County voters to decide fate of clerk's office

By Bob Deloney
Staff Writer

Jackson County voters, besides electing public officials Nov. 2, will decide the structure of the county clerk's office and the fate of a proposed state constitutional amendment on ballot in Illinois.

Voters will decide whether the county should, as prescribed by law, separate the offices of county clerk and recorder of deeds.

The county clerk has previously handled the duties of both offices. However, Illinois law stipulates that the two offices be separated when a county's population reaches 60,000 unless a majority of the voters oppose the division. Jackson County population was 61,302 in the 1980 census. Incurbent County Clerk Bob Harrell said the increase in population since 1970 to 61,592 was not significant and there has been little extra work for his office in the last few years.

Both candidates for county clerk superintendents of elections who would allow the county clerk to continue handling the duties of both offices.

Harrell said the cost of separating the offices would run the county into the tens of thousands of dollars. He said a temporary firing a recorder of deeds would be a necessity, as well as creating office space, storage space and hiring a staff. Law stipulates that the two offices be separated. A bill to allow under Illinois law, put the responsibilities and ballot as a cost-saving measure.

Harrell said there may be confusion among voters because of the complicated wording of the referendum. It reads, "Shall the office of recorder of deeds in Jackson County be abolished, and the duties of that office continue to be performed by the county clerk?"

Harrell said voters may only read the statement and decide that the office of recorder of deeds is needed and cannot be eliminated. A "no" vote would separate the office and necessitate hiring another official. However, a "yes" would keep the offices combined.

The proposed constitutional amendment would enable judges to deny bail to defendants when a sentence of life imprisonment is imposed. Currently, defendants in a capital offense case may be denied bail where the proof is evident or the presumption of guilt great.

On the bail proposal, some political officials are more surprised by the lack of publicity than concerned about the consequences of the proposal. Robert Roiser, faculty member in political science, said he only heard about the amendment last week.

"It's going to have an important effect on crime in Missouri and nobody's heard about it," Roiser said.

Roiser said he did not think it would be knocked down by the courts as an infringement on a person's rights. One argument against the proposal listed on a circulated petition is that the secretary of state's office is that it would make the presumption of innocence guaranteed in the Constitution.

The proposal was adopted in 1972 in order to prevent persons charged with crimes from committing a second crime while on bail and to ensure that defendants show up for trial.

Rep. Ralph Dunn, R-58th District, sent the news media a copy of language on increasing awareness of the proposed amendment.

Search continues for Menard escapee

CHESTER (AP) - Investigators checked a recovered stolen car and an ax for fingerprints. Monday in a manhunt for a convicted murderer who was discovered missing from Menard Prison after an employee was found dead.

The 1972 Chevrolet of Joseph Cushman, 32, of Chester, a forklift operator at the prison, was found abandoned Monday morning near a bridge over the Big Muddy River near Christopher, police said.

Randalph County Coroner Gary McLaughlin said Cushman had been killed with an ax in a farm storage building outside the wall of the maximum security facility in southwestern Illinois. He said Bruce Davis, 34, a native of Toledo, Ohio, had been assigned to store jobs in the area.

Cushman's trousers and his wallet, as well as his car, had been taken, according to McLaughlin. During a later inmate count, Davis was discovered missing.

Cushman was married and the father of five children, police said.

A force of 75 lawmen, using planes, helicopters and dogs, were in a manhunt in the wooded countryside around Christopher, in Fulton County, about 46 miles east of Chester. Police said Davis was armed and "extremely dangerous."

"Davis certainly is a prime suspect and we are scouring the area for him," said Nic Howell, Illinois Department of Corrections spokesman.

Davis was convicted Tuesday of a 15- to 16-year murder sentence in a concurrent 8- to 10-year term in connection with the death of a Roman Catholic priest in Clinton County in 1974.

The victim of that murder, P. Rev. Carl Barlasauna of Butler, N.Y., was robbed and strangled while on a one-night stopover at a hotel on the way to his new assignment in San Diego, Calif. Davis was sentenced to life in 1972 after some of the priest's belongings were recovered from his abandoned car.

Pern Davis was last reported alive in Chicago.

Howell said Davis was transferred to Menard in March 1979 after spending 17 years in a federal prison for a murder and robbery committed in Washington, D.C.

Inquiry still has no 'prime suspect'

CHICAGO (AP) — Nearly a month after the deadly street battle in which seven people died and 20 were wounded, authorities said Monday they still have no "prime suspects" and are not even eliminating anyone from a large pool of suspects.

The Chicago Sun-Times reported Monday that a relative of one of the seven victims has been named as a "prime suspect," but investigators denied that report.

Sharon says he OK'd raid on campus

JERUSALEM (AP) — Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, in testimony to the commission probing the Beirut massacre, took responsibility Monday for letting Lebanese Christian militiamen into the Palestinian refugee camps. He said Prime Minister Menachem Begin had known nothing about it.

Sharon said the decision to let the Christian into the camps was worked out by the chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Yehuda Yatom, and himself. "It was an incorrect decision, but Sharon approved it, because it was the right thing to do."

But when the questions touched on the mechanics of getting the Christians into the camps, he said he was "not even aware of it."
Impact of graduate tuition plan not yet known, Jackson says

By Glany Lee
Staff Writer

A policy enabling some out-of-state students to enroll in graduate school at SIU-C and SIUE at in-state tuition rates has probably had some impact on graduate enrollment at SIU-C, according to Dean of Graduate Studies, Jack Johnson.

He said though it is too early to tell, "we think that it has had some impact on graduate enrollment because of the desire to do some research on that later."

Louisiana mayor takes no slop from lawbreaking pigs

RICHWOOD, La. (AP) - The mayor of this small northeasterly Louisiana town is in hot water after shooting two pigs rooting in a constituent's garden.

Mayor Verdace Hampton-Gilton, a widow, was arrested by her own police Sunday for killing the pigs.

She insisted she was only trying to right a wrong. The pigs were a problem, she said, and the owner didn't move them she said.

Mrs. Hampton-Gilton, free Monday on $500 cash bond, was booked on a charge of mistreating an animal and one count of criminal damage to property.

The complaint against her was filed by Jerron Shaw, a resident of nearby Monroe who said Mrs. Hampton-Gilton unlawfully and intentionally shot the animals without his consent.

He also accused her of physical pain and suffering. She said Shaw was arrested for allowing his pigs to wander within the city limits.

The new policy enables residents from Missouri and 14 western counties of Kentucky to enroll at in-state rates. It was intended to attract more out-of-state students into SIU-C's graduate programs, Johnson said.

"It's still in its early and sort of experimental stages, but we're satisfied with it so far," he said.

Missourians who enroll in six hours or less of graduate study are eligible for in-state tuition, while Western Kentucky residents are not limited in the number of hours they take, Johnson said.

He noted 28 students from Missouri and six students from Kentucky took advantage of the policy, which applies to any of the 67 master's and 22 doctoral degree programs offered by the University, Jackson said.

The policy incorporates a "reciprocal agreement" with the two states, Jackson said, according to what the states offer students from SIU-C.

While some Southern Illinois University students often go to Missouri or Kentucky for their undergraduate education, residents from those two states are encouraged to come to SIU-C for their graduate degrees, Jackson said.

"We do have to sell them," he said. "Illinois is a net exporter of students. This is one way to wind up importing rather than exporting."

"As far as I'm concerned, it's going very nicely," he said. "Frankly, I think SIU can be the comprehensive university for this area."

Jackson said that no other institution exists in this area with the diversity of programs that is offered at SIU-C. Students in Missouri would have to go to Columbia, while those in Kentucky would have to go to Lexington in order to have access to such a comprehensive university, Jackson said.

"Both are practically on the other side of those states," he said. "In other words, we're much closer," despite the state boundary line.

Students warned to keep eyes on their wallets, books, packs

By Jennifer Phillips

The best way to prevent your wallet or backpack from being stolen, to leave it unattended, says Joyce Echols of SIU-C Security.

Thirty-seven wallets, purses, backpacks and books have been reported stolen from office and classroom classrooms this month, she said. The majority of those had been left unattended.

If a student is in a certain location, she said, "mainly because they have a high flow of traffic. There were 38 office and classroom thefts reported to SIU-C Security in September and 28 in August, she said.

Two of the items taken in October was fully recovered, while six were partially recovered, meaning that the purse or backpack was found but the contents were missing. Security officers have described how the thief, she said, but do not have any specific leads.

The election of a sheriff is important in an area as rural as Jackson County. Both candidates have stated that the sheriff's office needs revamping and restructur- ing. We agree.

In the past few years, the office of sheriff has not really had the trust and support of the people of Jackson County. Both candidates have said that this needs to change in order for the sheriff's office to be effective. It's on how to regain that trust and be more effective that they begin to differ.

The candidates are Republican Bill Maurizio and Democrat William Kilquist — two men qualified by experience but very different in background and outlook.

It is this difference in background and outlook that leads us to favor William Kilquist. Kilquist is one of the inter-agency competition and politics need to be taken out of investigating major crimes. He has stated that the efforts of the numerous law enforcement agencies of the county need to be pooled and coordinated to work on major crime cases.

He also has definite and promising plans for coordinating patrolling of the county.

Maurizio has stated that he believes in having an open office where anyone can come in and talk to him, but his plans for improving the performance of the sheriff's office don't measure up to Kilquist's. Kilquist has had 13 years of police and investigative experience — with the Carbondale Police Department as patrolman, crime prevention specialist, juvenile officer, tactical officer, and detective.

Since 1981, he has been with the state's attorney's office — a position that can only be a plus if he is elected sheriff.

Maurizio was a state policeman for 24 years and is currently a security officer at the University of Illinois. He has been out of touch with people in the county.

Kilquist favors setting up special task forces special training for deputies to prepare them to handle unexpected situations. Maurizio believes that officers should be trained at the expense of an on-the-road time. He believes there is sufficient training on the job. Maurizio's approach may save some money, but it is not the best approach.

Maurizio hopes that with him as sheriff, things will fall in place. Kilquist is ahead in all aspects.

Why aren't Republicans invited to speak at SIU?

Candidate after candidate has been paraded on SIU campus to speak to the students in the absence of any intimation in need of the students. To listen to certain student leaders and their favorite professors, you would quickly get the impression that there is only one political party that carries any weight on this campus. It is naive we must be! Candidates for political offices, like the political process itself, must be open to all voices. Overall, it boils down to Kilquist wanting to change the department, while Maurizio hopes that with him as sheriff, things will fall in place.

Kilquist is ahead in all aspects.

Chief focus of GSE courses should be participation, not skill

by Mike Fawst
Graduate Student, Physical Education

As a graduate assistant in physical education, my primary duty is to instruct in various GSE courses. I believe that recreation is essential to "living the good life." I also believe that participation in and enjoyment of various types of physical activities is more important than mere proficiency in the activities.

For these reasons I am disturbed by the emphasis on skill in the evaluation of students' efforts in GSE courses. I feel this emphasis unfairly penalizes those who are not experienced athletes and may make them reluctant to take similar courses in the future, a situation which is the antithesis of what proponents of physical education would presumably desire to create.

In support of my opinion, I would like to state several arguments advanced in favor of the status quo and attempt to rebut them:

"GSE courses are taken for academic credit; therefore traditional academic evaluation is valid." This assertion is indicitive of the battle for legitimacy that supporters of physical education have had to wage since the decline of ancient Greek culture. Skeptical of the close relationship between development of the body and development of the intellect, academia has traditionally forced its methods of evaluation onto physical education.

As an act of survival, physical education's advocates have found it necessary to accept these methods and stress the similarity of their discipline to academic disciplines. However, the similarity should not be promoted to the point that we forget the distinctive qualities of physical activity and the benefits available to all who seek them.

The rigorous, exacting demands placed upon those who would be doctors, engineers or nuclear physicists are not necessarily as rigorous as physicians when imposed upon individuals seeking improved health and well-being. The state objectives of GSE courses, in light of these stated objectives, traditional evaluation serves no purpose other than as an "excuse" to differentiate between students.

In any course, some students have advantages over others. This is no doubt true. But aside from differences noted above, academic courses are taken by students from other academic courses. Most courses taken outside the area of a student's major concentration are introductory, "survey" courses. They consist of a necessarily sketchy overview of the subject matter; a few basic concepts and the terminology of the field.

The material can be readily mastered by the average student in four months. The same cannot be said for an eight-week softball course, where the skills involved must be developed virtually over the course of a lifetime. Although improvement certainly can occur, in the course of barely more than a dozen afternoons on the course will achieve anything approximating "mastery."

"Students who are not "skilled" can compensate in other aspects of the course." For the eight-week softball course, the coordinator has recommended that 56 percent of the student's grade stem from evaluation of softball skills. The possibility of compensation, therefore, is quite limited.

"Students may elect to take the course under the pass-fail grading system." This is perhaps the strongest argument I have against the pass-fail system for GSE courses. Many students are taking this option. This may be due to their failure to investigate academic options, or it may be the lazy option. I do not believe that such an option should be exercised before careful consideration. In accordance with University regulations, while the instructor does not discuss grading compliance with the GSE coordinator until the third or fourth week of the semester. Moreover, those involved in the teaching of physical education have a responsibility to support accessibility to it, an endeavor that would be greatly enhanced by the general adoption of the pass-fail system.

The problem with skill evaluation in activity courses is that it places undue emphasis on the product, at the expense of the process. Our paramount goal should be to induce a life-long interest in health and well-being through physical activity. A momentary assessment of ability, rewarded or penalized, does little to further that goal. As educators, we do our students a grave disservice by adherence to such methods of evaluation.

Store books in fall-out shelters!

For the past several weeks I have been following the on-going debate over the Trojan Building and have decided that something must be done. As a member of the GSE, Faculty Senate, Governor Thompson, etc. was getting little attention. Some leaders of the "defenders" claimed that too would offer a suggestion. According toause to have an A, Defense Planners the un- ament of skyline and pedestrian traffic tunnels that run through the university can accommodate up to ten people in the event of a nuclear war. In this mind I would like that that same system could easily handle 300,000 to 400,000 volumes or perhaps as many as a million. Then you could take the $1.2 million and hire several librarians to figure out some ingenious cataloging system. It would probably take much less time and money to locate a library of these books somewhere as it would be to call over to Mauckville and have the book driven all the way to Carbondale.

And just think, if we ever go to war without going into those tunnels, we would be able to avoid nuclear fallout we would also be able to get a better library material. - Nicholas L. Kim, Graduate.

Kilquist should stop blowing his own horn

I have noticed that in Mr. Kilquist’s bid for the Sheriff’s Office in Jackson County, he has been making several seemingly apologetic statements about all of the crimes which he has “personally solved” (by solving the incident) and secondly, how he solved them “by himself.”

For the record, solving a crime, why is he ad vocating a “me, myself and I” frame of reference. We are indeed, already existing Sheriff Whit’s administration as well as other past sheriffs.

I know several police officers, having at one time worked for the SIU-C Security Office, and I cannot recall any officer claiming that he personally solved any crime. To solve a crime it takes patrolmen, detectives, crime scene technicians and most importantly, cooperation with the law enforcement agency involved. I think that in “blowing his own horn,” Mr. Kilquist has insulted those of us who have been working under his management (cooperation and participation in solving the crimes which occur within the county).

I would strongly suggest that if you cast vote for Sheriff of Jackson County, do remember that it takes team work to solve crime. No person can as Mr. Kilquist insists—solve crime by himself. It takes experience to lend that team and obtain solutions to crime. I think Mr. Mauritio has that experience.

Simons is concerned with every individual

With election time running near and snappy running high, I feel perhaps that I share the voters of this community an experience that urged me to vote.

When I was 12, I quit most of my battle games and decided to go to school to take a job. My father had become disabled and could not support my family. Simons must have worked to be able to work for the last two years, we were living day-to-day.

For the next three years we worked very hard to determine whether my father was actually eligible for Social Security. Unfortunately, it is one of the worst problems for the world of the doctor employed by Social Security. My father’s application was taken over the word of both our family doctor and the question of the Veterans’ Administration. We were repeatedly denied.

At this point we were almost ready to give up and try to struggle by on welfare when by change I had an opportunity to speak to our congressman, Paul Simon, at a lecture he had given at our school. I told Mr. Simon of our problem and he took the trouble to contact the congressman from my state. Later, he called my father and also wrote to keep us informed on his progress. Before two months had been reviewed and we were finally granted the compensation. To this day when Paul Simon sees me he asks how my family is doing.

I firmly believe that those who accuse Mr. Simon of not being able to get even the smallest things accomplished are wrong. He has been concerned about this area and each individual who lives there and that is why I will vote for Paul Simon—for us. J. Pa. McClanahan, Jaslyn, Mansfield, Ills.

Education is main issue

By Anita Jackson, Student Writer

Many issues have been tossed around in the minds of the voters for Stevenson gubernatorial race. Unfortunately some of the issues brought up have not remained backstage while trivial issues such as whether or not Stevenson is a “wimp,” have stolen the show.

Colleges across the country are overcrowding on the real issues during this time period especially with the issue of education funding. Let us not look at what each candidate plans to do with the education program but let us look at what each candidate is doing to build a future for the students.

Richard D. Wagner, executive director of the Illinois Board of Higher Education, said the issue is the most significant fiscal challenge the state has experienced.

“The uncertainty of the future is what’s going to be difficult to deal with,” he said.

In the past, Illinois has had a good record in terms of industrial scholarships and grants. During the 1980s through 1981, Illinois ranked third in the nation in terms of state financial aid by the National Scholarship and Grant Programs, according to a report of the director of the Illinois State Scholarship Commission.

Thompson has already announced his plans to expand educational programs in the student education by $75 million in addition to expanding the funds for the education fund. "...candidates have education high on their lists during this political season," but on Nov. or not the winner carries out his promises remains to be seen.

Viewpoint The Gubernatorial Race

Thompson Reagan buddy but...

By Jaka Small, Student Writer

ONE of the biggest points of emphasis in all of Democratic gubernatorial challenger Adlai Stevenson’s campaign rhetoric is Gov. James Thompson’s political association with former President Reagan.

Since his first step on the campaign trail, Stevenson has espoused his view that Reagan’s conservative economic policies have failed. In his run, he has cited soaring unemployment figures, a huge federal deficit, cuts in federal programs, and a soaring defense budget as evidence of Reagan’s failure.

But do these issues belong in a gubernatorial candidate’s speeches? Stevenson thinks so.

Stevenson insists that a vote for Thompson is a vote of confidence for Reagan. Both Thompson and Reagan are, after all, Republicans. Both men are considered conservative. And at least since the 1962 GOP convention, they have been political allies.

THE alliance of ideology, however, is not quite so notable between the two men. The record shows appreciable differences in the policies of Thompson and Reagan, whether in respect to social finances, social programs or government.

Stevenson has repeatedly proven his conservative fiscal tendencies. While he is willing to sacrifice a balanced federal budget for increased spending, Thompson refuses to sacrifice the balance for anything. Reagan has also been willing in the past almost to avoid a balanced budget, while Thompson has lobbied hard for liquor and gasoline tax hikes in order to achieve the budget balance.

Thompson, however, tends to be more concerned with social welfare than does Reagan. Thompson has promised to expand social programs which help abused and abandoned children in Illinois, while his White House predecessor has slashed away at U.S. social programs.

Thompson has even been known to support a bigger and better-paid-government...an inclination which political analysts usually refer to as the "pay-pause," opposed the legislative cutback referendum and opted for higher salaries for state workers.

On the other hand, Thompson has even been known to support a bigger and better-paid-government...an inclination which political analysts usually refer to as the "pay-pause," opposed the legislative cutback referendum and opted for higher salaries for state workers.

In other words, Jim Thompson is far from being a Ronald Reagan clone. Though the two men do agree on a few basics of Republican conservatism, many of their policies are remarkably different.

The failure in Stevenson’s contentions is his assumption that two political allies will inevitably enact the same policies on their own respective levels of government. While political alliances are a necessary element of the U.S. party structure, they do not always translate into a similar governmental teamwork. More often, they make for strange bedfellows.

Which leaves us wondering why Stevenson is making such a point over Reagans record as he is over Thompson’s.

Unless, of course, Stevenson is having trouble finding problems in Thompson’s record to complain about.

...Adlai is the man for the job

Jami Kyropheou, Student Writer

EVERY POLITICAL CAMPAIGN brings about some accusations and candidates. This year’s gubernatorial campaign between Gov. James Thompson and Adlai Stevenson III is no different. Voters, however, need to look past the words exchanged in heated debates and seriously consider which man is better qualified to govern Illinois in the forthcoming years.

Stevenson has stressed particular emphasis on two major issues: balancing the budget and stringent measures against criminals. He also worked toward enforcing pay raises for top state officials.

THOMPSON IS A for the moment governor. His policies emphasize what is needed at any political time. Stevenson, a political scientist John Jackson says Thompson governs Illinois in a systematic way, analogous to a corporation.

One has to set the objectives, like balancing the budget, he proceeds to do what’s necessary. Stevenson argues that this type of governing doesn’t call for fixed principles or deep thought about the economic needs of the time. Jackson believes that a cunning strategist won’t bother looking at the state the economy and the state starting having difficulties, he then has to scramble to solve the problem. On the other hand, Stevenson has always been trying to aim for are the real influences and forces that shape the welfare of people and the nation.

It is this attitude that makes his stance on education appealing. He wants to reform Illinois high schools, emphasizing math, science and foreign language. Stevenson’s plan is an effort to match students’ knowledge with the changing world. He is very much actively involved. “by the time today’s first graders leave high school, life will be different, dramatically changed by new technologies,” Stevenson said.

AND 50 the question is: Should we elect a man who can probably sustain Illinois in the future. Stevenson believes that the problem should we more closely consider the future of our people and the state?

The problems and obstacles that face our next governor call for thoughtful analysis and informed judgment. Hopefully, these experiences dealing with national issues and Executive services at the state and national level are the very heart of a depression. It is time to elect a man whose ideals reach farther than just winning this election. Adlai Stevenson is the man who can offer this hope to the voters of Illinois.

Straight men and women will welcome the awareness week, emotions of many people will stir up, "but that is what gets people talking and makes them stop to think. We are very serious about getting people to think about this."

The gay and lesbian lifestyle as well as other ideals will be the topics of songs done at a concert by Charlie Murphy and James Settle at 8 p.m. Thursday in Ballroom B. Admission is $2.

Croteau said the gay and lesbian awareness week is the largest one that has ever been done and he hopes it will help to unite gays and lesbians on campus.

"Too many gays and lesbians feel like they are all alone," he said. "They grow a little bit of themselves as being perverted or sick, because of what they are taught all of their lives. That's not what being gay or lesbian is all about.

"We are decent human beings like other people," he said. Discussions will be held to help gays, lesbians and straights get rid of conflicts within themselves.

Croteau said successful gays and lesbians will share some of their experiences at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the Mississippi Room.

The women's world in music, art and literature as developed by and for lesbians and feminists, will be discussed at 3 p.m. Wednesday in the Mississippi Room.

Croteau said many gays and lesbians worry about being Christian so a discussion planned by representatives of gay Christian fellowships will be held.

Charlie Murphy will provide entertainment at 9 p.m. Wednesday in the lounge of Quigley Hall. Self-help called key to ending hunger

By Jack Wallace
Staff Writer

Self-sufficiency, not redistribution, is the answer to solving the world hunger problem, according to the Hunger Project. The group is about redistributing food that has already been produced, a logistical nightmare, and sending in subsidized food often undermines local agriculture, said David Fitts, the Hunger Project volunteer coordinator for assistance at a briefing. Fitts was the leader of an "Union of Concerned Scientists" Sunday at the Radisson Inn. The Hunger Project, a non-profit corporation established in 1977, seeks to eliminate world hunger and starvation by the end of this century. Members inform people about hunger and starvation through educational fliers, pamphlets, documentary films and public service announcements.

Calling the Hunger Project "primarily an educational organization," Fitts said it is "our expression of individual human beings that are concerned about any issue in the world."

Evidence shows that there is plenty of food being produced in the world right now that is not fed to people of the entire world," Fitts said. "If we were to cut the grain that's produced and redistributed it, we would eliminate hunger. The failure of our food production is increasing at a rate of 2.1 percent while population is increasing at 2 percent."

"We've actually doubled our capacity to produce food in the last 20 years and we can produce it in a way that is safe for the environment," Fitts said.

The Hunger Project gauges hunger in a country by its infant mortality rate. Countries with an infant mortality rate below 56 are classified as having "put an end to hunger as a basic issue," Fitts said. "This does not mean that all hunger has been eliminated in that country."

Fitts defined the basic types of hunger as chronic undernutrition, malnutrition, malabsorption, seasonal hunger and famine and starvation. Recent famines have occurred in Bangladesh, Cambodia and Biafra.

"Famine and starvation take 10 percent of the 15 to 20 million people per year who die from hunger," he said. "The other forms take 90 percent."

During the last famine in Cambodia, the Hunger Project raised $1 million in donations for relief organisations.

The old assumption that people will always starve "just doesn't have to be true anymore," Fitts said. "But the first step in having the world work is in our own individual lives."

Countries with different resources, forms of government and levels of wealth have alleviated hunger in recent years. In Taiwan, a successful land-reform program led to a 90 percent increase in rice production. The infant mortality rate declined from a post-World War II high of 100, down to the 20s by 1976.

Danna Zahar, a Hunger Project volunteer in cardboard, said she would like to work with service or hunger organization that would like to hold a briefing for its members.

The Hunger Project works to make people aware of the possibility of eliminating hunger. Their briefing summary stated that current food production could feed 7 billion people, with a projected population in the year 20000 of 6 billion.

Draft sign-up tied to aid

By Debra Colburn
Student Writer

All students eligible to register for the draft must do so by next fall to receive any form of financial aid, said June Simmons, director of student work and financial assistance at SIU-C."

"We must enforce the military Service Selective Service Act, which was passed by the U.S. Congress in September, sponsored by Rep. Thomas Hartman, R-South Alton," the act states that any veteran required to register for military service who fails to do so "shall be ineligible for any form of assistance or benefit provided under title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965," according to the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators Newsletter.

Effective July 1, 1983, students must both register for the draft and file a statement of compliance with the school they are attending or planning to attend in order to receive any grant, loan or work assistance, according to the newsletter.

Never before has a federal financial aid requirement concern for draft registration and presentation of an aid form to exist, Camille said.

"We must be sure that our federal aid office is not currently collecting this type of data, it is impossible to estimate how many military aid recipients will be required to register and file a statement with our office," Camille said.

"The exact form to be completed is not yet to be determined by the Department of Education," Camille said. "The Department of Education will be sending guidelines to universities concerning this new federal law within the next six weeks."

Students receiving financial aid are required to file the affidavit of educational purpose, and the statement concerning draft registration can be incorporated into the affidavit. However, the exact requirements and specific documentation have not been determined," Camille said.

Miss Illinois leads parade

By Jeanna Hester
Staff Writer

Participating in the Miss America pageant may be the best thing that has happened to Janie Jeffers, 22, who was crowned Miss Illinois 1982. “I wasn’t let down by what goes on behind the scenes. It is not exploitive,” she said.

Jeffers said that thousands of girls competed on the local level to be in the Miss America pageant. “I felt fortunate to be one of the fifty,” she said. “I have a lot of respect for the girl who won.”

Jeffers was in Carbondale this weekend to be Homecoming grand marshal of the parade. Speaking of the Miss America pageant she said, “There was not stuff competition between us.” She said they were all real, normal girls who had worked hard and spent a lot of time and effort to get to the contest. Jeffers said and she said that she had developed some lasting friendships with some of the other contestants.

Jeffers said that she spent six weeks preparing for the pageant beginning the day after she was crowned as Miss Illinois. Without sleep and without knowing what to expect, she subsisted in 1, 2, short-telecrown, wardrobe, and hair included.

Each day Jeffers said that she spent from 6 a.m. to about midnight preparing. Most of the time was spent shopping for her clothes. She attended the pageant for the talent portion of the show. “Talent is half the battle,” said Jeffers.

As a result of the shopping spree Jeffers said that she now has a wardrobe of 15 to 20 formal dresses priced on the average at $1,000. “The pageant pays for most of them,” she said.

One of the gowns weighs, 12 pounds and was designed by a man in Galveston. It has bronze and gold pansies on it made out of 10,000 bugle beads, which she said took over 900 man hours to sew on by hand. Jeffers wore the gown for the Miss America contest.

Winning the Miss America title “changed my life completely,” Jeffers said.

Smearing her teeth with Vaseline to help her smile continuously under hot lights and practicing smiling for the modeling sessions are just a small part of being Miss Illinois. Jeffers said.

In her contract, Jeffers said that she can only gain 10 pounds from the day that she won until her reign is over. “It is a constant diet. I have to watch my weight very closely.” The contract also requires that Jeffers keep a good moral character and that all her appearances be made as Miss Illinois.

Jeffers’ duties as Miss Illinois include making guest appearances for a long time ago I used to be nervous,” she said. “But you learn that people are all the same, so it doesn’t bother me too much anymore,” she said.

Next month Jeffers will be speaking to the Illinois Legislature on what she has observed in the state and on where she believes that the young people in Illinois are going. Later in the year, she will be travelling to Washington D.C. to meet Illinois Senators and Representatives.

As Miss Illinois Jeffers is constantly on public display. “It is an image that people expect you to keep up. When the image bothers her, she said that she hides out somewhere like a friend’s house. “People look at you a lot different,” Jeffers said. “They see the crown before they see me, so the challenge is to get to know people. I get excited around people.”

Jeffers is a celebrity in her home town more so than anywhere else. She said that the townspeople have bumper stickers and buttons bearing her picture and proclaiming that Miss Illinois is from their hometown, Mount Carmel. “I’m still not quite used to it,” she said.

Prior to being named Miss Illinois Jeffers was an accounting student at SIU-C and after winning her crown, she said that she will return to finish her degree.

It will be a relief to get back to a semi-normal life,” she said.

HEADACHES LAST A LONG TIME

"Not too long" is a frequent response when I question a new patient about their recurring headache experiences. "As soon as I think the dull pain I can expect the pain to start to go away in ten or fifteen minutes."

These are recurring headaches I am talking about—these are headaches that are showing up back often with increased frequency and intensity. And yet these patients think that they are experiencing relief within ten or fifteen minutes.

I guess it could be considered a question of semantics—the message that something is wrong has been met, but the basic problem has not been relieved. Chiropractic care doesn’t try to detail the messenger of a health problem—as a matter of fact, many of our pa-

Randolph, Utah (AP) - Guards in the Rich County Jail are seeing little green inmates.
Sheriff Kim Mortensen says water has been going into both the jail and his office, bringing with it an invasion of tiny frogs.
He said about four inches of water had accumulated in the jail building by the end of September.
Since then, he said, "We've been doing our best to get rid of the water as well as the tiny green inmates."
Mortensen said most of the prisoners have been taking the influx in stride. In fact, some have made pets of the frogs.

Videotape to make SIU-C a star
By Andrew Herrmann
Staff Writer

Lights, camera, action. Cue SIU-C and roll 'em.

Get ready SIU-C. You're about to be made famous.

Now, Carbondale may have few similarities to Hollywood, but SIU-C will soon take a cue from the movie-making capital and become the location for a new videotaped production.

But this tape won't show up at the local Bijou or home boom tube. This tape will be seen primarily in state high schools as part of the SIU-C recruitment drive.

"It will allow us to bring the University to a high school and leave a part of it there," said Thomas McGinnis, assistant director of admissions. "The idea for the videotape came out of the Office of Admissions and Records but many universities have begun to make similar type videotapes, he said.

The still unnamed videotape is being produced by University Exhibits under the direction of Herb Meyer and is expected to be completed by the first week of December.

Recently, the film crew has taken to the air via an Illinois Department of Transportation helicopter, "to catch beauty of the campus," said Meyer.

"I hope to include the Student Center, the Library, the Student Recreation Center, and the area west of the campus," said McGinnis.

He said the videotaping will also take place on ground level indoors and outdoors in the coming weeks. A production budget has been set at $3,628, he said.

"The purpose of the videotape is to show people the campus without bringing them here," said McGinnis. "The campus is a real selling point of the University. Since many of our prospective students live a distance away, we thought it would be a good idea to take the campus to them. With the videotape, all a student would have to do is go into a counseling office and ask for it."

He said the tapes will be distributed on a three-month rotating basis to select high schools. Previously the University had a slide presentation but the new videotape will be better, he said.

He said that admissions representatives visit high schools annually to recruit students but that they're "only in the high school for three hours at the most. The videotape will allow the students to have access to SIU every day."

"We feel that the University has the talent and expertise to do this ourselves," McGinnis said. "We're trying to keep the costs down but still have a quality videotape."
Tech centers' and will outline Thompson's plan to put Illinois high technology facilities in a leadership position.

"In order to be a member of the Governor's Task Force on High Technology, will review the recommendations made by the task force and discuss implications for the IL System in a speech entitled: 'The Role of the IL System in the Development of Technology.'"

"Smith will discuss the role of the University in the development of a technology center that he says will be called: "SII-C: A Catalyst for Technology Development.""

Arkansas moved up from sixth to fifth and Nebraska slipped from fifth to sixth.

Georgia, a 27-14 winner over Kentucky, received three first-place ballots and 1,010 points. SMU, which downed Texas Tech 38-3 and knocked the Longhorns out of the Top Twenty, received two firsts and 978 points.

The other four first-place votes went to Arkansas, which thumped Houston 38-3 and polled 909 points. Nebraska, which rallied in the final period to defeat Missouri 25-19, received 824 points.

Arizona State, one of six unbeaten-united teams in the nation, was idle and received 784 points while climbing from eighth to seventh. Rounding out the Top Ten were Penn State, Alabama and North Carolina. Penn State rose from ninth to eighth with 765 points after trouncing West Virginia 24-0. Alabama fell from seventh to ninth with 746 points after a lopsided 31-3 decision over Cincinnati and North Carolina, idle last weekend, remained No.10 with 542 points.

The Second Ten consists of UCLA, Southern California, LSU, Florida State, Clemson, Miami, Oklahoma, West Virginia, Auburn and Michigan.

Last week it was UCLA, Southern Cal, West Virginia, LSU, Notre Dame, Miami, Florida State, Clemson, Texas and Oklahoma.

Auburn made it back to the Top Twenty after a three-week absence by trimming Mississippi State 35-17 and boosting its record to 6-1, while Michigan reappeared after a four-week lapse by crushing Northwestern 49-14. The Big Ten thus placed a team in the Top Twenty after missing last week for the first time since The AP poll began in 1936.

Sury's Q's are sitting atop the "A" Division at 5-1, while Fighting Fifteenth, Led Loose and Volley Girls share the mark in the "B" Division.

In the Co-Rec Division, Troy St. Joth, 3-1, will have an uphill fight trying to catch The Hawks, who have won all four of their matches rather blowby. Racketball, badminton, indoor mini-soccer and water polo seasons are also underway, bringing the total of active IM sports to six.

Besides the season events, the IM Department also sponsors several one-day competitions throughout the year. One such contest is the wrestling championships, to be held Wednesday, December 4th at 8 p.m. Weigh-ins to determine which class each person competes in will be held Wednesday from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m.

The entry deadline is Wednesdays at 5 p.m. Competition will be held in both men's and women's divisions, with weight classes being divided according to officials NCAA wrestling weight categories.

Brewers' manager Kuenn to return

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Harvey Kuenn, whose Milwaukee Brewers made it to the World Series after he took over the floundering team and told the players to have fun, will return next year as manager.

The Brewers announced at a news conference that the popular manager had signed a one-year contract to return in 1983. Terms were not announced.

"I wouldn't want it for any longer than that," Kuenn said.

People who know Bruce Richmond will tell you he doesn't talk all the time. He talks when he has something to say, but most of the time he listens.

He listens to people who have lost their jobs. He listens to Senior Citizens who are worried about their heating bills. He listens to farmers who are angry about unfair state taxes that eat up their profits. He listens to students who are worried about next year's tuition. He listens to parents, Teachers, Businessmen, Janitors, Clergymen, Coal Miners.

Bruce Richmond even listens to his fellow legislators. He listens to them very carefully, and when he hears a proposal that might help the jobless or the farmers or the elderly back home in Southern Illinois - then he votes for their proposal.

But what he's really doing is voting for all the people he has listened to. Which is why you should vote for him.

IM's going strong at midseason mark

By Brian Higgins Staff Writer

The flurry of activity at the Recreation Center has kept Joyce Craven and her Intramural staff swimming in scores and reports of every kind. As the heart of the fall semester IM programs swing into full gear, hundreds of teams and individuals will be gunning for a coveted title in their respective sports.

Mixed doubles tennis, consisting of three divisions, recently came to a close. The Novice Division saw James Kohut and Becky Lechman emerging as the champions, beating out Justin West and Karen Mueller. The senior-junior combination needed only two sets to claim the title.

Joel Sander and Gina McKee locked up a title in the Intermediate Division, ousting Steve McQueen and Lucinda Jackson, 3-2. In the Advanced Division, Senior Cecil Brown and Graduate Student Karen Adams kept the finals a two-set affair, knocking off Kraig Eckert and Karla Schneider.

Football, meanwhile, is rolling past the mid-season mark with 150 teams shooting for two titles. The "A" Division, consisting of 18 teams, has whittled down its undefeated participants to three. The Meet Puck anew on July 26, while the Bush Leaguers and Bowser set the pace in the league with a mark.

The "B" Division, populated by 33 requests, is being dominated by the TD Crew, rolling along at a 14-0 clip. The Crew has scored 144 points thus far, while not allowing an opponent to score against them three contests.

Volleyball competition is also zipping by the halfway mark. Mickey's Men are the only undefeated team remaining in the Men's "A" Division, sporting a 3-0 record. In the "B" division, three teams are currently unbeaten after three contests.

Golden Spike, Meaties and the Animals are all perfect in their tournaments.

Rugby Club romps again

By John Supplee Staff Writer

Even with its nine top players participating in an all-star game in Indiana, the SIU-C rugby club emerged triumphant in the Illinois State 30-0.

The win was the sixth straight for the rugger's as they upped their season record to 6-1. However, the club will not play this week.

The "B" team also romped to a 10-0 win over SIU-C's "B" team.

"We dominated both games," said club vice-president Mike Taschek. "Now we're ready for the tournament."

The tournament is the 15th All Ghosts Midwesters Invitational and the SIU-C club. The tournament has grown in popularity since the men in maroon claimed national recognition. The 16 teams entered represent the greatest number ever entered.

The teams are separated into either the class or upper class. The top finisher in each class will be declared champions.

Butler receives MVC honors again

Granvilleville came to SIU-C as a walkon. Now he's the Salukis leading tackler, and he's been widening that advantage since the third game of the year.

The junior linebacker had 15 solo tackles and 10 assists in Saturday's 21-9 win over Indiana State, and for the second week in a row was named Missouri Valley Conference Defensive player of the week. "I don't surprise us because he's one of our most outstanding players," said Coach Ray Dampney. "I feel very confident with Granville Bulle, out there. When he tackles you, he puts you away."

Butler also had 15 tackles for the Salukis, and might lead the team for the year even if he doesn't play against Kent State. John Harper, who has been bothered by a lingering ankle injury, is expected to start against Kent. Fabray Collins has come on with a rush to overtake K. Collins didn't start until the fifth game of the year.

Butler and Collins were among six players given team awards for Saturday's game. Other winners were safety Greg Shipp, corner-back Terry Taylor, tailback Jeff Ware, and offensive tackle Ed Wendel.

Ware had the second best rushing performance of the year Saturday, scoring two touchdowns and rushing for 80 yards on 10 carries to become the Salukis leading rusher. He now has 268 yards on 46 carries.

Derrick Taylor trails him with 244 yards on 44 carries, while the Salukis were also the Salukis leading receiver, catching three passes for 38 yards, as SIU-C broke a four game losing streak.

"It's tough not winning in a month," said Ware, "especially when you had such high goals. We still have the goal of winning our next three games."

Shipp had six tackles and blanked for two sacks. SIU-C swarmed over Indiana State, State quarterback Jeff Miller and limited the Screameaters air game to just 116 yards. Indiana State had 24 total yards of offense.

Rick Johnson managed to break Jim Harr's career completion mark in a game that saw the Salukis run more than they passed for the first time since their opening day win at Western Illinois. Johnson has now completed 285 passes as an SIU-C quarterback.

Johnson met Hart before the game as the St. Louis quarterback was given an Alumni Achievement award. "I was sucked meeting him," said John. "It was neat meeting him because he's been such an idol of mine."

John Harper had to come out of the game when he banged up a nagging ankle injury.

In the locker room Saturday, Harper was looking forward to next week's game at Eastern Illinois. "We're really back in the league with a bang," said John. "We're pretty hot right now. We still have the goal of winning our next three games."
