Reagan asks for more cuts in televised talk

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan asked Congress on Thursday night to cut spending an additional $13 billion next year and to raise $3 billion more in taxes to lift the nation from its "economic swamp" and point the budget toward balance in 1984.

The president said the added tax revenues can be derived through eliminating certain "abuses and obsolete incentives" in the law.

"We are just starting down a road that I believe will lead us out of the economic swamp we've been in for so long," the President told the nation in an address broadcast nationwide at 9 p.m. EDT. "The important thing now is to hold to a firm, steady course."

Reagan's aides said his plan would hold the deficit to $43.1 billion in fiscal 1982, which begins Oct. 1.

Reagan also said he would cut the federal workforce, except the Pentagon, by 75,000 workers, and request Congress to abolish the Departments of Energy and Education, fulfilling a campaign promise.

"I know that we are asking for sacrifices from virtually all of you," he said. "But there is no alternative."

He called for a 12 percent across-the-board cut in domestic programs, other than those "entitlement" benefits to individuals, such as pensions, prescribed by law. Exemptions were also granted to certain veterans, immigration and law-enforcement programs.

"I know that high interest rates are punishing many of you—from the young family that wants to buy its first home to the farmer who needs a new truck or tractor. But all of us know that... first rates will only come down and stay down when government is no longer borrowing huge amounts of money to cover its deficits," he said.

The president, stating that without the further cuts it would be impossible to balance the budget by 1984, said: "It would be easy to sit back and say, 'well, it will take longer than we thought. We got most of what we proposed, so let's stop there.' But that's not good enough."

NCAA change may alter SIU-C football status

By Andrew Strang
Staff Writer

An impending change in National Collegiate Athletic Association regulations will almost assuredly drop football at SIU-C from Division I-A to Division I-AA. Vice President for Student Affairs Bruce Swinburne said Thursday.

The proposed regulation change, which NCAA members will vote on in December, would require all Division I-A football programs to have an average minimum attendance of 20,000 per game, according to Steve Morgan of the enforcement division of the NCAA.

SIU-C has had an average attendance of about 11,000 per game this season. Interim Men's Athletics Director Lew Hartzog said.

"It looks like it's almost assured" that the rule change will be approved by member schools at the NCAA convention in December, he said.

Swinburne had told the Undergraduate Student Organization of the proposed NCAA rule change at a meeting Wednesday night.

Under the present NCAA rules, Division I-A schools must average a paid attendance of 17,000 per home game for at least one of the past four seasons or participate in a minimum of 12 NCAA sports, Morgan said.

If the NCAA rule change is approved, SIU-C will automatically be in Division I-AA next season, Hartzog said. Although SIU-C would be eligible to play in NCAA post-season football tournaments, it would be unlikely for the University to be invited to a bowl game under Division I-AA.

Earlier Thursday, Hartzog said that the University had applied to the NCAA for a change of status from Division

I-A to I-AA. Swinburne also had said he understood that the University had made that application.

But later both Hartzog and Swinburne, as well as Assistant Men's Athletics Director Fred Huff, said that no such application had been made. Hartzog had said the application was made before Sept. 1, probably while Gale Sayers was still men's athletics director.

Shirley Whitacre, NCAA membership co-ordinator, said she has not received an application from the University. However, the application does not have to be received until June 1, 1982, for the NCAA Classification Committee to consider the request for the 1983 football season, she said.

Hartzog said the athletics program at SIU-C would have less restrictions on it if it is forced to Division I-AA status by an NCAA rule change. For example, SIU-C will not be required to compete in 12 NCAA sports in Division I-AA, he said.

He said the football program will not be negatively affected by the change in status.

He said SIU-C will not have to cut any more football scholarships, reduced from 95 to 70 this season. The status of SIU-C in the Missouri Valley Conference also will be unaffected, he said.

Gus says it may not be Oklahoma vs. USC but there are 11 men on a side and a touchdown is worth six points in Division I-AA.

Hindersman elected chairman of search committee for VP

By David Murphy
Staff Writer

Acting Vice President for University Relations Charles Hindersman was elected chairman of the search committee in charge of finding a new vice president.

The committee, at its first meeting Tuesday night, created operating procedures, elected the chairman and received its formal charge from President Albert Somit, according to Terry Mathias, doctoral assistant to the president.

"The search committee was told that it must select candidates who will be able to take charge of fund raising and image enhancement for the University," Mathias said.

The 12-member committee was appointed by Somit three weeks ago to find a replacement for former vice president George Mace, who resigned the position May 12 to take a position as an executive consultant with the American Council on Education.

Nominations and applications for the position are now being received, Mathias said, and the committee will examine those and attempt to narrow the list down to between three and six choices.

"The committee hopes to have the recommendations to the president by Jan. 1, 1982," Mathias said.

Friday is the deadline for nominations, and all applications, consisting of a letter, resume and the names of references must be received by Oct. 9, Mathias said.

"The next meeting will be sometime during the week of Oct. 12, and the committee will begin screening applicants by examining their dossiers at that time," Mathias said.

After the committee has made its recommendations, the new vice president will be appointed by President Somit. Criteria used in choosing candidates will include "proven ability in fund-raising activities and experience in community relations," Mathias said.

U.S., Soviet officials to 'spare no effort'

Nuclear control talks to begin

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The United States and the Soviet Union announced Thursday they will begin negotiations to control nuclear weapons in Europe on Nov. 30 in Geneva, the first tangible result of high-level U.S.-Soviet talks here.

They said in a joint statement they would "spare no effort" to reach agreement, although U.S. officials said privately the negotiations likely will take many months, if not years.

The talks in Switzerland will be the first significant negotiations between the Reagan administration and the Soviet leadership following months of harsh rhetoric between the two superpowers.

Agreement to begin the talks came during the four-hour meeting here Wednesday between Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. They are to meet again Monday.

The joint announcement said, "Both sides believe in the importance of these negotiations for enhancing stability and international security and pledged to spare no effort to reach an appropriate agreement."

Paul H. Nitze was named the chief U.S. negotiator. Considered a hardliner on dealing with the Soviets, the 74-year-old Nitze helped negotiate the first Strategic Arms Limitation Agreement in 1972, but he opposed the unratified 1979 SALT II accord.

The new negotiations will be known as the Theater Nuclear Force talks. The Soviet side will be headed by Ambassador U.A. Kvitsinsky, most recently assigned to the Soviet Embassy in West Germany.

President Reagan told Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet leader, in a letter Tuesday the United States wants "significant, verifiable reductions in nuclear weapons." U.S. negotiators are likely to demand ironclad verification procedures for any agreement.

Armenian terrorists take over consulate in Paris; forty held

PARIS (AP)—Anti-terrorist police surrounded the Turkish Consulate in the center of Paris Thursday after a four-man Armenian suicide squad seized some 40 hostages and threatened to kill them and blow up the mission unless their demands were met, authorities said.

Ambulances took three people from the consulate several hours after the siege began. One was reported by French radio to be a Turkish security guard killed in the takeover. Police said the others were a wounded Turkish vice consul and a wounded terrorist who demanded political asylum.

The commandos demanded Turkey free jailed Armenian political prisoners and fly them to France by 11 p.m. (5 p.m. EDT). They said if the demand was not met all the hostages "will be executed," and that if French forces intervened, the building "and all the people inside" will be blown up.

A Turkish Embassy spokesman said about 15 staff members and 25 visitors, including several women, remained hostage in the consulate. Police evacuated nearby buildings.

The Turkish government in Ankara said France was responsible for obtaining the hostages' quick and safe release and that Turkey would not negotiate with the terrorists in the eight-story building on Boulevard Hausman, a few blocks from the Champs Elysees in the fashionable 8th District.

The terrorists, in messages dropped from the building and a statement distributed in Beirut, identified themselves as "suicide commandos" of the Armenian Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia.

In addition to freedom for Armenian political prisoners in Turkish jails, they demanded the release of five Turkish revolutionaries and five Kurdish rebels, an Armenian cleric, Father Manuel Yergatian, and a lay missionary, Hrant Guzelian.

Poland to get tough on anti-Soviets

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Poland's Communist regime declared Thursday that special army units will join police in a tough new crackdown on anti-Soviet lawlessness spawned by the independent union Solidarity.

In response to Kremlin calls for a "rebuff" to the union, Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski told Parliament the fate of Poland rode on Solidarity's retreating from "intentions to take power...and anarchizing slogans."

"An end must be put to the disregard for legal norms, to the deepening anarchist tendencies, to the hooligan unbridledness, to anti-Soviet and anti-state excesses," he said, drawing loud applause from the deputies.

Jaruzelski, a general who is also Poland's defense minister, said the government had shown good will and done everything to avoid extreme measures in dealing with Solidarity.

But he asked Poles to "understand and lend their support to the authorities in their strivings and actions intended to secure the observance of the law and to usher in a tougher course in the face of its violations.

"Accordingly, I placed before the minister of the interior the task on this matter and his work within the indispensable and appropriate scope will be assisted by forces and means of the army assigned for this purpose."

The army and its military police have already taken on a growing role in Poland since Jaruzelski became premier in February.

Nixon endorsed 'thug' assaults

NEW YORK (AP) — A 1971 White House tape recording reveals that then-President Richard Nixon was so angry over an anti-war demonstration that he endorsed a suggestion to use Teamsters union "thugs" to assault protesters, the New York Times reported Thursday.

The newly disclosed tape, the Times said in a report from its Washington bureau, is of a discussion between Nixon and his chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman, on May 5, 1971, during a three-day Vietnam war protest in Washington.

VA approves tighter regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration said Thursday that veterans will no longer get free hospital care purely on their word that they cannot afford to pay.

The VA approved a new regulation, subject to clearance by the Office of Management and Budget, which would require patients to reveal their financial status. Many with family incomes over $15,000 would be turned aside.

Carter named 'villain of 1980'

BADEN-BADEN, West Germany (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter was named as the villain of 1980 Thursday as the 11th Olympic Congress got off to an explosive start.

For more than nine hours one speaker after another tackled the troubles of the Olympic Games — the growing program, the difficulties of finding sites, the problem of athletes' eligibility.

Jewel theft estimated at $20,000

Police look for armed robbers

By Douglas Hamm
Staff Writer

Carbondale Police are searching for two armed robbers who bound three people and escaped from a downtown Carbondale jewelry store Wednesday afternoon with an estimated $20,000 in jewelry and cash.

David McNeill, owner of McNeill's Jewelry, 214 S. Illinois Ave., was bound and handcuffed by the robbers, but he managed to push an alarm with his face after the robbers left, according to Carbondale Police.

Two customers in the store, a 72-year-old woman and a 52-year-old man, both of Carbondale, were also tied up by the robbers but their names were not released by police. No one was injured in the holdup.

Police said the robbers entered the store about 12:54 p.m., with one of the suspects pushing the other in a wheelchair. After asking to see merchandise, the suspect pushing the wheelchair brandished a .38-caliber revolver, and with the help of his accomplice who jumped out of the wheelchair, tied up McNeill and the customers.

The suspects then ransacked several display cases and took McNeill's wallet, cash, gold chains, diamond rings and watches were taken.

Both suspects being sought in the robbery are black males. One was described as 6 foot 11 inch tall, weighing about 210 pounds and wearing a pink-dark blue shirt and jeans. The other suspect was described as 6 feet tall, weighing 175 pounds, light skin and wearing a tan shirt and light brown shoes.

Fee decrease may not end football

By Andrew Strang
Staff Writer

A reduction in the athletics fee could result in either the elimination of football or the elimination of "about six minor sports," Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, told the Student Senate Wednesday.

"It just seems incredible that we would consider eliminating football," Swinburne said in an attempt to convince the senators that cutting the athletics fee by $10 would be "devastating." He was answering questions from senators about the effects of keeping the athletics fee at its present level of $30 or reducing it to its previous level of $20.

Swinburne said, however, that a reduction in the fee would not necessarily result in the end of football at SIU-C. If the fee is reduced and football is not eliminated, it has not been determined which minor sports will be affected, he said.

The elimination of sports at SIU-C would "devastate the image of the University," Swinburne said. He said the senate should "look to the future, past the hard economic times," and not support the dismantling of programs that will later be hard to revive.

"I understand that $10 is important, but I hope you'll think about the future of this university," he said.

The senate is expected to take a stand on the issue after a special meeting Wednesday.

In other business, Mike Besal, co-author of the Municipal Solar Utility report, a comprehensive energy plan for the Carbondale, asked for senate assistance in holding workshops on campus to inform students about the plan's details.

Besal wants students to know about the report so they can provide input at a public hearing that the city will hold on Oct. 12. The hearing will deal with a tax, proposed in the

Buzbee has potential for No. 2 state post

State Sen. Kenneth Buzbee of Carbondale has announced he will try to switch branches of government, from the legislative to the executive.

Buzbee, a Democrat, wants to become lieutenant governor, the second highest executive post in the state. Blaming Gov. James Thompson for the loss of 35,000 jobs in Illinois, Buzbee said he would concentrate on business and industrial development, in addition to education.

Of course it is politically expedient to blame the state leader of the opposition party for the loss of so many jobs, even if it is doubtful Thompson did it singlehandedly. And promises like Buzbee's can be expected from any politician seeking office.

But Buzbee is an above-average legislator, and his candidacy for the position of second banana is attractive for a couple of reasons.

Long a promoter of Illinois coal, he proposed the Office of Coal Commerce bill recently signed into law by Thompson. Also, a Southern Illinoisan on the Democratic ticket would balance that ballot, and, if he is elected, will give some representation to this area in the State House. He is an SIU-C graduate who has been an effective spokesman and mover for SIU interests in the Legislature. It wouldn't hurt SIU interests to have him sitting at the governor's right hand.

And Buzbee has some political courage. He has said he would not run on the same ticket as former Gov. Dan Walker, a defeated but still formidable force in state Democratic politics.

Buzbee is not perfect. He has expressed approval of the $12,000 housing allowance for Chancellor Kenneth Shaw, for example. Some people will say that he will use the lieutenant governor's office as a stepping-stone to bigger things. Only time and his performance in office will determine whether Buzbee is using the position to get to a higher job or to truly help Illinois.

But Buzbee has said he would do the job of lieutenant governor differently than Dave O'Neal, the Republican who quit the job because it wasn't challenging enough. If Buzbee does all he says he will do, the job should prove quite challenging.

Students important to Carbondale

In Carbondale, where most government officials like to pretend that the student population doesn't exist, it is nice to find a City Council member who acknowledges that they are here. Unfortunately, that member's view is severely warped.

Councilwoman Sammye Aikman, in the September issue of the Southern Observer, said her only strong feeling about students is that they shouldn't vote in Carbondale. It was bad enough that local Republicans last year tried to move student polling places, but now we have a city official who doesn't think students should vote at all! In all fairness, it must be noted that out of the goodness of her heart, Aikman would allow graduate students to vote here. But she is actually serious in her contention that undergraduates should vote in their hometowns.

As the wife of a University professor, Aikman should know that the stay of many SIU-C faculty members here is shorter than that of students. Did Aikman, her husband or her faculty friends have to wait four years before they were allowed to vote?

For nine to 12 months each year, this is our home. Many of us work here. We pay rent on more than one-third of the 7,500 rental units in this town. The taxes we pay through our rent supports the local school system. City taxes are tacked on to our telephone bills. Without students, the local economy would be severely depressed. Many Carbondale businesses depend on student patronage to survive.

And contrary to Aikman's remarks about the last City Council election, more than 100 students voted in Precinct 23, not "only 50" as she said in the article. Students do play an active role in local politics. The student vote and volunteer efforts were decisive factors in the elections of such fine public officials as U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, State Rep. Bruce Richmond and State's Attorney John Clemons.

Maybe this is the real reason she doesn't want us to vote. The officials listed above are all Democrats, and she is a Republican—at least she served as a Republican election judge last election. Students vote for the wrong party, don't they, Mrs. Aikman?

Well, under the laws of this state, we have the legal right to vote in Carbondale, and we will continue to vote here in Carbondale, and continue to vote for the "wrong party."

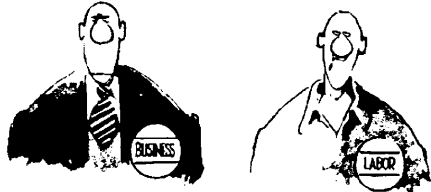

We will not vote for the party that has cut student grants and loan programs. We will not vote for the party that is gearing this country up for military confrontation. We will not vote for the party that has turned its back on the nearly 30 million Americans now living below the poverty level.

Instead, we will work here in Carbondale to make it a better place to live. Students are currently working to improve the deplorable state of rental housing in Carbondale.

I invite you to join our Wednesday night meetings at 7 p.m. in Pinch Penny Pub, to help us in our work to improve this city. Your city and our city, Mrs. Aikman.—Steve Katinas, President, SIU Democrats, Doctoral student, Higher Education

ECONOMICS QUIZ

QUESTION: Which of these two institutions has been so consumed with greed that it now threatens to turn the United States into a second-rate industrial power producing goods of inferior quality?

ANSWER: Both

U.N. position on Namibia is a tale told by idiots

THE GENERAL Assembly of the United Nations, that monument to imbecility, acted in character again the other day. By a vote of 117-0, the assembly adopted another of its resolutions against South Africa, and once again the assembly violated the most elementary principles of fair play and parliamentary privilege.

Such expressions of hypocritical unanimity have become commonplace in these gaudy realms of make-believe. In theory, member nations subscribe to the original purpose of the United Nations. That was to provide a forum in which all nations—repeat, all nations—could be heard. In theory, member nations also subscribe to the principle that all nations should respect the borders of all other nations.

In practice, and notably in the matter of Southwest Africa, also known as Namibia, these theories disappear into the gaseous clouds. Here the rule is that all nations may be heard in the forum—all nations, that is, except the one nation most intimately and directly concerned in the matter: South Africa.

THE PURPOSE of the assembly's most recent resolution was to condemn South Africa for an incursion into Angola. Very well. But if King Hypocrisy were not presiding over this mummery, the assembly would equally have condemned Angola for harboring forces of SWAPO (Southwest African People's Organization), whose purpose is to seize power in Namibia by force of arms.

Hypocrisy is defined as "a feigning to believe what one does not." It is "the false assumption of an appearance of virtue." In the matter of Namibia, the assembly feigns to believe that the United Nations has some valid authority to dictate the future of Southwest Africa. But this is not so, and any person capable of tracing the last days of the old League of Nations knows it is not so. The notion that the league formally transferred its mandates to the U.N. is a notion spun from moonbeams. The chain of title is not there. No such testamentary proof exists.

THE ASSEMBLY also feigns to believe that all acts of international meddling are bad, but this appearance of virtue is false. The SWAPO terrorists are armed by the Soviet Union. No one denies it. The terrorists are supported and trained by thousands of Cuban troops. No one denies it. In the assembly, the matter is simply not discussed.

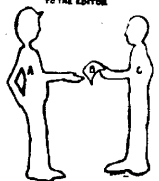

Here at the U.N. the nation is carefully fostered that only one outfit embodies the longing of all the people of Namibia for independence, and that outfit is SWAPO. The notion is fatuous. The guerrillas of SWAPO seek power for the Ovambo, who make up something less than half of the population. But the Ovambo are themselves divided into seven Bantu tribes; and beyond the Ovambo are such tribes as the Damara, the Herero, the Kavango and the Nama. There is no "Namibian people." There is no sense of national loyalty, no universal hunger on the part of "Namibians" for a flag to call their own. There is only a hunger on the part of a relatively few ambitious men for wealth and power.

IT IS ALL dumbshow. The assembly's resolutions, devoid of the slightest power even to influence or persuade, are no more than tales told by idiots, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing. No self respecting nation—not South Africa, not Israel in other contexts, not any of the great powers—will surrender its national interest to the vapors of an impotent body. It is lunacy to suppose that South Africa will accept any imposed "solution" that creates a Marxist state upon its northern border and jeopardizes access to Walvis Bay. If the old mandated territory of Southwest Africa is to be cut loose, it will have to be cut loose with strings still attached. In the 20 years that the Namibian question has been debated, no one yet has mastered such a feat of legerdemain.

Reading an inch-thick stack of windy resolutions, I wonder anew: Why the United Nations? Seriously, why? Its purpose as a forum has been reduced to a nullity. Its portentous demands have less weight than a resolution of the Maryland Audubon Society demanding the resignation of Secretary Watt. Perhaps we should carry news of the U.N. back on the comic pages to dwell with Doonesbury and his friends.

Southern Illinois within rules for waste sites

By Karen Gullo
Staff Writer

A dump site for low-level radioactive waste located in Southern Illinois may be just a few years down the road.

Under a law passed by Congress last December, individual states, rather than the federal government, will be responsible for providing disposal sites for low-level wastes after Jan. 1, 1986. The Illinois Department of Nuclear Safety announced in August its proposed rules for siting and operating a dump site facility. The department is seeking private companies to construct and operate the site and expects to select a contractor within six to nine months.

The department has not chosen a location for the site, but a report released last February by the Illinois Geological Survey showed large areas of Southern Illinois to be suitable for a low-level dump site.

Illinois is the third largest producer of low-level waste in the nation. The state does not have an active dumpsite; all low-level waste is shipped to sites in Nevada, Washington and South Carolina.

The only waste site in Illinois, located in upstate Sheffield, about 50 miles north of Peoria, was closed by a court order in 1978 after it was disclosed that radioactive tritium, a radioactive hydrogen isotope, was escaping from burial trenches at the site.

Among the companies which have shown interest in operating the proposed site is U.S. Ecology Inc., of Louisville. It formerly was the Nuclear Engineering Corp., the company which operated the Sheffield site.

Philip F. Gustafson, director of the Illinois DNS, has said in published reports that Illinois may be the "host" state for a compact between 12 Midwestern states to develop a regional disposal site. Illinois produces as much low-level waste as all the other 12 states combined.

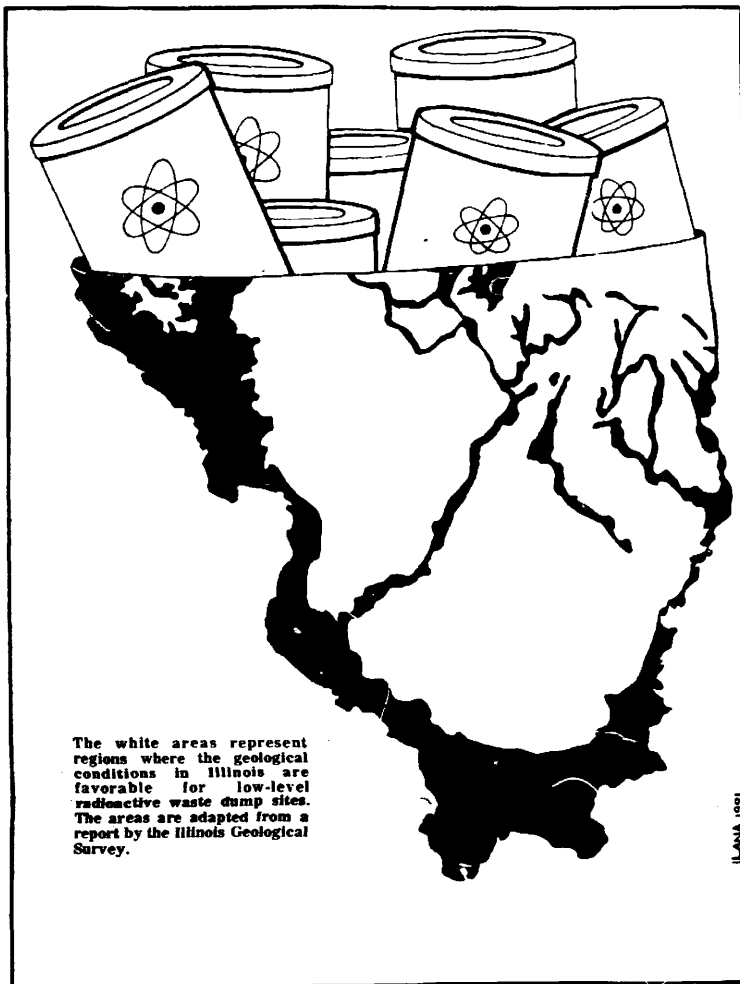

Low-level waste refers to a wide variety of radioactive garbage generated by nuclear plants, hospitals, and research institutions. Contaminated rags, protective shoes and gloves, vials and needles are among the materials buried in low-level waste dumps.

Low-level waste does not include spent reactor fuel or "tailings," which are highly radioactive materials separated as residue from the milling of uranium ore.

The waste would be stored in 55-gallon drums which would be buried in 20- to 30-foot trenches. The barrels would contain only solid waste. The dumping of liquid radioactive waste is illegal in Illinois.

Although the state has until 1986 to develop a site, plans and rules for the site are being formulated now so that a site can be chosen and construction can begin within a year, according to Martin Zukor, nuclear policy analyst for the Illinois DNS.

Zukor said that it would take a year to build a site, but the licensing process may take up to three years. A site will be chosen by the governor's office at the recommendation of the department. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the federal agency which sets guidelines for waste disposal, must give its approval of the site.

Southern Illinois is suitable for a low-level dump site because of its geological characteristics, according to a report by the Illinois Geological Survey, a division of the Institute of Natural Resources for geological information. Dump sites should be located in areas where water tables are deep below the ground level and fine-grained materials of low hydraulic conductivity are found.

The bedrock beneath the site should be of low permeability and the slope of the land should not allow surface runoff to enter the disposal site, the report said. A site must be located a minimum of 500 feet from the nearest water well or body of surface water. Siting on a floodplain is prohibited.

Zukor said that an area's population, mineral base, geology and accessibility to roads are factors relating to the feasibility of landfill sites. A detailed geological study of the chosen site would have to be conducted, in addition to public hearings on the construction of a site, Zukor said.

Nuclear dump sites are a matter of much public debate, he said.

"No one wants to take care of the waste," Zukor said. "Building a dump site isn't a big problem technically. You're talking about a site that is a couple of hundred acres in diameter for all the low-level waste in the Midwest. But it's a big problem from an emotional standpoint."

"One dump site in Illinois could take care of all the waste in the entire Midwest for 30 years," Zukor said.

Keros Cartwright, head of hydrogeology at Illinois Geological Survey, said the stability of waste materials in the environment in addition to the materials' toxicity are major considerations in the evaluation of landfill sites. Landfill sites for solid refuse are similar to low-level radioactive waste sites, he said. Both are close to the earth's surface and the decay period for each is generally around 100 to 200 years.

Cartwright said that the time it takes for waste materials to bio-degrade or decay is an important factor. The decay period for low-level wastes is considerably shorter than that of some toxic chemical wastes, he said.

"We can tell precisely what the decay period of low-level radioactive waste is. After a while certain levels of radioactivity become tolerable in the environment," Cartwright said. "The burial of low-level waste is a piece of cake compared to some toxic chemical wastes."

Some environmental groups have voiced concern about locating a nuclear dump site in areas where fault lines exist. Several major fault zones are located in the southeastern tip of Illinois, an area called the Fairfield Basin.

Cartwright said, however, that faults are located so far beneath the surface that they wouldn't affect stability.

report, on energy consumption in every building in the city, Besal said.

According to Besal, money raised from the tax would be used to pay city inspectors to go to every building in the city and determine how the occupants could conserve energy. The tax would also fund a loan program, to help building owners pay for any improvements that the inspectors may suggest, an energy education program and the development of methods that could generate energy within the city, Besal said.

Besal said the project does not deal with solar energy, but he did not say why the word "solar" is in the title.

Spyro Gyra at a crossroads

By Chet Slak
Student Writer

Spyro Gyra appears to be at a crossroads in its career these days. The group's latest release, "Freetime," seems to reflect this dilemma.

The album contains quite a few nice works performed by the group and a host of guest studio musicians including Steve Khan, Will Lee, Richard Tee, Valerie Simpson and Michael Brecker. The production is just as polished. The group's problem lies with its style.

Spyro Gyra has saturated the jazz-fusion audience with album after album of funk-based music that has carried the group to the bank and back, particularly in the case of the profitable "Morning Dance."

There now seems to be a feeling in the Spyro Gyra cult that the group should try something new to keep from becoming boring or predictable. Spyro Gyra seems to realize this on "Freetime" and makes an effort to change. Despite the attempt, most of the selections still end up sounding repetitious.

Almost all the music on this album, except for "Elegy for Trane" sounds like material that the group couldn't fit on its last album or the album before that, or the album before that. It's the same sound.

This is not necessarily bad, because the group has an audience that buys its albums just for that fact. But the problem is that the group's commercial success may be the same force that will lead to its downfall. Spyro Gyra wants to keep its fans (and current success) by playing that same sound. This may be stifling the creativity of a group capable of much more.

The critic's choice on this album is the title cut, "Freetime," but "Elegy for Trane," dedicated to jazz great John Coltrane, is a beautiful number that deserves recognition as well.

Will Lee contributes a fine, thumping bass to "Pacific Sunrise," while "String Soup" (which opens up like an old Wilson Pickett number) gives keyboardist Richard Tee room to work on acoustic and electric piano.

"Summer Strut" has that typical Spyro Gyra sound, even more so than the other tunes. The selections "Amber Dreams" and "Telluride" are interesting, but not much more.

Review

The two chief arrangers and writers for Spyro Gyra, Jay Beckenstein and Jeremy Wall, have been doing a little outside work lately. Beckenstein did some studio work with Bob James, while Wall did some arranging for the revamped CTI record label. It's too bad they didn't bring some of those outside influences to bear on this album.

The group shouldn't be afraid to try some new things. It's got an established following. Expanding its style could ultimately expand its audience.

To the avid Spyro Gyra fan, "Freetime" may be somewhat of a disappointment. To the person who listens to the band on an occasional basis, "Freetime" could cause Spyro Gyra to be lost in the throng of other fusion groups. To a newcomer on the jazz-fusion scene, this could be an enjoyable album.

Check the album out for yourself in your own "Freetime."

'Victimless' crime leaves cops at a loss

By Douglas Hamm
Staff Writer

Carbondale Police have a dilemma on their hands that could qualify for Ripley's Believe It Or Not. They have a good idea who their suspect is, but they can't find the victim.

The unknown victim purchased some business supplies Wednesday from Standard Business Supplies at 829 E. Main, then traveled to Gusto's Printing at 610 S. Illinois and left his business supplies in his unlocked car. The supplies were stolen and the victim then returned to SBS to refill his order.

A short time later, a man came into SBS trying to sell back the stolen items. An SBS employee gave Carbondale Police a description of a car the suspect was driving and police believe they know who the burglar is. But they can't do anything until they find the victim.

Carbondale Police ask that this mystery victim call them so they can file a report and return his goods. They can't press any charges, either, until they get a victim.

In the meantime, Carbondale Police have a crime without a victim.

Resurfaced lot to reopen for parking

The Parking Division Friday will re-open Lot 63, located east of the Hiram Lesar Law School on Oakland Street off Douglas Drive, according to Marilyn Hogan, campus parking manager.

Hogan said the newly-resurfaced parking lot has a total of 205 spaces, including three for the handicapped and 65 specified for blue decals only.

Hogan said the blue decal spaces are located at the south end of the lot and that there are signs specifying this. She said anyone parking in these spaces without a blue decal will be ticketed.

George Hamilton as the legendary Zorro gives a lesson in swordsmanship at a ball.

Sharp sword can't save dull 'Zorro'

By Joe Walter
Entertainment Editor

"Zorro, the Gay Blade," following "Arthur" and "History of the World, Part I" is yet another example of the recent Hollywood trend of poor comedies.

This movie is so bland that it should be recommended to those viewers unfortunate enough to have bleeding ulcers.

The movie opens with Don Diego (George Hamilton), son of the famous Zorro, in Madrid, in bed with a nobleman's wife. After a fencing match with her husband and his five brothers, he receives a note from his father in California calling him home.

When Diego returns to California, he finds that the evil Estaban (Rob Leibman) has killed his father and has become the local alcalde, the absolute boss.

Review

Zorro, the Gay Blade, starring George Hamilton and Lauren Hutton. Reviewer's rating: 1 star (4 stars tops).

Diego meets a fervent female liberal (Lauren Hutton) and predictably they fall in love after he becomes Zorro. The reason he becomes Zorro, however, is rather imaginative.

Diego receives a trunk via servant from his father. Inside the trunk, he finds the famous mask, sword, whip and a letter from his father about his destiny to defend the poor. He uses the costume to wear to a masquerade.

On his way to the party, he fights the alcalde's tax-collector and takes the tax money, which he gives to a peasant family. At that point Diego decides that the Zorro legacy is his destiny.

He arrives at the party with the female liberal and duels the wicked alcalde. He exits by jumping from a veranda and breaking his ankle.

Afterwards he meets his twin brother Ramone, who happens to be a femme-like fop who joined the British Navy because dad thought it would make a man out of him. Ramone takes Diego's place, but makes the costumes much more colorful and ridiculous as he avenges the poor as Zorro the Gay Blade.

This movie tries too hard to be amusing and not just funny. One-liners are blown left and right because of hideous overacting. In that respect, the blame lies with director Peter Medak. Those too few one-liners could have been much funnier if the director took some care with the performances. The screenplay by Hal Dresner? Well, it stinks, too.

The whole idea of having a fairly put on the screen just to be funny is not enough. This film needs more. It even tries to make fun of elitist liberal types, but the idea is not fully developed.

Drunk driving bill may be the key to improved drivers

By Bill Ward
Student Writer

The key to safer highways and possibly better drivers may be this state's new and tougher drunk driving law, according to Secretary of State Jim Edgar.

Edgar said the new law, scheduled to take effect Jan. 1, will enable Illinois police departments to get tough on drunk drivers, provided police are serious about its enforcement.

Edgar made the comments in a speech to an audience of about 50 people in the Free Forum Area Wednesday.

"Traffic safety is my number one priority," Edgar said, noting that the drunk driving bill is probably the most important he helped push through the Legislature this year.

Police procedure to handle drunk drivers will be changed to streamline completion of forms necessary to administer a breath test and to eliminate a second test currently given to drivers failing the first.

Also, drivers refusing to take the breath test will have their licenses revoked for six months instead of for three months as under the old law.

Edgar also said he pushed to keep the 55 mph speed limit, confounding that it "saved more lives on the interstates than any other type of highway." And he said that "strict enforcement" of all traffic laws will enhance safety overall.

His pressure for change won't extend to the secretary of state's office, however.

Money still missing; Bursar to file claim

By David Murphy
Staff Writer

University officials, stymied in their search for $2,000 in missing cash, have abandoned the search and will file a claim with SIU-C's insurance company to recover the loss.

Warren Buffum, vice president for financial affairs, said that continued investigations into the disappearance of $2,000 from the Bursar's Office, discovered on Sept. 9, have turned up no leads, but have removed suspicion that the money was stolen.

"All avenues have been exhausted, and I don't see anything new turning up," Buffum said.

The shortage was discovered during routine checks by the bursar's staff. Subsequent examination of office accounts and interviews with office workers failed to provide any new information.

The investigation was conducted by the University's internal auditing staff and the SIU-C Police. It included checks with Carbondale banks that received SIU deposits that day, a review of campus units that receive cash transfers and a review of money handling procedures in the office itself.

The investigation turned up "no reason to suspect anyone of theft," Buffum said. "The University has filed a claim with its insurance company for unaccounted for loss of funds." Buffum said he can't recall a similar loss in 25 years on SIU's financial staff. "It isn't that remarkable, though, when you consider the millions of dollars that pass through the office," he said. "It's distressing, but we've checked all possible places and can't find it."

Friends sometimes question your taste in movies. But they'll see them with you anyway.

It sounded fantastic in the newspaper. But only to you. Still, you had to see it, and with a little arm-twisting your friends agreed to see it too.

You've already heard a barrage of jokes about your taste in movies since the curtain came down. And, knowing your friends, it'll go on for weeks.

So, to make it up to them, and show them your taste isn't bad in everything, you do something a little special. Tonight, let it be Löwenbräu.

RSVP means retired donating time, talents

By Randolph E. Schmid
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON—If the generation that came of age in the '70s was the "me" generation, the generation now approaching age 70 might be called the "thee" generation. By the thousands, older Americans are flocking to give of their time and talents as longer lifespans lead more and more people into the ranks of the retired.

Now a decade old, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program boasts more than 319,000 people, aged 60 and over, who each year donate more than 57 million hours of their time.

The organization celebrated its 10th birthday Wednesday with a White House ceremony, part of planned activities for this week's annual RSVP convention here.

For one elderly man or woman, the attraction to volunteer work is to try to share the joys of a long life, for another it's helping ease the pain of death. For thousands it's a rewarding chance to help both others and themselves.

"I enjoy everything about being an RSVP volunteer. Being needed is the big reward. And it keeps me young at 81 years. It makes me feel like a useful citizen," said Lois Wayland of Omaha, Neb., who tutors disadvantaged youngsters.

Another volunteer is Mary Felek, 81, of New Haven, Conn., who remembers the despair of a relative who died of cancer in 1972.

Mrs. Felek explained that her sister-in-law "was very low and wanted to talk to somebody outside of the family. You see, at that time we didn't want to talk about dying."

A young Roman Catholic priest befriended the woman, who was Jewish. He would "come in and talk to her by the hour, and she got such...like a catharsis," Mrs. Felek said.

Today Mrs. Felek volunteers her time at a local hospital coordinating visits to the sick by ministers, priests and rabbis. She lets them know when parishioners are ill and suggests when to visit them and their families.

When she heard about the hospital's program, in October, 1972, "I thought to myself, I thought, 'Oh, this is just for me.' When I joined up I knew that was the job for me.

"To me it's a great joy. I tell you honestly, I go to work with the greatest of pleasure. I don't know what I would have done. God help us if that RSVP ever folds up, me and a million others."

RSVP volunteers around the country—lawyers, teachers, carpenters, doctors, bricklayers and so forth—receive no pay for their efforts, at least not in money.

But the federal government spends about $27.7 million a year to administer the program. That's about $87 a year per volunteer, or 48 cents per hour worked.

The Reagan administration has proposed a modest increase in next year's RSVP budget, to $28.7 million.

Dr. Harold Gunn, 61, a retired Detroit speech pathologist, said his interest in counseling troubled young men is sustained by the success stories.

He recalled one particular youth, a small boy who was picked on by his peers and had been shuffled between foster parents and grandparents most of his life. With Gunn's help and encouragement, he enrolled in a job training program, earned a high school equivalency diploma and now hopes to enter college.

"There may not be any money in volunteer service but this is a reward money can't buy," Gunn said.

Among the senior volunteers scheduled to attend the RSVP convention is 77-year-old Donald Mortlock of Laurel, Del.

Mortlock retired 11 year ago from a job as an insurance auditor in Buffalo, N.Y., and moved to Laurel, where he founded the 1,000-member Indian River Senior Center.

Mortlock said he started the center because he was just not inclined to spend the rest of his life in a rocking chair.

He kicked off operations in an Episcopal Church with just 35 members.

"By the end of the year we had 120, by the end of '71 we had 250 and we kept picking up new members. It was much needed around here, apparently," he said.

Diablo arrest total reaches 1,545;

plant starts testing

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP)—A dwindling band of anti-nuclear demonstrators launched new land and sea assaults Thursday on the Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant, and at least 44 people were arrested.

The Abalone Alliance, an umbrella group of 60 anti-nuclear organizations sponsoring the protest, said the 10-day arrest total is about 1,545.

Leaders of the protest said they expected it to continue at least through this weekend, but moves beyond that were still being discussed among the protest groups.

"We grew to 500 by 1975 and we had to stop taking in members because we were crowding out the hall," he said.

A federal grant for a new civic center allowed the group to expand, and it now has 1,000 members.

"We had 250 out to a luncheon yesterday and we're worried now about crowding out our room again," said Mortlock.

The senior citizens center has a part-time secretary and a custodian but is otherwise operated by volunteer workers.

"We're all volunteers so we can't spend seven days a week there. We compromise and spend six-and-a-half," he joked.

Golfers head South for tourney

By Steve Metach
Staff Writer

The men's golf team will take its road show south to the Southern Mississippi tournament Sunday. The Salukis will face 20 schools in the three-day, 54-hole tourney.

According to Coach Jim Reburn, some of the top golf teams in the South will battle the Salukis for first. Baylor, Houston, Louisiana Tech., Mississippi State, Rice, Tulane and Alabama will all provide tough competition for the Saluki golfers, Reburn said.

The Salukis finished seventh in last year's tournament, one stroke behind Southern Mississippi and four behind Baylor. Last year's champ, Troy State, will be returning.

"Those schools won't have much of an advantage over us, even though they can golf most of the year," Reburn said. "We are on our game, since we've been playing all summer."

The tournament will be held at Broadwater Beach Sun Course, which may be described better as a water course considering the 10 lakes that dot the links.

"When playing this course, the premium is on accuracy," Reburn said. "The water is for the most part on the sides of the fairways, so keeping the ball straight is very important. Only two holes don't have water."

At 7,200 yards, the par-72 course is one of the longest the Salukis compete on. Reburn said the team practiced every aspect of its game-chipping, putting and its long game-in preparation for the tournament.

Freshman Mark Young, sophomores John Schaefer and Tom Jones, Junior Robbie Hammond will play in the tournament. A fifth golfer will be named to play also. The top four scores from each round will be added to get the team's score.

"The key to our success will be having four low rounds each day. If we do, we can afford to toss out the one bad round," Reburn said. "We are aiming for five good rounds each day, which will put us near the top."

Reburn said playing three 18-hole rounds in three days offers a slight mental bonus to the golfers, since they don't have one "killer day" of 36 holes.

Women's tennis team shoots for 9th victory

By Keith Mascitti
Staff Writer

The women's tennis team will be shooting for its ninth straight win this weekend when it plays its third consecutive home meet at the University Courts.

The Salukis will play Southeast Missouri State, Southwest Missouri and Sangamon State in the quadrangular meet Friday and Saturday.

SIU-C is on a six-game two-week winning streak, defeating favorites Louisville and Missouri.

Last season the Salukis bombed Sangamon State, 9-0 and SEMO, 8-1. The Salukis haven't seen Southwest Missouri in four seasons, and Saluki Coach Judy Auld thinks the Bears will give her team the stiffest competition.

"We don't want to overlook any team because you can never tell what it will come in with," Auld said. "Southwest Missouri will be the strongest but they're not as strong as they have been in the past.

"I want to take it one match at a time," Auld said. "We're going to try to progress and get the kinks out of our games, but we won't be pushed as much as last weekend. If we go one match at a time, I feel that we can win all three. I feel very confident going into the weekend."

Auld said she will try to use as many reserve players as possible, give freshman Alessandra Molinari's sore ankle a rest, and have the lower position singles players be more consistent.

Auld also feels the play of top seeded Lisa Warren will pick up.

"Lisa is playing in the toughest spot and has played well. I can't ask anymore from her," Auld said. "She just hasn't been winning the big points, but that will come in time. She realizes that in every match she will play the best players, and will be pushed. She's willing to give it all."

Softball team to play Redbirds

By Jim Cagle
Staff Writer

The SIU-C women's softball team will not hold its first Fall Invitational Saturday.

Instead the Salukis will open their first fall season ever with a triple-header against Illinois State, with games at 11 a.m., 1 and 3 p.m., at the Women's Athletics field across from the Recreation Center.

A three-team tournament had been scheduled originally, according to Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer, but Indiana State didn't have enough players because of injuries and participation in other sports, so it canceled.

Brechtelsbauer tried to no avail to find a replacement for Indiana State, and finally decided to go with three games against Illinois State.

Hitting is the big question-mark for both teams.

"We're going to see a lot of new faces on both teams this weekend," Brechtelsbauer said. "They graduated almost all of their infield last year, and their games earlier this fall have all been low scoring."

Hitting was the downfall of last year's Saluki squad, which finished with an 11-22 record. SIU-C batted .176 as a team, the worst in Brechtelsbauer's 15 years of coaching.

"We've been looking a lot better in practice," Brechtelsbauer said. "We're definitely making strides in the right direction. Hopefully, after last year the only way we can go is up."

Last year's pitching staff, which had a combined earned run average of 2.31, will be bolstered by the return of Gena Valli. Valli, a senior from St. Louis, spent three years with the Salukis in the late seventies and has a lifetime record of 65-30.

Valli helped lead the Salukis to berths in the College World Series in 1978 and 1979. She will pitch the first game and make an appearance at first base in at least one of the other two games.

IM softball season ends! playoffs to begin on Monday

The intramural softball season ends this week and playoffs begin Monday.

A captain's meeting will be held Sunday from 7 to 9 p.m. in Room 158 at the Recreation Center.

To qualify for the playoffs, each team had to win at least three of its six games. A total of 196 teams participated this season in the men's A and B divisions, women's division and Co-Rec A and B divisions.

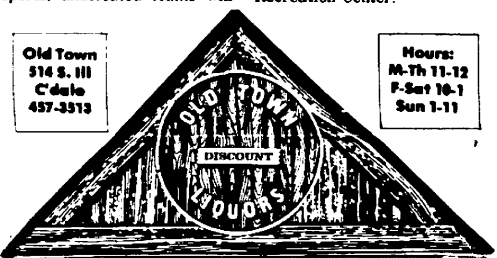

According to Joyce Craven, coordinator of Intramural Sports, undefeated teams will have the option of taking a bye in the first round, if there are the right number of teams in the tournament. Teams with losses will be placed in the playoff brackets by a random draw. Any team which qualifies for the playoffs, but does not show up at the captain's meeting will be placed in the brackets in alphabetical order.

Playoff information and schedules will be posted on the intramural team bulletin board located in the upper level of the Recreation Center.

Polo team hopes to avenge defeat

By Jim Cagle
Staff Writer

The SIU-C water polo team opens its home schedule with a 16-game, eight-team tournament Friday and Saturday at the Recreation Center pool.

The Salukis have a 1-3 record and the three teams they lost to are in this weekend's tournament.

"The teams to beat this weekend are Indiana and Loyola," Coach Bob Steele said. "Loyola's big fall sport is water polo. They recruit for water polo and then pick their swim team from among that team, which is exactly opposite from what we do."

Loyola won the Indiana In-weekend, where the Salukis managed their first victory, 18-16, against Ohio State. According to Steele, Loyola sent three players to the Midwest team at the National Sports Festival: Joe Jekote, Mike Fernstrom and Mark Menis.

Indiana is also a threat to win the SIU-C tourney, according to Steele, as Kentucky, Missouri-Rolla, and Iowa State. The Salukis lost to Rolla and Indiana at last weekend's tourney.

"Any of those top five teams have a chance to win it," Steele said. "Indiana and Rolla are both in our conference, and the last three times they met, Indiana has won 10-9."

The remaining teams in the ourney are Principia, which defeated the Salukis, 15-11 last weekend, and Illinois.

The mainstay of the Saluki offense so far this season is freshman Dave Kiolbasa, from Oak Park. Kiolbasa was a high school all-state pick a year ago. He scored six goals in his first three games as a Saluki.

Hurricane awaits battle-torn gridders

By Rod Furlow
Staff Writer

The Saluki football team is going to Tulsa minus three starters Saturday to play the demanding Missouri Valley champs.

Hurt are fullback Derrick Taylor, offensive guard Chester Cropp, and linebacker Granville Butler.

Some good news is that Tulsa is 0-3, like the Salukis. More bad news is that the Golden Hurricane has barely lost its games to two Big 8 schools and the Arkansas Razorbacks.

"We've been picked to lose by 20 points in some circles," Saluki Coach Rey Dempsey said. "We'll have to play with no turnovers, we'll have to create turnovers, and we'll have to have a good kicking game in order to win. We can put those things together."

Sophomore Corky Field will start in place of Taylor, and sophomore Rich Blackmon and junior John McGowan will play some fullback, too, Dempsey said.

Field started in the opener against McNeese State, but lost his job to Taylor. Blackmon hasn't played this season.

"The loss of Taylor is a loss of explosiveness," Dempsey said. "Walter Poole has the explosiveness, too, but we did have two guys with it back there and now we have one."

Dempsey doesn't expect the Hurricane to "key" on Poole because of Taylor's absence. "No, good defenses don't key," Dempsey said. "Their defense is good enough that it doesn't have to key. Their defense is probably the thing they're most proud of."

The Hurricane defense gave up 11 points to Kansas, 10 to Arkansas, and 21 to Oklahoma State. Tulsa Coach John Cooper said Wednesday that he'd been surprised by how well his defense had played.

Dempsey was impressed by the Hurricane defense when he watched the films of Tulsa's three games.

"They've been holding back good teams," he said. "It's something to see a team like Arkansas held to two, four, two, six yards on rushing plays. There were no big breakaways."

Cooper pointed out Wednesday that his defensive team had lost two starters to injuries for the season, noseguard Mark Mask and tackle Carl Pendleton. Cooper said the Hurricane, like other Valley teams, had depth problems.

"When he said they had depth problems, I think he was comparing his team to the type of teams they've been playing," Dempsey said. "As far as our conference goes, Tulsa is the cream of the crop. They have some great material."

They have a lot of material. The Tulsa roster lists 99 players. One of them, senior quarterback Kenny Jackson, is what Dempsey calls great material.

Jackson passed for over 1,200 yards and ran for almost 300 last season. This season he's passed for only 92 yards, and Dempsey doesn't think he'll throw much Saturday.

"No, he won't. They'll keep running," Dempsey said. "And Jackson'll run his triple option a lot."

On the triple option, Jackson rolls out and either hands off, pitches, or keeps the ball.

"And sometimes he'll drop straight back and throw it's really hard on the defense," Dempsey said.

Besides Tulsa's triple option, the Salukis had some other things on their minds in practice this week: the dropping of the team from Division IA to IAA, effective in January, and the possible $10 cut in the athletics fee, which could eliminate football.

"We're aware of those things, we're concerned about them, but we're busy playing football," Dempsey said. "The people moaning and groaning for the fee decrease will probably graduate and then want a team to be proud of. I think the big crowd we had last week was a vote of confidence. They showed us they think football is pretty important."

Women out to regain state golfing crown

By Keith Mascitti
Staff Writer

The women's golf team will try to regain its state golf title this weekend which it lost last year for the first time since 1977.

SIU-C will hold this year's tournament, Friday and Saturday at Rend Lake Greens in Benton. Teams competing include SIU-C, Illinois State, Illinois and Northern Illinois.

Last year's tournament was held in Normal and the Salukis were edged out of first place by NIU in a sudden-death playoff.

Saluki Coach Mary Beth McGirr feels that this year's tournament will be a different story and NIU shouldn't be a major contender.

"It's like a three-horse race," McGirr said. "NIU is rebuilding this season and only has four players on its team. They will be at a disadvantage because the other teams will have six. This gives the other team a chance to discard its two lower scores."

McGirr said there is a revenge factor between ISU and SIU-C. Earlier this season the Redbirds and Salukis tied for third place in the Illinois State Invitational. ISU won in the sudden-death playoff. Holding the tournament in Benton will also be an advantage McGirr said.

The Benton course is large, measuring 5,985 yards for this tournament. According to McGirr, the keys to winning are to keep the ball on the fairway—the rough is extremely thick—and adjusting putts to compensate for the long greens.

The Saluki team is young, consisting of five sophomores and three freshmen, McGirr said despite her team's age, she feels it has as good of a chance to win as any team.

Last year, SIU-C's Barb Anderson shot scores of 82-85 and as a freshman was named the tournaments Most Valuable Player. Anderson, along with teammate Sue Arbogast, also gained all-state honors.

McGirr likes to play down individual honors, and play up team winning. But she feels that a Saluki could win MVP honors again.

"Any of my sophomores could win it," McGirr said. "They're all playing pretty well now. Anyone of them is capable of getting fired up and winning it."
