Hindersman elected chairman of search committee for VP

By David Murphy
Staff Writer

Acting Vice President for University Relations Charles Hindersman was elected chairman of the search committee in charge of finding a new vice president.

The committee, at its first meeting Tuesday night, created an operating procedures, elected the chairman, and received a formal charge from President Albert Somit, according to Terry Mathias, doctoral assistant to the president.

"The search committee was told that it must select candidates who will be able to take charge of fund raising and image enhancement for the University," Mathias said.

The 12-member committee was appointed by Somit three weeks ago to find a replacement for former vice president George S. Hartog, who resigned to raise $14 million before June 12 to take a position as an executive consultant with the American Council on Education.

Nominations and applications for the position are now being received, Mathias said, and the committee will examine those and attempt to narrow the list down to between three and six choices.

The committee hopes to have the recommendations to the president by Jan. 1, 1982, Mathias said.

Friday is the deadline for nominations, and all applications, including a letter, resume and the names of references must be received by Oct. 9, Mathias said.

"The next meeting will be sometime during the week of Oct. 12, and the committee will begin screening applicants by examining their desires at their time," Mathias said.

After the committee has made its recommendations, the new vice president will be appointed by President Somit. Criteria used in choosing candidates will include "proven ability in fund-raising activities and experience in community relations," Mathias said.

Nuclear control talks to begin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union announced Thursday they will begin negotiations to control nuclear weapons in Europe on Nov. 30 in Geneva, the first tangible result of high-level U.S.-Soviet talks here.

They said in a joint statement they would "spare no effort" to reach agreement, although U.S. officials said privately the negotiations likely will take many months, if not years.

The talks in Switzerland will be the first significant negotiations between the Reagan administration and the Soviet leadership following months of harsh rhetoric between the two superpowers.

President Reagan asked Congress on Thursday night to cut spending an additional $13 billion next year and $23 billion more in taxes so lift the nation from its "economicswap" and point the budget toward balance in 1984.

The president said the added tax revenues can be derived through eliminating certain "shades and obsolete incentives" in the law.

Hartog's aides said his plan would hold the deficit to $43 billion in fiscal 1982, which begins Oct. 1.

Hartog also said he would cut the federal workforce, except for the veterinarians, the workers, and request Congress to abolish the Departments of Energy and Education, and fulfilling a campaign promise.

"I know that we are asking for sacrifices from virtually all of you," he said. "But there is no alternative.

He called for a 12 percent across-the-board cut in domestic programs, other than those "entitlement" benefits to individuals, such as pensions, prescriptions by law. Exemptions were also granted to certain veterans' services and law enforcement programs.

"I know that some interest rates are punishing many of our people, but you — and I — have to work to lift the economy," he said.

The president, stating that without the further cuts it would be impossible to balance the budget by 1984, said: "It would be a disgrace to the American people and say, 'well, it will take longer than we thought. We got most of what we proposed, so let's stop there.' But that's not good enough.

NAIA change may alter SIU-C football status

By Andrew Straug
Managing Editor

An impending change in National Collegiate Athletic Association regulations was almost assuredly dropped football at SIU-C from Division-I to Division-II, Vice President for Student Affairs Bruce Mace said Thursday.

The proposed regulation change, which NCAA members would have to approve, would require all Division-I football programs to have an average minimum attendance of 20,000 per game, according to Bruce Mace, athletic director for SIU.

SIU said it has an average attendance of about 11,000 per game this season, Interim President for Student Affairs Bruce Mace said Thursday.

If the rule is almost assured, the rule change would be approved by member schools at the NCAA convention in December, he said.

"We've told the Undergraduate Student Organization of the proposed rule change," Mace said Wednesday night.

Under current NCAA rules, Division-I schools must maintain an average attendance of 17,000 per game, and at least one of the past four seasons, an attendance minimum of 12 NCAA sports, he said.

If the NCAA rule change is approved, SIU-C will be required to compete in Division-II for football, Mace said.

Although SIU-C was eligible to play in NCAA post-season football tournaments, it was barred from competing for the Missouri Valley Football Conference title because it is not Division-I, he said.

The football program will not be negatively affected by the change in status, he said.

If SIU-C will not have to cut any more football scholarships, reduced from $50 to $25 per game for SIU-C football players, Mace said.

The president said SIU-C also needs to have a Director of Athletics.
Armenian terrorists take over consulate in Paris; forty held

PARIS (AP) - Anti-terrorist police surrounded the Armenian consulate in the center of Paris Thursday after a four-man Armenian suicide squad seized some 40 demonstrators and threatened to kill them and blow up the building unless their demands were met, authorities said.

Ambushes took three people from the consulate several hours after the siege began. One was reported by French radio to be a Turkish security guard killed in the takeover. Police said the others were a wounded Ukrainian consulate official and a wounded terrorist who demanded political asylum.

The commandos demanded Turkey free jailed Armenian political prisoners and fly them to France by 11 p.m. (3 p.m. EDT). They said the ambassador was not met all the hostages "will be executed," and that if French forces intervened, the building "will be blown up.

A Turkish Embassy spokesman said about 15 staff members and 25 visitors, including several women, remained hostage in the consulate. Police evacuated nearby buildings.

The Turkish government in Ankara said France was responsible for obtaining the hostages' quick and safe release and that Turkey would not negotiate with the terrorists in the eight-story building on the terrorist's terms.

In an effort to reduce for Armenian political prisoners in Turkish jails, they demanded the release of five Turkish revolutionaries and five Armenian rebels, an Armenian cleric, Father Emanuel Yergatian, and a lay missionary, Hrant Guzelian.

The terrorists in messages dropped from the building and a statement distributed in Beirut identified themselves as "suicide commandos" of the Armenian Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia.

In addition to freedom for Armenian political prisoners in Turkish jails, they demanded the release of five Turkish revolutionaries and five Armenian rebels, an Armenian cleric, Father Emanuel Yergatian, and a lay missionary, Hrant Guzelian.

Poland to get tough on anti-Soviets

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Poland's Communist regime declared Thursday that special army units will be poised to move against a tough new crackdown on anti-Soviet lawlessness spawned by the independent union Solidarity.

In response to Kremlin calls for a "rebuff" to the union, Prime Minister Wojciech Jaruzelski told Parliament Thursday that Poland would take power ... and averaging wages.

"An end must be put to the disregard for legal norms, to the deepening anarchist tendencies, to the hooligan unbridledness, to anti-social and anti-state excesses," he said, drawing loud applause from the deputies.

Jaruzelski, a general who is also the defense minister, said the government had shown good will and done everything to avoid armed measures in dealing with Solidarity.

"But we shall not understand and lend their support to the authorities in their strivings and actions intended to secure the observance of the law and to usher in a tougher course in the face of its violations."

Accordingly, I placed before the minister of the interior the task on this matter and his work within the indispensable and appropriate scope will be assisted by forces and means of the army assigned for this purpose.

The army and its military police have already taken on a growing role in Poland since Jaruzelski became premier in February.

Carbondale Police are searching for two armed robbers who bound three people, and escaped from a downtown Carbondale jewelry store Wednesday afternoon with an estimated $20,000 in jewelry and cash.

David McNeill, owner of McNeill’s Jewelry, 214 S. Illinois Ave., was bound and handcuffed by the robbers, but he was manage to push an alarm with his face after the robbers left according to Carbondale Police.

Two customers in the store, a 72-year-old woman and a 52-year-old man, both of Carbondale, were also tied up by the robbers but their names were not released by police. No one was injured in the holdup.

Police said the robbers entered the store about 12:34 p.m., with one of the suspects pushing the other in a wheelchair. After asking to see merchandise, the suspect pushing the wheelchair brandished a 28-caliber revolver, and with the help of his accomplice who jumped out of the wheelchair, tied up McNeill and the customers.

The suspects then ransacked several display cases and took McNeill’s wallet, cash, gold chains, diamond rings and watches were taken.

Both suspects being sought in the robbery are black males. One was described as 6 feet tall, weighing about 210 pounds and wearing a pink-dark blue shirt and jeans. The other suspect was described as 6 feet tall, weighing 170 pounds, light skin and wearing a tan shirt and light brown shoes.

Fee decrease may not end football

By Andrew Strange
Staff Writer

A reduction in the athletics fee could result in either the elimination of football or the elimination of “about six minor sports.” Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, told the Student Senate Wednesday.

“It just seems incredible that we would consider eliminating football,” Swinburne said in an attempt to convince the senators that cutting the athletics fee by $10 would be “devastating.” He was answering questions from senators about the effects of keeping the athletics fee at its present level of $20 or reducing it to its previous level of $20.

Swinburne said, however, that a reduction in the fee would not necessarily result in the end of football at SIU-C. If the fee is reduced and football is not eliminated, it has not been determined which minor sports will be affected, he said.

The elimination of sports at SIU-C would “devalue the image of the University,” Swinburne said. He said the senate should look to the future, past the hard economic times, and not support the dismantling of programs that will later be hard to revive.

“I understand that $10 is important, but I hope you’ll think about the future of this university,” he said.

The senate is expected to take a stand on the issue after a special meeting Wednesday.

In other business, Mike Besal, co-author of the Municipal Solar Utility report, a comprehensive energy plan for the Carbondale. asked for senate assistance in holding workshops on campus to inform students about the plan's details.

Some people believe he will use the lieutenant governor's office as a stepping-stone to bigger things. Only time and his performance here will determine whether Buzbee is using the position to get to a higher job or to truly help Illinois.

But Buzbee has said he would do the job of lieutenant governor differently than his predecessor, that he doesn't do the job because it wasn't challenging enough. If Buzbee does all he says he will do, the job should prove quite challenging.

Students important to Carbondale

In Carbondale, where most government officials like to pretend that the student population doesn't exist, it can be difficult to find a City Council member who acknowledges that they are here. Unfortunately, that member's view of students is as welcomed by students as was a recent letter to the editor that said students are only strong feeling students about town, that the only reason students vote is to vote in CAR, and that Carbondale was bad enough that local Republicans last year tried to oust any polling places, but now we are still left with a city council member who doesn't think students should vote at all! In all fairness, it must be noted that the student vote is not the only factor in the election. In fact, the student vote and volunteer efforts were decisive factors in the election of a number of public officials as U.S. Rep. Paul Tilghman, State Rep. Buzbee, and Carbon County's Attorney John Clemons.

But, there is this real reason she doesn't want to vote. The only reason she has voted is for the Republicans, and she is a Republican—at least she served as a Republican to those last election. Student vote for the wrong party, don't they, Mrs. Alkman?

Well, under the laws of this state, we have the right legal right to vote in Carbondale, and we will continue to vote here in Carbondale, and continue to vote the wrong party.

We will not vote for the party that has cut student grants and loans programs. We will not vote for the party that is gaging this state, war, military confrontation. Yes, we will vote for the party that has turned this city into something less than a national monument to our nation's poverty.

For nine to 12 months each year, this is our home. Many of us work double shifts or have more than one-third of the 7,500 rental units in the city taken by our dependents as we pay over $1,000 per month in rent. As we can only work one job, our income is severely depressed. Many Carbondale businessmen work on moonlighting to survive.

And contrary to Alkman's remarks about the last City Council election, more than 100 students voted in Precinct 23, not only 28 as was stated in the article. Students do play an important role in the Carbondale student vote and volunteer efforts were decisive factors in the election of a number of public officials as U.S. Rep. Paul Tilghman, State Rep. Buzbee, and Carbon County's Attorney John Clemons.

Southern Illinois within rules for waste sites

By Karen Gullo
Staff Writer

A dump site for low-level radioactive waste located in Southern Illinois may be just a few years down the road.

Under a law passed by Congress last December, the federal government, will be responsible for providing disposal sites for low-level wastes by Jan. 1, 1986. The Illinois Department of Nuclear Safety announced in August its proposed rules for siting and operating a dump site facility. The department is seeking private companies to construct and operate the site and expects to select a contractor within six to nine months. The department has not chosen a location for the site, but a report released last February by the Illinois Geological Survey showed large areas of Southern Illinois to be suitable for a low-level dump site.

Illinois is the third largest producer of low-level waste in the nation. The state does not have an active dumpsite; all low-level waste is shipped to radioactive waste dumps in Nevada, Washington and South Carolina.

The only waste site in Illinois, located in upstate Sheffield, about 50 miles north of Peoria, was closed by a court order in 1976 after the department admitted that it had released radioactive tritium, a radioactive hydrogen isotope, escaping from burial trenches at the site.

Among the companies which have shown interest in operating the proposed site is U.S. Ecology Inc., of Louisville. It formerly was the Nuclear Engineering Corp., the company which operated the Sheffield site.

Philip F. Gustafson, director of the Illinois DNS, has said in published reports that Illinois may be the "host" state for a compact between 12 Midwestern states to develop a regional disposal site. Illinois produces as much low-level waste as all the other 12 states combined.

Low-level waste refers to a wide variety of radioactive garbage generated by nuclear plants hospitals, and research institutions. Contaminated tools, protective gloves, vials and needles are among the materials burned in low-level waste dumps.

Low-level waste does not include spent reactor fuel or "tailings," which are highly radioactive materials separated as residue from the milling of uranium ore. The waste would be stored in 55-gallon drums which would be buried in 26-foot trenches.

The barrels would contain only solid waste. The dumping of liquid radioactive waste is illegal in Illinois.

Although the state has until 1986 to develop a site, plans and rules for the site are being formulated now that so a site can be chosen and construction can begin within a year, according to Martin Zukor, nuclear policy analyst for the Illinois Department of Nuclear Safety.

Zukor said that it would take a year to build a site, but the licensing process may take up to three years. A site will be chosen by the governor's office at the recommendation of the department. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the federal agency which sets guidelines for waste disposal, must give its approval of the site. Southern Illinois is suitable for a low-level dump site because of its geological characteristics, according to a report by the Illinois Geological Survey, a division of the Institute of Natural Resources for geological information. Dump sites should be located in areas where water tables are deep below the ground level and fine-grained materials of low hydraulic conductivity are found. The bedrock beneath the site should be of low permeability and the slope of the land should not allow surface runoff to enter the disposal site, the report said. A site must be located a minimum of 500 feet from the nearest water well or body of surface water. Siting on a floodplain is prohibited. Zukan said that an area's population, mineral base, geology, and suitability of roads are factors relating to the feasibility of landfill sites. A detailed geological study of the chosen site would have to be conducted, in addition to public hearings on the construction of a site, Zukan said. Nuclear dump sites are a matter of much public debate, he said. "No one wants to take care of the waste," Zukan said. "Building a dump site isn't a big problem technically. You're talking about a site that is a couple of hundred acres in diameter for all the low-level waste in the Midwest. But it's a big problem from an emotional standpoint." "One dump site in Illinois could take care of the all waste in the entire Midwest for 30 years," Zukan said. Steve Cartwright, head of hydrogeology at Illinois Geological Survey, said the stability of waste materials in the environment in addition to the materials' toxicity are major considerations in the evaluation of landfill sites. Landfill sites for solid refuse are similar to low-level radioactive waste sites, he said. Both are close to the earth's surface and the decay period for each is generally around 100 to 200 years. Cartwright said that the time it takes for waste materials to bio-degrade or decay is an important factor. The decay period for low-level waste is considerably shorter than that of some toxic chemical wastes, he said. "We can tell precisely what the decay period of low-level radioactive waste is. After a while certain levels of radioactivity become tolerable in the environment," Cartwright said. "The burial of low-level waste is a piece of cake compared to some toxic chemical wastes. Some environmental groups have voiced concern about locating a nuclear dump site in areas where fault lines exist. Several may faults are located in the southeastern tip of Illinois, an area called the Fairfield Basin. Cartwright said, however, that faults are located so far beneath the surface that they wouldn't affect stability."

Spyro Gyra at a crossroads

By Chet Sirk
Student Writer

Spyro Gyra appears to be at a crossroads in its career these days. The concept of a group of studio musicians creating an album of their own inspires few to buy their albums. The group's appeal is just as polarizing. The problem lies with its style.

Spyro Gyra has saturated the jazz-fusion audience with album after album of R&B-based music that has carried the group to the bank and back. Its sound is quite repetitive.

Almost all the music on this album, except for "Elegy for Trane," is repetitive to the point that the group couldn't come up with anything new to keep its fans (and current problem is that the group's latest release, "Freetime," seems to realize that. The group has an audience that buys its albums and keeps its fans (and current problem is that the group should try some new things to keep from becoming boring or predictable.

The group is still end up sounding like an old album or the album before that. It's got the same sound.

The two chief arrangers and writers for Spyro Gyra, Jay Beckenstein and Jeremy Wall, have been doing a little outside work lately. Beckenstein did some studio work with Bob James, while Wall did some arranging for the revamped CTI record label. It's too bad they didn't bring some of those outside influences to bear on this album.

The group shouldn't be afraid to try some new things. It's got an established following. Expanding its style could ultimately expand its audience.

To the avid Spyro Gyra fan, "Freetime" may be somewhat of a disappointment. To the person who listens to the band on an occasional basis, "Freetime" could cause Spyro Gyra to be lost in the throng of other fusion groups. To a newcomer on the jazz-fusion scene, this could be an enjoyable album.

Check the album out for yourself in your own "freetime."
‘Victimless’ crime leaves cops at a loss

Carbondale Police have a dilemma on their hands that could qualify for Ripley’s Believe It Or Not. They have a good idea who their suspect is, but they can’t find the victim.

The unknown victim purchased some business supplies Wednesday from Standard Business Supplies at 829 E. Main, then traveled to Gusto’s Printing at 610 S. Minois and left his business supplies in his unlocked car. The supplies were stolen and the victim then returned to SBS to refill his order.

A short time later, a man came into SBS trying to sell back the stolen items. An SBS employee gave Carbondale Police a description of a car the suspect was driving and police believe they know who the burglar is. But they can’t do anything until they find the victim.

Carbondale Police ask that the mystery victim call them so they can file a report and return his goods. They can’t press any charges, either, until they get a victim.

In the meantime, Carbondale Police have a dilemma without a victim.

Resurfaced lot to reopen for parking

The Parking Division Friday will re-open Lot 63, located east of the Hiram Lesar Law School on Oakland Street off Douglas Drive, according to Merilyn Hogan, campus parking manager.

Hogan said the newly-resurfaced parking lot has a total of 265 spaces, including three for the handicapped and 65 specified for blue decals only. Hogan said the blue decal spaces are located at the south end of the lot and have signs specifying this. She said anyone parking in these spaces without a blue decal will be ticketed.

Sharp sword can't save dull 'Zorro'

By Joe Walter
Entertainment Editor

"Zorro, the Gay Blade," following "Arthur" and "Hedwig of the World, Part I" is yet another example of the recent Hollywood trend of poor comedies.

This movie is so bland that it should be recommended to those viewers unfortunate enough to have bleeding ulcers.

The movie opens with Don Diego (George Hamilton), son of the famous Zorro, in Madrid, in bed with a nobleman's wife. After a fencing match with her husband and his five brothers, he receives a note from his father in California calling him home.

When Diego returns to California, he finds that the evil Estaban (Rob LeMeun) has killed his father and has become the local alcalde, the absolute boss.

Zorro, the Gay Blade, starring George Hamilton and Lauren Hutton. Reviewer's rating: 1 star (4 stars tops).

Diego meets a fervent female liberal (Lauren Hutton) and predictably they fall in love. The reason he becomes Zorro, however, is rather imaginative.

Diego receives a trunk via servant from his father. Inside the trunk, he finds the famous mask, sword, whip and a letter from his father about his destiny to defend the poor. He uses the costume to wear to a masquerade.

On his way to the party, he fights the alcalde's tax-collector and takes the tax money, which he gives to a peasant family. At that point Diego decides that the Zorro legacy is his destiny.

He arrives at the party with the female liberal and deals the wicked alcalde. He exits by jumping from a veranda and breaking his ankle.

Afterwards he meets his twin brother Ramone, who happens to be a female-like cop who joined the British Navy because she thought it would make a man out of him. Ramone takes Diego's place, but makes the costume much more colorful and ridiculous as he avenges the poor as Zorro the Gay Blade.

This movie tries too hard to be amusing and not just funny. One-liners are blown left and right because of hideous acting. One must place the blame lies with director Peter Medak. There are few one-liners.

Drunk driving bill may be the key to improved drivers

By Bill Ward
Student Writer

The key to safer highways and possibly better drivers may be the state's new and tougher drunk driving law, according to Secretary of State Jim Edgar.

Edgar said the new law, scheduled to take effect Jan. 1, will enable Illinois police departments to get tough on drunk drivers, provided police are serious about its enforcement.

Edgar made the comments in a speech to an audience of about 50 people in the Free Forum Area Wednesday.

"Traffic safety is my number one priority," Edgar said, noting that the drunk driving bill is probably the most important he helped push through the Legislature this year.

Police procedure to handle drunk drivers will be changed to streamline completion of forms necessary to administer a breath test and to eliminate a second test currently given to drivers failing the first.

Also, drivers refusing to take the breath test will have their licenses revoked for six months instead of for three months as under the old law.

Edgar also said he pushed to keep the 55 mph speed limit, contending that it "saved more lives on the interstates than any other type of highway." And he said that "strict enforcement" of all traffic laws will enhance safety overall.

His pressure for change won't extend to the secretary of state's office, however.

Money still missing; Bursar to file claim

By David Murphy
Staff Writer

University officials, stymied in search for $2,000 in missing cash, have abandoned their efforts and will file a claim with SIU's insurance company to recover the loss.

Warren Buffum, vice president for financial affairs, said that continued investigation into the disappearance of $2,000 from the Bursar's Office, discovered on Sept. 5, have turned up no leads but have removed suspicion that the money was stolen.

"All avenues have been exhausted, and I don't see anything new turning up," Buffum said.

The shortage was discovered during routine checks by the bursar's staff. Subsequent examination of office accounts and interviews with office workers failed to provide any new information.

The investigation was conducted by the University's internal auditing staff and the SIU Police. It included checks with Carbondale banks that received SIU deposits that day; review of campus units that receive cash transfers and a review of money handling procedures in the office itself.

The investigation turned up no reason to suspect anyone of theft, Buffum said. "The university has filed a claim with its insurance company for recovered for loss of funds."

Buffum said he can't recall a similar loss in 25 years on SIU's

Friends sometimes question your taste in movies. But they'll see them with you anyway.

It sounded fantastic in the newspaper. But once we got there, we wondered if our friends would agree to hang out.

We've already heard a barrage of questions about your taste in movies, and you'll have to dismiss them. They'll just ask you more questions. Just roll your eyes and get out the door. It'll be a fun night out with friends.

Löwenbräu. Here's to good friends.

RSVP means retired donating time, talents

By Randolph E. Schmid
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — If the generation that came of age in the '70s was the "me" generation, the generation now approaching age 70 might be called the "we" generation.

By the thousands, older Americans are flocking to give of their time and talents as long lifespans lead more and more people into the ranks of the retired.

Now a decade old, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program boasts more than 219,000 people, aged 60 and over, who each year donate more than 57 million hours of their time.

The organization celebrated its 10th birthday Wednesday with a White House ceremony, part of planned activities for this week's annual RSVP convention here.

For one elderly man or woman, the attraction to volunteer work is to try to share the joys of a long life, for another it's helping ease the pain of death. For thousands it's a rewarding chance to help both others and themselves.

"I enjoy everything about being an RSVP volunteer. Being needed is great. And it keeps me young at 81 years. It makes me feel like a useful citizen," said Wayland of Portland, Ore., who tutors disadvantaged children.

Another volunteer is Mary Felek, 81, of New Haven, Conn., who remembers the dispatch of a relative who died of cancer in 1972.

Mrs. Felek explained that her sister-in-law "was very low and I wanted to talk to somebody outside of the family. You see, at that time we didn't want to talk about dying.

"A young Roman Catholic priest befriended the woman, who was Jewish. He would come in and talk to her by the hour, and she got such...like a catharsis," Mrs. Felek said.

Today Mrs. Felek volunteers her time at a local hospital coordinating visits to the sick by ministers, priests and rabbi.

She lets them know when parishioners are ill and suggests when to visit them and their families.

When she heard about the hospital's program, in October, 1972, "I thought to myself, I thought, Oh, this is just for me". When I joined up I knew that was the job for me.

"To me it's a great joy. I tell you honestly, I go to work with the greatest of pleasure. I don't know what I would have done. It's God helping that RSVP ever folds up, me and a million others.

RSVP volunteers around the country — lawyers, teachers, carpenters, doctors, bricklayers and so forth—receive no pay for their efforts, at least not in money.

But the federal government spends about $77 million a year to administer the program which lasts about a year per volunteer, or 48 cents per hour worked.

The Reagan administration has proposed a modest increase in next year's RSVP budget, to $500 million.

Dr. Harold Gunn, 61, a retired Detroit speech pathologist, said his interest in counseling troubled young men is sustained by the success stories.

He recalled one particular youth, a small boy who was picked on by his peers and had

"Diablo arrest total reaches 1,545: plant starts testing"

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. — A dwindling band of anti-nuclear demonstrators launched new land and sea assaults Thursday on the Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant, and at least four people were arrested. The Abalone Alliance, an umbrella group of 60 anti-nuclear organizations endorsing the protest, said the day arrest total is about 1,545. Leaders of the protest said they expected it to continue at least through this weekend, but moves beyond that were still being discussed among the protest groups.

Mortlock retired 11 years ago from a job as an insurance auditor in Buffalo, N.Y., and moved to Laurel, where he founded the 1,000-member Indian River Episcopal Senior Center.

Mortlock said he started the center because he was just not inclined to spend the rest of his life in a rocking chair.

"By the end of the year we had 120. by the end of '71 we had 250 out to a luncheon yesterday and we’re worried now about crowding out our room again," said Mortlock.

The senior citizens center has a part-time secretary and a custodian but is otherwise operated by volunteer workers. "We’re all volunteers so we can’t spend seven days a week here. We compromise and spend six and a half," he joked.

Women’s tennis team shoots for 9th victory

By Keith Maselli
Staff Writer

The women’s tennis team will be shooting for its ninth straight win this weekend when it plays its third consecutive home meet at the University Courts. The Salukis will play Southeast Missouri State, Southwest Missouri and Sangamon State in the quadrangular meet Friday and Saturday.

SIUC is on a six-game two-week winning streak, defeating favorites Louisville and Missouri.

Last season the Salukis beat Sangamon State, 9-5 and SEMO, 9-1. The Salukis hadn’t seen Southwest Missouri in four seasons, and Saluki Coach Judy Auld thinks the Bears will give her team the stiffest competition.

“We don’t want to overlook any team because you can never tell what it will come in with,” Auld said. “Southwest Missouri will be the strongest but they haven’t been as strong as they have been in the past.”

“I want to take it one match at a time,” Auld said. “We’re going to try to progress and get the kinks out of our games, but we won’t be pushed as much as we were last weekend. If we go one match at a time, I feel that we can win all three. I feel we’re very confident going into the weekend.”

Auld said she will try to use as many reserve players as possible, give freshman Alessandra Molinari’s sore ankle a rest, and have the lower position singles players be more consistent.

Auld also feels the play of top seeded Lisa Warrem will pick up.

“Lisa is playing in the toughest spot and has played well. I can’t ask anymore from her,” Auld said. “She hasn’t been winning the big points, but that will come in time. She realizes that in every match she will play the best players, and will be pushed. She’s willing to give it all.”

Reburn said playing three 18-hole rounds in three days offers a slight mental bonus to the golfers, since they don’t have one “killer day” of 36 holes.

Softball team to play Redbirds

By Jim Cagle
Staff Writer

The SIU-C women's softball team will not hold its first Fall Invitational this year. Instead, the Salukis will open their first fall season ever with a triple-header against Illinois State, with games at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the Recreation Center.

A three-team tournament had been scheduled originally, according to Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer, but Illinois State didn't have enough players because of injuries and participation in other sports, so it canceled.

Brechtelsbauer tried to no avail to find a replacement for Indiana State, and finally decided to go with three games against Illinois State.

"We're going to see a lot of new faces on both teams this weekend," Brechtelsbauer said. "They graduated almost all of their infield last year, and their game exists this fall have all been low scoring."

Hitting was the downfall of last year's Saluki squad, which finished with an 11-22 record. SIU-C batted .176 as a team, the worst in Brechtelsbauer's 15 years of coaching.

"We've been looking a lot better in practice," Brechtelsbauer said. "We've definitely made strides in the right direction. Hopefully, after last year the only way we can go is up."

Last year's pitching staff, which had a combined earned run average of 2.31, will be bolstered by the return of Gena Valli. Valli, a senior from St. Louis, spent three years with the Salukis in the late seventies and has a lifetime record of 65-30.

Valli helped lead the Salukis to berths in the College World Series in 1978 and 1976. She will pitch the first game and make an appearance at first base in at least one of the other two games.

IM softball season ends!
Playoffs to begin on Monday

The intramural softball season ends this week and playoffs begin Monday.

A captain's meeting will be held Sunday from 7 to 8 p.m. in Room 158 at the Recreation Center.

To qualify for the playoffs, each team had to win at least three of its six games. A total of 196 teams participated this season in the men's and women's divisions, women's division and Co-Rec A and B divisions.

According to Jerry Taven, coordinator of Intramural Sports, undefeated teams will have the option of taking a bye in the first round, if there are the right number of teams in the tournament. Teams with losses will be placed in the brackets by a random draw.

Any team which qualifies for the playoffs, but does not show up at the captain's meeting will be placed in the playoff brackets by a random draw.

Playoff information and schedules will be posted on the intramural team bulletin board.

Polo team hopes to avenge defeat

By Jim Cagle
Staff Writer

The SIU-C water polo team opens its home schedule with a 15-game, eight-team tournament Friday and Saturday at the Recreation Center pool.

The Salukis have a 1-3 record and the three teams they lost to are in this weekends tournament.

"The teams to beat this weekend are Indiana and Loyola," Coach Bob Steele said. Loyola's big fall sport is water polo. They recruit for water polo and then pick their swim team from among that team, which is exactly opposite from what we do.

Loyola won the Indiana Intercollegiate Swimming and Diving meet this weekend, where the Salukis managed their first victory, 13-8, against Ohio State. According to Steele, Loyola sent three players to the Midwest team at the National Sports Festival: Joe Jekotech, Mike Fernstrom and Mark Memmesheimer.

Indiana is also a threat to win the SIU-C tourney, according to Steele, as is Kentucky, Missouri-Rolla, and Iowa City. The Salukis lost to Rolla and Indiana at last weekend's tourney.

"Any of those top five teams have a chance to win it," Steele said. "Indiana and Rolla are both in our conference, and the last three times they met, Indiana has won 10-6." The remaining teams in the tourney are Principia, which defeated the Salukis, 15-11 last weekend, and Illinois.

The mainstay of the Saluki offense so far this season is freshman Dave Kiolbasa, from Oak Park. Kiolbasa is a high school all-state pick a year ago. He scored six goals in his first three games as a Saluki.

Women out to regain state golfing crown

By Keith Maccucci
Staff Writer

The women's golf team will try to regain its state golf title this weekend which it lost last year for the first time since SIU-C held this year's tournament. Friday and Saturday at Bird Lake Greens in Benton teams competing include SIU-C, Illinois State, Illinois and Northern Illinois.

Last year's tournament was held in Normal and the Salukis were edged out of first place by NIU on the final hole. Saluki Coach Mary Beth McGirr feels that this year's tournament will be different and NU shouldn't be a major contender.

"It's like a three-horse race," McGirr said. "NIU is rebuilding this season and only has four players on its team. They will be at a disadvantage because the other teams will have six. This gives the other teams a chance to discard its two lower scores.

McGirr says there is a revenge factor between ISU and SIU-C. Earlier this season the Redbirds and Salukis tied for third place in the PAGES State Invitational.

The Boro course is large, measuring 5,800 yards for this tournament. According to McGirr, the key to winning is to take the ball out of the fairways and play the roughs extremely thick and adjusting paths to compensate for the long greens.

The Saluki team is young, consisting of five sophomores and three freshmen. Despite her team's age, she feels it has as good of a chance to win as any team.

Last year SIU-C's Barb Anderson shot a score of 324 and as a freshman she was named the tournaments Most Valuable Player. Anderson, along with teammate Sue Arbogast, also gained all-state honors.

McGirr says the players are working on their long game, putting and chipping. She feels that a Saluki could win MVP honors this season.

Any of my sophomores could win it, McGirr said. "They are all playing pretty well now. Any of them is capable of getting up and winning it."

Sophomore Tracy Keller took aim and blasted the ball out of a sand trap during Tuesday's women's golf practice held at Crab Orchard Golf Course in Carbondale.

And sometimes he'll drop straight back and throw it. It's really hard on the defense," Dempsey said.

Besides Tulsa's triple option, the Salukis had some other things on their minds in practice this week. The dropping of the team from Division 1A to IAA, effective in January, and the possible $10 cut in the athletics fee, which could eliminate football.

"We're aware of those things, we're concerned about them, but we're busy playing football," Dempsey said. "The people moaning and groaning for the fee decrease will probably graduate and then want a team to be proud of. I think the big crowd we had last week was a vote of confidence. They showed us they think football is pretty important."
