Reagan's policies called public threat by speaker

By Steve Metsch
News Editor

The president of the National Association of the Neighborhoods said at a rally in Carbondale Saturday that for the first time in his memory, black, brown and white people are working together and are doing so to fight President Ronald Reagan's policies, which he called a "threat" to the public.

The Rev. Charles Koen, NAN president of Cairo, was the main speaker at a Southern Illinois Mobilization Coalition rally held to protest the Reagan administration's proposed budget cuts at the Federal Building Saturday.

"I thank God for Ronald Reagan," Koen said, "because what we could not accomplish in the last 10 years, he has accomplished in four months. He brought us together, because we are all dealing with the issue of survival."

Brian Bridgeford, an SIMC spokesman, said the rally was designed to stimulate peoples' opinion about the budget cuts. "Once people realize that Reagan's policies are dangerous to them, they will need education and organization to give them direction. This rally is just the first step," Bridgeford said.

Bridgeford said he was disappointed at the size of the group. However, he said it would be just a matter of time before SIMC would get more attention. "It's just a matter of time before we get moving. Back in 1963, when people first began protesting the Vietnam War, no one came out either."

The group was met at the Federal Building by another group marching from the Eurma Hayes Center. People had begun gathering in front of Grinell Hall and the Eurma Hayes Center at noon and marched to the rally. About 40 people marched from Grinell to the Federal Building.

The group marched north on Illinois Ave. to the Federal Building. Some of those marching carried posters with slogans protesting Reagan policies. Others sang anti-Reagan chants. Several guest speakers addressed the group.

Herbert Donow, president of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers, said that Reagan will be a major disaster for the United States.

"Unemployment will go up, inflation will be high as ever and we will be deeply involved in El Salvador if Reagan's plans go into effect," Donow said.

Richard Gardner, coordinator of the Black Affairs Council, said the BAC plans a congressional letter writing campaign for SIU-C students this fall.

"We will let Reagan know how we—the students—will be hurt by his planned cutbacks," Gardner said. "We will unite and let Congress know we need grants because we are America's future."

Several parents on welfare also spoke to the rally, telling them how the cutbacks will hurt their lives and the lives of their children.

Don Gallagher, a member of the Equal Rights Council of Carbondale and a doctor in philosophy, closed the rally. He said the planned cuts are really budget transfers.

Courthouse ruled safe to hold trials in

By David Murphy
Staff Writer

After receiving assurances that no more of the Jackson County Courthouse ceiling will fall, Judge Richard E. Richman has agreed not to move jury trials out of the courthouse and into a Murphysboro church.

Richman announced plans to move jury trials to the church at a press conference Wednesday after a chunk of plaster fell from the center of the courthouse ceiling on Monday.

Richman agreed not to move jury trials to the church, which is about two miles from the courthouse if a qualified architect would certify that the courthouse ceiling is safe and no more plaster will fall. He received that certification Saturday from retired SIU-C architect Willard Hart, who examined the ceiling at the request of the Jackson County Board.

Richman still has doubts about the safety of the courthouse, however.

"It's hard to say if it's safe or not," he said. "But you have to respect the professional opinion of the architect. There's always going to be some feeling of insecurity after what happened, though."

In his press conference, Richman accused the board of procrastination in arranging for better courtroom and jail facilities. Board members who heard Richman's complaints, however, thought that the complaints were not justified.

"I have always been convinced that the courthouse was safe," board member Robert Crim said. "We pointed out to the judge there was no need to move the court, and that we are working on getting the courthouse repaired."

Crim said that the opening of bids for reconstruction and repair of the roof are scheduled for May 11. The repairs will take about four weeks to be completed, he said, "and not six months, as the judge has claimed."

Crim also criticized Richman for the way in which he handled his complaints. He felt that the judge should have gone to the County Board or its Building and Grounds Committee before announcing his plans to the press.

Israeli planes shoot down Syrian jet over Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli jets shot down a Syrian Mig-25 Sunday in a dogfight over southern Lebanon following air raids by both Syrian and Israeli warplanes over Lebanon, witnesses reported.

Neither Syria nor Israel confirmed the downing of the Soviet-made Syrian jetfighter, but Associated Press correspondent Natih Basho saw the wreckage of the plane on the slopes of Chouf mountain 19 miles east of the port city of Sidon. Basho said pro-Syrian Lebanese militiamen recovered the bodies of the pilot and copilot and handed them over to Syrian troops.

Police reported dozens of dead or wounded after the Israeli attacks. The Christian-operated Voice of Lebanon radio station said five were killed and 20 wounded. There were no immediate reports of casualties from the Syrian strafing.

USSR is menace to worldwide peace, Chinese professor says

By Liz Griffin
Staff Writer

"We are facing a common threat, a threat from the expansionist and demonic U.S.S.R.," said Hubert S. Liang, a 78-year-old Chinese educator and lecturer, to an audience of about 75 people Thursday at Davis Auditorium.

He says most people believe a nuclear war involving the Soviet Union. "The only country that has the capacity to launch a global and nuclear war," is inevitable.

"I think this war can be averted if we act," Liang said during his lecture entitled, "China in the World Today," sponsored by the SIU Office of International Education, the School of Journalism, and the Carbondale chapter of the U.S.-China Peoples Friendship Association.

Liang, professor of English and journalism at the University of Nanking, People's Republic of China and distinguished visiting professor of journalism at the University of Missouri, is on a tour of universities in the Midwest.

"First of all, this (Soviet expansionism) should and must be stopped. So far they seem to be getting away with everything, he said, later referring to Czechoslovakia, Ethiopia, Angola, and Afghanistan. Expansionism is a building feature of Soviet foreign policy, he said.

Liang, who was educated in the United States during the 1920's, has worked on the editorial staff of the Detroit News and has been a secretary of the YMCA in China. He made suggestions on how to stop Soviet expansion.

"How to stop it?" Liang asked. "First, I suggest that the United States step up defense, and I think President Reagan is going to do just that."

China should expand its defense too, he said.

Next, he suggested that a united front composed of the United States, China, Britain, France, Egypt, Pakistan, Japan, Thailand, the Philippines, Malaysia, and Singapore be presented to the Soviets.

Liang suggested that members of this united front should demand the Soviets to "get out of... where you have no business being."

Stressing the need for a united front against the Soviets, Liang said, "You were talking about SALT II at the time they went into Afghanistan. Then you keep on talking, and they move somewhere else."

Once the Soviets are "put in their proper places," their cooperation could be enlisted for their nuclear and conventional disarmament, he said.

"With our military might having an edge over the Soviets, and with this united front behind this, then I would suggest that the United States withdraw her troops from South Korea, just to set an example," Liang said, adding that China acts as a restraining influence on North Korea.

Liang said that the United States should then withdraw its troops from Europe, where they

Riots occur in Belfast as Sands nears death

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Rioters battled hundreds of police in Belfast and London Sunday in support of jailed IRA guerrilla Bobby Sands, reported at a skeletal 96 pounds in the 57th day of a hunger strike. Prison officials denied widespread rumors he has died.

About 500 Sands' backers demonstrated at a London subway station and then marched toward Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's 10 Downing Street residence.

Police forced the demonstrators into a street behind the posh Savoy Hotel and split them into two groups. After scuffles and shouting, the demonstrators dispersed. Thirty-eight arrests were reported and three ambulances carried away several injured people.

British police warned members of Parliament and other public figures to be wary of a possible letter-bomb campaign by Irish Army guerrillas.

They issued the warning after Barry Porter, a 41-year-old Conservative Party legislator, received an incendiary device through the mail Saturday. The device did not go off even though he started to open it.

In Belfast, rioters pitched firebombs at a bus depot in the Roman Catholic Ardoyne district, then hundreds of youths broke away from some 6,000 people attending a rally for Sands and hurled bricks, stones and lead pipes at a fortified police base.

British troops with armored vehicles moved into the area and the Catholic Andersonstown district but made no attempt to disperse the rioters who later drifted away.

Irish activist Bernadette Devlin McAliskey, former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark, the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, an American Roman Catholic priest active in the anti-Vietnam War protests, and Marie Howe, a state legislator from Massachusetts, were at the rally.

It came at the end of a 3-mile march led by Sands' sister, Marcella Kelly, who held aloft a poster-sized photograph of her brother.

The IRA quoted doctors as saying the 27-year-old Sands nearly died Saturday night at Northern Ireland's Maze prison after rejecting a last-minute meditation effort. His family was at his bedside and said after a visit Sunday morning he was "extremely weak."

Blizzards sweep across England

LONDON (AP) — The century's worst April blizzards swept southward across England and Wales Sunday, leaving hundreds of motorists stranded in five-foot snowdrifts, thousands of homes without electricity and seven people missing. Airports at Birmingham and East Midlands were closed.

Coal strike impact called minimal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A month-old coal strike by the United Mine Workers has had no apparent impact on operations of U.S. industry, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said Sunday. But he also said the situation could change if the strike goes on very long.

Baldrige said U.S. coal exports have already dropped substantially and if the strike continues for another two months, the nation's oil imports may be pushed up and Americans can expect to pay higher utility bills.

Academic affairs VP candidate troubled by SIU-C's pessimism

By Randy Roguski
Staff Writer

The dismal forecast for higher education is exaggerated, especially at SIU-C, a candidate for vice president for academic affairs and research said Friday.

Lawson Crowe, a philosophy professor in the University of Colorado's Institute for Behavioral Genetics in Boulder, said universities can avert adverse effects of enrollment drops and budget constraints by preparing for them.

Crowe was interviewed on campus Friday and Saturday by students, faculty and administrators. In a forum Friday, Crowe said he wants an "interesting and constructive" job and is "troubled" by the pessimism at SIU-C.

"I don't think the prospects for higher education are as dismal as people here seem to think," Crowe said. "Planning should take care of it. I don't like carving up programs."

Crowe said he thinks little institutional planning has occurred at SIU-C. Planning should include considering ways to improve a "neglected" undergraduate curriculum, which has been overshadowed by emphasis on faculty research, he said.

Careful advisement procedures and basic reading and writing skills should be emphasized, Crowe said. Vocational training is "totally unnecessary" because most graduates don't stick with the fields for which they train, he said.

"If you can teach a student to think analytically and communicate well, you can teach him anything. Let these industries teach the technical skills," he said.

A former chancellor for the University of Colorado's Boulder Campus, Crowe said promotion and rewards systems should put more emphasis on teaching. Promotions should also be based on peer evaluations conducted every five years, he said.

"This would protect faculty from the department that is jealous of their ability and does not want to promote them because it feels threatened by them," he said.

He said he favors "differential teaching," where promotion, rewards and teaching assignments reflect differences in the necessity of research in various fields.

Asked about appointments of department heads, Crowe said that at the University of Colorado appointments are for four-year terms and the administrators are subject to evaluations after three years. If they do not want to be evaluated, they must resign their positions.

If he were vice president at SIU-C, Crowe said, he would avoid isolating himself from faculty and would work closely with the Faculty Senate. Rather than "paper pushing," Crowe said, the work of an administrator is to fulfill the personal needs of individual faculty members.

He said the vice president should ensure that tenure and promotion policies, established by faculty, are being followed but should not "meddle" in faculty affairs.

VP finalist drops out of race

A candidate for vice president for academic affairs and research has withdrawn from the race, according to Jerry Gaston, chairman of the search committee.

Albert Yates, vice president and dean for graduate studies and research at the University of Cincinnati, withdrew Thursday because the position will not be decided in time for him to consider positions at other universities, Gaston said.

Recommendations for the vice president's job are expected to be made to President Albert Somit about May 7. Yates was one of four final candidates and was scheduled for on-campus interviews Monday and Tuesday.

Gaston said the search committee is disappointed about Yates' withdrawal, but doesn't think it affects the quality of the field of candidates.

Women's mud wrestling a dirty entertainment

IT'S NOT DIFFICULT to ascertain that anything muddy is dirty.

So when the Student Programming Council announced that the Chicago Knockers (the women's mud wrestling troupe) was to be the final show of this year's Springfest, it came as no surprise that this wasn't good, clean fun.

What is questionable is why SPC allowed the Knockers to perform an act that was nothing more than a cross between a pornographic display and a cock fight.

Sure, I'm a stick in the mud (no pun intended), but a performance whose only attraction is violence and the insinuation of a lesbian sexual encounter is not enjoyable, it's repulsive.

This sort of "entertainment" thrives on arousing the human animal (primarily males) to a fever by blatantly portraying sado-masochistic acts. Little old men with quarters in their pockets and their hands in their pants would find it as stimulating as anything a peep-show offers.

The performance opens with the almost-beauty-queens parading around the perimeter of the mud pit in high-heeled shoes, scanty tee shirts and shorts that offered plenty of cheek.

THE BURLESQUE LINE then departed from the stage and two wrestlers went to their respective corners and stripped down to most revealing swim suits. All this time there is interaction with the audience. Teasing, flirting and tempting the male members of the crowd with saucy stares and suggestive body motions to satisfy the frustrated male libido.

The wrestling itself provides explicit suggestions that these women are enjoying bondage and physical sexual abuse. More than once a wrestler found herself stuck with her head between the opponent's legs, more than once was there a grasping of an opponent's crotch and more than once it seemed that despite all the violence each wrestler endured, they appeared to enjoy it.

As for the mud, it's strictly a novelty to create interest. Once a wrestler was covered with mud, she couldn't get any muddier. And after a few women were muddied, there was little excitement in watching others do the same. So while the mud covered the wrestlers, it also covered what the true value of the activity is.

SHOWS THAT BASE their appeal on violence or sex are not new. Professional wrestling and roller derby both depend on violence as their drawing card. Sexually oriented acts can be seen in many night clubs and on film.

What's new about this sport is that it offers both sex and violence and it offers it as general entertainment. While most of their acts are booked for indoors, anyone could have watched them Saturday. Which is surprising since many of the people who attended the festival would not be admitted into an R-rated movie.

I'm sure that many people enjoyed the act. There is something comical about adults flopping around in the mud. But the selling point of this act is masochism, not humor. And I'm curious to know if SPC is now in sexploitation business.

U.N. simulation a success

In response to the April 16 article describing the general lack of student interest in foreign affairs, I would like to point out that this lack of interest does not pertain to all students at SIU-C.

On April 9, 10, and 11 there occurred on this campus a United Nations Simulation which specifically discussed some of the international problems currently facing this country and the world. This simulation had been an annual event at SIU-C until 1975, and when reinstated this year, the interest was far from meager. In fact, it was quite invigorating to see such a large number of students representing various countries attempt to resolve some of today's world problems. Several original resolutions were proposed dealing with such issues as offshore petroleum spills, terrorism, world hunger and the current situation in Poland. Due to this strong showing of interest, it is hoped that the United Nations Simulation will once again become an annual tradition on this campus.

I would like to extend a special public thank you to Dr. Klingberg for acting as the consultant on this project. Also to Mike Witten for the tremendous amount of legwork required in organizing this simulation, to Dave Fontilla for getting the ball rolling and especially to the participating students without whom this simulation would never have been accomplished. I am, however, disappointed in the coverage and publicity given by the Daily Egyptian, whose staff was contacted and made aware of the simulation.—Michael L. Heelter, School of Law.

The economics of the HLA

By Robert Phillips
Spokesman
Churches of the Outlaw Confederation

Wayne and Sharon Helmer's support of the anti-abortion movement quoted the author of the HLA, Senator Helms. It is interesting to note that this self-proclaimed defender of human life has vigorously opposed every civil rights measure, and has voted against every social measure designed to help the poor that has come before the Senate during his tenure in office. He is, at present, one of the leaders in the Reagan fight to destroy the social gains of the past 40 years.

According to a spokesman for the Illinois state government, the Reagan budget cuts will eliminate 9,000 of the 81,000 recipients of WIC coupons; coupons designed to insure that pregnant women, infants and children have adequate nutrition. The passage of the HLA will mean many more pregnant women will be forced to carry their babies without proper nutrition. Are the Helmers, the Rev. Babcox and other anti-abortionists willing to see to it that the WIC program is not cut, but expanded to meet the needs of the pregnancies they will force to be carried to a full term through passage of the HLA?

Also, the Reagan budget calls for slashes in Medicaid. Since federal funds do not pay for most abortions, the passage of the HLA would place an increased burden on the Medicaid program. Are the anti-abortionists ready to fight the cuts, and see that the Medicaid program is expanded to meet the needs of the women forced to carry their pregnancies to full term, and the needs of their babies?

The Reagan budget calls for cuts in the food stamp, housing and educational programs. Are the anti-abortionists ready to fight such cuts, and call for the expansion of these programs so that no infant will be taken to a slum where the constant danger of being bitten by rats exists and roaches crawl over its crib and small body? Are they willing to see that no child is denied proper nutrition, a decent place to live and an education? I challenge the Helmer's and other anti-abortionists to publicly state their positions on these economic issues. If they choose to ignore these questions, or refuse to take the steps necessary to insure that these issues are met, then their claim to being concerned with human life can be judged as cheap hypocrisy, a pretense adopted to cover their real motives, the imposition of a de facto theocratic state.

I am pro-choice as I am pro-freedom; however, I do have some reservations at the abortions women have due to the economic restraints. I, therefore, advocate that an amendment to the Constitution be offered as a substitute for the HLA. This amendment would establish the rights of pregnant women to proper nutrition and adequate medical care. It would also establish the right of every infant and child to adequate nutrition, medical and dental care, a decent place to live and a decent education. I ask all people with human decency to join me in support of such a substitute for the HLA.

The amendment I propose would not limit the Bill of Rights, but it would expand it in a way which would mean a new day for our nation, and it would make America a shining light in a world beset by tyranny and darkness.

Council may hear arguments on proposed water rate hike

By Melody Cook
Staff Writer

A proposed increase in city water rates is expected to meet some opposition from representatives of SIU-C and at least one water district at the City Council meeting Monday night.

The proposed rate increase, which would be the first in 10 years, mainly will affect consumers of over 100,000 gallons per month, who make up less than 4 percent of all the water customers. Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services, said that the increase could cost the University as much as an additional $10,000 per month, or $120,000 per year. The University currently consumes an average of 31,183,000 gallons of water a month and pays an average monthly bill of $19,598.05.

SIU-C Legal Counsel representative Richard Higginson told the council at the April 13 meeting that the University receives its money from two sources—appropriations from the state and student fees. Dougherty said the chances are "slim" for receiving money from appropriations because it is too late in the fiscal year.

The present water rates are $1.05 per thousand gallons for the first 3,000 gallons used, 95 cents per thousand gallons for the next 22,000 gallons used, 84 cents per thousand gallons for the next 75,000 gallons used, 74 cents per thousand gallons for the next 400,000 gallons used and 63 cents per thousand gallons for the next 500,000 gallons used.

The new water rates, proposed to go into effect June 1, attempt to achieve a flat rate per thousand gallons for any volume of water used. The proposed new rates are $1.10 per thousand gallons for the first 100,000 gallons used, $1 per thousand for the next 400,000 gallons used and 95 cents per thousand for the next 500,000 gallons used.

According to Chuck Vaught, the city's finance and budget analyst, the new rates will help equalize water consumption and city revenue. Vaught said that the three water districts and the University consume the most water, but contribute only 41.5 percent of the revenue.

"The past structure has undercharged the high-volume consumer and overcharged the low-volume consumer," he said.

The minimum bill of 3,000 gallons per month will increase only 4.8 percent, or about 15 cents per month, he said.

City Manager Carroll Fry said that the old concept of reducing the rate as the consumption goes up will no longer be accepted.

But then the amused, but unfulfilled crowd got something to cheer about in the final match—they could back local talent. WTAO disk jockeys Live Earl Jive and Al Caruso entered the ring to wallow with China Doll (a mother of three) and Peaches and Cream.

Sailor, a gentleman in the same context that his wrestlers are ladies, warned that "the guys can't touch 'em anywhere they wouldn't in public or the girls will beat the fuck out of 'em."

The crowd enthusiastically supported the DJs, boing when Earl was body slammed and hit in the face with thrown mud, cheering wildly when Caruso used his weight to rough up China Doll, all while chanting 'TAO! TAO!'

Although it seemed Caruso tried to apologize for his effectiveness, the women never slowed down, continuing to kick and punch and even double team the men.

But the hometown boys didn't do so well. Live Earl Jive was unceremoniously pinned, thus ending the crowd's fun and bringing forth more cat calls.

When the show was over, it was met by mostly boos with disgruntled onlookers complaining of more hype than fight or of the overall absurdity of it all.

Just why would any woman want to wallow in mud with another? The women all agreed that the pay was good, many of them quitting their old jobs to wrestle full time.

"I make good money and I get to travel all over the world," China Doll, a former bartender and bouncer, said. "I've always wanted a spotlight on me and now I've got it. My kids think mom is the greatest and that's no fu yung. They think if mom can get in the mud, they can too."

"I like the exposure," said Killer Elite, a former waitress and laborer, who has been wrestling for two years. "Just meeting people and being in the limelight are nice benefits."

The team claims that women's groups refrain from calling mud wrestling sexist or degrading.

"We were picketed in Pennsylvania once," the California Kid said, "but we have a lot of girls come up after the show and tell us how much they like and how they'd like to give it a try."

"We get a little abuse, but we've also been interviewed by women's lib groups that like what we're doing," Sailor said. "We're entertainers and pioneers in the field for women. We're not topless like some groups. We're a polished Vegas show and we love the business."

The manager said the Knockers consist of 50 women who go on separate regional tours. The troupe is planning trips to Japan, West Germany and the Soviet Union, a television special and a tour with the rock group Cheap Trick.

This agenda for maximum exposure is just business as usual for what Sailor calls his "attractive ladies who can kill." But judging by the response here Saturday, they probably, and hopefully, won't be back to Carbondale again.

Group succeeds in creating emotion through sign language

By Colleen Moore
Staff Writer

The Traveling Hands Theater Troupe, which consists of mostly hearing-impaired members, proved Friday night at Shryock Auditorium that sign language is effective in providing emotional emphasis in a musical show.

Although the hearing-impaired members mouthed words, the sign language and the musical recordings were enough to express some of the popular music and dances from the 1920s to the 1980s.

Review

"An American Dream" began with a teenager, portrayed by T.K. Hill, and a robot, depicted by Donna Reiter, in the year 2061. The robot took the teenager into the past through a time machine.

Shirley Temple, depicted by Jennifer Zechiel, danced to and expressed the song "When I Grow Up" during part of the 1950s scene. Zechiel, 6, seemed to be a natural performer because she appeared very relaxed, and illustrated the song with exaggerated actions. "We Shall Overcome" was sung to help show the teenager the struggles during the 1960s. The mellow mood of the song was created by the singers entering with candles and swinging to the melody.

Disco dancing gave the teenager a taste of the 1970s. The robot, the boy and two "disco queens" captivated the audience as they jerked to the robot dance.

During the finale, the teenager wanted more answers as to what the 1980s were like, but all the robot could remember was that an actor beat a peanut farmer in a presidential election.

Humor was added when the boy said, "I wish you could tell me what it's like to have an actor as president." The robot replied, "I would like to know myself."

Throughout the show Reiter performed exceptionally. As a robot she talked in a monotone voice and moved her body in sharp, quick gestures. She also showed acting talent when she changed her voice to speak the parts of some of the hearing-impaired performers.

The show ended with the entire cast dancing to the new song "America" by Neil Diamond. The group members, who wore costumes of red, white and blue, swayed their arms and twisted down to the floor to express the rapid beat of the music.

1981 Spring Semester Final Examination Schedule Information

The examination schedule attempts to avoid examination conflicts providing separate examination periods for Tuesday-Thursday lecture classes. Some questions might develop for which answers can be provided at this time.

1. Classes that meet longer than one hour on Tuesday and Thursday, such as four credit hour classes, should use the examination period established for the earlier of the hours. For example, a class meeting from 11:00 to 12:50 on Tuesday and Thursday would hold its examination at 3:10 p.m. Wednesday, May 13. This applies also to non-lecture type courses such as laboratory or seminar type courses. Classes that meet for one of the 75 minute periods on Tuesday-Thursday are assigned a specific examination period. For example, 12:35 to 1:50 Tuesday-Thursday classes have their examination at 8:00 p.m., Thursday, May 14.

2. Classes should plan to hold their final examination in the regularly scheduled class rooms. The space scheduling section of the Office of Admissions and Records will forward to departments information relative to the location for examinations for those classes that cannot hold their examinations in their regularly scheduled rooms because of a space conflict. This will be done sufficiently in advance of the final examination days to provide sufficient notice for all.

The following points are also pertinent to the final examination schedule:

1. Students who find they have more than three examinations on one day may petition, and students who have two examinations scheduled at one time should petition their academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such make-up examination period does not mean that students may decide to miss the scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during this make-up period. This period is to be used only for students whose petitions have been approved by their dean.

2. Student who must miss a final examination may not take an examination before the time scheduled for the class examination. Information relative to the proper grade to be given students who miss a final examination and are not involved in a situation covered in the preceding paragraph will be found in the mimeographed memo memorandum forwarded to members of the instructional staff at the time they receive the final grade listing for the recording of grades.

Chinese professor sees need for more U.S. in-depth stories

By Liz Griffin
Staff Writer

The Chinese and the American press both publish information, but the type of information they publish marks the difference between them, according to Hubert S. Liang, a 78-year-old educator and lecturer from Beijing, China.

There is a general tendency toward liberation. By necessity, they have to be going toward democracy," said Liang of the government of his homeland of the People's Republic of China.

Chinese journalists do not write stories that are against official policy, but attempts at censorship are not very successful, according to Liang, who noted, "You can never fool all the people all the time."

Liang spoke about journalism in China today to a group of about 15 SIU-C faculty and students Thursday in Room 1246 in the Communications Building.

The Chinese press deals with subjects in a broader context, according to Liang. The press in mainland China notes the social, political and economic ramifications of newsworthy events, he said, remarking that the Jean Harris murder trial would never have received the coverage in China that it received in the United States.

American journalists should do more interpretative and investigative reporting, according to Liang.

The Chinese colleagues of American journalists write more for accuracy than for speed, and information that is passed by word of mouth in China is not always investigated by Chinese journalists and printed in the Chinese press, he said. This grapevine information is fairly accurate, he added.

"They would rather let you learn through the grapevine than officially publish it. Why should they publish? If the government had an interest in publishing it, it would be published," said Liang, a graduate in engineering from the Ford School of Technology and a student in journalism at DePauw University and the University of Detroit during the 1920s.

"The American mass media has quite an impact on us," he said, noting that the grammar and make-up shows its Western influence.

But he said that the American mass media doesn't portray an accurate picture of American society. Too much emphasis is placed on crime, sex and violence, and too little is written about the positive aspects of American society, he said.

"Your news is probably more entertainment. You have comics and humorous items, but we don't do so much of that, except in the local press," he said.

were stationed after World War II under the Marshall Plan. "Do not let American boys and girls and men and women do the things that they should do themselves."

He called the border between Thailand and Kampuchea the world's "most explosive spot today," and called the Vietnamese the "puppets" of the Soviets.

"If the Vietnamese cross the border into Thailand, then I think China will send troops to help Thailand and I think the United States, by agreement, will have to send troops also."

Answering a question from the audience, Liang loudly affirmed that Taiwan is a part of China. "Let sleeping dogs lie. We will come together," he said.

He restated his prophecy that the United States and China are bound by a common destiny.

"The question is," he asked, "have we enough intelligence and understanding for each other to work closer, first to prevent a global war, but more and more to build a new world order—a world order that would be undergirded by the spirit of Christ? Other beliefs will put in a foundation for this new world."

"I can say from my point of view for my people, that we are doing everything we can," he said.

"Having lived practically all my life in wars, I would like to see peace."

Catherine Helen Vergette dies

Catherine Helen Vergette, 52, an SIU-C staff member and a grandniece of the late South African Prime Minister Jan Christiaan Smuts, died Friday after a three-year illness.

A memorial service will be held following cremation in Memorial Park Crematory in St. Louis. The date for the service is as yet unknown, according to a spokesman for the Huffman Funeral Home, of Carbondale, which is in charge of local arrangements. There will be no visitation.

Vergette worked in the administration office of the Office of Research and Development at SIU-C. She was graduated from law school in South Africa, and was also a member of the Unitarian Fellowship in Carbondale.

Vergette was born in 1928, in Capetown, South Africa. She was married to Nicholas Vergette, a former Art Department staff member at SIU-C, who died in 1974.

Survivors include a son, Marcus Vergette of Carbondale, her mother, Mrs. A. Kleinschmidt of South Africa, and a brother, Admiral John Kleinschmidt of Simonstown, South Africa.

Professor claims food key to news preference

By Brenda Wilgenbusch
Staff Writer

The type of foods you eat may determine the news you prefer. At least that's what Lee Thayer, a professor of communication at the University of Wisconsin-Parkside in Kenosha, Wis., who just completed a two-week stay at SIU-C as a visiting professor, seems to think.

Americans prefer processed food, and so the news may tend to be a little oversimplified in the American culture, said Thayer, who served as a visiting adjunct professor in the College of Communications and Fine Arts.

"Americans don't like to chew their food," he said. "We like it to taste good and slide down easily."

News in the United States tends to present complex issues in a good vs. bad format so that the average American need not wrestle with the facts, Thayer said.

"The journalist," he said, "is forced to construct a story that is easily 'chewed' by the public." As a result, he said, Americans receive the news in the same consistent format—one in which "we know what to expect."

But it's not the media's fault, Thayer said. Both eating habits and types of news preferred are formed by the same kinds of cultural issues, he said. America's food and media consumption are similar because they "come from a bias in our culture," he said. Americans like things handed to them, he said, without a lot of hassle.

Thayer said that Europeans have different eating habits and news preferences because the culture is different. Europeans, he said, tend to read more. Newspaper stories are much longer, he said, with more historical information and opinions given.

Thayer sees a connection between European food and news preferences as well.

"In America, 35 percent of all meat is rendered into hamburger, a pre-chewed food," Thayer continued, "whereas in Europe only 6 percent of the meat is ground. Europeans also chew their food longer and take longer to eat." It is necessary, Thayer said, to consider the cultural context of the media before making any judgments.

Thayer said that he first noticed the connection between food and news preferences while studying the nature of American culture and how it affects our behavior. Thayer, a social and behavioral scientist, said that he became intrigued by the way the media was made the scapegoat.

"The general tendency," Thayer continued, "is to blame the media for all of our faults." He said that he wanted to find out whether the media was to blame. Thayer said he doesn't think it is.

"Americans like to think that they are very busy and don't have time to read or even chew their food," he said. But that, he said, is not being done by the media.

"It is what the people want," he said, "and that's the good thing about democracy."

Critical studies of the media show that the public's accusations are true in one sense, he said. The media offers simple solutions to complex problems. Thayer said, because that's what Americans want.

"News in America is typically put in a biased format, black and white, to help us understand," he said.

Thayer said he met with several classes and faculty and held special seminars during his two-week visit.

He has written several books on communication and related subjects, he said, including "Ethics, Morality and the Media," a book about the American culture and its effects on the media.

Clutch hitting fails, softball team splits

By Michelle Schwent
Staff Writer

The Saluki softball team got some hits over the weekend in the Indiana Invitational, but a lack of clutch hitting doomed the squad in the end.

SIU-C won two and lost two in the 10-team tournament and ended the regular season with an 11-20 record. The Salukis edged St. Louis University, 4-3, in 10 innings, and dumped Kent State, 3-1. Illinois State beat the Salukis, 1-0, and host team Indiana shut out SIU-C again, 2-0.

Freshman Meredith Stengel gave another strong performance, pitching all 10 innings. Stengel gave up eight hits, walked three, struck out three and improved her record to 3-2.

The Salukis and Lady Billikens each scored two runs in the first inning and one run in the second inning. SIU-C broke the tie in the bottom of the 10th inning when Chris Brewer drew a walk with one out. Brewer advanced to third when Lisa Norman hit the ball to the SLU third baseman, who committed an error. Karen Koltnow got a base hit with two out to drive in Brewer. Koltnow drove in the first two Saluki runs with a long double. First baseman Pat Stang was four-for-six in the game. Freshman Sunny Clark improved her record to 4-6 with the two-hit win over Kent State. Clark struck out six and walked two in the contest. The Salukis scored a run in the first, the second and fourth innings. Brewer, Koltnow and Kathy Clements each stole a base to pace the SIU-C win. Koltnow was the hitting standout against the Lady Flashes, going two-for-three.

Illinois State and SIU-C met for the third time this season in the next game. ISU won the first two, 3-0, and 3-1. The third time wasn't the charm for SIU-C, but the Saluki did manage to limit the Redbirds to one run. Sophomore Donna Dapson gave up nine hits, walked none and struck out two in the loss, making her record 1-8. The Salukis could muster only two hits.

Indiana scored two runs in the fifth inning to beat the Salukis. The Hoosiers out hit the Salukis, 4-2. Freshman Dawn Michel took the loss, making her record 3-4. Michel struck out two, walked one and threw two wild pitches.

Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said the Salukis improved their hitting but weren't able to get any key hits.

"We had many opportunities to win that first game, but couldn't come through with the key hits," Brechtelsbauer said. "We're hitting the ball better, but we're looking for clutch hitting."

"We had two good defensive games against Illinois State and Indiana," Brechtelsbauer added. "We didn't make any errors against Illinois and only had one against Indiana. That is sort of a breakthrough for us because we had been averaging three a game."

SIU-C is seeded second in this weekend's state tournament and will play Western Illinois in the first tournament game on Thursday. Illinois State is seeded No.1.

Cardinals, White Sox, Cubs continue respective streaks

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Pinch-hitter Tito Landrum broke a ninth-inning tie with a run-scoring single off Grant Jackson to give St. Louis a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Sunday, running the Cardinals' winning streak to eight games.

The victory boosted the Cardinals record to 9-2, their best start since 1946 when they won the World Series.

With two out in the St. Louis ninth, Tom Herr singled off Jackson, 1-1, and stole second base before Landrum bounced his winning hit up the middle.

White Sox 5, Tigers 4
DETROIT (AP) — Bob Molinaro drove in two runs with a pinch-triple Sunday and the Chicago White Sox extended their winning streak to six games with a 5-4 victory over Detroit, handing the Tigers their seventh straight loss.

With Chicago trailing 4-2, Greg Luzinski worked Milt Wilcox, 2-2, for a walk leading off the seventh inning. He went to second on Lamar Johnson's single, took third when Chet Lemon was hit by a pitch and scored on Carlton Fisk's sacrifice fly off reliever Aurelio Lopez.

Phillies 6, Cubs 2
CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Schmidt's towering two-run homer triggered a four-run third inning Sunday to lead the Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-2 victory and send the slumping-riden Chicago Cubs stumbling to their 12th straight loss.

Season finale pits netters vs. Illini

The SIU-C's men's tennis team split a pair of matches Sunday and will meet Illinois at 2 p.m. Monday at the University courts.

Purdue edged the Salukis, 3-4, Sunday morning and SIU-C turned around to beat Indiana State, 7-2, that afternoon. Purdue is now 10-12, ISU is 10-11.

"We should've beaten Purdue," Coach Dick LeFevre said. "They shouldn't have won the first four singles matches."

SIU-C's John Greif and Steve Smith won their singles matches and the Salukis grabbed a couple of doubles wins while their season record dropped to 9-14.

Relief came fast. The Salukis won every singles match of the Indiana State contest. Guy Hooper started the SIU-C snowball by beating Tom Cspikay, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4. The match made Cspikay's record 16-7. Hooper's became 6-13.

"Hooper's playing better now than he was at the first of the season," LeFevre said.

"Cspikay's a really good player, a tough one to beat."

A pleasant Saluki surprise came after LeFevre plugged Eric Eberhardt into the afternoon lineup. Eberhardt replaced David Filer, who pulled a leg muscle in his doubles match against Purdue. SIU-C's substitute ace ISU's Mike Hanbrook, 6-3, 6-3, to end an 11-match Hanbrook winning streak.

"Eberhardt responded well," LeFevre said. "When he took the sixth spot in the lineup, it moved Smith and Greif up a notch, but they still won."

Greif won easily, 6-0, 6-1. Smith needed two tiebreakers. The two sets Smith won over Galen Scott were tied, 6-6, bringing on nine-point tiebreakers, which Smith won. Between the wins, Smith lost a 7-5 set.

After more than a full day's work, the Salukis won't get a full day's rest before carting their 10-14 record to the courts Monday. The match between SIU-C and 14-11 Illinois is the Salukis' last regular-season test.

The good news for SIU-C fans is that the Salukis whipped the Illini, 9-0, early this season.

"That was before they were really ready to play," LeFevre said. "They should do better this time."

The trouncing of Illinois came during the Salukis' 4-1 indoor stint. Playing outdoors, SIU-C is 6-13.

Lee's 'Triple Crown' try dies at Drake

By Greg Walsh
Staff Writer

Hurdler David Lee had his hopes for track and field's "Triple Crown" crushed Friday when he was beaten at the 72nd annual Drake Relays in Des Moines, Iowa.

But other Saluki performances, including distance man Karsten Schulz in the 1,500-meter run and high jumper Stephen Wray, caused Saluki Coach Lew Hartzog to say it was a good overall showing.

Lee's loss in the 400-intermediate hurdles came at the hands of Indiana's Nate Lundy, who Lee had beaten April 4 at Indiana. Lundy crossed the finish line at 49.49, with Lee at 49.88.

Lundy also was the only hurdler to beat Lee last year.

"Lee got beat, that's all there is to it," Hartzog said. "He ran a good race, he did not run a great one. Lundy ran a great race."

Hartzog said Lee "messed up" on the fifth hurdle, having to slow down to clear it, and that's when Lundy caught him and held on to win the race.

It was the first loss of the year in the intermediate hurdles for Lee, the defending NCAA outdoor intermediate hurdling champion and 1980 Olympian. He had won the first two legs of the Triple Crown at the Texas and Kansas Relays.

Hartzog said he did not want to "cop out" by saying Lee may have been tired from his hectic schedule over the last three weeks, which included running at Texas and Kansas, then returning to compete in dual competitions the following day. Last week at with Illinois was also tough on Lee.

But, Hartzog pointed out it didn't help.

On Saturday, Lee placed fourth in the 110-meter high hurdles with a time of 14.43. Terron Wright of Memphis State won with a time of 14.19.

On Friday, SIU-C's Schulz provided possibly the closest race of the two-day meet.

Schulz was edged out by 10 seconds by Drake's Chris Mahre, who was attempting to win the Triple Crown in the 1,500.

"Schulz said, 'To hell with the Triple Crown. I am going to beat him,'" Hartzog said. He explained that Schulz was slightly ahead of Mahre coming down the stretch, but both leaned into the finish line and Mahre was judged the winner, finishing at 3:44.7.

"I thought Schulz won it," Hartzog said.

"I don't know how they separated them by a 10 seconds. They were right together at the finish line."

The Accutrack, which photographs the finish line and gives a runner's time, was not used on the 1,500 so the judges had to call it, Hartzog said.

Both runners admitted it was a tough race. Hartzog said Mahre commented, "God, I would love to face him again in three weeks (at the Missouri Valley Conference meet at SIU-C)."

The Saluki 1,600 relay (one mile) team placed fourth with a time of 3:06.2. It was the second fastest mile relay time ever run by SIU-C team. Leadoff man Tony Adams had his fastest time this year of 46.75, followed by Javell Heggs 47.24, Peeler, 46.71, and Lee anchored with a 45.09.

Hartzog said the time was "amazing" because Adams and Heggs, both in spring football practice, did so well.

"Our opponents are amazed when I tell them those kids are practicing football," Hartzog said.

SIU-C's 6,400-meter (four miles) relay team of Mike (Hoffin), Bill Moran, Tom Ross and Schulz finished third with a time of 16:22.3, breaking the old SIU-C record by about seven seconds. Iowa State won with a time 16:09, setting a new Drake Relays record.

In the field, SIU-C's Stephen Wray was the highest finisher. Wray placed third in the high jump at 7-2 1/4. He tied at that height with winner Ron Jones of Indiana, but Jones won because he took less attempts.

Wray broke Bill Hancock's SIU-C record of 7-2, which he set in 1975 at the Drake Relays.

In the pole vault, Saluki John Sayre placed sixth at a height of 17-2 1/4. Brad Persley of Abilene Christian won at 17-7 1/4, and set a new Drake Relays record.

SIU gets good pitching efforts, but Kentucky wins two of three

Dave Kane
Associate Sports Editor

"Tough" would be a mild adjective to describe the Saluki baseball team's bumpy road trip to Lexington, Ky., over the weekend. SIU-C dropped two of its three non-conference games against Kentucky, and even the lone win didn't come easily.

Kentucky improved its record to 33-13 by winning the first game of Saturday's doubleheader, 14-3, and Sunday's 11-inning game, 4-3. The Salukis, 21-12, won Saturday's second game, 4-3, thanks to the pitching of Harold Brown and Paul Evans.

Sunday's loss came despite an excellent pitching effort by senior righthander Jerry Halstead. He pitched the entire contest, and didn't allow a hit through the first three innings. He walked three and struck out only one, but managed to work out of several jams, including a no-out, bases-loaded situation in the bottom of the ninth that sent the game into extra innings.

Despite collecting 11 hits to Kentucky's seven, the Salukis stranded 12 baserunners and made five errors. Their runs were scored in the first on Kurt Reid's groundout that drove in Bobby Doerrner, in the third when Reid walked with the bases loaded to force in Scott Bridges, and in the fourth when Bridges' single drove in Joe Richardson.

Only two of the four Wildcat runs were earned. After a line-drive double play left Bill Sandry at third with two outs in the Kentucky fourth inning, an error by shortstop Mike Robertson allowed Sandry to score. Regular shortstop Mike Mesh was sidelined during the series because of a shoulder injury. Greg Rile, who reached on the error, later scored on a single by Mike Harding to make it 3-2 SIU-C. Sandry homered in the fifth to tie the score.

Kentucky ace Jeff Keener, holder of the nation's best earned-run average, (0.59 going into the series), entered the game in the seventh and dueling Halstead the rest of the way. Kentucky loaded the bases with none out in the ninth on another error, a mishandled sacrifice bunt and an intentional walk, but a short fly-out and a line-drive double play got Halstead out of the inning. In the 11th, however, the bases were loaded with none out again, and this time Halstead walked Mike Botkin to force in the winning run. Halstead is 2-3, while Keener is 10-1.

The Saluki victory in Saturday's second game was in doubt down to the final out. An RBI single by Mike Blumhorst and a sacrifice fly by Robertson gave SIU-C a 2-1 lead in the second, and P.J. Schranz' two-run homer in the third, his second of the year, made it 4-2 in the fourth.

Brown, who got the win to improve to 5-1, retired 11 straight hitters after Rile's home run made the score 2-2 in the second, but a blister forced him to leave the game with one out in the sixth. Evans relieved Brown, and after allowing a run in the ninth to make it 4-3, worked out of the jam to gain his seventh save of the year.

In the first game Saturday, the Wildcats pounded SIU-C starting lefthander Rob Clark, who suffered his first loss against six wins. In the second inning, Kentucky sent 11 hitters to the plate and scored seven runs. Although Kentucky committed four errors, SIU-C again wasted several opportunities and left 11 runners on base.

Golfers nudged out of 2nd at Iowa

By Rod Furlow
Staff Writer

Things are looking up for the women's golf team.

The Salukis missed second place by a stroke in Friday and Saturday's 54-hole Iowa Invitational at Finkbine Country Club in Iowa City, Iowa. SIU-C's second-day stroke total tied the second-best total of the eight tourney teams.

The Salukis improved by eight strokes the second day, when they shot the same score as Iowa, the tourney winner.

"We shot better the second day because of the weather," SIU-C Coach Mary Beth McGirr said. "It was in the 60's the second day, but it was 44 degrees and windy the first day. That's not golf weather."

Only two teams shot worse scores the second day, Minnesota and Stephens College of Columbia, Mo.

Iowa won the tourney by four strokes over Minnesota. Finishing behind Minnesota were the Salukis, Stephens, Northern Iowa, Central College, Kansas State, and Iowa's "B" squad.

Each team used six players and counted the scores of the best four for each 73-par 18-hole round. It was the first tourney this season the Salukis have been able to throw out two scores instead of one.

"That definitely helped," McGirr said, "and it was also a big plus that all six players contributed one day. We got to throw out an 85 the second day, which is usually one of our better scores."

That 85 belonged to Barb Anderson, who has golfed in the top spot in the Saluki lineup this season.

"Getting to throw out two scores helped us most by taking some of the pressure off Barb," McGirr said. "We usually look to her to get our best score, but the chance to throw out the scores showed off our balance."

Lavon Seabolt had the best two-day score for the Salukis, a 164. She tied for fifth in the tourney by shooting an 81 the second day, her lowest score this season.

Lisa Rottman finished a stroke higher than Seabolt and tied for seventh in the tournament. She also scored an 81 the second day.

Anderson's 81 came the first day in the bad weather. She finished with a 166, tying for ninth.

The fourth Saluki to stroke an 81 was Tracy Keller, who finished with a 168. Sue Arbogast finished at 170, Dania Meador at 174.

Elena Collins of Iowa had the lowest round and tourney score. Her second-day 74 gave her a 154 total. The 10-stroke margin between Collins' tourney-best score and the best Saluki total (Seabolt's) is the narrowest of the season.

"Considering the weather, we played really well," McGirr said, "and throwing out the two scores definitely makes a difference for us."

The Salukis have two more regular-season tourneys, and in them teams will count the best four scores of six. Their next tourney is the Saluki Invitational, which begins at 9 a.m. Friday at the Rend Lake course in Benton. Tourney action will conclude Saturday.
