Train depot to replace 12 businesses

By Jacqui Koszrak
Staff Writer

Who are they to stand in the way of progress?

Most of them are just small-time businessmen who, by a stroke of bad luck, happen to be located on the site of the city's new train depot. To some of them, progress may mean going out of business.

According to a plan designed to improve railway traffic moving through Carbondale, the depot and its parking lot must be moved from its present location to a site further south on Illinois Avenue.

In the path of the proposed move are 12 operating business enterprises which have a Dec. 1 deadline to get out of the way. The Illinois Department of Transportation will pay the businesses the cost of relocating.

But the problem for most of them, is not what it costs to move, but where to move.

"I'm trying to find a place downtown, but so far, no luck," said Ody Dsangoulis, owner of Ody's Shoe Repair for the past eight years. "Maybe I'll have to go out of business, I don't know."

Dsangoulis, 60, has been in the shoe business since he opened his first shop in Greece 30 years ago.

"This puts me in such a difficult position," he said. "It would have been OK to move out in a couple of years. I had planned to retire then. But right now it's still important to me to have some business going."

Available rental space for business in the downtown area is limited, according to most of the owners. And since most of them depend on student patronage in that area, they do not believe relocating to any of the outlying shopping malls will prove to be profitable.

"I'm selling out. There's just nowhere to go," said Elias Et-Tawil, owner of Western Auto.

"I can't move to a location where there are businesses like mine. The competition from other hardware stores would put me right out of business."

In addition, since Et-Tawil has been at his present location for seven years his rent is relatively low when compared to the cost of space at a new location or at one of the malls.

"I used to be a manager for J.C. Penney's, but they moved me around all over the place. I bought this business so my family could settle down and now we have to go," he said.

Et-Tawil, 43, who runs the store with his wife Gail, said he will ask the city for an additional two weeks to relocate because the deadline falls during his busiest season.

"I have a whole stockroom filled with toys and sleds and Christmas gifts to sell," he said.

Study of fringe benefit costs may spell fee increase

By Paula D. Walter
Staff Writer

Another increase in student fees may occur in the near future, depending on the results of a study looking into a university's cost of providing fringe benefits for employees of auxiliary enterprises.

According to a memorandum issued to the presidents and system heads of state universities by the Illinois Board of Higher Education, the state legislature has instructed the IBHE to conduct the study. The action came as a result of Senate Joint Resolution No. 44, which was adopted in July.

Auxiliary enterprises, the memorandum stated, include housing services, food services, student centers, campus bookstores, student health centers, student and staff recreational facilities and other activities such as busing operations, laundromats and golf courses.

Currently, fringe benefits for the employees of these auxiliary enterprises are being funded through state monies. These fringe benefits include retirement contributions, employee term life insurance, employee health insurance, employee dependent health insurance and workmen's compensation.

Sen. Kenneth Buzbee, D-Carbondale, who co-sponsored the bill, said the legislature was afraid of losing control of general revenue funds and asked for the study to determine the total costs of the fringe benefits.

The IBHE has asked each university to determine the costs in this area and submit a report by Oct. 1. The IBHE will then compile the results and make a recommendation to the legislature, "hopefully by

IBHE considers alternatives to one-third tuition rule

By Ray Robinson
Staff Writer

The Illinois Board of Higher Education will sit down Tuesday to re-examine its often criticized "one-third rule," which stipulates that the amount students pay for tuition would cover at least one-third the cost of instructing them.

IBHE Executive Director James Furman said the meeting will only include discussion of the rule and possible alternatives to it, but Furman added that the board may take some action on the rule at its November meeting.

"If they do take some action, it will probably be in November because we prepare our budget recommendations in January," Furman said.

A report on tuition policy options prepared for the board's consideration by the IBHE staff outlines seven courses the IBHE might follow:

- Abolish tuition completely.
- Make students pay 100 percent of the instructional costs. (The report notes that this and the first option run contrary to past policy and would cause unpredictable but significant changes in university enrollments.)
- Establish differential

Single parent rates top award

By Cindy Humphreys
Staff Writer

A single parent is this year's Parents of the Day because, as her son put it in his nomination essay, "she has done the job of both for the past seven years now."

Ruth A. Gritti, the 1979 Parent of the Day, was widowed in 1972, and since then "has accomplished the jobs of two parents single-handedly," said her son, Nick, a senior in physiology.

Ruth Gritti has four sons ranging in age from 16 to 22. "She was surprised at being chosen," Gritti said. "She's always low-key and usually keeps out of the limelight."

"When she called me to tell me she'd won, she said that she hoped she could make me as proud of her as she was of me," Gritti said.

Activities planned to honor the Parent of the Day include free accommodation at the Holiday Inn, complimentary use of an automobile, football halftime honors and being the guest of honor at the luncheon, dinner and Sunday brunch.

The football game on Saturday against Eastern may pose a problem for Ruth Gritti on which team she will root for.

She graduated from Eastern in 1976 with a bachelor's in psychology, after a more than 30-year absence from school.

"Mom was a registered nurse for those 30 years," Gritti said, "and 12 of those years were spent in the Air Force, where she met Dad."

Experimental alcohol policy proposed

By Bill Murray

An experimental plan to allow University housing residents who are 21 years of age or older to consume beer and wine in the dormitories is scheduled to be placed on the agenda of the Board of Trustees' December meeting.

The experiment will begin at the start of the spring semester. Gov. James Thompson recently signed a bill raising the drinking age from 19 to 21. The new law will prohibit the drinking of alcoholic beverages by the majority of students residing in on-campus housing.

"The question raised by the spring semester experiment is how it will affect the academic climate and the housing staff," University Housing Director Sam Rinella said Thursday in a meeting with student representatives from housing areas.

The existing policy for the consumption of alcohol in University housing will be altered for spring semester to read that residents who are 21 or older may drink in their private living areas, according to Tom Busch, assistant to the vice president for student affairs. The present policy stipulates beer and wine as the only alcoholic beverages allowed for consumption in the dorms.

Busch said if the experiment is not successful, the University will move to designate specific residence halls for these 21-years-old and older.

Another alternative would be to completely ban alcohol from residence halls.

"If the spring semester experiment is a disaster, we might have to go with no alcohol at all," Busch said. A final resolution for alcohol policy revisions, effective summer semester of 1980, would have to be submitted to the board no later than March or April, he said.

Fraternity and sorority representative Jim Karas questioned Busch on what constitutes a private living area. Karas said, the definition

Former cagers linked to Sears' thefts

By Bill Crowe
Staff Writer

Two former SIU-C basketball players—James "Corky" Aorams and Mill Huggins—are being sought by the Jackson County State's Attorney's office and Carbondale and University police in connection with "a series of thefts" totaling over $150, said Guice Strong, Jackson County assistant state's attorney.

Abrams—a starter on the 1976-77 Saluki squad which went to the NCAA championship playoffs—and Huggins are charged with stealing currency and merchandise from Sears, Roebuck and Co. in the University Mall, Strong said. The thefts occurred between July 12 and Aug. 4, he added.

Abrams, 24, was a salesman in the store at the time the thefts took place, Strong said.

The charges were filed following an "extensive investigation by Sears' store security force and Carbondale police." Warrants for Abrams and Huggins' arrest were issued by a Jackson County Court judge Sept. 7.

Tom McNamara, assistant to the Carbondale police chief, said both the Carbondale and University police forces are trying to locate Abrams and Huggins. The last known address for both of them was 511 S. Logan St, according to Strong.

Strong declined to reveal any more details on the investigation until more progress is made.

The 6-foot-7-inch Abrams, from Atlanta, Ga., played for the Salukis from 1973 through 1977. He had a career scoring

Land-sale refusal delays depot relocation

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

Planners of one phase of the Carbondale Railroad Relocation Demonstration Project may have run into a slight delay, which the courts will have to settle, before it can be completed.

The problem stems from the fact that Standard Business Systems, Inc., owners of Brunner Office Supply Company, 321 S. Illinois Ave., rejected the city's offer to purchase the land and building for use in the construction of a new train depot.

William South, the city's attorney for the Railroad Relocation Demonstration Project, filed a petition for condemnation of the structure on Aug. 24.

South said the court is now waiting for all of the parties involved in the case to answer the summons.

South said he couldn't estimate how long the case will take to settle.

"It depends on preliminary matters that either side could raise," explained South. "It could be a few weeks or a few months," he said.

Brunner Office Supply Company is one of 12 businesses and two residences that have to be relocated due to the construction of the new train depot; only six parcels of land are involved in the depot phase of the project. The city has already acquired three pieces of land. The city expects to secure title to two other lots in October, according to a quarterly status report on the project, written by Eldon Gosnell, project director.

Harvey Hartman Jr., president of Standard Business Systems, Inc., said he wasn't trying to cause any problems with the city, but "just wants

Senate approves SAC travel expenses

By Diana Penner
Staff Writer

The Student Senate Wednesday approved $650 to cover travel expenses for the SIU-C representative to the Illinois Board of Higher Education's Student Advisory Council.

The money will be placed in the vice presidential contingency fund. The SAC representatives meet monthly before each IBHE meeting to give the board student input on upcoming issues. Earlier this week, partly as a result of SAC efforts, a student vote on the Illinois State Scholarship Commission was approved.

The senate also approved $1,840 for the Black Affairs Council to pay the editor and the assistant editor of the group's paper, The Uhra Sa Sa.

A representative of the SAC said the group has a deficit carried over from last year that must be absorbed. He said because the paper is sent out to more than 300 universities and represents SIU-C as a whole, it should receive funds from the senate.

The senate also gave $650 to the In-er-Greek Council for Performance '80, an annual variety show sponsored by the IGC. Proceeds of the show go to a scholarship fund.

Rick Blue, chairman of the council, said that this will be the 33rd year the program is being held, making it one of the oldest traditions on campus.

The senate also approved $484.75 for the New English Organization to produce of a literary magazine. The magazine will consist of works by undergraduate students at SIU-C.

Senator absences spur debate

By Diana Penner
Staff Writer

A resolution to impeach eight senators prompted more than an hour of heated debate at Wednesday's Student Senate meeting.

The senators were to be impeached because they missed three regular senate meetings. The constitution under which the senate is currently operating states that three absences from regular senate meetings constitutes grounds for mandatory impeachment.

A new constitution has been proposed, but the senate has not been able to vote on it. Two thirds of the senators must be present to vote on a new constitution. The matter was sent to the Campus Internal Affairs committee for review at the senate's first meeting, and not enough senators were present to vote on the constitution at the next two meetings.

The constitution was not on the agenda for Wednesday's meeting.

The debate centered on attendance and roll-call procedures of the senate. Vice President Chris Blankenship told senators at a previous meeting that senators not present for roll-call would be counted absent for the entire meeting, even if they came in late.

According to parliamentary procedure, members of a group are required to be present at the beginning of a meeting. It is up to the chair of a group to in-

Senate urged to oppose truckload beer sale

By Diana Penner
Staff Writer

A recommendation made by Jim Karas, student liaison to the city council, to oppose a truckload beer sale by a Carbondale merchant was met with varied opinions by the Student Senate Wednesday.

Karas said Thursday that he would use his "own best judgment" and recommend to the Liquor Advisory Council not to permit the truckload sale. The council will meet Monday immediately after the City Council meeting.

Eastgate Liquor Mart co-owner Steve Hoffman has requested permission from the City Council to sell unrefrigerated beer from a truck in the Eastgate Shopping Center on Homecoming and Halloween.

Karas told the senate that he felt the sale would be an exploitation of students and that it would add to the "party-school" image that SIU-C already has. Karas also said that the sale would detract from the Halloween celebration being planned by the Undergraduate Student Organization and the city, scheduled for Oct. 27, the Saturday before Halloween.

Phil Eberlin, Thompson Point senator, agreed.

"I think a truckload sale would be bad for the image of the student body and the school," Eberlin said.

Kevin Jans, East Side senator, disagreed with Karas' recommendation. Jans said that the sale would not hurt the image of SIU-C because it was too small an undertaking, "to make the Chicago papers."

Jans also said that he didn't feel the sale would draw participants from the celebration planned for Saturday.

After much discussion, the senate voted not to approve Karas' recommendation, but it was later determined that the vote and discussion were out of order because they took place during the period of announcements.

Assailant identified by rape victim

By Karen Gulle
Staff Writer

The SIU-C woman who was kidnapped and sexually assaulted in an April 10 "crime spree" identified Charles King Young as her assailant in court Thursday.

Testimony started Wednesday in the trial of Young, who has been charged with attempted murder, rape, deviate sexual assault, aggravated kidnapping and four counts of armed robbery. Young is accused of being one of the three participants in the shooting of Charles H. Zimmerman of Carbondale and the robbery of two men and a woman at the Carbondale Mobile Homes laundromat. The woman was later driven to a rural area on Dillinger Road, near Big Muddy River, where she was raped and forced to perform deviate sexual acts at gunpoint.

Thursday the woman said that Young was in the back seat of the car with her when she was forced to leave the laundromat.

She said he had changed slightly, his hair was slightly longer and he's wearing glasses," but said there is "no doubt" he is her attacker.

John Helienu, a part-time student at SIU-C last spring, who was robbed at the laundromat, also identified Young. He also claimed that Young was "slightly different in appearance."

Financial aid hassles been around too long

MARY WAS DELIGHTED to hear that her Basic Education Opportunity Grant would be increased because recent federal legislation widened student eligibility for the financial aid program. Having no other means of financing her education, Mary deferred payment of her tuition and fees in anticipation of the day her check would arrive.

But because of the month's delay between the time her initial grant application was made and the time her re-evaluated form was processed, the Bursar's Office received only her initial grant request—a considerably lesser amount.

After a long wait in a long line, Mary appeared before the teller in Woody Hall only to be told she could not pick up her check (which was for the wrong amount anyway) until her tuition and fees were paid. Thus she was presented with a classic catch-22—not being able to receive her grant until her bills were paid and not being able to pay her bills until she received her grant.

JOHN HAD painstakingly prepared the necessary paper work during the summer so that his National Direct Student Loan would be available at the beginning of the fall. His hometown bank processed the loan form and sent the material to the office of financial aid. Three weeks before the beginning of the semester, John's loan officer called to say he had received a response from the financial aid office. John, according to the records given to the bank, was listed as a sophomore and was on academic probation—neither of which was true. John called the financial aid office. The financial aid officer that processed his application was on vacation. John had to make a special trip to SIU to see another financial aid officer before he could receive his loan.

Both incidents are true and although they cannot be said to be representative of even a majority of those receiving financial aid, such occurrences are not uncommon enough.

LAST SUMMER some 70 to 80 students who were eligible did not receive their Supplemental Education Opportunity Grants because of processing delays in the financial aid office. The delay in disbursing the federal funds meant the money would have to be returned to the federal treasury.

Again, just this semester, the gobin of "red tape" held up thousands of dollars in loan money—funds many students needed to pay tuition, fees and books.

THE PROBLEM is not new. In 1975, dissatisfaction with the administration and distribution of the half-dozen aid programs prompted public tearings both in Carbondale and Springfield.

Some blame for the delays that caused nearly $90,000 to be returned to the federal government belongs inside Woody Hall. But the office of financial aid, a popular whipping boy for those experiencing the traumas associated with getting financial help through the school, is not alone to blame for the mess. The BEOG alone is distributed to some 5,000 students at this University and the number is increasing. There are five more government programs to administer beyond that. The voluminous paper work attached to the federal dollars is almost legendary.

Nonetheless, as the cost of higher education increases and the pool of potential students decreases, financial aid will become more important if the University is to keep its dorms and classrooms full. The office of financial aid has already taken too long to figure out an efficient means of disbursing the money.

THE IDEA behind the aid programs is to make it possible for more students to have a chance to receive a college education. Future outlooks call for a decline in college-age people. A crucial period lies ahead for higher education. Thus, it makes no sense to maintain long-standing obstacles in the financial aid process. Prospective students must be encouraged, not discouraged, to seek funds.

Something must be done by the powers concerned. Whether it means hiring the necessary personnel, updating computer equipment, or changing the existing leadership, progress must be shown in the process of dispersing much-needed financial aid. If the typical horror stories referred to above continue, both the University and the student will suffer.

High school more than four years and diploma Give band a break

In your editorial of Friday, September 14, you discuss the Donohue case which (readers may recall) dealt with litigation over a high school graduate who was nonetheless essentially illiterate. In your comments, you seek to excuse the school system: "what," you ask, "was Donohue doing and what were his parents doing as he proceeded to graduation? Didn't anyone notice that he couldn't read? Didn't his parents notice his illiteracy? Didn't Donohue himself realize his inability?" And while it is certainly the case that a teacher cannot force a student to learn, we are entitled to presume that Donohue's teachers knew of his situation.

It is puzzling, therefore, that you do not mention what the most appropriate measure would have been. At whatever grade of elementary school the Donohue boy did not demonstrate minimal reading competence for that grade, he should not have been promoted to the next grade. If, nevertheless, he somehow reached and remained in high school for four years while remaining illiterate, he should have failed to graduate.

State laws do, generally, require students to attend school up to a certain age; however, they do not require the school system to lie, i.e., to graduate every student. In your editorial, it is tacitly assumed that anyone who merely attends high school for four years is entitled to a diploma, and that is false.

However, it is a common public misunderstanding, fostered by 40 years of the quack doctrine held and propagated by Schools of Education all over the U.S., namely, that the task of the school system is to foster a kind of social adjustment period for youth, rather than to require them to engage in real learning. As a result, the public school system in the U.S. has become the poorest one of all advanced countries.

'Black Impressions' show deserves credit

Congratulations to WSU-FM's "Black Impressions" for the noticeable improvement in format. After two years of steady decline, the show was, to put it mildly, the pits. "Black Impressions" virtually ignored the quality Black music left untouched by other radio stations in the area. In the search for solid, soul, Southern Illinoisians had nowhere to tune...

Until this weekend, "Black Impressions" underwent a transformation. A long-overdue History of Black Music was added to the show, and although it lacks any kind of structure, chronological or otherwise, it's a step in the right direction.

There's been an improvement in the overall quality of music "Black Impressions" has chosen to play, and my discomfited ears thank you from the bottom of their canals. Even the infamous news broadcasts have improved somewhat! One question: Why was the feature album scratched from the new format? It was the sole original spot of the old "Black Impressions" and deserves to be retained.

At last, "Black Impressions" is making an impression. I applaud your efforts.

Jenny Nelson
Senior, Radio-TV

Through the various organizations of this University, SIU gets some nice publicity which often makes the difference whether a student attends this school or goes elsewhere. Whenever an organization does some public relations work through their actions, officials come by, pat people on the back, and say "nice job, thanks a lot. Without you, where would we be?"

The Marching Salukis are such an organization. Every time people see our Horns and tuxes they associate it with SIU. But we don't just put on the suits and pick up our horns and play. It takes work!!! And it's difficult to do this when we are constantly imposed upon and forced to function with limitations which are often beyond reason.

We are not allowed to use McAndrew Stadium during the week due to football practice. This is fine since we have a practice field by the Arena. But when Arena officials have something going on, they feel it is OK to park everything from semi trailers to elephant dung on our practice field, which is in effect our classroom. I wonder how other professors would react to officials placing unused basketball hoops in their Biology lab?

While the roadies for the Bad Company concert left their trucks and cars on the practice field so they could get ready for a concert for 8,000 people, the Marching Salukis were trying to march around these trucks, preparing for a show in St. Louis for 50,000 for a Cardinal football game.

Give us a break, will you?

Saturday 'Harvest of Art' planned

Arts and crafts will be exhibited, sold, raffled and demonstrated during the Museum and Art Galleries Association's Harvest of Art, to be held at Fanner Hall from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sept. 29.

Potters, weavers, quilters and leather-makers will be selling their work along the east breezeway of Fanner Hall as part of the art festival.

A basketry demonstration will take place in the Museum Auditorium at 10:30 a.m. and an ikebana (Japanese flower arranging) exhibit will be at 2 p.m.

A crafts auction, featuring items such as a hand-crocheted Victorian apron which won a ribbon at the Du Quoin Fair and a silk wall hanging from Cambodia, will be held outside Fanner at noon.

Paintings, drawings and prints will be among the works of art displayed in an artists' sales gallery on the building's second floor. There will be a preview exclusively for MAGA members from 10 to 11 a.m. The gallery will then be open to the public until 4 p.m.

A Haviland China soap tureen from the early part of the century, a primitive wooden stool, a wrought-iron scale and a log cabin dollhouse will be raffled at 3:15 in the Museum Auditorium. Tickets for the raffle will be available Saturday.

Kaarin Johnston, a graduate student in theater, will supply "Punch and Judy" puppet shows throughout the day. The Bubble Factory, dramatics in a large, plastic bubble, will also be at the site - children will be able to participate in the show.

In addition, MAGA will set up a mini-workshop booth for children to make crafts such as wood sculptures, paintings and paper chains.

An outdoor country store featuring kitchen items and a blanket sale are additional parts of the Harvest of Art. The MAGA gift shop in the north end of Fanner will be open all day.

Lose inhibitions, Gatsby's DJ says

By Craig DeVrieze
Staff Writer

Mark Slaga, the famous, if not infamous D.J. of Gatsby's "WIDB night," laid down three rules for patrons earlier this year: "1) Don't vomit on anybody, 2) Get rowdy but not violent, and 3) If you feel inhibited, give it time, look at the people around you and try to get to know them before the night's over."

"My standard rap to people is 'get rid of your inhibitions, it's Friday night, you're at a bar,'" Slaga said. "What I do down there is, in one sense, make the bar a family. We have a good time and nobody dictates what a good time is."

Slaga started spinning records on Friday nights at Gatsby's in the Spring of 1978. Gatsby's owner Jim Winfree and the WIDB sales staff originally worked out the idea of having music and a D.J. on weekends, Slaga said. WTAO, which provides the D.J. for Saturday Night Live, began at about the same time, but WIDB was the first, he said.

The first few Fridays were the most difficult, particularly during the summer of 1978 when Slaga was trying to find out what format would please the crowd.

"I tried every gimmick in the book, groping to find out what people wanted. That summer was really rough," he remembered. "I checked out every format possible and told every bad joke possible."

Slaga's job was made more difficult because owner Winfree originally wanted a country-rock format (titled "The South Rises Again"). Slaga began slipping in rockers, he said. Eventually they reached a compromise.

"I knew radio and crowds and he knew crowds and bars. We sort of merged," he said.

The show really caught on, Slaga said, in the fall of last year and has been cooking ever since. Gatsby's manager Rose Collins said attendance on Friday nights has increased since Slaga began his show.

"We've had other D.J.s, but we feel he's the best. We're personally very happy with the job he's done," Collins said.

Slaga does more than play records. Trivia at Gatsby's has become an institution and Slaga gets more mileage out of one trivia question than a Datsun gets from a gallon of gas. He chides, kids and insults his audience mercilessly.

"I figure I'm up there letting everybody laugh at me, so when it's their turn. I think they can take it," he said, noting that he is always careful to see who is really offended and apologize as soon as possible.

The show goes out live over WIDB and the airtime is given exclusively to Gatsby's for a rate, Slaga, a senior in radio-television, said. He has been criticized by other radio people for the show's non-professional nature. He said that doesn't bother him because he has heard positive responses from listeners.

"When I do the show, I'm not thinking of the people listening at home. The show I'm doing is for the people right there. The guy at home is tapping in," he said.

When he first started doing the show, it was Slaga trying to

Center Stage to offer music, drama

Two gods meet in a fantasy satire presented by James Cunningham's Acme Dance Company, which will perform in the Student Center in May.

The Center Stage Series, now in its third year of production, is formulated around the concept of presenting professional and semi-professional artists in a variety of entertainment fields. This season's events range from folk-bluegrass music to jazz, from an award-winning Broadway play to a British comedy and from a world-renowned dance troupe to student dance concerts.

Norman and Nancy Blake will appear in concert on Oct. 6 at 8 p.m. for the season's first Center Stage production. Norman Blake, a talented guitarist, will perform with his wife Nancy, who will play guitar and cello. Blake has recorded with Bob Dylan on the Nashville Skyline Album and with the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band on the classic "Will the Circle be Unbroken" album. He also has 10 solo albums to his credit. He has performed with June Carter, Johnny Cash, Kris Kristofferson and Joan Baez, and has been featured in the Annual National Flat-Picking Guitar Championships along with Doc and Merle Watson, Ian Crary and Tut Taylor.

The Blakes' performance will be held in Ballroom D of the Student Center, as will all the Center Stage productions. Tickets for the Blakes' performance are priced at $3 for students and $4 for the public.

Center Stage plans varied season

The season's second event is a musical drama by the American composer Gian-Carlo Menotti titled "The Medium." The drama describes the terror of a woman caught between two worlds—the world of reality and the world of the supernatural. Members of the Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater will be joined by members of the 1979 SIU Summer Playhouse in portraying the characters in the drama. Tickets are $1 for students and $2 for the public for the drama, which will be held at 8 p.m. Nov. 2.

Patricia Wilcox, a graduate student in dance education, will present her Master's Thesis as the fall Student Dance Concert. The performances, scheduled for Nov. 9 and 10 at 8 p.m., are the culmination of her two year in-depth study into the "art of sport." Wilcox has translated archery, fencing, karate and racketball into music, choreography and dance. Tickets are $1.50 for students and $2 for the public.

Class will begin promptly at 8 p.m. Nov. 28 when "Miss Margarida's Way" is presented. The essentially one-character play stars Oscar winner Estelle Parsons, who plays a monstrously inept, sexually frustrated teacher lecturing to her audience "classroom." She is the embodiment of a dictator, of authority gone mad. Parsons won a Tony Award nomination for Best Actress, the Drama Desk Award for Most Unique Theatrical Experience and the Cue Golden Apple Award for Best Actress for her portrayal of Miss Margarida in New York. Tickets are $3 for students and $4 for the public.

Two one-act musical dramas will be performed by members of the Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater on Feb. 5, 1980, at 8 p.m.

The first, "Rita," has been performed for over 100 years. It recounts a humorous situation involving one woman and her two extremely reluctant matrimonial prospects who end up fighting a duel with a twist—loser gets the girl.

The second presentation, "Hello Out There," is the moving story of a gambler, down on his luck, who gets thrown into a Texas jail and ends up falling in love with an innocent young woman. Tickets are $1 for students and $2 for the public.

get the crowd off. Now, he said, it's the other way around.

"The crux of the show is the crowd. The crowd makes the show and it dictates how I'm going to act," he said. "Sometimes I go in there and I don't really feel like doing it. I see the people boppin' and I go crazy."

Slaga emphasize that the show is not a one-man operation. He credited chief engineer Kent Lewin for setting up the equipment and making sure everything functions. He also said the sales staff is responsible for collecting all the trivia prizes from local merchants. And he said that fellow disc jockey Al Levi's impression of Jim Morrison singing "L.A. Woman" is a show-stopper.

"The show is me and the crowd. I couldn't get by without the crowd," Slaga concluded. "It's like I'm having a party. You've got to buy your own drinks, but I'm your host for the night."

Every participant a winner in Special Olympics competition

By Diana Penner
Staff Writer

Involvement, not winning, is the aim of Special Olympics competition, says Lee Smith, director of the program for Southern Illinois.

"The philosophy behind Special Olympics is allowing the people to learn to participate," Smith said. "The goal is not necessarily the winning, but getting as many people as possible involved in the competition."

Smith, a senior in therapeutic recreation, was a dental hygienist in the Army for three years. During that time, he worked in youth programs, and later worked as a live-in counselor for youths with learning and behavior disabilities. He plans to enter the master's program in therapeutic recreation when he completes his undergraduate degree.

About 1,600 athletes participate in Southern Illinois Special Olympics each year, Smith said. The participants must be at least eight years and have an IQ of no more than 75. Smith said that about 60 percent of Southern Illinois participants are children under 21 and 40 percent adults. The oldest participant in the area is about 84 years old, Smith said.

Besides providing participants with a satisfying experience of participation and a feeling of accomplishment, Smith said that the program also educates the "normal population."

"(The program) increases awareness of the abilities of the mentally handicapped," Smith said. "There is a stigma attached to the mentally handicapped, and I think I can change that through Special Olympics by showing people that (the handicapped) are not the social rejects they were once thought of as."

The athletes participate in seven events, Smith said. The volleyball competition will be held on Nov. 13 and the basketball events are scheduled for mid-December. Bowling, swimming, gymnastics, floor hockey and track and field events will also be scheduled.

One of the major problems that Smith encounters is financing the program. Some funds are received through contributions and some from the national Special Olympics program, but the group must also generate money through fund-raising activities, Smith said.

A fund-raising softball tournament sponsored jointly by Special Olympics and the Carbondale Park District is scheduled for Saturday at Evergreen Park, Smith said. A $60 entry fee is required for each team, and the proceeds will go to Special Olympics.

The first Special Olympics Festival Day is scheduled for Oct. 27. Auctions, games and sports clinics geared toward raising funds and awareness for Special Olympics are planned, Smith said. Groups interested in participating should contact Smith at the Special Olympics office.

Trash routes changed

Due to an overload of refuse collection on Mondays, there will be a rescheduling of trash collection for some Carbondale residents.

The districts affected are the area west of Little Crab Orchard Creek and south of Main Street. Beginning the first week of October, garbage will be collected on Thursdays instead of Mondays for these two districts. These are the only areas where collections will be affected.

Post office visitors driving workers batty

PROVO, Utah (AP)—Mail workers say they're going "batty" ducking dozens of bats trapped in the Provo Post Office.

Postmaster Robert Strong said the bats got in through ventilation and air conditioning vents.

"The women employees have really been bothered," he said, adding that a secretary tacked a sign on the office door warning the bats to "Keep Out."

"It's hard to sort the mail and duck your head for bats at the same time," complained one employee who wished to remain unidentified.

Brigham Young University zoology professor Hal B. Ack said the employees shouldn't worry about the bats being rabid.

Preschool teaches independence

By Charity Gault
Staff Writer

Children who clean up after playing, talk out their problems instead of screaming, and try to get along with their peers instead of fighting are only children found in fairy tales. But Rainbow's End, a preschool for SIU-C student children, have children like that, said Denise Parker, director of the school.

Rainbow's End is currently located in Pulliam Hall. The preschool will have to move to another location in the spring, however, because of reconstruction of the building.

"Because of their varying ages (the children range from two-and-a-half to six-years-old) we work with them in all of these areas," said Parker, who has a bachelor's degree in elementary education and a master's degree in early childhood education from SIU-C.

"We are not just a babysitting service," Parker said. "Our goal is to teach children to cope rationally and logically instead of hitting and screaming."

"We try to have a home environment. We want the child to do what he would do at home. If he doesn't want to play with the group, then he can go off by himself and play," she said.

The day which begins at 7:30 a.m. is very relaxing, she said. We play very soft music while the children play with clay, finger paints, or read books. One of the nine staff members, which includes two certified teachers, one assistant, four practicum students from the Child and Family Department and a graduate assistant, tune into the kids. They talk to them on a "one-to-one basis."

Clean up time, when children and teachers work together straightening up Room 112 in Pulliam begins at 9 a.m. It is followed by snack time.

"We don't serve any sugar snacks. Usually its fruit, homemade bread—something nutritious. A lot of times the kids prepare them. One week we made applesauce," Parker said.

After snacks, the children meet together and talk about what they would like to do as a group before lunch, whether it be taking a walk, playing house, or dabbling in goop, a liquid starch and glue mixture that kid's love, Parker said.

After a hot meal served family style by the Student Center cafeteria, the children take a nap.

"After nap time which ends at 3 p.m. there is another snack and activity time. The children begin leaving at this time also. The school closes at 5:30 p.m.

We involve three types of play in the child's day, Parker said. We have a structured activity by the teacher, supervised free play by an assistant, private time, where a teacher will talk with a child on a one-to-one basis.

Emphasis is placed on a calm day. "We don't rush to get things done," Parker said. "And it's okay to make messes because the children clean them up."

There are a whole mess of bones in your feet. Fifty-two to be exact. To take proper care of all of them, you need a good pair of shoe.

Like the one you see below. A Rockport. That bottom is not one big hunk of crepe. It's eight separate layers. This makes the bottom softer. More flexible. Easier on your feet.

And that shoe won't rub your foot the wrong way, either. Because inside is a full leather lining that's been specially tanned to make it soft and comfy.

Slip your feet (male or female) into a pair of Rockports. They'll follow you anywhere.

Students in graphic design class show talent in airbrush illustration

Ed Dougherty
Student Writer

Travel posters and hand-drawn illustrations highlight an exhibit of airbrush illustrations on display in the International Lounge at the Student Center until Sunday.

The illustrations are examples of students' work completed last spring in a commercial graphics-design class taught by George Hoeveler, assistant professor of commercial graphics design.

SIU-C is the only university in the state to offer a full semester course in airbrush illustration.

The illustrations are created by using a small spray gun powered by an air compressor. Paint is extracted from a small bucket attached to the spray gun and applied to the space outlined by a stencil. The final product appears only after a minimum of 15 hours of tedious artistry.

Airbrush illustration is the second of two consecutive courses taught by Hoeveler. The initial course is technical drawing which prepares the student for the intricate drawing needed in preparing an illustration.

The use of airbrush illustrations has emerged as one of the leading art forms used in advertising today, Hoeveler said. It is commonly used to decorate motorcycles and vans, record album covers and T-shirts.

Hoeveler said students who have mastered the art of airbrush illustrations are highly sought by leading advertising firms. The use of airbrush illustrations for magazine covers such as Time and Newsweek offer great opportunities to qualified students, he said.

Hoeveler said he enjoys teaching the course because it's contemporary and something students can use to get a job.

"We can't handle all the students that want to enroll in the class," Hoeveler said. He said he is ecstatic about the overwhelming response to the class and he added that he is building a waiting list for the class.

Giant City offers weekend program on birds, music

Giant City State Park will sponsor a number of interpretive programs this weekend.

Saturday there will be a bird banding demonstration at 11 a.m. at the Interpretive Center Amphitheater. At 2 p.m. hikers may meet at the entrance sign of the Giant City Nature Trail for a rugged hike of one and a half hours.

A Bluegrass and old time music program will be held from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Saturday at the Interpretive Center Amphitheater with a campfire and refreshments.

Sunday visitors may participate in pioneer candle making at 10 a.m. at the Log Cabin by the Interpretive Center and a weather watch will be held at 2 p.m. at the water tower.

Corn is fuel of future

By Georgia Greanias
Student Writer

In the future, farmers will not only rely on corn for food, it will also be their major source of fuel.

These are the plans of Richard E. Archer, SIU-C professor of design, who has gathered specialists to design, construct and operate a system by which a farmer can convert corn stover into fuel grade ethanol by using technology that is presently available and economically feasible.

As project coordinator, Archer has brought together Dan McClary, acting microbiology chairman; Robert Wolf, agriculture mechanization expert; and Walter Wills, agriculture economist, to design and develop an alcohol production system on a small scale to be used in towns where recycling is not economical.

Archer is enthusiastic about "this unique working and learning experience. Everyone is an integral team member. As the designer, I coordinate their efforts so it all meshes together. As the generalist, I focus on the overall picture to see how the specialists can work together. There is no boss," he said.

"The answer for the future of fuel is in microbiology and agriculture," Archer said.

"Microbiology tells us that certain microbes convert glucose into alcohol.

Agriculture is the only prime producer of these renewable energy sources. Agriculture economics does the 'number-crunching,' taking all the information, massaging it, and defining the economic feasibility."

"We add the human side to technology in a way that people can understand and deal with."

John Miller stands near his solar house which he built at the corner of Violet and Sally.

Solar home to show the public that 'dream house' is possible

By Ron Lindsey
Student Writer

Solar energy homes very often bring to mind a science fiction, "2001" sort of architecture. However, in the first solar energy home built within the Carbondale city limits, Dunn Construction Co. of Carbondale has taken major steps toward dispelling the "2001" image associated with solar home.

The two-story, white house virtually blends into the traditional scenery of the west Carbondale residential area in which it is located. The unobtrusive solar panels, which comprise 340 square feet of the rear roof, are the only external indicators that the house is different from any other house on Violet Lane.

"We felt that people would be more receptive to solar homes if they didn't have to alter their dream house design," said Stephen K. Miller, systems designer for Dunn Construction Co.

Miller, together with Brian Kane, fellow SIU-C graduate, and Walter L. Borst, associate professor of physics and astronomy, designed the solar collectors used in this pilot project. The design of the collector panels, which was patented by the SIU Foundation in 1976, allows the units to be mounted flush with the roof-line so they resemble a skylight.

"Solar equal conservation," Miller said. "By utilizing solar you are saving energy and taking advantage of a decentralized power base."

The solar system in the house is capable of heating the air and water by collecting and storing heat generated by the sun. An auxiliary system, consisting of a heat pump, takes over the air heating functions in the case of abnormal weather conditions of absolutely no sunlight.

According to Miller, air cooling is definitely within the realm of solar technology, but at the present time there are no solar cooling systems that are economically feasible for residential use.

The residential uses of solar energy only begin to scratch the surface of the potential power that can be generated by the sun, Miller said. Solar power has begun to come of age in residential and light commercial usage, and Miller expects to see an increase in the use of solar sources in industrial areas which require the generation of heat.

"Solar is feasible . . . it has been economically feasible ever since electricity rates reached the 3.5 cent per kilowatt hour rate," Miller said.

In the case of this particular house, Miller estimates that the owners can achieve a 50 to 75 percent year-round savings on electricity bills compared to the same house without solar heating. The reason for the difference in the range is that no two families use energy the same way, according to Miller.

"Solar can never totally replace all other energy sources," Miller said. "The answer lies in integration."

The solar house, located at the corner of Violet Lane and Sally Drive, will be open to the public for the next two weeks, Miller said.

Depot to replace six stores

Salameh, who owns the Fantastic Falafel Factory, said they were offered a $10,000 compensation payment from IDOT if relocation forced them out of business.

Salameh, however, found a new location for his Middle Eastern-style restaurant at 901 S. Illinois, formerly occupied by Baskin-Robbins.

"It's not nearly as good as our present location, but it's all I could find," Salameh said.

He said he would let IDOT pay his moving expenses, "but what about the $15,000 or so that it's going to cost me to open the place again? Now we have to start from scratch, and that money comes out of our pockets."

Salameh, who runs the restaurant with his wife Toni, said he feels the deadline should be extended until spring so the other owners would have a few more months to find new locations.

"We have to leave in December, but I don't think they can do much construction work during the winter. So the whole block is vacant until the spring."

Another restaurant establishment that will move is the Ali Baba Cave, a family operation run by Farouk Rushdi and his brother-in-law Akram Ali-Hassan, both originally from Jerusalem.

"All together there are nine of us, including five children," Rushdi said. "We started this place a year ago. It's something that keeps the family together."

Ali-Hassan said he was not sure if they could keep the business going because the rent was too high at the other locations in town they looked into.

"A year ago we spent about $14,000 fixing this place up—new floor, new ceiling, paneling, everything. There wasn't even any plumbing here before we started," Ali-Hassan said. "All the money we made last year went for the remodeling. A whole year's work—lost."

The businesses that have been asked to relocate are on the east side of Illinois Avenue, between 321 S. Illinois, the Brunner Office Supply Co., and Western Auto Hardware at 415 S. Illinois.

IBHE to scrutinize one-third rule

tuition according to a student's level of instruction. (The report states that this option is already in effect for graduate and professional students, but that some universities also have higher tuition rates for upper-level undergraduates.)

—Reaffirm the one-third rule. (The report states that none of the public universities in Illinois currently adhere to the rule and even SIU's most recent tuition increase did not bring it into compliance with the rule.)

—Change the percentage of instructional costs that students pay. ("There is no magic in the one-third figure," the report states, "and the percentage could as easily be twenty-five, forty, or some other number.") —Freeze the current rate of tuition. (Because of inflation, the report states, this option would have the effect of reducing the percentage of instructional costs paid by students. It would also require the state to assume a greater share of the costs.)

Freeze the current rate of tuition, but allow for annual increases related to the rate of inflation. (This option, the report states, would freeze the rate of tuition in terms of "constant dollars.")

Furman said it was "certainly within the realm of possibility" that the IBHE will choose to abandon the one-third rule.

"But I'll have a better feeling of what they might choose to do after Tuesday's meeting," he said.

The one-third rule was adopted by the IBHE in 1976 and the staff report notes that the rule has been under regular criticism since then from students who see it as necessitating regular increases in tuition.

The board had decided to reconsider the one-third rule as part of an in-depth study of student access and choice in higher education it voted to begin in February.

In the past, members of the SIU Board of Trustees, including Chairman Harris Rowe who is a member of the IBHE, have criticized the IBHE for forcing universities to accept its tuition policies through the budgetary influence it holds in the state legislature.

Furman said such criticism is unfounded. "The final decision is the institution's," he said. "In fact, I've found that only about half of our recommendations are adopted by the legislature."

average of 9.8 points per game and a 60.0 field goal percentage. A representative from admissions and records said Ahrams never graduated from SIU-C.

Huggins, 6-foot-3-inches from Palmetto, Ga., started all 28

Saluki games last season and averaged 19.0 points per game. Isaac Brigham, academic adviser for SIU athletes, said Huggins completed an internship in the Carbondale area this summer and met the requirements for a bachelor's degree in community health.

Theft over $150 is classified as a Class III felony in Illinois, Strong said. Punishment can range from a maximum of two to five years in prison to a minimum of probation and a fine, he added.

of a private living area differs for residents of Small Group Housing from other University residence halls. The Greek houses on-campus are constructed with separate areas for sleeping and studying. A private living area is defined in the alcohol policy as "the individual living unit of the resident."

Karas raised another question concerning who would be liable for accidents which occur in Small Group Housing involving residents not legally allowed to drink.

Day-care center faces closing

funding is a special project that ends in May 1980." "Hopefully the University will again take over the day care after the CETA funding runs out," she said. Parker is asking the University to expand the day care which currently takes care of 23 children each day. The preschool has a waiting list of 60 to 80 children. "If the University won't expand us, then we are looking into churches, schools and houses, but we would prefer the campus because of the good location for students," Parker said. Parker said she is trying to find out how many students on campus have children. She said from the student population of approximately 22,000 and a community population of 20,000, the existing day-care programs in Carbondale serve only 150 to 175 children.

Parker said the preschool offers several advantages to students including low cost, location and better hours.

The cost starts at $15 per week for a child who attends the school on a part-time basis, to $24 for a child who attends full-time. Parents can stay in and spend time with their child throughout the day. The school is open from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily and the children's scheduling can be made according to the parents' individual class and work hours.

Vice President of Student Affairs Bruce Swinburne said the problem is definitely one for the University.

He said the University is trying to figure out a way to eliminate the two big problems of funding and move space.

IBHE to study fringe benefit costs

November or December," said Dick Wagner, assistant executive director of the IBHE. Should the legislature decide to discontinue state funding of the fringe benefits of auxiliary enterprise employees, students may have to bear the costs in the form of fee increases, Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said Thursday.

"It would end up being a terrible new burden on the students and there will be a real battle on it," he said.

Swinburne said the legislature should continue state funding as it is now.

"These employees should be recognized as state employees and should be paid with state dollars. It's part of the benefit to them because they work for the state of Illinois," he said.

Robert Gentry, vice president for financial affairs, "as been working on the SUI-C fringe benefit costs. He said the total cost of fringe benefits for auxiliary enterprise employees on this campus is close to $200,000. A fee increase to cover this cost would depend on the allocation between housing and other areas and can not yet be determined," he said.

Swinburne, using an estimation in fringe benefit costs for housing, said a fee increase for housing costs alone could fall in the range of $70 to $80 per semester.

However, Buzbee said Thursday that it wasn't the intention of the General Assembly to cause an increase in fees through this study. "We just want more control of the expenditure of state dollars," he said.

When told of Buzbee's comment, Wagner laughed. "Obviously, one of the questions to be asked is that if state funds are not used in this area, we'll either have to reduce total costs or increase user charges," he said.

Wagner said it is impossible at this point to determine both the total state costs of the fringe benefit and the action that will be recommended. "We might recommend that no action be taken," he said.

Beg your pardon

It was incorrectly reported in Wednesday's Daily Egyptian that a letter by Sue Myerscough, a law student, stated that "some students do not want to split from the Graduate Student Council." That sentiment was expressed during an interview with Myerscough but did not appear in her letter.

It was also reported that Student Bar Association President Jim Rodgers said he didn't want to split from the GSC. Rodgers said he will support whatever decision the SBA makes.

Bids for demolition of the buildings are scheduled to be sent out by the state Oct. 28, according to Jeff Deherly, administrative assistant to the city's railroad relocation unit.
 Deherly said demolition of the structures that the city has obtained titles to will begin in December or January.
 Final plans for construction of the depot are to be submitted to the city, state, federal and other agencies involved in late October, according to Deherly. Construction of the depot is scheduled to begin in April 1980.

Golfers, Lemon defend state titles

By David Gafriex
Sports Editor

Five teams go into a state tournament with two titles to defend. The women's golf team finds itself in that situation. What is more, Coach Mary Beth McGirr feels the Salukis can retain both.

SIU seeks to defend its title Friday and Saturday at the IATAW state tournament at Champaign. Also seeking to defend a title is Sandy Lemon, the team's No. 1 golfer. Lemon will shoot for her third individual title in the 36-hole tournament.

"On the one hand, I'm very optimistic," a fidgety McGirr said. "However, since this is my first year, I'm cautious. Potentially, we have the talent to win, and win big."

McGirr added she expects Lemon to win the individual title.

"Sandy's driving the ball very well," McGirr said, smiling.

SIU captured last year's title by 42 strokes. McGirr said the competition at this year's meet should be tougher, but added there are a few factors which should make the Salukis favorites.

First, team members have played the Orange Course at Savoy so many times that they know it by heart. The second factor is the weather, which McGirr said should be good. SIU has had to play in the cold and rain for one day in each of the two previous tournaments.

"The course is flat and has a lot of traps," McGirr said. "The kids say the greens are very fast so that could present putting problems."

The short game, chipping and putting, has presented the largest problem for the team, according to McGirr. The coach added, however, that she can see improvement. McGirr scheduled a round of practice Thursday to work on the short game.

"What we now need is consistency," McGirr said. "We're getting there. The kids are really pumped up. I think they're ready to go out and start showing what they're capable of."

Sue Fazio, Lori Sackman, Penny Porter, Kim Burch, Judy Dohrmann and Lemon will compete for the Salukis. The lowest four scores will count toward the team total. Jeannie Sackman, the only underclassman, will play exhibition.

McGirr said she expects Lemon to shoot in the 70s in each of the 18-hole rounds. She added the others should score in the 80s.

IM softball teams to begin playoffs

By Gregg Ochoa
Student Writer

The legendary Vince Lombardi once said that winning isn't everything, it's the only thing.

That statement might sound a bit extreme, but as 110 intramural softball squads begin post-season play the statement will be in the back of their minds. Since the start of the season, 115 teams have been eliminated.

The championship tournament will consist of all teams that have won three or more games. In the men's Division A, 19 teams have made it into the playoffs. Of those 19, four have unblemished records — Tau Kappa Epsilon (TKE), Long Rangers, Diamond Dogs and Sultans of Swing.

According to Bill Lapp, a graduate assistant for intramurals, the teams in this division all have the talent to win the title. The teams that have the best chance of winning are TKE, Southern Hustle, who won 21-4 last week, the Diamond Dogs and the Stegfall Eagles, who were beaten by Frog Hollow 8-3.

In men's Division B, the situation is a little more complex, where 76 teams qualified for the playoffs. However, that statistic is misleading because 67 teams dropped out of the competition. Because Division B is less competitive than Division A, most of the teams that showed up to their games with a glove made it into the playoffs. A majority of the teams qualified by having a .500 record.

Although this division is a little weaker, there still is a crop of teams that have talent. Some of the pre-tournament favorites are the Busch Bombers (6-0), New York M.F.B. (6-0), Master Batters (5-1), The Show Biz Kids (5-1), Airport '79 (6-0), Average White Team (5-1), The Insane Coho Lips (6-0), Rip City (6-0), Straight Up-N-7 Chaser (6-0) and The BarBonzo Brothers (4-2).

In the women's division, 10 squads made it into the playoffs. Four of those 10 qualified with 3-3 records. With such a small number of teams, the favorites have to be the undefeated teams. They are Tequila Sunrises and Chuck's.

In the co-rec division, the favorites are The Independents (5-1), Diddy Squat (6-0), Pitos (5-1), The 600 Club (6-0), Old No. 7 (5-1), The Die Hards (3-1) and Pat Luck (5-1).

SIU seeks to end EIU streak

Dempsey believes moving Quinn will help him recover from a slow start. The senior has averaged only 50.5 yards per game. Dempsey hopes to take advantage of Quinn's quickness to burst through a hole, and to use Poole's speed to run behind the tackles and to the outside.

"I believe Burnell has always been a good fullback," Dempsey said. "He's quick and powerful. I think the speed thing got him."

Speed and quickness may be the two biggest factors to use against a Panther defense which has allowed an average of only 47 yards rushing per game. So, too, could be the passing attack. Dempsey said, however, the Salukis will choose when to throw, and will not abandon the run because of the Panthers' success in stopping it.

Saluki gridders

for national media

A team playing a school on the worst list automatically chalks up a win. That means that any win by a team on the "worst list" is an upset, and immediately garnishes extra attention.

The Salukis should be so lucky. The Salukis would have to destroy a team by racking up 100 points, to get the attention a team like Syracuse, rated 16th on the worst list, gets for beating Northwestern.

Perhaps the Salukis should work on the same techniques the schools on the "worst list" do. Hold fumble and broken tackle drills. Throw away the passing book and demand an equal share of national attention.

On second thought, it would take too long for SIU to develop a lousy football program again. Head Coach Rey Dempsey has done too good a job rebuilding the team into a winner. Athletics Director Gale Sayers has too many future plans that should propel Southern into a major football school.

Likewise, Dempsey has confidence that should the Panthers double-team split end Kevin House, quarterback John Cernak will find other receivers to throw to. Dempsey added although Arkansas State shut out House last week, the leading Saluki receiver still came close to catching four passes.

"We need to put the whole package together," Dempsey said. "I think we can run and throw."

They have the incentive to do so.

Hendrick powers Cards past Bucs

By Gary Moscoso

Associated Press Writer
George Hendrick rapped five hits, including his 16th home run of the season, to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-5 victory over the Pittsburgh Thursday, trimming the Pirates' lead to one-half game over Montreal in the National League East.

The Expos were rained out of a two-night doubleheader at Atlanta.

The Cardinals, who clinched third place in the East with the victory, pounded 17 hits off six pitches shuffled into the game by Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner.

The game began with an illomen for the Pirates when the American flag was raised upside down, recognized as a distress signal. Then the Cards jumped to a 5-0 lead in the first four innings off Dave Roberts, 5-4, John Candelaria and Don Robinson.

Dave Parker hit his 21th home run.

Harriers face tradition-rich Kansas

By Scott Stabner
Staff Writer

When the SIU men's cross country team faces Kansas Saturday at 10 a.m. at Midland Hills Country Club, it will be running against a school whose track and cross country tradition matches UCLA's basketball tradition.

Wes Santee and Jim Ryan, both world-class distance runners, ran cross country for the Jayhawks. And SIU Coach Lew Hartzog, whose Salukis don't have a bad tradition themselves, says KU coach Bob Timmons' 1979 team is capable of upholding past standards.

"By the admission of Timmons, they are stronger," Hartzog said. "I think Kansas is better than Illinois State (which defeated the Salukis 21-38 last weekend). Kansas' team last year would compare favorably with ISU this year."

The 1978 Jayhawk team defeated the Salukis, 26-29, at Midland Hills. SIU gained a measure of revenge, however, by edging the Jayhawks out in NCAA District 5 competition. That allowed the Salukis to advance to the NCAA finals.

"Mike Sawyer was sick when we ran the dual meet against them last year," Hartzog said. "That was the difference in the race as far as I can see. In Kansas' defense, they had a couple of their guys get sick after a meal the night before the race."

Hartzog said Kansas is returning its two top runners, Dave Bauer and Paul Schultz, from last year's team. Bauer, Hartzog said, is the Midland Hills course record holder. According to the coach, Bauer and Schultz did not compete in the Jayhawks' meet last weekend at Wichita, which Kansas won easily.

"If they can win that easily without their top two runners, they must be very strong," Hartzog said.

SIU is not conceding the meet to the Jayhawks, however, Hartzog said. The Salukis' workouts this week, he said, have improved every day. Hartzog said he expects the times of Mike Bisara, Tom Fitzpatrick and Bill Moran to drop from what they were against ISU.

"Even Karsten (Schulz, who finished second last weekend) will hopefully drop a few seconds," he said. "I have to think someone from Kansas will go as fast as Karsten if it's a pretty day. It's supposed to be sunny tomorrow and Saturday, so the course will be fast."

Hartzog said that to defeat the Jayhawks, the Salukis will have to "compete" better than they did against Illinois State.

"I felt we lacked 'smarts,' or whatever you want to call it, last weekend," he said. "We did not run as well as we are capable of running. The only one of our guys who really competed well was Karsten."

"If you get into a certain situation, you have to react properly to it," Hartzog continued. "When our kids dropped back last weekend, we let Illinois State into a situation in which we had to react. We had to react, and we didn't do it."

A former Saluki harrier, Paul Craig, traveled to New York Friday to compete in the national finals of the Diet Pepsi 10,000-Meter Series. About 300 runners are entered in the race.

Craig, who competed in cross country for SIU from 1975-78, was the winner of the local Diet Pepsi series in July. Craig's winning time in that meet was 30:51.3. He is being sponsored in the event by Marion Pepsi-Cola.

CAIRO RACE SET

Interested in running? Entries are being accepted for the Cairo Fall Classic Foot Race to be run on Saturday at 9 a.m. Races of three and six miles will be run. Students may register at the course site, St. Mary's Park in Cairo. Entrance fee is $2 for SIU students.

Free T-shirts will be given to all entrants.

Five lady harriers at top-notch meet

By Rick Klatt
Staff Writer

Women's cross country Coach Claudia Blackman will take five of the lady harriers to the friendly atmosphere of Kenosha, Wis., to compete in the 3-mile TFA-USA Mid-American Collegiate this Saturday. No, it isn't a race between colleges of a third-world country and the United States. The TFA-USA, for those unfamiliar with cross country, are the initials of the sponsoring organization — the Track and Field Association of the United States of America.

The race will feature many of the top schools of the middle American states, but Blackman said she wasn't sure which teams would be at the meet. She said the only state school entered, besides SIU, probably would be Northern Illinois.

"I'm pretty sure that most of the Wisconsin state schools will be at the meet," Blackman said. "I'd really like to see the University of Wisconsin at Madison show up because they're good competition."

"Because of the large number of runners," she added, "the race will be an excellent opportunity for our girls to find out the type of competition they face in the regional and national meets, and what they will need to do to get there."

Lady Saluki standouts junior Lindy Nelson and sophomore Patty Plymire will be two of the SIU runners in the race. Blackman said they will have excellent chances to finish near the top. Senior Linda Snelka, sophomore Dixie Ost and freshman Dyane Donley will round out the Saluki quintet.

A limit of five runners was not set for the meet, but Blackman said she could bring only that number because of injuries and academic responsibilities of the other runners.

"Jean Meehan has decided, along with our team doctor, that she needs to take an extended rest to help her legs heal," Blackman explained. "Pam (Greninger) has a suspected stress fracture of her right shin bone so she will not run, and I didn't think it would be wise to run Cathy (Chiarello) because she ran in her first race only last week."

Plymire is the only Saluki who will have run the course before in competition. The team will be able to jog on the course Friday afternoon in preparation for the noon starting time. Blackman said the course is less difficult than Midland Hills, and the only description Plymire would give is that the first quarter-mile is "almost straight uphill."

"The race will be hard because there will be so many runners," Blackman said. "This will make it hard for a runner to work with a teammate, which is helpful in a cross country."

Salukis seek to end EIU winning streak

By David Gaflick
Sports Editor

Normally, it would seem a bit absurd for a team from a large school to feel it has to prove something to a team from a smaller one. The Salukis however, feel they must do just that to Eastern Illinois.

"Incentive" is the word Saluki Head Coach Rey Dempsey uses when discussing his team's attitude concerning the game to be played at McAndrew Stadium at 1:30 p.m. "We have an opportunity to stop the longest winning streak in the nation and beat the national champs," Dempsey said. "We'll get recognition if we win."

Eastern Illinois enters the contest unbeaten in its last 12 games. The Panthers have won four games in a row this season, three of them by lopsided scores. Even though the team is in Division II, Dempsey feels the Panthers' talent is as good as any the Salukis have seen this year.

"They have a lot of good players," the fourth-year head coach said. "They have five players who could play first-string for any of the teams we've faced. They have five or six others who could come in and play in a game. You can see why they're the Division II champs."

Dempsey is concerned most with running back Chris "Poke" Cobb, quarterback Steve Turk and receiver James Warring. Together, the three spell T.N.T. Cobb has accounted for seven touchdowns, while the Turk-to-Warring duo has accounted for five more.

"Cobb is a good football player," Dempsey said of the senior from Clover, S.C., who is averaging 153 yards rushing a game. "We've faced kids like him. Some of them have been faster. His quickness is his asset."

Cobb has rushed for 4,047 career yards, and needs just 792 to break the all-time Division II rushing record. Dempsey said SIU won't be able to win by stopping only Cobb. He said he is concerned also with EIU's passing attack.

"When they run a square-out, the kid takes five steps, cuts, and when he looks, the ball is there," Dempsey said. "Turk's release is quick. He'll set up and throw."

While saying he's not upset with the way his team has been playing, Dempsey does believe both the offensive and defensive units are capable of better performances. In particular, Dempsey would like to see the reincarnation of the Mad Dog defense—a name given the SIU defense when they led the Missouri Valley Conference in all but pass defense last year.

"We can't give away as many yards as we have been," Dempsey said.

He does hope, however, to generate more yards on offense and the points that go with it. The Salukis are averaging just 106 yards rushing and 12.8 points per game.

"I thought we'd be in the 20s," Dempsey said of the average points-per-game figure. "I'm looking for the day we explode."

Dempsey believes the defense will have to play a big part in the eruption, saying it must cause turnovers. He added the Panthers have scored many points because of the fumbles and interceptions their defense has caused.

Saluki safety Alvin Reed lunges at Lee University Saturday afternoon. Panther running back Poke Cobb is just 792 yards away from breaking the all-time Division II defense will face another strong running back in their game with Eastern Illinois

"Their defense is one of their assets," Dempsey said of the unit which has allowed only 131 yards a game. "Their four linemen and three linebackers put up a lot of pressure and bottle things up."

In hopes of easing the congestion, Dempsey has made two lineup changes. Walter Poole will start at tailback, while Burnell Quinn will move to fullback.

"Walter is fast and has good moves," Dempsey said of the sophomore who will make his second career start. Poole lasted one play in the first one, injury a shoulder against Wichita State last year.

"We seem to need that extra step," Dempsey said. "He's a breakout threat, and a good pass receiver."

Lady netters beat Belleville, 9-love

By Scott Stahmer
Staff Writer

After shutting out Belleville College 9-0 Wednesday, the SIU women's tennis team is gearing up for a rugged weekend of competition against Missouri, Northwestern and Western Kentucky.

The Salukis will play Missouri Friday at 3 p.m., Northwestern Saturday at 9 a.m. and Western Kentucky Saturday at 2 p.m. All three matches will be held at the University tennis courts.

"I was happy with our play against Belleville, and the win did wonders for our confidence," Saluki Coach Judy Auld said. "But we have to come out ready to play good percentage tennis Friday. Every match is going to be an important match."

The Salukis did not lose a set against Belleville, as they improved their dual meet record to 4-5. Debbie Martin, Fran Watson, Thea Breite, Mona Etchison, Tammy Kurtz and Debbie Burda all won singles matches. The doubles teams of Watson and Breite, Martin and Etchison and Kurtz and Burda were all victorious, also.

Auld said she expected Missouri, Northwestern and Western Kentucky to be challenging opponents for the Salukis. She said the key to doing well against NU and WKU could be the match against Missouri.

"We have to play well against Missouri to play well on Saturday," Auld said. "If we can play well against Missouri, it will really help our confidence. Missouri plays a tough schedule against a lot of southern schools, and they've lost only one match."

The Salukis' match against Northwestern possibly will be the most important of the weekend, as seedings for the state tournament primarily are based on intrastate competition. Auld said the Salukis believe the Wildcats, who have won three consecutive Illinois state championships, are unbeaten.

"We lost to Northwestern last spring," she said, "but we had several matches against them that could have gone either way. It proved to our players that Northwestern is not invincible, that they can be beaten."

SIU's final match of the weekend is against Western Kentucky, which Auld said has a good team.

"I don't really know too much about Western Kentucky," she said. "But they're usually one of the strongest teams in Kentucky."

Auld said if the Salukis play consistent tennis, they have a good chance to win two of the three matches.

"I know it's going to be a hard weekend," she said. "We'd love to come away with three wins. But if we play good, consistent, percentage tennis, we have a shot at winning two out of three."

Salukis 'too good' for national media

Competing with other Illinois universities for national football media coverage is almost impossible for the Salukis. Even though the team is off to a good start and has been chosen by some to win the Missouri Valley champions' cup, SIU just can't seem to get recognition for playing good football.

When Kevin House snared eight passes for 189 yards two weeks ago and was named MVC player of the week, the feat went virtually unnoticed. Past performances, like Andrew Herrera rushing into the NCAA record book, have been igno. ed.

No matter how well the Salukis perform, it looks as though, at least for now, the football team will never grace the pages of a national magazine like some of the other schools in our state.

There is a way, however, for the Saluki gridgers to get some national media attention: play consistently poor football. That's right, a team with a consistently mediocre football program will grab its share of national attention.

Perennial football powers like Ohio State and Michigan are always in the national limelight and few teams, if any, can put out that light. The only alternative is to get attention being at the bottom instead of the top.

Two Illinois universities, Northwestern and Illinois, both Big-Ten schools, have found a glimmer of national attention at the bottom of the grid barrel. The Wildcats and the Fighting Illini have made Penthouse magazine's "20 Worst Football Teams in America."

Northwestern and Illinois now have their football programs described and analyzed in a magazine that is in the hands of millions of readers. What coverage!

The cost of creating a media campaign to bring a football team's name into millions of households would be staggering. But Northwestern and Illinois have found a way to do it cheaply. They simply let the opposition win on a consistent basis. With national coverage like that, it's hard for the Salukis to compete.

With a combined record of 1-18-3 last season, the Wildcats and the Illini were chosen No. 1 and No. 13 respectively on Penthouse's "worst" list. Being chosen on such an exclusive list with such other losers as the Texas Christian Horned Frogs and the Tulane Green Wave has its advantages, however.
