Egyptian Staff Member's Election Contested in Student Senate Move

The election of Dennis Nix to a seat in the Campus Senate has been contested and will be presented to a Judiciary Board for a recommendation.

The action was initiated at the Senate Wednesday night after Student Senator Gary Krischer charged that Nix had used unethical means to gain office in recent senatorial elections.

He said that an editorial written by Nix had appeared in the Daily Egyptian the day previous to the balloting. He also noted that Nix is an employee of the paper.

Nix replied that he had not written an editorial but had written a letter to the editor which he felt was his right as a student. He said that a coincidence had resulted in the letter appearing when it did. Nix confirmed that he is a proofreader and cartoonist but denied taking part in the layout of the editorial page.

In other action, the Senate heard a report from Larry Mandel, who announced that the Illinois Department of Registration and Education is sending an investigator to look into the alleged misuse of escrow accounts by some Carbondale realtors.

He explained that an escrow account is one in which money is given to real estate brokers for deposits and is entrusted to them for guarantees of tenancy or damages. Mandel said that certain parties are not sticking with this policy.

Senator John Foote, head of a committee for student work reform, reported that progress is being made in a campaign for better wages and working conditions.

He stated that Robert Adams, head of the student work office, has been cooperative and had forwarded much pertinent information to the committee. An ad hoc planning committee is scheduled to meet later this week, according to Foote.

Foote also took the opportunity to object to University officials withholding paychecks if students have outstanding library fines, housing payments or loan payments.

"The latest information I have on this procedure is that wages of public employees cannot be withheld," Foote declared. "The fact that the debtor is a student employee subjects him to the harsh punishment of withholding wages."

Wilbur Moulton, dean of students, announced that Mrs. Carol Kasper has been named as an adviser to Off-Campus Housing. She will serve in a liaison role between student government and the Housing Office, according to Moulton.

Southern to Offer Future Springfield College Its Services

SIU will offer its services in the establishment of a new college in Springfield, according to Robert W. MacVicar, vice president for academic affairs and acting president in Delyte W. Morris' absence.

The question was raised after the Faculty Advisory Committee of the Illinois Board of Higher Education voted that the new senior college be governed by the Illinois Board of Regents.

On Nov. 9, the SIU Board of Trustees agreed to ask permission of the Higher

Board for Southern to develop the school for the first five years of its existence.

MacVicar said the decision of the Faculty Advisory Committee, Monday was not unexpected, considering the composition of the committee.

He said that the two proposals are not necessarily in disagreement. Another governing body could take over after SIU's initial period. MacVicar said he still believed that the administration of the new school by an established institution for the first five years would be in the best interests of the state.

MacVicar will discuss the matter further at a college presidents' Committee on Cooperation meeting Friday in Chicago.

Reporter Hits Criticism by Student Senate

By Inez Rencher

Daily Egyptian reporter Charles Springer Wednesday night took issue with Campus Senators who were criticizing the newspaper's coverage of Campus Senate activities.

Springer's comments were made at the senate meeting after an amendment to the agenda allowing the action was accepted by the body. Springer said his remarks were prompted by a rumor that attempts would be made to pass a resolution banning him as a reporter from senate proceedings.

Criticism of previous reports in the Daily Egyptian concerning the campus Senate had been aired during the meeting by Gary Krischer.

"Sometimes I wonder if Senator Krischer is running for editor of the Egyptian," Springer said. "It appears to me that anyone writing anything contrary to the opinions of 'his group' meets with an immediate dressing down of character."

He added that reporters are obligated to write the news, and as student representatives, the senators are expected to take criticism.

"If the Senate is doing what is considered less than constructive, they (reporters) have no other choice than to write about it. We (reporters) are obligated to print what you say," Springer told the senators. "If it gets you into trouble or makes you look bad, then you have no one to blame but yourself."

Until December 1

With 40 units out of 150 yet to report, the SIU section of the Carbondale United Fund has collected $14,180. The goal for the campus campaign is $21,000.

Rex Karnes, campus coordinator for the United Fund Drive, said, "We expect to reach the goal. Collections now are running ahead of last year at the same time, even though we began the campaign three days later this year."

The campaign on campus began Oct. 17 this year. Karnes asked that collections be turned in by Dec. 15.

The campaign in the city of Carbondale has collected approximately $36,000 of its goal of $55,242. In the city, advance gifts totaled $19,500, but many firms and offices have not sent in their collections yet, Carbondale headquarters reported.

State Deans, Counselors Open Conference Today

Committee meetings today at the Holiday Inn will open the 48th annual conference of the Illinois Association of Women Deans and Counselors.

The three-day conference, with the theme "Open a New Window," will attract representatives from elementary schools, junior and senior high schools and colleges and universities throughout Illinois.

Registration begins at 9 a.m. Friday morning in the Gallery Lounge of the University Center.

Friday morning highlights will include a slide-film presentation entitled "SIU—Complexity and Change," which will be shown from 10 to 11 a.m. in Ballroom B of the University Center. Campus tours are also planned.

The first general session at 2 p.m. Friday in the University Center Ballrooms will feature talks on innovations in education. Mary E. Harrison of the University of Illinois will preside.

Speakers will be Gary Lonnon of Decatur Lakeview High School, Diane Callin of Fenton High School and Jack W. Graham, coordinator of the SIU

College Student Personnel Graduate Studies program.

Other afternoon activities include discussion groups headed by Patricia McKinney of Culver-Stockton College, Mary K. Dewey of Eisenhower High School in Blue Island and Virginia Palmer of Illinois State University.

The association president, Mariam Fager of Proviso West High School will preside at a business meeting in the afternoon.

Oliver J. Caldwell, dean of the Division of International Services, will address the group on "American Women in World Affairs" at the evening banquet in Ballroom B of the University Center.

"Communications and Decision Making" will be discussed Saturday morning by Maude A. Stewart, professor of psychology at Ohio State University.

Virginia Moore, assistant dean in the Division of Student Affairs, is in charge of registration and publicity.

Loretta K. Ott, assistant dean for married, graduate and commuter students, is chairman of the committee on local arrangements.

This is the first year the conference has been held in the southern part of the state.

Zoologist Award To be Established On Annual Basis

Establishment of a memorial award in zoology in memory of the late Richard R. Kudo, who served as distinguished visiting professor at SIU from 1958 until his death June 3, 1967, has been announced by the SIU Foundation.

The award, perpetuated by the income from a $1,000 fund established by friends and family, is for an outstanding thesis or dissertation by a graduate student recommended by full professors in the Department of Zoology.

Kudo, born in Tokushima Prefecture, Japan, graduated with two doctoral degrees from the University of Tokyo and became an authority on the parasitic protozoa.

Contributions to the Kudo fund may be made by sending checks to Robert Gallegly, treasurer of the SIU Foundation.

Daily Egyptian Editorials Improve Convo Or Scrap It

Webster defines convocation as, "an assembling by summons." Too often, the convocations at SIU are little more than the definition implies. Students are summoned to be educated and assemble for that purpose. The intended education, which would justify such an assembly, does not take place. Coughing, talking, smoking, sleeping, and newspaper-reading do take place. The convocation program is, to the extent that such behavior occurs, a failure.

Some blame for convo's failure must be directed at the members of the audience who rarely allow a performer to introduce himself before they reject him.

Even when a performer is granted a period of grace, however, disruptive behavior is usually prevalent before an hour has passed. In such cases, the performer must share the blame for a convocation's failure, for he has not been sufficiently interesting to hold his audience's attention.

A case in point is Mark Van Doren, who read his poetry at a convocation last quarter. He failed to interest students, possibly because he did not choose poems that are likely to interest undergraduates. He elaborated on these poems by describing the McCarthy Era to people who were only five-year-olds while McCarthy was alive. Mr. Van Doren did not even read his poems loudly enough to be heard throughout Shryock if the hall were empty.

In short, Mr. Van Doren personified everything that a convocation should not be. He was esoteric from start to finish.

This month students have been lucky. Successful convocation programs have been provided by Bill Sands, a crusader for prison reforms and ex-cellmate Caryl Chessman, and by Charles Aznavour, a French singer, composer, and actor.

These two programs were presented to students who were enthusiastic and attentive. Education took place because both performers knew the composition of their audience and directed their programs to that audience.

Convocations could educate more often if those responsible for booking artists would consider a performer's ability to communicate to college freshmen as a prime requirement.

If there is a shortage of such artists available, the convocation program might be improved by giving credit for attendance at certain movies. "Ulysses," for example, would have been suitable for this purpose.

Another way of circumventing a shortage of performers who are intrinsically interesting might be to offer a pre-convocation class to introduce the day's speaker. If a convo's subject matter is made more familiar, the speakers will be more interesting to the students.

If no method of improving the present set-up is possible, then the program should be abolished, for there is no value in requiring six hours of boredom.

Bombing Effective In Shortening War

Bombing of North Vietnam has been upgraded in the past year in hopes of forcing the enemy to the conference table. Such bombings appear necessary if the U.S. is to deter inevitable lengthening of the war.

Recently, Senator Charles H. Percy (R-Ill.) proposed that President Johnson order periodic unannounced halts in the bombing of North Vietnam to test Communist willingness to negotiate.

Percy doesn't think the U.S. should give the enemy a chance to pile up supplies and push them through, but that occasional periodic pauses could test whether or not they can be brought to the conference table--and convince them that we do desire peace.

This method could be very advantageous but at the same time might indicate to the North Vietnamese that we plan to gradually let up, thus giving them possible new incentive.

Continual steady bombing seems to be the only method of applying enough pressure to force the enemy to negotiate. They must know that we mean business.

Letters to the Editor:

Be Social and Individual

To the Editor:

Just a short note to Maureen Morris, who is of the opinion that the "vast majority of today's college students" are stereo-types of their parent, friends, teachers, books, etc. Sit down, Maureen, and "ponder," (if I may use the term,) how is it that all the hippies, the LSD-takers, the rioters got to be the way they are? They all seem to be stereo-typed, too!

One night, not too long ago, I took my wife to a science-fiction movie at Davis Auditorium. In there we felt like the minority. There were more of the so-called "hippies" with their blankets, their engineer boots, their long hair, their odd-shaped glasses, and their beards than there were of the so-called squares. They were rowdy, and although there were times for humor in the movie, they continued to supply unwanted running commentary to the few members of the "vast majority of students" attending.

We were the minority, and I was glad in this case. Were they actually looking at the "deep sides of life and death" while ruining the show for the few others who were genuinely interested in seeing an early science-fiction movie?

I have no prejudice against their long hair, nor against how they dress, nor against how they feel. But when you ask me not only to tolerate, but to respect people who have no regard for others, that is where I draw the line. In this case, as in any other, there were probably only a few who caused most of the trouble, but they ruined the image of their "deep thinking, pondering, realistic selves."

You speak of individualistic rather than hackneyed expressions. You used one in your own writing, and it can be used against you. The phrase comes in quotes from many mouths, both hippie and conformist, "Learning is a continual life process."

If a person cannot use his past experiences, relationships, books, teachers, religion, etc., to base his beliefs upon, just what do you suggest he base them upon?

Man is a social animal. He must have man about him if he is to function. Whether the people about him are hippies, drug addicts, college students (of the "vast majority" species), ditch diggers, or what-have-you is up to the individual; he may choose.

Do you hate mankind, Maureen? Are we all stupid, conformists? Then do you hate your own conforming "hippies"? Are you not a human? Humans are social. In a social society the important thing is to help and live with others. Do you want to be alone, selfish, thinking of only the "basic realities of life and death"?

Wake up, Maureen, and stop being a hermit. You are a social animal. Don't burrow into the depths of life and death so often that you lose contact with your fellow man! Use some of that thinking power to get you somewhere, make yourself useful, LIVE! You don't have to be a hippie, or a ponderer, a rioter, or a "sit-in-er" to be an individual!

Morals Amiss

Recently while standing at the Information Desk of the University Center, I placed my dripping umbrella against the wall not more than four feet from me while I wrote a check. Within the time it took to write the check, my umbrella was "borrowed" by someone who preferred not to get wet, but unfortunately forgot his umbrella--fortunately for him he spied mine.

There has been considerable ink expended, time consumed and emotion aroused over the subject of the morality of war in Vietnam and the morality of other national issues. I suggest that the concern over morality be directed more to our own campus. Lifting an umbrella owned by someone else is plainly stealing and is immoral. Morality is reflected in the treatment of one man to another. Morality begins at home, more specifically, it begins with responsible individuals.

Freshman Impudence

To the Editor:

This letter is prompted by Edmund House's Letter to the Editor which appeared in the Egyptian Nov. 8. Having just graduated from SIU in June after four years there, the picture Mr. House painted was, unfortunately, altogether clear in my mind.

This is because the behavior he described is the way the students acted at convocations when I attended them as a freshman, and the way my friends in freshman classes since then told me that they still act. Each year at least one irate person writes a letter complaining about students' behaviour at convocation, but then nothing ever seems to be done about it.

I wonder how the person in charge of promoting favorable publicity at SIU could sleep at night knowing that each Thursday his job is undermined by a bunch of uncaring freshmen. I don't think any amount of propaganda put out by a publicity department or any kind of favorable reports are going to convince the Gregg Smith singers or any of the other performers and speakers who have been similarly treated at SIU that Southern is anything more worthwhile than a bad memory.

Southern freshmen have insulted some of the best of them for several years now and I'm sure these people haven't forgotten and have probably mentioned it to others.

I'm proud of Southern and I don't think so many people should be allowed to see such a bad side of her.

If convocations are worth having, which I doubt (but that's another letter), let's start conducting them like a gathering of people with at least a few manners if not interest, instead of a nursery school class, or else get rid of them altogether.

Patricia Barth

Compulsory Concert

To the Editor:

Friday night Nov. 10, saw an unfortunate blind date between the Pepsi-generation and Bach. The University Orchestra was performing for an audience in which the majority were young people who were probably more emotionally and intellectually suited to a diet of the Monkees or the Rolling Stones. They talked, squirmed, giggled, shuffled, whispered, scraped, laughed and generally disturbed the fogeys who were out for an evening of serious music.

The question one asks is who would be so foolish as to line up Johann Sebastian and Miss Go Go? The answer seems to be that serious music at SIU is afraid of being a lonely old man and has to bribe the teeny boppers into listening. Serious music is afraid that no one will listen to him unless he pays for his audience.

These kids are evidently required to attend a certain number of concerts. The old man thinks that they will grow to love him if they listen to his wheezing long enough. As a result, the kids come and provide the worst audience imaginable. Anyone who wants to hear the music comes once or twice and then decides to stay home in the future and listen to records.

Forget about the kids, old man. Some of them will come but give them a little time; let them come when they are ready. Meanwhile, there still are people who will attend because they want to. Wouldn't you really prefer fewer people but have them all listening?

Don't Forget The Guy Who Works For It

By Robert M. Hutchins

As every educator knows, people do what they are expected to do and become what they are expected to be.

Children on the high plains of Africa are shepherds at the age of 10. Young people on the high plains of Colorado are in college at the age of 21. Both groups are where they are because that is where they are expected to be.

If the traditions and resources of Kenya were the same as those of Colorado, the African children would go on to college and do about as well there as the Americans do.

This is why the system of "tracking" in the American schools, by which the "bright" students are separated from the "dull," perpetuates racial discrimination and poverty. The children in the lower tracks are put there early in their educational careers. They are labeled stupid and officially informed that they are not expected to amount to much. They then live up (or down) to these expectations.

For them the school becomes a custodial institution from which they must escape at the earliest opportunity.

Of course, the slum child acts stupid when he comes to school. He confronts an alien culture. His home, if he may be said to have one, is likely to be broken.

If he has parents, they are likely to have little education; they will often be hostile, or at best indifferent, to the school. They will have given the child little of the background he needs in order to get off to a good start.

A child who can read and count by the time he goes to school has an enormous advantage when he arrives there. He will be placed in one of the higher tracks, and, since he will be expected to succeed, he is likely to do so.

The same principles apply to welfare. If the recipient of public assistance is looked upon as a semicriminal who has defaulted on his obligation to society, if he is regarded as a lazy incompetent who is out to cheat the government, then he is likely to acquire the unsavory character expected of him.

One of the most pernicious prejudices in our society is that people who are not earning enough to support their families are not entitled as a matter of right to anything.

As a matter of charity they may receive enough to keep them alive, and they should be grateful for it. But they cannot complain at the most outrageous indignities perpetrated upon them by a benevolent bureaucracy.

The infamous practice of "bed-checks" conducted on nighttime raids for the purpose of discovering "unauthorized males" in the homes of welfare recipients has now been forbidden by federal regulations and declared unconstitutional by the California Supreme Court.

But where did the welfare departments of Kern County and Alameda County in California, which conducted such raids, get the idea that this was a proper or even a legal way of treating American citizens?

They got it, of course, from public opinion. The general view is that people on welfare are spongers. Hence, any means of curbing the frauds they are trying to commit are justified.

The mass of the welfare recipients in this country--8.4 million people--are the innocent victims of technological, industrial and social change. Yet we are so hung up on the Protestant Ethic that 8.5 million more, who are eligible for assistance under federal law, are not getting it because of the stinginess of the states.

The answer has to be a guaranteed annual income--as a matter of right.

An Editor's Outlook

"Journalists--Forget About Those Kooks"

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

I have been admiring that naked picture of actress Jane Fonda on the front cover of the Nov. 13 Newsweek. It cleaned Newsweek off the stands in my home town and I presume the results were equally satisfactory elsewhere.

The picture was used to illustrate an article entitled "Anything Goes," which discussed the alleged collapse of older moral standards in America. The article alternately deplored this new morality and guessed that it was irreversible.

Here was a good example of what might be described as "cluck-smack journalism." You cluck in dismay over human misbehavior in all its lip-smacking lurid allure. This is a subtle approach to the business of piling on circulation. It technically aligns you with the angels while it cozies you right up next to Playboy. It's not a new device. The old Police Gazette was good at it.

We have recently seen a growing tendency toward cluck-smackery in our once highly moral popular magazines. The rationale is that aberration, drugs, promiscuity and violence are part of life and that the editors are exhibiting rare courage and honesty in breaking through Victorian taboos.

All this is, indeed, part of life, just as the city dump and the jail drunk tank are part of every town. But you don't put them on post cards. In the old days when sensational newspapers buried the announcement of the new civic center underneath a breathless account of the raid on the local bawdyhouse this was described as "yellow journalism." And beautifully written journalism published on the slickest paper can still be yellow.

The concern is that enough yellow journalism can produce yellow behavior. When you parade the doings of kooks, psychedelics, riot-advocates, deviates and lechers long enough, the tremendous power of the press lends itself to a lowering of the general public impression of what acceptable behavior is.

Thus, instead of merely "mirroring life," this kind of journalism produces an inferior social order. Man always operates well below his ideals. All that is necessary to brutalize him is to play "Everybody's Doin' It."

We have now reached the point where we can no longer distinguish between philosophers and those who simply refuse to bathe or wear shoes. Any exhibitionist with a long enough beard and a dirty enough toga can draw a gaggle of journalistic geese to his

"press conference." The "poet" who strings obscenities together is searched for portentous meaning. And the man who blows his mind with LSD and, inadvertently perhaps, splits his chromosomes at no extra charge, is described as being not merely high, but a High Lama.

The tremendous competition among the network TV newsmen has been adroitly used by those who would make it appear that America seethes with revolt. You can have a patriotic parade in which thousands participate and tens of thousands look on with appreciation.

But let word come down that 100 demonstrators have tried to block the march and every network rushes to zoom in on that hundred. The resulting impression is that the parade is disrupted by irate citizens "appalled by our atrocities in Vietnam."

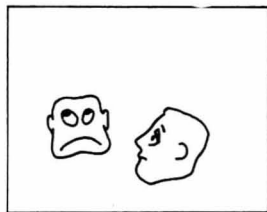

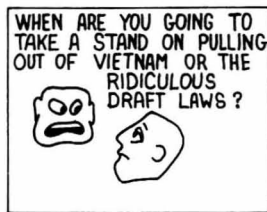

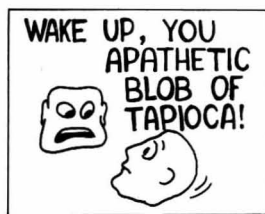

This is not sophisticated journalism. This is singularly unsophisticated journalism. It is a sucker's game in which the media permit themselves to be manipulated in contrived dramas carefully staged by a small minority. But the effect is tremendous.

The so-called "new sexuality" is pretty old. One would have to cut a lot of history classes to imagine that the human animal had never gone through periods in which he sought release or even revelation in pure licentiousness. We've been there--many times. Hugh Hefner hasn't thought of anything that hadn't been thought of 3,000 years ago by the priestesses of Astarte.

If this had worked--if it had brought fulfillment and happiness--we would never have messed around with the Ten Commandments. But always it produced social confusion and disgust, and always after man had vomited away his hangover he sought cleaner, nobler gods. We are way below the angels, but we just aren't happy in the barnyard.

This country is still full of people, young and old, who have high principles and strong dedications and that capacity for self-discipline without which no civilization flowers or even survives. But they haven't been getting the press coverage.

The kooks have had too much coverage. The don't-knock-it-until-you've-tried-it philosophers are paraded in too many magazines. The burn-baby-burn boys are on camera. Maybe it's time to pay more attention to decent Americans. They are all over the place and they're doing interesting things, too. America is going to need 'em.

AIR FORCE PROMOTION--The silver oak leaf of the lieutenant colonel is pinned on Robert W. Bullock by Col. Edward Murphy, commandant of the Air Force ROTC program at SIU, where Bullock, on Murphy's staff, received notice of his promotion from major. Bullock, who came to the Carbondale campus of SIU in September after serving a tour of duty in Vietnam, regards Huntington, W. Va., as his home town.

Warden at Marion

Named Part Time

SIU Instructor

Warden John A. Mayden of the United States Penitentiary at Marion has been named a part-time faculty member at the SIU Vocational-Technical Institute.

Mayden, 61, was appointed one-third time assistant professor and will teach in the new two-year corrections and law enforcement program at VTL.

A 26-year veteran of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, Mayden has also taught in the public schools of Walnut Grove, Mo., and Weleetka, Okla. He has the bachelor of arts and bachelor of science degrees from Drury College, Springfield, Mo., and master of arts in sociology from the University of Illinois.

Mayden is teaching one course in an associate degree program in corrections and law enforcement started this fall at VTL. The program is designed to train junior officers in prison, probation and police work and is the first of its kind in Illinois and one of only six in the nation.

Health Service

The University Health Service reported admissions of the following students:

Yvonne Jackson, 712 University; Robert Carter, 113 Small Group Housing; Claudia Bricks, Neely; Claire Hartman, 215 Steagall Hall; Robert Freeland, 200 W. Monroe; Robert Pfeiffer, 1207 S. Wall; Barry Beck, 121 Stevenson Arms.

There were no dismissals.

'Hello, Dolly' Tickets Still on Sale, Two Performances Slated Sunday

Tickets are still available for Sunday's Celebrity Series production of "Hello, Dolly!" starring Dorothy Lamour.

The two performances Sunday will be at 4:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium. Tickets are available at the Information Desk of the University Center. Prices are $2, $3 and $4 for student tickets and $3, $4 and $5 for others.

Miss Lamour has the leading role in David Merrick's production of "Hello, Dolly!" which was first produced in New York in 1964.

To most movie-goers of past years the great musical might just as well be called "Hello, Dotty!"

Miss Lamour (Dotty) has appeared in motion pictures "Road to Singapore," "Road to Zanzibar," "Road to Morocco," "Road to Utopia," "Road to Rio," "Road to Bali," and "Road to Hong Kong."

Miss Lamour is the latest in the ever-growing roster of stage and screen stars to find the role of Dolly Gallagher Levi in "Hello, Dolly!" irresistible. Star of more than 50 motion pictures including the seven "Road" films, she has traded in her sarong for Dolly's turn-of-the-century bustle.

Born in New Orleans, she entered a "Miss New Orleans" beauty pageant at the age of 14 and won. She had told the officials she was 17. She and her mother later moved to Chicago where she auditioned for the Herbie Kay Orchestra and got a job as singer with the band. Next came hotel jobs with the Rudy Vallee orchestra and a solo singing engagement at the Stork Club in New York, which led quickly to a radio contract.

A move to Los Angeles put Dorothy in the eyes of movie scouts, and she was on her way.

She is married to William Ross Howard III of Baltimore, whom she met when he was an Air Force lieutenant and she was leading a War Bond tour during World War II. They have two sons, Ridgely, 21, a Marine Corps corporal, and Tom, 17, in school.

Reviewing for the Hollywood

Reporter trade publication, Joy Hamann said: "Miss Lamour, not at all uncomfortable in velvet as opposed to tape cloth, made Dolly Gallagher Levi the kind of woman you would hope your widower dad would bring home to the kids."

Shortly after its New York premiere, "Hello, Dolly!" won the New York Drama Critics Circle Award as the year's best musical. Carol Channing was the original Dolly. Others playing the leading role have been Ginger Rogers, Mary Martin, Betty Grable and Eve Arden.

Phys Ed Chairman Gets Honor Award

Edward J. Shea, men's physical education chairman at SIU, is one of five 1967 Honor Award recipients announced in Chicago recently by the Illinois Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Shea was named an honor fellow in recognition of outstanding service at the local, state, and national level. Others receiving this award were Nick Milosevich of Ottawa, Eileen P. Gamble of Evanston, and Edgar Sellers of Park Ridge. Wilbur R.L. Trimpe, Madison County superintendent of schools, received the general award, given persons not directly working in the field of health, physical education and recreation.

Shea, who came to SIU in 1954 after obtaining his Ph.D. degree from New York University the same year, has served in many capacities in the work of the Amateur Athletic Union, the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, and the American Red Cross. He has served as president of the Illinois Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation and as a member of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Youth Fitness. He and E.D. (Tad) Wieman are co-authors of a book, "Administrative Policies for Intercollegiate Athletics," published this fall.

Teacher Education

Bulletin Explains Programs

The SIU Bulletin on Teacher Education Programs on the Carbondale Campus is now available at Central Publications and the office of the dean of the College of Education.

Policies and procedures found in the bulletin were developed by the All-University Committee on Teacher Education chaired by Robert MacVicar, vice president for academic affairs. The bulletin has been described as the first clear, concise, complete statement dealing with teacher education programs throughout the campus. Faculty members in education and other disciplines from both the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses are represented on the All-University committee.

John R. Verduin, coordinator of teacher education who was in charge of assembling the information for the new bulletin, said statements of policy and procedure show, among other things, a change in admission processes including new standards for admission to the College of Education and for acceptance for student teaching assignment.

Now, he said, admission to, retention in, and completion of teacher education programs on the Carbondale campus are administered by the dean of the College of Education. Previously this could have been done in one of a number of offices. Application forms for admission to the teacher education program will be available at the office of the dean in the Wham Education Building.

The booklet reveals that unconditional admission to the teacher education program can be given with a minimum of 64 quarter hours of work.

From 64 to 102 quarter hours the applicant must have an average of at least 3.00; with 103 to 143 quarter hours at the time of application the average must be at least 3.10, and with more than 143 it must be at least 3.20. Before beginning a student teaching assignment the student must have a cumulative grade point average of at least 3.25.

The bulletin also contains pertinent information on conditional admission to the teacher education program, certification, student teaching requisites, professional education requirements and electives, general requirements, and requirements in the major teaching areas.

McNamara Announces Resignation

LBJ Sees No War Policy Change

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, announced Wednesday night he plans to resign to become president of the World Bank when work on the new military budget is complete.

Within minutes, President Johnson followed up with a statement confirming McNamara's plans, praising his seven years in the job and declaring major defense policies are clearly defined for the next defense chief.

"The course of our participation in the war in Vietnam is firmly set; major defense policies are clearly defined," Johnson said without elaboration.

The two men issued statements shortly after the executive directors of the bank voted unanimously to offer McNamara the presidency of the 107-nation lending agency. The formal offer is expected to come as soon as the necessary other steps are completed.

Johnson said of McNamara "I shall miss him greatly as a member of my cabinet, as one of my closest colleagues and as my valued friend."

The President thus obviously moved quickly to counter speculation that McNamara's departure might lead to a harder war line in Vietnam.

The Chief Executive said that while no precise date has been fixed for McNamara's departure, "I have asked him to remain at least long enough into next year to complete the work on the military program and financial budget for fiscal year 1969."

That budget will be submitted to Congress in January.

Johnson said McNamara had assured him, even while saying he was interested in the World Bank post, that he was willing to remain as secretary of defense "so long as the President considered it to be necessary."

However, Johnson also said the defense chief expressed the view to him sometime ago that he believes the military service "would benefit from the appointment of a fresh person."

The President said that "I could not justify asking Secretary McNamara indefinitely to continue to bear the enormous burdens of his position nor could I, in justice to him and to this nation's obligations to the World Bank, refrain from recommending that he be selected as president of the bank."

Johnson predicted that "it will be possible for Secretary McNamara's successor to continue his able and effective administration of the defense establishment and our program without loss of momentum or effectiveness."

Johnson was lavish in his praise of McNamara saying that his service as a cabinet member and counsellor "has been unexcelled."

McNamara, in a separate statement telling of his plans to take the $40,000-a-year post, had also said no date had been set for his departure.

Peace Seems Assured on Cyprus

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—The Atlantic Alliance's trouble shooter in the Cyprus crisis said tonight: "Our efforts for peace met with success."

Diplomatic sources said Greece and Turkey were preparing to announce jointly the end of their current conflicts over the long-troubled eastern Mediterranean island.

Manlie Brosie, secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization made his announcement to reporters after a session at the Greek Foreign Ministry. He added: "I am confident we are going to keep the peace."

As if to underscore his confidence, Brosie said he planned to return to his headquarters in Brussels probably Thursday. Greece and Turkey are NATO allies and a conflict between them would seriously damage the alliance.

Diplomatic quarters said the agreement was a triumph for the work of Brosie and Cyrus R. Vance, President Johnson's special envoy. While Brosie shuttled between Ankara and Athens on Wednesday, Vance met in Cyprus with President Makarios, the Greek Cypriot leader, apparently to sell him on the settlement.

Greek Foreign Minister Panayiotis Pipinelis worked through the evening hours meeting with Brosie and other authorities on the finishing touches of the agreement. U.S. Ambassador Phillips Talbot joined Brosie in final talks with Pipinelis.

Turkish Ambassador Turgut Guluy also met with Pipinelis

but declined any comment.

The Greek government, which has been pessimistic, issued a terse communique that appeared to be a scene-setter for the final announcement of an agreement.

"Diplomatic contacts to settle the crisis have considerably advanced during the last few hours and allowed the hope that a final solution will be reached soon," the communique said.

Tax, Spending Plan Presented

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Johnson administration presented to Congress Wednesday a tax and spending plan it said could lower this year's budget deficit to $13.7 billion and insure confidence in the dollar, if enacted quickly.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler said approval of this year of the plan—or one like it—is an "inescapable responsibility of the Congress" in the wake of British devaluation and last week's run on gold.

"Delay can be as damaging as defeat," he said in testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee.

Fowler renewed the administration's plea for the 10 percent surcharge on income taxes and stuck to the original effective dates—Oct. 1 for individuals and July 1 for corporations, both 1967.

As part of the same package, however, he proposed in legislative form budget cuts of $4.1 billion during the current fiscal year which ends next June 30. This would be accomplished by a formula reducing the authority of government agencies to commit funds.

Fowler said it would not be feasible to collect through withholding from paychecks any of the additional individual taxes which would be due through December under the plan.

Collection would be made, he said, when taxpayers file their 1967 income tax returns early next year. He said that for two-thirds of the taxpayers the surcharge would be reflected in smaller refunds rather than any additional payments.

Even before the hearing opened, the odds for adoption of a tax bill this year dropped virtually to zero when committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said there just isn't enough time left to get a bill through the House.

One Democratic supporter of increased taxes who declined to be quoted by name said after Fowler's testimony that the administration is setting up the tax-spending package for approval next year.

There was no immediate reaction from Mills.

Wirtz Denies Reports of Resignation

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz said Wednesday he had heard reports he planned to resign in protest to President Johnson's Vietnam policies and called the reports "poisonous poppycock."

Wirtz did not specifically answer another report, released by Metromedia News in Washington, that he planned to resign soon because he felt he'd served long enough.

But the secretary, appointed in August 1962, said "Nobody likes his job more than I do."

Wirtz said he was proud to work for the Johnson administration and specifically said he supported administration policy in Vietnam.

The report which said he would quit in protest, Wirtz said, was given to him by telephone from an official Washington source.

"I know a fishing expedition when I see one," Wirtz said of the report.

There have been other reports in the past year that Wirtz planned to quit his job.

Services Bolster Economy, Instructor Says

Get out of the smoke and take a look at the growing specialized service industry, an SIU marketing specialist has urged leaders intent on bolstering the economy of their communities.

David J. Luck, professor of marketing in the School of Business, said "smokestack chasing" should not necessarily be the prime goal of community efforts to bring in industry.

"The attitude that a community should strive to bring manufacturing industries, above all, into its economy appears obsolete in our high-level economy," he said. "Indeed 'smokestack chasing' when successful may create a community environment adverse to growth in the big and burgeoning service sector."

Luck, who has conducted a number of economic surveys as a member of the SIU faculty, said there are hundreds of specialized and novel services offered in the most advanced service cities that are not yet developed in the typical city. He suggested that the focus of industrial development be broadened to seek and encourage service businesses, too.

Luck began a study four years ago of the region in the middle Mississippi and Ohio river basins, using federal census figures for both 1950 and 1960 in 180 cities of more than 10,000 population. Recently he gave his research findings at the annual meeting of the Southern Marketing Association in New Orleans in a paper entitled: "The Changing Economic Base and Its Significance to Marketing."

Luck identified four types of city economics as (1) manufacturing, (2) trade, (3) specialized service, and (4) diversified. In No. 1 he placed all kinds of manufacturing, in No. 2 wholesale-retail trade, in No. 3 specialized services of a nature that bring in revenue from outside, including higher education, hospital-medical and government.

He classified diversified cities as those in which no industry is sufficiently large to place it in one of the three other categories.

Only a few Southern Illinois cities were classified because of the 10,000 or more limitation. Carbondale most definitely fell into the specialized service group. Springfield, Marion, and Centralia were typed as diversified, Decatur, and Alton were manufacturing cities, and Mount Vernon was a trade city. Nearby outstate cities were Evansville, manufacturing, Cape Girardeau, trade, and Paducah, diversified.

Luck said there has been a marked shift in economic bases during the past 15 years, whether the situation be viewed locally, regionally, or nationally.

"Services have been experiencing a nearly constant, though gradual, increase in the share of total expenditures," he said. "Today they have risen to 44 per cent of consumer expenditures. Continuation of this rate will find more than half the consumer dollar going into services around 1980."

He said the United States is becoming the first predominantly service economy in the world. And since the labor involved in services is approaching 64 per cent of the total employment nationally, many areas and cities may be expected to have 70 to 80 per cent of their employment in services.

Counseling Study

Lecture Scheduled

Kevin Mitchell of the Arkansas Rehabilitation Center will speak at 8 p.m. tonight in Muckelroy Auditorium in the Agriculture Building under the auspices of the SIU Rehabilitation Institute.

His talk will deal with a series of studies which he has conducted covering variables in the counseling process.

SIU's Barracks to Fade Away

The tremendous growth of SIU in the past 20 years has caused many problems. One of these is acquiring ample classroom, office, and storage space. This demand has been met by SIU by using temporary buildings. But how temporary are they?

Wallace G. Richison, University Architect, said, "Most of the barracks were installed around 1950 for veterans to be used as temporary family apartments, but they are still here."

Presently, there are 203

Foreign Students

Deserve Obligation

From Americans

The education of students from underdeveloped countries is not a gift from the United States, "it is our obligation and in our self-interest," Robert W. MacVicar, acting president at SIU said at a conference on the role of international students.

MacVicar, vice president for academic affairs, emphasized that it is not beyond bounds of reason that all forms of life on this planet could be obliterated with weapons now at man's command. "It's in our interest," he said, "to devote our 'expertise' in the universities to the fostering of international understanding."

The SIU vice president said we also serve our own interests in helping underdeveloped countries upgrade their educational programs. These programs help them make progress toward self-sufficiency, he said.

SIU has 778 international students from 81 countries, and the University operates educational programs in six countries, including Vietnam, Nepal, and Mali. University President Delyte W. Morris is currently touring these countries to inspect SIU's overseas missions.

temporary buildings on campus, of which 35 are barracks. The remainder are houses that SIU has purchased as needed.

They are removed when new permanent buildings are built. This past summer, 30 houses were removed and more will be removed in the future to make room for the new Administration Building. Seven barracks were removed for the new Life Science addition. Of these, four were demolished and three were relocated because they contained expensive laboratories.

Eighteen houses were torn down along Mill St. for the continuation of Loop Road Number One, which is essentially the Campus Drive semicircle. More temporary buildings will be taken down as Loop Road is completed.

Plans have been made for the removal of 27 more temporary structures with the construction of other permanent buildings such as the Communications Building addition which will make possible the removal of the journalism barracks.

Rino Bianchi, administrative assistant to the Vice President for Business Affairs, said, "Our goal is to remove all of the temporary buildings within the circumference of Loop Road within five to 10 years. But the temporary buildings in the outlying areas will be with us for a long time because SIU has a land acquisition program. The buildings are a necessity in order to handle the increased enrollment."

With increasing enrollment and expansion and lack of time and finances, the temporary buildings are truly a necessity. They are easy to obtain and far cheaper than the permanent buildings. Robert L. Marlow, Superintendent of Building Maintenance at the Physical Plant, said, "The cost for maintenance of the temporary buildings is 48 cents per square foot per year."

Although some of the temporary buildings that are removed are relocated, many are scrapped and a few are sold. SIU, like many other growing universities, is doing its best to beautify the campus and still meet increasing demands of enrollment for education.

Student Affairs Announces Duty Changes

Wilbur Moulton, dean of students at SIU, has announced changes in the Student Affairs Division that assigned new duties to two staff members, Loretta K. Ott and Irving W. Adams.

Moulton said Mrs. Ott was named assistant dean of students for commuter, married, and graduate student services this fall. Function of the office is to learn the needs of the students and work on ways to meet the needs. Assisting Mrs. Ott are Lee Chenoweth and Ed Beasley. Chenoweth, former head resident of Group Housing at the University, is working in the area of housing. Beasley, formerly with the undergraduate motor vehicle office, is working in the areas of motor vehicles and student life.

Adams, who has been assistant dean on Moulton's central staff, will serve as assistant dean for off-campus housing. As dean for single, undergraduate students in off-campus housing, Adams has responsibility for approved off-campus housing and for the welfare of the students who live in this classification of housing.

Touring Theater To Present Play

The SIU Touring Theater will complete the current season with performances of "In White America" at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the University Theater.

"In White America," together with the children's play, "The Royal Cricket of Japan," was presented in 20 communities during October and November.

Fund Drive Aided By ROTC Members

AFROTC Cadets and Angels helped solicit on the house-to-house drive for the Tri-C (Cambria, Cartersville, and Crainville) United Fund recently.

Cadets participating were Russ Berry, Jim Lukawski, Joe Stokes, Marcel Kuper, Bruce Parks, Tom Taylor and Bob Littlehale.

ROTC Angels taking part in the drive were Jan Reel, Gloria Green, Pat Hutson, Jan Pittman, Shiela Gibbs, Pam Huggins and Carol Malinew.

Chemist to Give Paper at Meeting

D. W. Solcum will present a study of the initial results of a new reaction on the B-phenethylamine system at a regional meeting of the American Chemical Society in Atlanta, Georgia on Dec. 1.

Phenethylamine derivatives encompass a wide range of compounds known for their hallucinogenic and adrenergic properties.

Co-authors of the paper are T. R. Engelmann and C. A. Jennings of the Department of Chemistry.

Applications Made Available For Model United Nations

Delegate applications are available for the 10th annual Model United Nations to be held Feb. 15-17, according to Hedayat Aminarsala, secretary general of the Model U.N.

Applications are also available for the steering committee members. Both forms may be picked up at the Information Distribution Center in the University Center.

The deadline for delegate applications is Dec. 15. Steering committee application forms must be turned in by Dec. 6.

"This is the first time that the Model U.N. will be nationwide," Aminarsala said. "Delegates from colleges and universities across the country will be invited to participate."

Aminarsala said all SIU students in good standing are eligible to participate.

"Students will have five choices for countries they would like to represent," he said, "and the steering committee will attempt to give them their first or second choices."

Ambassadors and junior diplomats from the United Nations have been invited to participate in SIU's Model U.N. as advisers.

Educator to Give Memorial Lecture

Dr. Harold Spears, nationally known educator, will deliver the annual Harlan Dennett Beem Memorial lecture at SIU Dec. 4 at 8 p.m.

Spears, former president of the American Association of School Administrators, recently retired as superintendent of schools in San Francisco. Dr. Spears, presently a visiting professor at Indiana University, will speak on "America's Search for the Common School." The program will be held in Ballroom A of University Center.

The memorial lectures are supported by a sustaining fund administered by the Southern Illinois University Foundation. The fund is made up of contributions in memory of Harlan D. Beem, faculty member in the SIU department of educational administration and supervision who died in 1964.

The fund was established to support a continuing series of lectures at SIU as a contribution to the advancement of educational administration.

Air Force Honors Two SIU Grads

Two SIU graduates have received awards for outstanding service in the United States Air Force.

First Lieutenant Gary E. Dimig received the Air Medal at Stewart Air Force Base in New York, N.Y. He was decorated for meritorious achievement as an F-4C Phantom II pilot during aerial flights in Southeast Asia. He was cited for his courage on successful and important missions under hazardous conditions.

Dimig graduated from SIU in 1964 with a bachelor of arts degree.

Second Lieutenant Roy J. McCorkle is an interceptor director for the U.S. Air Force defense organization that has been selected as best in the United States. He is a member of the 26th Air Division which has won the coveted General Frederic H. Smith trophy.

SIU Group Plans Extensive Probe at Learning Problem

An intimate exploration into a better environment for learning will be sought by participants of "Project Feel" which begins at 1 p.m. Saturday on the Carbondale campus.

The project is sponsored by the Center for the Study of Leadership Related to Learning, located at temporary headquarters at 108 E. Grand. Overseeing the operation is Don Benson, head of the Educational Affairs Commission of the Student Government.

Benson says that noted sociologists, economists and educational reform leaders will be invited to participate in the program during the year. He also noted that the meetings will be open to all students, faculty and administrators who are interested in developing a more adequate educational system.

Dick Gregory, an SIU graduate and comedian, will meet with the group Jan. 15. He will deal with the need for social change in the United States.

Also invited to speak have been Robert Theobald and Sol Alinsky. Theobald, a socio-economist, will speak on the subject "Needed: A Compassionate Revolution" while Alinsky will present his ideas on participatory democracy.

There are three phases to the program according to Benson. The first will deal with what is currently being done by educators while the second will define problems and sources of frustration in the current system. Finally, a dialogue will be conducted to determine how students and administrators can improve the environment for learning.

Hartman Takes Wait-and-See Stand

The varsity won the Tuesday night game handily, 75-46, but head coach Jack Hartman didn't want to make any comments on how SIU looked as a team.

"I can't say how I feel about the varsity because I'm really not sure," Hartman said. "We've just started the season, and in the first game it takes a while for the players to get untracked. There are so many variables in this game, especially with kids."

The Salukis will go into their first regular game of the season Friday night against Sam Houston State College and will go with the same lineup that they used against the freshmen with the possible exception of center.

Trade Shuffle Sends Aparicio To White Sox

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Luis Aparicio, the veteran shortstop coveted by several clubs, wound up with the Chicago White Sox again Wednesday in a six-player baseball deal that sent pitcher Bruce Howard and infielder Don Buford to Baltimore.

The Orioles, striving to strengthen their pitching staff, gave up the 33-year-old Aparicio, outfielder Russ Snyder and minor league first baseman—outfielder John Matias to get the right-handed Howard and handyman Buford plus right-handed relief pitcher Roger Nelson.

Baltimore had acquired John O'Donoghue, a left-handed pitcher, from Cleveland Tuesday night for knuckleball artist Eddie Fisher.

Cleveland pulled another deal Wednesday by sending Chuck Hinton to the California Angels for Jose Cardenal in a swap of right-handed hitting outfielders.

Both the Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees felt they were close to a deal for Aparicio until the final hours when the Orioles were able to get needed pitching from the White Sox for men whom Harry Dalton, Baltimore's director of player personnel, called expendable.

Hank Bauer, manager of the Orioles, said he expected Mark Belanger, a highly regarded prospect who spent much of 1967 on the Baltimore bench, to take over for the 33-year-old Aparicio.

Bruce Butchko, who started the game, was replaced by Juarez Rosborough with about 12 minutes left in the first half. Rosborough was impressive as he hit on three of five shots.

"Juarez is closing fast on the starting center job," Hartman said. "He's had good practices the last week and looked good against the freshmen."

Hartman also had praise for Howard Keene, the 6-6, 220-pound transfer from LSU.

"Keene has had real good practices of late," Hartman commented. "He's getting his timing, he's getting in shape, he's got the good hands and he's a good passer."

"His development may influence a lot of things later on in the season," Hartman concluded.

Game time against Sam Houston is 8 p.m. Friday. There will be no preliminary contest either on Friday or Saturday.

SIU Parachuters In Action
