City gets new psychiatric hospital

The $6.5 million facility will boost local economy

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

A new $6.5 million psychiatric hospital is coming to Carbondale, giving the city a boost to its economy, the city manager said.

The Park HealthCare Company of Nashville, Tenn received unanimous support from the Illinois Health Facilities Planning Board last week to finance and construct a 60-bed-psychiatric hospital for adolescents and adults on U.S.

Route 51 near the industrial park in Carbondale.

Deborah Nasca, vice president of development for the company, said the new hospital will be the only free-standing private hospital of its kind in Southern Illinois.

"People in need of severe psychiatric treatment in this area are forced to go to St. Louis, Paducah, Evansville or Chicago for treatment," Nasca said. "This new hospital will help fill the need for mental health beds in Southern Illinois."

City Manager Steve Hoffner said the new hospital will be an important facility to many Southern Illinoisians "who would otherwise have to go outside the region to obtain quality health care."

The new hospital will employ 70 full-time employees initially and over 100 employees after the first year of operation, Hoffner said.

The hospital's payroll will bring $2 million to $2.5 million to the Carbondale economy, Hoffner said.

"In addition to the payroll, the presence of the psychiatric hospital in Carbondale will attract three to five new psychiatrists and one to two new Ph.D. psychologists to the community," Hoffner said.

Hoffner said the state's approval of the new hospital is a major step in Carbondale's approach to economic development.

"The construction of the Park HealthCare hospital in Carbondale is a very important development: that will create new jobs, both during construction and in its operation, will further Carbondale's position as the regional health care provider," he said.

Nasca said there was a tremendous amount of support from the city and the University community to have the new hospital in Carbondale.

"I received at least 35 letters from the psychologists and psychiatrists who said mental health services were definitely needed in Southern Illinois," Nasca said.

The University's School of Medicine notified the company

Rain complicates plight of homeless thousands

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — Cold, driving rain pouring through roofless and damaged homes Monday compounded the misery of thousands of people struggling to dig out of the destruction left by Hurricane Hugo.

Hundreds of thousands still were without electricity or safe drinking water and about 25,000 of the 75,000 people left homeless by the storm remained in makeshift shelters with food, fuel and other necessities running short.

Authorities in rain gear began searching isolated localities Monday for more victims of Hugo, which devastated one-third of the state and caused more than $2 billion in damage.

Gov. Carroll Campbell said there were areas that officials still had not checked for bodies and survivors, and added that damage was expected to "far exceed" the $2 billion officials estimate Hugo caused to buildings and homes in Charleston County.

The storm killed 19 people in the United States, 24 in the Caribbean and left thousands homeless.

Off-campus program knocked out by Hugo

The University's off-campus vocational educational program at Charleston Air Force base in South Carolina has been beached in the wake of Hurricane Hugo.

John S. Washburn, chairman of vocational educational studies, said the building where the program is located has "three to four inches of standing water inside the facility" and classes have been canceled indefinitely.

"We haven't been able to assess the damages yet because they aren't letting civilians in at this time, but I've heard it's pretty bad," Washburn said.

Washburn said program officials had been tracking the course of the tropical storm all week because the University has extension programs "all down the length of the East Coast."

"We knew that the storm would have some bearing on at least one of our installations, so we followed it pretty closely," he said.

Puerto Rico not informed about Hugo

The civil defense and government in Puerto Rico did not tell the people how bad Hurricane Hugo would be, Carlos Rivera, a first-year law student from: Puerto Rico, said.

Rivera said his family, who live in a suburb of San Juan, were not prepared for the storm.

"They did not know that the water and electricity would be cut off for so long. My sister stored water for the storm, but when I spoke to them last, the water was running out and they were thinking about going to the river for water," Rivera said.

The young people disbelieved stories from older relatives, who experienced the last hurricane, about how powerful the storms can be, he said.

"My brother was excited for the storm," Rivera said, "but he realized how powerful it would be when he heard reports of 65 mph winds from the airport and

Bush stresses weapon reduction in his first United Nations address

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — President Bush used his first speech to the United Nations Monday to urge global action to eliminate the "truly terrible" chemical weapons often seen as cheap military muscle for poor countries.

Bush said the United States is ready to eliminate 98 percent of its chemical weapons immediately if the Soviet Union joins in cutting poison gas to an equal and verifiable level and added, "I think they will."

Moreover, he said, the United States will "destroy all of its chemical weapons — 100 percent," within 10 years if all other nations capable of building chemical weapons agree to do the same thing.

"For the sake of mankind, we must halt and reverse" the spread of chemical weapons, Bush said.

In recent years, the Congress has approved modest plans for U.S. chemical weapons production to replace stockpiles that have grown outmoded and unstable. At the same time, smaller powers have turned to such weapons, which are

Bombs explode in Bogota, ex-minister suggests talks

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Five bombs exploded in various areas of Bogota and two others were deactivated in apparent continuation of the cocaine traffickers' war against the government, police said. Two other bombs were dismantled by members of the police bomb unit. Three banks, a supermarket and a travel agency were hit in the attacks Sunday evening, police said. There were no immediate reports of injuries. The surge in violence has led the resigned Justice Minister Monica de Greiff to suggest Colombia's government consider establishing a dialogue with cocaine cartel leaders who declared war on the nation's institutions.

Show claims 'bomber' was double agent

LONDON (UPI) — A British television program to be aired Monday night claims the man who may have assembled the bomb that blew up a Pan American World Airlines jet in December was trying to infiltrate a Middle East terrorist group for Jordanian intelligence. The British Broadcasting Corp. said in an advance copy of the program "Panorama" that Marwan Khreesat was trying to infiltrate the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, a Syria-based group. Khreesat was arrested in Germany last October carrying a Toshiba radio bomb similar to the one that ripped through Pan Am Flight 103 over Scotland.

China: France interfering in internal affairs

BEIJING (UPI) — China's Foreign Ministry lodged a strongly worded protest with the French government Monday, claiming French tolerance of a meeting by Chinese dissidents in Paris would damage bilateral relations. A state-run television broadcast said France's ambassador to Beijing, Charles Malo, was summoned to the Foreign Ministry and presented with an official letter of protest. "The French government, in allowing the Federation for Democracy in China to hold its founding congress in Paris, has seriously encroached upon China's sovereignty and grossly interfered in its internal affairs," said the statement.

Budget director: Tax plan 'kamikaze' action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush's budget director accused congressional Democratic leaders Monday of a "kamikaze approach to national politics" proposing a tax increase on the rich to pay for partially restoring tax-deductible individual retirement accounts. The partisan attack by Richard Darman came as the House planned to begin at least a week of contentious debate Tuesday on a critically needed revenue and deficit cutting bill. Other items on the agenda are possible repeal of the catastrophic health insurance program and competing child care proposals and pension reform.

St. Louis Sun debut gives city 2nd paper

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The inaugural edition of the St. Louis Sun hit the newsstands Monday, giving St. Louis two daily newspapers for the first time in three years and pleasing readers with its handy tabloid format. The front-page of the 128-page newspaper featured a large color photo of a sunrise as seen through the Gateway Arch and many readers praised the tabloid format for being easy to handle. The Post-Dispatch noted in its front-page story that the Sun brought newspaper competition back to the state.

Illinois bans toxic lead shot in 4 more counties this fall

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Duck and goose hunters will be banned from using lead shot in four more Illinois counties this fall as part of a plan to gradually eliminate toxic shot from the state. Hunters in Franklin, Peoria, Pike and Rock Island counties can use only non-toxic steel shot during the 1989-90 waterfowl season, according to state Conservation Director Mark French.

Engineering students receive seven scholarships

By Carrie Pomeroy
Staff Writer

Seven engineering students recently were awarded scholarships from three newly endowed scholarship funds.

The $1,000 SIUC Civil Engineering Scholarship, five $5,000 OMRON Scholarships and the $600 Free Scholarship in mechanical engineering were awarded on the basis of academic record and financial need, Linda Helstern, engineering public relations specialist, said.

The SIUC Civil Engineering Scholarship, created and endowed by civil engineering and mechanics chair Braja M. Das, is awarded to an outstanding entering freshman.

This year's winner, Joseph E. Mateševac, is a 1989 graduate of Alleman High School in Rock Island. Mateševac, who served as president of the National Honor Society and was listed in "Who's Who Among American High School Students," said he plans to be a successful civil engineer.

The OMRON Scholarship in electrical engineering was made possible by an endowment of $100,000 from OMRON Electronics, Inc., a Japanese corporation with a subsidiary in Schaumburg, Ill., Helstern said.

She said the money, which will fund five annual scholarships of $5,000 each, was the largest cash gift ever received by the SIUC College of Engineering and Technology.

The University of Illinois-Champaign, Northern Illinois University, Northwestern University and the Illinois Institute of Technology were the other Illinois schools selected by OMRON for endowment.

The five OMRON scholars include Kelly Bushue, a senior from Centralia. Bushue expressed happiness and surprise at the award and said he hoped after graduating "to find a job in something digital, like computers."

OMRON winner Scott Jones, a senior from Danville, serves as coordinating secretary of the Tau Beta Pi honor society and is listed in "Outstanding College Students of America."

"(The scholarship) is going to help financially. It makes it all seem worthwhile," Jones said.

Jeffrey Sappington, who said he hopes to be the head of a company someday, said the OMRON Scholarship took him by surprise.

"I have pretty decent grades, but I knew the competition would be tough," he said.

Sappington, a senior from Trenton, is a member of Phi Eta Sigma and Gamma Beta Phi honor societies.

Annette von Jouanne, a junior from Renton, Wash., is a member of the swim team and is listed in "Outstanding College Students of America." She said she was interested in working with aviation circuitry and eventually becoming an engineering consultant.

OMRON scholar Darren Zinn, a senior from Mount Vernon, who hosts a program on WIDB was unavailable for comment.

The Donald and Verl Free Scholarship is presented to an outstanding mechanical engineering student with a special interest in aeronautics. The scholarship, which Helstern said will vary in amount depending on how much the endowment earns, honors Donald Free, an aeronautical design engineer from Dix, Ill.

This year's winner is Christopher Allen, a senior from Belle River.

Photography organization offers display opportunity for students

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

The Alternative Space Gallery allows student photographers to get both practice and exposure, Joe Ziolkowski, gallery organizer, said.

The gallery, adjacent to the Cinema and Photography Department in the Communications Building, is sponsored by Photogenesis, a student organization.

Ziolkowski, Photogenesis chairman, said the gallery gives student photographers an opportunity to display their work for the public to enjoy.

Although the photographers are undergraduates and inexperienced with gallery-style organization of their work, Ziolkowski said the exhibits are taken very seriously. "I don't see it as practice; I see it as legit," he said.

The current display contains works by Mark Doolittle and Keith Colton, both undergraduate students in Cinema and Photography. Ziolkowski said he decided to run the two exhibits together because he felt they complemented one another.

Ziolkowski said he will try to have a different display every two weeks or so.

Mark Doolittle, a senior in photography, said he heard Alternative Space was looking for work with a theme, so he approached Ziolkowski to have his portfolio on exotic dancers put in the display.

Doolittle said the portfolio was part of a photography class project he had done last spring. He said he chose to do a project on exotic dancers to satisfy his own curiosity.

"I had always been curious as to what (the dancers) were thinking about as they were dancing," he said.

Doolittle said he initially approached the dancers at DuMarcos in D-Soto without even taking a camera along.

SIUC/IEA-NEA FACULTY AND STAFF HONOR SENATOR RALPH DUNN

FOR HIS SUPPORT OF QUALITY EDUCATION IN ILLINOIS

On Wednesday, September 27th, at 7:30p.m., SIUC/IEA-NEA faculty and staff are hosting a reception in honor of Senator Ralph Dunn at the Carbondale Holiday Inn, Continental Room. Senator Dunn's vote was crucial in padding the Madigan-Rock income tax increase bill that has provided substantially increased funding for Illinois education. IEA lobbied very vigorously for the passage of this bill. Senator Dunn was targeted as an extremely important swing vote in the Senate. We wish to thank the Senator for listening to our arguments and evidence in the many meetings that took place between IEA and IEA leaders in Carbondale and Springfield. SIUC/IEA-NEA wishes to recognize Senator Dunn for his courageous and to remind our Colleagues of the power of collective action through a responsible and powerful statewide organization.

THANK YOU SENATOR DUNN

Organization honors outstanding scholar

WE WOULD like to take this opportunity to congratulate Thomas Pace, who will receive the Gamma Beta Phi Honor Society Outstanding Scholar Award on Oct. 7. Pace is currently a faculty member and director of graduate studies in speech communication. This is the first time the award has been given by Gamma Beta Phi.

The chairpersons of all the departments on campus were approached to choose an entrant to the competition. The chairperson had to send a letter of explanation about their choice. After the entrants were narrowed down to five, the Gamma Beta Phi executive council conducted interviews with other department personnel and students of the professor. The winner, Pace, was selected from the interview.

THE WINNER, besides showing academic prowess, also had to show involvement through SIU-C and the surrounding community.

It is services like this that show members of the campus community that there are many excellent faculty members at SIU-C and that they are greatly appreciated. All too often achievements, hardwork and dedication are overlooked, while not-so-good news is displayed.

Giving awards not only to scholars but to students who achieve is also a good idea. Many of the students here have been honored by a national organization through either a monetary award, an internship or simply by name recognition.

WE REALIZE that many awards exist on campus to honor those that excel, and this gives incentive to students who are striving hard. Awarding such members of the University is a good way to show them that their efforts have not gone unnoticed.

We encourage other organizations to offer similar awards if they do not exist already. Showing appreciation for the faculty members as well as other members of the University reminds other universities as well as the public that SIU-C is a competent and competitive institution of higher education.

Racial equality achieved by giving mutual respect

I applaud the article on racism by Myron Hoskins that appeared in the DE Letters Column on Sept. 20.

Mr. Hoskins identified many key problems that are prevalent in this society of ours, and described well the modern day crime against humanity that is occurring this very moment in South Africa, as well as the inattention of most of our supposedly free and ethical press. I am afraid that until we as humans bring ourselves to a major transformation in the way in which we think, there cannot be much real improvement made on the whole racial issue.

The way in which racism is conveniently portrayed in America's mainstream media, is much the same manner in which one might describe a Micheal Jordan slam dunk or a critical review of a new movie.

Very descriptive, but with only some residue of strange aesthetic value connected to it. Being a white male student at SIU-C with a girlfriend who is black, I have been exposed to the racial question in ways that some of my friends have not; namely a general callousness in the attitudes of people, some of whom are both black and white.

It appears that if we collectively wish to accomplish the right goal of racial equality, all we need is to give each other the respect that we deserve by being born free.

Although having apartheid abolished in South Africa without mass genocide of either black or white people would be an ideal solution, there are many economic ramifications in the international political arena today that will most certainly prevent the actual abolition of apartheid for some time, however criminal this is for the blacks who are senselessly dying there every day. Please wake up my fellow Americans, black and white; we need to co-exist in this society of ours in a peaceful and cooperative manner, and the saddest part about it is that it doesn't take much effort on everyone's part to make our world a much better place to live in.

Remember, change beings at home, so let's start by improving Carbondale, and later we could possibly get around to building fewer stealth bombers, perhaps get "lucky" and find a cure for AIDS, or save the Amazonian Rain Forests. — John Burke, freshman, general studies

Former Cub shortstop gets last laugh as Royno recalls a glorious moment

A white-haired man wrote me a nice letter that I'd like to share.

He wrote that he had been at an amateur baseball tournament in Quincy, Mass.

In the evening, he was sitting around with some of the sportswriters and baseball scouts who were swapping stories.

Then one of them brought out a copy of Baseball Digest and with a grin started reading an article.

It was my annual Cub quiz, which that magazine had reprinted. As Cub fans know, my quiz is about the futility of past Cub teams and players and is written strictly for laughs.

Most of the quizzes contain at least one question about a former Cub shortstop named Lennie Merullo.

Fans who go back to the 1940s will remember Merullo. He hit about .240 or so and usually led the league in errors. We Cub fans were not always kind to him with our boos and jeers.

This year's Merullo question went this way:

Q: Everyone used to laugh at the immortal Lennie Merullo because he made so many errors at shortstop. And they laughed at the way he hit. But in 1947, he led the Cubs in stolen bases. How many bases did he steal that year?

A: Four. They laughed at him for that, too.

Everyone at the gathering got a laugh out of it — except the white-haired man, who tried to grin, but couldn't.

After the evening broke up, the white-haired man sat down at his desk and wrote me this letter:

"Dear Mike,

"I suppose I should have laughed or smiled to cover my feelings when one of the baseball men at this tournament read your Cub quiz. Everyone enjoyed it thoroughly.

"But I'm writing because I thought you might like to know whatever became of your favorite Cub shortstop.

"I'm now 66 years old, the father of four wonderful grown sons, grandfather of three, and still married very happily to my girl-next-door sweetheart (nee: Jean Czametzk).

"And I've spent my entire years in baseball — a very much respected scout here in the New England area and on special assignments throughout the being able to understand and have a feel for the player who is having a bad day — as I have had many, and know the feeling.

"I'm enclosing a photo of me that I think you'll get a kick out of because it's the way I hit and played shortstop for the Cubs — with my eyes closed.

"Yours truly,
"Lennie Merullo."

I suppose I'm a typical baseball fan. We boo and yell at the players and give little thought to the fact that those are human beings out there on the field.

I didn't consider that when I tossed off a few funny lines about Lennie Merullo and other Cub old-timers.

Nor do most of us fans consider that anybody who makes it to the major leagues — even a .235 hitter who makes too many errors — is a remarkable athlete.

Millions of us played sandlot or high school or college ball. But only a tiny percentage of us made it to the majors. It takes great athletic ability.

And, as Lennie Merullo said, his main problem was that he tried too hard. And that must have made the boos even more hurtful.

So, I now take a vow — no more wise-guy remarks about Lennie in future Cub quiz columns.

And I'm going to put his gracious and gentlemanly letter in one of my scrapbooks along with the picture of him closing his eyes at the camera's flash.

Wait, I have to amend that. There will be one final brief quiz about Lennie Merullo. Here goes: Q: In about 1946, the Brooklyn Dodgers had a powerhouse team, loaded with top players. They really enjoyed bullying our hapless Cubs. One day, in Ebbets Field, a fight broke out and both teams poured out on the field. One of the most belligerent Dodgers was Dixie Walker, one of the top hitters in the league, and a very tough guy. When the fighting ended, a Cub player had a set of bruised knuckles on his right hand. And Dixie Walker had some gaps where his front teeth used to be. Quick, name the Cub player who separated Dixie Walker from his front teeth and made us Cub fans proud.

A: The immortal Lennie Merullo, of course.

country.

"Mike, I never professed to have been a good major league shortstop with the Cubs. As you have put it, I was a no-hit, very erratic player. I've had to live with that.

"However, it was not from not working at it. I worked at it too hard. I was not relaxed. Too tense.

Fans who go back to the 1940s will remember Merullo. He hit about .240 or so and usually led the league in errors.

"I was a Cub fan since 16 years of age. Was a protégé of theirs at 17, was sent to Villanova by Mr. Wrigley, signed in 1939, and lost all that season when I hurt my arm in spring training trying to impress everyone with my strong throwing.

"I'm still a Cub fan and appreciate the opportunity they gave me and like to remember my major league experience as having played with some very good Cubs players and against some great players who broke in about the same time. (Roomed with Phil Cavaretta for eight years.)

"I once read a column of yours in which you remembered how frustrating it was to be a Cub fan when you were a kid because of the way Lennie Merullo played. Or something like that. Well, at least I've given you something to write about and something that gives the readers a smile or even a good laugh.

"Perhaps my contribution to baseball can be described as

Police Blotter

Two Schneider Tower residents were charged with theft Friday evening after taking the sign off the top of a pizza delivery car, University Security Police said.

Brian R. Clausen, 19, and Stanley Kaminski, 19, both of 1537 Schneider Tower, were arrested shortly after they were observed by two Saluki patrolmen running toward the foot bridge near Logan Drive with the sign, police said.

Both students were released on their own recognizance to appear in city court on Oct. 16.

University Security Police reported that two students were arrested for possession of cannabis at 9:21 p.m. Friday.

Steven J. Fleisher, 19, of 1101 S. Wall St., and Michael Gambarota, 18, from Downers Grove, were arrested by University Security Police shortly after two Saluki patrolmen observed Fleisher placing a pipe in his pocket while at the foot bridge between Brush Towers and Parking Lot 106 on Wall Street. The patrolmen stopped and questioned Fleisher, who surrendered the pipe, police said.

Fleisher was charged with possession of less than 2.5 grams of cannabis and posted a $50 cash bond, police said.

Gambarota was charged with possession of more than 10 grams and less than 30 grams, which is a class A misdemeanor. He posted a $100 bond, police said.

Both are to appear in Jackson County court on Oct. 11.

A University student was charged with underage possession of alcohol at 11:25 p.m. Saturday, University Security Police said. Steven Shaner, 18, of 335 S. Wall St., was arrested by University Security Police officers after he was observed by Saluki patrolmen kicking cars in Parking Lot 106 on Wall Street, police said.

He posted a $50 cash bond and is to appear in city court on Oct. 16.

University Security Police reported that a student was arrested Friday evening and charged with illegal transportation of alcohol as a passenger at Neely Circle, according to police.

John M. Parton, 20, was stopped by a University Security Police officer after Saluki patrolmen observed Parton drinking in a car at Neely Circle, police said. He posted a bond card.

that they strongly supported the new hospital, Nasca said.

"We have every intention of hiring SIU medical school graduates to work at the new hospital if they are interested," Nasca said.

David Wenzel, executive vice president and chief financial officer of the company, said demographics played a key role in the decision to build a new psychiatric hospital in Carbondale.

"Carbondale has a good, stable population because of the University," Wenzel said.

Wenzel said there was a great need for this kind of hospital in Southern Illinois and because of the location, families of patients could participate in the treatment.

"Families play an integral part of the treatment and care of those with a mental illness," Wenzel said.

The hospital will treat up to 40 adults and 60 adolescents at one time, Wenzel said. The hospital will treat patients with mild mental illness as well as those with the most severe cases.

Wenzel said the hospital will have a small outpatient care center rather than a large one to avoid competition with local hospitals.

"Most of the hospitals deal with mentally ill patients through an outpatient care facility," Wenzel said. "We're not locating here to be in competition with the rest of the hospitals. We're here to provide a much-needed service."

Construction is expected to start in February of 1990.

"We are still looking for families and people, individuals located in isolated areas," Campbell said. "They may be in shelters. We just don't know."

Charleston Mayor Joseph Riley said the rain "is adding insult to injury."

"Thirty percent of the roofs in the city are damaged," the mayor said. "The roof at City Hall is only temporary. We've got rain pouring in there."

Rainwater gushed through a 10-foot-wide hole in the roof of a Ramada Inn a few yards from the hotel's closed registration desk as guests emerged at 7 a.m. when a dusk-to-dawn curfew ended.

"It's pouring buckets of water over there," desk clerk David Hoderne said from across the lobby. "It sounds like a fancy fountain."

The 155-room hotel — operating with the help of a generator and candles — was damaged when Hugo's high winds buffed a towering sign through its roof.

"You can't write an estimate in the rain. It's nearly impossible," said Skeeter Hardy, an automobile insurance adjuster for Geico. "It looks like we're going to be here, instead of a week, two or three weeks."

Hardy said he and dozens of other insurance adjusters were in Charleston to assess damage to cars and buildings caused by flooding, flying debris and falling trees.

"Cars that have flood damage, they could possibly be repaired," he said. "But with the rain, a lot more of them will be considered total."

Workers at Charleston International Airport began trying to re-open the facility to air traffic sometime this week but Riley implored travelers to stay out of city unless they had "necessary business."

Riley appealed for help Sunday in rebuilding the historic city, where Hugo made landfall Thursday night with 135-mph winds and 17-foot tidal surges.

relatively cheap and easy ways for developing nations to gain military muscle.

The U.S. government has warned that Libya is building a dangerous chemical weapons factory and Iran and Iraq accused one another of using the weapons — already prohibited under international accords — during the lengthy Persian Gulf War.

Bush, in his half-hour speech, declared, "Today, I want to announce that the United States is ready to take steps to rid the world of these truly terrible weapons, towards a treaty that will ban ... all chemical weapons 10 years from the day it is signed."

The president said while this pact is sought the United States will take the lead by eliminating more than 80 percent of its stockpile — again provided that the Soviet Union does likewise and agrees to verification.

Bush has long favored a ban on chemical weapons, but the United States has been frustrated by the refusal by Third World countries to follow.

The audience in the General Assembly hall was typically restless and applauded only twice during Bush's speech — once at his call for elimination of chemical weapons.

saw trees bending at 45 degree angles."

The winds, which travelled up to 140 mph, lasted for three hours, Rivera said.

Since the last hurricane, wood houses have been replaced by brick or concrete which holds up much better in the storm, he said.

Rivera said his family lost the porch and a mango tree in the backyard, but the concrete house stood strong against the storm.

"It's the poor people who will suffer the most from the storm. Poorer people live mostly in wooden houses which were less sturdy," Rivera said.

Though shelter is being provided for the estimated 30,000 homeless victims of Hurricane Hugo, the situation is not easily addressed due to the overcrowding in Puerto Rico, Rivera said.

The Charleston installation is one of the largest off-campus programs the University operates. The programs are located at 16 military bases in nine states.

About 100 military students are enrolled in the Charleston program. Graduating students receive a bachelor's degree in vocational education, with a specialization in educational training and development.

None of the students or University faculty members were injured, but Washburn said reports indicated the roof of the two-story education building had been ripped off at the base. The program occupies an area on the top floor.

Classes offered at the base may have to be cancelled for the rest of the semester, Washburn said, and University officials have not decided whether to hold the commencement exercises scheduled for Oct. 12.

"I'm told the building where we would normally hold the proceedings is in no shape for us to do anything there," Washburn said.

Washburn said he thinks the several thousand dollars worth of computers and classroom equipment and student records that were stored in offices and classrooms at the base have been severely damaged.

However, Washburn said the University had kept copies of the damaged records in Carbondale, which will minimize the damage somewhat.

City manager in Georgia: Print convictions of drug offenders in weekly gossip sheet

EAST POINT, Ga. (UPI) — City Manager Joseph Johnson wants the city to distribute a weekly "gossip sheet" at supermarket and department store checkout counters to embarrass drug offenders.

Johnson said in a memo to council members that the names and addresses of persons convicted on drug charges would be obtained from court records. He compared the drug lists to supermarket tabloids.

"This would allow the city to create its own ... gossip sheet to embarrass any individual (convicted of) the sale, use and distribution of illegal substances," the memo said.

The lists would be distributed to customers at checkout lines in supermarkets, drug stores, department stores and convenience stores, Johnson said. In return, the businesses would be given discounts up to 1 percent on their electric bills.

The city manager said the discounts would cost the suburban Atlanta city up to $16,000 during the first year, in addition to printing costs.

Johnson said the city attorney was preparing a legal opinion on the proposal and the council could decide at Monday night's session whether to place it on the Oct. 2 agenda.

Law students recognized in ceremony

Dean presents 91 scholarships, awards

By Tony Mancuso
Staff Writer

Ninety-one scholarships, awards and nominations for scholarships and awards were presented to law students at the 1989 Law Awards Ceremony held in the Lesar Law Courtroom Sept. 21.

Diane L. Hoadley and William L. Hutton received the newly created Dean's Club Scholarship for the highest grade point averages after their first year of law school.

Claudia A. Kachigian and Janet C. Proctor, two entering students, also were awarded the scholarship.

David B. Mote was the recipient of the Greg A. Cheney Labor Law Award, annually presented to the student who does the most outstanding work in the fall Labor Law class. Greg A. Cheney, an alumnus of the Law School and a labor law practitioner in Rockford, provides the money for the award.

Patricia A. Hoke and James R. Williams received the Delos L. Duty Scholarship, an annual award established in memory of the late Williamson County attorney.

Alice M. Noble-Allguire received numerous honors, including the W. Philo Gilbert Memorial Scholarship, the Journal of Legal Medicine Award and the Women's Bar Association of Illinois Foundation Scholarship.

Noble-Allguire also was a co-recipient of the West Publishing Awards and a recipient of the Lawyers Co-op Publishing Company Awards for the 1988 spring, summer and fall semesters.

Williamson County celebrates education

"A Salute to 150 Years of Education" is the theme of activities set for celebrating the Williamson County Sesquicentennial on the campus of John A. Logan College.

The celebration has been going on in the schools since May when the regional superintendent of schools in Williamson County, David W. Hindman, sponsored the School Bell Awards banquet honoring outstanding educators and one-room school-house teachers and administrators at the Herrin Civic Center.

The culmination of the educational activities will occur during the week of Oct. 2 through 7 on the campus of John A. Logan College.

During the week Betty Neely, retired teacher and a former one-room schoolteacher, will conduct classes at the Purdy School. Purdy School is an original one-room school, which was moved to the campus from rural Du Quoin through a grant from the Julia Brace Foundation.

Students selected from grades one through six who attend school in one of the five school districts in the county will spend one day at Purdy School under the tutelage of Neely, who will act as school-marm.

Dressed in vintage clothes — overalls and pinafores — the students will attend classes from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Students will be accompanied by a teacher from the local school district.

Diaries of Japanese soldiers returned home by ex-Marine

EAST DETROIT, Mich. (UPI) — Diaries of Japanese soldiers collected by an East Detroit man when he fought with the U.S. Marines on Iwo Jima 44 years ago are now in the hands of the soldiers' families.

Richard Nummer, a 63-year-old retired meat cutter, also is sending other relics, including a World War II battle flag and two photos of young Japanese women, in kimonos, back to Japan.

Nummer was 18 when he landed with the 5th Marine Division on the southern tip of Iwo Jima on Feb. 19, 1945.

"They said the battle would only last three days. I was there for 36 days. I was one of the few men in my company who wasn't killed or wounded," he said in an interview in Monday's Detroit News.

When it was over, 6,800 Marines and more than 20,000 Japanese soldiers were dead. Nummer was among the Marines assigned to bury the dead.

"The items were either recovered from caves or from the bodies of dead Japanese," he said. "Some of the Japanese were buried in mass graves."

The diaries and other war relics remained in a trunk in Nummer's attic until recently, when he decided to find someone who could suggest what he should do with them.

Last November, Nummer met Eiichi Yamamoto, a Japanese electrical engineer, while attending an auto show in Denver, and Yamamoto offered to help.

"He gave me his address in Tokyo, and I sent the diaries, postcards and the group photo," Nummer said.

Two weeks ago, Nummer received two envelopes from Japan.

The first was a poignant letter from Tomoko Yasumura of Kumamoto, Japan, thanking Nummer for the first information he had received about his brother in years.

Separating facts from fantasies about sexuality

By Cathy Devera
Wellness Center

There are so many misleading messages and so much misinformation in society about sexuality that it is difficult to separate the myths from the real "Facts of Life."

To Your Health

Consider, for example, that choice to become sexually active and the decision to choose and use birth control. No area of human sexuality suffers from more misleading myths.

How many people know that:
 ■ Secretions emitted from the penis prior to ejaculation contain sperm?

■ Sexual intercourse during the menstrual period can result in pregnancy?

■ Eighty to ninety percent of all sexually active women will become pregnant in one year's time without effective contraception?

People who choose not to take precautions against pregnancy may be uncomfortable talking about sex with partners. They may believe the popular image that discussing sex beforehand is less romantic.

Few role models in the media teach that contraception is a part of sexual activity. Many people don't feel that they are at risk, it won't happen to them. Wrong. More than twenty percent of college women who are sexually active become pregnant.

Some college men and women just don't think about contraceptive options; some are afraid to ask. Choosing a birth control method that is right for a person is an important life decision. A person and their partner deserve accurate, updated information in order to make wise choices.

To meet this important health need, the health service clinic and wellness center staff provide birth control update sessions. The sessions are offered from 3 to 4 p.m. Tuesdays and noon to 1:30 p.m. Thursdays in the Kesnar Hall classroom across from the health service. People needing contraception for the first time, changing present birth control methods, or those who wish to update their knowledge regarding birth control will need to attend an update session before making an appointment at the health service. The sessions will include the pros and cons of all available birth control methods, proper use of methods, birth control methods, proper use of methods, birth control self-assessment, decision-making, sexually transmitted disease, prevention and communication with your partner.

Cathy Devera, Wellness Center Director is very enthusiastic and supportive of the birth control update.

"Choosing a birth control method and using that method effectively are two separate issues," she said. "Even if an effective method is chosen, if it is not carefully and consistently used, risk of pregnancy remains high."

The staff at the Wellness Center and the Health Service Clinic believe that contraception is a shared responsibility. They actively encourage both men and women to attend the update session. Studies show that contraceptive use is more effective when both partners are committed to its use.

Talking about contraception may be difficult, but it can enhance the commitment of a relationship and is definitely easier than dealing with an unwanted pregnancy or a sexually transmitted disease. Your sexual health is too important to be left to chance.

The Wellness Center encourages people to attend the update and to bring their partner. Men as well as women need to share responsibility for contraception. For more information, call the Wellness Center at 536-4441.

The contest will award $5,000 to the grand prize winner in each category. In addition to these winners, 5 runners-up also will be selected. They each will receive $1,000.

Former speech chairman dies in Great Britain at 82

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

Former Chairman of the Department of Speech Communication, Ralph A. Micken, died Sept. 15 in Great Britain. He was 82.

While serving as chairman from 1957 to 1974, Micken orchestrated the building of the department into one of national significance, Marvin Kleinau, acting dean of the College of Communication and Fine Arts, said.

"He was the individual who brought outstanding faculty together at the University," Kleinau, who was a student of Micken's at Illinois State University, said.

Ralph Micken

Kleinau said Micken had a very personal relationship with his students

"He was sort of a pied piper to his students," Kleinau said. "I spent a lot of time, as did others, over at his house. If we weren't talking about school we were talking about baseball or playing bridge. He had an enormous impact on his students."

"He was the kind of teacher that you really truly remember from college," Stanley Rives, president of Eastern Illinois University and another former student of Micken's, said. "I consider him my major professor in my undergraduate education. He was really a fine teacher."

"He was a master persuader," Kleinau, who was Rives' debate partner under Micken's instruction at ISU, said. "He gave students an appreciation for communication."

Micken also taught at Montana University, Iowa State University and Northwestern University, where he received his doctorate in 1948.

He wrote several books including "Speaking for Results," published in 1958, and two volumes of poetry, "Dead Indian Ledger" and "Where A Man Is."

Micken was preceded in death by his first wife, Lavina, who died in the early 1960s. He is survived by two children Marguerite of Lombard, and Patrick of Williamsburg, Va. His wife Doris also survives and resides in the county of Lancashire, Great Britain

Oldest U of I professor dies in Urbana health center at 99

By Sean Hannigan
Staff Writer

Former SIU-C professor of political science, Clarence A. Berdahl, 99, died Sept. 12 at the Meadowbrook Health Center, Urbana.

He served as visiting professor to the University from 1958 through 1967.

Frank Klingberg, SIU-C political science professor emeritus, said, "He was brought in partially to help establish our doctoral program. He was one of the top political science minds in the country."

"He was very supportive of the University at the time when President Morris was building it up," Klingberg said.

Klingberg said Berdahl was admired as a teacher and gave several speeches on the United Nations. Berdahl was on the secretariat of the American mission at the founding of the United Nations in San Francisco.

Klingberg, who has been at SIU-C since 1946, said Berdahl remained in contact with members of the University until his death.

After leaving SIU-C, Berdahl returned to the University of Illinois where he taught from 1920 until 1958. He was the oldest professor emeritus at the university.

A memorial service was held at the Clark-Lindsey Village on Sept. 15.

'Inspired' pianist to perform as part of Beethoven Society

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

Ana Maria Trenchi de Bottazzi won't take no for an answer.

Especially if that answer has something to do with music.

The Argentine concert pianist brings her adamant playing style to Shryock Auditorium at 8 p.m. tonight as the opener of the sixth season of the Beethoven Society for Pianists.

"My whole life I will not take no for an answer," she said in a week-end telephone interview from her New Jersey studio. "If you want me to do something just say I can't do it."

That is her attitude in a nutshell. After a near-fatal auto accident in 1961, doctors told her she would never play again.

She was 23 and a fast-rising pianist on her first world tour then. It took her 13 years to get back on her feet. While she had instinctive-

"Everybody told me I would not play again," she said. Everybody that is, except her mother and her own will.

"My mother never allowed me to say I couldn't do something. If I did she would slap me." However, de Bottazzi, whose mother was one of the best piano teachers in Argentina, didn't get slapped often.

"Inspiring" is what the posters around town say. And she is truly inspired.

"My mother told me 'what you become is your gift to God.' I have a gift to play piano. I was told I could not play. I thought well 'God gave me this gift. How can he take it away?'"

"I can't live without (music)," she said. "If I don't play the piano, I die."

Tonight, de Bottazzi will more than likely walk out on stage and, without any words to the audience, start into Beethoven's "Sonata in A Major." That piece is just a small

Ana Maria Trenchi de Bottazzi

She said she'll know what to expect when she appears on the Shryock stage. "I feel very much with an audience. Before the applause, I can tell how it's going." De Bottazzi also said she is looking forward to playing in Southern Illinois. "I'm looking forward to playing in Carbondale. The people are very nice. It's not like New York."

In addition, the people of Southern Illinois can hear a Carnegie Hall player at Carbondale prices. Admission is $3 for the general public and $2 for students.

She said she wants the audience to feel what she feels. "What I feel when I play is as if my eyes were looking up to God."

part of a totally memorized repertoire that includes the other 31 Beethoven sonatas and over 100 other major piano works.

and that is one of the hardest roles to have. You have to be mentally ready everyday if you're playing or not."

Finley is part of a Baltimore Orioles team that have turned their fortunes completely around from a year ago. In 1988, Baltimore lost their first 21 games of the season and didn't win a game during the whole month of April. The Orioles finished 54-107-dead last in the American League Eastern Division.

This season, the Orioles are trying to become the first team in major league history to go from last place to first place in one season. Baltimore and the Toronto Blue Jays currently are in a dog-fight for the title. As of Monday afternoon, the Orioles were just one game behind Toronto in the standings with six games left to play in the regular season.

"There aren't too many players left from last year's team," Finley said.

"The veteran players still here from last year can look past what this happened and provide leadership for the younger players. We had a winning team in Rochester last year and a lot of us younger guys were on that team. So we came into the season with a good attitude.

Jones and Robinson are comparable in their approach to baseball, Finley said.

"They are both perfectionists," Finley said. "They stress the fundamentals to players and that is what makes a good ball club."

Nearly 350 players were chosen in the '87 draft before Finley.

Through Sunday, Finley had played in 76 of the Orioles' 156 games. He holds a .249 batting average with 52 hits in 209 at bats. Finley has two home runs and 25 runs batted in. He has scored 33 runs and stolen 15 bases. Finley still strives on improvement.

"I can get better," Finley said. "I am getting adjusted to a new role and I have had my moments this season. I just want to be a consistent player."

ing her four years in volleyball that she has had to overcome, not even bad playing habits. "None that Patti couldn't fix, anyway."

Brackins said she came to SIUC to get out of Texas. "I wanted to get out of Texas because I'd never been out of Texas before. I love my home. Hopefully I'm going back there after school," Brackins said.

Brackins said that if it weren't for volleyball she'd probably still be in the Longhorn state. "I wouldn't be in Illinois. I'd be in Texas going to school. I'd still be happy."

Brackins said that she didn't know whether she was going to play volleyball at the college level. "After high school was when I decided to play volleyball. Way after high school, like during the summer when the letters started coming in."

Brackins said she likes to compete. "It's fun to do something, the college level is more intense. I like being part of a team, the competition and having fun," Brackins said.

"I have a younger brother and sister. He runs track. My sister is 12, so she is just going into junior high. I don't know what she is going to do. I started out in junior high. My friends were just doing it and wanted to me to come along to. I told my brother and sister: 'Do what you want to do. If you think you want to play basketball or track — go for it.'"

Brackins said that she probably won't continue her career in volleyball. "This has been plenty for me. Way in the future, hopefully I'll teach a business course like keyboarding or I may be an office manager."

Cub fans jam Chicago phone lines

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cubs fans placed about 27 million calls over the weekend trying to buy some of the 84,000 tickets available for post season play at Wrigley Field, officials said.

The ticket lottery was closed at midnight Sunday, but only after the zealous ticket seekers overloaded a number of Illinois Bell switching centers in northern Illinois, leaving thousands temporarily without phone service.

The tickets are for any playoff and World Series games the Cubs might play in at Wrigley Field this season. The first place Cubs are four games ahead of the St. Louis Cardinals with six games left in the season.

TicketMaster put up 84,000 tickets up for sale Friday by telephone. Callers able to get through to one of 100 operators answering a single telephone line were allowed to buy up to four tickets.

The big rush was from 6 p.m. to midnight Friday when 9.35 million attempts were made to call the number, Illinois Bell spokeswoman Pat Montgomery said. As a result, many thousands of Illinois Bell customers could not get dial tones when they tried to make calls.

An estimated 27 million calls were attempted to the TicketMaster number during the three-day period, she said.

Alderman Bernard Hansen, who represents the area around Wrigley Field, said he would file a class action suit against Illinois Bell on Monday.

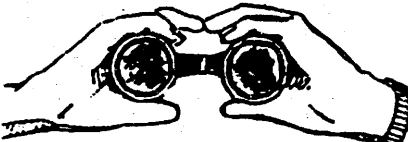

"Not only did businesses suffer, the health and safety of many people were in danger," he said.

Junior defensive back Monty Foster is likely to miss the remainder of the season after injuring his knee in the second half of the Salukis' 24-11 loss to Murray State last Saturday.

Smith said the extent of the injury won't be known for sure until Wednesday or Thursday but the situation did not look promising.

Junior Fred Gibson was replaced with sophomore Scott Gabbert late in the third quarter of the last game after Gibson injured a knee on the artificial turf.

Smith said the injury was not serious and Gibson should be able to practice today.

Junior defensive tackle Martin Hochertz was named the defensive player with the most outstanding team effort for the Murray State game.

Hochertz had 15 total tackles, nine unassisted and six assists, three tackles for losses and one quarterback sack. On the year, Hochertz is second in tackles with 29.

SIU-C ruggers await weekend showdown

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

The SIU-C rugby club, 5-2, is looking forward to Saturday when the University of Illinois' ruggers come to Carbondale for the opening round of the Illinois Union Rugby Championship Tournament.

SIU-C posted a 3-1 record last weekend at the St. Louis Royals Tournament in St. Louis. The Royals city-side club won the tournament.

After being shut out 16-0 in its first game by the Springfield, Mo. city-side club, SIU-C stormed back to defeat Pittsburgh State University-Kansas, 18-0, St. Louis University, 40-0 and Scott Air Force Base, 13-7. The rugby club claimed third in the eight-team tournament.

Junior Norm Smyth, who broke a hand and may be lost for the season, said the team played well on its way to third place.

"Our whole team contributed to the victories this weekend," Smyth said. "Everyone should be given credit for a great job."

"We plan to get ready for this weekend's match against the U of I," Smyth said. "It's our biggest game of the year. If we win this weekend, we have a great shot at the Union Championship."

Ex-Saluki in thick of pennant race

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

In 1987 Steve Finley was snagging down fly balls in centerfield for the baseball Salukis. Less than two years later, the former Saluki MVP found himself starting in rightfield for the Baltimore Orioles in the major leagues.

Finley, who made his major league debut April 3, credits SIUC coach Richard "Tichy" Jones for his success.

"Coach Jones is a great coach and he stresses the fundamentals to his players," Finley said. "I think he is one of the reasons I was able to make it to the majors so quick. Because of Coach Jones, I was a step ahead of other players at my level."

Finley started all four years (1984-87) under Jones. He was a career .329 hitter at SIUC and holds school records in at-bats (747), runs (175), hits (246) and doubles (41).

"The thing I remember most about Steve was the fact that he is a hard worker," Jones said. "He ran well and when he was at his best, Steve was a line drive type of hitter. During his senior year, he tried to power the ball too much and that really didn't help him much. Once he got to pro ball, he found out that baseball was his livelihood and started to settle down once more."

Finley led the Salukis in stolen bases three of the four years he played here. His career high at SIUC was 28 in 1987. During his senior year, Finley led the Salukis in three other offensive categories including runs scored (53), hits (71), walks (25) and triples (3).

Finley was the Orioles 13th-round pick in the June 1987 draft. He played less than two years of minor league baseball before his major league debut in April.

The 1987 Saluki MVP made the Class A New York-Penn League all-star team with a .293 batting average in 55 games. Finley was promoted to class AA where he played for Hagerstown of the Carolina League and hit .338.

The Paducah, Ky. native started the spring of '88 at Class AA Charlotte in the Southern League where he hit .300 and was later promoted to the Baltimore triple A team in Rochester.

For the Redwings, Finley completed his stay in the Baltimore minor league system with 130 hits, 17 doubles, six triples, and three home runs. He played in the Triple A All-Star Game and led the International League with a .314 batting average and was league MVP.

After moving through the Baltimore minor league system at a rapid pace, Finley made the 1989 big league Baltimore Orioles team out of spring training.

"After our last exhibition game, Frank Robinson (Baltimore manager) came up and told me that I had made the ball club," Finley said. "I didn't jump up and down or anything, but I was happy. The major leagues was always a dream for me as a kid. Things just went right for me and I received some breaks in the organization."

President George Bush who threw out the first ball, rock star Joan Jett, who sang the National Anthem and Egyptian leader Hosni Mubarek were all on hand for Finley's big league debut. But Finley instantly experienced the ups and downs of a major leaguer.

Finley crashed into the right centerfield wall to take a hit away from Boston Red Sox hitter Nick Esasky in the fourth inning. Finley sprained his right shoulder on the play and landed on the disabled list.

"Really this whole season has conditioned me to the big leagues," Finley said. "I have been a spot starter since returning to the team

Nina Brackins is the only senior on the Saluki volleyball team. And through her first three seasons, she's carved her place in the Saluki record book. Last year she was named MVP of the Southern Classic, received an all-Gateway honorable mention and led the team with 309 kills, fourth best in the Gateway. This year's list of awards includes being named to the Saluki Invitational all-tournament team and the Georgetown all-tournament team. Although Brackins can pound the opposing team into the ground, she said she is a calm, quiet person.

"I don't ever get nervous before a match. No butterflies. I'm kind of a calm person but I'm always psyched up. Volleyball means a lot. It's not just a sport. You make a lot of friends, meet new people. It makes you grow," Brackins said.

Brackins said she likes to receive awards but she doesn't linger on the fact. "I think it's nice getting an award but you just have to go on an about it after that."

She said there was nothing dur-

Defensive coordinator should be back soon

Saluki defensive coordinator Gerry Hart may be back with the team within the next two weeks, Coach Bob Smith said.

Hart underwent heart surgery early in fall practice and has not been with the team since.

A West Frankfort native and SIUC graduate, Hart coached at the University once before when he served as the quarterback coach from 1963-66.

The Saluki staff has been one m.m. short: and will welcome Hart's return, Smith said.

"Just from a personal standpoint and an organizational standpoint it will be great to have him back," Smith said.

"You just don't lose a coordinator at the beginning of the practice season and not have it affect the players and coaches," Smith said.

Smith said Hart has an appointment Wednesday with his doctor to determine whether or not he is ready to return to the sidelines.

"I'm really hopeful he'll be back with us in a week and a half to two weeks," Smith said. "Hopefully by the Northern Illinois game and at least by Illinois State."

The Illini await

The 1990 football schedule has a few added twists in store for the Salukis on top of an already difficult conference lineup.

The Salukis open with two conference foes before hosting Murray State University. Next the Dawgs travel to take on one of two Division I-A schools, the University of Illinois. The Salukis end their season at South Carolina.

Smith said he was not worried much about the tough schedule — at least not at the moment.

"(Schedules) won't get easier," Smith said. "The Gateway Conference gets better every year and when you add two Division I teams it doesn't make it easy."

Spikers at home tonight against Arkansas State

The 7-5 Saluki volleyball team will take on the 12-4 Arkansas State Lady Indians at 7 p.m. tonight in Davies Gymnasium.

The Lady Indians finished first in their conference in 1988 with a 10-0 record. Overall they were 41-1. Due to the loss of three players, this year's lineup includes some new faces. "We lost three big players. One senior and two to grades," Chris Poole Arkansas State coach, said. "To compensate we brought in a couple of junior college middle blockers. They are working out pretty good."

Because the team lost three of its strongest hitters, they have had to make some adjustments. "They need to work on the transition to playing with the team. This year's chemistry is not as smooth as last year's. We are more of an offensive team because we've lost our heavy hitters. This year, though, we have a greater size range," Poole said.

"I haven't seen them (Arkansas) play," Patti Hagemeyer Saluki coach said. "I'm concerned with what is happening on our side of the net. I am trying to get a team ready for conference play."

"I've never seen Southern play before, this is my third season with the team. I know they have a winning tradition, they know how to have a winning season. They play close with a lot of bigger teams," Poole said.

"We haven't established a tradition. That's what we are trying to do this year."
