Peltier halts religious fast for fear of force-feeding

By The Associated Press

Saying he was afraid of being force-fed, American Indian Movement leader Leonard Peltier said Tuesday he had at least temporarily halted his two-week fast intended to bring religious freedom to Marion Federal Penitentiary.

Peltier said in a telephone interview with the Associated Press that he also halted his fast because he wants to be in good health during a hearing on new evidence in the case that sent him to prison.

Peltier, 39, was moved to the U.S. Medical Center for Federal Prisoners in Springfield on Sunday.

Peltier, who is half French Chippewa and half Sioux, is serving two life sentences in the slayings of two FBI agents during a 1975 shootout at an Indian reservation in South Dakota.

Meanwhile, two other Indian inmates who were fasting at Marion - Robert Wilson and Albert Garza - were taken to Springfield on Tuesday.

Springfield facility said he didn't know whether they had eaten anything and that he needed their permission before discussing the matter.

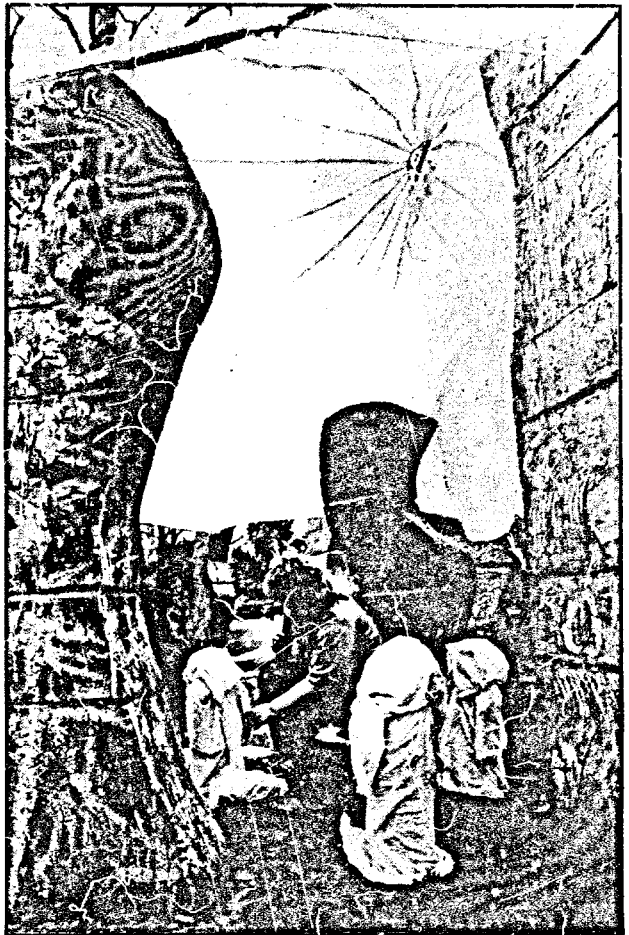

Peltier, who drank water during the fast, said officials planned to start force-feeding him Wednesday.

Last Friday two attorneys for the three fasting inmates filed a motion in the U.S. District Court in Benton seeking an injunction to block prison officials from force-feeding the Indians, who have been on a sacred "Lifefast" since April 10.

A hearing is scheduled for Thursday in Benton and Peltier supporters expect a temporary injunction to be handed down. If so, Peltier said he will resume his fast if necessary, but wasn't sure when.

"I'll have to confide with my spiritual leaders," he said.

Peltier said other prisoners had warned him he would be bound in a straitjacket, strapped to a bed and forced with tubes through his nose. He feared he might die during the ordeal.

Committee OKs herbicide spray for honeysuckle

By Sheila Rogers
Staff Writer

The herbicide Round-up will be sprayed on the honeysuckle in Thompson Woods after May 12, when few students will be on campus, Robert Mohlenbrock, chairman of the Campus Natural Areas Committee, said.

The spraying, in conjunction with brush removal, is meant to control the vine, which thrives in Southern Illinois' climate, Mohlenbrock, a professor in botany, said. The vine is commonly considered a problem because it covers other vegetation with a thick mat, often eventually killing it.

Mohlenbrock met with President Albert Somit last week to discuss the plans for the spraying with the herbicide, which Somit has approved as a measure to control the weed.

The plan also has the approval of committee member W.D. Klimstra, zoology professor who was among those objecting to the brush clearing operation last October. Klimstra said at that time the clearing upset the natural succession of the woods, disrupting study of the ecological system there.

Mohlenbrock said that there are two ways to get rid of honeysuckle. One is to take it out with a hoe or shovel, a method that rarely proves successful because the root is not easily removed. This method is hard work and time consuming, he said.

The easiest way to remove the honeysuckle is by herbicide. The CNAC and Illinois Department of Conservation agree the most appropriate herbicide is Round-up.

Last October, Physical Plant workers started to remove the honeysuckle by Gus says when they've uncovered all those paper cups and candy wrappers in Thompson Woods, they'll wish they had the honeysuckle back again.

Reagan, a China foe turned friend, arrives in Peking

AGANA, Guam (AP) -- President Reagan, who spent a generation as one of the United States' harshest critics of China, underwent final preparations Wednesday for his first visit to that communist nation.

After an overnight visit to Guam, the president and his wife, Nancy, were set to fly the final leg of a 9,290-mile journey across the Pacific Ocean and land in Peking early Thursday afternoon.

A bouquet from school children and a low-key welcome, led by Foreign Minister Wu Xuesian, awaited the Regans at the Peking Capitol Airport, a 30-minute motorcade ride from downtown, before a more formal welcome at Tiananmen Square, the largest public square in the world, and a conference with President Li Xiannian in the Great Hall of the People. From the start, the day offered the president glimpses of the Chinese people and their country, with his motorcade route taking him down tree-lined roads and past small farms on the approach to the sprawling capital city.

The Regans were assigned elegant quarters at the Diaoyutai state guest house, a walled compound reserved for distinguished visitors.

Premier Zhao Ziyang invited the Regans to a welcoming dinner on the Diaoyutai grounds Thursday evening.

Reagan will spend five days in China, on the first visit there by a U.S. president since Gerald R. Ford's journey in 1975. That trip followed Richard Nixon's historic travel to China in 1972.

David Kennedy found dead; cause not yet known

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) -- David Anthony Kennedy, the 20-year-old son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, was found dead in a hotel room Wednesday in this oceanside resort where his family has wintered for 40 years. Young Kennedy had a history of drug and alcohol problems, but the cause of his death was not immediately known.

Palm Beach Police Capt. William Shetron said the body was taken to the County Medical Examiner's office for an autopsy. "There's no sign of foul play," he said.

Sgt. Henry Marchman said at midafternoon the autopsy was under way, but he did not know when results would be available.

Kennedy's uncle, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass, issued a statement in Washington saying, "This is a very difficult time for all the members of our family, including David's mother, Ethel, and his brothers and sisters, who tried so hard to help him in recent years.

"All of us loved him very much," Kennedy said. "With trust in God, we all pray that David has finally found the peace that he did not find in life."

It was the latest in a series of tragedies for the Kennedy family, one of America's wealthiest and most politically prominent. Robert F. Kennedy was killed by an assassin in 1968 as he sought the Democratic nomination for president. His brother, President John F. Kennedy, was assassinated in 1963. Their older brother, Joseph Kennedy Jr., was killed in World War II.

David Kennedy, the fourth of Robert and Ethel Kennedy's 11 children, had been treated for drug addiction in 1979 and 1980. His older brother, Robert Jr., was given a two-year suspended sentence in South Dakota last month for possessing heroin.

Marchman said Kennedy's body was found in Room 107 of the Brazilian Court Hotel, a two-story wood-stucco building where he had been staying alone.

Josephine Dampier, the hotel manager's secretary, said Kennedy had checked in Friday with a brother, but she didn't know which one. She said Kennedy had been in town on a family vacation, and had been going back and forth between the hotel and the nearby winter home of his grandmother, Rose Kennedy.

Mrs. Dampier said the body was found by Elizabeth Barnett, a front desk secretary.

Shetron said police received a first-aid call from the hotel between 11:35 a.m. and 11:40 a.m.

Minnesota to ship spent nuclear fuel to Illinois storage facility

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) -- Northern States Power Co. has announced plans to ship 1,058 spent nuclear fuel assemblies from its nuclear plant at Monticello, Minn., to the General Electric storage facility at Morris, Ill.

Spent fuel denotes fuel that has been used in a reactor to the point where it no longer contributes efficiently to the chain reaction and must be replaced. It sometimes is called irradiated fuel.

"We have two reasons for shipping this fuel," said Dennis Gilberts, NSP senior vice president for power production. "We have assured Minnesota agencies we will move spent fuel from our plants as soon as practical, and we will need additional storage space at Monticello after the early 1990s."

The fuel is uranium oxide in the form of solid ceramic pellets about the size of a thumb. The pellets are stacked in 12-foot-long metal tubes. Sixty-four tubes are fastened together in bundles called fuel assemblies. Each assembly weighs about 680 pounds.

NSP and GE are negotiating an agreement under which GE would store the assemblies in a water-filled pool at Morris until a federal repository for spent fuel, scheduled to open in 1998, is available.

Original plans had called for GE to ship the fuel from the plant for reprocessing, but reprocessing of commercial spent nuclear fuel is no longer available in the United States, Gilberts said.

He said NSP and GE soon will begin negotiations with a prospective carrier for the shipments. GE plans to ship the spent fuel by rail in specially designed shipping casks, Gilberts said.

"We know some people will be concerned about the safety of these shipments," said Gilberts. "We want to assure the public there is less risk associated with spent fuel shipments than with shipments of many other hazardous materials."

He added that NSP and GE officials will meet with state, county and local authorities to explain the shipping program.

This will be the first shipment of nuclear fuel by NSP since the early 1970s, when the company sent fuel from its Pathfinder plant in Sioux Falls, S.D., to facilities in New York, Idaho, Missouri and Pennsylvania.

Snowstorm hits Western states

By the Associated Press

A late April snowstorm stranded travelers and knocked out power in parts of the Rockies with drifts up to 10 feet high Wednesday, while winds gusting to hurricane force whipped up destructive waves on Utah's Great Salt Lake.

Forecasters in Montana said a 4 feet of snow or more were expected in the southern part of the state by Thursday, with powerful winds producing blizzard conditions.

Acid spill fumes cause evacuation

VERNON, Conn. (AP) -- A container of thiourea dioxide in a textile processing plant began leaking early Wednesday and 39 people were treated for exposure to toxic fumes, fire officials said.

The Amerbelle Corp. plant and two homes were evacuated shortly after midnight when the leaking carton was discovered, Fire Chief Donald Maguda said.

Ann Burdick, nursing supervisor at Rockville General Hospital, said one person was admitted in satisfactory condition suffering from exposure to the chemical, whose suffocating fumes are extremely irritating to eyes and lungs. She said 38 others--about 20 Amerbelle workers and 18 firefighters and ambulance personnel--were treated and released.

Dominicans work to quell food riots

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) -- Security forces took a firm grip on this island capital Wednesday after two days of rioting over food price increases. But two more people were killed in sporadic violence, bringing the three-day death toll to 39.

Hundreds of people were injured in the riots and police said an estimated 1,000 arrests were made.

Heavily armed police and troops patrolled the streets Wednesday and military helicopters chuffed over the city.

Racial bias barred in custody cases

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Supreme Court, saying a white woman's child wrongly was taken from her because she married a black man, Wednesday barred courts from bowing to society's racial biases in child custody cases.

"The Constitution cannot control such prejudices but neither can it tolerate them," Chief Justice Warren E. Burger wrote for a unanimous court.

The decision overturned Florida court rulings in the case of Linda Sidoti Palmore, who lost custody of her daughter, Melanie, after she married Clarence Palmore, who is black. Nevertheless, the custody battle is likely to continue in state courts over other issues.

A state judge granted custody of the little girl to her natural, white father, apparently because the judge feared the child would be subjected to society's scorn due to her mother's interracial marriage.

Burger acknowledged that concern for the child's best interests was proper, but he said trying to protect the child from the possibility of racial prejudice can play no role in custody proceedings.

"Private biases may be outside the reach of the law, but the law cannot, directly or indirectly, give them effect," he said.

Conceding that it "would ignore reality" to suggest that racial prejudice does not exist, Burger said, "there is a risk that a child living with a stepparent of a different race may be subject to a variety of pressures and stresses not present if the child were living with parents of the same racial or ethnic origin."

But he said the real question "is whether the reality of private biases and the possible injury they might inflict are permissible considerations for removal of an infant child from the custody of its natural mother."

Transplant fund begun for Marion boy with cancer

A donation table at the Student Center and a special WCIL-FM radio broadcast will help add to thousands of dollars already raised Tuesday to help finance a costly bone-marrow transplant for a young Marion man.

Marion Mayor Robert Butler declared this Bobby Purnell Week Monday, and donations reached $7,000 by Tuesday, according to the Associated Press.

Purnell, 18, was a star swimmer at Marion High School until he became ill in September. In time, doctors discovered he suffers from a form of bone marrow cancer, according to his father, Robert Purnell.

"The transplant is a last resort," the father said by telephone Tuesday from a waiting room at St. Louis' Barnes Hospital. "The chances of him making it through the transplant are one out of four. But that's better than he has now. He's going to die without it."

Sigma Phi, an off campus social fraternity, will collect donations at the SIU-C Student Center 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday and Friday, and Monday through Wednesday next week. Members of the fraternity will also be collecting donations elsewhere on campus.

Doctors say a bone marrow transplant could save the youth, but they need close to $100,000 before they can perform the operation.

To help fund the operation WCIL-FM will have nighttime personality Matt McCann broadcast his show from Rax restaurant in Marion Thursday. The restaurant will donate half of sales revenue that night to the Bobby Purnell transplant fund.

Purnell's father said a transplant could extend his son's life by years, though problems still could develop.

He said his son, who is confined to bed and whose weight has dropped from 154 to about 124 pounds, understands the seriousness of his condition.

"Sure he's scared," the father told the Associated Press, but "he's ready. He knows it's a battle. He says he's going to whip it."

The teen-ager's 12-year-old brother, Shawn, will be the donor if the family raises the $75,000 needed "up front" for the transplant.

Purnell said Shawn was "kind of scared" at first. "But now he knows it's a last resort. He's ready to help big brother."

The chemotherapy the teenager now is undergoing may put his cancer into remission, Purnell said, noting that a transplant would need to be performed as soon as a remission develops.

Purnell, whose son is insured, said the transplant bill might total $150,000. But he said, "Bills aren't important now."

Back home, a trust fund has been set up at People's Bank of Marion to help finance the transplant. And Butler called a news conference Monday to urge people to give what they could.

Donations at the bank had reached $7,000 Tuesday. Teller Juanita Turner said $3,000 came in Monday and the rest came in Tuesday.

"One lady brought in $629" that she had collected, Mrs. Turner said. "And I got a stack of mail this morning. I got a $250 check from a business in Calbert City, Ky."

Notes accompanied some donations. One from a family in Chester, addressed "To Bobby and family," said: "When I read the article... to my family, our two daughters, Melissa and Michelle, quickly decided to dig into their piggy banks. It comes from the heart. We will pray for you."

Butler said two local fast-food restaurants plan to contribute about 50 percent of the proceeds from Thursday's noon hour. Church groups, college students, the ailing youth's classmates and others are helping, too. Donation canisters are all over town.

Butler, who hopes the campaign will raise a significant portion of the $75,000 down payment by the middle of next week, said funds also will be raised through tickets sold to a Sunday concert called "Battle of the Bands."

hand until University officials halted the brush clearing, amid protests from the Graduate and Professional Student Council, and the forestry, botany and plant and soil science departments. The seven-member CNAC was formed to develop a long range plan for reforestation of the woods.

Physical Plant workers had removed about one-third of the honeysuckle before they were stopped. The honeysuckle is already returning in those areas, Mohlenbrock said.

The problem, though not affecting the entire woods, is widespread. "In the middle of the woods, honeysuckle is growing all over the place - just everywhere, even on trees that are 50 to 60 feet in the air," Mohlenbrock said.

Physical Plant Workers will tear the vines from the trees; the herbicide, sprayed by licensed operators, will be used only at ground level.

Mohlenbrock said the Round-up will be sprayed when the weather conditions are favorable and when the wind is calm. He said the woods will be blocked off the day of the spraying to avoid aggravating allergies among students and staff on campus.

The spraying will have little or no effect on animals in the woods, Mohlenbrock said. W.D. Klimstra, professor of zoology, has approved the action.

So at lunch Tuesday, he ate a "very, very greasy" grilled cheese sandwich and vegetable soup and drank a glass of tea. He said he didn't eat the potatoes on his plate, quipping, "I don't want to get too fat."

The Indians began the fast because they said they have not been allowed to practice their faith since a 23-hour-a-day lockdown began at Marion in late October. They want officials to let them have a sacred pipe, drum, feathers, rattles, gourds and sage for religious rites.

"I know a lot of people were very concerned about me, and they didn't want me to hurt myself," Peltier said. "I was going to go until I had a vision or until the religious ban was lifted."

He said his faith teaches that such visions usually occur "once in a lifetime" shortly before death. But he never had a vision, he said, adding that he felt "healthy, real good."

"When you go on fasts like this, you either have a vision or you don't," he said. "If you don't... you try it again and again."

Peltier's last hunger strike began Nov. 3 and lasted for 34 days. He began that fast amid rumors that food was being poisoned with arsenic.

"If I can't practice my religion, I have no useful purpose on earth," he said. "I haven't given up fighting for my religion."

Good work, sheriff

JACKSON COUNTY SHERIFF William Kilkquist has earned applause for his recent efforts in moving quickly to correct a sexual harassment problem among employees in the Sheriff's Office.

Kilkquist's willingness to open up his department to criticism shows he is moving toward his announced goal of restoring public confidence in the Sheriff's Office.

FOLLOWING SHERIFF Don White, who had little love for the press or public inquiry into his handling of the office, Kilkquist's suspension of two deputies for harassing female jail employees, and his willingness to pursue the matter openly before the Jackson County Merit Commission is a welcome change.

The route Kilkquist has taken is the best to restore confidence in the county sheriff, and we thank him for taking it.

Dorm rooms shouldn't be searched...

Most of you have probably forgotten the snow of spring break or are beginning to lose your tans, but some of the residents of Steagall Hall are still trying to settle a problem that arose during the break. It appears that several first floor residents had their refrigerators and closets searched while they were off enjoying a week of partying and relaxation.

In trying to alleviate the problems of "illegal" searches, we went through the Coordinator of Residence Life who, after many meetings, will not do much. She insists that we have no proof (nobody witnessed the staff search the rooms) though through some investigative work we found no one was in the rooms within one hour after the specified check out time, before anyone else had a chance to get into the rooms. It seems logical and obvious that the Steagall Hall building staff involved did indeed search certain, if not all, the rooms. But since we have no proof, and the staff involved will not admit to the search nothing can be done.

All we (the residents involved) would like is for someone to take responsibility for this crime and issue a formal apology. We also would like the University Housing Office to form a policy or procedure that would ensure that illegal searches will not happen again in Steagall Hall or in any other resident hall. Living in dorms is bad enough without people searching through private and personal belongings. Let's put an end to it.—Steven H. Rosengarden, President, Steagall Hall Council

...but should have toilet paper

I am compelled to write about an embarrassing subject: toilet paper. Toilet paper is no longer being distributed to the residents of Neely Hall located in the heart of University Park.

It seems the Neely residents have depleted their toilet paper supply for the year. This circumstance greatly concerns the residents of Neely Hall. Like most students, I do not have the extra dollars or time to hike over to IGA and purchase toilet paper, especially with the semester steadily creeping to a close. It has become an annoying inconvenience. Residents pay $2,224 annually to live on campus. Dorm life is not always the ideal living situation. For the most part, residents and University Housing have attempted to make a crowded living condition comfortable.

We are hoping that Sam Rinella and the Housing Programming Office will reconsider their decision to cut-off our toilet paper supply.

This is an annoyance and a threat to our personal hygiene. We are individuals. Social security numbers do not wipe, but people do.—Chris Neesley, Junior, Fine Arts

Seatbelt insurance aids GM, not drivers

GENERAL MOTORS, coming off a year of record profits of $3.7 billion, now wants to share the wealth with the public. Except you must die first. The world's largest automotive corporation is offering $10,000 to the estate of anyone killed while wearing a seat belt in a new GM car or light truck.

A $10,000 insurance policy lasting one year comes as standard equipment, with no recall notices foreseen at this time. GM is promoting itself as a champion of highway safety: "This innovative action underscores the concern of GM and its dealers for the safety of our customer," says president F. James McDonald, "and also the faith we have in the protection offered by seat belts if occupants will use them." McDonald says it is "a national tragedy" that seat belt usage is only about 15 percent.

GENERAL MOTORS advancing itself as safety conscious is like Roberto D'Aubuisson of El Salvador saying he cares about human rights or Ronald Reagan claiming that he worries about the poor. This is a company with a prolonged record of resisting nearly every safety innovation devised. In the 1920s, it resisted safety glass: "Accidents or no accidents," said the GM president then, "my concern in this problem is a matter of profit and loss."

Colman McCarthy

In the 1950s, the company fought lap belts, in the 1960s shoulder harnesses, in the 1970s air bags and in the early 1980s strong bumpers. On behalf of more than one million owners of the 1980 X-Cars, a $1 billion lawsuit for compensatory and punitive damages has been filed. In the same court on the same vehicle, charges have been brought by the Justice Department that GM knowingly refused to recall the unsafe car and tried to lie about its defects.

GM DENIES THE charges. It calls the X-Car "among the safest on the road." The vehicle has been recalled 11 times, twice for brake defects.

In 1970, a former board chairman summed up GM's corporate philosophy: "Planned obsolescence, in my opinion, is another word for progress." A $10,000 check to a dead person's family is likely seen by GM as another display of progress. Like its bumpers, this insurance ploy has a built-in weakness. Why only $10,000 and not $20,000 or $100,000? Why only a year's worth of coverage? After that you're worth nothing?

These questions involve only the passing publicity stunt that is the essence of the insurance policy. Still unanswered is why General Motors persists in avoiding its moral responsibility to produce, and then promote, the safest car possible.

If GM HAD genuine concern for saving lives, it would be aggressively fixing the problem at the source: the vehicle. Making safe cars is no technological mystery.

The engineering knowledge is present, for example, to install non-lacerative windshields that would reduce the 310,000 facial and eye injuries every year. Doors can be designed so people aren't thrown onto the road in crashes. Cars can be built that don't have the horsepower to go twice the national speed limit.

'GM advancing itself as safety conscious is like Ronald Reagan claiming that he worries about the poor'

And Detroit has known about the dying that goes on daily because a passive restraint like air bags is not on the American market.

IN JUNE 1983, the Supreme Court, in a ruling against the Reagan administration's decision to abandon air bag requirements, said that "for nearly a decade, the automobile industry waged the regulatory equivalent of war against the air bag and lost—the inflatable restraint was proven sufficiently effective."

Two months later, GM still wouldn't give up. Its chairman wrote to Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole urging a delay on any new air bag rule until more study is done. Whether by coincidence or cooperation, Dole did delay. On April 12, nine months after the Supreme Court told the administration to act and the day on which a decision on air bags was promised, the Department of Transportation said three more months of pondering were needed. That, after 15 years of previous study. About 30 people are killed daily because they are unprotected by air bags.

WITH indecisiveness already a part of her record, doubts exist about Dole's future firmness. Nothing to date suggests that she is about to put the rightful share of responsibility for saving lives on the auto industry. DOT, like GM, pushes seat belts. In other words, it is strong for limited safety. It is weak for fuller safety, which is possible, for a start, with air bags and less powerful engines.

Without those, the highways remain deathways—and life, at $10,000 a corpse, remains cheap.

'Swing Shift' a nostalgic look at friendship

By Debra Landis
Staff Writer

"Swing Shift" is a movie about friendship. Not an unusual topic for a movie. But unusual when the friendship is between two women.

The year is 1941. FDR is president. Swing is in. The men have headed to World War II. Women are "manning" American defense factories on the condition that once the men return, the women will return to housework.

Kay and Hazel are best friends and next-door neighbors in a working class neighborhood in Los Angeles.

Goddie Hawn is Kay, whose husband, Jack, has joined the Navy. Christine Lahti is Hazel, sweet, sassy and fun-loving. Together Kay and Hazel dance, drink, gab and help build fighter planes at an aircraft assembly plant during the swing shift, 4 p.m. to midnight.

Kay and Hazel's characters are strong and their emotions real. "There's nothing phony about their friendship. It's a welcome change to see a movie with room for two female leads."

"Swing Shift" is a history lesson of sorts with its story line, clips, music and clothes from the 1940s. It demonstrates the impact women made on the war and helps capture the momentous happenings of the early-to-mid 1940s the nation's shock at the bombing of Pearl Harbor, the glory of victory, the toll war can take on families. Soft lighting helps provide a feeling of nostalgia.

Cary Simon sings the title song "Someone Waits for You." Ed Harris (John Glenn in "The Right Stuff") plays Jack. Fred Ward (Gus Grissom in "The Right Stuff") is a nightclub owner nicknamed Biscuits who has eyes for Hazel.

Kurt Russell is Kay's boss at the aircraft plant and a part-time musician. Romance blooms between Lucky and Kay, and thoughts of Jack are pushed momentarily to the backburner.

"Swing Shift" moves quickly. It's neither a comedy nor a drama. The movie is a blend of both but leans toward the serious. It shows off the talents of its actors and actresses.

Hawn has come a long way since her "Laugh-In" appearances. "Swing Shift" is evidence that she can play a serious role. It's apparent that Russell has made a good transition from his Walt Disney days. He's a talented, versatile actor.

Lahti sings, cracks one-liners, is brash and vulnerable all at the same time. She's convincing. Harris and Ward's roles were smaller but they filled them with as much emotion as if they were leading roles. With its look at friendship between two women and a female workforce, "Swing Shift" has a feminist overtone. There are several factory scenes, some of which are confrontations between male and female employees or discussions between the women and their male supervisors. Perhaps more should have been done with those male-female relationships. Scriptwriter Rob Merton and director Jonathan Demme could have had some fun developing those lines without making another "9 to 5."

One wonders, for example, whether at least some women in the '40s fought to keep their jobs after the war ended or what the difference in pay was between female and male employees.

But all in all, "Swing Shift" has focus, timing and good acting. Some might say the movie is too nostalgic. But it's the nostalgia and the look at the relationship between two friends in the '40s that makes the movie and its walk back in time enjoyable.

Women's Center short of staff, but still a shelter for abused

By Belinda Edmondson
Staff Writer

The atmosphere was noisy but friendly. The harried receptionist bounced a baby on her knee while she answered telephone calls. Children were everywhere, which was not unusual. The Women's Center—as always—was short of volunteers that day.

According to Caroline Zee, social services coordinator at the center, staffers often find themselves doing double-time in the five-bedroom, house-come-shelter because of lack of volunteers. Though the center employs a paid staff and student interns to combat the problem, said Zee, they are never enough to service the 27 women and children who pass through the doors of the Women's Center each month, seeking shelter from abusive husbands and fathers.

Male volunteers are especially needed to play with the children.

"We want to show the kids that men can play without hitting them," explained Zee. Many of the children at the center are familiar with physical violence. In one case, two children at the center were beaten by their father after they witnessed him chasing their mother with a chainsaw, she said.

People are quick to denounce abusive fathers and husbands, Zee said, but they should remember that abusive relationships are often based on love.

"These men are not thugs who leap out of the bushes, these are loved ones," she said. Husbands often beat their wives and children out of feelings of insecurity and a sense of social custom, which elevates the authority of the husband in the marriage and teaches men that it is acceptable to be violent, Zee said. However, some couples use physical violence as an alternative to argument or discussion, as a way of solving problems, she said.

The most common reason that abused women put up with being beaten is that they have a low concept of themselves, Zee said.

"If a woman feels she isn't worth anything, then she thinks it's all right to be beaten because any attention is better than none at all," Zee explained. "Women who are relatively assertive—who have goals and ideals for themselves—would probably leave a beating situation."

But Zee said there is no typical victim. Supposedly independent women—wives of wealthy lawyers and doctors—have been beaten, she said. The only distinct emerging pattern in abuse cases is that the abused wife often married and had children at an early age, she said.

In addition to the shelter program, the center provides legal information, pregnancy testing services and assistance for rape victims.

Group protests killing of deer to thin crop

Deer surge embroils town in debate

IPSWICH, Mass. (AP) — On the sweeping lawn of an old estate, two deer graze like cows on yellowed grass. By the beach, the brush at the edge of the dunes has been nibbled bare. In the woods, a thin doe stands up lazily as intruders approach.

Wildlife biologists say it is a sylvan scene gone sour, a place where the balance of nature has been upset by an overabundance of whitetail deer.

But members of an animal protection group, Friends of Animals, say the problem has been blown out of proportion and that nature, left undisturbed, will set things right.

The debate concerns an estimated 165 deer at the 1,400-acre Crane Memorial Reservation, located on the seashore about 25 miles north of Boston. Last fall, reservation trustees and local officials proposed a special hunt to thin the herd by 75.

The hunt was canceled after protesters threatened to stand between the hunters and their quarry.

Since then, 17 deer — 16 of them fawns between 9 and 18 months old — have been found dead. Autopsies on four of the fawns showed the animals died of starvation, and evidence of malnutrition was present in the deer that were not dissected.

Charles Sedgwick, chief of the wildlife clinic at Tufts University's School of Veterinary Medicine in Grafton, said the autopsied fawns weighed less than two-thirds of normal, showed abnormal wear to their teeth, had enlarged stress glands and had used up all reserves of fat.

"They were in pretty severe straits," he said. "I've been a veterinarian for 27 years and I haven't seen anything this bad for a long time."

Priscilla Feral of Norwalk, Conn., a leader of the Friends of Animals New England chapter, said Jeath among fawns isn't unusual, and that state biologists are preying on the ignorance of the public to promote their goal of allowing hunting on the oceanside preserve.

"This starvation ruse is nothing more than a pandering to the hearstrings of the bleeding-heart public," she said. "Those fawns would have died regardless of whether hunters had slaughtered and wounded half the herd."

But James McDonough, a game biologist with the Massachusetts Department of Fisheries and Wildlife, disagreed.

"I don't know where they got that," he said. "We know there is a very high mortality rate among the immature fawns, but usually it occurs in the first two or three weeks of life. This is very unusual."

Whitetail deer, easily recognized when they flee by the flash of white fur on their backsides, have been on the increase in the United States since the turn of the century and now number at least 13 million, said William Hesselton, a senior staff specialist with U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Massachusetts.

The population explosion is in part the result of a very high reproductive rate combined with declining numbers of natural predators.

"If we had the rate of return in investment that deer have in reproduction we would all be millionaires," said Aaron Moen, a professor of wildlife ecology at Cornell University who is widely regarded as an expert on whitetail deer.

Regulated hunting seasons have kept their numbers in check in most states, but wildlife officials say overpopulation has been a recurrent problem in places like Crane where hunting is not permitted or there is little natural predation.

In several states and on federally controlled lands, sharpshooters and special public hunts have been used to cut down herds, Hesselton said.

In several western states including Oregon and Colorado, officials have taken up public collections to feed deer and other wildlife threatened with starvation during a particularly harsh winter.

Fearing that the deer population of Angel Island off Berkeley, Calif., would die of starvation, officials in 1981 transported 203 of the animals to the Myacamas Mountains. Nearly three years later, however, researchers found that only 85 percent of the herd had survived the new habitat.

In Florida, heavy rains and flooding two years ago forced state game officials to sanction a deer hunt in one section of the Everglades. The animals there were starving because high water had covered feeding areas. Undernourished deer were tiring, sometimes drowning, and were more vulnerable to infection.

Hunters killed more than 600 of the animals in July 1982. Opponents of the hunt rescued 18 deer, but most of them later died.

Moen has been hired by Trustees of Reservations, a group that owns the Crane Reservation, to determine how many deer the preserve can support and consider alternatives to controlling their numbers. The results of the study are due in October. Moen has been asked to consider alternatives including feeding, fencing off the property, birth control and capture and removal.

Ms. Feral said there aren't too many deer at the preserve, and argued that the best alternative is to do nothing.

But McDonough said many factors beside nature are at work at the Crane Reservation.

"People do not understand population dynamics of a wild population," he said. "All these problems are man-made and man has to take care of it."

Solar flare might trigger northern lights

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) - The strongest solar flare in six years may trigger "northern lights" across much of North America on Thursday night, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said Wednesday.

Gary Heckman, manager of NOAA's Space Environment Services Center, said a flare Tuesday night was the strongest since at least June 1978.

Because of the flare's position on the sun, he said, there is no concern about a proton bombardment, which can cause polar communication blackouts and intensive radiation hazard in space.

But Heckman said there is a good possibility geomagnetic activity caused by the flare could interfere with high-frequency radio communications.

Officials said there is a 60 percent chance from St. Louis, and a 90 percent chance from Chicago or Boston.

Solar flares are classified partly by the amount of X-radiation they emit. A major, X-class flare releases 10 times more X-radiation than a moderate, M-class flare, and 100 times more than a common, C-class flare.

The scale used by NOAA to gauge solar flare strength goes only to X-10, and Tuesday's flare was estimated at X-13, Heckman said.

Experts set traps for gypsy moths

CHAMPAIGN (AP) - The traps have been set--16,000 around Illinois--as entomologists prepare to monitor the gypsy moth, an insect that can defoliate a tree as completely as fire.

Aggressive spraying in the state the past two years is credited with reducing the population of the gypsy moth, believed to arrive in egg form on vehicles and furniture from states with major infestations.

Stan Smith of the Illinois Department of Agriculture said 2,753 male moths were trapped in the state in 1981. After a stepped-up spraying program, the number dropped to 614 in 1982 and 232 last year.

"Halting the spread of gypsy moths in Illinois is a success story, no doubt about it," said University of Illinois entomologist Roscoe Randell. "And most of the credit goes to the city leaders who had enough courage to use the spraying program in the face of some pretty stiff opposition."

City officials selected a particular spray that will kill the pests, but is not harmful to people and pets, and that decision ended some of the complaints about spraying, said

Smith. "This year, spraying programs are planned on only three acres apiece in Mundelein in Lake County and Aurora in Kane County," said Smith.

By comparison, he said 1,400 acres were sprayed in 1983 and 2,200 in 1982.

Trapping will be done in most Illinois counties this year to locate any new outbreaks. The cardboard traps--safe around children and pets--contain a chemical that female gypsy moths use to attract males.

In the northeastern United States, there have been reports that gypsy moths defoliated woodlands as completely as a forest fire, and that the volume of gypsy moths in the caterpillar stage was high enough to stop trains by making the rails too slick for movement.

The gypsy moths spread to a new area primarily through eggs that are attached to things like lawn furniture, automobiles and trailers in highly infested areas, entomologists say.

The eggs hatch early in the spring, and caterpillars feed for about seven weeks on a wide variety of hardwoods and evergreens. Randell said most trees are susceptible to attack. The adult moths appear about mid-July.

The Illinois Department of Agriculture said people who move into the state from a heavily infested area should contact the agency so experts can inspect for the gypsy moth eggs.

Worst U.S. cities list doesn't play in Peoria—or Rockford

CHICAGO (AP) — A survey ranking three Illinois cities among the 25 worst places to live in the United States did not play well in Rockford, Kankakee or Peoria, where Mayor Richard Carver said he list-maker "flat out doesn't know what he's talking about." Carver and officials from other low-rated Illinois communities were critical of the survey by Robert M. Pierce, which ranks 277 cities across the nation.

Pierce, a professor at the State University of New York in Cortland—a community of less than 25,000 in upstate New York that was not rated—weighed a variety of factors in his study, including economy, climate, crime, housing, education, transportation and the arts.

Rockford ranked eighth from the bottom of the list, Peoria was 22nd worst and Kankakee was rated the 23rd worst place to live.

The study, released Tuesday, finds the living best in Greensboro, N.C., and the worst in Fresno, Calif.

"This fellow flat out doesn't know what he's talking about," said Carver.

The Peoria mayor said he's familiar with the 1981 Rand-McNally publication titled "Places Rated Almanac," on which Pierce based his survey, and called it "highly subjective."

He said the new rankings do not take into consideration Peoria's new developments such as the civic-convention-athletic-and-theater complex downtown.

"Peoria's changed a lot in the last four years," Carver said.

Rockford Mayor John Mc-

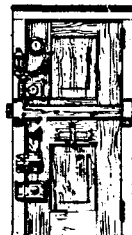

Namara said, lists such as Pierce's "don't mean a whole hell of a lot" and are generally "pretty superficial."

McNamara said residents of the state's second-largest city are the best judges of what it's like to live in Rockford.

"All I ever hear from people is that it is marvelous to live here," he said.

Tom Palzer, city planner for Kankakee, said, "It's always heartening to read of yourself in a major newspaper, especially when the author is writing for audiences in New York and California."

Chicagoans, still smarting over the recent loss of its "Second City" status to Los Angeles, can take heart from Pierce's rankings. He concluded that Chicago was the 104th best American city to live in.

Cycling Club to shift members into racing, recreation groups

By Peggy Cochran
Student Writer

The SIU-C Cycling Club is preparing to split into two groups. The club's Shawnee Wheelers and Racing Team decided to diversify with each concentrating on different goals and activities, according to Steve Charlett, publicity chairman for the Shawnee Wheelers.

The Shawnee Wheelers will promote bicycle recreation and touring around the Southern Illinois area, Charlett said.

The Racing Team will continue to be competition-oriented, according to Curtis Martell, president of the Racing Team.

The Shawnee Wheelers hope to be accepted by USO by the end of this semester, Charlett said. The next goal is to become affiliated with the League of American Wheelmen by the end of fall 1984, he said. The only requirement is that members be registered students. No dues are paid, Charlett said.

The Shawnee Wheelers have a free bicycle ride open to anyone, Charlett said, starting in front of Shryock Auditorium each Sunday. The ride is about 20-30 miles or two to three hours long. The Shawnee Wheelers is beginning to grow and has about 10 members, Charlett said.

The club sponsored its first metric century in October, Charlett said. A metric century is a one-day 65-mile bicycle hike, he said. The club hopes to make it an annual event, he said.

Several overnight rides are being planned for next semester, Charlett said. The rides will cover Southern Illinois and be as long as 60 miles, he said.

Student elected to office in state group

Tracy Stenbeck, president of the SIU-C College Republicans, was elected vice president of the Illinois State College Republicans at a convention held in Wheaton.

Stenbeck will assist Scott Baker of Wheaton College, who was elected president, in promoting a "Victory Plan '84."

The plan entails registering 10,000 students statewide for the 1984 presidential election, Stenbeck said.

At the convention, attended by about 60 students, SIU-C College Republicans were honored for having the largest club in a state university with enrollment over 5,000.

Survey suggests aid for bike safety

By Marjorie A. Colcott
Student Writer

The potential for serious bicycle accidents around campus exists, but there is no immediate cause for alarm, according to a bicycle safety survey conducted by students in a geography class.

The students observed bicycle traffic for 20 to 45 minutes at five on-campus and six off-campus locations chosen for known or suspected congestion levels and their importance as pathways to, from and through campus.

Locations in the survey included the west end of the overpass, the corner of East Grand Avenue and Washington Street, the crosswalk between the Neckers and Technology buildings and the Cannon Circle.

Of the 2,019 bicycles observed, 7 percent were weaving, a condition which could cause conflicts between pedestrians and bicyclists.

The survey also noted that only 37 percent of the cyclists observed obeyed stop signs and only 18 percent used hand signals when turning.

About 9 percent of all cyclists were involved in some type of conflict, either with motor vehicles, pedestrians or other cyclists, the observers reported.

According to the survey, conflicts with motor vehicles accounted for 81 of the 174 conflicts noted and usually resulted from a failure to obey stop signs and use hand signals when turning.

Sixty-three of the conflicts involved pedestrians and 30 were with other bicycles, a problem that could be correlated with the number of bicycles observed weaving.

The survey results were sent to Robert Harris, director of SIU-C Security, with four recommendations for improving bicycle safety.

Harris forwarded the survey to Marilyn Hogan, campus parking manager, who said that most of the survey recommendations have already been considered.

The surveyors suggested that bicycle paths be designated on all sidewalks within the campus, with enforced fines for non-compliance, and that a bicycle lane be created on East Grand Avenue to accommodate students who use it as a pathway from Lewis Park to the campus.

According to Hogan, bicycle lanes have already been designated on the most congested sidewalks and there is also a bicycle lane along the sidewalk on East Grand Avenue.

Another suggestion was to station a campus patrolman at various intersections to make sure that bicycle riders obey signs and use hand signals when turning, which University Security already does periodically, according to Hogan.

"They write tickets continuously for not stopping at stop signs," Hogan said. "But it's kind of hard to catch them."

The survey team also recommended that cyclists be required to walk their bikes through congested intersections, particularly the crosswalk between the Neckers and Technology buildings.

Hogan said that area of the campus is being considered by the Parking Division, but keeping cyclists off their bikes would mean keeping a campus patrolman at the crosswalk constantly, which may not be feasible.

Cyclists are supposed to walk their bicycles in the area between Faner Hall and the Student Center, according to campus parking and traffic rules, though the paint on the sidewalks designating it as a walking area has not been put down because there haven't been five consecutive dry days with the temperature over 70 degrees, Hoga said.

The bicycle safety survey was done as a project for a geography class titled "Urban Planning Problems," said David Christensen, a professor in the Geography Department at SIU-C and adviser for the survey project.

Bald eagle hatched by artificial insemination

CLEVELAND (AP) — Martha, a 19-year-old bald eagle that was artificially inseminated because she thinks of herself as a human, has hatched one chick and has a second egg ready to hatch, a spokeswoman for the Cleveland Museum of Natural History said Wednesday.

The 5-inch-long bird is only the second bald eagle to be hatched through artificial insemination, said Lynne Woodman, the museum's supervisor of communications. The first was hatched in 1981 in Indiana, she said.

The chick hatched about 10:15 p.m. Tuesday at the museum. Its sex is unknown.

"Its eyes are open now," she said. "It spent its first two hours being real wiggly and fluffing up. One of the first things it has to do is dry out and fluff its down out. Now it's lying quietly. Hatching is exhausting work for chicks."

The 19-year-old Martha, considered to be in her prime, produced the eggs after she was artificially inseminated by her keeper, Carl Lutzmann, whom the bird regards as her mate, Ms. Woodman said.

"She was hand-raised by human beings. She does not think of herself as an eagle, but as one of us, as a human. She has chosen a human mate, so we had to use artificial insemination," Ms. Woodman said. The egg was fertilized with semen from Argus, an 11-year-old male eagle at the museum, she said.

Argus went to the museum in 1976 after being injured by gunshot. The bird was injured again at the museum by vandals in 1977 and recovered swiftly, but remains incapable of sustained flight.

Martha went to the museum in 1972 after a wing injury. She remains at the museum because she identifies with humans, officials said.

Black Affairs Council supports new black student organization

By Nina Thompson
 Student Writer

The Black Affairs Council has endorsed the newly-formed campus organization the Illinois Black Student Association.

IBSA was recognized as a resident student organization April 17 by the Undergraduate Student Organization.

According to the president of the organization, David Posley, a student in administration of justice, IBSA will attempt to develop a "network of communication" between black students throughout Illinois.

"We would like to address the needs of all the black students in Illinois," Posley said.

He said the organization will attempt to develop black student leaders, assist high school students in preparation for college and educate blacks about issues and events on a national level that will affect them.

Direece Rolack, newly elected coordinator of BAC, said that IBSA should be seen as a "separate entity" from BAC.

"BAC deals with local issues facing black students while IBSA will deal with issues facing blacks on a state level," Rolack said.

He said the two organizations will work together to keep informed about what is going on.

According to Posley, members of the new organization have lobbied in Springfield, passing out literature on South Africa and collecting signatures on petitions to support passage of Illinois House Bill 0569 which would require Illinois state pension funds to be divested from South Africa.

Members of the organization will go to Springfield Wednesday to lobby for passage of two bills concerning higher education.

Golfers to finish season with weekend tourneys

By George Pappas
Staff Writer

A dismal season will end for the SIU-C men's golf team when it competes in two tournaments this weekend.

The Salukis, who finished a disappointing fifth in the Missouri Valley Conference tournament last weekend, will compete in the Drake Relays Thursday and Friday, and then in the Evansville-Gus Doerner Intercollegiate Golf Tournament on Sunday and Monday.

This weekend will also mark the last tournament Mary Beth McGirr coaches the Salukis in. She has been coaching the women's team for the last five years and the men's team for two years. The SIU-C men's athletics office announced Darren Vaughn will take over as men's coach, effective July 1. Vaughn will make the trip Thursday and Friday to see what the team looks like.

The Drake Relays will be played on two different golf courses, the first and third set of 18 holes of the 54-hole affair will be played on Wakonda, considered the hardest course in Iowa. The second 18 will be played on Echo Valley. Twenty-four teams will compete in this tournament with most of the 24 teams being Division II teams.

"Considering a lot of the schools are smaller ones," McGirr said. "I think it would be pretty respectable if we finished in the top five. We should finish in the top 10."

McGirr said she will play John Schaefer, Jay Sala, Scott Briggs, J.D. Tomlinson and Bobby Pavelonis at the Drake Relays.

For the Evansville match, there will be 12 teams playing 36 holes in the tourney. McGirr said she expects to finish in the top three. But she said the team has been playing so inconsistent, that finishing third could be a guess, just as she said the Salukis should have finished second or third in the MVC when in turn they finished fifth.

"We haven't been getting as much help from our seniors that I expected," McGirr said. "This has led us to be inconsistent."

Nonetheless, McGirr said she will use Schaefer, Sala, Briggs, Tom Jones and either Pavelonis or Tomlinson (depending on who does better at Drake) for the meet in Evansville, Indiana.

Netters set for Gateway tourney

By Jim Lexa
Sports Editor

The SIU-C women's tennis team will try to defend its Gateway Conference championship when play begins Thursday morning at Wichita State.

The Salukis are one of three favorites to win the tournament, along with Drake and Wichita State. This year, SIU-C is 10-0 in GCAC action, including 5-4 wins over Drake and Wichita State in early April.

With their unbeaten mark in conference play this year, coupled with a 9-0 mark last year, the Salukis have not been beaten in the Gateway since the conference was formed last year. SIU-C Coach Judy Auld thinks the streak will continue.

"It's all speculation on my part, but if you look at everybody's record, I think we can win it," Auld said. "I definitely think we're a team to contend with."

Drake, touted highly at the beginning of the spring, is 1-6. The Bulldogs, however, have four seniors in their lineup.

"That makes them tough," said Susan Wolcott, Wichita State's assistant sports information.

Wichita State appears to be SIU-C's top challenger for the Gateway crown. The Shockers are 18-13, but only 11-12 this spring. They are led by Sandy Sadler and Jill Braendle, the team's No. 1 and 2 singles players.

Sadler is 31-10, which includes a school-record 15-match winning streak that was stopped three weeks ago. Braendle is 20-18. Together, the two are 30-4 at No. 1 doubles, including a current 20-match winning streak, also a school record.

Freshmen Gloria Orue and Beth Dale hold down the No. 3 and 4 singles, but their records are not as impressive as the top two or bottom two players. Orue is 6-14 and Dale is 18-18.

At No. 5 and 6 singles, Sally Webber is 22-12 and Eiren Swart is 20-9. Swart and Orue team up at No. 3 doubles and own an 8-4 record. Dale and Webber are 8-9 at No. 2.

Auld, though, can't worry too much about the other teams for she has a problem of her own. No. 6 singles player Amanda

Allen has been bothered by a back injury, and Auld said the injury may restrict Allen when she plays.

"It's a matter of how much she can put up with the injury," Auld said. "It may bother her because she might only be able to push off with one foot."

However, if Allen is seeded as Auld thinks she will be, then she may play just one singles match on Thursday instead of two. Allen is 11-9 this spring, including nine wins in her last 11 matches, which includes a default as one of her two losses.

No. 2 Heidi Eastman and No. 5 Stacy Sherman are over their illnesses, Auld said. For Sherman, it's just a matter of her regaining her endurance.

"At Edwardsville, she seemed to be running out of gas," Auld said. "She was tired and she took a lot of time between points."

No. 1 Alessandra Molinari, 6-16 this spring, was mired in a deep slump but appears to be out of it. She has won four of her last five matches.

"If she is out of her slump, then this is the time for her to come out strong," Auld said.

6-7 juco forward added to Salukis' recruit list

The SIU-C men's basketball team added Eugene Lewis, a 6-7, 225-pound forward from Tulsa, to its recruiting crop, it was announced Wednesday.

Lewis, a transfer from Western Texas College, averaged 12 points, six rebounds and shot 51 percent from the field in his sophomore season this year, helping Western Texas to a fifth-place finish in the National Junior College Championships.

"Eugene is a power forward who takes the ball to the hole real well," said Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle. "He shoots the ball pretty well from up to 15 feet. He's kind of a small power forward."

Lewis joins Tony Snooks, a 6-8, 195-pound forward-center as SIU-C's second junior college transfer from this year's recruiting efforts. Steve Middleton, a 6-2 high school senior from Brooklyn, N.Y., signed a letter of intent last fall.

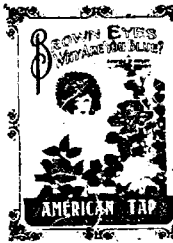

Van Winkle will continue to recruit one or two more players, but said he'd "be happy to go with what we have."

Van Winkle said the addition of Snooks and Lewis shores up SIU-C's "size deficiency," and will hopefully make up for the loss of 6-9 Harry Hunter and 6-6 Fie Walker.

Hunter and Walker were the only seniors on last season's 15-13 team.

Soccer tournament marred by violence

Has the International Soccer Championship achieved its ideals? Has the championship been successful in any respect? Is it worth staging every year? These are some of the questions that were asked when the ISC '84 wound up on Sunday. The championship produced mixed results. Moments of joy and sadness, despair and hope and triumph and defeat for the nine teams that were entered in the two-division, round-robin league.

The championship was enveloped by acts of barbarism and vandalism. Disputes in the field of play were too many. These disputes, especially in the last matches of the semifinal playoffs, sometimes resulted in violence among the players. Once, a referee lost his temper and physically attacked a player. Against this background, it could be logically argued that the championship has yet to achieve its cardinal objective.

A suggestion has been advanced for complete reorganization of the structure of the championship, as a way to reduce acts of violence from the competitions. The reorganization will mandate that each team be composed of players from the various countries taking part in the tournament. This will reduce the spirit of nationalism and foster broader cooperation and international relations.

THE ISC was established about four years ago to achieve some noble objectives. The most important one is that it is aimed at fostering the spirit of friendship and fraternity among the participants who come from different parts of the world, including America.

By bringing people who are worlds apart together in a field of healthy, athletic competition. The ISC aims to build long-lasting friendships among nations and nationalities.

NOT MANY of these noble ideals have been achieved in the ISC.

The Africans, who gloriously finished third last season, ingloriously lost a $40 registration fee for not turning up at their last match. And Pars, which was not a pre-game favorite, picked up two points without even a kick of the ball and happily elbowed its way through to the semifinal playoffs at the expense of highly favored, but disappointed United Nations.

SOME OF the disputes were due to occasional indecision and conflicting calls by the officials. The use of two referees to officiate the soccer games was one of the flaws of the ISC.

FIFA rule stipulates that a game be officiated by one referee whose calls are but peremptory. He is assisted by two non-whistle-blowing, but flag-bearing linesmen who are on the sidelines.

THE ORGANIZERS of the ISC should consider this in upcoming tournaments. Among other things it will rest authority and control of the game on one official and thereby minimize the chances of disputes among officials and players.

The only achievement of the ISC is that it has brought soccer to SIU-C. The last championship clearly demonstrated that soccer, a European game, has not only come to SIU-C as a visitor, it has come to stay. This was shown by the enthusiasm of the crowds that were at McAndrew Stadium at each game.

If the interest in the sport continues to grow at the present rate, soccer might become one of the major sports activities on the campus in the foreseeable future, and this championship might provide the launching pad to an international soccer club.

Salukis gain split with Panthers

By Daryl Van Schouwen

Eastern Illinois' Mike Rooney ripped a bases-loaded double with two out in the seventh inning in the opener of SIU-C's non-conference double-header Wednesday at Abe Martin Field, breaking a 1-1 tie and lifting the Panthers to a 4-1 win over the Salukis.

The Salukis gained a split in the second game with a 6-4 win, bringing their record to 13-18.

The Panthers, 14-9, got a well-pitched game from Mick Freed, who went the distance in the opener. Freed made one costly mistake, when he hung a slider to Robert Jones in the fifth inning. Jones jumped on it and drove it high over the left-center field wall for his sixth home run of the year.

The circuit clout gave starter Todd Neibel, who had set down the first 13 Panthers he faced, a 1-1 tie. Neibel and the Salukis took that score into the seventh, when the freshman right-hander pitched.

"I was tired," Neibel said. "That was the most I've thrown in a long time."

In most of his appearances up until Wednesday, Neibel hadn't pitched well enough to stick around long. He had surrendered 10 runs in five and two-thirds innings of work. But Wednesday he looked good, striking out six and giving up just two hits in the losing cause.

"I thought Todd Neibel did an excellent job," said Saluki Coach Itchy Jones.

With the score 1-1, Jones yanked Neibel in the seventh, in favor of left-hander Dennis Dreyer, after Neibel threw ball one to the left-handed hitting Bernard Holland. Holland, whose line single to right in the fifth scored EIU's first run, was batting in the seventh with runners on first and second.

Holland rapped a Dreyer serve hard to third baseman Terry Jones, but Jones couldn't come up it, loading the bases. Jones was charged with an error on the play.

Dreyer quickly exited in favor of right-hander Paul Saikia, who faced pinch-hitter Rooney. Rooney then drilled the decisive double to left-center, giving EIU the two-run lead. EIU added a fourth run when Brian Jones singled home Rooney before Freed set down SIU-C in order in the seventh.

The Salukis worked on getting even quickly in the nightcap. They knocked EIU starter Dave Goodhue out in the first inning with a four-run outburst, thanks in part to two errors by shortstop Brian Jones. Steve Finley's double and Terry Jones' two-run single were the key blows.

Saluki starter Lee Meyer's five walks earned him the hook in the third inning. After Meyer allowed two runs in the third, Saikia came in with a runner on second and struck out Tim Toricelli and Kevin Smith.

Saikia pitched midway through the sixth. He allowed two runs, but departed with a 6-4 lead. Finley came in from center field to pick up his first save.

Former gymnast now a top trackster

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

Sally Zack, the Salukis' top distance runner this season, said she liked gymnastics better than track in high school.

"I remember the high school athletic director asked me if I was going to this small school from the East Coast because they were going to offer me a track scholarship," Zack recalled. "I said, 'No way, I prefer gymnastics.'"

But it is unlikely you'll get the same response out of Zack now.

Zack, from Concord, N.H., came to SIU-C with intentions of making the gymnastics team as a walk-on, but it didn't work out the way she planned. She made the team her freshman year but she didn't perform in any meets.

Zack said she thought about transferring to a different school, but she liked SIU-C and the Southern Illinois area so she decided to stay. After not competing in sports her sophomore year, Zack decided to go out for the cross country team last fall and it proved to be a wise decision.

Despite not running long distance events since her senior year in high school, Zack performed like a veteran. She developed into one of the team's top distance runners before suffering a stress fracture in her right foot midway through the season. She was sidelined for three weeks and came back for the final meet of the season, the NCAA District V Championships. But she was rusty from the layoff and finished only 65th overall in the 5,000-meter run.

Zack said she was disappointed because the injury made her miss the Illinois intercollegiate and the Gateway Conference meets.

"I knew the conference meet was at home and that would be a big benefit," she said. "I cried at the end of the race because Lisa (Reimund) did so well and I wanted to be out there so bad."

Reimund finished fifth in the Gateway. Ironically, the roles have been reversed this spring for the Salukis' top two distance runners. Reimund suffered a stress fracture to her left leg and has been sidelined the entire track season. Zack has bounced back from her injury and has given the Salukis steady performances in the 1,500-meters, the 3,000, the 5,000, and the 10,000, her specialty.

Zack's best time in the 10,000 is 36:55 and that ranks her second on SIU-C all time list. She is ranked third on the school list in the 5,000 (17:43.7), and has solid times in the 3,000 (10:30.77) and the 1,500 (4:52.03).

Her goal is to qualify for the NCAA outdoor championships in the 10,000, which requires a time of 34:40.

Coach Don DeNoo thinks Zack has shown a great deal of improvement since the cross country season and she has the potential to qualify for the NCAA outdoor championships.

"She is certainly capable of running in the 35s or even in the 34s in the 10,000 meters, but she has to learn to get out there and press and hurt herself," he said. "She really hasn't learned that yet."

Zack thinks DeNoo is a very positive coach.

"He is always trying to motivate you and psyche you up," she said. "It's not bad, but some of the time he might be a little bit too optimistic in my case. But I never think about that until after the race, I shoot for the time he gives me and I hope that I can do it."

DeNoo has signed four highly regarded distance runners for next season but Zack said that doesn't bother her. "I think it will really help the team," she said. "In cross country we have all improved tremendously but we need somebody else who is better than us. I need somebody to be in front of me so I could work to beat them. Some of the incoming distance runners might have good times but I feel I'm going to be right up there with them, and be better than they are. I'm not just going to let them slide in here, I'm too competitive for that."

Zack said she has to be careful of what she eats because that also affects her running ability. She said the day before a meet she'll usually eat a lot of lasagna or spaghetti for carbohydrates and energy for the race.

Zack is an elementary education major and she said she wants to be a teacher. She comes from a family that has four teachers.

"I love kids," she said. "When I was in gymnastics, the minute I could do something, I was teaching it to somebody else. I think that is how I got into teaching."

In a way, Zack is a teacher on the track team. She is setting the pace for the rest of the distance runners.
