Halloween? New Orleans would say no cans

By Tricia Yocum
Staff Writer

The magnitude of the Halloween celebration in Carbondale is probably comparable to that of a New Orleans' New Year's Eve party at Jax Brewery rather than Mardi Gras, says Sgt. Wayne Labat, head of Mardi Gras police operations.

The brewery, which stopped producing Jax beer, was later converted into a tourist attraction and liquor establishment.

Keith Tuxhorn suggested at Monday's City Council meeting that New Orleans be contacted to see how street parties there are controlled.

Labat said that New Orleans has a year-round ordinance prohibiting consumption of beverages from open bottles or metal containers on the city streets, which police officers have no problems enforcing.

Because establishments are responsible for patrons leaving with open bottles or cans, liquor is often sold in paper or plastic containers during festivals like the New Year's Eve party.

Lt. Felix Loicano said the police force would have a great many more problems during the parties without the ordinance, particularly because bottles and cans may be very dangerous - especially when people have been drinking.

The ordinance was enacted because many people were getting hurt from falling on glass or metal or because the containers were used as weapons.

At certain times during the year, such as New Year's Eve, there are "wall-to-wall people" on Bourbon Street, Loicano said. Before the ordinance, bottles and cans were a "hindrance to walking."

Both officers said the ordinance has been very effective and that people are very cooperative with complying.

Perhaps because of their "Mardi Gras training," people know what type of behavior to exhibit to avoid run-ins with the police, Labat said.

The education process is very important, he said. City residents and guests are reminded of the ordinance through television, radio and newspaper advertisements and by owners of establishments in the party areas.

Gus Bode

Gus says the city could move Halloween to New Orleans — they'd know how to handle it down there.

Housing director says alcohol rule will be enforced

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

As usual, the open consumption of alcohol will not be tolerated in most University housing areas this weekend.

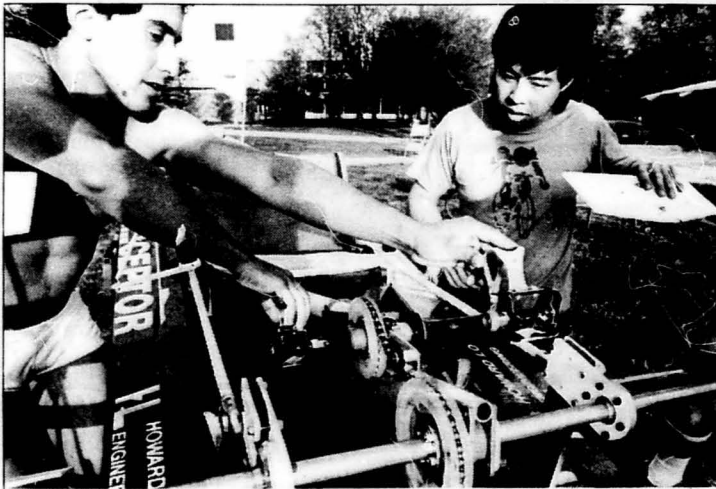

Samuel Rinella, director of University Housing, said that although campus police may be lenient toward off-age drinkers at the Old Main Mall during Springfest or on the east side of Campus Lake during the Carboard Boat Regatta, University policy will be strictly adhered to in housing areas.

Under University policy, students who are over 21 and living in Allen I, Warren Hall or the professional residence halls on Greek Row may consume alcohol in their rooms. Also, students of legal drinking age who live in the Greek houses on Greek Row are allowed to drink in the chapter rooms.

Rinella said that no one may consume alcohol in the housing areas outside of residence halls. Alcohol will be confiscated from students caught drinking in these areas and they will be written up in a University disciplinary report, he said.

Subsequent disciplinary action could include a letter of reprimand and, depending on the student's overall disciplinary record, probation or suspension from the University.

Rinella said he especially wants students who live on Thompson Point and anyone who plans to watch the boat races from there to be aware that the consumption of alcohol will under no circumstances be tolerated in that part of campus.

Arabs linked to bombing in Britain

LONDON (UPI) — A bomb that ripped through a downtown building housing American Airlines, American Express and British Airways early Thursday was probably Arab-made, police sources said.

The blast jolted the building on Oxford Street in London's popular West End shopping district shortly before dawn, causing a fire and damaging nearby structures, several hours after officials in Libya predicted a terrorist strike in Europe. No one was seriously injured in the blast.

A security source told United Press International the device was "believed to be an Arab bomb." The source did not say whether an individual or a terrorist group might be involved, and he refused to give further details on the device.

Police were discounting claims that the bomb was planted by either militant Scottish nationalists or the Angry Brigade, an anarchist group that flourished during the 1970s, the source said. Those groups claimed responsibility for the attack in calls to news agencies.

"I don't want to create an atmosphere of panic... but the public must again be vigilant," said Cmdr. George Churchill-Coleman, head of Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist squad. He dismissed as "speculation" that Libya was behind the attack.

A Scotland Yard spokeswoman added, "We've actually had separate claims throughout the day. There have been several."

She refused to provide the names of the alleged groups or how much credence was being

New employees to pay Medicare

By David Sheets
Staff Writer

State and local government employees in Illinois hired after March 31 — probably including student workers at the University — will have to give a portion of their wages to help bolster the federal Medicare program.

The new employees "will have to contribute 1.45 percent of their wages to Medicare," and the state or local employer has to match that amount for each of its employees, said William Capie, University personnel services director. A federal mandate to help Medicare is part of the 1986 Omnibus Budget Reconciliation measure signed into law April 7 by President Reagan.

The Medicare tax will not effect state and local employees hired before March 31.

The exact means by which the law will be implemented has not yet been determined, according to a spokeswoman for U.S. Senator Paul Simon in Washington, D.C.

"Some terminology in the law has not yet been defined," the spokeswoman said in a telephone interview Thursday.

Joan Berry, senior Medicare budget analyst for the Health Care Financing Administration, the agency responsible for overseeing Medicare, said in a telephone interview from her Baltimore office that "the law is too new and is still being examined."

Capie said he thinks the law will include mandatory deductions from student workers and graduate assistants.

Because the University is a state agency, "we have to assume that any new person paid by the University is covered by the act. That would include all student workers, all temporary help appointments, all term appointments and all new civil service and faculty hires, as well as graduate students."

Berry said that it is very

Stevenson vows 3rd-party bid if lawsuit fails

By William Walker
Staff Writer

Gubernatorial candidate Adlai Stevenson III is "reasonably confident" he'll win the right to run as an independent, but he is planning a third-party bid just in case, Bob Benjamin, Stevenson's press secretary, said Thursday.

Stevenson filed a lawsuit against the Elections Board Wednesday, asking the U.S. District Court of Appeals to strike down a state law which requires independent candidates to file nominating petitions in December prior to the general election.

Benjamin said Stevenson wants the filing deadline brought in line with the deadline for third-party candidates, which is in August prior to the election.

As is, the law is "unfair," Benjamin said, because it violates the freedom of association provision of the First Amendment and the due process clause of the 14th Amendment.

Regardless of the lawsuit's outcome, Stevenson is certain not to run as a Democrat, having on Wednesday resigned as the Democratic nominee to avoid being on the same ticket, as the two disciples of right-wing extremist Lyndon LaRouche.

Had Stevenson remained on the Democratic ticket, state law would have required him to run with Mark Fairchild, the LaRouche candidate who upset party-backed candidate Sen. George Sangmeister for lieutenant governor in last month's primary.

Janice Hart, another LaRouche supporter, won the Democratic nomination for secretary of state. Party officials attribute the upset victories to a name recognition problem.

Bomb defused near library in spurt of Beirut violence

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Police explosives experts defused a time bomb outside a British library in west Beirut Thursday and seven Franchmen fled the Moslem sector of the city amid mounting fears of new terrorist attacks on Westerners. Later, Christian and Moslem forces traded mortar and rocket fire across the Green Line dividing the capital, killing one woman and wounding six people. Police sources said the fighting began shortly after dusk and continued for two hours before subsiding into sporadic machine-gun and rocket skirmishes.

Botha vows reforms for oppressed majority

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — President Pieter Botha, stressing his commitment to political and social reforms, said Thursday political rights must be extended to all South Africans, including the nation's black majority. "We will have to give political rights to all who do not have them in order that leaders can be identified to join us in negotiation, because we cannot negotiate with masses," Botha said.

Senate halts effort to restore revenue sharing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate beat back an effort Thursday to put billions back into the federal revenue sharing program, a move Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici said could have undermined the entire effort to cut the budget. Sens. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., and John Heinz, R-Pa., led the attempt to fully restore money for revenue sharing next fiscal year, at a cost of $4.6 billion, and pay for it with taxes.

Shultz says Iran, Syria not current targets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz said Thursday the United States has no plans for military action against Iran or Syria over terrorism, but the bombing of Libya proves America "will use its military power." State Department officials said Syria and Iran have been involved in terrorist activities, but unlike Libya, their focus at present is not on attacking Americans.

Crime on upswing after four-year decrease

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reported crime in the United States increased 4 percent in 1985, led by an 8 percent increase in the South, following three consecutive years of decreases, the FBI's Uniform Crime Report showed Thursday. Figures collected for the survey also show crime increased in all categories and in all regions of the country except the Midwest. New York City recorded almost as many murders as Detroit and Los Angeles combined, though the number — 1,384 — is less than in 1984.

108 names added to Vietnam vet memorial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Engravers began adding 108 more names to the black granite of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Thursday, laying to rest another controversy over the Southeast Asian war that claimed more than 58,000 American lives. The 108 new names include those of 95 servicemen killed on combat missions outside the formally recognized war zone. The other 13 are men who died of wounds after leaving the war zone.

WIU dorm victim of 2nd fire in 3 days; arson suspected

MACOMB (UPI) — For the second time in three days, 800 Western Illinois University students were forced to evacuate their high-rise dormitory early Thursday due to fires that officials believe are the work of an arsonist. WIU campus police discovered and put out one fire in a davenport in a 15th-floor lounge in Higgins Hall at 1:30 a.m., and campus officials and Macomb firefighters then extinguished a couch and chair that were set afire in an 18th-floor lounge, said WIU spokesman John Maguire.

Police officer faces further drug charges

EFFINGHAM (UPI) — A suspended police sergeant facing federal drug charges with two members of his family was bound over for trial Thursday on state charges of possessing marijuana and cocaine. Sgt. Randall Whitley, 44, was ordered held for trial at a preliminary hearing in Effingham County Circuit Court. Whitley was suspended without pay by the City Council after state Division of Criminal Investigation and Secret Service agents said they found less than 10 grams of cocaine and between 10 and 30 grams of marijuana in his home Feb. 27.

Skepticism greets repeal of South African pass laws

By Hola Cowser
and Liss Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

The South African government's announcement that it will repeal its pass laws was greeted with skepticism by local civil rights and anti-apartheid activists.

However, one white South African living in Carbondale said he feels the announcement shows a sincere commitment to change on the part of the white minority government.

President P. W. Botha took out full-page advertisements Thursday to declare "a new era of freedom" as a result of the abolition of the pass laws which have been in effect for 73 years.

But black South African native Dennis Makhudu said the announcement hardly means that. Makhudu expressed skepticism about whether the repeal would in fact come to be.

Makhudu, graduate student in educational leadership, also said that the problem in South Africa is not the pass laws, which restrict where blacks can live and work.

"The problem is the denial of our human rights and our rights of representation," he said. "The racism is still there."

The government's decision to abolish the laws indicate that things have been wrong for a long time, Makhudu said.

Manuel Schonhorn, English professor and member of the campus chapter of Amnesty International warned that reaction to the announcement should not be "too optimistic."

The chapter has been participating in a two-month international campaign to end the pass laws.

Luke Tripp, assistant professor in the School of Social Work, called the repeal "cosmetic." Tripp said the white South African government has rearranged its priorities because of the number of pass law violators in jail.

The government instead wants to arrest civilian revolters who "throw rocks," Tripp said. South African jails held an estimated 245 prisoners who were affected by the repeal of the pass laws.

"Supposedly all South Africans will have a common identification card, but here again, it's camouflage," Tripp said. He said the identification for whites will be like driver's licenses, while for blacks the identification will function as regulations like pass laws.

Murray McGibbon, a white South African, said he does not share the skepticism the announcement has been met with. The pass law repeal is a major change that was long overdue, McGibbon said, adding that the laws were "absolutely disgraceful."

"I think the government definitely is trying to make concessions," he said. "I think that the government is committed to change."

Under the reforms announced Wednesday, the government said blacks no longer would have to carry an identity document known as a "pass" and would be free to settle anywhere they could find accommodation in areas zoned for black residence.

Good news for fest goers: sunny weather in forecast

Revelers can expect sunshine and warmth to enhance to the day full of campus events planned for Saturday, forecasts indicate.

In addition to the Cardboard Boat Regatta which starts at noon and the concerts and games set for Old Main Mall which begin at 11 a.m., several other activities are slated.

The Senior Olympics, which start Friday, will continue through Saturday morning with track and field, bowling, tennis and bicycling competition.

The second annual Arena Yard Sale will begin at 8 a.m. in the Arena parking lot. Money raised from the sale, sponsored by the Civil Service Education Assistance Fund, is used to raise money for scholarships.

Carbondale Lions Club members will be serving pancakes at an "All You Can Eat" breakfast from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. north of McAndrew Stadium in the Free Forum Area.

Saluki football fans can catch a sneak peek at the 1986 Saluki squad when Coach Rey Dor's players bang heads in the annual Maroon and White intrasquad game. The game starts at 10 a.m. at McAndrew Stadium. Admission is $1.

More than 100 runners are expected to compete in the Robert Spackman Memorial Triathlon. The event includes a quarter-mile swim, a five-mile bike ride and a two-mile run. Starting time is 8 a.m. at Campus Lake Beach.

"The Cotton Patch Gospel," a Celebrity Series performance, is set for 8 p.m. Friday on the Shryock Auditorium stage.

The play "Rashomon" is slated for 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are $6 for the Friday and Saturday performances and $5 for the Sunday performance.

Service cut leaves city without bus line

By Jim McBride
Staff Writer

All regular passenger bus service to and from Carbondale has been discontinued, according to a representative of the city's only regular passenger bus service.

E. A. Collier, president of Gulf Transport Bus Co., said Thursday that "all Gulf Transport regular route service will be discontinued" after a 10 a.m. run to St. Louis Thursday. The company had operated daily bus routes through Carbondale to St. Louis and Springfield from its Mobile, Ala., headquarters for over 40 years, he said.

Collier said the company is going out of business because of a "sizeable" loss of income due to a lack of passengers. The company recently obtained permission from the state of Illinois to abandon the routes, he said.

Most passengers can obtain ticket refunds where they purchased the tickets, he said.

He said the company had relied heavily on income from student fares and added that most students no longer needed to use the company's transportation service because they now have cars.

Before students were able to have cars on campus, the company transported large numbers of students like "cattle" to St. Louis, Springfield and other cities, Collier said.

Dave Coracy, vice president of B & A Travel Service Limited in Carbondale, said persons traveling to St. Louis may now do so only via air travel or automobile.

Coracy said there are now about 11 daily flights each way between St. Louis's Lambert Field and Williamson County Airport in Marion.

Britt Airways offers St. Louis travelers 3 fares: a discount one-way fare of $29, a standard fare of $55 and a 30-day advance purchase round trip fare of $50, he said.

Ozark-Midwestern Airlines offers three different air fares to St. Louis: a $55 one-way discount fare, an $85 standard one-way fare and a $98 30-day advanced purchase round trip fare, Coracy said.

Let zoning reflect areas' populations

STUDENT HOUSING ACCESSIBILITY in Carbondale has been unfairly restricted.

This is nothing new to anyone who has followed the saga of R1, or family, zoning during City Council meetings over the last nine months. The council over that time period has done its best to assure Carbondale townspeople that the student blight will not creep into peaceful family neighborhoods.

This attitude has become somewhat a joke to residents of some R1 neighborhoods that are predominately rental by nature and where most of the inhabitants are SIU-C students.

Most of these people are living illegally in these neighborhoods. Those neighborhoods should logically be rezoned R2 or R3, since that is in effect what they are now.

And why are these neighborhoods inhabited by renters, despite city laws that forbid this from happening? First and foremost, it is the desire of local property owners, out to make a buck.

IT IS FAR MORE profitable to rent a house for three times what it is worth to three or four students than it is to live in it yourself. This profit motive has turned some Carbondale family residential neighborhoods into student rental areas.

Community Development Director Don Monty has repeatedly referred to the erosion of family neighborhoods in the city as being one of the primary concerns of city planners. Hence the current tough talk about enforcement of R1 zoning.

But one thing Monty seems to have overlooked is that families will never return to these neighborhoods if landlords continue to rent out their properties to students. And this will continue to occur, since it is a very profitable venture.

IT IS DOUBTFUL if families will ever return to areas such as Rigdon Street and east of Oakland Avenue. Families simply cannot economically compete with groups of student renters paying from $125 to $175 apiece monthly.

The city claims that it cannot afford to send code enforcement people door-to-door to enforce R1 zoning. But it could afford to send people around neighborhoods to evaluate the extent of student occupancy. If the neighborhood is found to be predominantly inhabited by renters, it should be rezoned to reflect that use.

The City Council should get realistic and re-evaluate its zoning map. As it is, it does not reflect the current nature of the city, and it brazenly restricts students to certain overpopulated areas of the city.

The city should face facts. Landlords are not going to change their rental practices, and the city will do nothing to make them change. And students will continue to live in R1 neighborhoods, while the city continues its leisurely expansion west.

Letters

DE practices questioned

I would like to submit the following letter, including the caption associated with it:

"SHODDY JOURNALISM AT SIU"

For anyone who listened to Professor Cohen's talk April 17, the article in the April 22 DE entitled "Atom bomb scientist eyes future through molecular science study" was about 50 percent accurate.

The author's interest in Professor Cohen's part in the Manhattan Project is understandable, but should have been published as a separate article, as this facet of Professor Cohen's career had nothing to do with his visit to SIU.

What makes me wonder about the quality of the journalism students and especially the faculty adviser involved is the headline, which, as I understand, is not written by the author of the article but by some anonymous member of the DE staff. I have requested in the cover letter to this letter that my own headline be used, as apparently the same people anonymously entitle the letters to the editor.

The title of the article was deceptive and inflammatory; the headline on a continued page simply read, "BOMB." By this example, the DE staff experience is better preparation for the National Enquirer than the New York Times. — William E. Brower Jr., associate professor, College of Engineering and Technology.

Showing film was wrong

We are writing in response to the April 22 DE editorial, regarding the University's decision to allow the showing of "Hail Mary." We have read an expose of this cinematographic work, and we are both displeased and disappointed that this University agreed to allow this abominable depiction of the Mother of God to be shown on this campus. You talk about freedom; yet you disrespectfully wave your "freedom banner" in the face of the Most Holy God. Shame on you!

The rationale that "freedom to express ideas in the pursuit of truth is vital to the students' academic and personal growth" sounds noble indeed; however, leaders in such effectual positions, as are those who make these kinds of decisions, have an obligation to display reasonable judgment, which does not mean to condone such a blatant display of disrespect toward Christianity and the Holy Family.

It is because we care that we must sometimes say "enough is enough" and take a hard and fast stand for what we know is right. For too long, our leaders have taken a bow in the name of freedom; it is time to stand up to the fact that "providing a forum for such entertainment" is totally irresponsible and further substantiates the pernicious direction of our society, which deftly hides under the cloak of "freedom of expression."

Respect for others begins with self-respect; what self-respecting person would take the blessings of this life, then turn and slap God as a thank you? — Barbara M. Ricci, senior, Health Care Management, and Diana Davies, junior, Elementary Education.

Don't change program

Students in college are expected to pick a major that is suited for their own interests and abilities. And once the student has chosen the field of study and declares his or her major, the college that supports that field of study is expected to provide the best advisement and preparation for the students as possible.

The University Studies program at SIU is a program that until now has met all of these requirements and more. But as of May 15, 1986, this program will be relocated to pre-major advisement. Marie Kilker is director for the University Studies Program, and since 1979 she has helped many students to find their goals and guide them through college. She has spent a great deal of time with each individual student to help them in their career preparation. I can imagine the type of treatment I shall receive after May 15 when I need help. I expect to get the individual attention of a Burger King drive-up window. "Step aside, Steparide..." — Walter Blackledge Jr., senior, University Studies.

Address the issues, please!

Mr. Aji's and Mr. Sherman's letters (DE, April 23) that were presented as a rebuttal to Mr. Don Smith's April 15 letter did not deal with the issues that were brought to light. They did succeed in calling Mr. Smith a lot of nasty names.

Mr. Aji declared that the letter was illogical and misleading, but failed to address these mistakes because of his health. He was healthy enough to write his letter, though.

Mr. Sherman also did the same in his letter, instead of producing a logical argument against Mr. Smith's letter. He was too busy calling names and laughing.

I ask both of you whether this is the intelligent way to disagree with a person. You insult your own intelligence and the intelligence of the students attending this university. In the future, gentlemen, let's all keep in mind that addressing the argument makes the best use of our time. — Ronald Wright, junior, Accounting.

Senior citizens and budget cuts

We feel that the people of Jackson County need to be aware of those budget cuts that will affect services to senior citizens of this county. A petition is now being circulated to have a referendum placed on the ballot in the November election. The referendum would ask voters to approve a .025 percent tax levy on all taxable property in Jackson County.

In 1986 there were 2,450 people over 60 in Jackson County. Many of these people are in need of social services or will be in the future. The Elder-Wise Adult Day Care Center, which serves Carbondale and the surrounding area, is a daytime service to the elderly which is an alternative to staying home by themselves. This year, Elder-Wise will be losing $102,000 due to budget cuts. Without this funding, this program will be severely limited or terminated.

Please support this issue by signing the referendum petition being circulated by the Council on the Problems of the Aged, Inc. — Paula Bowling and five others, Group 8, Journalism 341 Public Relations.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a Journalism School faculty member.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by mail or directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247 Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten, double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters of less than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters submitted by mail should include the author's address and telephone number. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Sheryl King leads Miss High Ann, the proud mother of a foal, into the stables.

Serendipity Kid gets a workout from her owner, Sheryl King. King, an equine reproduction scientist, runs the horse program.

Miss High Ann nuzzles her foal at the Horse Center. The foal, as yet unnamed, may be sold by the Center in its attempts to operate as a self-sufficient student-run program.

Horse program on the move

A little over three years ago, the horse program had few horses, no instructors and an uncertain future.

Today the program has an equine reproduction scientist at its head, plenty of students, and lots of horses.

The horse program, established in 1963, is located in the Horse Center at the University Farms. It is operated by the Animal Industries Department in the School of Agriculture.

Suffering declining enrollment and the retirement of the director, the program was felled in 1982 because of budget constraints.

Amid a storm of protest by area horse enthusiasts, the University sold 18 of the program's 24 horses to the highest bidders. College of Agriculture Dean Gilbert H. Kroening said the program was only "temporarily shut down," and that the six remaining horses would "provide a good nucleus if we begin the horse program again."

THAT NUCLEUS receive a breath of life in October 1983. Due to the reallocation of a position within the Animal Industries Department, the School of Agriculture was able to hire equine reproduction specialist Sheryl S. King. She is the first female to be hired by the School of Agriculture as a continuing faculty member.

King planned to make the program self-sufficient. Students were to breed, train and market horses with the help of the horse advisory council, a group serving as a liaison between the University and the Illinois horse industry.

King's plans were aided by the arrival at SIU of six pure-bred Arabian horses in January 1984. The Illinois Department of Agriculture had impounded the horses for negligence and mistreatment from a farmer in Chester, Ill. The horses, malnourished and ridden with parasites, were nursed back to health by King and her students. They planned to use the horses for teaching and research, as well as for breeding high-quality thoroughbred, standardbred and quarter horses.

STANDARD-BRED HORSES, said herdsman Ron Carr, who manages the horse center, are trotters and pacers. They compete in races like the DuQuoin trotting derby. Thoroughbreds are used as hunters and jumpers, and compete in races like the Kentucky Derby, Carr said.

The program has come a long way, King said. When she first arrived at SIU, there were only five horses and one class. Today there are seven classes running the gamut from introductory to very advanced.

The program also has 37 adult horses donated from Illinois and other states. King and Ron Carr teach all the equine science classes, and Carr teaches a continuing education class about horses as well. King has managed to build a laboratory and a breeding program at the Horse Center.

But the main thing she's pleased with is the students.

"Even with all of the disappointments and frustrations of having no money to work with, the enthusiasm of the students keeps me going," King said. "We are slowly making progress."

KING ENCOURAGES anyone to visit the horse center. "The biggest problem I've had is convincing people that they're welcome to come out and pet the horses and see what's going on," she said.

Students in the horse program have a different learning experience than the usual classroom-and-textbook curricula. There are lectures and exams just as in any other major, but how many other departments have students who take turns staying up all night awaiting the birth of a foal? Or how about a lab class where students try to collect sperm from a stallion weighing over 1000 pounds?

There are between 20-25 students in the program. The students, who take part in all aspects of the horses' care, train, groom, ride, clean up and give the horses shots. "It's a very participatory curriculum," King said.

One equine science major, Gary Gow, has what King says is the most sought-after of the four student-work positions available at the Horse Center. Gow lives in a small apartment in the main barn itself.

"It was mainly a chance to get some experience and see more of what goes on out here," Gow said.

QUINCY (UPI) — A Roman Catholic priest originally from Hillsboro has been sentenced to six years in prison for child sexual abuse.

Adams County State's Attorney Tom Leeper said Wednesday that a 225-page report prepared for the sentencing said that Rev. Walter Weerts had an sexually involved with boys for at least 18 years and there is an indication that church officials knew about the problem. "There is a clear indication (Weerts) was removed from office of more p rishes because of relationships with boys — whatever that means," Leeper said.

Leeper had asked that the maximum sentence of seven years in prison be given to Weerts.

Weerts had asked to be placed on probation and be sent to the Villa Louis Martin in Jemez Springs, N.M., a center devoted to the treatment of Catholic priests and brothers who are sexually attracted to children.

Under a plea agreement, Weerts, 50, pleaded guilty last month to three counts of criminal sexual abuse. He allegedly performed oral sex on three boys ranging in age from 13 to 16.

Technical fields lack minorities, speaker says

By Darci Allen
Staff Writer

"Most American minorities are severely underrepresented in engineering and the sciences at a time when technology is king and technological development is clearly the new frontier," Robert Eubanks said Thursday.

Eubanks, professor of engineering and applied and theoretical mechanics at the University of Illinois, spoke in the Student Center Ballroom D at the conference. "Recruiting and Retaining Minority Graduate and Professional Students."

THE CONFERENCE was attended by doctoral students from all over the state who are

Dorm residents complaints lead to visitor's arrest

SIU-C police arrested an Arkansas man in Mae Smith Hall Wednesday afternoon, after receiving complaints about the man from seven women on three different floors, according to a police report.

William W. Jones, 22, was arrested on charges of disorderly conduct and criminal trespassing after engaging in "different incidents on different floors varying from being verbally abusive, suggesting sexual acts and urinating in a trash can in the 17th floor laundry room," the report said.

Jones had been ordered out of the building at 2:15 Wednesday morning, and told not to return, the report said. He was arrested Wednesday afternoon when he returned.

Jones was unable to make bail, and was taken to Jackson County Jail, according to police.

involved in the Illinois Minority Graduate Student Incentive Program.

In the past, members of minorities were urged not to go into the sciences, Eubanks said. When this discouragement didn't work, they were refused employment in the engineering and science fields, he added.

Eubanks said that even though he was highly-qualified for a job as an engineer when he graduated from college in 1950, he was not hired as an engineer until 1954.

"AFTER I was hired by Bulova Watch Co., I never had trouble getting or holding another engineering job," he said. "Once I proved I could make money for one company, then other companies were interested in hiring me."

America would have been ineffective in the technological explosion of the second half of the 20th century had it not been for the engineers and scientists trained under the first GI Bill, Eubanks said.

"American industry is motivated by success," he said, "and success breeds success."

Eubanks said to predict the success of a child, look at the success of the parents. Parents' influence is seen in a person's ability to acquire jobs, promotions and status, he added.

SPECIFIC PROGRAMS as the IMGSP are not only good, but they are essential to our country, he said.

Many white people look for and worry about high qualifications and abilities in minority people, but don't look for and worry about the same qualifications in white people, Eubanks said.

There are not enough qualified minority teachers in the engineering field to pass along their knowledge, he said, since most minority scientists and engineers prefer to work in the industry.

Eubanks told the students they are needed for instruction, scientific development and as role models for future minority students.

"You are doing the state and the nation a favor" by being involved in IMGSP, "and we are truly appreciative," he said.

likely new student workers and graduate assistants will be included "because the Medicare tax is based on a percentage of the payroll, which would include part-time employees."

Berry said the tax will apply to new state and local employees not already taking a paycheck deduction for Social Security.

"Chances are, if you have Social Security you're already paying into Medicare," she said. "But now, even if you're not under Social Security, you'll have to pay."

Capie explained that the University has its own retirement plan through the state of Illinois Employees of SIU-C pay into the State University Retirement System and not into Social Security.

Capie illustrated the 1.45 percent tax by saying that "if an employee gets a $100 paycheck, he will find $1.45 has been deducted for Medicare coverage."

The real problem from the University's standpoint will be finding the matching funds to meet the employee's contribution, Capie said.

"The cost of this tax for next fiscal year could be as much as $300,000 to $400,000 from just the employees. The University has to come up with an additional $300,000 to $400,000 to match that," he said.

"I would suspect the University would go to the Illinois legislature and try to get a supplemental appropriation to cover this unanticipated cost," Capie said. "I wouldn't be the least bit surprised if the state government didn't just say 'Well, we allocated a certain amount of money for salary increases. This tax has to come out of that.'"

He said the University has been operating under the assumption that the legislature will appropriate a 5.5 percent increase in the SIU-C budget for Fiscal Year 1987 salary increases.

"Assuming the legislature does this" and says the tax will come out of the increases, "we may take half a percent out of the salary increase to fund the tax," Capie said.

He said the tax will have little effect on this fiscal year, which ends June 30, "because we're not going to hire that many people between now and the end of the fiscal year."

"But the ironic thing about the tax is that for the next five years the University's matching cost will escalate because everytime we have one employee leave, and hire another employee in place of him or her, there is no contribution in the name of the departing employee," Capie explained.

Simon's spokeswoman said "the HCFA has 90 days to write regulations on how the new Medicare law is to be implemented" from the date the law went into effect, but no clarification on the law's wording is likely to appear before that time.

Vicki Otten, legislative director in Simon's Washington, D.C. office, said that the Omnibus Reconciliation Law was made retroactive to April 1 "because it should have been passed late last year."

"This kind of omnibus bill is passed at the end of each year to tie up loose ends in federal program financing and help bring the federal budget into balance to meet budget targets," she said.

Berry said this law brings state and local employees in line with federal employees.

"Federal employees have had to pay 1.45 percent into Medicare since 1983," she said.

STEVENSON, from Page 1

Following the primary, Stevenson vowed he would not run with the LaRouche candidates, whose tactics include calling former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger a homosexual and insisting that England's Queen Elizabeth is a drug pusher.

Although there have been attempts to remove the LaRouche candidates from the Democratic ballot, they have yet to succeed, forcing Stevenson to submit his resignation to the Board of Elections.

The resignation, which was received by the board and filed Wednesday, marked the first time a regular-party candidate for governor has resigned the position since the agency was created in 1973, according to wire service reports.

Benjamin said that the basis for Stevenson's lawsuit is a 1980 Ohio case, Anderson versus Celebrezzi, in which independent presidential candidate John Anderson successfully had overturned a state law requiring a March filing deadline for independent candidates.

In that case a lower court ruled that the law was unconstitutional, and the decision was eventually upheld in the Supreme Court in 1983, Benjamin said.

Despite the hope for a similar decision here, Stevenson is going ahead with the necessary requirements for filing as a third-party candidate, just in case the lawsuit fails, Benjamin said.

He said Stevenson's lawyers will, however, be asking the court for a speedy decision on the lawsuit, but added that it is understood that the court has to make an important decision that may take some time.

"I'm sure the court is aware of the need for timely action, but the court has to deliberate and we understand that. We're prepared to wait," Benjamin said.

If he does win the lawsuit, Stevenson will run with candidates for lieutenant governor and secretary of state, Benjamin said, although there has been no decision reached on who those candidates will be.

Asked who might be on a possible list of candidates during an audio press conference prior to a fundraiser at SIU-C Sunday, Stevenson declined to comment, saying only that he was pleased with the response he has received.

The 55-year-old Stevenson, who missed Sunday's fundraiser to recuperate from an injury sustained in a fall from a horse, was back in the office this week and will resume a full campaign schedule Sunday, Benjamin said.

He "really missed the event in Carbondale," Benjamin said. But, he added, "He loved the event from a distance."

Although he wasn't sure when the campaign would return to Southern Illinois, Benjamin said Stevenson would be campaigning here a number of times in the months ahead.

put in their claims. "The inquiries are continuing," she said.

A Libyan government spokesman in Tripoli warned Wednesday night that U.S. and Israeli agents were plotting a strike somewhere in Europe "in the next few hours" and that they planned to blame it on the government of Moammar Khadafy.

Libyan Radio briefly reported the London explosion without commenting on who might be responsible.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher allowed U.S. bombers based in Britain to participate in the April 15 U.S. attacks on Tripoli and Benghazi, which the Reagan administration claimed were ordered to retaliate for alleged Libyan involvement in terrorism.

The bomb Wednesday was placed on the sidewalk outside the seven-story Keysign House building. It exploded about 4:45 a.m., hurling shards of plate glass windows into the street and sparking a small fire in the airline offices.

The ground floor of the gray stone building housed the offices of British Airways, American Airlines and a foreign exchange desk of American Express.

No one was in the building at the time and no one was seriously injured, police said.

The force of the explosion also shattered glass in nearby shops, including Selfridge's department store across the street, one of the most popular shopping spots for American tourists.

"If the bomb had gone off after 9 a.m. there would have been an awful lot of people about and injuries to people would have been quite horrendous," police spokesman Philip Powell said.

Firefighter Ado Bloomfield said he saw "thick black smoke billowing out of the British Airways offices" and drifting across the road toward Selfridge's shortly after the explosion.

"The ground floor of the British Airways office was well alight," he said. "A large plate glass window on the Lumley Street side had been shattered and the lounge chairs in the waiting room ... were on fire. Ceiling fittings were hanging down and the whole area was strewn with debris and broken glass."

Police cordoned off the area around the scene of the bomb blast and picked through debris to try to identify the explosive device. They said the bomb apparently was placed inside a garbage can at a side entrance to the building.

Tom Withycombe, sales manager for American Airlines, said he believed the bomb "achieved exactly what it was meant to achieve ... to wreck the premises" without harming anyone.

Security was immediately stepped up at London's Heathrow Airport, where precautions were described as "at an all-time high." Police with submachine guns were stationed throughout the sprawling complex.

Three editors receive journalism awards

Three editors will enter the SIUC School of Journalism's Hall of Fame Friday at the 90th spring meeting of the Southern Illinois Editorial Association at the Carbondale Ramada Inn.

The three editors earn the title of "Master Editor" and win the School of Journalism's "Golden em" awards. The new Hall of Fame members are Edward H. Jenison, editor and publisher of the Paris Beacon-

News; Erwin J. Mahlandt, editor of The Breese Journal; and Jack Vertrees, editor of the Wayne County Press.

Jenison has worked in the newspaper business in Paris for 60 years, serving as editor, associate publisher and publisher. He won the United Press International's Illinois Editor of the Year award in 1982.

Mahlandt has been in the publishing business in Breese for 61 years. He also directed the State Bank of Breese for 50 years and served as bank secretary and Breese postmaster.

Vertrees has been editor of the Wayne County Press for 35 years. He has been president and secretary of the North Egypt Conference Sportswriters Association and was president for a year of the University of Illinois Journalism Alumni Association.

Fixing fences and caring for an occasionally injured horse are just a few of the things Gow said come up unexpectedly.

ORIGINALLY A zoology major, Gow said he first enrolled in a horse class as a filler for his schedule. That was all it took. "I was hooked," he said.

Another student, Carol Sharp, said she saw signs for horse classes and decided to sign up. "The only requirements are that you have to like horses and not be afraid to get dirt under your fingernails," she said.

All of the students have internship opportunities, many within Illinois, King said. The majority of the internships are paid, she said.

In keeping with the original plan to have students breed, train and sell horses for a self-sufficient program, the program is preparing for an August sale of its first batch of foals — four yearlings. They have been entirely student-bred and trained, King said. "There are going to be a few wet eyes around here when they go."

The breeding program is continuing, with two fillies and two colts born this spring, and five more expected by the end of May. The foals are all offspring of the same standardbred stallion, as the program's other stallion, a thoroughbred, is too old for breeding.

Mares gain 100-150 pounds with pregnancy, King said, and have a gestation period of 11 months. King's doctoral research dealt with the pseudo-pregnancy syndrome in mares, a false pregnancy condition that King estimates causes the horse breeding industry $5 million per year.

MARES COME INTO heat every 21 days. About 20 percent of the time, King said, mares will not come into heat at the correct time, although they are not pregnant. The syndrome can last from 60 to 100 days, which King said can cause the loss of half the 150-day breeding season during the spring and summer.

King is researching the cause of pseudo-pregnancy syndrome and its prevention and prediction.

King's dream for the horse program is to see it entirely student-owned and operated. The horse industry, King said, is a real asset to Illinois, which has the fourth largest horse population in the nation. Horse racing, she said, brought Illinois over $1 billion last year.

The horse program, King said, is one of the 10 best in the country. "I'm not going to stop until we're the best."

'Spinal Tap' heavy-metal 'rockumentary' triumph

Theater Review

By Wm. Bryan DeVasher
Entertainment Editor

Rarely in the film industry is a parody film accepted as genuinely humorous or hailed by critics.

But "This Is Spinal Tap," a parody "rockumentary" — or rock documentary — by Rob Reiner about the fictitious British heavy-metal band Spinal Tap is both a comic and critical triumph.

The film will be shown at 11:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the Student Center Auditorium, sponsored by the Student Programming Council. Admission is $2.

THE FILM concentrates on the rise and fall of Spinal Tap — lead singer and guitarist David St. Hubbins, lead guitarist Nigel Tufnel, bassist Derek Smalls, keyboardist Viv Savage and drummer Mick Shrimpton.

The band, according to the film, was part of the original British Invasion — which saw the Beatles, Rolling Stones and Herman's Hermits become American heroes — but turned toward heavy metal in the early '70s in an attempt to cultivate a waning audience.

REINER APPEARS in the film as Marty DeBery, the director of the "rockumentary" and famed director of Purina Dog Chow wagon train commercials. His lens captures all the glories of life on the road with Spinal Tap — stage props that don't work, arguments between the band and their manager, problems with hotels. All of this adds up to the best-ever satirical look into the inner workings of the music industry.

Joining Reiner are Christopher Guest, from "Saturday Night Live," as Nigel Tufnel; Michael McKean, Lenny on "Laverne and Shirley," as David St. Hubbins; and Harry Shearer, also a "Saturday Night Live" alumnus, as Derek Smalls.

THE FOUR wrote the film's script and music, which is suited to each one's own sense of comedy. Mixing music and dialogue together into a montage of comedy and lyricism, the film is a high-octane, fuel-injected parody that threatens to careen out of control and sail head-long into oblivion. But Reiner and crew know when to tighten the reins, keeping the energy pace elevated and never allowing it to spin out of control.

The film is not simply a broad swipe at all the pompous, self-righteous heavy-metal bands that are so popular today, but takes a swing at the entire music industry. It's just that heavy-metal headbangers provide such a convenient target.

THE FILM reaches into the souls of such rockers as Judas Priest, Van Halen, W.A.S.P., Motley Crue, Kiss and Ratt, and brings those bands' inherent egocentrism to the surface for all to see. Then, the cast stretches this to the point of absurdity into a satire that is guaranteed some side-splitting laughter.

The film's music is as humorous as the dialogue. From blues-tinged pop — "Gimmie Some Money," the band's first hit and a dead ringer for the Rolling Stones of 1965 — to derge-like, heavy metal designed to clear rooms in record time — "Heavy Duty Rock n' Roll" — the group presents an acute parody of the evolution of pop music into heavy metal.

WITH ONE foot in fact and the other in complete absurdity, "This Is Spinal Tap" makes a potent statement on the sad shape of the music industry of today, which sees many a mediocre and banal band being given recording contracts.

The film took nearly 10 years for Reiner to complete. Originally a one-shot satire on some long-forgotten summer comedy show, Spinal Tap became the basis for Reiner's filmatic masterpiece. Along the way he enlisted the help of Guest, Shearer and McKean, and together they gathered the cast and crew and began filming in 1980.

REINER FUNDED the film himself after being turned down by every major Hollywood film studio, and the refusal of the cinematic giants was a blessing in disguise. By funding the film himself, Reiner was able to retain complete control and under his guidance the cast was able to manufacture one of the best comedy products in the history of cinema.

In keeping with the "rockumentary" approach, Reiner shot the film on 16mm film stock, not the 35mm film that is used to photograph most movies. Following shooting the film on 16mm it was transferred to 35mm for major theatrical distribution. The result is a film that not only has the feel of a documentary, but also the look of one.

WITH ITS non-stop humor and scathing music, "This Is Spinal Tap" is a film that should be held above the rest as one of the best parodies from Hollywood. Not since "Airplane," the amphetamine-powered satire that combined elements from every Hollywood disaster film into an 88-minute long laugh fest, has a parody struck such a responsive chord in the hearts of viewers.

Those who attend the Van Halen concert Saturday should see "This Is Spinal Tap" following the concert. Then they will realize that it was all a joke.

'Rashomon' intriguing tale of baffling samurai slaying

By Maureen Cavanagh
Staff Writer

What happened long ago on one fateful night in a bamboo forest still perplexes Scotland Yard. Columbo is scratching his head. Even McGruff, the crime dog, doesn't know where to bite.

But in this high-stakes game of "Clue," all have their suspicions, as will an intrigued audience when investigating "Rashomon."

"Rashomon," a mystery play involving the killing of an ancient Japanese samurai warrior and the rape of his wife, opened Thursday in the McLeod Theater in the Communications building. Curtain time is 8 p.m. for Friday and Saturday performances and 2 p.m. on Sunday.

RUSH TICKETS for the two-hour performance may be purchased for $3 (in exact change) by students with valid identification at 7:40 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 1:40 p.m. Sunday at the east entrance to the Communications building. Regular ticket prices are $6 for Friday and Saturday shows and $5 for Sunday. A $50 discount is offered to senior citizens, alumni and groups of 10 or more.

Directed by visiting theater lecturer Theresa Larkin, "Rashomon" re-enacts the warrior's death four times — as seen through the eyes of four witnesses.

The play was adapted by Fay and Michael Kanin from a film by Akira Kurosawa. The film was based on stories by Kyunoske Akutagawa, an avant-garde Japanese writer who lived during the first quarter of the century.

THE AUDIENCE, addressed as judicial members of an emperor's court, first hears testimony by Tajomaru, a bandit of the forest, who figures he might as well attribute himself to the crime because he prides himself on his notoriety and thinks he will be convicted regardless of the truth. Tajomaru is a man who gives a whole new meaning to the word repulsive. He continually boasts about his conquests of women in more than "heroic" terms. His ego rests solely on how many women he may pounce upon in the forest.

Naturally, when the warrior is discovered with a sword through his chest and his wife raped, Tajomaru is an easy target for accusation, and he takes credit. However, Tajomaru concedes, "I killed to live, to eat, to have pleasure. Whenever I capture a woman, I always have to kill her man. This time it's funny. This time I didn't mean to..."

TAJOMARU IS played by Patrick Roux. Roux invests his character with a primitive quality that makes modern-day playboys look like suffragettes.

The second version of the crime comes from the samurai's wife, played by Brigid Corrigan-Faughn. She claims responsibility for committing her husband's murder in a state of panic because he scorned her.

Corrigan-Faughn delivers a solid performance. As the wife, she is consistently distraught throughout all the enactments and never undermines her character's vulnerability as the daughter of a servant and a sort of married concubine with a sullied hex because she was raped.

The third account comes from the dead spirit of the samurai warrior, who speaks his "truth" while exiled into the after-life of a coward. He admits that he stabbed himself because he could not fight Tajomaru to protect his wife.

STEPHEN FLACH is memorable as the spirit. He is dressed in garb that can only be described as a sheath of black crepe paper, but the effect is successful, especially in contrast to his Kabuki makeup. His ghost kneels before the audience and gives his rendition with a swaying motion reminiscent of the melting of the wicked witch of the West.

The last witness to the killing is a woodcutter, played by Michael Hornsby, whose version is the most compelling.

The woodcutter claims that he ran across the dead man and then took his ornate sword to sell so he could feed his six children. He says he was unmotivated to murder.

THROUGHOUT THE play, relief is provided by three narrators, who stand for reality and evaluate each of the possibilities. They sit in front of the Rashomon gate under an archway while it is raining and clarify each story.

The commoner among them, played by Rohan Quince, is by far the best performer of the production. He enunciates and spaces his words, speaking them loudly with a roughish accent. Quince's character is brilliantly juxtaposed with that of an idealistic Buddhist priest. The commoner, a wigmaker, represents a man who subscribes to a school of thought concerned with maximizing pleasure and minimizing pain. After all, he argues, who is to say what is right in the world. He tells the woodcutter, "Some people like trees, but you cut them down." He is analytical and interested in meeting his own ends while "dangling" on earth as a self-pronounced scum.

DIFFERENT PEOPLE telling the same story in different ways to suit their own convenience seems to be his interpretation. "They see what they want to see and say what they want to hear," he thinks.

The wigmaker laughs at the rigidly austere monk, played by David Flavin, because the monk is so naive.

The play is not only appealing because it is exotic, but because it combines a quasi-serious look at divergent individuals with a look at the profound and elusive nature of truth.

None of the elementary recapitalizations of the killing are labeled as "truth," and the flashbacks are credible.

School fights for slug as mascot

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — Students at the Santa Cruz campus of the University of California are voting on a proposal to make their school nickname The Banana Slugs.

The last time the move was afoot, Chancellor Robert Sinsheimer ignored overwhelming student sentiment for the slimy creature and decreed the Sea Lions as the school mascot.

The students have been slow to drop the idea, however, popularizing the cheers of "Go, Slugs," and "Slime 'em Slugs" at basketball games. A new campus referendum to coronate the slug as the school mascot began this week.

"The banana slug is sort of a symbol of Santa Cruz's uniqueness, rather than something more conventional like The Fighting Tigers," student government leader Eric Satzmann said.

The fat yellow slugs are common in the cool, wet coastal forests of the Santa Cruz Mountains.

The chancellor was steadfast in his opposition to the university's adoption of the lowly gastropod.

"As a symbol of our athletic ambitions," he pleaded in an April 10 letter to the school newspaper, "consider that the banana slug is: spineless (ipso facto), yellow (cowardly), sluggish (slow of foot) and slimy (enough said)."

From chuckles to guffaws, laughter is good medicine

By Elizabeth Cochran
Staff Writer

Humor is making its way from comedy houses, parties and other entertaining events to the health world.

Robert Russell, health education professor, says that "a sense of humor is a good part of health." He became interested in the idea when he was asked to present a workshop about it at a conference in LaCrosse, Wisconsir, last fall. He predicts that humor will be included in health textbooks within the next few years.

Norman Cousins, editor for the Saturday Review, was diagnosed as being terminally ill seven or eight years ago, Russell said. Instead of accepting the news, he took responsibility for his health into his own hands and added large doses of laughter and vitamin C to his life. "An hour of laughter a day changed his body for the better," Russell said. His doctor went along with the idea and he recovered.

Since Cousins' experience, several others have explored the idea of humor and laughter's effect on health.

Russell says that humans have a tremendous capacity for healing themselves and humor can be a part of that. He sees humor, laughter and a "sense of fun" not only as a method for curing an existing illness, but as a part of remaining healthy. "Clearly people respond positively to light things," he said.

Laughter relieves stress, exercises muscles and should be part of several aspects of life.

Raymond Moody, who wrote "Life After Life," a book about the experiences of people who have been pronounced dead and then lived, recently wrote a book titled "Laugh After Laugh" about humor and health.

The book explores humor's part in the healing process. One section discusses the effects clowns have in the recovery of hospital patients. The section says that every clown Moody has talked to has a story of a miraculous change in a patient, Russell said.

Russell also relates humor to the spiritual side of life, which he says includes religion for some people, but not for all. During the workshop Russell presented in Wisconsin, a Lutheran minister told Russell that he plans to include "a funny story in every sermon."

It's "a sense of seeing yourself as more than just a chunk of protoplasm," Russell said. He believes that God has a sense of humor because people enjoy humor, so God must. People should "appreciate what comes naturally," he said.

He feels that more "humanness" should be incorporated into emergency situations. When people are in an emergency room, they undergo several foreign procedures and often this results in panic, which can make conditions worse. Being human may "mean more than all the medical things," he said.

Duchess of Windsor dies in Paris at 89

LONDON (UPI) — The Duchess of Windsor, the American divorcee who moved the King of England to surrender his throne for "the woman I love" in the century's greatest royal love story, died a bedridden recluse in Paris Thursday. She was 89.

Buckingham Palace announced the death of the duchess "with deep regret." A nurse for the duchess' physician, Dr. Jean Thin, said she died of bronchial pneumonia with her long-time butler at her side. Aides said her condition had worsened in recent days.

The duchess' death came almost 50 years after King Edward VIII of England abdicated with an announcement broadcast to his stunned nation that he could not give up Wallis Warfield Simpson, a twice divorced Baltimore socialite.

"I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and to discharge my duty as king as I would wish to do without the help and support of the woman I love," he said.

The duchess will be buried Tuesday next to her husband in the royal burial ground at Frogmore near Windsor Castle.

The royal family will observe official mourning for a brief period. There will be no public observance for the woman who was a central figure in Britain's greatest constitutional crisis — whether the king, "defender of the faith," could marry a divorced woman.

Send those articles, editor says

By Patricia Edwards
Staff Writer

Ric Cox, senior staff editor of Reader's Digest, Thursday afternoon in a speech titled "You Can Make a Difference in 100 Million Lives" urged students to submit manuscripts for publication.

"The great thing about journalism is that you don't need a license to publish," said Cox, 41, an SIU-C journalism graduate.

By testing out the field through experience in writing, students get a sense of what they would or would not like to do after graduation, he said.

About 25 percent of all the articles in Reader's Digest are written by free-lance writers. Cox said although much of the work is written by people who have worked with Reader's Digest before, there are shortages in some areas.

Few stories are submitted to the magazine's "Campus Comedy" section, he said. Anecdotes to be submitted must be truthful accounts of humorous happenings that deal with college life, he said, adding that Reader's Digest pays $300 for each published article in that section.

Cox derived the title of his speech from the fact that the worldwide readership of the digest is about 100 million, he said. Writers can have an impact all over the world on individuals lives just by making them laugh, Cox said.

"Heroes for Today" is a series of articles in Reader's Digest that recognizes that every city, town and rural area has heroes. There is a need these days for heroes, Cox said, because people so often only hear about the villains. The magazine is always looking for stories of this nature, he said.

A sense of humor and an ability to write are the requirements for selling a story, Cox said.

Cox said the three main goals of the Reader's Digest are readership, understanding and impact, in that order. The magazine is committed to function over design, he said, noting that the cover lists contents rather than having a design.

In a question and answer session, a member of the audience asked why the Reader's Digest was conservative-oriented. Cox said that the magazine reflected the values and traditions of the current American population.

Challenger dead to be flown to air base

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The remains of the seven Challenger astronauts will be flown to Dover Air Force Base, Del., Tuesday, for final treatment in accordance with family wishes, NASA announced Thursday.

The astronauts will leave the Kennedy Space Center about 9:30 a.m. EST Tuesday aboard a C-141 aircraft provided by the Military Airlift Command. Arrival in Delaware is expected around noon.

"Although there will be an official party, military honor guard and escorts from the astronaut office, no formal ceremony is planned," said a

NASA statement.

The Dover Air Force Base mortuary normally handles only Defense Department personnel, officials said, but agreed to prepare the remains of the shuttle astronauts for release to the families. The Kennedy Space Center has no such facilities.

Space agency officials and family members have indicated remains of some of the crew members will be cremated. Remains that have not been identified also may be cremated and buried together at Arlington National Cemetery, according to astronaut Judith Resnik's father, Marvin Resnik.

Final burial plans have not been announced but some of the shuttle fliers apparently also will be interred at Arlington, just across the Potomac River from Washington. When such a ceremony might occur has not been announced.

The dead are commander Francis "Dick" Scobee, copilot Michael Smith, Resnik, Ellison Onizuka, Ronald McNair, satellite engineer Gregory Jarvis and Christa McAuliffe, a New Hampshire high school teacher and the first "ordinary citizen" to fly on the shuttle.

Her heralded flight lasted just 73 seconds before Challenger disintegrated in a ball of flaming debris Jan. 28. The explosion has been blamed on a rupture in its right-side solid fuel booster rocket.

Launch photography from NASA high-speed tracking cameras shows the nose section of the shuttle with the crew cabin inside emerging relatively intact from the fireball of the exploding fuel tank.

Some experts have speculated some or all of the astronauts were alive during their plunge to the sea 8.9 miles below, but Marvin Resnik said he was told the crew died within a few seconds of the explosion. NASA will not discuss the findings of government pathologists.

The remains of the reinforced crew module were located by sonar on Feb. 8 and confirmed by divers on March 7 working 16 miles east of Challenger's empty launch pad in water 100 feet deep.

Sources said most of the wreckage was unrecognizable.

GPSC accepts cancellation of vote challenge

By Catherine Edman
Staff Writer

The Graduate and Professional Student Council has accepted the withdrawal of a written challenge to the officer election held two weeks ago.

Mary Brown, president of the GPSC, announced at the meeting Wednesday night that the committee formed to address the challenge, which met Tuesday night, said it would accept the withdrawal if it was received in writing by a specified time Wednesday. The withdrawal was received on time and was signed by all six of the students who had submitted it.

The challenge to the validity of the April 9, GPSC officer election was submitted by six Law School students who questioned the election process because of the Election Commission's decisions regarding student voting eligibility.

New representatives did not have a chance to meet the eligibility criteria and were not told of requirements to do so, the students charged.

A committee of five people not currently affiliated with the GPSC was formed to review the challenge and make a decision on the validity of the election.

Before the committee rendered a decision, however, the students told people in the GPSC office the challenge would be withdrawn. The challenge was withdrawn before the committee reached a decision.

In other business, the council elected GPSC representatives Ken Medve, Nancy Parsons, Colin Low and Eric Landrum as the new representatives to the Graduate Council.

A resolution supporting a clean-up project for Thompson Woods was passed by the council. Also passed was a resolution regarding the continued GPSC represen-

Quotes were misused, GPSC president charges

By Catherine Edman
Staff Writer

The president of the Graduate and Professional Student Council said that statements attributed to her in a recently published article about a challenge to the validity of the GPSC officer election were taken out of context.

The challenge was presented by six law students who later withdrew the challenge because of what they said they perceived as hostility from GPSC president Mary Brown and others in the GPSC administration.

The validity of the election was challenged because of a question regarding the election commission's decision on eligibility of voters. After a committee was formed to decide on the election's validity, Paul Antonacci, a Law School representative, and Dan Slayden, president of the Student Bar Association, contacted Brown.

Slayden said he called the GPSC office to point out an alleged disregard for a rule by the officers after receiving a letter from Election Commissioner Tom Marcinkowski stating how closely the rules would be followed. He said that when he pointed out the discrepancy Brown got angry and told him that was irrelevant to the students' challenge.

Slayden said Brown told him that if the law students did not feel they were well represented they should get out of the GPSC. He also said that she told him no one would care in the GPSC office if they did pull out.

After the GPSC meeting Wednesday, Brown said that although she did say some of those things, they were used in the wrong context when published.

Brown said that Slayden's statement about disregarding the rules was irrelevant to the challenge to the elections.

"Clearly by bringing up all those issues they were shifting the focus from the basis which they submitted the challenge," she said.

She clarified the statement about irrelevancy attributed to her by saying the students submitted their challenge within the required seven days and to bring other information into the issue after the seven days was inappropriate.

Brown said that Slayden was stating an inaccuracy when he said that he called Brown after receiving a letter from Marcinkowski.

The letter was written by Marcinkowski, she said, but he decided it was not in line with procedures to send it and decided against it. Slayden received the letter from a third party and not Marcinkowski, Brown said.

Although Brown said she did tell the law students that if they did not feel represented by the GPSC they should get out, she said it was in response to a statement made by Slayden. Brown said that when Slayden called her, he brought up past problems between the GPSC and the Law School representatives. "He said there was no malice intended when she said that any group dissatisfied with their representation may want to reconsider their status in GPSC."

tative participation in program reviews by the Graduate Council.

The Student Programming Council addressed the council regarding a fee allocation of $7,000 from the GPSC for fiscal year 1987. The council approved the allocation, which SPC representatives said was 6 percent of the total $112,200 budget.

Don't forget to set clocks ahead 1 hour

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Daylight-saving time returns early Sunday, robbing most Americans of an hour of sleep but, in return, giving them sunlight in the evening for the next six months.

Under the time switch, clocks and watches are to be set forward one hour at 2 a.m. local time on the last Sunday in April, and set back an hour to standard time at 2 a.m. local time on the final Sunday in October.

The old adage is "spring forward, fall back."

The states and territories exempted from observing daylight time are Arizona, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virginia Islands, American Samoa and parts of Indiana.

The House last year passed legislation that would set daylight-saving time from the first Sunday of April to the first Sunday in November. The Senate, which has two similar measures pending, has not yet acted on the matter.

The Transportation Department is responsible for administering the 1966

Uniform Time Act. The assignment dates to the days when time zones were very important because of the need for publishing standardized railroad schedules.

The idea of time switching can be traced to Benjamin Franklin, who was a night person and a penny pincher. He wanted to cut the costs of candles.

The United States adopted the daylight-saving time concept in 1918 to save energy during World War I. The legislation was repealed the following year.

Protesters decry lab animal use

By United Press International

Hundreds of demonstrators blocked entrances to medical centers and research facilities across the nation Thursday, demanding an end to the use of animals in what they claim are cruel and sometimes useless scientific experiments.

Nearly 100 demonstrators were arrested, mostly on charges of disorderly conduct and blocking public passageways, but there were no reports of violence.

Officers arrested 10 of about 35 protesters who blocked the entrance into the New York University Medical Center in midtown Manhattan. They carried placards, gory photographs and chanted "Stop the torture, close the lab."

Jan Jasper of the Human Animal Liberation Front said some of the experiments are "blatantly ridiculous" — such as in instance in which "male hormones were given to female canaries to see if they could sing like males."

"Some of the ridiculous experiments they are doing on cats, they test repeatedly to prove what has already been proven, that heroin is addictive, that maternal deprivation is detrimental to an infant," he said.

Most of the arrests came in California. Police arrested 40 demonstrators who formed a human chain in front of the UCLA School of Public Health. Eight others were arrested at the University of Southern California.

Police arrested 30 people in at least two separate protests at the University of California campus in San Francisco.

Neil Dillard's four and one-half years on the Carbondale City Council have been an exercise in frustration.

"There have been a lot of frustrations during these four-plus years. There have been a few rewards from it when you see some accomplishments," says the 57-year-old Dillard, "but for the most part we've had a lot of frustrating experiences."

Dillard, an SIU-C administrator, is upset that a lot of projects have not been completed.

"We've made a lot of progress in our street improvement programs, sidewalk improvement programs and other things. It takes years sometimes to see the end of the program that you start working on."

THOSE PROJECTS are minor compared to others that the city has been tackling.

"The conference center has been one of the major frustrating things we've had to deal with because of the many technicalities one has to go through," explains Dillard.

"The railroad relocation project has been one, and we have spent a great deal of time in the city trying to improve housing, especially how it relates to student housing."

"We seem to be making some progress," Dillard said, "but it's not fast enough for me or for most of the people in the city. I think it's not fast enough for the students."

DILLARD SAYS he's always been a strong supporter for the conference center and hotel which will cost the city about $18 million.

The project is to be built between Illinois and University avenues. It will border Monroe and Walnut streets on the north and south.

City officials expect the center to be completed in March or April, 1988. The city hopes the center will attract conferences and conventions that have turned down the city in the past because of inadequate facilities.

"We need a very nice facility for people to stay and to be able to hold conferences. We miss a lot of conferences because we do not have the adequate facilities right now. When you start to set up a meeting here in the city of Carbondale, you find a great deal of difficulty in doing it."

According to Dillard, the city competes with the University because it has first choice on conventions at the Student Center.

"AFTER THAT, many times there's just not any facilities available for conferences or large group meetings," Dillard said.

"As far as the railroad project is concerned, naturally I'm a strong supporter. We were one of the early cities in it. I think it will take down a physical barrier between the east and west sides of Carbondale."

Better traffic conditions and business growth on the east side will also be spurred by the project, according to Dillard.

This project is expected to cost about $75 million with Carbondale footing about $2 million and the federal government the remainder. The project calls for digging a ditch through the city where the Illinois Central Gulf railroad tracks are presently located. This would allow overpasses to be built to relieve traffic problems caused when trains go through the city.

IT HAS been 25 years since Dillard began his employment with SIU-C. He started out in the Service Enterprises area where he assisted in cost recovery programs for the University.

"Then I moved into the University planning area, which was called Institutional Research and Studies. It was a part of former president Delyte Morris' office at that time. Later, the Illinois Board of Higher Education took more and more of those responsibilities," Dillard said.

Dillard also served a short time in Computing Affairs and requested to be in a new area of the University, economic development.

"OF COURSE, that's why I champion economic development causes on City Council and think that we need to work with other communities to develop industry," Dillard said. "I'm working with local municipal officials, chambers of commerce, and regional planning and development agencies to find how the University can assist the other communities and the business community in improving their opportunities."

Some of Dillard's experience was received as chairman of the Greater Egypt Regional Planning and Development Commission. His two-year chairmanship ended last December, but Dillard still serves as treasurer. He is also a representative of the city at the annual meeting known as the University City Conference.

"IT'S A group of people from university-type cities like Carbondale that meet to share their solutions to problems that we have. All the way from celebrations such as our Halloween to student relations and how to work with student governments," Dillard said.

What are Dillard's long-term goals for his term with the council?

"I want to see when young people graduate with their highly valuable degrees from SIU, that there is a place for them to intergrate themselves right into the business and social communities, put down their roots here and have their families grow up in Carbondale. I view that as the overriding goal in everything I do," Dillard said.

DILLARD IS considered by many as one of the conservatives on the council. On the other hand, there's the younger Keith Tuxhorn, viewed as a liberal. In the middle is Mayor Helen Westberg.

Westberg says that such diversity in council members does not cause any problems. She believes that the diversity on the council reflects the diversity of the people in the community.

"We each respect everyone else's opinions when we have differences," Westberg said.

According to Westberg, Dillard's experience in the SIU Budget Office hasn't hurt him.

"I THINK that his experience there has been a considerable help. He knows the University and the whole community."

Westberg proposed Dillard's selection in November, 1981, to fill the council seat vacated by the Rev. Charles Watkins. Dillard was unanimously selected.

Dillard was born on March 25, 1929, in West Frankfort where he attended high school. McKendree College in Lebanon was Dillard's first stop after high school where he played football and basketball.

"McKendree only played football two years after the second World War and I was on one of those teams," recalled Dillard.

After one year at McKendree, the young Dillard transferred to SIU-C in 1948.

"THROUGH STUDENT work here at the University, I pursued my degree, stopping twice to work because there were no scholarships or financial aid. Many students stopped out along the way to work and accumulate enough money to come back," Dillard said.

The second time he dropped out, Dillard worked at the Joppa Power Plant on the Ohio River. But before he could get back to SIU-C he was drafted into the Army and spent two years in Korea.

Dillard then returned to SIU-C and finished his degree in business.

"WHEN I graduated from SIU-C I took a job with the Texaco Oil Company and I worked for them six and one-half years," explained Dillard.

"I returned to the University in the early 60s and my masters was moving along slowly. Then the SIU-C set up the master's in business administration program in 1966. I entered the program as soon as it started," Dillard said. Dillard earned his master's degree in 1968.

Dillard has pursued a doctorate, but his dissertation has been at a stand-still because of his full-time work at SIU-C.

"AS LONG as I'm a full-time employee I do not believe I will be able to write a dissertation," Dillard said. "I'm not a specialist and that's one weakness for a person like me pursuing a doctorate, because you must really zero in on your dissertation almost to the exclusiveness of everything else. I'm very much of a generalist."

Dillard and his wife, Mary Ellen, have lived in Carbondale since 1964. His wife has been teaching in the Carbondale elementary school system since then.

"Carbondale has been good to us. We have worked hard in Carbondale and have given a lot. We don't say it's perfect. That's why my wife keeps working at it everyday and so do I."

Nazi trackers reportedly urge barring of Waldheim from U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department's Nazi-tracking unit has recommended that former U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim be barred from the United States because of evidence he took part in Nazi atrocities, sources said Thursday.

Neal Sher, head of the department's Office of Special Investigations, recommended to Attorney General Edwin Meese that Waldheim be placed on a special "watch list," and kept from entering the United States because of his alleged participation in Nazi activities, Justice Department sources said.

THE RECOMMENDATION was based on an OSI review of a secret file from the U.N. archives in New York recently turned over to U.S. officials, as well as the Austrian and Israeli governments, the sources said.

Sher declined to comment. Sher relayed his recommendation to Mark Richard, a deputy assistant attorney general in the Justice Department's criminal division. It will be turned over to Stephen Trott, the deputy attorney general, before going to Meese for his decision.

Meese, who is in Europe until this weekend, is unlikely to make a decision before early next week, the sources said. U.S. LAW provides that any alien who associated with the Nazi government in Germany during World War II, or any government in any area occupied by or allied with the Nazis, can be restricted from entering the United States.

The person would be placed on an Immigration and Naturalization Service "watch list" and stopped at the border.

Waldheim, who was U.N. secretary-general from 1972 to 1982, is a candidate in the May 4 election for president of Austria.

He has denied charges that he was involved in mass deportations of Jews from Salonika, Greece, interrogation of Nazi prisoners and brutal warfare against Yugoslav partisans while serving in the Army in Nazi-occupied Austria.

HIS SON, Gerhard Waldheim, who is in Washington seeking to clear his father's name, said he could not comment fully on the matter until he saw Sher's recommendation to Meese.

But, the younger Waldheim said, "It would be extremely hard to understand. By barring someone from the country, it will be hard to get things cleared up."

Gerhard Waldheim earlier submitted a 13-page memo to Sher and the Justice Department, which sought to prove his father was "neither a Nazi nor a war criminal."

THE WORLD Jewish Congress, which has led the barrage of charges against Waldheim, claims he served in a Wehrmacht unit that was involved in the deportation of Jews from Salonika to the death camps at Auschwitz, Poland, and served in Yugoslavia during Nazi massacres of civilians.

Waldheim, 67, has only recently conceded that he served in the Balkans during World War II, but he denied any knowledge of atrocities.

Parade, fair set for 'child week'

Children, child-care teachers and early-childhood centers are preparing to celebrate the Week of the Young Child, which begins Sunday and ends May 4.

"Reaching New Heights in Early Childhood Education" is this year's theme. A parade, beginning at the Life Center, 2500 Sunset, and ending at the Westown Mall, is scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday to kick off the festivities. A children's fair will be held at the Westown Mall until 4 p.m.

The fair is open to all children and families in the community at no charge.

Open houses will be held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 4:30 to 6 p.m. Tuesday at the following centers: Alice Wright Day Care Center, 2500 Sunset; Child Development Laboratories, 116 Quigley Hall, SIU-C; First Presbyterian Infant-Toddler Center, 910 S. University; Lakeland Learning Tree, 619 Giant City Road; Tip's Tots, E. Route 13, Marion; and World of Oz, 611 E. College.

Open houses from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. only will be held at the following centers: Child Study Coop, 910 S. Elizabeth; First Presbyterian Nursery School, 910 S. University; and SIU Headstart, 925 Giant City Road.

The John A. Logan Preschool will have open house and Parents' Day on May 1.

The purpose of the Week of the Young Child is to increase public awareness of children, their needs, growth and development and the many community services available to children and families.

The parade will be held May 4 if it rains Sunday.

AMA takes second in national competition

By Clotelia Slider
Staff Writer

The SIU-C student chapter of the American Marketing Association finished second at the National AMA International Conference held in Chicago April 18-20.

Karen Guth, a member of the chapter, said the chapter received five honors at the NAMA awards banquet, which was held at the Chicago Conrad Hilton Hotel. One award was given to SIU-C for having the most people attend the conference, which was 43. The other awards included outstanding alumni relations, outstanding performance in the Midwestern region,

No. 1 chapter in the Midwestern region and No. 2 in the nation for outstanding chapter.

Guth said that this is the second year in a row that SIU-C's chapter has received the outstanding alumni chapter award.

The purpose of the conference, according to Guth, was to give chapters a chance to meet and exchange ideas with AMA members from other chapters.

A number of seminars were conducted in which AMA members learned about different careers. These consisted of advertising, public relations and marketing and sales, according to Guth.

Andrew Fattori, president of the SIU-C AMA chapter, gave a presentation on fund raising, Guth said.

Michael Davis, an alumnus of SIU-C, was asked to give a presentation during the awards banquet. "This made SIU-C look good," Guth said.

According to Guth, two faculty advisers, Dr. Gordon Bruner, professor in marketing and William Dommermuth, chairman and professor in marketing, should be commended for their performance.

Congress vows to watch space agency more closely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several members of Congress, stung Thursday by charges that NASA has wasted billions of dollars, promised closer scrutiny of the space agency and the space shuttle program.

"The whole range of everything you've heard we're going to be interested in, looking into it to make sure that things are corrected as they should be," said Rep. Bill Nelson, D-Fla., head of a House NASA oversight subcommittee and crew member on the shuttle Columbia in early January.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who often hands out "Golden Fleece" awards for wasteful government spending, said, "I hope it means we're going to be a lot tougher. We've been too permissive. ... (Congress) has not done the kind of tough oversight job that it should do."

The New York Times reported on Wednesday and Thursday that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, according to agency and General Accounting Office audits, wasted at least $3.5 billion through bad management practices over the past 15 years.

The newspaper also reported that about $500 million in safety testing spending was cut or delayed during the shuttle program's life.

In a statement, NASA acknowledged the accuracy of the audits but said the problems "have been corrected or are being corrected."

Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, lashed out at the reports and said the media should concentrate more on NASA's impressive accomplishments. But, he acknowledged on the "CBS Morning News," "It is obvious there is some waste at NASA. There is in every governmental agency."

Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., who appeared on the CBS program with Garn, said there was a "responsibility underrun" at NASA.

How affordable is it? Like $50 a month*

It's all how you look at it. Some students wouldn't be caught dead in a mobile home/trailer. Others wouldn't be able to get by without it.

Let's face it. Unless you're living in a geodesic dome, your "home away from home" has four walls. Within those four basic walls are 1 or more baths, and none or more roommates.

At Carbondale Mobile Homes, you have access to that, and then some. Like a year-round indoor heated pool open to tenants only. A convenient nearby laundromat and post-office. Even free roundtrip transportation to SIU on school days.

Oh yes, there's free water, free lawn care too!

Look. If you're driving a 'vette and living off dad's credit cards, we're probably not your kind of place. But if you count pennies between meals and still want luxuries unheard of on a tight budget, give us a call!

Second win aim for golfers at home conference final

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

The Saluki women golfers will aim for two wins in a row, vying for a much sweeter victory this weekend as hosts of the Gateway Conference Golf Championship.

Rounds are slated for 8 a.m. and 1 p.m. Friday, and 7:30 a.m. Saturday on the par-71 Mount Vernon Green Hills Country Club, where spectators are welcome.

This year, the Salukis hold a definite advantage in the 54-hole event since each member practiced Green Hills' 5900-yard layout Sunday after rains which should still result in lengthening the course. Added to that, the Saluki golfers — although somewhat young — lowered their stroke averages and have experience beating all but one Gateway foe this year in tourney action.

If they are indeed peaking, then the steadily-improved Salukis and coach Sonya Stalberger have nothing to fear from the five-team field but the old saying, "you're your own worst enemy."

Coming off a win in the Stephens College Invitational with their best scores of the year, Stalberger says her Salukis look forward with confidence to the summation of a year's work.

"A coach strives to build confidence and success, and after a successful outing, it's easy to have confidence," Stalberger said. "That's the type of attitude you want the team to take when they want to win — I don't know how they'll react for sure, but I think it can only help."

Last year, a senior Illinois State squad walked away with

Men tracksters travel to Florida for invitational

By Steve Koules
Staff Writer

Instead of sending his team to the Drake or Penn Relays this weekend, Saluki men's track coach Bill Cornell came up with an alternative choice — the Springtime Invitational at Tallahassee, Fla.

Cornell says he prefers the Florida sunshine at this time of the year in comparison to the cooler weather at Des Moines, Iowa, where the Drake Relays are held.

"I'm fed up with going to the Drake Relays and having our team run in the cold, nasty weather," Cornell said. "The cold weather hurts our chances of qualifying individuals for nationals."

Cornell said he expects strong competition in the Springtime Invitational, which is a non-sced meet.

"The invitational attracts a lot of Southern schools that don't go to the Drake or Penn Relays," Cornell said. "The invitational is in its third year and the field of teams that competes grows every year."

Cornell said he hopes Mike Elliott and Bret Garrett can qualify for nationals in the 800-meter run and Ron Herrer in the discus. Herrer is also entered in the hammer, javelin, and shot put.

Other Saluki entries include Connor Mason in the 200 and 400-meter dashes; David Beauchem in the 5000-meter steeplechase; Brian Anderson in the hammer; and Mike Michels and Shane Weber in the pole vault.

the honors, but the Salukis have outscored the defending-champ Redbirds in three contests this spring.

Northern Iowa edged into second place as GCAC championship host last year, but Stephens College the Salukis finished 36 strokes ahead of the Panthers. Also at Stephens, Southwest Missouri failed to complete a team due to illness and the Salukis have not yet faced Wichita State.

Conference-leading scorer and tourney-favorite Jill Bertram could take medalist honors home for the Salukis, but the senior squad leader may have to battle some of her own teammates as well as Gateway competitors, according to Stalberger.

"I've never felt this confident in the team before," Stalberger said. "I think Jill's the favorite, but Pat (Putman), Tina (Kozlowski) and Vicki (Higgerson) are contenders who will challenge for the individual crown because they're all playing well."

Bertram takes a 79.0 strokes per round average into competition. She carries a six-round 70's streak into action and paced the Salukis as low-scorer in the past four events. Bertram won individual honors with scores of 79, 76 and 74 last weekend at Stephens College.

Saluki junior Putman tied for second and her best finish ever at Stephens, and averages 82.2 strokes per round. Sophomore teammate Kozlowski has not scored in the 70's often, but has played with the most consistency at an 80.8 scoring average.

Higgerson, a sophomore, averaging 82.1 and Peggy Ellsworth, a freshman, averaging 87.0, round out the SIU line-up.

Panther junior Margot Gillespie, runner-up last year, returns with top-ranked teammates junior Kelly McCormick and senior Jill Fjelstul to make Northern Iowa the toughest rival.

Freshman Jane Hawkins and Vici Pate, among the GCAC top eight, lead the Redbirds along with senior Jill Schrader.

SMSU boasts standouts Cindy Shook and Jo Donna Duncan, while Wichita State should be paced by Anne Vandermilller and Peggy Padgett.

Stalberger points out green play as the key to all efforts this weekend, and calls the Green Hills' putting surfaces the " slickest but most fantastic greens we'll play all year."

Tracksters in final of triple crown at Drake

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

The Saluki women's track team competes in the final leg of track's triple crown — the Drake Relays — Friday and Saturday in Des Moines, Iowa. Over 70 teams will be represented in the non-scored meet.

"Out of the circuit each year...this and the Penn Relays are probably the top two meets in the country," Saluki coach Don DeNoon said. "It's a meet where 22,000 fans will be sitting in the stands screaming and yelling. It's a situation you don't see very often in this country."

The Salukis are taking nine athletes to Des Moines, which is one of the larger contingents at the meet, DeNoon said.

One of the Salukis' top priorities is to qualify for the NCAA Championships in the 1600-meter relay. To do so, the Salukis need a time of three minutes, 37 seconds or better. "We need to do it here," DeNoon said. "One of the things that we're gonna find is if we don't do it here the quality of performances that we're gonna find at our state collegiates and (in) the conference isn't gonna do it for us."

The Salukis will face some tough competition in the 1600-meter, including top-ranked Nebraska, which already has qualified for the NCAA's in the event. "Nebraska hasn't gone home (from the Kansas Relays) thinking that they're gonna lose to us," said DeNoon. "They'll be doing their homework."

Other strong 1600 teams competing at Drake include Clemson, Alabama, Georgia, Illinois and Indiana.

DeNoon also expects Salukis Dora Kyriacou, Kathy Raske, Carlon Blackman and Denise Blackman to turn in a strong performance in the sprint medley. "We definitely have to be a threat there," he said.

DeNoon said he was disappointed in the fact that distance runner Vivian Sinou and hurdler Christiana Philippou would be unable to compete. Sinou, a junior from Athens, Greece, failed to qualify for the lone distance race in the meet, the 5,000-meter run.

"You get a really quality field" in the 5,000 at Drake, DeNoon said. "You're looking at qualifying times of 15:53 to 16:29."

Philippou, a freshman from Nicosia, Cyprus, has been sidelined with injuries.

DeNoon was also disappointed by the failure of the Blackman sisters to qualify in two sprints. Carlon Blackman failed to qualify for the 400-meter dash but will serve as first alternate in the event should an athlete from one of the other schools fail to show up. Denise Blackman failed to qualify for the 100-meter dash.

Other Salukis who will compete at Drake are: Brenda Beatty, 400-meter relay and triple jump; Audra Corson, javelin; Rhonda McCausland, discus and shot; Angie Nunn, 1600-meter relay and Darcie Stinson, 400-meter relay.

Tufts hurler aims for 4th no-hitter

MEDFORD, Mass. (UPI) — Spring baseball is in full bloom at Tufts University, where a sophomore pitcher shoots for his fourth straight no-hitter Friday after striking out 39 in his past three outings.

Left-hander Jeff Bloom, 19, has only allowed a handful of balls out of the infield in consecutive no-hitters over MIT, Boston University and Trinity, and missed a perfect game by just one pitch in the Trinity game.

Bates College is Bloom's next opponent, at Tufts at 3 p.m. Friday.

"I'm hoping for the win first. I don't want to get bogged down thinking about another no-hitter because I won't pitch as well," said the economics major from Dix Hills, N.Y.

"It's like a dream world here," said Tufts baseball coach John Casey. "There's nothing to compare to what he's done."

Johnny Vander Meer, the "Dutch Master" of the Cincinnati Reds, pitched the major leagues' only consecutive no-hitters against the Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers in 1938. College baseball records are not so complete.

"My guess is that three straight no-hitters could be claimed as a record," said Hank Schomber, assistant athletic director at Georgia Southern University, who compiles records for the National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association.

The 6-foot-2-inch Bloom struck out 10 against MIT on April 6, a 9-1 win marred by a run that scored on a walk and two errors. The sophomore notched a school-record 17 strikeouts in a 7-0 win over BU on April 15, then fanned 12 in an 18-0 whitewash of Trinity last Saturday. He walked only six in the three games.

"They're striking out or hitting weak foul pops," Casey said of Bloom's victims. "He's a fastball pitcher, throwing the ball in the middle-80s (about 85 mph). He's also got a curveball and a changeup he can throw for strikes."

"Lots of college kids can throw hard, but there's not too many kids at the college level who can throw three pitches for strikes."

Bloom had a perfect game through 6 2-3 innings (college baseball is seven innings) against Trinity, a contest that attracted several pro scouts anxious for a look at the youngster.

Men golfers in 6th place at Drake meet

While the name "Drake Relays" stands synonymous as one of the nation's finest track events, the Drake Relays also means a prestigious invitational golf tournament.

The Saluki men golfers carded a 316 total Thursday in the opening round played on Waconda golf course at Des Moines, Iowa, to move into the top third of a 24-team field.

Iowa led after the first round with a 299 stroke total, and the Salukis' 316 keeps them within reach in sixth place.

Saluki junior Jay Sala aced the par-3, 14th hole on the Wakonda course and carded a team-low 75, which put him in fourth place individually.

The site moved to Echo Valley golf course for second-round action late Thursday.

bing by Eastern Illinois in which he used five pitchers and with Rob Osborne and Gary Bockhorn still out with sore arms, may be short of depth to replace his starters if they falter under the Redbird offense this weekend.

His probable starters are stopper Dale Kisten (6-0, 2.18 ERA), David Henley (2-1, 3.77), Lee Meyer (3-3, 4.36) and Todd Neibel (5-5, 6.08).

The Redbird offense is terrifically solid up and down the batting order. They are led by outfielders Chuck Hoscheidt (.378, four homers, 17 RBI) and the swatting Chris Gurchick (.376, eight homers, 42 RBI).

The other outfielder, Aaron Eberling, is platooned against righthanders and hits them well (.365, four home runs, 16 RBI).

Don King (.344, 25 RBI) has to be one of the few catchers hitting in the leadoff spot.

Women ruggers to attempt bid for nationals

The Women's Rugby Club travels this weekend to Iowa City in an attempt to qualify for their first national tournament in Newport, R.I.

The winner of the first match against the University of Minnesota will automatically win a national bid. The victor then faces the champion of the Chicago-University of Wisconsin to determine what seed they will be for the Newport meet.

Last weekend, the club racked up 96 points to shut out all four opponents at the St. Louis tournament.

SIU-C blanked St. Louis 16-0 in the first contest; in the second round of action, Missouri State University was the victim of the 34-0 shutout; Oklahoma City Club fell 26-0 in the third match and St. Louis suffered another shutout in the final, 30-0.

series of training races. "So far" about 3,000 people have come forward to donate anywhere from $25 to $10,000. We've also landed MCI Communications and CIBA Consumer Pharmaceuticals as major sponsors. Right now, we're two thirds of the way to our goal of $7 million."

The Chicago syndicate, skippered by Buddy Melges, has charted a frugal course in its efforts to capture the cup. First, while many teams were spending thousands of dollars to send its crews to Australia to sail in the World 12 meter championships earlier this year, Heart of America sent only key personnel to race on other boats.

Dogs must swing hot bats for conference title

By Ron Warnick
Staff Writer

How the baseball Salukis play at Illinois State this weekend may well determine whether the Dogs' win Missouri Valley Conference standings.

The Salukis, Redbirds and Wichita State Shockers, sharing 6-6 conference records, are chasing after Indiana State, which sits on top of the heap with a 8-4 clip. If SIU-C is to go, an upper hand against the Redbirds, they have to break up their current batting slump. Excluding the lopsided St. Louis 19-5 blowout, the Salukis are hitting .258 with just 16 runs scored in their last six games. "We haven't hit well in the last few games," Coach Richard "Itchy" Jones said. "We have to be ready for this weekend." However, the Dogs may have a chance to shine up their aluminum bats. Illinois State has the worst pitching in the conference with a 5.54 earned run average. The pitching battery is lacking some depth because starters Scott Meyer and Darin Martin have been sidelined all season with arm injuries.

Their best pitcher is Jay Darnell, who is 3-4 with a 4.60 ERA. Derrick Mosley (2-4, 4.59 ERA) tossed a 2-1 win against SIU-Edwardsville on Tuesday. Kevin Tepen has a mediocre 6.03 ERA, but the team's offense has supported him to a 4-0 record. The Salukis had better not have to create late-inning rallies. Freshman reliever Paul Wagner is 2-0 with one save and an unbelievable 0.84 ERA. He is not a great strikeout pitcher, but changes speeds well with pinpoint control. Contrasting the Redbirds' shaky pitching is their outstanding hitting. Illinois State leads the conference with a .327 average. Jones, after the 15-1 drub-

Softball team needs sweep in GCAC stint

By Steve Merritt
Sports Editor

The Saluki softball team travels north this weekend for conference twinbills with defending Gateway champ Illinois State and Indiana State in a four-game stretch vital to the Saluki's chances of staying in the race for the GCAC title.

At 6-4 in Gateway play and 17-15 overall, SIU-C needs to pull off a sweep to have any realistic chance of winning the regular season crown. In contrast, getting swept in the quartet of games would be disastrous to Saluki chances.

The Salukis were enjoying a seven-game winning streak, including a four-game sweep over conference foes Drake and Northern Iowa, but then fell victims to three consecutive 1-0 losses. SIU-C snapped the losing streak Wednesday afternoon by taking the second game of a doubleheader with SEMO.

Illinois State, picked in a preseason poll to finish second behind the Bradley Braves, are on top in the Gateway with an 8-2, 25-10 record.

Saluki coach Kay Brechtelsbauer was hit in the face by a ball earlier this week and did not make the trip to Eastern on Tuesday but should be back on the field to coach her squad this weekend.

NBA All-Defensive team picked

NEW YORK (UPI) — Perennial picks Sidney Moncrief and Maurice Cheeks joined Paul Pressey, Kevin McHale and Mark Eaton on the NBA's All-Defensive team announced by the league Thursday.

Milwaukee's Moncrief, named the league's top defender each of the past two seasons, was teamed with Philadelphia's Cheeks in the all-defensive backcourt for the fourth straight year.

Milwaukee forward Pressey and Utah center Eaton were named to the first-team for the second consecutive year. Boston's McHale, a previous second-team choice, made the first squad for the first time.

The team was selected by a vote of the league's 23 coaches. Each coach picked an all-defensive first and second team, with first-team picks receiving two points and second-team picks one.

Moncrief received the most points with 32 of a maximum 46.

Midwest sailors on quest for America's Cup location

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The quest by Gary Jobson and his Heart of America cohorts to bring sailing's fabled America's Cup to the nation's midlands started in an unlikely spot — the chambers of the New York State Supreme Court.

"We started dancing with the idea of putting together a challenge a few years ago," Jobson said. "But first we had to go in front of the New York Supreme Court and convince the judges that Lake Michigan was an arm of the sea."

In order to officially mount an America's Cup challenge, the sponsoring yacht club must have direct access to the sea. The Chicago group was forced to prove that Lake Michigan was such a body of water before the New York Supreme Court because that court has been empowered to determine who can challenge for yachting fabled trophy.

Once Jobson and company received a favorable ruling the difficult undertaking of raising the millions needed to fund an America's Cup challenger began.

"The Midwest has been behind us from the beginning," said Jobson, who was in San Francisco with the rest of the Heart of America crew for a

Cubs down Expos 7-5; Sutcliffe gets 1st win

CHICAGO (UPI) — A bobbled suicide squeeze bunt allowed Chicago pitcher Rick Sutcliffe to hit a three-run home run that gave him his first victory of the season, a 7-5 decision over the Montreal Expos Thursday.

Sutcliffe, who got only one run of offensive support in his first three starts, raised his record to 1-3 despite a wild day on the mound. In 6 1-3 innings, he gave up six walks, threw three wild pitches and yielded seven hits while striking out eight.

But Sutcliffe's fourth career home run provided the difference the Cubs needed. It came after Bobby Dernier laid down a suicide squeeze bunt which Montreal pitcher Bryn Smith mishandled.

A run scored to give Chicago a 4-2 lead and left Dernier on first and Jody Davis at third.

"If he didn't get on base, I'm out of the game," said Sutcliffe, although manager Jim Frey said his pitcher would have stayed in. "I was surprised to get to the plate. When I got back to the dugout, I looked him (Frey) in the eyes and said 'thanks.'"

"Instead of giving one run on the squeeze play we give them four," said Montreal manager Buck Rodgers. "We get the out and pitch to Sutcliffe normally. It was the big play of the game."

The Cubs extended their winning streak to three games with the victory.

Montreal cut the lead to 7-4 in the seventh with a two-run home run from Hubie Brooks that chased Sutcliffe.

The Expos added a run in the ninth on Wayne Krenchick's RBI single.

The Cubs took a 2-0 lead in the first on RBI singles by Moreland and Humphrey.

Mumphrey, who started in left fielder for Gary Matthews, hit a solo home run in the third to give Chicago a 3-0 lead.

Dann Bilardello's two-run homer in the fourth cut Chicago's lead to 3-2.

The Expos put men on third base in the first two innings without scoring and had nine men left on base through six innings.

Houston Open round one ends in Grady-Peete tie

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (UPI) — Hard-charging Wayne Grady birdied six of the final nine holes Thursday during the first round of the $500,000 Houston Open to finish in a tie for the lead with Calvin Peete at 7-under-par 65.

Peete completed his round early, and Grady was 2-under-par 34 after the back nine. He then birdied six holes to take a 1-stroke lead with one hole to go.

But on No. 9, the final hole he played after starting the day on the back nine, Grady hit his approach over the green 35 feet away from the pin, putted from the fringe to 5 feet away and missed a putt for par. He bogeyed the hole and had to settle for the tie.

The co-leaders, whose 65 was a course record in front of a crowd of 25,000, held a 2-stroke lead over Mike Hulbert, Rod Curl, Jay Haas, Bruce Lietzke, Billy Pierot and Nick Faldo finished at 4-under-par 68 going into Friday's second round.

Masters champion Jack Nicklaus faded on his second nine with three bogeys and a double bogey to finish the day at even-par 72.

Grady, who was second in birdies on the PGA tour last year, had 10 birdies on the day.

"It's nice to have a good round for a change," said Grady, who has never won a PGA tournament. "I don't think I've had that many birdies before."

"I hit a 7-iron which was too much club," he said of the final hole. "I had the 8-iron in my hands and put it back."

Nicklaus, in his first tournament since winning the Masters two weeks ago, sank a long putt on the first hole of the front nine, halfway through his round, to trail Peete by only one shot. But he bogeyed No. 3, double-bogeyed No. 4, and bogeyed the fifth and ninth holes to finish at even par 72.

Peete, playing with Nicklaus and Haas, opened with four birdies in a row on the back nine to finish with a 31. He shot a 34 on the front nine, completing the round with a 65. He did not have a bogey on the day.

"I really wasn't expecting to putt as well as I did today," Peete said. "I didn't putt well at the Masters. I was lucky to get off to a good start and that took some of the pressure off."

"The first putt got me off and running. It kind of set up the other ones."
