COLA dean wants comp sci to stay

By Eric Reyes
Staff Writer

The College of Liberal Arts opposes a proposed move of its computer science department to the College of Science.

The move was initiated in fall 1989 when a proposal was submitted by Yaskov Varol, computer science chairman, to the vice president of academic affairs.

The computer science department, second in COLA enrollment only to psychology with 384 undergraduates and about 50 graduates, was formed in 1970-71 when COLA and departments in College of Science were in one college, John S. Jackson, dean of COLA, said.

Jackson said that computer science did not want to move in the past because the weather service projected a clearing in the early afternoon and the boats were too wet to run in a postponed race.

"The boats were already wet and couldn't survive another trip (of being moved back and forth)," he said.

Archer also said out-of-state visitors from Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin had to be considered as well as a Nippon TV crew from Los Angeles that will broadcast parts of the regatta in Japan at a later date.

"As miserable as it was, I did not get a single person complaining about the weather or anything," Archer said. "I'm sure some armchair quarterbacks will second guess my decision by Monday," he laughed.

The people from Nippon were so enthusiastic, Archer said, that they plus us on bringing a full-production crew next year with a possible half-hour broadcast in Japan.

Regatta coordinator Terry Mathias estimated 2,500 fans and participants turned out and 130 boats entered the race despite the conditions.

"Under a driving rain, that's a spectacular turnout," he said. "They are truly dedicated, if not crazy, cardboard boat fans."

Archer also showed his amazement at the people who still showed up for the regatta, saying that 130 entries was probably half of what was possible.

Varol, the length of time for the administration to respond cannot be determined.

"Well over a year ago, we said we'd be very pleased to be affiliated," Russell R. Dutcher, dean of the College of Science, said. "I think it's a logical move. I think it's good from their own research point of view, and it improves their ability to do their job," Dutcher said.

Loan repayment changes proposed

By Brian Gross

Four suggested changes to reverse state financial aid trends toward more loans were proposed by the Student Advisory Committee of the Illinois Board of Higher Education Saturday.

Susan Hall, chairperson of the committee's budget subcommittee, said the major trend toward more students relying on Guaranteed Student Loans to get through school will have a negative effect on the economy when those students finish school and have to pay their loan.

"We expressed concern that more and more students are very deep in debt when they get out of school," Hall said. "This will have a very negative effect on the overall economy because students will have to use all of their resources in their jobs to pay off the loans."

The budget subcommittee suggested four ways of combating this problem:

1. Repeal legislation that allows students to receive up to $2,500 in Guaranteed Student Loans.
2. Allow students to borrow up to $3,000 in Guaranteed Student Loans if they are enrolled in a four-year degree program.
3. Allow students to borrow up to $5,000 in Guaranteed Student Loans if they are enrolled in a two-year degree program.
4. Allow students to borrow up to $7,500 in Guaranteed Student Loans if they are enrolled in a vocational program.

"We also called on to break up fights between two white people or two black people," Nathaniel Felder, Carbondale chapter president of the National Association of Colored People, concurred with Wright and said there is some racial tension in the area but hate crimes are not a real problem.

Law requires recording of hate crimes

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

A new law requiring the Department of Justice to record all incidents of hate crime is a landmark piece of legislation, U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Illinois, signed into law by President George Bush last week, the legislation directs the Department of Justice to track down incidents of hate crime for the next five years just as it now collects data on burglaries, theft and other crimes.

Simon, co-sponsor of the legislation, said he estimates the new law will give law enforcers for the first time a complete picture of crime based on race, religion, ethnicity, background and sexual orientation.

"This through the law we can see a reliable picture of hate crimes, and we can deal with them head-on now," Simon said.

He said both lawmakers and legislators testified during the Senate hearings that the new law will enable police and prosecutors to fight the crimes more effectively.

"If any Wright, public relations officer for the Carbondale Police, said although minor racial incidents do occur from time to time in Carbondale, hate crimes are not a serious problem in the area.

"Racial happenings do happen every now and then, usually at the end of the semester," Wright said.

He said most of the time the racial incidents were fights between blacks and whites. "Racial fights break out occa-
Salukis sweep four to remain in first

The Saluki baseball team moved one step closer to a Missouri Valley Conference championship after sweeping a four-game series from Illinois State this weekend.

After sweeping a four-game series from Illinois State this weekend, the Salukis remained in first place in the Valley. They are 58-8 overall and 12-4 in conference play. SIU-C will play Indiana State this weekend in Abe Martin Field in its final Valley series of the season.

The Salukis won Sunday's games by scores of 9-2 and 3-2. The nightcap went 10 innings before a winner was decided. In a game scheduled for seven innings, the Salukis scored three runs in the top of the 10th and defeated the Redbirds 5-2.

Dale Meyer (6-1) picked up the victory in relief for the Salukis. Meyer followed starter Chris Bend and Al Levine to the mound. Ed Styer was the tough-luck loser for the Redbirds. After spotting the Salukis a 2-0 lead, Styer retired 17 consecutive batters before Dave Wrona reached an error on a lead-off of the 10th inning.

After Hollenkamp reached on a fielder's choice forcing Wrona at second, Meyer singled. Matt Giegling followed with a double to right center to score Hollenkamp and give the Salukis a 3-2 lead.

Mike Kirkpurick laid down a suicide squeeze bunt scoring Meyer. And when Styer's throw got away in an attempt to cut down Meyer, Brian Gibson, who pinch-ran for Giegling, scored and the Salukis led 5-2.

A strong performance by Tom Strabawy (2-2) lifted the Salukis in game one. The junior right-hander pitched a complete game, allowing two earned runs and only five hits. He struck out eight and walked six.

Loading 1-0, the Salukis added a tally in the third on an RBI single by Doug Shields that scored Bob Geary. After the Redbirds cut the lead to 2-1 with a run in the fourth, the Salukis scored two more runs in the fifth.

A two-out RBI single by Tim Davis scored Geary making the score 3-1. SIU-C scored another tally in the inning and led 4-1.

Reuschel's pitching, hitting lead Giants past Cardinals

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rick Reuschel led a 15-hit attack with a pair of singles and drove in two runs Sunday, giving the San Francisco Giants a 5-7 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Reuschel, 2-1, hurled 7 2-3 innings on route to his 213rd career victory, third among active major leaguers. He trails only Nolan Ryan (201) and Bert Blyleven (271).

Steve Bedrosian pitched 1 1-3 innings to pick up his third save. Joe Magrone, 0-4, lasted only two innings.

Reuschel, 40, struck out three and walked one while raising his career record against the Cardinals to 19-13. Reuschel hasn't lost to St. Louis since Aug. 11, 1987 as a member of the Pirates.

Robby Thompson, Will Clark, Kevin Bass, Jose Uribe each hit RBI singles and Matt Williams added a sacrifice fly as the Giants scored five times to go ahead 6-1 in the third.

Denny Walling and Todd Zeile each drove in a run in the fourth as the Cardinals closed within 6-3.

Reuschel extended the lead with a two-run single during a three-run fifth that put San Francisco ahead 9-3.

St. Louis scored three times in the eighth, pulling within 9-6, before Bedrosian put out the fire by retiring pinch-hitter Tom Brunansky, who represented the potential tying run.

Derby horses face hard drug tests

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Testing for illegal drugs has become common in sport, and like other star athletes, the winner of this year's Kentucky Derby will face a sophisticated battery of drug tests.

For many years the tests have been conducted at the Equine Drug Testing Laboratory, managed by Jerry Blake and Shih-Ling Chang, on the University of Kentucky campus in Lexington.

The outcome of the race is not final — and the prize money is not distributed — until tests are made to determine that the win, place and show horses have not run under the influence of illegal drugs.

As the result of research conducted at the University of Kentucky's Maxwell Gluck Equine Research Center, this year the tests will be more extensive than ever. A team of scientists have made significant progress toward perfecting the development of ELISA (Enzyme Linked Immuno sorbent Assay) tests, which detect the probability of the presence of certain drugs in horses.

The methodology is not new — ELISA tests are used to detect AIDS, for example. But the UK research team, Thomas Tobin, David Wut, and Daniel Tai, has perfected ways to make the tests at a rapid pace and with a high sensitivity.

The ELISA program, started three years ago at UK as the result of state racing officials, is now selling tests for about 23 different drug families to racing laboratories around the world. Most have only been on the market since last August.

The basic principles behind ELISA tests are fairly simple. The team first makes an antibody to a drug and binds it to a clear plastic well about the size of an aspirin tablet. A sample of horse urine is then added to the well.

If the antibody fits the drug, the two will be chemically bonded. After a color development process, samples that are drug-free will be blue in color. Samples that are likely to contain the drug will be clear in color. More sophisticated tests are then used to confirm the unequivocal presence of the drug.

Conducting the ELISA tests only takes about 30 minutes and no specialized equipment is required.

As their use spreads, ELISA tests are revolutionizing the way horses are tested for drugs in various racing circles, including thoroughbreds, standardbreds and quarterhorses.

Before ELISA, there was no effective or economical means of detecting many of the drugs involved, Tobin said.

Statement: American hostage will be released in 48 hours

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A previously unknown group in Lebanon Sunday issued a photograph of U.S. hostage Frank Reed, kidnapped there three years ago, and said it will free him within 48 hours with a hostage for President Bush. "We will release American hostage Frank Reed within 48 hours, carrying a message for the world," said a statement delivered to the An-Nahar newspaper and signed by a group calling itself the Islamic Dawat Organization.

Christians demand religious freedom in Nepal
KATHMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — The Christian minority in the world's only Hindu kingdom demand religious freedom Sunday as a precondition for the release of people imprisoned for proselytizing, a practice banned by law. "Everybody has a right to practice his religion and we exist," said Nepalese Christian leader. "The choice is an individual decision that should be left to him, and we should not be any forceful conversion." Also Sunday, Prime Minister Krishna Prasad Bhattarai said he will meet with King Birendra to discuss abolition of the office of zonal commissioners, a move likely to reduce direct royal control and strengthen the powers of the new multi-party interim government.

Poll tax may cost Tories in council elections
LONDON (UPI) — The ruling Conservative Party might lose heavily in this week's local council elections as voters show thier contempt for the government's highly unpopular poll tax, opinion polls published Sunday showed. A poll in The Sunday Times of London showed that the opposition Labor Party holds a 23-point lead over the Tories, with a 54 percent majority against the Conservatives 31 percent.

Vietnamese communists celebrate 1975 victory
HCM CITY, Vietnam (UPI) — Vietnam's communists celebrate Monday the 15th anniversary of their victory over the U.S.-backed government of South Vietnam, but they admit the united country has not made as much progress as they had hoped. The study was based on surveys of 500 college and university students, 500 student affairs officers and numerous interviews with students, faculty and administrators.

WHO: 200 million may die prematurely in 1990s
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A World Health Organization study released Sunday said as many as 200 million people may die prematurely during the 1990s and many could be saved just small shifts of resources to health care. "Disease is the most destructive force in the world today," said Dr. Hiroshi Nakajima, director-general of the WHO. "If the current trends continue, 200 million people may die prematurely from preventable causes in the 1990s.

Third night of student unrest follows festival
SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (UPI) — Police using tear gas and water hoses broke up about 80 arrests while dispersing college-age youths rampaging through town on the final night of a traditional campus party weekend, authorities said Sunday. Police said youths knocked down an auto body at police, damaged cars and tried to set trash dumpsters on fire in Saturday night's violent finale to the annual Poly Royal Festival, a 58-year-old California Polytechnic State Fair.

Hubble Space Telescope antenna stuck
GREENBAY, Md. (UPI) — The $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope will probably never be 100 percent healthy because a critical radio antenna needed to be assembled data back to Earth apparently is stuck on a wayward cable, officials said Sunday. But even if the antenna cannot be restored to full use, the observatory should still be able to complete its historic 15-year mission of exploring the universe using only a portion of its communication system, officials said.

Characters of Sesame Street entertain audience at Arena

By Tracy Sargeant
Staff Writer

The SIU Arena was magically transformed into a special place this weekend as "Sesame Street Live" came to town.

Excited children, their eyes filled with anticipation and wonder, cheered as Big Bird took center stage. After an introduction of all the characters, Big Bird proceeded to tell the audience they were going to see a story about how Sesame Street became a television show.

In the beginning, Sesame Street was a place where everyone lived and played. Big Bird came up with the idea of teaching children through television one day when Prairie Dawn was trying to teach Elmo, the red fuzzy monster who runs extremely fast, how to say the ABC's.

But all Elmo wanted to do was watch television and with the help of the children in the audience, Big Bird taught Elmo his ABC's and 10 show them words of familiar song.

The Excited youngsters. ~

The television characters, birds and bugs, encouraged the children to learn how to say C is for Cookie. Cookie Monster taught the audience some "C" words like casa, the Spanish word for house, and came.

The children's voices filled the Arena when they recognized the familiar song. In fact, the whole audience wiggled with the constant mantra of the happy youngsters.

Other songs, including "Walk, Don't Run Across Sesame Street" and "Put the Jacky Down," featuring Hoots the Owl on saxophone, were performed with elaborate scenery, lighting and props.

Big Bird finally got to take his idea to Tedious I. Molehill, the owner of Molehill television studio, in hopes of getting his show produced.

Once the Grouch drove Big Bird and a few surprise passengers back on Sesame Street, the attitude is "never give up." The characters decide to produce their own show right on Sesame Street.

Fittingly, the show ended with the theme song to the Sesame Street television show.

Children and parents watched Bert take a bubble bath Saturday night at the Arena.

The SIUC Head Start program to celebrate anniversary

By Dale Worter
Staff Writer

The SIUC-C Head Start Program and two other southern region Head Start programs will send more than 250 parents and staff to Springfield Wednesday to celebrate the 25th anniversary of Head Start, said Haqq, director of SIUC-C Head Start.

Head Start Day provides an opportunity to meet with legislators from around the state, Haqq said.

Speakers at the Head Start Day celebration will include Illinois Attorney General Neil Hartigan and Secretary of State Jan Edgar.

Head Start is a program that provides comprehensive health, education, nutrition, parental involvement and social services to more than 1 million preschool children from low-income families nationwide.

SIUC-C Head Start's program currently serves 259 children in Jackson and Williamson counties, Haqq said.

The Wahab Parent and Child Center Head Start Program in E-cold and the Shawnee Development Council Head Start Program in Kanab are the two other southern region Head Start programs.

"One of the highlights of Head Start Day will be the Head Start Pride Award," Haqq said. "Mary Frese, a Head Start parent who has served as policy councilor for five years in Murphysboro, will receive the award given to individuals who best represent what Head Start is," Haqq said.

Also receiving the award is Delano Scott, a former Head Start child who attended the program during 1982. Scott is now an honor student currently enrolled in the District 95 Academically Talented Program. Scott attends Winkle Elementary School, 1218 W. Freeman, Haqq said.

"Project Head Start has had a dramatic impact on services for children in America and on the entire child development field," Cline H. Murphy Jr., National Head Start director, said. "It has pioneered such new concepts as parent involvement in educational programs and employment of paraprofessional classroom aides and is the largest child care program for economically disadvantaged young children in the country."

The Head Start Program served 450,000 children nationwide in 1985, Haqq said. It is administered by the Administration for Children, Youth and Families, Office of Human Development Services, within the Department of Health and Human Services, Haqq said.

Goodbye winter, hello spring

By Brian Dickinson

Winter has finally died, taking with it the blue that can imitate to sour the long, gray days betweenember and February. Winter warms, sun, green trees and the onset of baseball can do much, but very little when all is shrouded in ice and darkness.

Everyones seems to rave about spring, and does so for perfectly understandable reasons; for most common of which is simply that spring is the absence of winter. Spring, is the representation of the new life of cool weather and food. If you want to know, is overwhelming one of relief. No more salt on the under- hood or snow plow. No more hood-binders on the way to the office. No frozen pipes. Pleasure is the absence of pain.

Looking forward, however, this giddy reception that spring receives each year carries an undertone of projection where time is concerned. Winter is coming back, and with the first few days of spring, the in-between season that exists for most sporting events, namely baseball, is defined. The winter is comet and the spring is the season to project one's hopes onto.

The best part of spring-what would one call it?-is when the days are the warmest and the grass grows the greenest. This is the season that is the most active in terms of creation, both in biological and social terms. Therefore, it is an important time to project one's hopes onto.

Be proud of who you are, regardless of sexuality.

This letter is in response to Mr. Wilson's letter in the Daily Egyptian of April 24. There are several points in your letter which we would like to address. You speak about ethics, Mr. Wilson, which leads us to question the ethics of homosexuals with murderers and rapists. How ethical can it be to publically condemn a group which makes up 10 percent of the American populace? We are everywhere, Mr. Wilson. You may even have one of us in your own family. Don't you think too much? Hmmm.

Also, Mr. Wilson who are you to deny anyone the right to claim a history that has been erased. We may not be right, but we may not be gay. However, in the nineteenth century a succession of decades becomes less an opportunity than a commodity, a resource to be consumed in a matter-of-fact manner, like shredded wheat. If winter wasn't so great, why, let's forget it and get on to better things, like spring.

In response to Mr. Wilson who has decided to publish his prejudices, I have one thing to say: Ignorance breeds intolerance. Let me explain this to you.

First, it is an attempt to show how abhorrent you are in the field of law, you have lumped homosexuality along with murderers and rapists. The link you are trying to make is simply that we are not the same. This is a false assumption.

Second, you may be thinking that the sentence "one of my principles is that homosexuality is wrong" is a personal statement. In essence, you are saying that a person without your principles is a menace to society. This is a false assumption.

Society should stress tolerance and open minds

Homophobes: Keep it to yourselves.

There is solid evidence behind the Vander and Michelangelo may Michelangelo were indeed homosexual. Florence court records state his words were ruled as a slave. In 1476, for consorting with a seventeen-year-old male model and promoter. In his time, the artist took in a ten-year-old youth who stayed with him for twenty-six years. Michelangelo's poems and letters clearly express his homosexuality. Not only were these two artists openly gay but so many of the gay and church leaders, including several popes, who commission their work. Documentation of this is too abundant to say. My point is that although the whole world is of course not gay, many figures who made important contributions throughout history were. History has been rewritten, an not by gays, to conceal this fact.

Although your revered Founding Fathers may not be closed gay, neither are they the sacred icons you seem to think.

George Washington, we cannot own slaves. From its inception, this nation has engaged itself in a multitude of abhorrent deeds: the slave trade, a genocidal campaign against Native Americans and the continued denial of their sovereign rights, and a succession of imperialist military interventions are but a few. Again a case of history being rewritten, here too cheap and such hypocritical acts behind a mask of white Christian supremacy and manifest destiny.

Your generalization about art critics is grossly prejudiced. I challenge you to find a single critic who denounces a single art critic's homosexuality; I doubt if you can even name one. You speak as if there were a conspiracy to force gay artistic tastes (as if there were such a thing) on an unwitting populace! Art critics, even gay ones, have every right to voice their opinions. Only the ignorant allow their tastes to be manipulated by critics, so what matter is their sexuality?

Furthermore, what gives you the right to label anything two people do with their own bodies, and privacy, an abomination? Or an assert that homosexuality is wrong? Only a fool stands behind principles without foundation, such an individual is truly con­ template. I am reminded of the Nazi regime who (in addition to Jews, foreigners and other "sub­ versives") rounded up homosexuality for confinement, and moved to repeat, exile, torture or execution every "decadent" artists. The thrust of your views smack of such heresy, neo-Christian Fascism.

Mr. Wilson, your prejudicial notions bind you to a close-mind­ ed fabrication of history and a misconception of current events. As a law student, you should know better than to make asser­ tions without evidence. All you offer is another mean-spirited, groundless diatribe against homo­ sexuality. Just keep it to yourself!—Michael J. Gould, artist.

"We had to look at the whole to find what's best for the students and the University. And maybe the idea finally hit home with us," Varol said.

Sue Murray, a sophomore in computer science and member of the Association for Computing Machinery, said she doesn't feel imminent danger.

But Murray said she believes students who are getting bachelor's of arts degrees have business-oriented goals and from that point of view, computer science should stay in liberal arts.

In 1985, the mathematics department noted to move in 1996 the department went to the College of Science. Jackson said.

"Jackson said if the move occurs, COLA should be considered for some compensation.

"The department has 13 and a half faculty positions and a budget of $83,000. Most of that came out of other departments," Jackson said.

Benjamin A. Shepherd, vice president of academic affairs, said:

"I'm tired as hell," Eric Mallon, a senior in art education dressed as the turtle character Donatello, said after finishing his run of a hilariously ridiculous tortoise.

"People are just really big on who raced in the self-proclaimed "psychedelic flat" and racing in the mud," Varol said.

Varol said there was a lot of soul searching for the department.

"These were probably our die-hard fans," Archer said. "I hope they're happy with the results."

Although the crowd quickly shrank from a few thousand at noon to a few dozen presents around 3 p.m., Archer kept spirits high by encouraging those crossing the finish line and making jokes at the banners that spanned the circles.

"It was the hardest I've ever worked to keep the crowd up," Archer said. "I started off strong, but (it was) the wind."

It was like "What am I going to do to get people off the boat?"

Most of the winning boats consisted of long, slender one-person vessels, but creativity could be found in many of the bigger boats. Green dragons, red dragons, yellow bananas, a camouflaged helicopter and a Mississippi Delta Queen paddlewheeler, boated with the water along with the skippers.

Trophies for the winning boats were provided by nationally known artists from the SIUC-Pond school of art and design under a $1,500 grant to Michelman Inc., in Cincinnati, Aldon Addington, Brent Kingman, and Thomas Welsh crafted the trophies exclusively for the event.

Boats representing the Simpsons and Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, two of the biggest items in pop culture this year, also ran underneath the raindrops.

new jobs by the year 2000, with the rate of growth in mathematically oriented fields to mean that for all other occupations, according to the National Research Council report.

This indicates that Americans' preferences in math may now be more in favor of science and technology, scientists and engineers, Foland said.

More and more professions require higher-order math, and fewer people are studying it," he said.

A "half-life" of one year preys on college math majors when studying math after the ninth grade, Wall said.

"We lose half of all math students from the freshman year in high school on," he said.

Americans' interest in math has fallen dramatically in the past two decades, according to the Council.

As total undergraduate and graduate enrollments at SIUC has slowly declined since 1970, the total number of math majors has followed. The institute's student body in the fall of 1970 to 180 this year, according to SIUC Admissions and Records.

"The amount of math (a student) takes in high school is a contributing factor of how many students will succeed in college and should stay in liberal arts."

ting the financial aid trend Saturday at the advisory committee's meeting in the Sledgerton Lounge at Touch of Nature.

"Students should be allowed one year after graduation, instead of the current six months, before they must start repaying their loan, so graduates have time to get situated in a new job.

"Loan repayments should work on a sliding scale, so those who make less would have lower payments, while those making more would have higher payments.

"Some kind of loan forgiveness option should be worked into the system.

"People who have shown a good effort making regular payments should be put on good standing status, instead of default status for missing four or five payments early, which have just been made up.

The suggestions were prepared in response to a Report on Trends in Illinois Student Financial Aid and Price to Undergraduate Students which will be presented at the IBHE meeting at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston Tuesday.

Hall said she hopes these suggestions are taken into consideration during the reauthorization process of the Higher Education Act.

The act establishes financial aid policy and is reviewed under the reauthorization process every four years.

In other business Saturday, the advisory committee re-elected by acclamation Bill Hall, SIUC student trustee, to serve as the voting student member of the IBHE for an unprecedented third term.

Hall said it is significant that SIUC has provided the IBHE student member for 11 of the 18 years of the existence of the position.

"The student member position was created back during the civil rights and Vietnam War student activism period," Hall said. "It is significant that SIUC has provided the majority of students in this leadership position. We have a very active, involved student body that takes seriously their leadership role in the process."

Hall said SIUC's dominance of the position shows how highly student leaders statewide think of the University's student leaders. The position is the one officially elected student position in Illinois, he said.

State official stresses "sensitive" government

By Anne Ryman
Staff Writer

An SIU-C graduate who was recently appointed the director of the Illinois Department of Professional Regulation believes in a sensitive rather than a big stick approach to government.

Kevin Wright was appointed director of the Illinois Department of Professional Regulation March 1, 1995 and acts as the chief administrator for a regulatory agency responsible for licensing 34 professional and occupational groups, ranging from bartenders and beauticians to doctors and dentists.

Speaking to master's of public affairs students, faculty and local government officials in the Student Center Ballroom A Friday, he told of a new counseling approach to physicians suspected of drug or alcohol abuse.

"Suspension would be very harsh. Instead of suspending and taking away the person's livelihood, which doesn't solve anything, we can now refer them to counseling," Wright said.

Investigators may discover o other physicians may notify the department of suspected drug or alcohol abuse. The physician can voluntarily enter an in-treatment program and provide the department with data of successful completion.

"So far, we've had a 100 percent success rate," Wright said. There are about 20 physicians currently in the program.

One of the benefits of the program is it can serve as a model for other agencies, Wright said.

Another thing the department

Kevin Wright has done is introduce an outside testing program for license applicants. The department used to be responsible for the content of the exams and was criticized for the validity and reliability of some of the exams. In addition, it also costs $1 million to implement the in-house testing.

The department contracted a private testing company and placed the cost of the exam on the practitioner. The department was able to re-allocate the $1 million in tax money to other programs. Wright said this has never been done before in Illinois.

"In the '90s we are beginning to realize the problems and feel the pressure of those we've neglected," he said. Despite this, it is often difficult to do anything innovative because of the continued influence of interest groups, Wright said.

"Some politicians run year after year and depend heavily on campaign contributions. Interest groups have more influence than ever before," Wright said.

It is often not what is good for the public, but what is good for the politicians he said.

Wright received a bachelor's degree in political science and a bachelor's in agricultural economics from SIU-C in 1979.

Congressman: Cash needed to keep U.S. healthy

CHICAGO (UPI) — Congressman Charles Hayes, D-Chicago, has called on the federal government to spend more money on keeping people alive instead of spending it on "self destruction." Hayes was a featured speaker during the two-day National Black Leadership Initiative On Cancer sponsored by the Midwest Regional Director.

The NBLIC — committed to improving the health of black Americans — previously held commemorative events in Los Angeles, Houston, Baltimore, New York and Atlanta.

"I'm very interested in keeping people alive," Hayes said. "I rushed here from Washington to participate in this conference."

When Mrs. (Marilyn) Quasle can take time to talk about her experience with her mother who died from cancer, I know I certainly can. My own father died from cancer."

Hayes said he hopes groups like the NBLIC can be used to call attention to the need for blacks and other minorities to get an early checkup.

New editors chosen for law journal

By Eric Reyes
Staff Writer

Three second-year law students have been chosen as the new editors for the quarterly SIU-C law journal.

David Foster, editorial-in-chief, of Champaign; William C. Birkett, managing editor, of Fort Worth; and Daniel, also the three staff members who were selected by the outgoing staff.

Foster said next year in the first year that it is a graduation assignment for the editors. Foster said third-year students are expected to put in 90 hours a semester but will probably spend twice as much time.

The journal is sent to law libraries around the nation and to lawyers throughout Illinois.

"The experience will help Foster in the future, she said. "I will become more organized and work with people more efficiently," Foster said.

W. Eugene Basana, faculty adviser and associate professor, said the new editors are good students.

The outgoing board that selects the new editors is pretty demanding, Basana said.

"One of the ways a law school is evaluated, is by the quality of its law journal. The better the law journal, the better the reputation of the law school," Basana said.

Basana said the outgoing editorial board has done an excellent job and is about to print an outstanding special issue on global warming that will have important articles by important people concerning the environmental issue.

The new editors will begin on the summer issue under the eye of the outgoing board. They will take on full editorial duties beginning with the fall 1990 issue.
Wind ensemble slated Tuesday on Shryock steps

By Stephanie Steiler
Staff Writer

The hills will be alive with the sound of music from SIU-C's symphonic band and wind ensemble at 5 p.m. Tuesday on the steps of Shryock Auditorium.

The symphonic band will start the concert with a 15 to 20 minute program, which will include "His Honor," by Henry Fillmore; "Tarantella" from "Incidental Suite," by Claude T. Smith; "Chorale and Capriccio," by Caesar Giovanni; and "Wyneddern," by Jay Chattaway.

Ricky K. Mico, graduate student in music, will conduct both "Incidental Suite" and "Wyneddern."

The wind ensemble will perform "Punchinello Overture," by Alfred Reed; "E Pluribus Unum March," by Fred Jewell and a medley of Lerner and Loewe Broadway tunes arranged by Warren Barker.

"Perpetual Motion," by Nicolo Paganini will be performed by clarinet soloists Bethany P. Stuever of Murphysboro and Kristi G. Krbovoc of Sesser.

GETTING FIT for Aerobics will meet from 5 to 6 tonight at the Rec Center. For details call Joann Marks at 453-2466.

THE SMALL Business Owner's Tax seminar will be from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Student Center Kankakee Room. The one-day program will give current tax information and will feature presentations by the IRS on federal taxes, the Illinois Department of Revenue on state taxes and the State Department of Employment Security on unemployment insurance. The fee for the program is $12 and participants must register by Wednesday. For details contact the SIU-C Small Business Development Center in the Division of Continuing Education.
FCC official wants quality in AM radio

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

Quality, not quantity should be the goal of the AM radio industry, Andrew C. Barret, one of five commissioners of the Federal Communications Commission appointed by the president, said. "Under the Reagan administration, there was the philosophy that more is better. Now quality is better," Barret said before a crowd of about 75 people Friday in Lawson 101.

The FCC has an obligation to provide quality and to prevent interference, Barret said. AM radio needs to be spurred on to a greater level of excellence, he said.

"Instead of 100 stations in a city, we should have 75 and better quality," Barret said, "Now if you drive one mile in either direction or if a bird flies over, you will lose reception."

Barret said he would not advise students to go into broadcasting because "everything we see and hear is put out by a small select group of people."

"This elite control limits job opportunities," he said.

Barret said he is in favor of public service programming, but unfortunately, radio stations often are not.

"People don't make social decisions (referring to a decision for public service announcements), they make economic decisions, that all," he said.

Barret said he would like broadcasters to be allowed to come together and decide what they will broadcast instead of the government deciding what the broadcasters will broadcast.

Speaking about cable operators, Barret said that if there are monopolies in cable now, allowing telephone companies into the field would not help. It would be a matter of time before the telephone companies would dominate the industry, he said.

"If there are alternative cable providers, (and therefore genuine competition) then there is no reason to regulate cable," Barret said.

Barret was chosen by Electronic Media magazine, as one of the 12 media persons to watch in 1990. The 12 to watch were chosen because they would be "involved in the issues, trends, projects and negotiations that will dominate the media world in 1990." Other persons from the 12 to watch sighted by Electronic Media include Sherrie Marshall also an FCC commissioner, and Dick Ebersol, NBC executive.

Barret served as a member of the Illinois Commerce Commission from May 1989 until his appointment to commissioner of the FCC in September 1989.

Repertory dance theater group uses the right moves at Shryock

A Review

By Jeanne Blicker
Entertainment Editor

Movement was in the air as the Southern Illinois Repertory Dance Theater performed its show, "Dance Expresso-Still in Motion." Saturday night at Shryock Auditorium.

The group, a registered student organization, had been preparing for this hour and a half program all semester with frequent rehearsals and practice sessions.

Although the opening of the show looked and sounded like any contemporary music video, many other types and styles of dance were incorporated to round out the evening.

"Hard to Get," the opening dance, was a fun, relaxing start. It almost seemed as if this number was performed for fun, to help the dancers warm up. Set to the popular Janet Jackson song, "Miss U Much," the dancers filled the stage with energetic motion.

Switching quickly to another mode, "Carnival of the Animals" was the second dance on the bill.

This unusual seven-part number was beautifully choreographed by Tina Hoffman. More than any other dance, "Carnival of the Animals" was dance-theater.

The main character, a lion played by Scott Burgess Jones led the zoo animals around the stage in the opening "Lion's March." The six parts that followed the "Lion's March" were equally spectacular in all aspects. In "Birds," two dancers dressed like birds swang gracefully in and forth on stage ropes, to give the effect of flying.

Another section of "Carnival of the Animals" was "Fossils." This interesting idea made fossils borne a part of the carnival. "Fossils" opened with all the dancers bent over each other to form the silhouette of a dinosaur's skeleton. Then each individual bone danced awkwardly around the stage, as if they hadn't moved in years. The dancers seemed to be having fun, so the audience could let loose and laugh at the silly movements.

A dance called "I'mbroglio" examined the hard-sell promotional tactics incurred when one is trying to be different and achieve the atmosphere of aamness, all the dancers had skin wigs and the same costumes on. They repeated the same motions over and over. Then when the one dancer tried to break free to do his own thing, he is gently but firmly brought back to the ritual, until he dies. The choreography on this piece clearly expressed the message. "Shakes," one of the main dances in the show, examined the belief of the Shaker sect that sin can be shaken clean. This was the only piece to have live music with an organ, drum and vocalist. According to Doris Humphrey, the original choreographer, "Shakers" was the first dance of its kind based on an American religious theme. The autobiographic costumes on "Shakers" represented the feeling of the Shaker sect.

The last piece, "Scarves," was a study in light and dark as well as light and heavy. Set to the music of the Animals, "Scarves" opened with all the dancers dressed in black, blowing scarves up into the air. This had a really interesting effect. All the dancers did not have any light directly on them, and only the scarves could be seen flowing about.
Latvian nationalists suffer election woes

RIGA, Latvia, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — The nationalist Popular Front suffered a setback Sunday in key runoff elections, winning only four of the 17 remaining seats in the Latvian Parliament and falling short of the two-thirds majority needed for an aggressive secession campaign.

The election, which came four days before Parliament’s expected vote on independence for the Baltic republic, could determine whether Latvia follows neighboring Lithuania in a bid to break free from a half-century of Soviet rule.

Imants Ziedonis, a Latvian poet and head of the Latvian Cultural Foundation, said before the voting that the nationalists had to take control of Parliament to stop “the Russian elephant that is stomping on the Baltic ant hill.”

The Latvian Popular Front claims it won 124 places in the republic’s 201-seat Supreme Soviet in the first round of voting March 18 and needed to add 10 of 17 remaining spots in the runoff election to win a clear two-thirds majority necessary to proclaim independence when the new Parliament opens Thursday.

But results announced on Latvian television at midnight Sunday showed the Popular Front winning only four seats, with other candidates taking 11. One race was too close to call, and another runoff was necessary in another district because neither candidate drew more than half the vote.

The runoff election results left the Popular Front several seats short of the outright two-thirds majority needed to declare independence, but leaders of the nationalist organization said they nevertheless have enough support from other Parliament members to pass an independence resolution.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has warned Latvia and Estonia that if they move rapidly to secede, they will face the same tough economic measures he has imposed in Lithuania, the third Baltic republic.

The Latvian Popular Front has vowed to defy Gorbachev and push through an independence proclamation soon after the new Parliament convenes May 3.

Jordan, Pippen lead Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Michael Jordan scored 47 points and the Milwaukee Bucks were the ones sent reeling to the brink of elimination.

Jordan, who was slammed to the floor early in the final quarter while driving for a layup, finished with 36 points and Scottie Pippen added 28 to lead the Chicago Bulls to a hard-fought 109-102 triumph over the Bucks and a 2-0 advantage in their first-round Eastern Conference playoff series.

The Bulls, who have beaten the Bucks in 19 of their last 21 meetings, can sweep the best-of-five series with a victory in Game 3 at Milwaukee Tuesday night.

The Bucks appeared headed for a runaway after building a 17-point lead in the opening eight minutes, but the Bulls outscored them 34-18 in the second quarter to hold a 52-51 lead at intermission.

The Bulls led 75-75 through three periods, and their biggest scare came 19 seconds into the final quarter when Jordan appeared seriously injured. The four-time defending NBA scoring champ drove the baseline for a layup and was taken minus-hard by Greg Audomond. He remained motionless on the floor for several minutes as the 18,676 in attendance stood in silence.

"It was scary," Jordan said. "I didn't know if I was hurt. I felt kind of funny, and it was the first time I actually felt on my head, and it hit me pretty hard. But I'm glad I'm all right."
Women's track team claims six firsts at own invitational

The non-scored Saluki Invitational Saturday couldn't have been held on a worse spring day. A constant rain pelted the track sheet, at the Saluki women's all-time lead to win six of the 15 scheduled events.

SU-C coach Don DeNoon said the rain event was postponed to the terrible weather every weekend.

The weather only slowed down the spinner Angie Nunn's victory in the 400-meter, which she completed in a time of 56.7.

Michelle Sciano finished first in the 800-meter run with a time of 2:11.6. Michelle Sciano followed with a first-place finish with a time of 1:00.5 in the 400-meter hurdles while Amy Bollinger.

time.

Bernard Henry posted a time of 1:51.0 in the 800-meter run for second place.

Kenshaw and Harry did all right but had some problems with the weather and their techniques, Cornell said.

Runner Donnell Williams placed second in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles with a time of 52.5. The time was .79 seconds off of William's outdoor best.

Williams had an exceptionally good start. He was feeling good for him until he was penalized for knocking over the second-to-last hurdle, Cornell said.

The only Saluki to place in the field events was Leashard Vance. He grabbed fifth place in the triple jump with a leap of 46- 10 1/4. The rainy weather forced the Salukis to pull out of all throwing events as a precaution for the Missouri Valley Championships on May 11-13.

Stewart improves April mark to 5-0

BOSTON (UPI) — If they gave out Cy Youngs after April, Dave Stewart would have no competition.

Stewart, the Oakland Athletics' ace, collected his fourth win in as many starts Saturday, pitching Boston's ace, Roger Clemens, 1-4.

"I don't know if Clemens was 100 and I was 100 and that's what we see from Stew every time, too," said Oakland Manager Tony La Russa.

"They're both so similar." added La Russa. "They're such competitors. These two guys were unbelievable."

Stewart stopped Boston Thursday most of the afternoon, allowing six hits in 7 2-3 innings to improve to 5-0 this season.

While becoming one of baseball's premier pitchers the past few years, 35-year-old Stewart has fallen short in the Cy Young voting.
