According to the proposed state budget, the SIEG Operations Committee will be composed of the law enforcement officers on the Director of public affairs for the SIEG governing board said, "I'm not firm belief that MEG is not, or intends to be, MEG." Instead, the proposed intergovernmental agreement provides for a governing board and an operations board. While the SIEG model may not be practically, this will not be the case, he said. The SIEG board will have the opportunity to do this with the other services.

Bakalis criticizes Thompson on major issues

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. - Comptroller Michael J. Bakalis ripped into ineffectual Gov. James R. Thompson's publicized hiring freeze on state employees, and said the General Assembly should override vetoes of Medicaid funding of abortions and legalization of Laetrile. Bakalis, seeking the Democratic nomination for governor next year, said state employees would have begun in 1980 with cars that got less than 16 miles on a gallon of gasoline. Instead, House committee indicated they planned to stick to the admin-istration's spending proposals.

Class X crime package introduced in state Senate

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. - Gov. James R. Thompson's Class X crime package, with a compromise here and an amendment there, was introduced in the Illinois Senate by a law-and-order Republican.

The package of seven bills filed by Sen. John H. Roe, R-Rochelle, is a reincarnation of a dozen bills to toughen prison sentences and give prosecutors greater power to handle violent crimes.

The legislation was supported during the regular spring session.

The prosecutorial tools met strong opposition and were dropped in the spring session.

The state Supreme Court said it will continue to hear cases of parole or probation violations.

Even before Roe reintroduced the measures on Thompson's behalf, legislation was passed to decrease the 22,000 from the beginning of the debate that they hope will allow the state to handle the projected 22,000 from the beginning of the debate that they hope will allow the state to handle the projected $40,000 deficit the service costs.

The state deficit has been running at $1 million a day, said Adamczyk. A citizen's group has been formed to petition the state to declare a financial emergency.

Options for solving Health Service deficit explored

By Chris Meehan

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Health Service director, discussed ways in which the Health Service might be expanded, and the final session of the ad hoc committee, the proposed $77,000 deficit.

McVay said Tuesday that 70,000 will be saved in fiscal 1978-79 from the $100,000 in savings that will be saved in fiscal 1978-79.

McVay said saving $100,000 will be easier in fiscal 1978-79.

While the service's financial problems are severe, the Health Service staff and charging fees for specialty care such as X-rays, he said.

McVay has said the proposed $77,000 deficit will come from five areas: inpatient services, outpatient services, medical costs and decreasing state funding.

About $80,000 of the proposed deficit is expected to be incurred from fiscal 1978-79, the service responded.

The service is projected to be incurred between now and June 30, and is expected to be budgeted for less than it is necessary.

Dennis Adamczyk, chairman of the ad hoc committee and student, a potential candidate for the state Senate, said his goal is to eliminate the deficit.

"I don't think we have too many people holding Health Service positions."

Mike Sweeter, vice-chairman of the committee, said his goal is to "stupidity to come up with recommendations to raise fees 10 percent when we can't even live on the fee.

"It's ridiculous to recommend alterations that we can live with, but don't know how to fund it with no solution for future deficits."

serve as a catalyst for opposition to Thompson's package in that body.

"I hope you're with me against Class X," House Speaker William Redmond, D-Bensenville, was heard saying to Senate members during a break in House proceedings Monday.

In its new form, the governor's committee is expected to make additional proposals which Getty and the liberal Democrats have supported all along. Getty voted for the bill in all classes of sessions. Thompson wanted some such provisions incorporated into violent crimes under his Class X label.

The nine Class X crimes under consideration include: aggravated kidnapping, raping, deviate sexual assault, aggravated arson, armed robbery, hard narcotics transactions and conspire, to sell, produce or transport drugs.

McVay said a majority of the staff is permanent part-time. He said he doesn't know how the staff could be reduced if they were to demand to curb the deficit.

With plans to expand Gatsby's beyond a dividing wall into Crazy Horse Bar, the city announced plans to take over Liquor Control Commission after a Carbondale police report expressed concern about the expansion.

The report, introduced Monday night by Chief Ed Hogan, stated that police are concerned that the expansion would provide a gathering place for people to use marijuana and the possibility of a street closing which would extend south of the present College Street border, causing difficulties.

"We may experience problems in reopening the avenue traffic if this occurs," he said, adding that the large numbers of people frequenting the establishment in the past had been a problem for police. "There is nothing to indicate that anything has been done to alleviate this problem," he said.

Hogan also said that the expansion would be a problem, "For people who frequent Illinois Avenue to get a beer and then go to Gatsby's and Pizza King toward College Street."

Hogan's remarks to the commission, which is composed of the members of the Carbondale City Council, came as the council was considering comments of member Helen Westberg, who had originally opposed expansion. She added, if the expansion currently proposed will cause problems for the police department.

Hogan responded that he was concerned that the expansion would open up the side of the avenue south of College Street. The result, he said, would be the possibility of a street closing which would extend south of the present College Street border, causing difficulties.

"We may experience problems in reopening the avenue traffic if this occurs," he said, adding that the large numbers of people frequenting the establishment in the past had been a problem for police. "There is nothing to indicate that anything has been done to alleviate this problem," he said.

If this proposal is accepted, "It would be a problem," he said.

In other business, the commission approved a change in stockholders of the Blu-Flame Lounge, 525 E. Main St., for the city as an independent contractor or consultants.

Simon says he will not seek senate seat in '78

By Tom Cary
Staff Writer

While stating that Republican Sen. Charles Percy can be beaten, U.S. Rep. Paul Simon said Thursday that he would not be a candidate for the U.S. Senate seat in 1978.

In a statement issued from Washington, Simon, congressman for Illinois' 3rd congressional district, said that he will run for re-election to Congress in 1978 in order to continue to work for the economic development of the Southern Illinois area.

Simon said that economic conditions in the 3rd district are improving, and that he would like to follow through with programs he has sponsored for the district.

Simon also said that he did not want to take away from his family the year that would be necessary to run an effective senatorial campaign. Several state Democratic leaders, including State Comptroller and gubernatorial candidate Michael Rakalski and U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson had encouraged Simon to run against Percy, who will be seeking a third term in the Senate in 1978.

In his statement, Simon cited polls that he said indicate Percy can be beaten, and said that "the strength of the senator from Illinois was not a factor" in his decision not to run for the Senate.

Simon will be seeking a third term as the 3rd district's representative in 1978. He defeated Val Ogilvie in 1974, and was re-elected easily over Peter Primeau in 1976.

The announcement leaves only two announced candidates. Chicago attorney Alex Seth and financier Anthony Robert Martin-Triguona to seek the Democratic nomination for senator.

The city would be allowed to compromise any suit or claim against one of its employees and to designate an attorney to handle any case involving an employee.

The proposed ordinance further states, however, that the city can refuse to defend or indemnify employees under several circumstances:

-If an employee fails to use "due care" in reporting to the city any incident which might result in a lawsuit against him or the city

-If an employee fails to notify the city of any suit against him for which the city could indemnify him

-If an employee refuses to cooperate with the investigation by an attorney who is to defend him
Need guidelines for merit system

The Faculty Senate should be commended for forming a special committee to conduct a long overdue study of the merit raise system. The committee will seek answers to questions that have never been clearly defined by the rank-and-file membership of the University community. What happens to the money that is spent on travel? How are merit pay raises allocated? What are the criteria for deciding who gets a merit raise?

The committee, headed by George Wayne, chairman of the Senate's budget committee, will investigate how and why the merit system works and will attempt to formulate fair and equitable guidelines for allocating salary increases.

The faculty has been kept in the dark too long about how the merit system works. A uniform, equitable policy remains a dream that is explicitly stated and made known to everyone.

The committee will also attempt to answer several other important questions concerning the allocation of University funds: What part of the budget is allocated to administrators? How are merit raises and research dollars paid for? What percentage of available travel money is spent by administrators? How much money is spent on travel as compared to the amount spent on teaching and research?

George said there has been complaints that S.I.U.-C. is the only place in the area where all administrators have been missing travel allowances to go on junkets that have no educational value. Some administrators also have said that the University community has the right to know how the funds are being spent.

It is time to demand greater accountability from those who manipulate University funds. The Faculty Senate has taken the first step to accomplish that. However, George has predicted that few faculty members will participate in the open hearings to be held this spring. They were afraid that the faculty would be isolated if the building does not hold its full support behind George and thus abdicates its responsibility to play an active role in University operations.

College-goers out of luck if not black, gay or athletic

By Arthur Hope

"So you wish to enroll in Bettermorn Univerity?"

"That's right, Dr. Pettibone. Here's my high school transcript. As you can see, I had a straight A average, served as president of my senior class and was Most Likely To Build A Better Mousetrap."

"Excellent, Mr. Doe. I'll forward your application to the dean of Admissions to examine your qualifications. First, are you by any chance more than one-thirty-second black?"

"I'm not," answered Mr. Doe. "My father is white and my mother is blue-eyed."

"Looks aren't everything. Do you happen to belong to a recognized Indian tribe, have a Spanish surname or indulge in a craving for walrus blubber?"

"Haven't you already? I love lama chop fat, though."

"You're also not suspected of being a Nazi, are you, Mr. Doe?"

"I'm afraid so, Mr. Pettibone. Schneider, Shmeede. Some, too. I have an opening for two blondes, blue-eyed Eskimos."

"Good. I'm sorry sir. I guess I'm just a White Anglo-Saxon Protestant."

"Don't apologize, Mr. Doe. You can't help being what you are."

"Does that mean I can't get into Bettermorn University, sir?"

"Golly, Dr. Pettibone. I only weigh 80 pounds."

"Too bad, Mr. Doe. Our institution is a sound mind in a sound body for a sound throating of the other members of the Big Twelve. A sound box office likes at the heart of every fiscally sound academic institution, you know."

"What do you mean, Mr. Pettibone?"

"I've raised my to 220-pound, lesbian Iroquois shotputter!"

"I've raised to, Mr. Doe. But never give up hope."

"Two, sir."

"You might have come in as one-third of our hop, skip and jump team. I don't suppose you're a 60-year-old veteran from a distant rural area?"

"Check with the dean of Admissions."

"No, Mr. Pettibone. I fear there's no hope for my overtractive Mexican electronics engineer with a poor, unathletic male WASP. Farewell, forever."

"Not so, Mr. Doe. We still have a quota for one student and you're the man to fill it."

"Me, sir?"

Pornography fosters ‘rape mentality’

Up until two or three weeks ago, I would have read the editorial on pornography in Saturday's paper with a "Yeah, a scratch and sniff centerfold is pretty strong stuff even if it is by definition "morose" attitude".

At this point in time, I’m re-examining that attitude. The credit for the change in perspective is due entirely to recent events in Solan Brownmiller's "Against Our Will: Men, Women and Rape.

These pages dealt with the idea of pornography as anti-female propaganda and as an aid to fostering the "rape mentality" by pressuring females as "anonymous, panting playthings, adult toys, dehumanized objects to be used, abused, broken and discarded." A fair point, I thought, until I read the cover of 'Hustler'—magazine where a woman hung up like a screen-door on a cross shaft of pole, head hung limply, her breasts partially "naked" and her short shorts stuffed with hay and unpe. She is not going to offer any resistance because she is not only passive, she is inanimate—a scarecrow.

This is being defended by the concept of the First Amendment's freedom of expression. Brownmiller points out that people stopped finding things like Little Black Sambo and the Frisko Bandito funny and related these images to "a history of ridicule and oppression.

Return bill to original aim: Jobs for all willing to work

I was impressed by James Patterson’s commentary in Saturday’s paper on the Humphrey-Hawkins bill. However, for those individuals interested in the prospects for passage of a revised bill, I would like to offer a few thoughts.

First, all people, are under the false impression that the Humphrey-Hawkins "Full Opportunity and Full Employment Act" will guarantee a job. In fact, the original Humphrey-Hawkins bill introduced in late 1975 and later revised (with Senator Dole's candidate except George Wallace and Jimmy Carter) would indeed, have introduced the concept of employment as a federally enforceable right. However, the full employment bill has been revised trend "watered down" no less than 12 times, leaving the present Humphrey-Hawkins bill a mere shadow of its former self. It is now due for one more major revision.

The president has suggested that he could possibly support the bill if less emphasis were placed on government supplied jobs and if full employment were more realistically defined. The new concept created by Charles Schulzette and Carter's Council of Economic Advisers redefines full employment as 5 per cent unemployment. This means that Jimmy Carter is successful, by 1981, a "full employment" figure which will change to 4 per cent. So, what about those of us who would like to see a genuine full employment policy? Rather than abandon the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, it should be strengthened and revised, a major battle! America violates Helsinki accords on human rights

A meeting is now underway in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, on compliance with the provisions of the 1975 Helsinki accord. The U.S. apparently is not seeking a major confrontation with other nations on the human rights issue.

This is probably a wise decision on the part of the U.S. President Ford, as his secretary George Shultz wrote: "Whose house is of glass, must not throw stones at another."

One of the less representative to the meeting had been yet quite cautious because the U.S. itself appears to be in clear violation of the accord. The Helsinki accord states on page 81 that "the participating states will act in accord with the purpose of the Charter of the United Nations and with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights."

A major issue is the violation of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, adopted on December 10, 1948. Here is an example of an article that is violating: Article 25 says: "1. Everyone has the right to work, to free choice of employment, to just and favorable conditions of work and in protection against unemployment. 2. Everyone, without any discrimination, has the right to equal pay for equal work. 3. Everyone who works has the right to just and favorable remuneration ensuring for himself and his family an existence free from want. 4. The right of an unemployed person to an unemployment compensation is guaranteed by the State."

In the United States, millions of Americans who work for a living, but do not have a decent standard of living. Parade magazine reported in September that "A full-time year-round worker earning the minimum wage last year earned approximately $4,780, a figure substantially below the minimum for a three-person farm family of four."

The Senate recently voted to increase the minimum wage but a UPI story recently quoted Sen. Harrison WiIliams of New Jersey as saying: "Even with the modest increase approved by the Senate today, minimum wage families will still live below the government's poverty level."

Also, the U.S. does not guarantee against unemployment. "What work up to a job. In addition, unemployment compensation is quite modest and is only distributed a limited time. Unemployment benefits run out, the worker in many cases has only the choices of welfare which provides an extremely low standard of living! or, if he or she is lucky, taking a job at the minimum wage.

Keep in mind that these rights mentioned above have never been defined by the U.S. twice—in 1948 and again when the Helsinki accords were signed in 1975. The U.S. is also in apparent violation of other provisions of the Declaration of Human Rights. However, through examples mentioned to point out that the U.S. should be cautious at the compliance meeting in Belgrade.

This is in reference to three separate articles in Wednesday’s Daily Egyptian.

In reference to the editorial or MEG written by Ms. Bailey on page 16 of today’s issue. It was obvious to me that the preprocessed tone of the editorial failed to relate to the seriousness of the subject. I was under the impression a free press related facts and opinions from both sides of an issue for the reader's evaluation, not to choose one side or to which to commit a tirade against an obviously uneducated reader. I was not given enough about MEG to form an intelligent opinion. Ask of the caliber of this article exhibited, do not the Daily Egyptian will be instrumental in providing facts for such an opinion.

The second article I wish to write is of Ms. Bailey's article on "Women Warriors." She is correct in believing women will play an equal role, but she has not given enough information. She should not have referred to an Air Force combat fitness evaluation test as an indicator. Her lack of knowledge about the military was obvious. The Air Force combat forces consists of I had full, forward combat function in any other branch of the service is known as "Get Over"—duty—duty which most real combat soldiers would give their left index finger to be because of its extremely lax physical requirements. This time under psychological and combat conditions. Also, MS. Bailey's evaluations were bases mostly on a lot of well-meaning, well-thought-through and an idle little bit of research.

My third complaint is on a minor detail. It is not true that the handbook on sexual harassment between the Carbondale Police Department and the SUI Security Police. There is "no such animal" as: Sexual harassment of special forces, 9mm parabellum automatic (ballistically identical 10mm weapons) and a .45 (more powerful than a .357 magnum). Also, the officers who the match with whatever type handgun the woman is, and in fact, some of the SUI Officers used 4 automatics.

Only change in society will end resentment to women in military

Concerning Ms. Bailey's Wednesday editorial, I have a a few thoughts on this issue.

There is no doubt that women do make up a small percent of the military population. However, there is also a lack of knowledge about the military. Congress has the power to lift the restrictions it has created.

In the beginning of the editorial it stated that tests are being conducted on the feasibility of co-ed units in the military. This is an obvious attempt at getting more information so that a decision can be made if it should remove those restrictive laws. However, it should be noted that there are already some completely functioning co-ed units.

At Nishi, in Seoul, Japan, there exists an example of this type of unit. This base is completely co-ed in all its military sections. (I should know—I just spent the last 3 years there as a Navy dependent.)

True, at the beginning there was some resentment from both sides, and these women proved themselves to be equal to their male counterparts. The resentment passed, and today it is not to say it's gone completely and forever.

The armed forces have been great strides forward, and the law allows. There are women Seabees, jet fighter mechanics, firefighters, communications men, communications mess clerks, flight nurses, and police. There are even projects presently being evaluated that would open up the parachute range, jet pilot, and tactical drill school to women. These programs are about as far as the armed forces can go under current law. The role of the military also means that some people scoff at, that of wife jealousy. I have asked two security guards at the military, there definitely was a minority who were very strongly against co-ed units in isolated places. (It's not like I noticed thos things in villages, or objects there were.

Ms. Bailey said, it's time for Congress to change the restrictive laws.

This doesn't mean a new law would solve all the problems. It is a problem in American society as a whole who solve this. But it would be a step in the right direction.

Residents tell city of funding inequities

By Sam Lowery

More than 100 residents of the predominantly black northeast section of Akron met last week for a special meeting to discuss the city's 1974-75 budget, which was held by a 23-member community committee, headed by a 23-member community committee, headed by Thomas K. Easton to determine how homes of the city's residents want to spend the $15 million expected from a community development block grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Several of the persons who addressed the committee were sharply critical of what they said was the city's tendency to funnel a disproportionate share of the black grant money received in the past into street construction and other capital improvements.

Use of the speakers, John Holmes of the Akron Community Service Board, drew applause when he said, "We've got people on the City Council who believe in办事 but bricks and mortar. Social services in this community need attention too."

Don Monty, assistant director of community development for the city, told the group that because of a tax increase passed in 1973, the board would get a million dollars less in block grant money than it received last year.

Last year, the city used the $2.5 million it received in the grant from HUD to improve community projects and programs. Approximately 40 percent of the money was spent on capital improvements such as street construction, and 35 percent was used for the operation of the programs.

These programs included the Eureka Hays Center which was awarded funds to provide medical, dental and health care for low-income individuals and $30,000 to operate child care facilities for low-income families where parents were employed outside the home. Straightwood, a board member of Eureka Hays Center, asked the commissioners to cut the center's budget. "The youth, health, child care and arts and crafts programs are very important to us," she said. "Without the youth programs, I just don't know what the youth in our neighborhood would do."

Steve Lord, pastor of St. Germaine Catholic Church, told the group that a word for what programs will survive. He asked the board, "to remember that any reduction in the center's health care outpatient clinic budget will result in direct human suffering. I mean that literally, and not in the abstract sense," he said, adding that there are many elderly and poor individuals in the city who depend solely on the Eureka Hays Center for their health care.

Delores Batiste, a member of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, said that the residents there had an average of less than $25 a month to spend. "These persons depend heavily on the programs we offer," she said, "and they are more interested in the projects of the board than people-

Le Roy Anderson, a member of the committee, told the audience that the programs must be to do the HUD money as fairly as possible among all of the programs currently in progress.
Speech Club members receive two trophies at ISU tourney
By Carol Meardland
Student Writer
ISU speech team members competed against orators from other midwest schools last weekend at a tournament in Normal. Ill. The ISU team, comprised of eight speakers took or places in a field of eighteen schools.

Several of the schools that attended the annual event, held at Illinois State University (ISU), were Ball State, Eastern Michigan, Iowa, Wisconsin, Western Michigan, and Bradley.

Two trophies were awarded to ISU speakers. Mark Leopold, a junior from Chicago and所在大学的吉祥物, won first place in the "fold tales" category, and Carol Meardland, a senior in public relations, won fifth in the impromptu speaking.

Randy Taylor, coach of the speech team, said that this was the first time in years that ISU has had an active forensics program. In the past, according to Taylor, most of the money granted for speech competition had gone to debate.

"I'm encouraged by what happened at ISU," said Taylor. "We have a lot of talented performers on the team, and I'm glad we're finally getting the chance to show what we can do.

In addition to the folk tales and impromptu events, ISU students participated in extemporaneous speaking, salesmanship, prose and poetry interpretation, original literature, and duet interpretation.

According to Taylor, the team is planning to attend at least two more tournaments this semester, as well as sponsoring an ISU tournament in the spring. The next event scheduled is the Southeastern Tournament, Oct. 30 and 31, in Harrisburg, III.

On Nov. 11, and 12, the team will travel to Muncie, Indiana, for the Ball State University Tournament, one of the largest in the country.

Ernie Kovacs

Series features Kovacs

By Dave Erickson

Staff Writer

In the early '90, a former kitesh- show emcee from Philadelphia, seeing that the "Golden Age" of television was going to lay a golden egg if it kept doing the same old thing, pointed to a new direction in TV comedy by using the medium itself as part of the gag. Ernie Kovacs' visual innovations turned out to be as uniquely inventive as few dared to follow in his footsteps. At least not right away.

"The Best of Ernie Kovacs," shown locally on Channel 8 at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday and repeated at 9 p.m. on Saturdays, provides a chance for local viewers to see just what it was about Kovacs' show that makes them such a unique experience.

"In the beginning," recalled Kovacs in late 1954, "The network, the sponsor, all my friends, all of them said, 'We dug you, Ernie, but nobody else will.' Now I get cab drivers who say, 'I dug you, Ernie, but you might be the man I got out this cab. Everybody thinks the rest of the public is moronic. That's a crack of anti-ventriloquist.'"

A few months later, Kovacs' compact station wagon skidded on wet pavement as he was driving home from a party and slammed into a utility pole killing the 12-year-old more quickly than actually.

Kovacs' legacy is in the form of themes that are often ignored, and a film was gathered up by his widow, Sarah, and cowritten with Ed Adams, and put into storage in a Los Angeles garage. Kovacs' material, which much of the material had been used for a 1968 TV special and 1973 "- u- named on Kovacs, much of it remained untouched until John Lollis, a vice president and creative director at the Video Tape Network, helped Adams sift through and assess it last year.

The rare material Adams and Lollis came up with was edited for the Public Broadcasting Service by producer David Erdman of WTTW, Chicago public television station. Five of the 10 shows in "The Best of Ernie Kovacs' series were patterned after the last series Kovacs produced. A running visual gag is threaded through a series of slightly longer vignettes. A show in the series is an un- touched showing of the last program he put together before his death. The other four half-hour shows each feature a different element of Kovacs varied bag of video tricks. In addition to his visual visual humor, which was influenced everybody from Rowan and Martin to Monty Python, Kovacs appears in front of the camera as Wolfgang Von Osterreich, Matson Hepplewhite, and Percy Duvontain.

"He's a beautiful soul who hasn't quite made it over the line into this rude, silly, "world, Kovacs once said of Duvontain, a character he literally invented on-camera when a technician tossed him a pair of outrageous, and during a fall his early-day Philadelphia show "Thank's for letting me into your living room," Kovacs once asked a man, who modestly avoided dodge by adding, "It doesn't make a difference if you couldn't have cleaned it up a little."
Discoveries of particles topic of physicists’ talks

By C. G. McDougal

BATAVIA, Ill.:--High energy physicists are discovering more and more needles in the haystack of matter, but those elusive needles disappear faster than a cat can whisk its eye.

Some of these recently found needles key to understanding what the universe is made of were described at an international conference of 200 physicists at Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory last week.

Prof. Martin Perl of the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center, Palo Alto, Calif., reported on the recent discovery of a new lepton, the first in four decades.

The lepton is a subatomic particle. Prior to Perl's discovery 20 years ago, there were thought to be four of them: the electron, the muon and their neutrinos.

Perl's new lepton is called the Tau, a Greek letter, and it has a lifetime only one millionth of the lifetime of a muon, which lives only one millionth of a second.

Perl told a news conference last Friday that he thinks there may be an unlimited number of leptons and that discoveries of them will continue.

The experiments which produce these as well as other subatomic particles have been possible in recent years with development of increasingly powerful nuclear accelerators, such as the one at Fermilab, the world's most powerful with an energy capacity of 200 billion electron volts.

Perl, Robert, Martin of the University of Wisconsin, Madison, had been waiting for this boom to settle down. It just gets more and more hot.

Reports of significant new discoveries by high-energy physicists have multiplied, especially since the simultaneous discovery in 1973 at Brookhaven National Laboratory on Long Island and at Stanford of the Pd-particle.

Another significant event was reported in December by Prof. Leon Lederman of Columbia University and a team of scientists, including other Americans and physicists from six European countries, working at Fermilab.

This was the discovery of the Upsilon particle, also named for a Greek letter, which is 10 times heavier than the proton, making it by far the heaviest sub-nuclear particle discovered.

It was seen as proof of existence of a fifth so-called quark. Previously, the existence of four quarks had been demonstrated.

Thompson’s veto of Laetrile bill faces override action in House

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Motions to override Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson’s vetoes of bills that would have legalised Laetrile and banned the use of Medicaid funds to finance-abortion clinics in the Illinois House.

More than a score of new bills related to abortion, medical malpractice, insurance, welfare fraud and prison reform were introduced Monday in the House and Senate as the 8th General Assembly convened its fall session.

A resolution filed by Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glenview, would allow Illinoisans to vote on the same measures that Thompson vetoed last week in the Senate.

Also introduced were bills that would Change from electrocution to lethal injection the method by which a person convicted of murder in Illinois is executed. The bill’s sponsor, Rep. John J. Konvalinka, D-Deer Park, said it was a more humane method of execution than the electric chair.

Prohibit the use of group insurance used to staff employees to pay the expenses of abortions, except when necessary to save the life of the mother. The measure was sponsored by Rep. Thomas F. McCaffrey, D-Kenosha, D-Brookfield.

Prevent the Regional Transportation Authority from imposing a 3 percent tax on motorists outside the City of Chicago after June 30 of next year. The bill, sponsored by Rep. Richard F. Kelly Jr., D-Hazel Crest, would require the RTA to lower the tax to 1 percent in areas it serves outside of Chicago.

Give the director of the Department of Public Aid specific authority to suspend or terminate Medicaid payments to doctors, clinic laboratories and other medical providers if they violate department rules.

The measure sponsored by Rep. Lee A. Daniels, R-Elmhurst, had been urged by the governor and others because of an Illinois Supreme Court ruling that power to suspend or terminate is not contained in existing law.

—Appropriated $5 million to pay construction costs of two 70-bed medium-security prisons. Thompson announced last week the new prisons will be in Montgomery County near Hillsboro and in Marion County near Centralia.

—Authorized and appropriated the $7,000-word election consolidation measure signed into law over the summer by Thompson. The clean-up bill, introduced by Rep. Harry Yourell, D-Urbana, would allow the holding of special congressional elections outside of the newly established dates.

It also would allow local boards to petition a Circuit Court for permission to hold “emergency referenda” on special dates when a public question must be decided to keep schools or other facilities operating.

And it would prevent local public officials from being turned out of office sooner than their terms expire by delaying the call of the convention for re-election of their present terms.

Seven local high schools in car painting contest

By Vicki Lebowski

Students at seven local high schools will have the opportunity to show off their skills in the car painting contest.

The contests, which will take place at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, will include three categories: high school art, high school business and high school community. Each category will be judged by a panel of judges.

The contest is sponsored by the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, the Illinois Arts Council and the Illinois Science Council.

Contestants must register in advance and submit a proposal outlining their ideas for the contest. The proposals will be judged on creativity, originality and feasibility.

Winners will be announced at the end of the contest and will receive prizes.

Deadline for entries is May 1. For more information, contact Vicki Lebowski at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, 217-333-1616.

Vampire strikes in Seattle suburb

FEDERAL WAY, Wash. (AP)—A family in this Seattle suburb says it's weary of being harasse by a vampire near by.

The family, which police say asked not to be identified, has had intermittent visits from the Dracula-type person over the past two years. Tuesday night was the 10th or 11th time, police said.

"He hasn't done any harm. They're just a little tired of it," said police spokesman John Cratty. Although he wears heavy makeup on his face, complete with a vampire nose, the family describes the man as young, tall and slender. He said Ms. Cratty, who prefers that designation.

Man's rights urged in U.N. Day talk

If solutions are to be found to the complex array of problems facing the world today, the atmosphere of mankind will have to take priority over materialism, Dionne Warwick, a 26-year veteran of international relations, told audience members.

Charles Bailey, director of the U.N. Committee for UNICEF, summed up a long list of things the arms race to over population, famines, and the world's survival into a speech given as part of the U.N. Day activities held at the Student Center Sunday.

The speech was sponsored by the Southern Illinois National Association and the Student Government Activities Council.

The helps and conventional arts race, which drains money, technology and skilled personnel, that could otherwise be used to meet human needs, is continuing at a growing pace, Bailey said. Nearly $25 billion is being spent on arms world-wide each year, he said.

"The escalating arms race delays needed development and weakens the economies of most countries," he explained.

The deterioration of the earth's environment also is wasting the world's resources, Bailey said. Most of the earth's known resources will be exhausted within the next 30 years if the current trends of use continue, he said. The question is not whether there is an environmental crisis, he explained, but whether whose held solutions are adequate answers.

"The conventional wisdom assumes that we will be saved before disaster strikes, while a vocal minority, including many scientists and ecology-minded citizens, remain skeptical," he said.

The problem of hunger is growing, too. Bailey added a United Nations report indicates, he said, that by the most conservative estimates, more than 600 million people are starving. "They don't get enough calories to make a normal life possible and their number is increasing," he added.

The expanding population is also trapping a growing number of people in misery, Bailey said. Every year the earth has an additional population of 70 million people, he explained, adding that the world's population will be about 7 billion by the year 2000.

The affluent countries push birth control on developing countries but fail to see the connection between improvement in overall conditions and a decline in birthrates, he said.

The problem of population growth and other problems facing the world have "no easy solutions" Bailey said.

They all require that individual nations find the political will to implement solutions based on the interests of all mankind and not on their own self interests, he said.

Third-graders eager to start pumpkin business with $100

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — Bank manager at the Adams Bank said the third graders around his conference table told him on Monday that they could almost -- but not quite -- approach their $100 goal.

But they have to repair it by Nov. 1 for the pumpkin business.

With Adams' go-ahead, Lens Roberts, 8, offered at the Bellevue branch in the Adams Bank, processed the application.

Bicycle reported stolen near Lentz

A red, 10-speed bicycle belonging to Tracey McClure, a sophomore in general studies, was reported stolen from her apartment at 433 S. Thompson Point. University police said.

Police said the bicycle was stolen Monday, at a value of $100.

Lobee Barrett, a freshman in clothing and textiles, has told university police the front tire of her bicycle was stolen while the bicycle was in a rack near Baldwin Hall, Thompson Point.

Police said the theft occurred either Saturday or Sunday.

Police report two burglaries

Carbondale police are investigating a report from Kenneth Parrish and Prairie Farms Dairy, that the dairy parking lot at 206 E. Walnut St. was entered and merchandise was removed from a refrigerator.

Police said entry was gained by cutting the chain. Parrish was unable to determine the extent of loss prior to an inventory, police said.

Carbondale police are investigating a trailer burglary at 1,000 E. Park which involved the loss of a turntable.

Andrew R. Lucht reported that his trailer was burglarized Sunday night through an unlocked backdoor.

Greek Week begins Thursday; Ugly Man contest first event

Greek Week, a tradition at Southern Illinois University, is scheduled to begin Thursday, October 27.

Greek Week gives fraternity and sorority members a chance to show off skills and develop a sense of unity through a series of contests and social events. An opportunity is provided for SIU students not affiliated with fraternities and sororities to participate in a special athletic competition.

Thursday is "Greek Day" at Sigma Kappa. Sigma Kappa is holding an "Ugly Man Contest" at 8 p.m. in Small Group Housing. The contest is Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority's contribution to Greek Week activities. The Inter Fraternity Council's "Pledge Night" is scheduled for Zorba's at 2 p.m. An alumni reception is planned for Friday. The reception will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. at Zorba's. Greek Row (the name given to the group of fraternities and sororities at Small Group Housing) is the site of the Inter-Greek Council party at 4 p.m. The affair is presented by Phi Sigma Sigma, Sigma Psi Upsilon, and Tri Delta fraternities. Inter-Greek Council and Bulldozer will sponsor a "Superstars" competition. Six member teams may register for the event. All active, full-time students, who have not competed in varsity sports, may participate in the "Superstars" competition. The event will be held at 3 p.m. at the football practice field near the arena.

Events will include volleyball, frisbee throw and tug-of-war contest. Registration will be on the third floor of the Student Center and ends Thursday at 5 p.m. Tau Kappa Epsilon TKE fraternity will hold the "BRETH" Olympics" beginning at noon at McAndrew Stadium.

Housing Board to meet at City Hall

The Fair Housing Board will meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. in conference room A of City Hall, 601 E. College St., to discuss procedures for resolving landlord-tenant disputes.

The board, which is comprised of citizens, will consider extending the 30-day deadline for filing complaints, defining procedures for notifying the party on which the complaint is lodged against and a redefinition of some terms.

Gymnasts' health to play vital role in teams' title hopes

(See related story on Page 24)

"It's a dedicated gymnastics and I have hopes for him to be our first gymnast of national scope—maybe not this year but someday," said Meade.

Scott McBroom is another top all-around man who is returning from last season. According to Meade, McBroom shows marked improvement on the parallel bars, floor exercise and the rings.

Jim Tappany should score points on the parallel bars. Meade said Tappany is controlling his body much better and should be one of the top parallel bars men this year and for years to come.

Warren Bradley, one of Meade's six seniors, will be working on the floor exercise, high bar and vaulting, and could work as many as eight routines this season. Bradley will battle freshmen Chuck Trottier, Chris Brady, and sophomore college transfer Ed Cameron for the two specialist spots in floor exercise.

Bob Coleman is another freshman whom Meade will be counting on this season. Coleman has shown tremendous improvement on the rings and is expected to contribute in that event.

Pressman Darrel Wastuff and his twin brother, James, are also expected to work in the balance beam.

"We have tried to improve our overall team team, which was our weakest event last season," Meade said. "I have a high level of kids and we're looking forward to a much better year, and we'll do everything possible to survive the schedule we've got."

The team's schedule includes meets against Oklahoma, Indiana State, Illinois State, Xavier, and Ohio State. Five of these will be against the top ten teams in the nation last season.

All good teams need a good coach at every level of the sport. Meade's desire to coach Coleman and others has increased due to his quadruple somersault and outstanding intercollegiate and international gymnastics.

"To me, this is one of the highest awards that can be given out because the selection was made by the top coaches in the nation," said Meade. "It gives me an extra warm feeling this way and it's the feeling of a job well done that I've done in coaching and in being coach for the Salukis."

The Salukis open their season Nov. 2 when they compete in the Indianapolis Invitational.

"I'm interesting to be held Nov. 2"

The Intramural Department will be holding a wrestling meet for men and women at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 2 in the Recreation Building. Official weigh-in will begin at 6:00 p.m.

Women rise early for swim drills

By Red Vanderstrick
Women's Swimmers

Most students can be found in a bar or on the couch on weekdays. Members of the women's swimming team are at a 6 a.m. workout.

Since practice started Oct. 3, the swimmers have risen with the roosters three days per week to practice for 11 hours in addition to a two-hour class. The assistant coach, Ed F.oud, is in charge of the program.

The practice routine begins with one hour of weight training and one hour of swimming.

First-year Coach Inge Renner says she has been satisfied with the reaction of her swimmers to the rigorous schedule. "They accept it," she admits, although the 8 a.m. workouts are the least preferred by her swimmers.

"I try to have as much freedom to accomplish different objectives," Renner says, "because it is impossible to do certain things in the early morning hours. It is difficult to have high-quality performances in the morning. We mainly swim long distances in the afternoon work outs."

"I've been really pleased because everyone is working hard. I have no complaints at all about how practice has gone so far."

Rugby Club wins 6th straight

The SIU Rugby Club made it six straight wins with a 36-4 victory over Dubois County High School in the game. The win improved the club's record to 6-0.

The players are scheduled to play at 11:30 a.m. Saturday at the pitch near Abe Martin, Field against Eastern Illinois. Last year, SIU kicked Eastern into things in their dome."

The weekend win was led by Jim Novak and Jerry Patanov, who scored twice on free kicks. "We were happy," said coach Debbie Hunter. "In other cases, we must rely on defensive positioning and to keep the team crucial points.

Toughest schedule in history facing swimmers, Steele says

By George Csolak
Northeastern Staff Writer

A tough schedule awaits the Saluki men's gymnastics team this fall as two of the nation's top five schools will come to the Recreation Building pool for dual meet swimming.

Second-ranked Alabama will go against the Salukis on Nov. 13 and Notre Dame, who is fourth in the nation, ranked fourth in the nation, will be here Dec. 20.

The Salukis will sandwich the two meets with the Waco Relays at Bella Mo., dual meet at Wisconsin, and the Illinois State Relays at Normal, the toughest schedule that we've had in Saluki history as far as "close competition is concerned," Coach Bob Steele said. "Many of the teams are "shock" and swimmers are far better than in the past."

Saluki will also swim a dual meet at Northwestern Dec. 10. That will be the last meet before semester break. A road trip meet will kick off the season Nov. 11 at 3 p.m. at the Recreation Building pool to upset the local swimmers against the women.

"This season is going to be awful special," Steele said. "But that's what our people need is good competition in order to improve." Last year, the swimmers were 7-3 in dual meets and finished 18th in the NCAA meet.

"Alabama is going to be tough," Steele said. "The world record-holder, one American record-holder and five others who have been national champions, one time or another." Both Indiana and Wisconsin beat the Salukis last year in dual meets.

"Indiana will be tough again," Steele said. "But we beat Wisconsin last year, and they beat us last year. This year, it will be a really close meet."

Steele has been preparing the team for the season by putting them on a heavy weightlifting program. He said it's about time the swimmers cut down the degree of the program and concentrate more on swimming skills.

"The guys are swimming about 5,000 yards or about two hours in the mornings," Steele said. "They swim about four miles in the afternoon. The eight or nine guys who play on the water polo club have been swimming since school started. They usually play after practice. Those who don't play have been swimming on their own.

In the spring, the team will host the Saluki Invitational for Feb. 10-12, and the National Invitational on March 3-5. Both tourneys will have 16 teams swimming and will be held at the Recreation Building pool.

The team last seven swimmers to graduation. Gone are Mike Salerno, Dave Swenson, Dave Boyd, Rick Fox, Tony Vickham, Dennis Roberts and Steve Manifold.

Bryan Gadeken, a sophomore this year, and his all-senior lineup will hopefully be filled by January, according to Steele. Steele has 14 returners and five newcomers to round out the roster. The swimmers are fighting for top spots in each event at the present time.

Good health a key to gymnasts' season, says Meade

By Steve Conran
Staff Writer

If the men's gymnastics team is to improve on last year's eighth-place finish in the NCAA Tournament, it will have to do so with a lot of faces new to last season's team.

The team, which lost five members from last year's squad with four players who sat out part or all of last season, will be added by freshmen to its squad.

"A lot of the rest of the team will depend on injuries and our cripples," said Coach Bill Meade. "If they continue to improve, we will do very well and with some of the teams on the team it shows great promise." Dan Muenz, a sophomore all-around man who is coming off of two knee operations, is expected to score very high early in the season and even higher as he gets into the season.

"He's recovering well from surgery," Meade said. "Look for improvement during the year as he gets stronger." Muenz competed in only a couple of meets last season but got his chance at eligibility back when he petitioned to the conference committee in the spring.

Rick Adams is coming off knee and ankle operations he had last season after the national competition last season. Adams is an all-around man who could hit 13.1 as high as 24 points, according to Meade, and a score of 34 would mean an average of nine points out of 10 for each of the six events.

"Adams could be our leading all-around man," Meade said. "He seems to be recovering well."

Jeff Barlow, who competes on the parallel bars and in vaulting, is trying to recover from a broken collarbone that he sustained over the summer.

"We are looking for some big scores from him in vaulting and to be a solid performer in parallel bars," Meade said. "He gives us all the data for coming back and being our best vaulter."

Phil Savage also didn't compete last year as he was red-started because of a back injury. Savage is an all-around man but is expected to be especially strong in the pommel horse and still rings events.

Dempsey quote taken out of context by NIU, media

The misuse of the "power of the press" was never better exemplified than in last week's NIU-SIU football game.

NIU's team—admitted by a quote by Saluki Coach Rey Dempsey and a memory of the loss at SIU last year—defeated SIU, 29-6.

The Huskies' players and Coach Pat Culpepper all admitted that a preseason quote by Dempsey helped inspire them. The quote was: "When you consider the rest of our schedule, like Illinois State, Iowa, in the South, and Northern Illinois, you just put those down as W's (wins) for us. Just assume we're going to win those games."

Dempsey essentially said that, but the Huskies didn't take that completely out of context and a vital "you" was missing.

Dempsey, who offered the quote at Saluki Media Day in August, was just speaking about how the 1977 Saluki team felt about their 1977-88 College planner—newspaper people, TV newsmen and radio newsmen.

He mentioned that SIU had lost 13 starters and had an extremely tough schedule, which included seven of 11 games on the road.

He claimed it would be tough to win in the road and added that teams like Northwestern Louisiana, Temple, East Carolina, New Mexico State, West Texas and Arkansas State would be tough to upset.

He went on to say, "Then when you (the media) consider the rest of our schedule like Illinois State, Drake, Indiana State and Northern Illinois, you just put those down as W's (wins) for us. You (the media) just assume we're going to win those games. We can beat these teams, but it won't be easy and it won't be the last game." Dempsey said SIU would probably have a tough season because the team was inexperienced on both the offensive and defensive lines. He added that SIU's football program wasn't established like other schools like East Carolina or Tulsa and that the 1978 record (4-7) might have been considered an embarrassment.

An Associated Press story from Carbondale first carried the quote—in the correct context and without the "you"—referring to the media.

The Associated Press story was sent to Culpepper from a friend in Saluki and was subsequently used (and abused) by NIU's sports information staff, the NIU coaches and writers from the Chicago Tribune (Mike Kiley); Chicago Daily News (Brian Hewitt); and the Rockford Morning Star (Reed Schretz).

"Only one writer—Bob LeGere of the Northern Star—bothered to confirm or deny the quote. When contacted, Dempsey said the important "you" referring to the media was left out. But no one else bothered to check the quote for accuracy—not the Chicago Tribune writer, not the Chicago Daily News writer, not the Rockford Morning Star writer and certainly not NIU's sports information group.

Although the quote (as denied in the Northern Star, the damage was done. The Tribune, Daily News and Morning Star writers all used the angle that SIU's coach "predicted" a win before the season and then NIU defeated the Salukis.

Kiley wrote that Dempsey said SIU lost to a better team, "which embarrassed with a preseason quote in which Dempsey claimed the Salukis would be one of the automatic wins on this year's schedule."

Care should be taken when controversial quotes are used—especially when they are used second-hand as in this case.

The Associated Press writer who wrote the preseason story obviously erred, but so did all the other media except the Northern Star writer, by not confirming the quote.

The quote by Dempsey didn't last SIU, but it has inspired NIU through a false interpretation of a quote.
