Dukakis wins easily in Pennsylvania

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis easily defeated civil rights leader Jesse Jackson in Pennsylvania's primary Tuesday and consolidated his hold on the Democratic presidential nomination.

Vice President George Bush won the Republican primary where he faced no active opposition, moving him tantalizingly close to a guaranteed GOP nomination to be Ronald Reagan's successor.

With 20 percent of the Democratic vote counted, Dukakis had 188,777 votes or 73 percent and Jackson had 53,641 votes or 21 percent.

With 20 percent of the Republican vote in, Bush had 130,098 votes or 80 percent. Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, who has withdrawn from the GOP race, had 18,524 or 11 percent and former television evangelist Pat Robertson, who has all but dropped out, had 15,111 votes or 9 percent.

Dukakis claimed victory at a Boston news conference but said he does not have the Democratic nomination locked up. He said the Pennsylvania win was "a very big boost for us" and would be "very helpful" in his drive for the nomination.

Dukakis noted that in 1984, "Walter Mondale won in New York and Pennsylvania and then lost a whole string of primaries. Every one of these is different and we're going to work very hard to win every one of these," he said.

Jackson, campaigning in Ohio for next week's primary, said he still expected to do well in urban areas. "The race is not over. I'm excited about it," he said.

Most of the focus in the abbreviated Pennsylvania campaign was on the Democratic race — a short-but-sweet campaign that gave Dukakis a chance to start finessing his relationship with Jackson and forging the unified front that would be required to defeat Bush in the fall. Though Dukakis is still far short of the 2,002 delegates he will need to lock up the Democratic nomination, he now moves into a wider delegate lead over Jackson and picks up even more momentum for coming contests in Ohio, Indiana, New Jersey and California where he has the advantage.

Dukakis also can concentrate now on laying the

Carbondale attorney gives details of his kidnapping

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

A Jackson County jury Tuesday heard the testimony of an attorney who was abducted in July 1985 by Carbondale businessman James Russell.

Russell is accused of kidnapping Carbondale attorney John C. "Jack" Feirich at gunpoint. Russell's defense contends the intent was a citizen's arrest for Feirich's misappropriation of funds.

The trial continues at 9 a.m. today at the Jackson County Courthouse in Murphysboro.

In the daylong proceedings, Feirich described in detail the events of July 24, 1985. He said that he was abducted at gunpoint in the garage of his residence in Carbondale's west side. He was handcuffed with his hands behind his back, had his legs taped together, then was thrown in the backseat of a car and taken to Chicago by Russell, Feirich said.

Feirich said on the witness stand that during the incident Russell told him "don't make a move or I'll blow your goddamn head off," and that he was "totally in pain" during the trip because of the restraints.

Russell sat quietly at the defense table and gave no testimony.

Public defender Robert Van Derhoff said Russell's intent was to place Feirich under citizen's arrest for the misappropriation of $6,000 of funds involved in a settlement to regain Russell's half share of the Southern Illinois Racquet Club. Feirich had represented Russell in the case.

Feirich testified that he had not misappropriated funds. He said Russell owed his law firm about $6,000 for three years of legal services that hadn't been paid.

Feirich was president of the Illinois State Bar Association in 1982-1983 and is the principal partner in the Carbondale law firm of Feirich, Schoen, Mager, Green and Associates, 2001 W. Main St. He said the firm is the largest

Morris book removal nearing completion

By Daniel Wallenberg
Student Writer

Removal of books stacked in Morris Library should be completed in about a week, Jay Starrett, assistant director of library services, said.

Starrett said the project is going faster than expected. Physical Plant employees started removing the boxes on April 11, taking them to the McLafferty Road storage facility.

More than 3,500 cardboard boxes had been stacked along the hallways, under tables and in the aisles of Morris Library and the Blue Barracks near Brush Towers.

Carbondale Fire Department officials declared the stacked boxes in violation of state fire codes April 5.

Training pays off for disabled woman

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

Editor's note: This is the last of three articles on job opportunities for the disabled.

"So what's my IQ?" Suzanne Williams asked.

"I'm not going to tell you," Suzanne's mother, Judith, says, prompting a giggle and a shrug from Suzanne. "What is an IQ? What would it mean if I said 150?" her mother asks.

"That it's high," Suzanne said. "If you really want to know, we'll talk about it later," Judith said.

Suzanne, 20, has Down's Syndrome. She is a resident of Our Place, an intermediate care facility in Murphysboro. Counselors at Our Place said Suzanne has the lowest IQ of any person they have accepted.

But Suzanne knows the payoffs of using a little elbow grease.

In October, Suzanne was placed in a job training program at the Holiday Inn. From October through the beginning of April, she worked as a trainee cleaning rooms for free.

"Very few people would've stuck that out," Judith said.

Suzanne was retained by the motel and now is being paid.

The training had its advantages, Judith said. The first time Suzanne cleaned a room it took her an hour and 55 minutes, she said. The employer's standard is 25 minutes per room.

"It's hard, but I can do it," Suzanne, who is considered to be only mildly affected by Down's Syndrome, said.

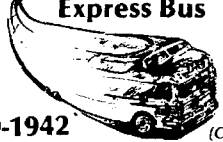

Down's Syndrome is caused by an abnormally high number of chromosomes — 47 instead of the usual 46. The abnormality is present at birth and occurs in one of every 650 births.

Suzanne wants to lead an independent life, and she said the job is a step in that direction.

"She wasn't ready to live on her own," Judith said. "Our Place was one of her options. We would have welcomed her back home, and still will,

Bad weather turns back U.S. warships, tankers

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — U.S. warships shepherded two re-flagged Kuwaiti tankers past Iran's back door and into the Persian Gulf Tuesday, but the convoy later had to turn back because of bad weather, shipping sources said. A shipping executive in the gulf said the first escorted convoy operation since last week's U.S.-Iranian naval clash included at least two U.S. warships and a pair of re-flagged Kuwaiti vessels — a gas carrier and a tanker.

VIENNA (UPI) — Venezuela's oil minister Tuesday blasted U.S. Energy Secretary John Herrington as OPEC's five-member pricing panel opened an unprecedented meeting with seven outside oil producers in an attempt to boost oil prices. Herrington, who has been touring Asia, had said the talks were "doomed" and told Thai officials he didn't feel the meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries with the non-OPEC producers would be successful.

Bill for nuclear free Philippines criticized

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Two senators criticized a proposal to ban nuclear weapons from the Philippines Tuesday as the Senate began debate on a measure that would threaten the future of America's largest foreign military bases. Sen. Mamintang Tamano, one of several speakers on the bill, urged his colleagues to delay action the measure until after the current review of the 41-year-old bases treaty between the United States and the Philippines. The United States has warned such a ban would make it difficult for U.S. forces to operate in the area.

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — An American military team returned to Bangkok Tuesday after a three-day survey of a U.S. warplane crash site in a crater in Laos where it hopes to recover the remains of servicemen missing since the Vietnam War, a U.S. embassy official said. Embassy spokesman Ross Petzing said the site surveyed was in Savannakhet province, between northeastern Thailand and central Vietnam, where several U.S. planes were shot down.

Battle over independent prosecutors persists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The legal battle over naming independent prosecutors to probe government corruption was laid before the Supreme Court Tuesday, with the Reagan administration arguing the independent counsel law should be overturned. The final decision in the case could throw into confusion probes of a number of top Reagan officials, as well as the conviction of ex-White House aide Michael Deaver and the cases involving the Iran-Contra scandal.

Senate committee subpoenas North's diaries

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted Tuesday to subpoena Lt. Col. Oliver North's hand-written diaries, the contents of which are largely unknown to Congress and investigators of the Iran-Contra scandal. The committee voted 18-1 to demand by force of law the release by North of his notes taken between September 1984 and November 1986, a period in which the former White House aide ran the covert operation to sell arms to Iran and divert the profits to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

Rescue crews board U.S. attack submarine

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Rescue crews, battling rough seas and high winds, boarded the disabled attack submarine USS Romafish off the Florida coast Tuesday but did not enter the vessel in search of three missing crewmen because of the hazardous weather. An explosion and fire spreading toxic fumes ripped the 29-year-old submarine just beneath the surface of the sea Sunday, injuring 22 sailors and forcing 89 crewmembers to abandon the 219-foot ship.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jessica Hahn offered Tuesday to help PTL officials stave off liquidation, saying she was willing to appear on the ministry's TV show and might relinquish $100,000 she received for promising to keep quiet about her sexual encounter with Jim Bakker. The former church secretary, whose 1980 sexual encounter with Bakker and subsequent payoff toppled him from the PTL pulpit, said she is concerned the members who built the ministry will lose it.

Candidate: Deans should prepare summer budget

By Susan Curtis
and Amy Gaubatz
Staff Writer

Deans should be allowed to plan the summer budget at the same time the rest of the yearly budget is planned, Donald Beggs, one of three candidates for vice president for academic affairs, said.

Beggs, dean of SIU-C's College of Education, said that he disagrees with President Guyon's opinion that one person should plan the summer budget for the entire University. Beggs said the summer budget should be planned by each college.

Currently the summer budget is planned separately from the spring and fall budgets.

The people who should decide the summer budget are the deans, Beggs said. Some colleges need more funds for summer programs and the deans know this, he said.

This way there would be no "proposed" classes in the schedule that have to be cut later because of lack of funds, Beggs said.

Beggs said that the inability to fund programs has been one of the concerns voiced by every group he has spoken with.

Another concern is the enhancement of the research environment. Beggs said he is strongly in support of research at the University, especially for new researchers.

The administration should assist the deans in providing a positive environment for research activities, he said.

"We're a quality university," Beggs said. It's the responsibility of the administration to work with the faculty and students to provide a better environment for both, he said.

"I think it's a delight to interact with our students today" because they have expectations about programs and courses and are concerned that these expectations are met, Beggs said.

Student feedback is important when it comes to documenting teachers, but studies done at SIU-C show that students respond more to charisma than content, Beggs said.

Quality assessment of teaching includes the input of students, colleagues and administration, he said.

"I think it's our responsibility to let students respond but I'm not comfortable with the results being made available in one publication," Beggs said.

Different programs have different expectations and publication of evaluation results in the past has had little effect on students, he said.

Beggs does think that working with students and student government is important. He said there has to be an avenue for student governments and students to be part of the decision making and planning within the University.

Donald Beggs

Beggs said he was involved in student government and learned things that have helped him to this day. It is the administration's responsibility to provide experience to those students who want to be involved, he said.

Beggs came to SIU-C as a freshman in 1959, when Delyte Morris was president. He said he has had the experience of seeing the University from many points of view and this would help him in the position of vice president.

"I am truly interested in the position (of vice president for academic affairs), but believe it will be a difficult job to do over the next few years," Beggs said.

Beggs has bachelor's and master's degrees from SIU-C and a doctorate from the University of Iowa.

Tax increase supported by financial aid group

By Holly J. Corrington
Staff Writer

State financial aid administrators have stopped talking about the need for more funds and have begun doing something about it.

At its annual meeting in March, the Illinois Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators passed a resolution supporting a statewide effort to secure adequate funding for education through an increase in the state income tax, Joe Camille, director of student work and financial assistance, said.

The resolution was sent recently to Gov. James R. Thompson, the Illinois House appropriations committee and to each state legislator.

Camille, past president of the association, urged University students to write their legislators urging them to vote for a tax increase. He said students should communicate how they feel about state funding of education, state financial aid programs and a tax increase 1989.

Camille said the resolution was passed because administrators felt students would be forced to come up with more funds from their own resources to attend school next year.

"Current funding is not sufficient to meet student needs," he said.

If there is no tax increase, Camille said the governor's 1988-89 Illinois State Scholarship Commission budget allocations would completely eliminate the Merit Recognition Scholarship, that was awarded to 233 SIU-C students last year.

Although the governor's proposed budget shows an increase for the Monetary Award Program (MAP), National Guard Grant and Veterans' Scholarships, the increase is well below allocations recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Springfest advice: be safe, have fun

SPRINGFEST GENERALLY IS a fun-filled time for most SIU-C students, but it isn't without its accidents or undesirable incidents. Many potential problems can be avoided, however, by students remembering to conduct themselves safely and responsibly.

We are pointing out some of the negative aspects of Springfest, but only because there's a tendency to forget such a festive event can have its drawbacks.

Alcohol comes to mind almost as soon as the word "Springfest" is mentioned. Drinking, for some, can be a way of enhancing an experience such as Springfest, but students should remember that having a good time isn't contingent on how many beers they can guzzle.

FOR THOSE WHO like to drink, drink moderately: just because this is one day alcohol consumption is allowed on campus for this event is no reason to try to make up for the rest of the year.

SIU-C Security will concentrate patrols this year to cut down on underage drinking. Plainclothes officers will be interspersed in the crowds. This measure should reduce the number of minors abusing alcohol, but it won't stop underage drinking completely.

Minors should be aware they risk arrest and fines by breaking the drinking-age law, and that the laws will be enforced. Maybe this would be the proper time and place for minors who like to drink to try and enjoy an event sober; they may find they like sobriety just as much or more.

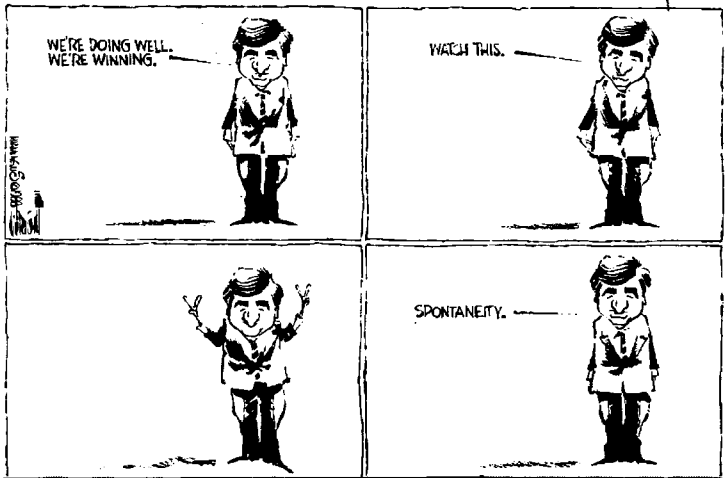

THERE IS A bottle ban, and other glass containers should be avoided as well. Glass containers must be disposed of properly. Many people will be barefoot, and inconsiderate scatterbrains who think it's "cool" or fun to smash glass on walkways should be drafted for post-Springfest cleanup if caught in the act. We encourage students to bring cans if beer is their poison, and, if possible, metal flasks for the whiskey rock-a-rollers.

SPC is providing Safety Watchers, people who will patrol the day's events in groups of three. The Safety Watchers will be trained by University police to spot situations that may erupt into trouble. This is a responsible move by SPC and should help prevent problems such as fights between drunks or other rowdies.

UNFORTUNATELY, THE THREAT of rape also is a reality. Four rapes were reported at last year's Springfest. The Rape Action Committee is trying to raise awareness about circumstances that can lead to rape. The Committee has placed ads in the Daily Egyptian to explode rape myths and offer women advice on how to protect themselves.

Some important tips for women are:
— don't become isolated with men you don't know very well;
— don't be afraid to say no to a man's advances;
— remember Rape Action Hotline, at 529-2324, is there for advice and other business concerning sexual assaults.

All in all, Springfest is much more positive than negative, offering a students a chance for an all-out celebration before the all-out studies commence for finals. Have a good time, but keep in mind others are there for a good time too.

BAS, Tripp's tenure two issues

I find the recent controversy surrounding the Black American Studies program and Dr. Luke Tripp very disturbing. Many people seem to be treating Tripp's bid for tenure and the fate of the BAS program as the same issue, which is unfortunate.

It would be unthinkable to dismantle the BAS program. It can and should be a forum for the exchange of ideas, free from racial bias. The University should move quickly to fill the necessary faculty positions with quality scholars who care about the program and its students.

BAS is an important program for all students at SIU-C, not just minority students. When an opportunity for the open exchange of ideas and culture is lost, the chance of understanding is lessened, which is something none of us can afford.

Tripp's tenure is another question entirely. Tripp has done a commendable job of whipping people into a frenzy about the decay of the BAS program and of convincing everyone that, if he doesn't get tenure, it will be the end of the world for BAS.

But why did he wait so long to bemoan the downfall of BAS? Right now, much is being made of the elimination of BAS 109 and 135 from the general education curriculum, which actually happened in 1985. Why did Tripp wait until he was up for tenure to create such an uproar about this? If Tripp cares so much about the BAS program, why didn't he correspond with Seymour Eryson, dean of the College of Human Resources, about the program last summer?

Tripp's explanation is that he wasn't on the University payroll. But what does this say about his commitment to minority progress at SIU-C and to the BAS program?

Tripp undoubtedly has put in plenty of extra time trying to get tenure, but very little has gone into ensuring the fitness of the BAS program if he isn't given tenure.

Everyone in academia knows how to get tenure. One gets tenure by publishing a lot, kissing a lot of butt and through scholarship and teaching. It follows that, if one is lacking in one area, one must make up for it in the others. One doesn't get tenure by waiting until the last minute and then creating hysteria, thereby putting pressure on the unfriendly University administration.

I hope Tripp gets tenure, if he deserves it — but only if he has blurred the issues and unjustly challenged the integrity of those who don't support him. — Scott Manthe, Junior, philosophy

DE article violated trust, common sense

I was very upset when I read Richard Goldstein's article in the Daily Egyptian entitled "Gay community asked about man's murder." Although I am sure Goldstein meant well, he made a number of inaccurate or out-of-context statements. He then attributed these distortions to me and to some others. He also neglected to ask permission to quote us, thereby denying us the opportunity to correct his errors.

Goldstein was at a Gay and Lesbian People's Union meeting at which several rumors, possibilities and suspicions were mentioned. He then selected one or two of these hypotheses and reported them as facts, instead of as the speculations they clearly were. Goldstein later informed me that he assumed "anything said in the presence of a DE reporter is fair game."

Goldstein has covered a number of GLPU events, including most of a Pride Line training course, and was allowed to do so only after he promised to check with us before submitting anything for publication. Goldstein apparently forgot his promise.

Broken promises aside, I find it hard to credit that the DE would print speculations about a person's sexual identity under any circumstances. If, as I guessed, the alleged sexual identity of the person concerned was not known to his family, they, their friends, relatives and neighbors found out about it by reading the DE. I can scarcely imagine a more traumatic event for them, and I never would have given my permission for such a statement to be printed.

In the future, I hope the DE will take greater care in maintaining professional standards and ethics, or the very least employ a little common sense and decency. — Michael Botkin, director, GLPU Pride Line

Editor's note: The Daily Egyptian stands by its story. The professional standards and ethics employed by the student writer are consistent with those prescribed by the Society of Professional Journalists.

However, after a year, Suzanne said Our Place gives her less independence than she thought it would.

"I don't like it," Suzanne said. "I think it's like a nursing home."

Judith said the facility was teaching autonomy, but not realistically.

"She feels like someone is watching over her shoulder all the time," Judith said. "I told her she would have more independence at home, but we fell since her brother left for school she wanted to leave too."

Our Place is teaching Suzanne independent living skills, but Judith doesn't like the fact that the facility's staff takes care of all the residents' bills and prepares all their meals.

Residents are allowed only $75 of their paychecks a month, "no matter how much they make," she said.

"She needs to learn to budget her money and $75 is nothing," Judith said. "The bills and budget should be part of what they are taught," Judith said.

Suzanne admits she isn't ready for being totally independent. "I want a roommate," Suzanne said.

Judith said an ideal roommate for Suzanne would be someone who could fill in the gaps.

"They should compliment each other," Judith said. "Someone who needs Suzanne because maybe they have trouble getting around."

But Judith questions the idea of knowing just when Suzanne will be ready to live on her own.

"Are any of us ready?" Judith asked. "I mean we basically decide it's time to move, or the parents throw their kids out of the house."

Suzanne always has been accepted in the community, Judith said.

"We were lucky. We lived in a town that offered a school for handicapped children. But we chose the public school system for Suzanne," Judith said.

Suzanne's schooling became a process of fighting for every class she got including home economics and driver education, Judith said.

"We were stubborn," Suzanne said. "We got what we needed."

Judith had a lot of success with both Suzanne's academic and social education. Judith said she had high expectations for Suzanne. Suzanne accomplished them by being pushed to do better at school and at home, Judith said.

After graduating from high school in 1986, Suzanne became a resident at Our Place and became a worker for the Jackson County Community workshop.

The workshop gave her janitorial experience and she worked for eight weeks in a senior citizens center.

Suzanne said she was surprised when she was offered the training program at the Holiday Inn.

"I don't see myself working at Holiday Inn forever," Suzanne said. "I want to learn other things too."

in the state south of Springfield.

Van Derhoff said that Russell took Feirich to Chicago because Feirich has political power in the Southern Illinois legal community, and had to be turned over to "law enforcement officials outside his sphere of influence."

Russell took Feirich to Daley Center Plaza in Chicago, where Russell was arrested by two city police detectives in front of television cameras and members of the news media.

Before leaving Carbondale, Russell left a letter stating his intent at the Ramada Inn and called the Southern Illinoisian to have a reporter pick it up. Carbondale Police contacted Chicago Police later that afternoon to have Russell arrested for kidnapping.

Two Chicago detectives testified that they did not find a gun in Russell's car.

In the early 1970s, Van Derhoff said, Russell and a partner started the Southern Illinois Racquet Club. When the partner ran into financial difficulties, Russell agreed to turn his half share in the club over to him for 30 days until his troubles could be worked out, Van Derhoff said.

The partner died in a car accident before the 30 days were over and Russell's share was tied up in legal proceedings with the man's estate, Van Derhoff said.

Russell hired Feirich to represent him in the legal proceedings to get the share back. A dispute over $6,000 that Russell allegedly owed Feirich arose later. Russell claims that he was improperly charged.

Russell's first kidnapping trial ended in a mistrial June 26, 1986.

said. Blood supplies are low because of unexpectedly high usage, she said.

The University Park drive is open to all students who wish to donate blood, Paulette Curkin, assistant coordinator of housing programming, said.

"The students are excited about the drive," Curkin said. "They have been soliciting donors. They want to exceed the number of pints donated by Brush Towers."

The Brush Towers residence area held a make-up drive Friday that netted 194 pints of blood.

Two University students were charged with the theft of more than 500 free promotional game pieces from a drive-through window at McDonald's Restaurant, 2102 W. Main St., Monday night, Carbondale police said.

Gregory A. Martin, junior in journalism, and Rik L. Holmes, junior in biological sciences, were released on $100 bond and will face theft charges at Jackson County Courthouse May 11 at 10:30 a.m., police said.

The suspects allegedly reached through the open window and grabbed a container with the "Monopoly" game pieces.

Jacobson said police found Martin and Holmes in possession of the paper game pieces at their residence at 106 Greek Row.

When all of the books have been moved to the new facility, about 170,000 volumes will be stored there, Starrett said. Removal of the boxes is expected to take one month to six weeks.

The building will hold about 335,000 volumes when full, he continued. By that time library administrators hope to have an addition built onto Morris.

"Morris Library was built for 1 million volumes," Starrett said. "Currently we have 2 million." Starrett said that each year Morris Library receives about 50,000 new volumes. In about three or four years additional storage will be needed, he added.

"I wouldn't see this (stacking books in Morris Library) happening again," he said. "The No. 1 priority is to build an addition to Morris before stacking books in Morris again.

"I think everybody is really happy," Starrett said of getting the stacked books out of the library. "Besides just being ugly, it was not good for the books to be stacked in boxes."

The books should be on the shelves in the storage building in August, Starrett said.

Students needing books from the storage building can get them now, he said, but the use of these books is discouraged unless they are really needed. After filling out a request form, books can be retrieved later the same day.

Revised grievance procedures get approval from faculty senate

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

The 1987-1988 faculty senate approved the revised faculty grievance procedures at its final meeting of the spring session Tuesday.

The revision would move the decision for binding arbitration down from the Board of Trustees level to the University president. The president would either agree to enter into binding arbitration or the complainant could appeal the president's decision to the Board of Trustees.

Under the current procedure, the person filing the complaint may appeal to the Board of Trustees or may jointly agree with the board to arbitrate.

The revised grievance procedure still must go to the president and Board of Trustees for approval.

The senate did not vote on a resolution supporting the formation of a campus IPIRG chapter.

The resolution was tabled at the senate's April 12 meeting so the executive council could further study the legality of the proposed $3-per-student optional fee that would fund IPIRG.

The senate opted to seek more information on the proposal before voting.

After the meeting adjourned the 1988-1989 senate met to elect officers.

Donald Paige, professor of curriculum and instruction and 1987-1988 senate vice president, was elected president.

George Fraunfelder, professor of geology, was elected vice president and Montgomery Browning Carrott, director of the history department, was elected secretary.

One-year members of the committee on committees are: Chandra Banerjee, professor in the School of Medicine; Dennis Laake, coordinator of dental lab technology; and James Fox, assistant professor of library services.

Two-year members of the committee on committees are: Bill Gooch, assistant professor of vocational education studies; Donna Falvo, associate professor in the School of Medicine; Larry Busch, assistant professor of art; and John Dotson, assistant professor of history.

Business incubators should do more than create jobs, prof says

By Edward Rehe
Staff Writer

The proposed SIU-C small-business incubator should be more than just an economic tool to create jobs, a management professor says.

John R. Schermerhorn, professor of business management, spoke to 22 local community leaders, business leaders and university faculty Tuesday at an economic development research forum. The forum was sponsored by the SIU-C Office of Economic and Regional Development.

Currently, there are 250 small business incubators in the United States.

According to a study by the Office of Economic and Regional Development, the average incubator tenant creates only four jobs. Schermerhorn said that the low number of jobs created by the incubators doesn't seem like a good investment.

Mary Ann Dougherty, research project specialist at the Office of Economic Development, said the purpose of a business incubator is to provide an atmosphere in which small businesses can share facilities and support services such as secretaries, office equipment and conference rooms.

According to a study by the Office of Economic Development for the National Business Incubator Association, new businesses that came into the incubators with an average of four employees and doubled in size by the time they left were able to flourish outside the incubator.

But, Schermerhorn said, incubators should be built to develop a great diversity of businesses, ranging from student businesses to businesses run by the elderly and disabled.

"We could have an incubator community that assists these populations," he said.

Schermerhorn, who recently visited several small business incubators in England, cited the Astin Science center in Birmingham, England as an example of a small business incubator with a goal of changing the economic climate of Birmingham, not just to creating jobs.

Rhonda Vinson, director of SIU-C's Office of Economic Development, said that the proposed SIU-C small business incubator will do more than "just create jobs."

"The success of the incubator movement is a personality-driven phenomenon dependent on creative, flexible programs," she said.

A small business incubator in Carbondale will enhance the University's academic programs by providing internship opportunities and practical experience for students, Vinson said.

The regional benefits include diversifying businesses and dispersing them throughout the area, she said.

"You get an entrepreneurial spirit going and that can spread across a region," she said.

Vinson added that businesses that utilize the incubator can spread the message that Southern Illinois is the region to go to get a small business started.

Fire caused by ignited mop

By Ben Bauman
Student Writer

A mop ignited by a gas heater is suspected as the cause of a fire on East College Street Tuesday night, Carbondale assistant fire chief John Manis said.

Ann McQueen, a resident of the apartment, said her mother was in the apartment when the fire started at about 6 p.m. She escaped unharmed.

A witness said a large amount of smoke poured out of the apartment.

McQueen said the "smoke was too strong" for her to tell what caused the fire.

Carbondale firefighters extinguished the blaze in 15 minutes, Manis said.

Graduate students lead battle

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

With only four days to go in the Battle for the Books, the graduate students have regained the lead with $906.41 to the undergraduates $845.24.

The graduates are selling $1 raffle tickets for a trip for one to Hawaii from B & A Travel. To win, students must guess the number of people who used Morris Library in March.

The undergraduates are selling tickets for a trip for two to Cancun, Mexico, from Ask Mr. Foster-Thunderbird Travel, United Airlines and Tradewind Tours. Students must guess the number of items loaned to other libraries in March through the inter-library loan system.

The contest is to raise money for Morris Library's Two-for-Two campaign. Undergraduates and graduates are trying to raise $10,000 in raffle money for a named endowment for the library fund.

The contest began March 3 and will end Thursday. Tickets for the trips will be sold until 3:30 p.m. Saturday at Springfest, Bob Cole, graduate assistant for the Alumni Association and Student Alumni Council, said.

Other leaders in raising money for the campaign: Theta Xi, $167; Alpha Gamma Delta, $166.22; and Schneider Hall, $199.61.

Presentations of all prizes will be made at 4:30 p.m. Saturday at the main stage at Springfest.

"We're still optimistic that we're going to reach our $10,000 goal," Cole said. The undergraduates have all of their tickets out and are relying on last-minute sales to reach the goal,

New South Wales is set to perform at this year's Springfest.

Local band set to play on Springfest's stage

By Richard Nunez
Entertainment Editor

New South Wales will open the student stage performances at noon in the free-form area during Springfest.

Michael Ricci, guitarist and vocalist, said the band's set is divided evenly between original songs and cover songs, including "Yummy, Yummy" by the Archies and The Beatles' "Norwegian Wood."

"I guess you could describe it as '60s soda rock with a hard edge," Ricci said.

New South Wales consists of Ricci and Jeff Officer on guitars and vocals, Mike Lucas on drums and James Digirolamo on bass guitar.

Some of the band members were in the group Art Splatter, who performed during last year's Springfest and played songs including the Who's "My Generation" and the theme to "Spiderman."

"I'm looking forward to playing Springfest," Ricci said. "I think it will be a great time."

Ricci said Art Splatter's performance at last year's Springfest garnered a significant following and he is hoping Saturday's performance will do the same for New South Wales.

The response was great. People were really having a good time," Ricci said. "Hopefully, this gig (Springfest) will solidify the band."

New South Wales got its first break playing at Tres Hombras March 3.

"We dropped a promo off and begged for a gig," Ricci said. "Tres (Hombras) gave us a chance to play. They listened to us and gave us a break."

The band performs mostly at parties and, besides regular performances at Tres Hombras, the band also has played at Hangar 9 twice. Ricci said the hardest thing about performing in the band is balancing time between studying and performing.

"That's the thing about working and going to college," Ricci said. "We're taking the music seriously enough to get the job done. It's just hard to find time to practice and play together."

Jagger wins court battle

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — A smiling Mick Jagger won a court battle Tuesday against an aspiring reggae musician who charged him with stealing the song "Just Another Night." The Rolling Stones' star said the suit was "pointless."

A federal jury announced its verdict on its second day of deliberation in a suit filed by Patrick Alley, 37, a Bronx musician who claimed Jagger wrote his 1985 solo hit after hearing a song by the Jamaican-born musician.

"It's been a wonderful week in White Plains," Jagger said with a broad smile after the verdict was read.

"It was pointless," he said. "Of course I'm relieved. My reputation is completely clear. If you are well known, people will take shots at you. I don't think the song is similar to mine at all," he added.

Alley asked in the lawsuit for an estimated $6 million in profits from the album "She's the Boss," on which the song appeared. He claimed it was based on a song he wrote in 1979 and recorded for a small label in 1983.

Juror Thomas Byrne, 27, of Wappingers Falls, N.Y., said the jury was never in disagreement over a verdict but had been confused by the judge's instructions.

Blackhawk copter set for display

Two U.S. Army helicopters will be displayed and demonstrated from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday near Abe Martin Field, southwest of the Arena.

The aircraft being displayed are the CH-47 Chinook, the largest helicopter in the Army's inventory, and the UH-60 Blackhawk, one of its newer aircraft.

Capt. Richard Haidle, assistant professor of army military science, said that Saturday will be the first time the Blackhawk has been on the SIU-C campus.

The public is invited to attend the annual ROTC Presidential Review ceremonies at 10 a.m. Saturday.

SIU environmentalist advocates protecting Alaskan wildlife area

By James T. Davis
Student Writer

A spectacular chunk of Alaskan land that rivals the Grand Canyon in grandeur could soon be destroyed. James Glover, a lecturer in recreation, is trying to save this piece of American wilderness. He calls it "a home for other forms of life where the other species on this planet are allowed to function without our interference."

The conflict concerns the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, which the Department of Interior wants to exploit for its oil reserves. Glover called the refuge — which runs along Alaska's northern coastline — "one of the most extraordinary places in the world."

"We are being asked to deface an evolutionary masterpiece in order to have 15 more years of being the most wasteful civilization in history," Glover wrote in a recent newspaper article. "This is arrogance on the grandest scale."

Glover is one of a small number of people who actually have been to the refuge. What struck him most about his experience was "the feeling of immense space" the refuge gave him.

He said that the rest of Alaska's northern coastline has been disturbed, so the refuge should be left to its residents, which include caribou, polar bears, and musk-oxen.

"They ought to have a place where they don't have to walk under pipelines, around machinery or through oil spills," Glover said.

Meanwhile, Glover continues to make frequent forays into the wild. "The more trips I make, the more I don't need to come back, the more relaxed I become. Being in the outdoors seems more like what things should be than being in town."

Glover has hiked and explored the Big Sky country of Montana, the deserts of Texas and the chilly northern slopes of Alaska.

But Glover has found that peace of mind can be hard to come by in the wilderness too — if one is unprepared for nature's little surprises, that is. Glover discovered this while hiking up Mt. Washington in New Hampshire.

"I wasn't equipped with the right equipment for hiking the peak," Glover said. "All of a sudden, while I was going up, I slipped, and started sliding down the mountain. I grabbed a rock just before going down an icy slope about a mile long."

Recreation lecturer James Glover actively opposes the development of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge in Alaska by oil companies.

Glover became interested in outdoor pursuits in college, when he took a canoe trip in the Adirondack Mountains in upstate New York. A few years later, when he was teaching at Hood College in Maryland, he took a wilderness experience course that further stimulated his interest in the outdoors.

Glover said that he still vividly recalls the mist rolling off a river during the course.

Glover's love of the wilderness has fueled his interest in fighting on its behalf. His strongest weapon is his pen, he says. Glover has written many articles urging people to appreciate their natural heritage.

"Humans have become extremely arrogant about the world's resources, and the U.S. is one of the worst," Glover said.

The world's remaining wilderness areas should be preserved for the non-human inhabitants of our planet, Glover says. "Other species ought to have a right to a place in this world. The earth isn't all ours. We have to learn to share it."

Glover also sees important spiritual values in the wilderness. "It's important to get away from the urban environment. It's very relaxing. You get in tune with natural cycles."

Glover also thinks that a love of the outdoors is instinctual. "Human beings spent 95 percent of their time in the wild. It has only been in the relatively short last couple of thousand years that we lived in cities," Glover said.

Civil service sale planned

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

The Civil Service Employees Council will hold its annual yard sale at 8 a.m. Saturday in the arena Parking lot.

"People are always looking for a bargain," Pat Harris, a member of the council's educational assistance program said. Booth rental is $20 for two parking spaces.

But the bargain this year, as in the past five years the yard sale has been held, is the funding of the Civil Service Employees Educational Assistance Program, Harris said.

The program sponsors tuition scholarships for dependants of civil service employees attending the University.

"The yard sale brings in half the money we put into the scholarships," Harris said. The council hopes to raise $1,000 at the yard sale.

"A majority of the money we raise comes from booth rental," Jeanne Eaton, an educational assistance program member, said. Booth rental is $20 for two parking spaces.

The council usually awards eight or nine $100 scholarships through the SIU Foundation during the fall and spring semesters, Harris said.

The number of vendors at the sale varies from year to year, Harris said. This year the council is expecting 35 vendors.

"A lot of people show up on the day of the sale with items," Harris said.

World Court rules against expulsion of PLO

U.S. ordered to yield to arbitration to resolve dispute over U.N. status

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (UPI) — The world court ruled Tuesday the United States cannot unilaterally close down the Palestine Liberation Organization mission to the United Nations and must submit to arbitration to solve the dispute.

The unanimous verdict by the world court — also known as the International Court of Justice — agreed almost entirely with arguments made by U.N. legal adviser Carl-August Fleischauer when he brought the case before the panel's 15 judges earlier this month. The United Nations has maintained that the United States as the host country for the United Nations cannot unilaterally close any mission accredited to the world body without violating the 1947 U.N. Headquarters Agreement.

The U.N. General Assembly, which in 1974 granted the PLO official status of observer without the right to vote, urged the United States to enter into arbitration under the treaty. The United States rejected arbitration on grounds the matter was before U.S. courts. Last year Congress passed the Anti-Terrorism Act, prompting the Department of Justice to close the Palestine information office in Washington in December and make an attempt last month to close the PLO observer mission in New York.

The United States refused to attend the world court's hearing, saying it was premature and the PLO and other interested parties could be represented in the U.S. court case in New York. No decision has been made in that case and the PLO mission remains open.

The world court — in its non-binding verdict — specifically rejected the U.S. view that arbitration was not timely. These proceedings "could not constitute an agreed means of settlement within the meaning" of the headquarters agreement because their purpose was to enforce the Anti-Terrorism Act and not to settle the dispute, the world court said.

The court also rejected the U.S. view that the measures against the PLO mission were "taken irrespective of any obligations" under the 1947 agreement. Court President Jose Maria Ruda of Argentina said "it was sufficient to recall the fundamental principle that international law prevails over domestic law, a principle long endorsed by judicial decisions."

In New York, U.N. spokesman Francois Giulliani said the court's advisory opinion "obviously confirms that the U.N. legal analysis was correct." Fleischauer said he was happy with the court's decision, but was displeased with the situation itself.

"We would like to have harmonious relations with our host country," he said. "The court has spoken in the same sense as we."

"Now it's for the U.S. to decide what conclusion to draw," he said.

Saudis expected to sign treaty, break diplomatic ties with Iran

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saudi Arabia, in a move expected to ease congressional opposition to future arms sales to the kingdom, has told the United States it will sign the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, officials said Tuesday.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman welcomed the Saudi announcement and said the administration will send formal notification to Capitol Hill in the next few days of a proposed $450 million sale of equipment and weapons to enhance the Saudi air defense system.

In addition, U.S. officials said they expect Saudi Arabia to announce it is breaking diplomatic relations with Iran, a move that would be welcomed by Washington as further isolating a nation accused of fomenting international terrorism.

"We welcome the Saudi government decision to sign the Non-Proliferation Treaty," Redman said. "This decision will strengthen the international non-proliferation regime and we continue to urge other governments that have not signed the (treaty) to do so."

The treaty binds the countries that sign it not to try to acquire nuclear explosive devices, and to refrain from transferring such weapons to

"We welcome the Saudi government decision to sign the Non-Proliferation Treaty. This decision will strengthen the international non-proliferation regime and we continue to urge other governments that have not signed the (treaty) to do so."

—Charles Redman

countries that do not possess nuclear arms.

Redman said the United States has a continuing concern over the acquisition by Saudi Arabia of ballistic surface-to-surface missiles from China, although the Saudi government had earlier informed the United States there was no intention to put nuclear warheads on the missiles.

U.S. officials said the administration intends to notify Congress formally in the next day or two of the proposed $450 million package of equipment for Saudi Arabia's AWACS — airborne warning and control systems aircraft that provide surveillance and battle command.

Some members of Congress had already told the State Department the arms package was unlikely to win approval, given the secret Saudi acquisition of the Chinese missiles, which are capable of reaching both Iranian and Israeli cities and could be equipped with nuclear warheads.

Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., a House author of a letter demanding the sale be delayed until questions about the missiles and Middle East military balance are resolved, said the Saudis' intention to sign the nonproliferation treaty "is certainly a welcome move, but it doesn't diminish congressional concern."

"The Chinese missiles, even without nuclear warheads, pose a real threat to the security of the entire region."

Redman said the arms sales is necessary to upgrade the Saudi air defense system but was also "critical to our own Persian Gulf policy. The Saudi AWACS operation provides important support for the U.S. mission in the Gulf, including protection for U.S. Navy personnel and equipment."

He said, "It's in the national security interest of the United States to conclude this deal."

Iraq cites blunder in peninsula battle

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UPI) — President Saddam Hussein admitted in published remarks Tuesday that Iraqi troops failed to enter Iranian territory after recapturing the strategic Faw peninsula because their own warplanes destroyed three bridges across the Shatt-al-Arab river.

In a speech published in Baghdad, Hussein half-jokingly chided Defense Minister Gen. Adnan Khairullah for not properly coordinating with the air force commander to keep the bridges intact so that Iraqi troops could cross into Iran.

Hussein gave the speech Monday during ceremonies to decorate top-ranking officers for what is viewed in Iraq as a brilliant victory at Faw on April 18. Iraqi troops caught the Iranians by surprise with their offensive on the strategic peninsula, at the southern end of the 750-mile front.

In a 36-hour battle the Iraqis routed the Iranians and recaptured a section of the peninsula that has been under Iranian occupation since 1986.

The battle for Faw, seen by authorities as a turning point in the Persian Gulf war, was overshadowed by the American attack on two Iranian oil rigs in the southern gulf and the subsequent U.S.-Iranian naval clash.

Details of the Iraqi victory at Faw only now are surfacing and indicate Baghdad's troops last week scored their biggest victory since the early days of the nearly 8-year-old conflict.

Official: Don't link school reform, tax increase

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Chicago Mayor Eugene Sawyer backed a 30- to 40-percent hike in Illinois' income tax Tuesday and promised reform of Chicago schools, but House Speaker Michael Madigan said the two should not be linked.

"I'm in support of an increase," said Sawyer, following testimony on Chicago school reform before a Senate committee. "Three-quarters or one percent. I'm not sure."

The personal income tax, currently at 2.5 percent, would rise to 3.25 percent or 3.5 percent under the hikes mentioned by Sawyer. The corporate income tax rate, now at 4 percent, would go up a like amount.

When told that some lawmakers and Gov. James R.

Thompson are insisting on Chicago school reform in exchange for higher taxes, Sawyer replied, "I agree we're gonna have real school reform."

But Madigan, a Chicago Democrat, said reform of Chicago's schools and higher taxes should not be linked.

"I think we ought to consider this question on its merits — does the state of Illinois need a tax increase? We shouldn't link it to changes in one school system when there are thousands of school systems in the state," Madigan said. "Republican political propaganda, that's all it is."

Madigan's comments are his first regarding the parameters necessary for him to support higher taxes. His opposition to Thompson's tax plan last year was instrumental in dooming it. But while Madigan said the mayor's support for higher taxes is an "important consideration" that he will take into account, he said at this point he still is not convinced higher taxes are necessary.

Madigan maintains he can reshuffle Thompson's budget and come up with up to $25 million more for Chicago schools next year.

Trend of migration from urban to rural communities reverses

URBANA, Ill. (UPI) — The migration from urban areas to Illinois' smaller communities in the 1970s appears to be taking a reverse trend in the current decade, a University of Illinois rural sociologist said Tuesday.

"These are not the best of times for rural areas in Illinois," Andrew Sofranko said. "Many areas, in addition to population decline, are also experiencing an erosion in services, the disappearance of jobs and the closing of businesses."

Sofranko said the "rural renaissance" that saw rural counties grow at more than twice the rate of urbanized counties in the 1970s has given way to a rural population decline and a rural out-migration in the current decade.

"Almost all rural areas in Illinois experienced net out-migration in the 1980s, with the result that there are about 35,000 fewer rural people now than there were eight years ago," Sofranko said.

While relatively fewer people are leaving the state's farms, Sofranko said the negative agricultural trends of previous decades continue unabated in the 1980s.

In the past three decades, Illinois farms have increased in average size to about 350 acres, he added.

"Between 1950 and 1982, Illinois lost about 56,000 farms, an average of more than 200 a month," Sofranko said. "At present, about 12 percent of Illinois farms are experiencing financial stress, having debt-to-asset ratios above 40 percent and facing negative cash incomes."

"The Illinois trend in farm numbers and size reflects national trends of the last 50 years," he added. "Since 1930, about half the farms in the Midwest have disappeared, while those that survived have grown bigger."

Both rural and agricultural counties had large increases in the working age population between the ages of 15 and 64 years in the decade between 1970 and 1980, a reflection of in-migration, Sofranko said.

Jewel begins mailing compensation offers

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jewel Companies Inc. has begun mailing out compensation offers of $200 to $1,000 to the first of 24,000 plaintiffs in a 1985 salmonella outbreak traced to a now-closed Jewel dairy, a plaintiffs' attorney said Tuesday.

About 120 offers were mailed out Monday to victims who were sick for up to four days, said Lawrence Leck, an attorney for plaintiffs in a class-action suit in Cook County Circuit Court.

Leck, other plaintiffs' attorneys and Jewel attorneys now will begin negotiating individually on cases in which victims were sick for longer periods. Leck estimated it would take at least a year to resolve all the claims.

All the victims have the right to proceed in court if they are not satisfied with Jewel's offers. Victims receiving the first compensation offerings have 30 days to accept or reject them, Leck said.

Leck was among several attorneys who unsuccessfully sought punitive damages from Jewel last year in a jury trial that lasted three months. Jewel had agreed before the trial to pay compensatory damages to all known victims.

Researchers reported last December in the Journal of the American Medical Association that between 168,000 and 197,000 people became ill from the outbreak.

The tainted milk from Jewel's now-closed Hillfarm Dairy in Melrose Park was responsible for two known deaths and possibly was related to 12 others, the researchers said.

Ex-student leader joins Poshard

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

Former Undergraduate Student Organization president and student trustee Andrew Leighton has been hired to raise funds for the congressional campaign of state Sen. Glenn Poshard.

Leighton, a master's student in public administration, said he is searching for political action committees that may find Poshard an attractive candidate and persuading those committees to either donate volunteers or money to Poshard's campaign.

"I'm looking for PACs that Poshard can naturally and effectively represent," he said. "Labor unions and education PACs are a shoo-in."

Poshard has supported labor unions and education since he was elected to the state Legislature in 1984, Leighton said.

Poshard, the Democratic candidate for the 22nd District congressional seat, supports a tax increase for education. The 22nd District includes Carbondale.

After identifying PACs that likely will support Poshard, Leighton, 26, said he will send the committees letters about Poshard and the district, including information about the district's 34-year tradition of Democratic representation.

In addition, Leighton said he'll send the PACs newsletters to "reinforce the bandwagon effect."

"We want to let them (the committees) know that they won't lose if they support him (Poshard)," he said. "We want to keep his name in front of people."

Jim Wilson, Poshard's campaign manager, said Leighton has a record of hard work and dedication as a volunteer in organizations like College Democrats and the Jackson County Central Committee.

Peace protesters to rally at base

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

A local peace group will protest the U.S. Air Force's involvement in Central America from noon to 2 p.m. Saturday at Scott Air Force Base near Belleville.

"Our whole campaign is to start a public debate about military activities going on at the base," Georgeann Hartzog, a member of the Southern Illinois Latin America Solidarity Committee, said. "We want to let military planners know we know what they're planning."

The National Guard Clearing House has been gathering information about the transfer of military equipment and personnel from Scott, Hartzog said. The clearing house will release documents obtained through a Freedom of Information Act request regarding the transfers.

The National Guard Clearing House is a project of the peace group, Pledge of Resistance, which traced the training of military personnel in Central America, Hartzog said.

Although Hartzog doesn't know what the documents contain, she said they concern Air Force activities at Scott that support U.S. military operations in Central America.

The base is the home of The Military Airlift Command, which controls all military transportation operations. An Air Force spokeswoman at Scott denied that the base was involved in transporting materials or personnel to Central America.

"We coordinate the lift of materials and personnel for other Air Force bases," Lauren Sobkoviak, public affairs, said. "We coordinate the lifts to anywhere in the world they are needed. But Scott has not sent materials or personnel to Central America."

SILASC says that Scott Air Force Base played a major role in the recent deployment of more than 5,300 troops to Honduras and Panama.

The clearing house also will release the names of U.S. military personnel killed in Central America. The names also were obtained through a Freedom of Information Act request, Hartzog said.

U.N. peace video aims at students

By Amy Gaubatz
Staff Writer

A videotaped talk on world peace will be presented by a top ranking United Nations official at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the fourth floor Video Lounge in the Student Center.

Robert Muller, chancellor of the United Nations' University of Peace in Costa Rica, will discuss "The Genesis of Global Peace Consciousness."

The talk, which is free and open to the public, is sponsored by the U.N. Simulation Association in cooperation with the Southern Illinois Chapter of the U.N. Association-U.S.A.

Muller is the former assistant secretary general and deputy under-secretary general of the United Nations.

He is a native of France and joined the U.N. Secretariat in 1948. Since then he has supervised much of the U.N.'s social and economic work.

Topics covered will include the origin of the idea of world peace, the League of Nations and the origins of the United Nations after World War II. The video will address the Reagan administration and point out where cooperation has not been present.

"The American people have not realized how important the U.N. is," Frank Klingberg, faculty advisor for the U.N. Simulation Association and board member of the U.N. Association, said.

Klingberg said the talk is something that Americans should see.

Economy expands, reflects spending

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The economy moved into its sixth year of expansion in the first quarter of 1988 with an annual growth rate of 2.3 percent, reflecting strong performances in personal spending, investments and exports, the government said Tuesday.

The increase in real gross national product, or the value of all goods and services after adjustment for inflation, was less than half of the 4.8 percent rate in the fourth quarter. Growth in GNP was $21.8 billion in the first three months of the year compared with $44.9 billion in the previous quarter.

But analysts expected a slowdown and were not distressed by the GNP figure.

"I think these GNP numbers are uncommonly good," said Jerry Jasinowski, chief economist of the National Association of Manufacturers.

"Consumers have shaken off the stock market crash; excess inventories are being worked off and business is investing in new equipment at an astonishing pace," he added.

In addition to gains in personal spending, non-residential fixed investment and exports, the economy in the first quarter also recorded increases in imports, state and local government purchases and final sales. Inventory growth slowed while residential investment and federal government purchases declined.

In a report that accompanied the preliminary GNP estimate, the Commerce Department also said corporate profits after taxes rose a revised 2.6 percent in the fourth quarter of last year, up from the originally reported 1.6 percent.

All figures were adjusted for seasonal variations.

Inflation as measured by the GNP report's implicit price deflator was 2.4 percent in the first quarter, according to the department's Bureau of Economic Analysis. Another measure of inflation, the GNP price index, increased 3.7 percent in the first quarter, compared with 3.6 percent in the fourth quarter.

Beryl Sprinkel, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, told reporters the latest statistics should erase earlier fears about the economy and said, "The economy is on track for moderate further expansion and for restrained inflation in 1988." The current expansion began in November 1982.

Trade bill has new problem

Alaskan senators express outrage about export rule

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As the Senate resumed debate on a sweeping trade reform bill Tuesday, a new problem arose that could further jeopardize the measure designed to reverse the nation's trade deficit.

Sens. Ted Stevens and Frank Murkowski, both Republicans from Alaska, expressed their outrage about a provision in the huge bill that would limit the export of oil refined by new refineries in Alaska to 70,030 barrels a day.

During a private meeting, before the Senate resumed its third day of debate on the trade bill, the two Alaskans led an intense discussion of the provision and questioned the constitutionality of the federal government placing export limits on petroleum products refined in one state but not others.

"I believe we have gone too far down the road to becoming a state to permit the senators from Alaska to vote for the bill," said Stevens later on the Senate floor, if the oil provision remains. He argued that it should be stripped from the bill.

The fate of the trade bill, intended to open international markets to American exports and crack down on foreign trade abuses, is already uncertain because of President Reagan's repeated veto threats. The House approved it 312 to 107 last week.

Reagan and the business community staunchly oppose a provision that requires companies to give employees 60 days notice before closing a business or ordering massive layoffs, arguing it is an unnecessary government intrusion into the private sector.

Organized labor and the Democratic leadership of the House and Senate support the plant closing notification requirement, calling it a matter of simple fairness.

"The president's going to be making a big mistake if he vetoes this bill," Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia warned.

Byrd discounted as "political flim-flam" arguments that once the president vetoes the trade bill, Congress could simply pass another version without the plant closing amendment and send it back to the White House.

"Somebody's putting the plug in the wrong place," he said. "They don't have it 'wired' here."

Byrd also cautioned that if the administration vetoes the trade bill, it should expect problems on the U.S.-Canada trade pact that it desperately wants Congress to approve.

Official: Acid rain to be ignored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan and Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney will hold a fourth and final annual summit today with politics on both sides of the border certain to shape the agenda and limit the outcome.

Mulroney was due to arrive Tuesday night for two full days of talks expected to be dominated by his renewed charges of U.S. foot-dragging in environmental affairs and discussion of expanded cooperation in trade and security matters.

With his wife, Mila, Mulroney will be wined and dined at the White House — not once, as is customary, but twice — and address a joint meeting of Congress on a state visit designed in no small part for domestic consumption at home.

Mulroney will accuse the administration of failing to move decisively to reduce air pollution blamed for 50 percent of the acid rain that is killing or contaminating streams, lakes, rivers, forests and fields in Canada.

The meeting is viewed by Canadian officials as Mulroney's last opportunity to plead with Reagan for action. At the same time, Reagan's lame-duck status and the rush of election-year politics makes such action unlikely this year.

Since he took office, Mulroney has seen his political fortunes rise and fall on the basis of his policy of cordial relations with the United States in general and Reagan.

This is no time to worry about how you're going to get your stuff home.

The good news is there is life after finals. And we can make it a little easier. At Ryder we can rent you any size van or truck you need. Vans that are fun to drive. (Fun...what's that?) Many are automatics. Most have power steering, air conditioning and AM/FM radio. We can also help with boxes, hand trucks, even tips on loading a truck. Which could help take a load off your mind. Whatever's left of it.

Medicare tells man he is alive

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — It took a while, but Gene Lehr believes he finally has convinced the people at Medicare he still is alive.

Lehr's problems began a year ago when he began getting notices from Medicare in Iowa in reference to the hospitalization of Glen Lehr, who later died.

Gene Lehr called the offices of Blue Cross of Iowa in Des Moines, which handles Medicare claims in the region. Blue Cross assured him the problem would be corrected and the notices stopped coming.

In March, Gene Lehr had knee surgery. He filed his claim and received notices addressed to "Estate of Gene Lehr." Medicare wanted to know who his heirs were and who should receive the payments.

'Flying' kid sells kite to museum

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Ripley's Believe It or Not Museum is enshrining the kite an 8-year-old girl somehow managed to snag on a low-flying plane, hoisting her 10 feet in the air and towing her 200 feet across a city park.

The large kite and a life-size photograph of DeAndrea Anrig will be the centerpiece of the museum's main lobby when it opens in San Francisco.

The girl became an instant celebrity in March when an air ambulance en route to Palo Alto Municipal Airport got her kite string tangled in its propeller.

Frisbee record surpassed

NEW LONDON, Conn. (UPI) — Two Connecticut College students surpassed the world record for continuous Frisbee tossing Tuesday, but rather than stop they decided to push on and extend their mark.

were cheered on by classmates at 7:40 a.m. Tuesday as they matched the record of 110 hours and 40 minutes set in 1981.

The two had planned to end their tossing by noon at the private school, but they decided to continue into late Tuesday.

Sophomores Jeremy Tubb of Oklahoma City and John Fischer of Maplewood, N.J.,

Group says thousands of Palestinians injured

BOSTON (UPI) — Thousands of Palestinians — far more than Israel claims — have suffered serious injuries in beatings by Israeli soldiers on the occupied West Bank and Gaza, a physicians peace group charged Tuesday.

Physicians for Human Rights, which sent a fact-finding delegation of four doctors to Israel for eight days in February, also said medical relief efforts are being hampered by curfews and underfunding in the occupied territories.

"One of our main findings is that there have been thousands — not hundreds — of serious injuries," said Dr. Jonathan Fine, the group's executive director.

Their report, released Tuesday, alleges "an essentially uncontrolled epidemic of violence" in the occupied territories, including systematic beatings and use of high velocity live ammunition, tear gas and rubber bullets.

"Our conclusion is that there are a large number of instances here of excessive force being used and this accounts for the large number of injuries and the mounting death toll," said Fine.

Israeli officials defend the tactics employed in the occupied territories as a legitimate response to Palestinian unrest.

Israel takes reporters' credentials

JERUSALEM (UPI) — The government Tuesday revoked the credentials of two correspondents working for U.S. news organizations who reported that elite Israeli commandos assassinated PLO military commander Khalil Al-Wazir in Tunisia.

Glenn Frankel of The Washington Post and Martin Fletcher of NBC News were stripped of their press cards because they failed to submit their reports on the April 16 assassination to Israeli military censors.

The move came as an Israeli patrol and suspected Arab guerrillas trying to infiltrate northern Israel from Lebanon clashed in a firefight that left three guerrillas and two Israeli soldiers dead.

An army spokesman said two Israeli soldiers also were wounded in the shootout 200 yards inside the Israeli border on the slopes of Mount Dov, an area of repeated infiltration attempts.

Military officials told Army Radio that papers found on the three Arabs indicated they were members of the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, which was responsible for the 1974 Ma'alot school massacre in which 25 Israelis were killed.

A senior Israel officer told Army Radio the infiltrators were trying to reach a civilian target. Leftist militia sources in Lebanon said the suspected guerrillas were trying to reach the northern Israeli settlement of Dan.

Israeli troops first detected the footprints of the guerrillas in the early morning and for several hours searched the rough terrain for the infiltrators with helicopters and patrols, Army Radio reported. Nearby Israeli settlements went on alert and the army sealed off the area.

Just before dawn, the guerrillas, who were hiding in thick brush, opened fire on a passing patrol from about 2 yards away, Army Radio said. The Israeli patrol charged the guerrillas, who threw grenades and fired a bazooka.

The border penetration was the first since the Palestine Liberation Organization vowed to carry out reprisals against Israel for the slaying of Al-Wazir, better known as Abu Jihad, at his residence in Tunis, Tunisia.

News reports from Jerusalem blamed Israel for the slaying, but Israel has declined official comment.

Both Fletcher and Frankel, in separate reports, quoted Israeli sources as saying the killing was carried out by a crack Israeli commando team of members of the Mossad intelligence agency, the army, navy and air force.

Mayors bemoan war on drugs, want anti-drug czar appointed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Angry and frustrated mayors and law enforcement officials called Tuesday for "united national drug strategy," including appointment of a Cabinet-level anti-drug czar and declaration of drugs as the nation's "No. 1 foreign policy concern."

Under sponsorship of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, more than 200 mayors and chiefs of police unanimously adopted a 25-point statement declaring "illegal drugs are a critical international problem affecting our nation, clearly equal to other national security threats."

The bipartisan group expressed frustration and anger at what they called inadequate financing of the war on drugs by the administration and delays in getting the money to "front lines" of the cities where the war is being waged. "I'm very frustrated," said San Diego Mayor Maureen O'Connor. "You've already lost one generation to drugs. We can't afford to lose another. They're balancing the budget on the backs of children."

The 25-point strategy adopted by the local officials from more than 100 cities took the mayors into the generally unfamiliar area of foreign policy but they showed no hesitation in demanding a tough response by the federal government to the flow of drugs into the nation.

"Illegal drugs are a critical international problem affecting the people of our

Mayor makes big score

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Mayor Bill Boner donned a fake beard and dark glasses, climbed into an old pickup truck and went undercover last week to see how easy it is to buy illegal drugs in his city. He wound up purchasing more than $50 worth of cocaine and Dilaudid on streets he found inhabited by "willing buyers" and "anxious sellers." Boner's account of last week's undercover operation was detailed in a bylined story written by him and published in Tuesday's Nashville Banner.

Boner said a professional makeup artist helped him with his disguise and that he looked about 10 years older.

The mayor, who learned first hand of the homeless problem in a similar foray onto the streets four years ago while he was a congressman, was accompanied on the trip by a police informant and the informant's girlfriend. Boner described both as drug addicts. He drove an old pickup truck and was also under the eye of Nashville vice officers.

The first drug purchase was Dilaudid, a powerful prescription narcotic sold illicitly as a heroin substitute.

nation, clearly equal to other national security threats," the local officials said.

They also called for tougher sanctions than now written in the law that would deny foreign aid "to any drug source country that fails to cooperate satisfactorily with our government in curbing its drug exports to our nation."

"When it comes to drugs," said Mayor Joseph Paulino, Providence, R.I., "foreign policy becomes a neighborhood issue."

Specifically citing Bolivia,

Colombia and Mexico, Paulino said, "They're not friendly governments. They're allies, but they're not friendly. Why? Because they're killing our kids."

Paulino's theme was echoed by New York's Mayor Ed Koch, who called on the U.S. government to vote against loans to Mexico by international banking agencies such as the World Bank.

"We're told it will impair our relationship and maybe they'd go communist — that's the implication," Koch said.

Mayors: Flood of illegal drugs drowning cities across nation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mayors complained Tuesday to Attorney General Edwin Meese that his highly publicized federal war against drugs was just a finger in a dike "that's about to collapse and flood us in the trenches" of the cities.

The officials confronted Meese at a mayors' conference on crime and told him the flood of illegal drugs and the related increase in crime in the nation's cities belie his claims that stepped-up federal action is staunching the flow of drugs into the United States.

Meese outlined the administration's current anti-drug efforts to the U.S. Conference of Mayors' National Conference on Crime, but he said he sees no need for a "national drug czar" because "I can't see putting in another layer of bureaucracy on top of what we already have."

That remark prompted pointed criticism from some local officials who voiced frustration that the administration's action on its No. 1 domestic priority has not matched its rhetoric.

Mayor Joseph Paulino of Providence, R.I., told Meese he was talking to "some very frustrated people, mayors and police chiefs, who've been on the front lines fighting this drug problem."

Paulino, who said his city is "the heroin capital of New England," wondered aloud — if so much anti-drug action was under way, "Why the heck do we have this problem?"

"We sincerely feel that the policy of the federal government isn't a policy," the mayor said. "We don't see how the federal government is really working in partnership with the communities. Now, maybe it is on paper ... but it isn't in reality."

Meese agreed that "there's no question that we need more resources" to hire "generals" in the war on drugs, but then blamed a foot-dragging Congress.

Acne drug OK to sell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government advisory panel recommended Tuesday that the powerful acne drug Accutane can remain on the market despite reports it has caused hundreds of birth defects, but urged further safeguards to ensure pregnant women avoid taking it.

The report followed a day of testimony from experts who clashed over whether the drug should be withdrawn or if doctors should be prohibited from prescribing it to women of childbearing age.

The vote of the 11-member advisory panel in favor of keeping the drug on the market was unanimous.

Investments
by Canadians
total billions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Canadians have vast investments, totaling billions of dollars, in U.S. newspaper, magazine and book publishing and cable television, according to a study by the General Accounting Office released Tuesday.

GAO, the congressional watchdog agency, said it could not place a value on Canadian holdings in the U.S. publishing industry but estimated that the value of their cable television investments total $1.8 billion.

The report said, however, that just two of the eight Canadian corporations with investments in the publishing sector, Thomson Newspapers Ltd. and International Thomson Organization Ltd., have combined sales in the United States of over $1.2 billion.

Thomson Newspapers Ltd. owns 109 newspapers and International Thomson Organization owns 40 publishing subsidiaries.

The GAO identified the six other corporations with newspaper and other publishing investments as Hollinger Inc., Maclean Hunter Ltd., Torstar Corp., Quebecor Inc., Bell Canada Entreprises Inc., and Arden Management Ltd.

The five Canadian corporations with investments in U.S. cable television are Rogers Communications Inc., Maclean Hunter Ltd., Moffat Communications Ltd., Selkirk Communications Ltd., and Amzak Corp.

The study was requested by Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., to use in the dialogue over the proposed U.S.-Canada Free Trade Agreement.

The agreement, designed to increase trade and investment opportunities for the United States and Canada, exempts "cultural industries" such as motion pictures, publishing and cable television.

The exemption would allow Canada to continue existing limits on U.S. investments in these industries and even to impose additional limits, although, in that event, the United States could retaliate.

—Sen. Pete Wilson

"The open investment policy of the United States allows Canadian companies to invest billions of dollars in U.S. cable systems, newspapers, magazines and book publishing," Wilson said.

"Yet, despite this clear example of the benefits of free trade, Canada has plans to tighten the screws on similar U.S. operations in Canada."

NEW YORK (UPI) — A cash-card machine at a Manhattan bank doled out $20 bills in place of $5 bills, but customers who thought they had made out like bandits will have their windfalls withdrawn from their bank accounts, officials said Tuesday.

First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Rochester, N.Y., said it discovered the berserk machine after an honest customer told officials he had received the extra money. The bank said no criminal charges were expected to be filed.

Spokesman Robert Nolan said it was human error that caused the bank's cash machine in Manhattan's East Village to go crazy and dole out $20 bills in tead of $5 Sunday afternoon.

"The exact cause is still being examined but it has been traced to a misreading of one of the canisters," he said.

Someone at the bank accidentally put $20 bills in a $5 bill canister, he said.

Nolan said the loss was "not significant" however. "It was somewhat less than $5,000," he estimated.

He said the bank was doing a detailed analysis of how many customers reaped windfalls and "we will request that their accounts be debited appropriately."

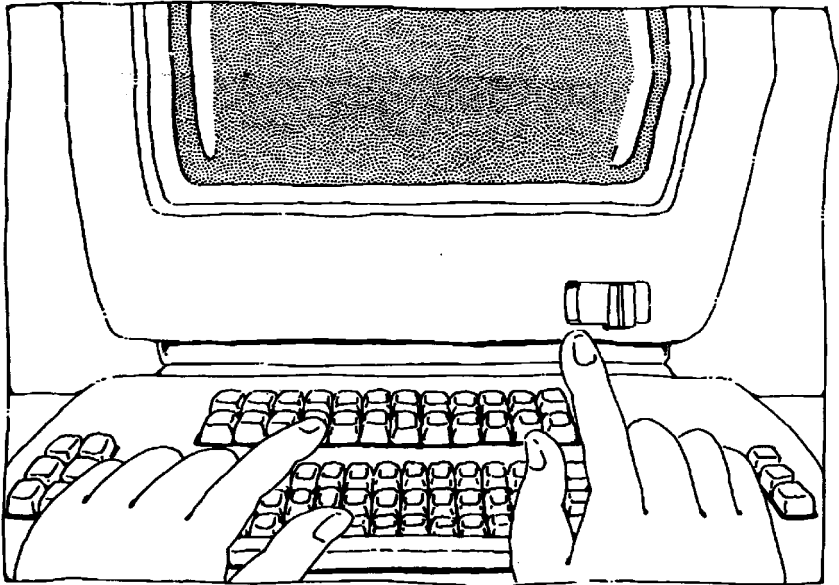

Nolan added that it was the first time First Federal ever had that kind of problem and "we expect it will be the last."

News of that the automatic teller was dispensing free money had card-holders lining up to grab the cash.

One writer from the East Village, who asked to remain anonymous, said "A friend of mine called me late Sunday evening and was very excited and said the cash machine on 14th Street was giving away money."

He rushed down to the bank and found a half dozen people ahead of him, eagerly taking out money.

Rhoades: Players responding well to coaches

By Jeff Grieser
Staff Writer

After three weeks of spring drills, Head Football Coach Rick Rhoades said he is getting the group effort essential for a successful team.

Rhoades said when he was named SIU-C head football coach a month ago that such an group effort was one of his goals.

"Our players are out there giving their best every day," Rhoades said. "Every practice gets a little bit better. We've definitely made progress."

The team has responded well to the coaching staff, Rhoades said.

"They (the new coaches) have done just what we expected of them. I'm very pleased with their efforts," Rhoades said.

SIU-C played its second major scrimmage of the spring Saturday. The team has progressed since the first scrimmage, Rhoades said.

"There was some good and some bad, just like most of our spring," he said. "We're still making some mistakes, most of them mental."

"We didn't have the mesh problems that we had a week ago, and we were passing the ball better. I think we were 21 of 29 (in pass completions). We're pretty much on track," he said.

Rhoades said that freshman Scott Planz performed well at quarterback on Saturday.

"Scott helped himself on Saturday. He's been playing well this last week, so he's put himself into the running," Rhoades said. Fred Gibson is still number one at this point, however, Rhoades said.

"Freddie's been running number one most of the spring," he said. "If we had to go to war right now, I'd say Freddie and Ray Monica would be our one and two quarterbacks. But it's just too early to make a decision like that right now."

Rhoades said that six-foot-six sophomore Yogi Henderson has been doing the job since replacing Randy Brave at tight end. Brave, a sophomore, quit the team last week.

Rhoades said, "We're still looking for a little help there (tight end), though."

"We really need to improve on all areas at this point," he said. "We've got to get more consistent. There are a lot of things to work on, our kicking game is virtually untouched at this point. We're making progress, though. The players are working hard; we had a good practice today (Tuesday)."

White Sox consider Florida

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago White Sox have paid the city of St. Petersburg, Fla., $25,000 to conduct a study on the feasibility of using Al Lang Stadium as a temporary playing site in the event the Florida Suncoast Dome isn't ready for the start of the 1989 season, it was reported Tuesday.

The payment gives further credence to the White Sox claim that the American League baseball team will move to St. Petersburg if local plans to build a new stadium in Chicago for the team fall through.

Team spokesman Paul Jensen confirmed the payment to St. Petersburg, but he declined further public comment.

Team sources told The Tribune the payment could be viewed as a down payment.

BASEBALL, from Page 28

bases with a three-run homer.

Rick Damico pinch-hitting for Chuck Verschoore, and Gaebe followed with singles. Hall then knocked them both in with a triple. Next, Locke drove in Hall with a base hit. Dale Meyer, pinch-hitting for McIntosh, hit into a fielder's choice but Hall was safe at second when the second baseman dropped the ball. Hollenkamp then reached base on an error by the left fielder to load the bases.

Next, Wrona hit a grand slam to the opposite field. Shields followed Wrona's blast with a home run of his own over the scoreboard in left field.

Giegling made the first out of the inning when he struck out. Damico walked and Gaebe followed with his third hit of the inning. Hall then hit into a double play that ended the inning.

The game was called after Sahuki pitcher Robert Hass held Murray State scoreless in the eighth.

The Salukis went to 28-16 and Murray State dropped to 12-21.

The Salukis led 5-4 after six innings before they broke the game open with six runs in the seventh. The big blows in the innings were Hall's three-run double, which held up as the game winning hit, and Hollenkamp's two-run homer.

Pitcher Chad Metten started for the Salukis and gave up three runs in 3 2-3 innings. McIntosh (4-0) allowed two runs in the next 3 1-3 innings to pick up the victory.

Murray State pitcher Scott Wesson (2-3), one of five Racers to take the mound, received the loss.

Gaebe, one of the many hitting stars for the Salukis, pounded out 24 hits. Gaebe went five for six and scored four runs. Hall knocked in five runs with three hits and scored three times. Locke and Shields also had three hits each.

very out of reach when I was running bad," he said. "With my training, I should have gotten it."

His condition also will affect his future plans. He wants to be a graduate assistant coach at a university and not being able to run will greatly influence his chances.

"I haven't made up my mind yet," Pettigrew said. "It's kind of hard if I can't run with the athletes."

Pettigrew is majoring in physical education at SIU-C with aspirations of coaching someday.

Pettigrew said that the things he'll remember most about running is finishing third in the mile at the NCAA championships last year and helping his team win the Missouri Valley Conference outdoor championship.

In his career at SIU-C, Pettigrew also was the 1987 MVC outdoor champion in the 1,500-meter run and 1987 runner-up in the indoor mile and 1986 runner-up outdoors.

Pettigrew also was member of the distance medley relay team in 1987 that broke a 24-year-old school record. He also ran on the record-setting two-mile relay team.

Pettigrew said it has not sunk in yet that his running career is over. "Right now it feels like any other injury," he said. "In six months it's going to be hell. It's going to be worse the longer the time period."

Saluki Masters swim to 23 1st places at state finals

By Greg Huber
Staff Writer

Saluki Masters swimmers took 23 first places at the United States Master Swimming's state championship held April 22 through 24 at the University of Illinois-Chicago.

Graduate student Kevin Longton grabbed 10 firsts in the men's 19-24 age group, including four events that placed in the USMS' top ten. Dr. Mary Pohlmann, Master Swimmers spokesperson, said, Longton's top times included swimming the 100-yard butterfly in 55.82 seconds, the 50-yard backstroke in 27.56, the 200-yard individual medley in 2 minutes, 8.62 seconds and the 100-yard backstroke in 1:00.96.

Graduate student Vicki Marsh took two firsts in the women's 25-29 age group. She had a 28.94 finish in the 50-yard backstroke and a 1:10.33 finish in the breaststroke.

Larry Good, an associate professor in physical education, took first in the 100-yard individual medley with 1:11.95 in the 50-54 age men's category.

Pohlmann, a clinical assistant professor, took six firsts racing in the women's 40-45 age group. Those finishes included a time of 23:02.22 in the 1,650-yard freestyle and a 6:43.85 time in the 500-yard freestyle.

A relay team composed of Good, Mark Blumer, an SIU-C student and Recreation Center lifeguard, senior Steve Fischer and Longton took first in the 200-yard freestyle relay with a time of 1:41.28.

Four Saluki Masters will compete in the USMS nationals at the University of Texas.

Those individuals include Pohlmann, Marsh, chemistry researcher Rebecca Jones and Edward Shea.

Locking Our Doors Does Not Stop Rape

When you see the word rape, do you picture a drooling maniac with a knife in his hand, jumping out of the bushes on a lonely street in the dead of the night, grabbing a sexy young thing, disposing of her, satisfied...?

Let's rearrange it according to fact:

The drooling maniac is often an acquaintance—a neighbor, a repairman, a lover, a father.

The knife is a change in behavior, a jerk of the arm, a threatening voice.

He doesn't jump out of the bushes; he's visiting, making a repair, driving the victim home from a date, delivering a package.

It could be nighttime or six in the morning, high noon or dusk.

The sexy young thing is a middle-aged homemaker, a young boy, a grandmother, a six year old girl, a man.

He might tuck money into her pocket as he leaves or say he'll call again. He may not leave at all. It could be his home too.

If the assault is satisfying to him, it is not because of the sex. It might be satisfying to humiliate someone or to show power and aggression.

Rape is a widely misunderstood crime.

Saluki third baseman Mary Jo Firnbach starts a double play in the first game of a home doubleheader against SU-Edwardsville Tuesday afternoon. The Salukis won the first game 5-0 to tie a school record for most wins in a season with 25. The Salukis lost the second game 3-0 to put their record 25-16.

the first game.

"It's tough to come back when you haven't pitched for a while," Brechtelsbauer said. "It helped her getting our runs early."

The Salukis scored three runs in the first off a lead-off triple by Kim Tummins, a two-RBI double to the left field fence by Theresa Smugala and an RBI double down the third base line by Shannon Taylor.

The Salukis added two more runs off Cougars' pitcher Cyndee McDaniel (16-6), who gave up another double to Smugala and an RBI single to Taylor.

"Our pitching was off in the first game," Jones said. "The ball was up and Carbondale hit it."

Smugala, who also had a triple and two singles in the second game, raised her batting average from .362 to .382 and her slugging percentage to .632. The school record for batting is .372 by Pam Rendine in 1977 and slugging is .552 by Robin Detering in 1978.

Gateway honors Tummins

Freshman right fielder Kim Tummins was named Gateway Conference softball Player of the Week.

Tummins had eight hits in 14 at bats for a .571 batting average in four games last weekend. She also set a school record for most walks in a single season at 21.

Tummins, a graduate of Memphis Catholic High School in Memphis, Tenn., was the fourth Saluki to win the award this season.

Kim Tummins

"She pitched me right down the middle," Smugala said. "She gave me some good ones."

"Theresa was aggressive, she took her cuts," Brechtelsbauer said. "But as a team we were just punching and poking, not swinging hard. We were sitting back and reaching out for pitches. The result was weak ground balls and pop flies."

Smugala was a factor defensively. In the second game she assisted on five straight putouts in the fourth and fifth innings.

Frisbee club takes 3rd at sectional tournament

The ultimate Frisbee club, Full Tilt, placed third in the sectional tournament at the University of Illinois April 23 and 24.

The team beat Purdue and Illinois, but lost to Indiana Saturday. On Sunday, the team lost to the eventual tournament champion, Illinois-Chicago, then beat Illinois State to clinch third place. SIU-C was tied with Illinois, but was awarded third place because it beat Illinois in head-to-head competition. The top three teams advanced to the regional finals in Columbia, Mo.

Full Tilt took only seven players to the tournament and did not substitute all weekend.

A weekly column answering alcohol and drug questions.

Dear Folks,

Dr. Buzz is calling for questions that you may have about drugs and alcohol. The semester is winding down—now's the time to get the latest up to the minute information that you may need. Send your questions to Dr. Buzz, C/O the Wellness Center. All questions are confidential and if you would like a personal non-published reply, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Dear Dr. Buzz

I smoke marijuana just on weekends when I party with other people. enjoy it and don't see anything wrong about it. What do you think?
 Signed "Complacent"

Dear Complacent,

You seem to feel comfortable about what you're doing, but have you ever tried partying with people and not getting stoned? It's fun also you know. You may be using marijuana to feel more comfortable around people and to "fit in". Continued use of any substance in social situations to help you cope can keep you from learning how to enjoy yourself and others on your own. Why not pass on your turn with the pot next weekend and see how the evening goes? You may learn something new about yourself and your friends.

Andy Pettigrew gets stopped short

Heart condition puts an end to distance runner's career

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

All-American distance runner Andy Pettigrew has a broken heart.

Pettigrew was diagnosed as having hypertrophic nonobstructive cardiomyopathy, a condition that can obstruct blood flow from the heart if intense physical activity is pursued.

If Pettigrew continues to run, his life would be in jeopardy, Dr. Rollie Perkins, chief of sports medicine for SIU athletics, said. "Basically Andy's competitive career is over. Competitive training could kill him."

Pettigrew said, "The real danger is when the heart is called upon to pump a lot of blood."

If Pettigrew stops intensive training, he should be able to lead a normal life, Perkins said.

Pettigrew said, "I assume I'll be able to do everything else."

Pettigrew, a native of Maidenhead, England, was born with this condition and his 14 years of training brought the illness to the surface in mid-March. Dr. Ashok Agarwal, a cardiologist at the Carbondale Clinic, conducted an echo cardiogram that revealed the condition.

Pettigrew had no idea anything was seriously wrong when his training was going poorly, he said. Pettigrew had mononucleosis during the cross country season and he figured that the disease was still in his system.

"Right now it feels like any other injury. In six months it's going to be hell."

—Andy Pettigrew

"I thought the mono might have affected my running," he said. "The harder I trained the worst I got. It has been almost a year since I had a decent race."

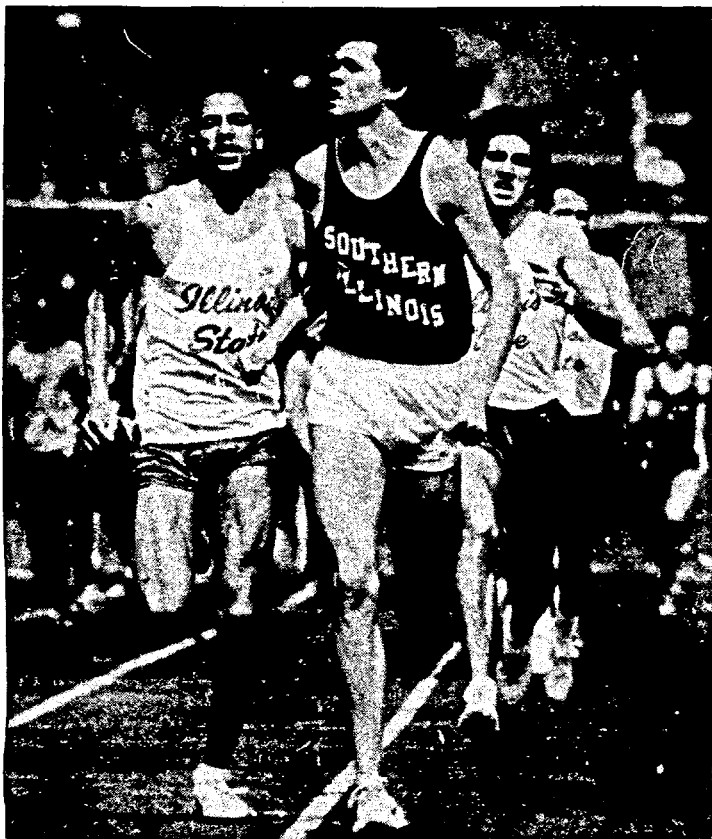

Men's coach Bill Cornell also thought his poor running was the result of mono. Throughout the indoor season, Cornell expressed concern about Pettigrew's recovery.

"Coach told me to get it checked out," Pettigrew said. "I thought it was just a chest cold. If I were in England, I would have just rested for a week and started running again. I'm lucky (the doctors) caught it."

Although Pettigrew is disappointed his career is over, he is glad the doctors diagnosed his condition before it proved fatal. "I've got my life, it could have killed me," he said.

Pettigrew said that Cornell has helped him through the transition by "encouraging me to take part in things instead of sitting at home."

Pettigrew regrets that he won't be able to achieve his season goal, to set the school record in the mile. "I wanted the school record but it was Saluki track All-American Andy Pettigrew has been forced to quit competing because of a heart illness. Pettigrew, from England, finished third in the mile at the NCAA championships last year. He was also the 1987 Missouri Valley champ in the 1,500.

16-run eighth gives Salukis 26-5 win over Murray State

By Dave Miller

The hits just kept on coming.

The Salukis scored 16 runs in the eighth inning on 10 hits, including three by Rick Gaebe, to bombard Murray State 26-5 Tuesday in Murray, Ky.

The Salukis' 26 runs tied an 18-year-old school record for most runs scored in a game, set in 1970 against Moorehead State.

In Murray State's nightmarish eighth inning, in which the Racers did their best impression of the Baltimore Orioles, the Salukis went to the plate 20 times. Sixteen consecutive batters reached base and scored before the first out of the inning was made.

Gaebe led off the inning with a base hit against Murray State pitcher Jeff Moore. Joe Hall walked and Chuck Locke reached on an error to load the bases. Cliff McIntosh walked to score Gaebe.

Murray State outfielder Ben Garland relieved Moore and was greeted by a Brad Hollenkamp RBI single that scored Hall. Dave Wrona then forced in Locke with a walk. Doug Shields followed with a walk to score McIntosh. Garland uncorked a wild pitch to bring in Hollenkamp. Matt Gienging then cleared the

Softball team ties 25-win record

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The softball team played as sharp as it had all season in the 5-0 blanking of the SIU-Edwardsville Cougars in the first game of Tuesday's doubleheader at IAW Field.

The victory gave the Salukis 25 wins, matching the school record set last year.

But the afternoon turned sour for Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer, who watched the Salukis turn listless in the second game, losing 3-0 to the Division II Cougars.

"We didn't play with any intensity," Brechtelsbauer said. "I'm displeased with our performance. When you win the first game you should come right back at the other team. We didn't. I'm giving the team the day off (Wednesday), but not because they played well."

The Cougars (32-8) won behind freshman pitcher Michele Cleeton (16-2), who gave up eight hits but allowed only one baserunner to reach third.

"She moved the ball around, changed speed and variety," Cougars' coach

Cindy Jones said. "She kept the ball down, something we didn't do in the first game."

Cougars' senior Laura McCune, a former Saluki, had her team's only extra-base hit, an RBI double off losing pitcher Traci Furlow (8-5) that reached the left field fence in flight in the sixth inning.

Freshman pitcher Lisa Robinson, in her first appearance since April 7, held the Cougars to six hits and left seven runners stranded in

NBA, Players Association approve 6-year agreement

NEW YORK (UPI) — The NBA and its Players Association reached agreement on a six-year collective bargaining agreement that reduces the length of the draft and ends the union's lawsuit against the league, officials announced Tuesday.

The deal, extending through the 1993-94 season, was reached during a seven-hour negotiating session Monday in New York and was approved Tuesday by the NBA Board of Governors. The executive board of the Players Association also ratified the pact.

"The players are withdrawing the lawsuit against the league," union general counsel Larry Fleisher said.

The NBA has been operating without a collective bargaining agreement since the end of last season. The new agreement will apply retroactively to this season, which begins its playoffs this week.

The deal continues the salary cap, the draft, and in certain circumstances the right-of-first refusal on free agents, provisions which the union earlier claimed violated federal antitrust laws.

This year's draft, to be held June 28 in New York, has been reduced from seven rounds to three. In future years, the agreement stipulates a two-round draft.

"As you would expect, both sides made compromises from their original positions in order to reach agreement," NBA Commissioner David Stern said. "The NBA owners and players have once again demonstrated their willingness to work together for an agreement which will enable our league to maintain its growth and allow our fans to continue enjoying NBA basketball."

The NBA, which has experienced remarkable financial growth in recent years and is adding four expansion teams, has avoided the strikes that have broken up seasons in the NFL and Major League baseball in recent years.
