Councilwoman finds railroad snirts offensive

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

Councilwoman Susan Mitchell walked out of the final session of the Fourth National Urban Railroad Relocation Conference Thursday in protest over the wording on T-shirts that she found "insulting."

Mitchell left the conference, held at the Holiday Inn, after Bill Boyd, director of public works for Carbondale, presented T-shirts bearing the words "Beaver City, U.S.A., Oct. 24-25" to three Federal Highway Administration officials. (Beaver is a derogatory term for a woman.)

Boyd gave the three T-shirts to Ed Johnson, highway engineer for the FHWA; Jay Miller, division administrator for the FHWA; and James Carney, chief of the railroad and utilities branch of the FHWA.

In presenting the T-shirts, Boyd explained that Citizens Band radio operators use the term to describe Carbondale. He said that since Carbondale has a fine University with 22,000 students, half of them females, it would be appropriate to present them T-shirts like the officials.

Mitchell said, "I think it's insulting, degrading and worse of a slur on the city of Carbondale in the Chicago magazine article."

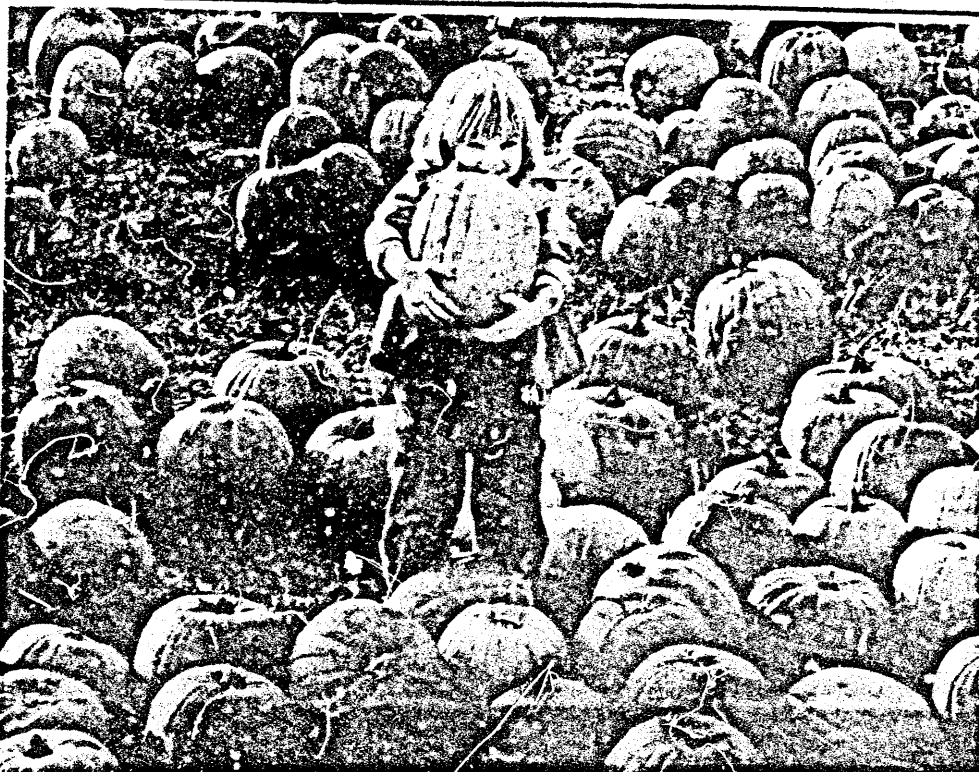

"I was just about to walk away from the conference saying, 'hey, this is a good thing,'" Mitchell said. "But that ruined it."

Mitchell said she called Scott Ratter, assistant city manager, and asked that a written letter of apology be sent to all members of the conference.

Ratter said he had talked to Boyd by telephone Thursday about the incident and was scheduled to meet with him sometime Friday.

Boyd said the T-shirts were a personal gift from "Eldon (Goetz)" and me to our friends at the FHWA.

Boyd said, "There is absolutely nothing derogatory to the women of Carbondale (about the T-shirts). Carbondale has some very beautiful women."

FHA approval awaited

Railroad project work may begin soon

By Jacqui Kosczuk

Demolition of structures on the site of the city's railroad relocation project will begin in mid-November if a contract for the work is approved by the Federal Highway Administration, a state official said Thursday.

Illinois Department of Transportation representatives and city officials will begin reviewing demolition bids Friday, said Lee Nickelson, a project engineer for the state.

If they accept a bid by Nov. 1, demolition should be underway about two weeks later, Nickelson said at the Fourth National Urban Railroad Relocation Conference which was held at the Holiday Inn. Since the federal government is paying for 95 percent of the relocation project, the demolition contract must be approved by the Federal Highway Administration. The remainder of the cost will be paid jointly by the city, the University and the state.

The federal agency will approve the contract only if costs are in line with President Carter's anti-inflation program guidelines, Nickelson said. Therefore, the demolition costs must not exceed a 7 percent increase over the original estimate of $7,000,000.

Business establishments that are on the site but have received a Jan. 1 deadline to move will not be affected by the November demolition plans.

The railroad relocation conference, held Wednesday and Thursday, was a discussion forum for representatives from 14 cities which are undertaking railroad relocation projects similar to Carbondale's. State and federal government representatives also attended.

ALSAC donation clears student

By Bill Crowe and

An SIUC student cleared himself of a theft charge Thursday after recovering stolen goods by making a donation to a national charity.

Mark Hill was facing a charge of theft under $150 if he could not return a police pack radio he allegedly threw into a crowd during a scuffle between Carbondale police and students Oct. 11 outside the American Tap, 518 S. Illinois Ave.

Hill, 19, had taken out a personal advertisement in the Daily Egyptian for the past two weeks saying charges against him would be lowered or dropped if the radio was returned to him. His phone number and an offer of a reward were included in the ad.

On Wednesday a call came to Hill's roommate Mark Siwik from an anonymous caller saying that the radio would be returned if Hill donated $25 to the WCIL-FM Aid to Leukemia-Stricken Children radiothon.

Siwik was instructed by the caller to make the donation, and after it was announced on the radio, the party would call again to tell Siwik where the radio was. Hill was not home at the time, but Siwik called in the donation immediately.

After the donation was announced over the air Siwik received another call saying that the radio would be placed under the sign at the Bel-Aire Mobile Home Park, 900 E. Park St. Siwik went to the sign and found the radio just where the anonymous caller said it would be.

Hill's lawyer, Public Defender Larry Rippe, gave the radio to Jackson County State's Attorney John Clemmons, and a half-hour later, the charges against Hill were dropped.

"As a result of Mr. Hill's cooperation, we have dismissed their charges against him," Clemmons said.

Hill said he felt "great" about Clemmons' decision.

City: No public drinking

Consumption of alcoholic beverages along South Illinois Avenue this Halloween weekend will not be allowed, city officials announced Thursday, quelling rumors that drinking in the streets would be the rule.

"It is not legal, and the council has not authorized it," Carbondale City Clerk Janet Vaught said.

Outdoor drinking in the downtown area is banned because of the potential safety hazard posed by littered glass beer bottles and cans, Vaught added.

A plan to sell alcoholic beverages at the booths of Carnival '79, which will be set up along South Illinois Avenue, was discussed by Undergraduate's Student Organization representatives and South Illinois Street merchants last month.

City Clerk Vaught said police will use discretion in deciding to make an arrest concerning the outdoor consumption of alcohol.

If officers see someone drinking, they will ask that person to pour the drink out on the street. An arrest will be made if the person becomes belligerent, Vaught said.

"There's no way we can condone it," she said.

SPC appropriation rescinded

By Diana Penner
Staff Writer

The Student Senate has rescinded a $2,000 appropriation to the Student Programming Council that it approved last week.

The senate also failed to approve a resolution that would have called for differential admission rates for non-undergraduate students to SPC events.

The senate approved the additional $2,000 in funds for SPC at its meeting last week. Heated debate on the merits of funding large programming groups as opposed to small, specialized student organizations had preceded approval of the funds.

At the suggestion of Undergraduate Student Organization President Pete Alexander, the senate reconsidered the bill at its meeting Wednesday. Alexander said he had not signed the bill or vetoed it because he wanted the senate to discuss the allocation again.

According to bylaws the USO is currently working under, the president has five working days to sign or veto senate legislation after the senate approves it. If the president does not act on legislation within this time, it automatically goes into effect.

Alexander said that he had until 11:59 p.m. Wednesday to act on the SPC funding bill, although East Side Senator Kevin C. Jans maintained that a workday ends at 5 p.m. and that the legislation had, therefore, already taken effect by the senate's 7 p.m. meeting.

Alexander said the senate should consider that SPC funds may be using some funds inappropriately. All funds used to salary positions in student organizations must be specifically earmarked for this purpose, Alexander said. He said that the chairman of SPC's newly formed publicity committee is currently being paid. Alexander, however, has not signed anything to approve the position as a paid one.

The senate moved into a committee of the whole to discuss the merits of the SPC funding request. Phil Eberlin, Thompson Point senator, said small groups provide diversity and should be taken into consideration when funds are distributed.

Taking into consideration SPC's possible inappropriate use of funds and the rapidly depleting SOAF account, the senate voted unanimously to rescind the funding and to mandate an investigation into SPC's use of funds.

SPC received about $88,000 at the beginning of the year and $1,000 at last week's meeting. The group had requested $100,000 at the beginning of the year. Marc Parker, SPC chairman, said that even $100,000 is not enough for a programming group for a university the size of SIU-C. He said SPC may have to cut back or modify some planned programming.

The senate also considered a proposed bill calling for differential entrance fees to SPC events. The USO funds SPC with a blanket amount of money, while the Graduate Student Council contributes funds on a by-event basis.

GSC President Gary Brown, who previously called the resolution "bribery," addressed the senate on the proposal. Brown said "a motion like this will tie my hands."

Problems of railroad system official's topic at conference

By Ron Lindsey

If you think we have railroad problems now, just wait awhile. James Carney, chief of the railroad and utilities branch of the Federal Highway Administration told participants of the 4th National Urban Railroad Relocation conference Thursday.

On the closing day of the conference, held at the Holiday Inn, Carney explained the development and problems of the railroad system in the country.

In the 1880s, Carney said, "the railroads went wild, they built lines everywhere, whether they needed them or not."

"What we are seeing today is a reassessment of the situation that created itself during the last 100 years or so," Carney said of the current rail problems.

In the next 10 years, Carney said he and others predict rail use to increase drastically.

"We must seek low-cost solutions and open communications with all parties of interest."

Carney said the FHWA would be able to demonstrate, through the 18 cities involved in federally-funded railroad relocations projects, what should be done to solve rail problems.

It will cost $750 million to solve the problems in 18 cities, Carney said.

"How much will it cost for 1,000 cities?" he asked.

In a 1978 report to Congress, the FHWA found there were 4,136 urban areas in the United States. Officials found 1,651 of those cities had urban rail problems.

In the future, officials will talk about programs that will improve the transfer of people and goods, Carney said.

"We do have a problem in the urban rail program, and that problem appears to be getting bigger and bigger. All ideas and suggestions are welcome," Carney told the participants.

According to Ed Johnson, highway engineer for the FHWA, value engineering is a relatively new concept.

$500 allocated for birthday party

After leaving Wednesday night's Student Senate meeting, 11 senators voted to rescind the meeting at a local tavern when they discovered that the regular meeting had not been officially adjourned.

In other business at Pined Penny Pub, the senate allocated $500 for a birthday party for five senators.

Student Vice President Chris Blankenship hesitated to call an official meeting to order, but gave in after strong persuasion by the senators.

Several senators gather regularly at the tavern after meetings, but Wednesday was the first time official senate business transpired there. Since a quorum (one over half of the number of senators currently in office) was present, it was determined that the meeting could be held.

The birthday party resolution was introduced from the floor, asking for an allocation of $500 from the Student Senate Special Projects fund. The birthdays of five senators fall within a two-week period in November.

The resolution passed by a vote of eight to two.

Blankenship said the resolution was passed under official protest by her.

West Side Senator Paul Evans, who may not attend his own senate-sponsored birthday party, voted against the resolution.

Jury frees battery suspect

By Ella Reilly
Staff Writer

A former SIU-C student was acquitted Thursday of aggravated battery charges by a Jackson County Court jury that accepted the defendant's contention that the incident was a prank.

Patrick Schroeder, 22, of Bensenville, was found innocent of the charges brought against him by a woman SIU student after an incident at the SIU tennis courts on Oct. 1, 1977.

Schroeder still faces charges of the Aug. 28, 1977, attempted rape and sexual deviate assault of another woman SIU student. He will be tried in January.

The incident that brought the aggravated battery charges against Schroeder occurred at midnight at the tennis courts located east of the Arena when the woman, who worked there, was closing the courts for the night.

Schroeder was accused of following the woman into the restroom and grabbing her around the neck with intent to harm her.

Schroeder did not testify at the trial. His lawyer, Kenneth Johnson of Wood Dale, said in his final argument that the incident was a prank by Schroeder who knew the woman.

Assistant State's Attorney John Clemmons, who argued the case for the state, said he would "stand by the jury's verdict," but did not agree with it.

Schroeder was convicted in September of violating bail bond for the aggravated battery charges. He was arrested this spring. Schroeder faces a sentence of a minimum of probation to a maximum of three years in jail for the bail bond violation. He is now free on a $95,000 bond for the charges of attempted rape and sexual deviate assault.

Clemmons said Schroeder faces similar charges of sexual deviate assault in Dupage County.

UAW concessions assist Chrysler

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — Chrysler Corp. and the United Auto workers union reached tentative agreement on a new contract that will give the company $403 million in concessions over the next two years to help keep the struggling No. 3 automaker afloat.

In a precedent-shattering side agreement, Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca will recommend re-election of UAW President Douglas A. Fraser to the board of directors at the annual meeting next May.

The pact gives the union two long-sought social goals: the right to recommend investment policy for part of the pension fund, and the right to recommend investment sanctions

House passes plan for emergency aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, moving with unusual speed, voted overwhelmingly Thursday for a $1.35 billion emergency aid measure to help poor people pay their heating bills this winter.

The $1.35 billion, when combined with $250 million approved earlier by the House would provide a total of $1.6 billion for low-income households whose heating bills have gone up sharply since last winter.

Halloween becoming a commercial event

associate editorial page editor

Where there's a buck available, go after it. That's the American Way. Christmas, once a religious event, has turned into a giant sales hype for every toy maker in the world. And the commercials and ads for the event appear earlier every year. The Christmas blitz used to start after Thanksgiving. Then after Halloween. This year, it has started already.

The Olympic Games were originally designed to bring the best athletes from different nations together to crown the best performers in the world, and to improve international relations. Hosting the Games used to be an honor, as the host nation could show off its culture and architecture, as well as its hospitality.

The Winter Olympics are scheduled for Lake Placid, N.Y. in 1980. Big buck seekers are already taking advantage of the Winter Game's presence here to push everything from tires to cameras. No doubt you've heard the claims made by Goodyear that their Tempo tire is "the official tire of the 1980 Winter Olympics."

Valentine's Day began as a religious holiday, in honor of St. Valentine. Greeting card makers and candy creators have since turned the event into a mass card and candy exchange. They weren't stupid—they saw the bucks. Valentine's Day was such a financial boom that florists, card writers, and confectioners got together to create a new day, Sweetest Day, to intimidate forgetful husbands into shelling out more bucks on the old lady.

The same buck-grabbing has taken hold of the hallowed Halloween celebration that Carbondale is so famous for. This year, organization is being attempted. Booths are planned for the strip on Saturday night, to be run by various fraternities, sororities, and other organizations.

The purpose of these booths will be to make money. Tickets will be sold by the Student Government, to be traded for food and games. Sounds just like the carnival, right? Sounds more like your basic tourist trap, kind of like Wisconsin Dells.

When you get right down to it, no one cares if people have fun, only that they blow money. Hardly in the spirit of past Halloweens, when poor students could have as much fun as those with money. Now you need tickets, which are carefully controlled by Student Government, to have fun.

What is about the most common item anyone can buy at the typical cheap, parasitic tourist trap? T-shirts, that's right, and at least two campus organizations, here have jumped on the tourist trash bandwagon. They're selling shirts, and for $5, no less.

Pi Sigma Epsilon, the professional marketing organization, is pushing T-shirts at the Student Center with the phrase, "Survivor of Halloween, '79" emblazoned across the front.

The Design Department also got involved in the money-grabbing game. They are right next to the marketing boys selling shirts which say, "Buried Out in Carbondale, Halloween '79."

What is Halloween getting to be, a spontaneous, crazy affair for fun-loving college students, or a money-making scheme?

This year's developments indicate that our formerly fun Halloween is facing the same fate as Christmas, Valentine's Day, and the Olympics.

Nothing is sacred anymore. Christmas is for making money, Valentine's Day is for making money, and apparently Halloween is for making money.

Envision Carbondale and Halloween in a few years: Booths with smooth-talking hawkers will line South Illinois Avenue. Souvenir stands with everything from beer mugs to the inevitable T-shirts will be there for everyone. It'll become an annual fair, with junk peddlers gaining and students losing.

Let us step back and take a look at the direction of our best weekend of the school year. Let's not let the profit motive take over Halloween, as it has so many other things. Let's leave money out of at least one holiday, so both rich and poor can enjoy a great event.

Letters

What will happen on Halloween?

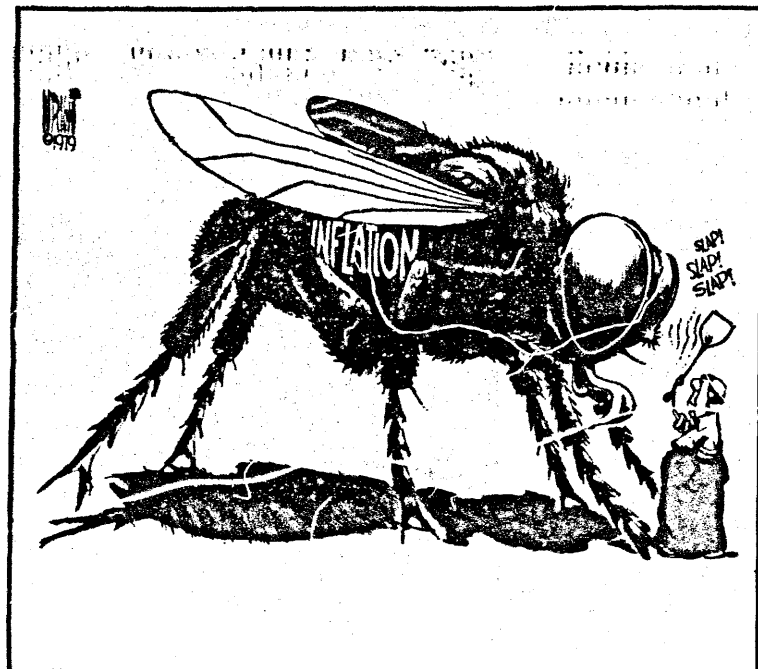

Well, what will it be folks, a nice pretty little Halloween night where everyone mills around looking at all the cute little booths, eating candy apples, and drinking an occasional beer, or will it be a rip-roaring time where everyone gets drunk on their butts and forgets their inhibitions behind the mask that they are wearing.

To say the least I am anxious to see just what will happen this Friday and Saturday. I guess what really bothers me is that the university is trying to play down the fact that Halloween night has traditionally been a wild evening, but why shouldn't it be? That's what the students want. (At least that was what they wanted last year and all the other years I've been here.)

So what will it be, folks. Will everyone pretend this is just another week-end, or will they get their costumes on and forget who they are and just have a good time.

Here's a lawyer's guide to avoid Halloween hassles on South Illinois

Joe Sobczyk
Editorial Page Editor

The Carbondale police are expected to round up between 50 and 100 celebrants during the weekend's Halloween festivities. Although it is likely that the policemen will be looking the other way on most occasions, some of the more outrageous antics resulting from inebriety will surely lead to arrests.

Betsy Streeter, the SIU-C students' attorney, is waiting for a Monday morning onslaught of calls from those students caught in the wrong place at the wrong time by the wrong person. She has a few tips for them.

The first piece of advice on her list is simple: Don't get caught. She says most of the arrests made over the weekend will be for minor offenses, violations of Carbondale ordinances. She lists the top four charges as disorderly conduct, public consumption of alcohol, resisting arrest and obstructing traffic.

She notes that with the student-to-police ratio of almost 100-to-1, the officers patrolling South Illinois Avenue will not give the benefit of doubt in favor of the student. So following her first bit of advice, Streeter says that if you are caught, do not—repeat, do not—resist the police or run from them. They will probably catch you sooner or later and there is no sense in adding another charge to your list of offenses.

If you come face to face with an inquisitive member of Carbondale's finest remember that you do have a few rights as a suspect.

You will always have the right to remain silent and to consult with an attorney. However, don't assume that if the officer doesn't read a statement of what is commonly referred to as Miranda rights before you're taken into custody that your case will be thrown out of court. The reading of rights applies only to offenses that might involve a jail term.

In Illinois, you don't have to give your consent to a search of your home or car. The officer may search your person if he has probable cause to believe you're concealing something illegal.

Driving while intoxicated may also prove to be a popular pastime during the weekend. The best advice for this is simply don't do it. But if you are foolish enough to put the car in drive while using the drug of your choice, you have a few options if stopped by the police.

You may refuse to take a breathalyzer test but you risk having your driver's license suspended for three months if you do. Streeter advises that if you think your breath will show alcohol in the bloodstream beyond any reasonable measure of sobriety, don't take the test. There's no use in stepping into your own noose.

You'll still risk suspension of driving privileges but you may increase your odds of beating the charge at least a little bit. You do, by the way, get two chances to pass the test.

Your other option is to insist on a blood test. This will be performed at your expense, but if you are just a little over the edge, the time it takes to have the test done might allow you to sober up. But remember, the blood test is even more conclusive than an exam on the breathalyzer.

Some other bits and pieces:

The city ordinance prohibiting the consumption of alcohol in the street will not magically disappear during the weekend. More often than not, you will be asked to get rid of the spirits and told not to do it again. It's not worth the hassle to argue the point with a disgruntled and harassed policeman.

The bars will be open until 4 a.m. When nature calls, answer it in the bathroom of the nearest establishment. Public indecency is still against the law.

It might also be a good idea to know ahead of time where you can get $100 in cash on short notice. Streeter says that should cover the bill for most offenses.

Streeter says the Student Programming Council's answer phone will be programmed to repeat your list of rights if you are arrested. The number, if you have any questions, is 536-5556.

In short, stay calm, cool and collected and keep a low profile if you wind up at the end of the long arm of the law. For those fish who will find Carnivale '79 more than they can handle, Betsy Streeter will be in her office by 9 a.m. Monday.

Mall will host fashion show in honor of fifth anniversary

By Joanne Phelps
Staff Writer

Midnight blues and silvers will glitter and gleam as the color theme of a fashion show celebrating the University Mall's fifth anniversary.

"The Best is Getting Better," is the theme of the show, sponsored by the Merchants' Association. The show will begin at 7 p.m. Friday at the Mall's fountain area; it will begin with a 15-minute musical program.

"We decided on 'The Best is Getting Better' as the theme because with the upcoming addition of 21 new stores to the mall, we feel we are getting better," said the fashion show coordinator, Rita Nation. Most of the stores in the mall are participating in some form or another, she said.

Men's, women's and children's fashions will be shown in three categories, Nation said. "We'll present lingerie, daywear and evening wear, with small skits presented between each category, she said. There will also be an infant modeling a christening gown, Nation said.

Since it is a holiday show, Nation said, the fashion show will be told in story form with small family skits presented between each clothing category.

Nation said Sarah Crawford of WHPI radio in Herrin will comment on the skits, which center around Christmas morning to Christmas night.

The spotlights and special effects will highlight a spectacular grand finale, featuring diamonds, furs and designer dresses.

Time freely structured in Uruguay

By Marilyn Titano
News Editor

"You have to use time very efficiently in America," says Graciela Italiano, graduate student in the Department of Curriculum, Instruction and Media.

But time is perceived differently in her native Latin American country of Uruguay. "There, time is more freely structured. You can meet a friend on the street and go into a coffee shop for anywhere from 15 minutes to two-and-a-half hours," she said.

"It's not that we're not busy

people, contrary to what many American's believe," Italiano, 28, said. "We use time in a different way."

In Uruguay, the people eat a very light breakfast. At noon, they have their big meal of the day. Lunch hours are usually two hours long, Italiano explained. They eat a late dinner, at the earliest it is 9 p.m.

"It just divides your time differently," she said. "We get more done in the afternoon." People don't quit work at 4 or 5 p.m. as in the United States.

Americans have many choices which citizens of Uruguay do not have, Italiano said.

"I've been shopping here you are spritzed with so many choices."

The first time she went to the grocery store for a can of sardines she was shocked at the wide variety she had to choose from. Did she want them pickled, in oil, without oil, which brand?

"In Uruguay you go to your local man and he has one or two varieties of sardines. You take what he has," she said.

"At first all the choices were very exciting and then became very tiring."

Everything in the United States is fast-paced, she said.

Special Olympics Festival set

By Jordan Gold
Staff Writer

Louthern Illinois Special Olympians, Inc. is hosting a Special Olympics Festival from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday in Evergreen Park. Everyone is invited and admission is free.

Robert McDougal, assistant director of the group, said that the purpose of the festival is to "introduce ourselves to the community and to let everyone know that we are accessible to them to answer questions concerning Special Olympics." McDougal added that "We want to let the public know that Special Olympics is a year-round program."

The festival will consist of a sports clinic, during which competitors will practice; an auction featuring household items, exercise apparatus and miscellaneous goods and an arts and crafts show featuring

U.K. to perform with Jethro Tull

U.K., a progressive English rock band, will appear as special guest of Jethro Tull Nov. 7 at the Arena.

The band first appeared in 1973 with a debut album titled "U.K." and released its second effort, "Danger Money" that same year. U.K. is currently promoting its latest release, a live album, "Night after Night."

Originally a four-piece band, U.K. is now a trio consisting of keyboard-violinist Eddie Jobson, vocalist-bassist John Wetton and drummer Terry Bozzio. Jobson and Wetton are both former members of Roxy Music. Jobson has also played with Frank Zappa and Wetton is a former member of King Crimson and Uriah Heep. Bozzio has also played with Zappa.

According to Arena Director Gary Drake, there are still almost 3,000 tickets left for the concert which will begin at 8 p.m. articles from workshops from various agencies in the 18 counties that Southern Illinois Special Olympians, Inc. overseer. Refreshments will also be served.

In addition to the festival, the following competition is coming up: volleyball competition at Rend Lake junior college Nov. 13. Run, Drive and Shoot competition in Benton on Dec. 4 and basketball competition in Benton on Dec. 12.

Mentally handicapped individuals from the ages of 8 to 80 are eligible to participate in competition, McDougal said

'Skatetown' a childish buck-grabber

By Bill Crowe
Staff Writer

Ever since the mid-1950s Hollywood has made "films" in which they try to make a buck off the latest fad teen-agers have latched onto. Bill Haley and the Comets made an insipid film titled after their hit "Rock Around The Clock" in the late '50s. The 1960s had a slew of beach party, hot rod and Hercules movies. All of them were plotless, non-entertaining films which were styled for the child-like mind.

"Thank God Its Friday," "Skateboard" and now "Skatetown U.S.A." are some of the fad films of the 1970s. "Skatetown U.S.A." doesn't play like a movie, but rather as a 90-minute commercial for roller skating, disco and the "me generation" which disco has spawned.

All the women in the film smile a lot, wink at the camera and wear skimpy costumes which show off a lot of boob and butt. The men smile a lot, wear satin pants and gold chains and remark about how beautiful the girls look. However, a bunch of smiley clones who are having a great time with the latest "in" thing does not make much of a film.

"Skatetown U.S.A." does have a flimsy plot about a "good guy" brother-sister skating team which wants to beat the "bad guy" roller-disco gang leaders in a dancing contest. However, the dumb dialogue and wooden acting make the audience wish a roller derby star would come out of nowhere and knee-drop the whole bunch of them.

The cast of "Skatetown U.S.A." is chock-full of has-beens, unknowns and never-weres who look like they were shipped over from a taping of "Hollywood Squares." Among the list of luminaries are Maureen "Brady Bunch" McCormick, Ruth Buzzi, Ron (Arnold Horshack) Palillo and Scott Baio of "Happy Days." Glad to see you all got a job, folks.

However, Flip Wilson, as the owner of the roller-disco, comes off as the most dull and lifeless. He even resurrects his tired old "Geraldine" act from the grave if so rightfully belonged in.

The film's music, provided by

Acting Company
slated for Marion

John Houseman's The Acting Company will perform the comedy "Broadway" at 8 p.m. Nov. 1 at the Marion Cultural and Civic Center.

"Broadway" is set in the Prohibition era and it takes place back-stage at the garish Paradise Night Club in New York City. It is complete with a musical score of jazz age hits and full of dance numbers.

Houseman, a well-known stage, film and television actor for over 50 years, founded The Acting Company in 1972 for the purpose of developing American actors. The company consists of 16 actors and actresses selected from America's leading professional theatre training programs and regional theatres.

A Review

The Jacksons, Earth, Wind and Fire and John Sebastian, is actually above average for disco; except for an awful version of the Rolling Stones' "Under My Thumb," which would make rock fans cringe in their seats. Dave Mason and GQ also perform live in the film.

As mentioned before, "Skatetown U.S.A." cannot be judged as a film, but rather as promotional gimmick. WCIL radio will be offering free T-shirts and passes to the film next week.

Organizations must register for services

Student organizations that have not registered this year with the Office of Student Development (wm) be able to take advantage of the services they were eligible for last year.

The deadline for registering was Oct. 1, and 75 to 80 of last year's 300 recognized student organizations have not registered.

The services will be restored to these groups as soon as they register, said Mike Higbee, graduate assistant for recognized student organizations.

These services and privileges include free use of Student Center meeting rooms, fiscal advisement, leadership workshops, use of duplication services for a minimal fee, and approval for contracts and use of University vehicles.

Higbee added that "if the group is not registered, it can't go to the student government and ask for money from the Student Activity Fee Fund."

The purpose of recognized student organizations is, "to provide as much variety in activities and programs as is represented by the variety of students on campus," Higbee said.

Jobs on Campus

The following jobs for student workers have been listed by the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

To be eligible, undergraduates must carry nine hours, graduates six hours. A current F.A.C.T. Family Financial Statement must be on file with the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

Applications should be made in person at the Student Work Office, Woody Hall-B, third floor.

Jobs available as of Oct. 21:
Clerical-Six openings, morning work blocks; one opening, afternoon work block; two openings, times to be arranged.

Janitorial-One opening, 6 to 10 p.m.

Food Service-One opening, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Student organizations to move, office remodeling is completed

By Charity Gould
Staff Writer

After more than a two month delay, student organizations are finally boxing up filing cabinets and office furniture, and moving into their new offices on the third floor of the Student Center.

When the remodeling project was approved in January John Corker, Student Center director, said the 13 new offices would be finished by the end of spring semester. At the beginning of summer semester Corker said the offices would be finished around Aug. 15.

"Delivery problems were the biggest cause of delay," Corker said. "Windows that were supposed to arrive in two weeks would arrive in two months," Corker said. "Then it took a month to get the telephones installed."

Corker said the student groups, who will be moved by Friday, decided to wait until all of the construction was completed before moving. Betsy Streeter, SIU-C student attorney, said she is looking forward to the move into the offices. The Student Attorney Program, which will have seven rooms of the newly remodeled area, paid half of the estimated $70,000 renovating project.

The other half will come from the Student Center operation and maintenance fund, which is set aside for remodeling, Corker said.

"Presently, we are in two cubicals in the Undergraduate Student Organization offices," Streeter said. "We have five law students working out of one cubical. That's not exactly a morale booster."

Streeter, who said the Student Attorney program has waited over two-and-a-half years for more space, says they will be able to offer students better service.

Four offices will be for USO while the Graduate Student Council will be housed in two offices. There will also be an unfinished area in the back for organizations to set up extra offices.

Chris Blankenship, vice president of the USO, said the move was "better late than never." Blankenship said they were currently operating out of three offices. "The new offices will give us a lot more room. "We are really appreciative of the new space."

The old USO offices will be used for University Programming.

Corker said that though the furniture for a student study lounge is ordered, the lounge in front of the new offices will not be completed until Christmas or later.

Sailing Club to be host for regatta

By William Scott Atken
Student Writer

The Southern Illinois Collegiate Sailing Club will host the two-day Area C Eliminations beginning at 9 a.m. Nov. 3 at Crab Orchard Lake for the Timme Angsten Memorial Regatta, a series of races.

There will be nine different races around buoys set up in the middle of Crab Orchard Lake. The three qualifying teams will move on to the Chicago Yacht Club for a three-day series, Nov. 23-25, to compete against qualifiers from three other areas in the United States. The qualifiers from the four areas will meet in the cold waters of Lake Michigan to close out the sailing season.

Ranked 17th in the nation last year, the SIU-C club will sail two Flying Juniors, which are 15-foot, two-person boats.

Skipper Paul Himze and crew member Margaret Crouch will sail SIU-C's A Fleet and skipper Troy Folan and crew member Alison Emberson will sail SIU-C's B Fleet in what Folan calls, "one of the more prestigious races that we'll compete in."

The SIU-C Sailing Club, which captured first place in the Area C Eliminations hosted by Northwestern University last year, will compete against Iowa, Purdue, Marquette and Kansas universities and the Universities of Wisconsin-Madison, Illinois, Wisconsin-Green Bay, and Wisconsin-Oshkosh. The three teams with the lowest scores will go to the Chicago Yacht Club to compete against the qualifiers from three other areas in the United States.

Good grape crop expected to bring rise in wine prices

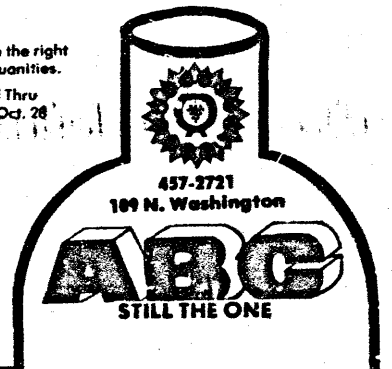

PARIS (AP)—Bacchus smiled on his empire this year, the wine experts say.

From Bordeaux to the Mosel to Tuscany, the right blend of rain, and sun at the right times has produced a grape harvest that in some regions is being touted as one of the premier vintages of recent times.

"All the elements have come together to make a great harvest," said one vintner in Beaune, the heart of France's famed Burgundy region.

Placement director says many ignore job market information

By Ray Robinson
Staff writer

Too many students are ignoring the wealth of information available to them about the job market, Harvey Ideus, director of SIU's Career Planning and Placement Office, says. Ideus spoke to a group of labor analysts at the Carbondale Ramada Inn Wednesday night as a part of a four-day conference of the Illinois Bureau of Employment Security which ended Thursday.

The challenge and problem, Ideus told the group, many of whom are involved in producing job market statistics, is for "all of us to be more creative in selling the data we produce." "We've got a lot of good information that's just going to waste," Ideus said. "But we do not make it mandatory for the youths to study it."

He said the problem of coordinating university programs with job market conditions presented a particularly difficult problem.

"How do you get the universities to restructure their curriculum in relation to our data?" Ideus asked. "You can't fire professors or retrain them at will."

And he continued, "How do you shut off the supply of graduates when demands dry up? We're not very good at that in the U.S., although we're great at starting programs up."

Ideus said he had no answers to those questions, but had noticed increased student interest in programs that offer long-term job security, such as government or the military. He said a recruiter for the CIA, which used to have a "negative or dubious" public image was on campus last week.

"The gentleman was very proud that he saw so many talented students," Ideus said. He added that he thought the increased interest in secure jobs was a backlash of the recession of the early 1970s when so many college graduates had trouble finding work.

"But certain fields will retain interest whether or not the labor market has any interest in them," Ideus said. Among them is liberal arts, which he called a "surviving field."

Ideus said his message to students with undecided majors is "If you don't know what the hell you're doing in college, you'd better come to the Career Planning and Placement Office and get your head on straight."

But some students, will inevitably decide their majors on the basis of emotions "and you can't do a damn thing about it... They're going to major in what they want to no matter what you tell them," he said.

Radiothon raises funds for charity

Dennis "The All-American Jock" Lyle, Mike "The Black" Chyliewski, Kelly "Your Mid-Morning Mellow Man" Caris and other WCIL-FM rock 'n' radio jocks participated in a radiothon for the Aid Leukemia Stricken American Children Organization, which raised a record-breaking $4,084.

The radiothon, which was sponsored by the University Housing Programming Office and WCIL-FM, raised about twice as much money this year as it did last year, according to Chyliewski. The money will be turned over to the St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital in Memphis.

About 11 programming staff members and about one dozen WCIL-FM radio jocks manned telephones Wednesday from 6 a.m. to midnight; at the programming office located on East Campus. The largest donation came from Carbondale resident Tom Owens.

Respect your feet. They got you where you are today.

There are a whole mess of bones in your feet. Fifty-two to be exact.

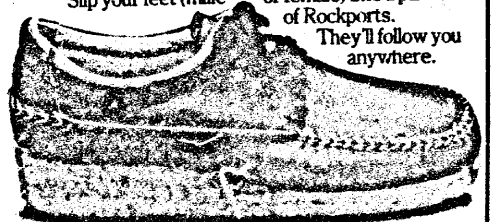

To take proper care of all of them, you need a good pair of shoes.

Like the one you see below. A Rockport.

That bottom is not one big hunk of crepe. It's eight separate layers. This makes the bottom softer. More flexible. Easier on your feet.

And that shoe won't rub your foot the wrong way, either. Because inside is a full leather lining that's been specially tanned to make it soft and comfy.

Slip your feet (male or female) into a pair of Rockports. They'll follow you anywhere.

Rockport Feet have feelings, too.

State economy will be strong, expert says.

By Diana Penner
Staff Writer

Illinois will not feel the impact of inflation as strongly as the rest of the nation, said John W. Castle, director of the newly formed Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs.

Speaking at a conference of research analysts of the Department of Labor in Carbondale Thursday, Castle said that the "Illinois business climate is healthier than most people think."

"The figures do not indicate that Illinois is going down the drain by any means," Castle said.

Castle said that though Illinois is losing some jobs to other states, the state is also attracting businesses that offer many jobs. He said that in 1978, about 350 companies decided to either expand or locate in Illinois. Castle said that these new or expanding companies could provide 36,000 new jobs and $711 million in capital investment.

Castle said that the diversity Illinois offers in agriculture and manufacturing, and the fact that the state is a transportation hub makes it a lucrative location for businesses.

The Department of Commerce and Community Affairs began operating as a single agency on Oct. 1. It is the result of the merger of the Governor's Office of Manpower and Human Development and the Departments of Local Government Affairs and Business and Economic Development.

Castle said that although the three agencies had often worked on similar projects, the lack of communication between them had hindered their effectiveness. He said that as a single agency, the DCCA will be able to operate more effectively because three separate agencies will not be working on the same projects independently.

He said that the objective of the department will be threefold:

- to advocate growth, development, diversification and overall strengthening of the state's economy;

- to aid local governments;
- and to increase employment opportunities and skill of the labor work force in Illinois.

"One of the major objectives of the new agency will be to provide better training to people to give them skills that will enable them to be employed for many years to come," Castle said.

He said that the agency will also be involved in trying to resolve housing problems in Illinois and aiding small businesses.

"We're in the business of leveraging state dollars...to gain maximum effectiveness," he said.

Professor to teach mythology class at Vienna Center

by Colleen Moore
Student Writer

For the first time, the classics section of the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures will teach a course to prisoners at the Vienna Correctional Center, located about 30 miles southeast of Carbondale.

The program will begin during the spring semester in cooperation with the Division of Continuing Education at SIU-C.

Will Major, an instructor in the classics section, will teach the general studies course, classical mythology, one day a week.

The purpose of the course is to find out why myths are and how they function in culture, Major said. The book of Genesis from the Bible will be studied as a myth.

Most people think myths are false, which is not true, Major said.

"We mean that it (Genesis) is a story in ancient Hebrew culture that conveyed something very significant to Jews," he said. "The story was used as a hymn to praise god." Ancient cultures of the Greeks and Romans will be studied.

Major said the Greeks and Romans viewed their gods as immortal humans.

"By studying ancient myths, we can find parallels in our lives today," he said. "We have stories that tell us what we're supposed to be like; what we're supposed to do."

Professor finds original poems from Renaissance

By James O'Connor
Student Writer

While pleasure-reading some Renaissance poetry in England this summer Mary Lamb, assistant professor of English, made an important discovery.

A series of three poems, dated from the 18th century and written in the author's handwriting with original revisions, was found in a manuscript titled, "The Bright Manuscript, British Museum additional 15232."

"The poems are important," Lamb said, "not only because of their intrinsic beauty, but also because they exemplify an important change which took place in poetry around the 1590s."

Before the 1590s, poetry was very moralistic and rigid, usually containing alliteration and allusion in an almost standardized form, she said. After the 1590s, poetry became much freer in both form and content. One of the poems she discovered was in the more rigid style, while two were in the later style.

Lamb noted that one of the poems expressed the "contrast of the stability of love to the seasonal cycle."

"The budding bowshirts by harde and massey barte, softly breake fourth to blossoms and to leaves,

The chearfull daye longe lyghtes the drowsy darke,
Whoe took most care, most comfort now receaves
Nowe in each bushe sweet phylomela synges, true love lasts sweet when sour other thynges."

The poetry in the Renaissance era was written mainly by the upper class, Lamb said. It was not intended to be published but was for the amusement of the elite to whom it was sent.

Peter Croft, a handwriting analyst, has determined that the author of the poetry was probably a young, left-handed woman, Lamb said.

Lamb has searched British museums for a handwriting match, but she does not expect to find one in the voluminous material which would have to be scrutinized.

HOUSE REVERSES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has reversed itself and voted to retain price and allocation controls through mid-1981.

The turnout vote came amid expressions of dismay by congressional leaders over soaring oil-industry profits.

"It's a disgrace to the nation. It's just an absolute and utter disgrace," House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said of the large, recently posted third-quarter profits of some major oil companies.

Masterpiece gets highest bid ever for American art

NEW YORK (AP) — A 19th century painting by Frederic Edwin Church sold for $2.5 million, the most ever paid for an American and the third highest for any painting, the Sotheby Parke Bernet auction house said.

The big painting, which measures 64 inches by 112 inches, was discovered last summer hanging in the hall of a boys home in Manchester England. It had been presumed lost for more than 100 years.

Botany professor seeks new ways to control soil erosion in strip mines

By University News Service

A botanist from SIUC is doing a juggling act to find workable new ways to reclaim worked-out Southern Illinois strip mines.

W. Clark Ashby, professor of botany, is mixing several combinations of trees, grasses and other ground cover crops over 80 acres of what used to be a surface mine south of Du Quoin. He hopes to come up with a blend that will control erosion and add nutrients to the soil while allowing desirable varieties of trees to grow to maturity.

Using trees to reclaim mined-out land isn't a new idea, Ashby admits. Freeman United Coal Co., owner of the land Ashby is using for his experiment, and other Southern Illinois mining companies once planted as much as one acre of trees for every acre of land they mined for coal. But increases in labor costs and decreases in available manpower during the following World War II put an end to most replanting efforts.

Ashby has studied for many years the potential use of trees to reclaim Southern Illinois strip mines and at the same time yield an eventual cash crop of hardwood lumber. He's convinced that planting trees is an ideal way to reclaim mined land.

What is different about Ashby's current project is the way trees are combined with other trees and with low-lying ground cover crops, he said.

"We're trying to work out the best mix of cover crops to give erosion control and enhance nutrients at the site, but at the same time not compete with the trees," Ashby said.

Ashby and his colleagues plan to put down such low-lying plants as annual rye, hairy vetch and other grasses and ground covers which will grow and protect the seedlings until they can establish themselves.

"The seedlings will do all right if the other plants don't interfere with them," Ashby said. He said the ground cover crops will act as a "nurse crop" to provide wind protection, shade and lower soil temperatures until the desirable trees become harder.

"We're trying to put down a combination of legumes and grasses," Ashby said. "It's a juggling act to find some that will do what we want without giving the trees a hard time."

"It's a matter of timing," he said. "You want some protection both from heat and wind when the seedlings are just getting started, but later you don't want those cover crops to become damaging to the seedlings."

In addition to mixing trees and ground covers, Ashby also plans to interplant less-desirable but fast-growing trees among the more attractive but slower-growing trees planned for the plot.

"We'll plant trees and shrubs that eventually will be overtopped by the trees we want," he said.

Most of the emphasis will be on planting black walnut trees at this experimental plot, Ashby said. He said walnuts have done well in earlier planting efforts on surface mined land, and he expects they'll do well this time. They'll also put in red, white and burr oaks.

Yet another new idea being tried on this experimental plot is planting the acreage directly from seed, rather than setting out seedlings.

The four-year project is being funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service, Freeman United Coal Co., the Illinois Mining and Minerals Resources Research Institute and SIUC's Coal Extraction and Utilization Research Center.

List of bilingual teachers to be revised soon

By University News Service
If you're a psychologist, special educator, counselor or social worker—with fluency in two or more languages—then a special education professor is looking for you.

James Crowner, professor of special education, is updating a special registry of bilingual professionals for the Illinois Office of Education. The volume will help Illinois school administrators obey state requirements that bilingual children be tested in their native languages before they're placed in special programs.

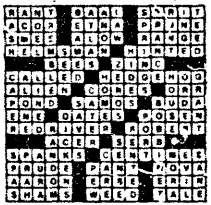

In 1974 the department of special education published the first directory of such professionals, ("Illinois Registry of Psychologists with Special Skills in Evaluating Bilingual, Bicultural and/or Low Incidence Handicapped Children").

The list is now outdated and there's been heavy demand for a new edition, Crowner said. He is trying to locate bilingual professionals for inclusion in the new edition.
"I'm interested in hearing from anyone who might qualify," said Crowner. "In addition to psychologists, we'll be including bilingual school social workers, counselors and special educators who could help psychologists in the assessment of certain bilingual children."
Crowner expects the registry to be available for distribution around the first of the year. A Nov. 15 deadline has been set for responding to his request for information. A questionnaire will be sent to respondents, he said.

Salukis hope to find right mix

"They don't have that quickness on offense," the fourth-year coach said. "They just try to punch the ball at you. Our goal is to hold them on first down."

The running situation is much better than it appears on paper. The starting fullback, Jim Latanski, is a former light end. Alex Armato, the tailback, has rushed for only 146 yards thus far. Allen Ross, the team's top rusher and scorer, is injured. Dempsey expects Ross to play.

"Latanski is a good fullback," said Dempsey, who scouted NIU last week when the team played at Illinois State. "Ross got into a series. He looked OK to me."

Dempsey believes the game, which is part of NIU's 71st homecoming celebration, will be a physical contest. Part of the reason is that the game is a rivalry. NIU leads the series 23-12-1, and has won two of the last three games. The other is that SIU, 4-3 overall and 1-1 in the Valley, would like to win the game to provide momentum for its final three contests -- all conference games.

"It could get us to win number five," Dempsey said, of the importance of the game. "Five is a big number. Five and three (record) will give us a big lift. Two of the three conference games will be at home. Things will look good."

spiritual advisor. It makes its yearly appearance at several hockey games to wish the team luck before the state tournament. Illner said the appearance of the Great Pumpkin is something that has grown out her hands.

"I got the idea from the Charlie Brown cartoon, and I thought that it would be something to get the girls emotionally up for the tournament," Illner said. "The first time he appeared in person was 1976. He came to one of our practices, and the girls went wild. He had a tape recorded message for the team that wished them luck. It's a tradition with our team that has grown by leaps and bounds. The girls have taken it over, and they really look forward to it." Illner said the pumpkin makes its appearance prior to every state meet, but in 1977 it was seen at the nationals in Denver. She said the Pumpkin will be honoring the 14 seniors who will be participating in their last home game.

The Great Pumpkin has contacted Illner and said it will show up at 3:30 p.m., before the Salukis play WIU. She said also that Western will probably be SIU's toughest opponent at the state championships November 2 at Macomb, Ill. Western, 17-0-1, has a new goalie which Illner says nobody knows anything about.

"Their other goalie is no longer around," Illner said. "They now have an unknown goalie, so we don't know what to expect. They have a good record, but I don't think their schedule has been all that hard."

Illner said she believes ISU is a dark horse team, and doesn't know what to expect from them. Its 8-4-3 record includes ties against Eastern Illinois University and Northern Illinois University. Both, she says, are very good teams.

The games are going to be a preview of the state championship, and the 10-year coach believes SIU still is lacking the experience of playing with each other. This, she said, would make the Salukis a superior team.

"We don't have the experience to switch positions smoothly. We don't think that way yet," Illner said. "When a back goes up to the forward line we switch to cover for her, but the original player feels that she has to get back to her position too early. But this is an advanced technique."

Maybe The Great Pumpkin can help.

Beg your pardon

It was incorrectly reported in Thursday's sports section that Karan Paquin had scored the third try in the women's rugby club victory over the Evansville Blue squad.

The third try was scored by Dee Ann Neal to give the rugger a 12-0 lead. SIU won the game, 16-0.

Bicycle race set

The SIU Cycling Club will host a 100-kilometer time trial Oct. 28. The event is open to the public.

Trophies, ribbons and prizes for the time trials will be distributed in six classes: Women, men under 18, men 18-30, men over 30, tandem, and two-person coed team. Refreshments will be served at the 50 kilometer mark.

Dan Casabeer, a member of the SIU Cycling Club, will ride in the time trials. Casabeer is one of the top time trialists in the country. He anticipates to complete the time trial in about 12 hours, anticipating a slow time because of the course's difficulty. The course contains numerous hills.

Registration is being held at noon in front of Shryock Auditorium. There is a $1 registration fee. Rain date for the time trials is Nov. 4.

Sign-up deadline nears for College Bowl teams

Seven teams have signed up for the 1979-80 intramural College Bowl, leaving nine slots open in the competition. The deadline for sign-up is Monday.

The single-elimination tournament involves answering "questions like those on 'Jeopardy,'" according to Cinder Shauger, program coordinator.

Teams consist of four full-time SIU-C students and an alternate, with a maximum of two graduate students per team. The graduate students must be taking at least nine hours. Applications are available from student organization and club residents, resident assistants and the Student Center Administrative Office.

"Quick recall and rapid analysis" are stressed, Shauger said, and the competition requires that teams field "a broad range of questions" in the two 8-minute halves of each game.

The first round of the tournament begins at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 6 and 8 at Trueblood Hall on East Campus.

The quarterfinals, semifinals and final will be conducted Nov. 27 and 29 at Ballrooms A and C in the Student Center.

A $5 registration fee from each team covers the purchase of official game packets from the National College Bowl Headquarters in New York City.

First place team members will receive $125 academic cash scholarships and the runners-up will receive $100 scholarship scholarships.

Relocation work to begin soon

Vice President for Campus Services Clarence "Doc" Dougherty addressed the conference on Thursday, saying "when the project is completed, our entire University program will move much smoother."

Since an estimated 8,000 students and 2,100 employees live on the east side of town, the traffic to and from the University will move much more efficiently, he said. Dougherty said the project would also decrease the number of accidents at railway crossings.

The railroad relocation project involves a new train depot downtown, the depression of the tracks running through the business district, and two overpasses at U.S. Interstate 51 and at Pleasant Hill Road.

Student cleared of radio theft

"It's a load off my mind because I don't need to be arrested," Hill said.

Carbondale police were also relieved to hear of the radio's return. Police had been receiving "unauthorized transmissions" from the radio's temporary possessors since it was stolen, according to Tom McNamara, assistant to the police chief.

McNamara said the transmissions consisted of "mostly laughing and insults directed at the police." Such transmissions could interfere with police communications during emergency situations, he added.

McNamara said the value of the radio, which is carried by officers while on foot patrol, is about $950 to $1,100.

Arena to host women's pro cagers

By Scott Stahmer
Staff Writer

If there is one adjective to describe Saturday's 7:30 p.m. Chicago Hustle-St. Louis Streak exhibition game at the Arena, it is "new."

The game will be the first exhibition game of the 1979-80 season for the two Women's Professional Basketball League teams, beginning a new year. And St. Louis is an expansion team. New players, new uniforms, and a new coach who was formerly the head coach at East Carolina University.

"I'm optimistic," Coach Larry Gillman said. "But we have a lot of question marks. We don't have much height."

Two players who will provide much of the Streak's height are former SIU cagers Bonnie Foley, 6-foot-3, and Jeri Hoffmann, 6-foot. Gillman said, however, that Hoffmann is injured and probably will not play.

"Hoffman looked good, but she injured her knee in practice," Gillman said. "I doubt if she'll play. Jeri has a good feel for the game, and good quickness for her size."

"Foley has good size and plays the game with intelligence," he continued. "But she must be more aggressive."

Gillman said other promising Streak players include Coco Daniels, a 5-foot-2 guard, and Elizabeth Silcot, a 5-foot-6 forward who can play guard. "Daniels is a leader," he said, adding that she will be the Streak's starting point guard. "She handles the ball well and plays good defense. For a player just out of college, she has tremendous poise and maturity."

Gillman said he is looking forward to playing the Hustle.

"Chicago was one of the more successful teams in the league last year, so it will be good for us to play them and see how far we have to go," he said. "I'll guarantee you one thing — we'll play hard."

St. Louis will be facing a Chicago team that Coach Doug Bruno says is improved with the addition of two newcomers — center Candy Rangler, 6-foot-5, was signed by the Hustle as a free agent, and Retha Swindell, a 6-foot-2 first round draft choice who can play both forward and center from the University of Texas.

"Last year, we led the league in scoring, but we were the shortest team in the league," Bruno, whose team lost a three-game series to Iowa in the playoff semifinals, said. "Candy will give us more height and rebounding strength. Retha is also a strong rebounder, but she'll miss this game because she is student-teaching in Texas."

Returning to the Hustle, which tied Iowa for the Western Division championship last year, are the parts which made Chicago the WPBL's most feared offensive machine. The Hustle averaged 114.5 points per game in 1978-79.

Rita Easterling, a 26-year old former Mississippi College cager, was the WPBL's Most Valuable Player. She averaged 21.6 points and 10 assists per game.

"Do you have about three hours?" Bruno joked when asked to describe Easterling. "I think of her as the Bob Cousy of the WPBL. She handles the point guard position well. She is our team leader."

Tickets for the game are on sale at the Women's Athletics Office in Davies Gym.

Netters to face top teams, players

By Rod Smith
Staff Writer

The men's tennis team will face some of the nation's best teams and top individuals this weekend, when they travel to Belleville for the SIU-Edwardsville Fall Classic.

The Fall Classic will not have a dual meet format as in previous tournaments this fall, but will group the players and doubles teams in flights according to rank. The No. 1 players will be paired in their own single-elimination tourney, as will the other players through No. 6. The tournament will consist of nine separate brackets — six singles and three doubles.

Arkansas and Clemson, both ranked in the top 12 nationally in the unofficial Coaches' Association rankings, are entered, along with Big Ten tennis powers Wisconsin-Madison and Minnesota. Arkansas was ranked fourth in the nation before the NCAA tournament, and Clemson has essentially the same team back from last year's squad, which climbed to 15th in the nation. Host school SIU-E is the defending Division II champion. Illinois State and the University of Arkansas at Little Rock round out the field.

"There's going to be some real good tennis played this weekend," Coach Dick LeFevre said. "We are going to see all these teams again in the spring, so this should help our freshmen get used to the tougher competition."

LeFevre said Lito Ampon drew second-seeded Mike Gandolfo of Clemson in the first round of the No. 1 singles tournament. David Filer, the Salukis' No. 2 man, drew Hugo Nunetz of SIU-E as his first-round opponent. LeFevre said both Gandolfo and Nunetz probably will be ranked nationally next spring.

John Grief, Steve Smith, Eric Eberhardt and Jeff Banker will be the other Saluki singles players.

Harriers go after state crown

By Rick Klau
Staff Writer

Women's cross country Coach Claudia Blackman does not profess to be the "Jimmy the Greek" of Southern Illinois, but she does believe her lady harriers have a good chance of capturing first place in Saturday's IAAW State Championship at Midland Hills Country Club. The race will begin at 1 p.m.

"If you look at the results from the entire season, SIU would have to be, at best, a good bet to take fourth place," the veteran coach explained. "But I'm not counting us out. I believe the girls are ready."

Western Illinois, the favorite, will be entering the 5,000-meter event in quest of its third consecutive state championship. Last year, the Westerwinds edged Illinois, 44-55, to take the crown. The Salukis finished third, with 82 points.

Western Illinois will have to worry about more than the Salukis on Saturday. Both Illinois State and Illinois have excellent chances to deny the Westerwinds the championship.

Blackman believes the Redbirds have the best chance, besides the Salukis, to stop the WIU. Over the years, ISU has run very well on the Midland Hills course, including a 10th-place finish at this year's Saluki Invitational two weeks ago. They have two of the state's premier runners in Canadian sophomore Wendy Van Mierlo and senior Laura Buddenbaum. Although Van Mierlo has never competed at Midland, she has seen the course. Buddenbaum, in her only race on Midland this year, finished 10th in the invitational.

Illinois also will be a team the Westerwinds must contend with if they are to repeat as champions. For the Illinois to be strong, though, they need a healthy Mariame Dickerson, who has missed several races this season due to illness. Dickerson and Anita Moyer, a 27th-place finisher in this year's Saluki Invitational, give the Illinois two talented runners.

The key for the Salukis, Blackman said, is to run very well and hope the other schools run poorly.

"It's going to be hard," she said. "But I'm not counting us out. I believe our girls are ready."

Blackman is hoping for four finishers in the top 15. If this goal is attained, she said, the Salukis shouldn't be denied a first-place finish.

"Everyone will have to come up with a personal best if we are able to make a big move in the standings," Blackman said.

Individually, the Salukis look strong. Junior Lindy Nelson is fully recovered from a sprained thigh muscle which kept her out of the Saluki Invitational. The Freeburg native will be defending the individual championship she won last year in record time of 17:41.

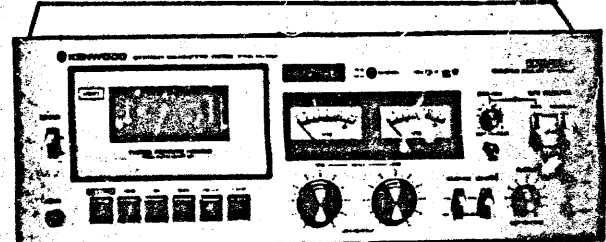

Sophomore Patty Plymire proclaimed, after being the first Saluki runner to cross the finish line in the Saluki Invitational, she has "finally broken the mental barrier of Midland Hills and is ready to do well in the state meet."

Blackman feels that Nelson's main stumbling block to becoming the first Salukian to win back-to-back IAAW cross country titles may not be Western Illinois' talented Lori Delpa, Illinois' Moyer or even Illinois State's Buddenbaum, but her own teammate Plymire.

Salukis hope to find right mix at NIU

By David Garrick
Sports Editor

A healthy football team sometimes causes as many problems for a coach as a hurt one. No longer is it a problem of trying to find someone else to play a vacant position, but of deciding which of several players will start.

The Salukis, who had a week of rest and relaxation that allowed the wounded to mend, now find themselves with an abundance of players.

Head Coach Rey Dempsey has not announced who his starting quarterback will be for Saturday's game against Northern Illinois at DeKalb. John Cernak and Gerald Carr have split the duties in practice. Chances are the one that starts will give way to the other at sometime during the game.

"There is a chance that we will use more than one," said Dempsey, adding he may insert Arthur Williams in situations other than those that call for the bomb in the contest that begins at 1:30 p.m.

The same situation exists at running back. Clarence Robison is slated to start against NIU. The senior rushed for 104 yards two weeks ago against Wichita State. Robison, however, may split the duties with Walter Poole, who missed the game against the Shockers because of a shoulder injury.

What is known is that Burnell Quinn will start at fullback, and that the offensive line will remain the same. Quinn, who is averaging 7.6 yards a carry since moving from tailback three games ago, could break Amos Bullocks' record for career rushing yards. Quinn needs only 38 more to pass Bullocks' record of 2,441.

Split end Kevin House is near the team record for career receiving yards. House, who has caught only three passes for 119 yards since the Tennessee State game, is 92 yards short of Tom Massey's record of 1,350.

"I haven't picked it up myself," said Dempsey, referring to extra motivation to help Quinn and House attain the records. "Maybe it's in the back of their minds."

"Our kids are team oriented," Dempsey continued. "If we win, we feel those yards will take care of themselves."

Dempsey is relying on his offensive line, the healthiest group of all in the injury-plagued season, to open holes and provide pass blocking against a Huskie defensive unit that Dempsey said is very physical.

"Their defense is the strongest part of the team," Dempsey said. "Their front seven (five linemen and two linebackers) are good against the run. They're good at stopping the run inside. They tackle hard."

The goal is to break up the congestion in the middle. The selection of what quarterback to use in a situation may be the answer.

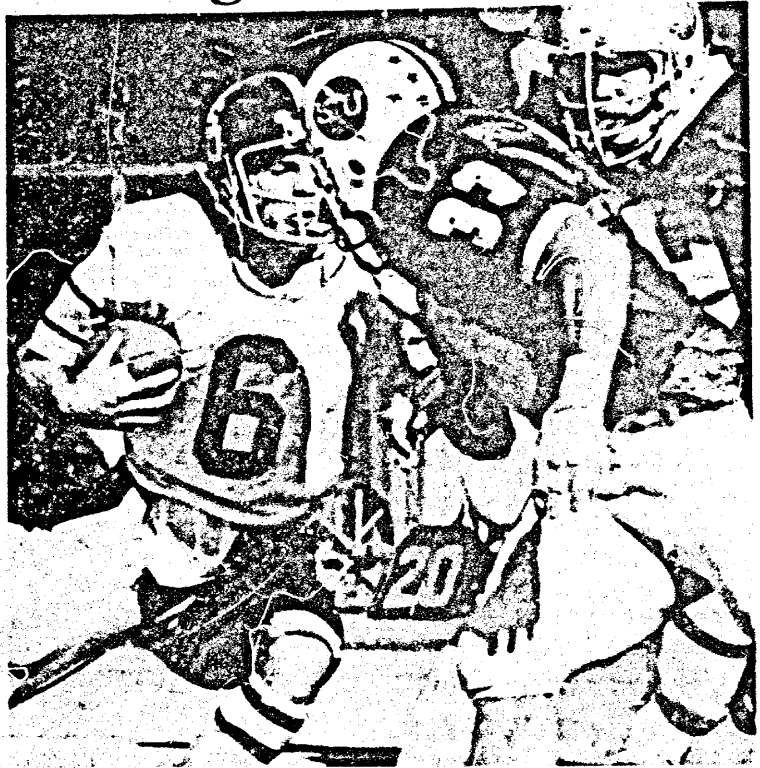

Dempsey believes Northern Illinois will have to play a different style of defense depending on who the Salukis play at quarterback. Carr can scramble and is quick to rush to the outside. Cernak passes better. Williams can run and throw the long pass.

"If we switch, we'll do it by series," Dempsey said. "I expect both to play. I'm not adverse to throwing Arthur in there, too."

Dempsey listed two offensive goals: no fumbles and improved third down efficiency.

"We've worked hard on our third down efficiency," Dempsey said. "In games that we've lost it's been pretty poor. We've got to do better on third down. We've got to make the third and one's and two's."

While hoping to keep the NIU defense guessing, Dempsey believes he knows what to expect from the Huskie offense, a unit which runs on 70 percent of its plays.

"They rely on ball control," Dempsey said. "We want to stop them from running the ball. When you're moving the ball on the ground, you can pop in the action pass to help the drive."

"The Eastern Illinois game is an example of that," Dempsey continued. "We want to stop their running game. We did for a while. As their running game got going, it helped the passing game go."

The key to stopping the Northern Illinois running game will be to neutralize the offensive line, according to Dempsey.

Spikers host tough competition in weekend tourney

Senior Dinah Devers practices her serve in preparation for the Saluki Invitational Friday and Saturday at the Arena. SIU opens the tournament at 6 p.m. Friday against Eastern Michigan.

By Mark Pabich
Staff Writer

DePaul University women's volleyball Coach Sandy Vrba thinks her Lady Blue Demons, 22-8-3, can win the fourth annual, eight-team Saluki Invitational this weekend at the Arena. That feeling seems to be shared by many of the coaches, including SIU's Debbie Hunter.

"They're a big, solid team," Hunter said. "Their players are all strong. DePaul would have been my guess when we first scheduled the tournament."

Vrba said her team could use the tournament championship to boost confidence.

"Right now, our momentum is flowing," she said. "A win at SIU would really help us on the road to the state tournament."

Even though she considers DePaul a slight favorite, Hunter is quick to point out that they are not an overpowering force.

"They do look good on paper," Hunter said. "But a good record and statistics don't always do the trick."

"There are other strong teams in the tournament like Cincinnati. They've won two big invitationals so far this year."

The University of Cincinnati carries an impressive 23-11 record into the two-day tournament.

"We haven't seen SIU play yet, so I don't know too much about them," Cincinnati Coach Carmen Pennick said. "DePaul, however, would have to be a good choice."

Besides DePaul and Cincinnati, Hunter said SIU has a good shot at being crowned invitational champions.

"As long as we can play up to our capabilities, we have a good shot to be in the finals," Hunter said. "Unless we play poorly, we'll enter bracket play on Saturday as one of the final four teams."

The eight teams will be divided into two pools of four teams. The top two teams in each pool will advance to bracket play to determine the winner. Cincinnati, Eastern Michigan and Memphis State are in SIU's pool. DePaul, Eastern Kentucky, Miami of Ohio and Mississippi University of Women make up the other pool.

Hunter said she would like nothing better than to have the two Illinois schools, SIU and DePaul, face each other another in the finals.

"It will depend on the outcome of our game with Cincinnati, but facing DePaul in the finals would give the fans some high-caliber play between two in-state rivals."

"The fact that we don't have to travel this weekend will be a significant edge," Hunter said. "Our team will be up emotionally, too. It's Parent's Weekend for us."

"We're looking forward to the invitational. The fans will get to see a lot of good volleyball action this weekend."

Tickets are $2 for adults, $1 for high school students, and 50 cents for SIU students. Tickets may be purchased at the ticket windows at the Arena Friday night and Saturday.

Hockey team gets 'spirit' for WIU

By Jeffrey Smyth
Staff Writer

There are going to be a lot of "spirited" people roaming the streets of Carbondale this weekend. There will be another spirited person — "The Great Pumpkin" — who will visit the women's field hockey team.

Saturday in an attempt to give it inspiration. The stickhandlers hope the inspiration will carry them through a day of games against Western Illinois University and Illinois State University.

The Great Pumpkin is something Coach Jules Ilber started 10 years ago to give her team an emotional lift in preparation for the Midwest Regional tournament. It started as a plastic statuette of a personified pumpkin that was filled with candy and notes of good luck for the tourney-bound team.

Since then, the tradition of The Great Pumpkin has grown into that of a person that masquerades as a great
