which is why drinks are served on most flights, often along with meals, too. Passengers can walk around, go to the restroom, read magazines, listen to recorded music, sometimes even watch movies.

The image carriers want to project is that life goes on in a routine matter aboard their planes.

To a point, this business-as-usual approach is right to take. Fatal airline accidents are very rare.

Accidents are not likely to occur. But if they do, the American public should not be surprised. They just should be better prepared.

The Phoenix (Ariz.) Gazette

Malcolm Baldrige was a man of achievement — a Yale graduate who went on to become chief executive officer of a $900 million-a-year industry and achieved political success as a popular and effective secretary of commerce. Yet to many Americans with leathery skins, dirt under their fingernails and scars all over their bodies, Baldrige was admired as a muddin' to good rodeo hand.

Baldrige's scruffy admirers are professional rodeo cowboys. Their exclusive fraternity is harder to crack than any at Yale, and Baldrige was an honored member.

Baldrige may have continued with rodeo for so long because it teaches more about some human encounters than any university.

Malcolm Baldrige will be remembered for his achievements in business and government, not for his rodeo exploits. The odds are better than even, however, that he excelled in the corporate board room and in the president's Cabinet because of some hard falls on rodeo grounds.

Congress, not North, is the big liar

After reading the Daily Egyptian's sanctimonious editorial of Col. North, it strikes me as somewhat hypocritical.

Months before Col. North's appearance, the cartoons and columns of the news media — the Daily Egyptian included — had been vilifying him before the facts and testimony became clear.

Watching the hearings of all witnesses on CNN or C-Span, it was obvious — even on CNN — that what Dan Rather was telling me was taken out of context from what I heard.

When Col. North testified, the three major networks, which hadn't cared before, now pre-empted everything in hopes that he would hang the president and that the media would have more fun than Watergate. It would then justify the misleading information they have been giving us for years.

Suddenly it backfired and they couldn't filter out the true story on Nicaragua and feed us the baloney the Nicaraguan network had been handing us since 1979.

The misleading, amateurish cartoon of Col. North saying "Yes, I lied to Congress" that appeared in the Daily Egyptian on June 22 says nothing about Congress lying to us on their pork barrel projects or pay raises, which is based on misleading legislation. "Yes, I am an American hero." He never said that.

American cowards never get the medals that he wore, among which are the Silver Star (the nation's third highest award for bravery), Bronze Star (marked with a V for valor) and Purple Heart with star (twice wounded in action).

Some hero, and doing a number on the Sandinistas' main man, the Ayatollah, is a neat idea. — Jeff Thomason, Murphysboro.

Iran hearings show media biases

In reference to your editorial of July 22, 1987, I must say that the news media, both print and electronic, have risen to new heights of hypocrisy.

Yours was not the only news service that went into apologetic fits when Oliver North became something of a folk hero at the hands of that kangaroo court that Congress likes to call the Iran-Contra Committee.

You and your colleagues waited with great anticipation and predictions of a grand comeuppance for that upstart North only to watch those plans backfire.

It's obvious to almost everyone that, notwithstanding the fence that should have been provided at government expense, Col. North was a man of great personal courage and integrity. What a contrast to those in Congress who persecute him.

After months of interrupting network television and spending millions of dollars, the Democrats are no closer to proving that anyone did anything illegal. Yet they did a wonderful job of revealing the importance of their own policies and the left leaning bias of the news media.

—Jeffrey W. Seyfert, senior, electrical engineering.

Feminism and fanaticism aren't comparable

Not to prolong the debate, but I would appreciate a clarification from Mr. DeYoung as to those statements made by feminists who make the movement "as a whole look silly and fanatical."

I do not consider such statements made in activism to be fanatical. On the contrary, perhaps it is because these women took the risk to expose themselves, to be outspoken and to step beyond the expected behaviors demanded of women — selflessness, silence and obedience — that I admire them. They have spoken not only to one worthy issue, pay equity, but many essential ones that "even the most conservative people" do not see fit to address with any conviction or equality.

I agree that many individuals do grow uncomfortable when confronted with political issues that they might rather ignore or discount because the status quo might be upset. Mr.

DeYoung's broad overgeneralization of a varied and rich group of individuals of both genders and many nationalities, economic backgrounds and spiritual persuasions smacks of the stereotyping that feminists find both repressive and narrow.

Pat Sweet has every right to assert herself, and she need not apologize for her political choices. — Julia Pachard, graduate student, speech communication

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, whose members are the student-editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a Journalism School faculty member.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by mail or directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247 Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten, double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters of less than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major. Faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters submitted by mail should include the author's address and telephone number. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

A gun-toting precedent has begun; can armed teachers be far behind?

LET'S HEAR it for Iowa, folks. Not only has it taken the lead in telling us who our next president should be — it is more important in the nominating process than New York, California and Texas combined — but it is now showing the way to Better Living Through Firearms.

Last week the Iowa Highway Commission approved issuing handguns to its safety officers. And won't that make you sleep more soundly in your beds tonight?

What highway commission safety officers do, basically, is weigh trucks; then give the fat ones tickets. They're usually at those little facilities along the highway marked: "Weigh Station Closed." Thanks to modern technology, however, highway department safety officers can chase trucks down the highway, pull them over and weigh them with portable scales.

WHICH IS where the guns come in I suppose. Who knows what a crazed trucker, desperate to avoid a ticket for driving an overweight truck, might do?

Up to now highway department safety officers have had to make do with shotguns, which they carried in the trunks of their cars. This, however, was deemed to be "an inappropriate piece of defensive equipment," at least in Iowa.

As a transportation department official there, arguing for the authorization, said of the officers: "When they stop a vehicle, it is just not appropriate to walk up to the vehicle with a shotgun."

Donald Kaul

Tribune Media Services

I couldn't agree more. A deer hunter might mistake him for a deer and shoot him.

THE ONLY flaw in the plan is that it doesn't go far enough. Suppose a safety officer tries to pull over a suspicious-looking truck that then tries to outrun him? Do we really expect him (or her) to stop that truck, perhaps double-bottomed, with a lousy little handgun? I think they should equip departmental cars with bazookas mounted on their hoods. That would show truckers the public means business about weight limits.

And while we're talking about it, what about all the other public servants in our society who could use guns but don't have them? Like school crossing guards, for example?

As things stand now, when a school crossing guard sees a crime taking place, she (or he) can do nothing about it but call a real police officer, which is inefficient and vaguely humiliating. How much better if she (or he) could drop into that half-squat made so popular on TV cop shows, hold out a gun stiff-armed and say: "School crossing guard! Freeze or I'll make you permanently tardy!"

Here are some other classes of officials to whom we should seriously consider issuing weapons:

GARBAGE COLLECTORS — How would you like it if everybody looked down on you and made your job harder by not dragging their garbage cans to the curb like they're supposed to? And you're dealing all day in rotten, filthy garbage with the flies and the stink. Give garbage collectors a .38 Police Special and see who laughs then.

Kindergarten teachers — Anyone who has ever seen one of these brave people on a field trip to the zoo with their charges would never argue against supplying them with a gun. Also a whip and a chair.

Columnists — You think it's easy sitting here every day making up things and nobody appreciating you? Then some jerk who thinks the Earth is flat questions your intelligence. You think that's a good time, eh? You wouldn't be so smug if I had a gun. Then I could look up your return address and I could go to your house and...

Excuse me, I have to go lie down now. I have a sharp, shooting pain in my head. I wonder what the Iowa Highway Commission's excuse is?

Judges who don't punish abusers need wisdom knocked into them

I'M SURE that anybody but a confirmed sadist would agree that what I'm going to describe is child abuse.

First incident: There is a 2-year-old girl named April. One day she toddles out of the house with her older brother.

This makes her mother angry. Her mother drags the little girl back home and flings her against a wall. The girl hits the wall so hard that the skin is scraped from the side of her face.

Second incident: April wants to be held by her mother. Her mother again becomes angry. She slaps the child in the face twice with such force that April's head snaps back and bangs into a wall, causing a knot to form on the child's skull.

Third incident: April is sitting at the kitchen table with her parents. She does something that irritates her father. He shoves her face into her food, a plate of hot spaghetti. The child's face is burned.

WHEN THE AUTHORITIES were told about this, they thought it was child abuse, and they brought criminal charges against the parents.

A jury in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., listened to the evidence in the case, and they thought it was child abuse and found the parents guilty of simple assault and endangering the welfare of a child.

The judge thought it was child abuse and he sentenced the mother, Debby Oglin, and the father, Glenn Wildoner, to two years of probation. Meanwhile, the abused child is living with foster parents who don't bounce her off walls or burn her face.

Mike Royko

Tribune Media Services

But the parents and their lawyer disagreed with the verdict, so they appealed.

The appeal was heard by a three-judge panel of the Pennsylvania Superior Court. And two of these judges made one of the wackiest rulings I've ever heard of.

IN A NUTSHELL, they said that parents have the right to bang their kids into walls and burn their faces with hot spaghetti sauce.

When someone in Pennsylvania told me about the case, I didn't believe it, so I sent for a copy of the ruling.

The two judges said that under state law parents have the right to use force in disciplining a child, so long as it doesn't cause "death, serious bodily injury, disfigurement, extreme pain or mental distress or gross degradation."

AND THE TWO judges decided that throwing a 2-year-old child against a wall and shoving her face into hot food didn't violate that law.

As they put it: "While the evidence is strongly suggestive that appellants are not fully suited to their parental tasks, other forms of legal intervention are available to protect the interest of the juveniles involved in this case before invocation of the criminal law..."

A third judge dissented. He said: "One wonders what possible lessons in obedience could be conveyed by appellants' violent methods of punishment to a child barely able to understand 'no.'"

THERE ARE OTHER things one wonders.

For example, I wonder what Judge James Cavanaugh and Judge John T.J. Kelly Jr. — who ruled for the parents — would think if someone flung them against a wall hard enough to peel their skin? Or slammed their wisdom-filled heads into a wall hard enough to raise a knot on their skulls?

And how might the judges react if someone shoved their dignified faces into plates of spaghetti hot enough to leave burns on their faces?

Would they consider that serious enough for the "invocation of the criminal law"?

You bet they would. If it happened to them, somebody would have been sitting in a jail cell.

The prosecutors in this case are going to appeal the ruling to the entire Superior Court, which consists of 15 judges. They are hoping that wackiness is not contagious.

Woman pleads innocent to bank robbery charge

Robbery suspect Eula Mae Brown, 62, of De Soto, pleaded innocent to robbery charges Wednesday before Judge Robert Howerton in Jackson County Court.

Howerton denied a defense motion to reduce bail for Brown during the preliminary hearing. Bond remains at $10,000. The date for the jury trial has not been set.

Brown is accused of taking $1,311 on July 10 from the Landmark Bank of Carbondale, 100 N. Illinois.

She was arrested by Carbondale police in the driveway of her home about 20 minutes after the robbery.

Melvin E. Lipe, senior vice president and chief executive officer of the bank, gave police the license plate number and description of the car involved in the robbery.

During the hearing, a police officer testified that a bank teller said Brown gave her a note telling her to be calm. The teller also told police that Brown said she had a gun in her vinyl butterscotch-colored purse and she had armed accomplices waiting outside the bank. Brown kept her left hand in her purse to indicate she had a gun, police said.

The teller offered to count the loose bills of $20 or less before she handed them over, but the offer was declined, the officer testified. Brown told police she wrote the note on the spur of the moment and needed the money to pay off debts, the officer said.

The money was recovered, police said.

All four persons at the trailer were drinking beer, but only Quigley and Stafford were identified by True.

Porter looked familiar. True said, but she could not positively identify her as being there.

Nancy Cone, Marion County, a witness to the accident, said the Porter car did nothing unusual until it slowly crossed the center line on a curve as it was going south on Giant City Road.

Cone pulled out behind the Porter car onto Giant City Road from Little Grassy Road, she said. The car kept going straight even though it was entering a curve, Cone said.

The car was about one-quarter to one-half way in the southbound lane, she said. Then she saw the approaching motorcycle.

"Oh my gosh, what's going to happen?" Cone testified she said to her daughter.

The motorcyclist (Copland) tried to get out of the way, but didn't have enough time to react, Cone said. The Porter car's brake lights never came on, but the car did slow down slightly, Cone said. The motorcycle became airborne and Cone saw something drop off, she said.

"I thought it was a shoe or boot," Cone said.

Copland was still on the airborne motorcycle as it went to the right and landed on the side of the road near a gravel driveway. Cone testified that she slowed down to almost a complete stop looking for a place to call for help, but Rodney Bilderback, who lived in Pine Creek Trailer Court, told her that he was going to call for help from his trailer. Cone followed the Porter car to a subdivision and got the license number, she testified. She reported that information to the Jackson County Sheriff's office.

The description of the accident left Porter teary-eyed and visibly shaken.

Julie O'Donnell, a counselor at Anna Mental Hospital, testified she talked on the phone to Porter several hours after the accident. Porter (calling from Salem), told her she couldn't see what she hit because the sun was in her eyes, but that there was blood on her windshield and she wanted to turn herself in to the police. O'Donnell asked Porter if she had been drinking, she said, and Porter said she had not.

policy for the mattresses to be distributed rather than destroyed."

"I approve of the distribution to the Women's Center... but I was under the impression that there were less than 10 mattresses distributed," Swinburne said.

Sam McVay, acting housing director at the time, said he did not know the mattresses had been given away.

"The distribution was probably approved by Sam Rinella, the former housing director," Housing Director Edward Jones said. Rinella died in December 1986.

The old mattresses normally would have been destroyed, Joe Elliot, University inventory control, said.

"Furniture can be disposed of on site if it is considered to be junk and it is approved by the state," he said.

"If the University disposes of a mattress rather than destroying it, we save $3 a mattress," Jones said. If giving away mattresses is approved by University Property Control and Surplus, the mattresses will continue to be distributed "as long as it goes to a good cause or a non-profit organization," he said.

Jackie Ward, former Women's Center board member, said she got the idea to distribute the old mattresses from Susan Broski, a former volunteer from the Women's Center.

"She distributes furniture and clothing to people when she hears of a need."

JoJo, friends hit the road to Olney

Remote broadcast planned

By Donna Jennings
Student Writer

WSIU-TV will take its cast of puppet characters from the "JoJo & Friends Club" to Olney Saturday to do the annual remote broadcast for its sister station, WJSI-TV.

The "JoJo & Friends Club" is a children's show produced and taped on WSIU-TV. It is shown at 9 and 11:30 a.m. Saturdays and Sundays. The main character is JoJo, a 6-foot koala bear from Australia, who is visiting his friends in Carbondale. The target audience is children ages 3 to 8.

The remote broadcast this year will be centered around Wallie, a squirrel whose hometown is Olney. The mayor of Olney will present Wallie with a key to the city and there will be a parade in the city park.

The station sent letters to the club members in Olney inviting them to the remote broadcast. Children will be allowed to sit in a VIP area in which the station crew will film shots to be integrated into a show for fall viewing.

The show was created by executive producer David

Campbell, station manager Allan Pizzato and Kenneth Garry, president of the Friends of SIU organization. The show began as a 10-minute live performance shown every weekday. In fall 1985, the show was changed to a half-hour taped format with repeat broadcasts on Saturdays and Sundays.

In fall 1986, Lee O'Brien, director of broadcasting, focused the children's show on a central theme. The show tries to help children learn about themselves and the world around them, Campbell said.

The show allows a studio audience of children to participate in the program. Children also can join a membership club. More than 80 children are members of the JoJo & Friends Club in Olney, Campbell said.

Every summer, the station takes JoJo & Friends on the road to have a special get together with club members in Olney.

"They are the ones who paid money to keep the JoJo and Friends show on for next fall," Campbell said.

Families to get 'place in sun' at Turley fair

By Mary Caudle
Entertainment Editor

"A Place in the Sun" was one of those projects that started out as an idea and grew. And grew.

Co-sponsored by Women's Studies and the Carbondale Park District, the "safe, fun fair" will be held from 3 to 9 p.m. Saturday at Turley Park, featuring children and family-oriented activities such as open games, storytelling, craft and informational booths, demonstrations, and musical and comedy acts.

The brainchild of the Women's Studies coordinator,

Linda Ganon, the summer fair was originally meant to provide visibility and to generate some much-needed money for the program. While the fair fell through last year, this year it finally took shape — surprising its organizers.

"It turned into something much bigger," said Julia Pachoud, fair coordinator. "It's like a rolling ball." She added that co-sponsorship by the Carbondale Park District has made the fair much bigger than they'd expected.

Pachoud said that George Whitehead, director of Carbondale Park District, offered to co-sponsor the fair after attending their first organizational meeting. He also set up a liaison, Janice Miller, from the Park District to participate in the organization of the fair, she said.

"He was very positive when I first approached him," Pachoud said.

Besides the obvious reasons, the summer fair serves another purpose for Women's Studies: to allow people to divorce misconceptions about the program as "solely political" in its interests, Pachoud said.

The name, "A Place in the Sun," came about as a natural juxtaposition of Women's Studies' annual Take Back The Night march, Pachoud said. "Our goal was to make the fair a safe, comfortable, friendly place to go."

She added that depending on the reception it receives, the summer fair may become an annual event for Women's Studies.

Area agencies contributing materials to the informational booths include Synergy, the Hope Clinic, the Women's Center, Quality of Life and the Girl Scouts.

The fair will feature local crafts, storytelling and open games for children throughout the day, a demonstration by emergency medical technicians at 3:30 p.m. and a Shotokan Karate and self-defense demonstration at 4:15 p.m.

Acts performing will include Murphy's Rag Time Band playing dixieland, polkas and standards, and offbeat folk music and humor Michael Meadows and Friends.

Admission to the fair is free. Tickets for food, games and prizes will be sold for 10 cents.

Vega scores hit as 'Luka' makes top 5

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The haunting strains of Suzanne Vega's acoustic guitar and breathy voice have propelled the urban folk singer's hit single "Luka" into the top five on Billboard magazine's Hot 100 singles chart this week.

The Santa Monica, Calif.-born and New York-bred singer's album "Solitude Standing" was at No. 12 on Billboard's Top LP list and moving steadily upward on the strength of 500,000 copies sold in less than three months.

"Solitude Standing" opens with a crisp, acappella "Tom's Diner" followed by the powerful "Luka," which perhaps best captures the album's themes of alienation and observation.

Vega was writing songs at 14 and performing at 16. Although American listeners were slow to appreciate her talents, Vega's 1985 debut album "Suzanne Vega" sold more than 500,000 copies outside the United States and reached double gold status in the United Kingdom where she played to sold-out audiences at London's Royal Albert Hall.

Indeed, her songs have an appealing hard edge lacking in the soft, pastoral melodies of most folk singers.

Two to split $22 million Lotto prize

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Two people matched all seven numbers in the Lotto-7 drawing Wednesday night and will split the $22 million prize, Lottery officials said Thursday.

Neither of the two players have come forward yet, said Carl Johnson, a Lottery Department spokesman. Each will receive $10,810,159 in 20 annual payments of $540,659.

Johnson said one of the winners bought a ticket at the White Hen Pantry at 674 Meacham Road in Elk Grove Village and the other purchased a ticket at the ESI Gas N Grocery at 3017 Kennedy Drive in East Moline.

WE BRING MORE ROOMMATES TOGETHER BY SPLITTING THEM UP.

At Lewis Park, we realize the closer you are to your roommate, the farther apart you want to be. Knowing this, we separated our four equally sized bedrooms and full bath apartment homes with a large kitchen, dishwasher, and large living area. Now you can still save money by sharing the rent - and keep your privacy too. So have a roommate...and still live alone. Four bedroom/two bath roommate plans start from 1549/MO. Come by today, it's a wise "joint venture."

Poindexter misled officials on Iran affair, Regan says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Donald Regan, driven off as President Reagan's chief aide by the Iran-Contra scandal, testified Thursday he would have "blown the whistle" on the diversion of money to Nicaraguan rebels and said he was confident Regan would have killed the scheme.

When Regan did learn about the diversion in late November, Regan said, the president expressed such surprise that "I'd give him an Academy Award if he knew anything about this. He couldn't have known."

Five months after he was unceremoniously dumped as White House chief of staff, Regan testified that John Poindexter, the national security adviser last year, misled almost the whole administration — including President Reagan — about the operations that exploded into scandal last November.

Regan said that on Nov. 25, just before Poindexter left his job, he asked the national security adviser, "What the hell is going on here?" Even then, Regan said, Poindexter told him, "Well, I guess I should have looked into it more. ... I just didn't look into it."

Though a sore throat made his New York accent raspy, Regan regaled the select House-Senate committees probing the Iran-Contra scandal with his version of events in language that was by turns jocular, salty and very blunt.

His clear point: For a year, Poindexter managed the details of the Iran initiative and the diversion and kept almost all the information from the president, Cabinet officials and Regan, even as the scandal flowered.

In a personal aside, Regan also suggested that his Feb. 27 departure from government still left a bitter taste in his mouth: "I don't mind spears in the breast. It's knives in the back that concerns me."

A Harvard graduate, retired Marine Corps officer and once the chairman of the board of the Merrill Lynch investment house, Regan came to the administration in 1981 as treasury secretary. In 1985, he swapped jobs with White House chief of staff James Baker and assumed control of the president's schedule.

Regan: President confused by Poindexter's briefing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan "botched" an answer at a crucial November news conference on the Israeli role in U.S. arms sales to Iran because a briefing by adviser John Poindexter "confused the presidential mind," Donald Regan testified Thursday.

The president's former chief of staff, speaking before the House and Senate select committees investigating the Iran-Contra scandal, made the frank admission in explaining the detailed process undertaken at the White House to prepare Regan for the session with the press.

At the news conference, held Nov. 19, 1986, in answer to mounting pressure and questions swirling about the just-revealed transactions with Iran, Regan said no third countries were involved in the sales. The president, confronted by aides with word that Israel had indeed taken part, issued a correction on that point within minutes of the news conference's end.

Unlike normal sessions, Regan said, this time Regan was under tremendous pressure not to reveal too much information on the deals to preserve ongoing efforts to obtain the release of U.S. hostages being held in Lebanon.

"The president was getting conflicting advice as to how much he could say and what he shouldn't say," Regan said. "As a matter of fact, there were many in the room who had no knowledge of the shipments, and Admiral Poindexter was trying to be oblique in referencing, A) Israel, and B) the type of munitions that had been sent, so that the people in the room wouldn't be aware of what was going on."

"I think this kind of confused the presidential mind," Regan said, "as to what he could say and what he couldn't say."

Regan plans to fight Congress, Byrd charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd charged Thursday that President Reagan is polarizing the nation in a campaign of confrontation with Congress to restore his "Top Gun" image squandered by the Iran-Contra scandal.

"The policy of veto, after veto, after veto is the policy of polarization," Byrd said. "The president is prepared to exercise his veto power in a broad-gauged strategy of confrontation with Congress."

"Having gone through one long exercise in ignoring the Congress, the president seems determined to go down the road toward confrontation with the Congress," he said.

Printer won't move to basement

By Karen Wells
 Staff Writer

A Carbondale business owner who had planned to move his business into a basement location inaccessible to the handicapped has canceled his plan to relocate.

In a meeting of the Carbondale Building Code Board of Appeals Wednesday at City Hall, John Karayanis, a representative of the company that owns the building where Perfectly Clear Printing and Copying had planned to relocate, said the print shop owner had changed his mind. About 20 disabled people attended the meeting.

The building at 611 S. Illinois Ave., owned by Z Incorporated and location of Gold Mine pizza restaurant, is where the print shop owner had originally planned to move.

The print shop owner was not present at the meeting. Karayanis declined to comment any further on the issue.

Carol Potter, executive director of the Southern Illinois Center for Independent Living, said 43 people had signed a petition against allowing the business to relocate if it did not provide access for handicapped people.

Carbondale has been recognized as being the most accessible city in the country, Potter said. In 1986, the city won a national award for providing access for disabled citizens.

"I don't want us to lose that progress business by business by business," she said.

Learning 'swing tackle' position helps Van Dyke in roster quest

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

Former Saluki tackle Ralph Van Dyke doesn't know when the first cut is scheduled at the Atlanta Falcons training camp. As he sees it, he doesn't need to know, because he's confident he'll make the team.

Atlanta's training camp opened July 26 when about 65 rookies, players returning from injuries and selected veterans reported for physicals. Among the eight offensive linemen in that group, Van Dyke is standing his ground.

As the only player listed at swing tackle — a tackle who can play from either the right or left side — Van Dyke's optimism was running high Thursday after completing the first of the day's two practices.

"They'll only keep eight or nine linemen on the 45-man roster, so being able to play the swing tackle will be a big bonus for me," Van Dyke, a fourth-round draft pick by the Falcons in this spring's NFL draft, said.

Five or six additional linemen were expected to report to camp along with the rest of the veterans for physicals on Friday, he said.

The first full squad practice begins Saturday and marks the start of competition for roster spots.

Van Dyke suffered the first knee injury of his football career Tuesday, but the hyperextension wasn't about to keep him out long. After sitting out Wednesday, big Ralph was back out on the field Thursday.

"I taped it up and came back four or five days earlier than expected," Van Dyke said. "A rookie has to be out on the field. You can't prove very much from the sidelines."

Wednesday wasn't just a day in the whirlpool, either. Van Dyke spent his time on the sidelines learning the Falcons' offense.

"In one day of just concentrating on watching, I learned the whole offensive scheme," Van Dyke said. "I think it would have taken longer to learn out on the field."

Coaches at the professional level have more time for fine-tuning a player's obvious talents than coaches at the collegiate level do, and Van Dyke hopes the extra tutoring will be to his benefit.

Jim Hanifan, former head coach of the St. Louis Cardinals, is Atlanta's offensive line and assistant head coach.

"He's really helping me out a lot," Van Dyke said. "He'll tell you, then he'll get right out there on the field and show you. He persists until it becomes natural."

"Everyone is big and smart, and the level of competition is extremely high," Van Dyke said. "There aren't any slouches here."

Rec Center plans fall extravaganza

First-ever all-day sports festival set for August

By Darren Richardson
Staff Writer

As the summer semester winds down, Intramurals coordinator Buddy Goldammer and newly hired assistant coordinators Herman Williams and Sarah Hardin Simonson are already busy preparing for the fall.

Williams and Simonson have already cooked up quite an agenda.

"The sky's the limit with those two," Goldammer said. "We're excited and enthused about the challenges in the fall, trying some new programs that ought to be a lot of fun."

The most visible effort by the new crew is Sportsfest '87, an all-day intramurals extravaganza scheduled for Aug. 30 at the playing fields across from the Recreation Center.

"We're looking for Sportsfest to go off real big," Williams said. "We'd like to see students get acquainted (with intramurals) as early in the semester as possible."

Goldammer said about 15 sports activities are planned, including mud volleyball, and are open to anybody on campus. "We'll also have live remotes by WCIL-FM with music provided by WDB. Local merchants have been really great about it, donating T-shirts and food coupons and neat stuff like that. We're still in the process of collecting more prizes," Goldammer estimated 3,000 people or more may turn out for Sportsfest '87.

Goldammer said Sportsfest '87 should boost interest in intramurals programs and hopefully increase participation.

"I'd estimate 35 percent of the student population is involved with some aspect of intramurals over the course of the year," Goldammer said. "Obviously, we'd like to see that figure climb. We'd like to see more women involved, because the current ratio is about 85 percent male to 15 percent female. Once people get involved, they see how much fun intramurals can be."

"The sky's the limit with those two. We're excited and enthused about the challenges in the fall, trying some new programs that ought to be a lot of fun."

— Buddy Goldammer

Simonson said she's looking forward to the fest and feels it will be a good opportunity to get students exposed to intramurals. "We're expecting a lot of intramurals participants in the fall," she said.

In addition to the fest, the intramurals department have other first-time leagues on tap, including an Adult Recreation Program and a 3-on-3 Schick Basketball Tourney.

"The Adult Recreation Program is specifically geared toward the adult population," Goldammer said. He explained it's designed for people who might otherwise not participate because of age differences with most students, such as faculty, staff or community residents with a Recreation Center user's pass. The pass, available for $37, is the same amount students pay in incidental fees.

The 3-on-3 Schick Basketball Tourney is a nationwide event which features regional tournament action after a semester of play. Winners from various campuses then play other schools in their regions. The winners of those championships will then play during halftime in a NBA game. In SIU-C's case it would be either Chicago Stadium or Indianapolis' Market Square Arena.

"Besides the new events, we'll have all our traditional sports as well," Goldammer said. "There are team sports like flag football, softball and volleyball, as well as stuff like home run derby, golf tournaments and hacky sack."

Entries open for fall intramurals Aug. 10 at the Recreation Center.

Underdog Tucker looks for upset in Tyson bout

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Tony Tucker has been a winner throughout his boxing career, yet he will have to pull off the biggest upset in heavyweight championship history to defeat Mike Tyson Saturday night.

Tyson is a 12-1 favorite to defeat Tucker and become the unified heavyweight champion. Tyson owns the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association titles, and Tucker is the International Boxing Federation champion.

Tyson, 21, is 30-0 with 27 knockouts and Tucker, 28, is 35-0 with 30 knockouts. Tucker also was 115-6 as an amateur with four national AAU titles, and gold medals in the 1979 Pan Am Games and World Cup.

Still, Tucker is more lightly regarded by the public than the other men Tyson has beaten — Trevor Berbick, James "Bonecrusher" Smith and Pinklon Thomas.

"I get motivated when I hear those odds," Tucker said. "I don't get mad about it, I've got something to prove. Somebody's going to get rich betting on me."

Former Saluki catcher perseveres, gets shot with Pittsburgh farm club

Editor's note: This is the fourth of four articles on Salukis who are playing professionally in minor league baseball.

Former Saluki Catcher Tim McKinley was ready to give up on baseball last summer, but decided to give himself one more shot at playing the game he loves.

As catcher for the 1986 Salukis, McKinley played a vital role in helping SIU-C capture the Missouri Valley Conference regular-season title.

"Winning the title was definitely the highlight of my baseball career," McKinley said. "Winning four straight against Indiana State the final weekend of play was something I'll never forget — that's the kind of thing baseball is all about."

But SIU-C lost the Valley tournament, then lost two straight games at the NCAA regionals. And McKinley, drafted the previous summer by the Toronto Blue Jays, was passed up in the annual amateur draft.

"I was disappointed when I didn't get drafted, but I knew I didn't have that great year at Southern," McKinley said.

Former Saluki Tim McKinley now works behind the plate for the Pittsburgh Pirates Macon, Ga., class A team.

"I didn't hit and I didn't throw anyone out."

McKinley then decided to play summer league ball back home in Ohio.

"I was ready to quit, but I hit .500 that summer and I started throwing out runners," McKinley said. "It was enough to make me go on just a little bit further."

A phone call to scouts from the Pittsburgh Pirate organization resulted in an invitation to spring tryouts.

"I played really well at the tryout camp," McKinley recalls. "Pittsburgh's scouts signed me to a contract that day and I reported to spring training the next day."

After training camp McKinley reported to the Macon Pirates, Pittsburgh's class A club.

"I love it," McKinley said.

"I love professional baseball. As long as I'm playing, it doesn't really matter where I'm at."

McKinley has moved from the team's second-string catcher to a starting role, and he's happy with his performance.

"My arm speed is quicker and I'm consistently throwing runners out," he said. "I'm just glad I stuck it out a little bit longer."

A .265 average in 36 games doesn't have McKinley jumping for joy, but he figures he'll improve as he becomes more accustomed to using a wooden bat. Four doubles and 10 RBI, with three stolen bases, is enough to keep him starting, he figures, if his defensive skills remain sharp.

The move to the Macon Pirates adds to the list of teams the catcher has played with.

After a stellar prep career at Fairbanks High School in Plain City, Ohio, McKinley moved on to Ohio State University. One year later he played for Edison Community College in Fort Meyers, Fla.

McKinley then spent two years at Southeastern Illinois College in Harrisburg, where he attracted the attention of Saluki coach Richard "Itchy"
