Faculty Senate OKs conduct code reform

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

Changes to the student conduct cheating policy were unanimously approved by the Faculty Senate Monday.

A Faculty Senate committee has been drafting proposals since Sept. 28, and the final version was finally approved. It now will be sent to President John C. Guyon for final approval.

The passing of the new policy was the "end of an old problem," said Faculty Senate President Don Garner.

In the case of cheating, the instructor will have the final say in what grade a student receives.

Until the student is found guilty, however, he or she may return to the class, he said.

If a teacher accuses a student of cheating and the student admits it, the teacher has the power to decide what measures to take, Guyon said.

In the event the student denies cheating, the matter is put on hold until the process is complete and then the instructor determines the grade if the student is found guilty, he said.

"It provides the option of giving an incomplete grade, but doesn't give the faculty member the power to determine guilt," Garner said. "Teachers do not kick out students, period."

The new policy recognizes grading as the prerogative of the teacher, he said.

"Faculty should be in charge of grading and nobody else," he said.

Garner called the policy an appropriate compromise that returns half of the responsibility to

Senate votes on drug policy, elects officers at last meeting

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

The SIUC Faculty Senate held its final meeting of the year, finishing a semester's worth of work and setting the groundwork for the future.

The senate voted on a resolution for the Drug-Free Schools Task Force Policy on Sanctions, elected new officers and discussed the future of SIUC.

Jervis Underwood, chairman of the governance committee, presented information on a new resolution for the Drug-Free Schools Task Force Policy on Sanctions.

The new proposition corrects loopholes in the first draft, which did not protect faculty members from fictitious accusations of drug and alcohol abuse.

In the first draft, faculty could be punished before proved guilty of alcohol or drug abuse.

The wording of the new resolution was argued by Albert P. Melone, professor of political science, who said greater protection was needed because of tenure status.

"You can ruin a person's life if you call them an alcoholic or a drug abuser," Melone said.

The resolution was unanimously agreed upon.

At the end of the meeting, Garner gave a short address thanking everyone involved in the Faculty Senate for their hard work during the semester and expressed his gratitude for those who would not be returning to the senate in future terms.

The following members were elected to the Senate's governing positions:

Local day care center to find new home

By Amy Cooper
Staff Writer

A Carbondale Day Care Center will find a change of address at the end of a rainbow.

The lease for Rainbow's End Child Development Center, which subleases from SIUC's Head Start Program, will expire June 30, said Billy Dixon, chairman of the Department of Curriculum and Instruction.

Head Start, a federally funded program for low-income families and their children, leases Lakeland Elementary School, 925 Giant City road, through SIUC from the Carbondale Elementary School District 95, Dixon said.

Larry Jacober, superintendent for District 95, said the school district needs the space back for its expanding kindergarten program.

District 95 plans to remodel the eight rooms in Lakeland Elementary School to provide space for the district's eight full-day kindergarten classes currently held in the Glendale School on North Illinois Avenue, he said.

He said the kindergarten classes are growing too large for the space in the Glendale School.

"We were fortunate we had space at Lakeland we didn't sell," Jacober said.

Written confessions of guilt no longer will be required from students, and the departmental chairperson determines if students violated the code.

The current code has no provisions for hearings at the departmental level. Instead the case goes to the dean of the specific college.

The committee began revisions after a senate motion claimed the code "... fails to respect the inherent authority of faculty members to control and sanction academic dishonesty and misconduct practiced within their

Pentagon awards fighter contract worth $60 billion to Lockheed team

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon settled a high-stakes competition Tuesday between two defense contractor teams by awarding a $60 billion contract to build America's next generation of jet fighters to a group led by Lockheed Corp.

The Advanced Tactical Fighter project is heralded as the most lucrative and prestigious aviation contract of the 1990s. The decision establishes Lockheed and its team as leaders in the aviation industry and could deal financial setbacks to Northrop Corp. and the other companies on its team.

The ATF is to replace the F-15 Eagle, master of the skies during the Persian Gulf War.

Both competing prototypes, produced by the bidding companies with $1 billion of their own money, blended high performance, including cruising speeds well above the speed of sound, and stealth technology, the ability to elude radar detection.

"In evaluating engine and airframe ... one combination offered better capability with lower cost, thereby providing the Air Force with a true best value," said Air Force Secretary Donald Rice in announcing the decision.

In awarding the contract, military leaders opted for the Lockheed group's angular design and stunning airborne agility over the Northrop team's smoothly curved design and raw speed.

Lockheed's YF-22 prototype,

said.

He also said the City of Carbondale and the Department of Transportation informed the school district that Glendale School was on the site of a proposed by-pass to go through Carbondale.

Salukis struggle in 'nightmare' game

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

When the St. Louis Billikens slaughtered the Salukis 12-1 Tuesday, Coach Sam Riggelman said there was no rational excuse for it.

"It was a nightmare," Riggelman said. "We came into this game on an upswing. Our pitching and hitting had been improving, although you didn't see that today. We didn't show up ready to play today. It was just a game we must put behind us."

This is the first time the Billikens have ever beat SIUC and it brings their record to 14-29. SIUC now has a mark of 18-24. When the teams met last year in St. Louis, the Salukis obliterated the Billikens 21-1.

The Dawgs came off a four-game series against seventh-ranked Wichita State, winning one and losing three. Riggelman said after playing such hard games he thought they had gained ground in terms of where they are headed for the remainder of the season.

"It was disheartening," Riggelman said. "I thought we started to show good signs of progress. I just don't know what happened. With so many games coming up this week it hurt us to start in this fashion."

Senior hurler Dale Meyer started the game out strong for the Dawgs, striking out four in the first three innings, but then things began to fall apart.

The Billikens plated two runs in the fourth when Adam Lynn reached on a fielder's choice and scored on a double by first baseman Jason Boehlow. After two walks, right fielder Chris Crabtree singled to bring home Boehlow. Sophomore Bryan Oestreich relieved Meyer and retired the next hitter.

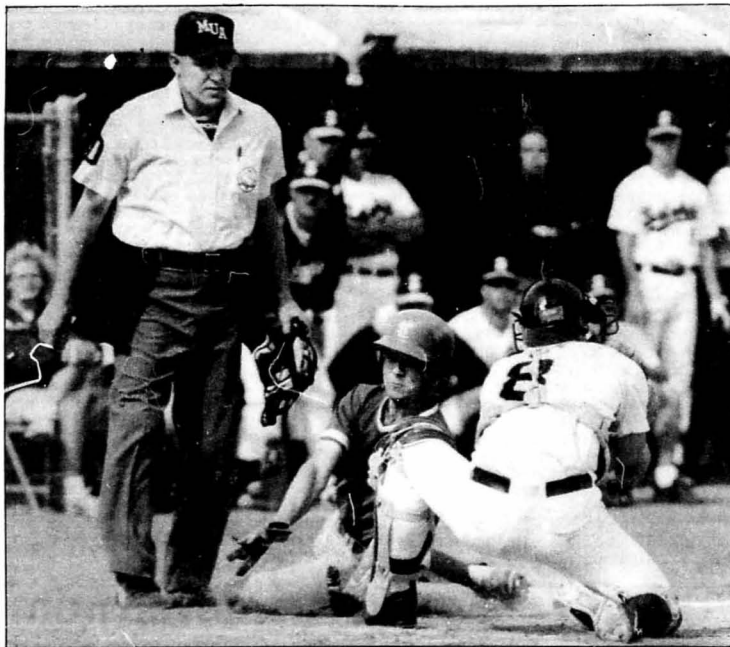

The floodgates opened in the fifth. After the Billikens loaded the bases on an infield single, a bunt single and a walk, Oestreich threw a wild pitch to score Dan Burnett. Two more walks and two more wild pitches led to four more St. Louis tallies. Junior Mike Van Gilder was brought in to relieve Oestreich.

Van Gilder could do no better. After a single by Ed Gresham and a sacrifice bunt, Crabtree hit a slow roller back to the mound that Van Gilder misplayed. Another wild pitch brought home Gresham with the final run of the inning.

The Billikens added two runs in the seventh on a two-run triple by center fielder Pat Conreux and two in the eighth on a two-run homer by third baseman Eric Decker. All four runs were charged to pitcher junior George Joseph.

The Salukis' only scoring came in the ninth. Billikens' starter Brad Lindemann had cruised through eight innings, giving up only four hits and seven walks.

Softball team challenges Purple Aces at home

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

The SIUC softball team should be called the travellers instead of the Salukis this season.

After spending most of its games on the road, it finally gets to play at home. It will face the University of Evansville at 3 p.m. today at the LAW Softball Complex on Grand Avenue.

This will be the Salukis first home game since April 6 when they met Bradley University.

This entire season they have had only 10 scheduled home games. Out of those, four were during the Saluki Invitational March 22 and 23 and one was cancelled by the opposing team, Austin Peay.

This week the Salukis have three home games, the first a doubleheader against the Purple Aces today, the following two Friday and Saturday against Illinois State and Indiana State.

If the Salukis sweep the Aces today in both games, it will be their 17th straight win, which would break the school record of 16, set last year.

Saluki coach Kay Bretchelsbauer said the team is anxious to play since it has played only two games, a doubleheader against the University of Northern Iowa, in the past 14 days.

The last time the Salukis and the Purple Aces crossed paths during the Saluki Invitational, the Salukis squeaked by with a 5-4 win. They also lead the series 9-5.

"The Purple Aces are certainly a different ballclub than they were last year," Bretchelsbauer said. "When we last played them we won, but we had to work for that victory. We had trouble hitting, but we were fortunate to get the hits needed to win."

Along with travelling a lot this season, the team has been rained out six of the last eight games. Bretchelsbauer said the team is not worried though and is confident of its playing ability.

"We have been making up the time we didn't get to play on the field at practices," Bretchelsbauer said. "We have had more scrimmages and game situations. I think we are ready to play."

The Salukis are tearing up the field with a 27-3 overall record and a 6-0 mark in conference play. They are on a 15-game winning streak and have the fourth best winning percentage in the nation.

"The Aces are a tough team though," Bretchelsbauer said. "We certainly will have our hands full with them today."

The Salukis have been ripping opponents at the plate averaging 6.3 runs and 8.1 hits per game.

Taylor is close behind with a .384 batting average. She also leads the team with 38 hits. Junior shortstop Cheryl Venorsky has been formidable at the plate with a .412 batting average, 35 hits and 28 RBI.

On the mound the Salukis have also been conquering their opponents. Sophomore hurler Angie Mick leads the team with a .63 ERA and three saves. Her record is 10-2. Senior Lisa Robinson and junior Dede Darnell are have 1.07 and 3.00 ERA respectively. Their records are 9-0 and 6-1.

Dawgs hope for victory at Eastern

By Wayne Frazer
Staff Writer

The Salukis will be looking to declaw the Eastern Illinois University Panthers in a doubleheader today in Carlestown.

SIUC, 18-24 on the season following its defeat of St. Louis University on Tuesday, will throw seniors Sean Bergman and Bob Finder at the Panthers. Saluki head coach Sam Riggelman said the team's hopes ride on its pitcher's arms.

"Our chances are as good as the pitching," Riggelman said. "Sean and Bob will probably both pitch in the weekend series with Illinois State, so we'll split up the work."

Riggelman said he is encouraged by the Salukis' performance over the weekend against seventh-ranked Wichita State.

"On Saturday we played very well in the last 10 innings," Riggelman said. "Sunday it was tough losing like we did (7-5), but we have to keep playing hard. Eastern is playing better than it was at the start of the season."

SIUC is led by freshmen Jeff Cwynar and Dan Esplin in the hitting department. Second baseman Cwynar is batting .386 in 15 games and Esplin has 21 RBI and three homers to go with his .349 average. Senior Jeff Nelson is third with a .338 mark and leads the team with six round-trippers and 25 RBI.

Bergman, a pre-season All-American, is 3-5 with a 5.29 ERA but has pitched well in his last two starts. He had 10 strikeouts in the Salukis' 12-0 thrashing of Arkansas State last week. Finder has struggled to a 1-6 record.

The Dawgs' pitching corps is led by senior relief ace Al Levine. Levine is 4-3 with a sparkling 1.85 ERA and three saves in 15 appearances. The "Wild Thing" has struck out 43 in just 39 innings of work and has only 12 walks. Senior Phil Mehringer has also come on strong for the Salukis, posting a 3.57 ERA and fanning 17 in 22 innings.

The Panthers are beginning to come out of an early season slump. After losing its first seven games, EIU is 20-20 and has won its last five games. The Panthers have beaten the Bradley Braves in both of their meetings. SIUC was swept by the Braves earlier this year.

The Panthers' hitting attack is led by its three outfielders, Matt McDevitt, Jason Jetel and Lance Aten. McDevitt leads the Panthers with a .356 batting

Borg loses opening match of comeback

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — Bjorn Borg, attempting a comeback following eight years of retirement, was soundly beaten in his opening match Tuesday at the $1 million Monte Carlo Open.

Borg, the dominant player on the men's tour during the 1970's, fell to Jordi Arrese, a Spanish clay court specialist, 6-2, 6-3, in a first round encounter. Arrese, who said that at one time Borg was his hero, is ranked No. 52 in the world.

"It's definitely because I didn't play a match for eight years," Borg, 34, said of his undistinguished performance. "He was playing good, solid tennis from the baseline and I was a bit unsure what to do with the ball."

Borg, complete with the wooden-framed racket, headband and long hair which were his trademarks during a career which included six French Open titles and five consecutive Wimbledon crowns between 1976-80, said: "To play nowadays you really need to be very tough."

"I don't want to make any conclusions but if I continue to play, I really need to play matches in tournaments, because you really need to play those points which I'm not used to."

"But I have plans to continue." The first set lasted just 37 minutes and Borg's serve was broken three times by Arrese, while he was only able to break back once, in the seventh game.

Borg opened the second set with a service break, to the delight of the crowd which had given him a standing ovation as he walked onto the court, but had become increasingly quiet as the match progressed.

But Arrese broke back in the sixth and eighth games and completed the match in 1 hour 16 minutes when Borg hit a forehand out.

Earthquake death toll rises to 39 in Central America

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Relief workers searched Tuesday through the rubble of buildings toppled by a powerful earthquake that shook Costa Rica and Panama Monday, killing at least 39 people. The quake, centered 26 miles southwest of Puerto de Limon on Costa Rica's Atlantic Coast, struck at about 4 p.m. Monday and seismographs at the University of California recorded a magnitude of 7.2 on the Richter scale, authorities said. At the White House, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the United States already had contributed $25,000 in assistance to meet the emergency in Costa Rica.

Gorbachev may resign as party post leader

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet newspapers speculated Tuesday on whether Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev would resign his post as leader of the Communist Party at a major meeting Wednesday. Gorbachev faces the leadership of the party at a Central Committee plenum in which the future of the Soviet president and the party he has headed for six years as general secretary will likely be discussed. He has since devoted himself mainly to the new office of president that legislators created for him in March 1990, giving less attention to his party post.

Definition of public schools raises criticism

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats raised skeptical eyebrows Tuesday as Education Secretary Lamar Alexander defended the administration's plan to change the definition of a public school to include private schools that have children attending with government funds. Alexander outlined President Bush's America 2000 education reform plan to the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, which will handle the parts that require congressional action. Later in the day, Alexander joined Bush on a visit to Annapolis, Md., to tout the plan.

Coast Guardsmen injured fighting vessel fire

DUTCH HARBOR, Alaska (UPI) — Ten Coast Guardsmen were injured battling a fire aboard a 178-foot fishing vessel, authorities said Tuesday. The Coast Guardsmen suffered hypothermia and smoke inhalation, but their injuries were minor and they were treated on the scene by medical corpsmen, Petty Officer Ed Moreth said. Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Richard Blais said two crewmen on the fishing vessel also were injured. The Prince William Sound caught fire during welding operations late Monday, Blais said.

Mistake by hospital results in AIDS scare investigation

CHICAGO (UPI) — Health officials Tuesday confirmed they are investigating a report that a woman undergoing a routine pap smear at Illinois Masonic Hospital may have been exposed to the AIDS virus during the procedure. But Pam Locklin, a spokeswoman for the Department of Public Health, said the department has not yet determined what happened. "We are aware of the allegation and we are looking into it," Locklin said. "We learned about it through a media source. No formal complaint has been filed." Attorney Philip Corboy said he is preparing a lawsuit on behalf of the woman.

Riverboat operators undergo routine check

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Four riverboat operators granted gambling licenses by the Illinois Gaming Board are undergoing what board officials called a "routine monthly check" of their plans and financial conditions. Gaming board spokesman Jim Nelson said Tuesday the board sent letters to the operators seeking updated information on any changes in their license status. He said the board acted as a result of reports that two of the four licensees had changed their plans or run into opposition from county officials.

Conservationists unite to combat hardwood sales

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

Conservation groups joined forces for the first time Monday, calling for emergency legislation to end timber sales.

The groups called for legislative measures to support their views and those of Illinois congressmen on what seems to be a wasting of resources, one group member said.

The conference united the Regional Association of Concerned Environmentalists, Sierra Club, the Southwest Illinois Audubon Society and Heartwood, something that had never occurred before, said Joe Glisson, RACE member.

Glisson said the groups were very successful in calling public attention to the problems of timber sales.

The groups are calling for a 90-day public comment period before any clear-cutting or timber sales can be resumed.

U.S. Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Carterville, has supported the reviewing of National Forest Service clear-cutting and timber sale policies and recently asked the Forest Service to suspend both.

Clear-cutting was postponed indefinitely March 20, but the Forest Service is going to go ahead with sales.

Poshard received a letter April 5 from Forest Service Chief F. Dale Robertson, in which Robertson said he chose to postpone only the advertising of two hardwood sales.

Glisson said the letter also contained a statement in which Robertson claimed hardwood sale: are making money.

The National Forest Service is selling hardwood for as low as $1 for 1,000 board feet, Glisson said.

"The chief (Robertson) could decide the sales are not in the best interest and cancel it with the stroke of a pen," he said.

Although he supports the efforts of the groups, Poshard could not agree with calling for immediate legislation, said spokesman Dave Stricklin.

"Up to this point it has been Congressman Poshard's viewpoint to allow the hearing process to work," Stricklin said. "To put legislation in now is inconsistent with his views."

Stricklin said the public comment period is an ideal opportunity for concerned people to express their views.

Glisson said the groups were responding in support of Poshard calling for a temporary end to clear-cutting and timber sales until the process can be reviewed.

Milk may lower risk of heart disease

By Kyle Robertson
Staff Writer

Recent medical studies in Britain have found a strong link between drinking more milk and reduction in heart disease, but SIUC experts say they have mixed feelings about the results.

The study, published in the April Feedstuffs agricultural journal, involved 4,200 middle-aged men during a 10-year period. The study contradicts past medical warnings against consumption of excess animal fat.

The United Kingdom Medical Research Council found men who drank a pint of milk a day were nearly 10 times less likely to suffer heart attacks than those who drank none, the journal said.

Sara Anderson, SIUC assistant professor of food and nutrition and a registered dietitian, said a National Cholesterol Education Program report in 1987 recommended a lower dietary intake of saturated fat because of its link to coronary heart disease.

"I agree that these studies can be confusing," Anderson said. "The rules seem to change every other day."

Many factors contribute to heart disease, and it is difficult to pinpoint a specific cause, she said.

The British study doesn't prove a strong cause and effect between milk and heart disease because of its uncontrolled nature, she said.

Although it may show a trend between milk intake and lower risk of heart disease, the next step would be to conduct a controlled study, she said. Milk could be given to half of the sample and withheld from the other half.

Paul Sarvela, associate professor of health education said these types of studies involve more errors than other studies but are good for prevention research.

Many factors must be considered when reading these sorts of studies, Anderson said.

Physical health and exercise can change how a body reacts to fat and calorie intake, she said. The males studied may be manual laborers in rural England who burn the calories and fat in milk before they become a problem, she said.

The study doesn't describe the lifestyle of the sample group, she said. If these males are smokers then the results would be affected because smoking is a major contributor to heart disease.

Something else in the milk may be responsible for the findings of this test, Anderson said.

In the early 1980s, a Health and Nutrition Survey by the federal government found people who had a low calcium intake had higher blood pressure, she said.

Medical studies can be taken too far, Anderson said.

Several years ago researchers at a hospital in Boston, Mass., found parents were stunting the growth of their children by not feeding them enough calories, she said. They feared the children would develop heart disease or obesity.

Janet Sunberg, registered Dietitian for Nu-Life Nutrition in Carbondale, said she advises her clients to eat no more than 30 percent of their calories from fat.

Every person's physiology is different, and age and sex change the sort of diet that would be best, she said.

Internationals earn justified recognition

INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS are proving outstanding leadership and achievements aren't limited to their American counter parts.

The International Honors Day ceremony recognized 50 people from Belgium to India to Malaysia for their work in the International Student Council during the past year.

ISC is one of the largest registered student organizations on campus, and is listed as a Priority One organization. This means that the group is given priority when scheduling events and requesting funds. It also means it represents a wide range of students.

About 10 percent of the student body is made up of international students from 107 countries. SIUC ranked 10th in the nation in terms of international student enrollment last year.

JAMES QUISENBERRY, DIRECTOR of International Programs and Services, said that ranking is expected to improve this year.

Activities sponsored by ISC have received the attention and praise of local and national politicians. Gov. Jim Edgar declared statewide International Week in honor of SIUC's International Festival this spring.

President George Bush and Vice President Dan Quayle sent letters congratulating the organization.

International Outreach Day is an annual event designed to inform people about a variety of customs and traditions. The event drew 1,500 participants last year.

The first International Night was held this spring in an effort to bring American and international students together in a social setting.

OTHER EFFORTS TO BRING American and international students together include a program where one American student is paired with one international student for one semester. The goal of this program is for both students to understand and appreciate the lifestyles of one another.

Although there are two programs that pair up American and international students, Quisenberry said the number of American students willing to participate don't meet the demand.

SIUC is a popular institution with international students because of its reputation as an excellent learning environment.

Adjusting to cultural, climate and language differences is an accomplishment many American student would probably find difficult. Excelling academically and socially is a noteworthy accomplishment.

Quotable Quotes

"If there was ever a case that merits a change of venue, it's this one."—The attorney of one of the L.A. police officers charged with the beating of a motorist in reference to moving the case out of Los Angeles.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open, civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letter that the editors deem objectionable because of potentially libelous material or because of extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

Every letter must be signed and submitted in person by its author or authors. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

Recycling facilities absent on campus

Students who wish to recycle are finding a lack of recycling facilities.

Yes, McDonald's supplies recycling bins for their Styrofoam materials, but nowhere in the Student Center have I been able to find a place to put aluminum cans.

The Agriculture Building is the one place I have found to recycle my cans. But how many people walk there to throw away a can they purchased in the Student Center? Not too many.

A lot more recycling could be done if a few of these recycling boxes could be placed throughout the Student Center, because this is where most students purchase aluminum cans.

SIUC students really do care about recycling, so why not make it easier by providing more collection boxes in a few more accessible places?—Chanda Smith, freshman, undecided.

Palestine, Israel both to blame for conflict

This is in response to Ms. Ratcliff's letter of April 18.

I would like to point out that Israel is a nation separate from the United States.

Although the Israelis' actions reflect on the Jewish community worldwide, I don't believe that it is any American's responsibility, Jewish or not, to change Israel's policies.

Furthermore, to say that the Israelis are treating the Palestinians as the Nazis treated the Jews is ludicrous.

The Jews, and other victims of the Holocaust, were defenseless when the Nazis took them to the death camps. The present-day fighting between the Jews and Palestinians, however, resembles a war.

In a war there are two sides. The Palestinians are not defenseless, as the victims of the Holocaust were.

The PLO and other Palestinian terrorist groups that exist in Israel are just as much to blame for the political unrest.

I'm unclear on the original intent of your letter, but I'd like to point out that sympathy isn't what the Jewish people want.

Jewish people are asking for education and awareness of the Holocaust. These are our only weapons to make sure such a senseless slaughter never happens again.—Enid Feuer, political science/Spanish.

Low voter turnout to blame for absence of democracy

I wish to add to Nate Luster's letter to the editor that not only is America not a democracy by discrimination; it is that way by choice.

A true democracy is a rule "of the people, by the people," yet we as voters chose not to participate in the process of electing officials that represent our views and values.

The American public lacks the rationalization of ideals and placing them into voting for the best candidate that represent their values.

Why? Because it takes time to do a gut check by evaluating one's values and applying them to a candidate with similar ideals.

Also, we don't seem to care, whether it is because of the "our vote doesn't matter" syndrome or that we don't want to get involved.

In order for a democracy to work, we as the people must participate. In the 1988 presidential election, only 51 percent of the entire voting population participated.

Some say no candidate really represented their values or was worth their vote, so by default we get whoever the majority of the 51 percent (26 percent) elect.

We need to address this problem and once again as a nation decide who will represent us in government.—Craig Chamness, senior, social studies.

Earth Day ignored by Daily Egyptian

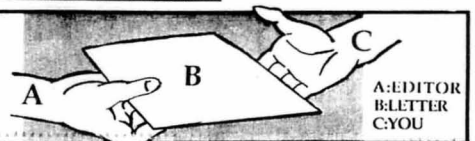

Thanks to the DE for waving the finger of disapproval at the people of SIU for not recognizing Earth Day. Many people were unaware of Earth Day mainly because of Springfest occurring the same weekend.

How ironic it is that two days before people are supposed to celebrate Earth Day by showing concern about the countless environmental problems, there were 10,000 drunks throwing around beer cans, cardboard from cases and other waste.

Obviously, Earth Day XX was trendy at the time, but people have realize that Earth Day is more than a trendy holiday.

Maybe next year the DE would also show a little more concern and remind others about Earth Day other than on the day it occurs.—Jennifer Bakija, freshman, visual communications/photography.

in an economic boycott of local businesses if the betting parlor opens in Carbondale, Taylor said.

Nine Mile Baptist Association is made up of 44 Southern Baptist churches in Jackson, Perry, Washington and Randolph counties with thousands of people in their congregations.

Rev. Ron Bracy, moderator of the association and pastor of Elm Street Southern Baptist Church, said the vote by the 22-member executive council was unanimous, but only about half the members were present.

The executive council will present the full association with a resolution at its meeting Monday night.

Fairmount Park, a Collinsville racetrack, wants to open an off-track betting parlor in Carbondale in the University Place Mall across from the University Mall.

The Carbondale voted last month to negotiate a proposal with Fairmount Park.

Recent legal problems, however, with the proposal, have caused Fairmount officials to take another look at the proposal.

According to the proposal,

Fairmount Park would guarantee Carbondale and Jackson County a minimum of $75,000 a year from a 1-percent tax on the amount wagered at the parlor.

The city must agree, however, not to charge an entry fee for the first five years of operation and rebate any revenue in excess of $75,000 to Fairmount Park or the developers of the project.

If the amount wagered exceeds $11 million, the city and Jackson County will receive 1 percent of the revenue.

According to the Illinois Revised Statute of 1989, which includes the Horse Racing Act of 1975, cities and counties are not allowed to waive money entitled to them.

City Attorney Michael Wepsiec said the city and county are entitled to the 1-percent tax because of the statute.

In addition to revenue generated from the amount wagered, Carbondale will receive taxes from activities associated with the parlor, including a 1-percent food and beverage tax and a 4-percent hotel/motel tax.

Darrell Dunham, co-coordinator of CBC, said he is not surprised by the support from the association.

"I think there is a surprising amount of support," said Dunham, who is also a law professor at SIUC.

CBC has received support from about 12 other organizations as well, he said.

Some business leaders also have expressed support but are concerned that making their feelings public may hurt their businesses.

"It's surprising how many people don't want to go on the record," he said.

Dunham said the next alternative for the city may be to rebate a portion of the sales taxes or some other city tax to Fairmount Park. But he said this could cause other businesses leaders to feel they are being treated unfairly.

"Local businesses should monitor what the city is doing so there isn't an unfair advantage," he said.

City Manager Steve Hoffner said Fairmount Park officials are working on a new proposal and will meet with city staff members soon.

straight and level with its belly to the wind at an angle nearly perpendicular to the ground.

The YF-22's maximum altitude is 50,000 feet, while its maximum speed is Mach 2 (twice the speed of sound).

While the Lockheed prototype stressed features needed for close-in dogfights, Northrop's YF-23 entrant, nicknamed Gray Ghost, weighed in with a sleek frame and the combination of speed and superior stealth.

Lockheed Corp. and Northrop Corp. are Los Angeles-based companies. The Lockheed team also includes Boeing Co. and General Dynamics Corp.

Both teams flew their prototypes in extensive trials over the California desert surrounding Edwards Air Force Base last fall.

The announcement came on the heels of a Congressional Budget

Office report that said the ATF is too expensive for dwindling military budgets and a CBO analyst suggested either scrapping the project or buying much smaller numbers of the fighters.

Air Force officials already have said they will scale back their procurement request to 650 of the fighters, down from 750.

The announcement could touch off a dramatic corporate chain of events within the military industrial complex, with top technical personnel from the losing companies jumping ship to the winners, perhaps crippling the losing companies' future abilities to produce jet fighters.

The Persian Gulf war served to further emphasize the need to establish air superiority in military conflicts.

The allied forces unleashed an air campaign that quickly and decisively gained control of the skies above Iraq and Kuwait, paving the way for a devastating coalition victory.

The ATF, due to become operational in the year 2002, is the next step in the evolutionary scale of jet fighters.

Current jet fighters toting a full compliment of weapons cannot fly above the speed of sound without using fuel-devouring afterburners, which provide clearer targets for enemy heat-seeking missiles.

The extremely efficient engines required for the ATF provide the ability to "supercruise" — travel at about Mach 1.5 without afterburners — to save fuel and extend range.

The ATF also will be 1,000 times more difficult to detect than the F-15 and possess previously unknown supersonic agility and greater repair ease.

An update on the 21st Century Task Force and how changes must be made to meet University goals was presented by George Gumberman.

Although the composition of the University has changed, Gumberman said the plan is committed to developing SIU as a comprehensive University, but "we can't be all things to all people."

Gumberman said he sees tension between the two frequent goals of SIU, which are education for undergraduates and becoming a first rate research institution.

He described the goals as one being populist and the other elitist, but the task force is finding ways to pursue both.

The overall guidelines the group is working on should be finalized by the end of fall 1991 semester or early spring 1992.

Besides setting guidelines, Gumberman said the plan will be a process for evaluating SIU and implementing changes in the University.

Philip Davis, budget committee chairman, said the committee is advising the University budget advisory committee to look into long term programs of internal reallocation for faculty and staff salary increases.

The proposals are for the fiscal year 1993 budget.

Davis said salary increase recommendations for FY 1992 are on hold until they see what Gov. Jim Edgar does with the state budget.

childhood education facility.

Jacobson said the district told the University in October that it would not be leasing the school again when the contract expired.

Dixon said Rainbow's End has been looking at a couple new locations for the child development center, but definite plans could not be disclosed yet.

He said his main concern is to have Rainbow's End open again for fall semester Sept.1, but ideally it could be ready again for summer session.

Head Start has leased from the school district since 1985 and is in its second three-year lease, he said.

Desegregation in Chicago slow—census

CHICAGO (UPI) — Preliminary 1990 Census figures indicate the Chicago area has made little progress on the desegregation front in the past decade, a panel of experts said Tuesday at a fair housing seminar.

Blacks now live in 44 of 262 Chicago-area communities, compared to 32 of 262 in 1980, said Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission research director Max Dieber, after analyzing government figures.

"It's a slight improvement but not a noticeable impact," he said.

He and other seminar participants blamed discriminatory housing practices and a scarcity of jobs in part for the lack of progress

Chicago and outlying suburbs have made in breaking down the color barrier.

The Census shows that Evanston remains one of the most segregated suburbs, Chicago Urban League research director James Lewis said.

Lewis said blacks who have moved to suburbs "appear to be resegregating."

Soviet strike turns violent, cripples firms

MOSCOW (UPI) — Workers in the western republic of Byelorussia demanding the dissolution of the republic's Communist Party joined forces with striking coal miners Tuesday by walking off the job, and they left open the question of how long the action would last.

Meanwhile, about 1,500 striking Ukrainian coal miners and students clashed with riot police in Kiev in the first outbreak of violence in the 7-week-old coal strike, the nationalist Rukh organization said. No injuries were reported.

And President Mikhail Gorbachev, who himself faces a tough grilling by the Communist Party he heads at a plenum of its hierarchy Wednesday, asked leaders of the Soviet republics to back his plan for a moratorium on strikes and rallies.

The Supreme Soviet, the central legislature, adopted the program, which also calls for a graduated movement to a market economy, including the eventual freeing of all prices from state control, privatization of enterprises and making state businesses exist without subsidies.

Ignoring the proposed ban on political strikes and rallies, the workers in the Byelorussian capital of Minsk marched in columns to the city's central Lenin Square for a rally, the Soviet media said.

Similar marches unfolded in the city of Lida, Orsh, Solingorsk and Zhodino, the independent Interfax News Agency said of the walkout, which turned from a demand for increased wages into a renunciation of the Communist Party.

Gennady Bykov, co-chairman of the Minsk strike committee, said employees of 42 enterprises in the capital participated in the walkout and that the action would continue Wednesday.

Audrey Hepburn receives praise

NEW YORK (UPI) — Audrey Hepburn may still wonder how a "skinny broad" ever became a film star of her magnitude, but her co-workers and peers have no doubts on the subject of her talent.

"She redefined glamour for a whole generation," Roy L. Furman, president of the Film Society of Lincoln Center, told an audience at a Monday salute to Hepburn given by the society at Avery Fisher Hall.

Hepburn described cinema as "a tough and heartbreaking business but surely the best."

Prof: Fish-farming may help Southern Illinois economy

By Sherri L. Wilcox
Staff Writer

Fish-farming may mean big bucks in Southern Illinois, said an SIUC zoology professor.

Roy Heidinger, director of SIUC's Cooperative Fisheries Research Laboratory, told Business Today in an April interview that he thinks Southern Illinois has the potential to grow farm-raised fish and help the economy.

Heidinger would not comment on the statement, but Allan Woolf, director of the Cooperative Wildlife Research Laboratory said aquaculture, or fish farming, is the major initiative of the fisheries lab.

The fisheries lab now is working with the Office of Economic and Regional Development to create a marketing directory for a aquaculture products.

Pat Curry, a field representative from the office, said aquaculture will strengthen the entire agricultural industry.

"The demand for fish as food has grown dramatically and there is limited capacity in the lakes and oceans," he said. "Fish hatcheries will diversify the industry and give farmers something other than grain to raise."

Curry said a fish-farming industry eventually could grow and prosper in this area, helping the Southern Illinois economy and its current 12-percent unemployment rate a great deal.

"It's not going to employ a lot of people right away," he said. "But in the future, it could really expand."

Curry said fish farming in Southern Illinois would not be as traditional as it is in the southern states.

"Usually catfish is the main species found at hatcheries, but we would work with biologists in genetic research to develop new varieties of fish," he said. "Both for food, as well as sport fishing"

Curry also said the industry could be successful if government intervention is limited, so that private business would not be competing with the state and federal agencies.

"Right now there are hatcheries run by the state," he said. "Private groups could take that responsibility away from the government."

Little Grassy Fish Hatchery in Makanda is run by the state. It farm-raises fish to stock lakes for the purpose of sport fishing, said Alan Brandenburg, hatchery manager.

"We stock the lakes with channel catfish, bluegill, bass, tiger muskie and walleye with the hopes that the fish will reproduce and their offspring will continue the cycle," he said.

The staff stocks new lakes, areas of poor reproduction and provides anglers with different species of fish to catch.

Brandenburg said the success of farm-raising fish depends on the buying market.

"A lot of times it's not how many acres of water you have, but how many clients you have to sell to," he said. "It will take a good businessman and biologist to make it successful."

Curry added that there aren't many fish farmers in Southern Illinois.

"We need more marketing support to be competitive with southern states," he said.

Local banking industry healthier than nation

By Annette Holder
Staff Writer

Because of its diversified economy, the Midwest banking industry is doing better than the rest of the nation, said an SIUC professor of finance.

Marcia Cornett said Southern Illinois' banking industry never does well or poorly because of the business diversification. The rest of the country's banks rely primarily on industrial business, such as factories.

Mining and expanding small businesses are some of the many kinds of businesses in Southern Illinois.

"However, banks that have relied heavily on the coal industry in Southern Illinois are hurting (because of the decline in the Southern Illinois coal industry)," she said.

The banks on the East and West Coasts are hurting the most right now, because they invested more heavily in the real estate market, said Nanda Rangan, SIUC professor of finance.

The real estate market is cyclical. When the banks invested in real estate, the market was on an upswing, he said.

"When you reach for (more money), you have to take more risks," Rangan said. "The East and West Coast banks did not diversify and put all their risks on real estate."

New regulation for the national banking system is needed because banks are not doing well and Americans have lost confidence in the banking system, Rangan said.

If bills are introduced to the legislature that more heavily regulate the banking industry, banks no longer will be able to make risky investments to gain higher yields.

Charles Renfro, president of First National Bank and Trust Co. in Carbondale, said there is plenty of room for improvement in banking industry regulations.

An example of this is the rising

The banks on the East and West Coasts are hurting the most right now, because they invested more heavily in the real estate market. When the banks invested in real estate, the market was on an upswing.

—Nanda Rangan

cost of depositor's insurance, which would be decreased by regulation.

He said the bank is being penalized for risky investments made by other banks and savings and loans.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. had a $4 billion to $5 billion loss last year because of the risks made by the savings and loans institutions, Renfro said.

Renfro said the First National Bank and Trust Co. paid $77,000 to FDIC in January 1990 and $111,000 to FDIC in January 1991, an increase he described as exorbitant.

"In order to compete and survive, we need to create opportunities to pursue and better serve our customers," Renfro said.

One way to do this is to be allowed to sell stocks and bonds. J.P. Morgan, one of the largest banks on the East Coast, has received permission to sell stocks and bonds.

Those sales will increase the bank's income without having to make risky investments, Rangan said.

Businesses are cutting into the banking industry profit by providing credit to consumers, he said.

Auto markets, such as General Motors Corp., General Electric and Sears, have their own corporations to provide credit, Rangan said.

Loss of contract means layoffs for GE workers

LYNN, Mass. (UPI) — General Electric's loss of a $60 billion contract to produce engines for the Advanced Tactical Fighter will mean pink slips for some employees at the company's Lynn, Mass., facility, spokesmen said Tuesday.

The contract for the ATF, which will replace the F-15 Eagle, went to a group led by Lockheed Corp.

If GE had secured part of the contract which went instead to Pratt & Whitney, of East Hartford, Conn., most of the work would have been done at its aircraft engines division plant in suburban Cincinnati, but the Lynn plant would have made about 20 percent of the parts, said Bob Risch, spokesman for the Lynn facility.

"There will be some negative impact on Lynn," Risch said. "It will mean worse layoffs. I don't know how many."

There are currently about 8,000 employees at the Lynn plant.

Risch said announcements on layoffs could be expected "next week or so."

The Lynn facility has already lost jobs because of the cancellation of two engine projects, the P-7 antisub program and the A-10 stealth fighter.

"The A-12, that was our engine. We took a pretty good hit on that one," Risch said.

He said officials had been counting "very much" on the new contract.

"This was a winner-take-all kind of thing. Lockheed and Pratt & Whitney were lucky enough to win. We'll have to redouble our efforts on the next one," Risch said.

Sophomore AFROTC cadets go before competitive board

By Natalie Boehme
Staff Writer

Sophomores in the Air Force ROTC program are finding out if they have what it takes to join the Air Force ranks.

The end of the second year of college is traditionally the time the Air Force signs new recruits, but cadets wanting to sign a contract must first be approved by the Air Force National Selection Board, said Capt. Mark Douglas, assistant professor of AFROTC.

Selected cadets will go to physical training camp during the summer break and then have the option of signing a contract with the Air Force beginning their junior year.

Cadets who sign receive $100 a month for expenses from the Air Force and are eligible for tuition scholarships. In return cadets are required to serve a set amount of time in the military upon graduation.

The time commitment depends on the type of job they receive in the Air Force. The minimum commitment is four years, however, pilot and aviator positions require up to 10 years of service, Douglas said.

The board knows how many and which jobs will need to be filled at the time cadets graduate, Douglas said. From this information the board selects the cadets who are best qualified in the areas needed.

"It's very competitive," Douglas said. "Some people will not get picked. This is a very stressful time for our cadets."

Of the 25 SIUC cadets who were sent before the board, 15 have been selected so far, Douglas said.

He said the selection process will continue until all positions are filled.

The board scores cadets on their aptitude test, physical test, grade point average, a personal interview and overall performance. Each area is weighted the same, he said.

For Philippe Burrelle, a business management sophomore from Aurora, the waiting is over.

After three months of waiting

Burrelle was approved by the board April 12.

"Having your future hanging in the balance for that long could drive a person crazy," he said.

Burrelle, who first was introduced to the military as a child when his father was in the Army, said he always has been drawn to the military lifestyle.

Despite the Persian Gulf war, Burrelle said his dream of being in the military was not altered.

"I've always wanted to go into the military," Burrelle said. "The war in the Middle East was eye-opening, but it didn't change my mind about a military career."

Signing a contract with the Air Force means upon graduation Burrelle is committed to spend four years in the service.

Burrelle, who plans a lifetime career in the military, said the commitment does not scare him because he sees it as an investment in his future.

"It's like going into a job," he said. "I'm putting in time towards what I want to do."

HIV-positive prostitute charged

EDWARDSVILLE (UPI) — A prostitute carrying the AIDS virus was charged Tuesday with trying to transmit the deadly virus in a bid by authorities to keep her off the streets.

The Class 3 felony charge of attempted criminal transmission of the HIV virus was filed in Madison County Circuit Court against Felicia Ann Horton, 21, of Alton. The felony charge carries a sentence of two to five years in prison.

Horton was arrested April 2 for allegedly soliciting an undercover police officer in Alton and agreeing to perform a sex act for $25.

William Haine, state's attorney for Madison County, also filed a motion to deny bail at the same time the criminal charges were filed. Madison County Judge Edward Ferguson granted the motion, pending a hearing April 24.

Documents filed in support of the motion to deny bail for Horton said the prostitute on at least one occasion had slashed her wrists and tried to put the blood on two people. Mark Von Nida, administrative assistant to Haine, declined to comment on the alleged incident.

Horton was held without bond at the East Alton jail, authorities said.

On Monday, Haine asked a Madison County judge to quarantine Horton because she knew she carried the AIDS virus while continuing to prostitute herself. The request, which Haine filed at the urging of the Illinois Department of Health, was filed under an old Illinois law once used to isolate patients with tuberculosis and other highly infectious diseases.

The judge took the quarantine request under advisement without indicating when he would rule, Von Nida said. He said the judge still had not ruled Tuesday.

Also Tuesday, Haine's office filed a motion to seal the records included in the motion for quarantine as required by the Sexually Transmissible Disease Control Act. Associate Madison County Circuit Judge Michael Mehan granted the motion.

A statement released by Haine's office said the state's attorney would not release any more information related to the case.

Struggle with patient leaves one nursing assistant dead

HOUSTON (UPI) — A patient being treated for seizures attacked hospital workers Tuesday, hurling himself and others through a steel grate and 40 feet down an airshaft, killing one man.

The violent struggle also injured five people, including the patient.

"This morning, at approximately 7:15 a.m., a very unfortunate, tragic incident occurred in our hospital," said Dr. Jephtha Dalston, president of Hermann Hospital.

The incident began during a shift change for workers in Hermann's neurological nursing unit, when two nurses went into the 41-year-old man's room and were immediately attacked, said Cary Miller, the hospital's vice president of development.

"He followed them out of the room and physically tackled one of the nurses," Miller said. "They called for the alert team, and all hell broke loose."

The unruly patient, who officials said was determined to leave the hospital, made his way to a fifth floor elevator and began struggling with other workers trying to restrain him.

A nursing assistant who tumbled down the shaft died shortly after the incident.

University poet in residence named 'Outstanding Scholar'

University News Service

CARBONDALE — Rodney G. Jones, poet in residence at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, has been named SIUC's 1991 Outstanding Scholar.

A critically acclaimed writer, Jones won the 1989 National Book Critics Circle Award — a literary prize second only to the Pulitzer — for his third book of poetry, "Transparent Gestures."

The Outstanding Scholar award, SIUC's highest academic honor, recognizes outstanding research and creative activity.

Jones, the seventh SIUC faculty member to win the award, is the first scholar named from the humanities. He will be cited during Commencement ceremonies May 12 and will receive a $5,000 cash prize in the fall.

The SIUC award is the latest in a string of honors for the 41-year-old poet, including Kenyon College's First Review Award for literary excellence, The American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters Jean Stein Award for Poetry, and a Guggenheim fellowship.

Jones' second volume of poetry, "The Unborn," received a Pulitzer Prize nomination in 1985.

Jones, whose poetry is a patchwork of personal experience and imagined possibilities, writes on subjects as diverse as carnival sideshows, academic conferences, calf-birthing, the "Challenger" disaster and his grandmother's potato pie.

Reviewers have called his poems "brilliantly inventive" and "startling." One critic described his work as "an intense dream... that takes place where the wilderness and industrial civilization stand face to face, equally bewildered."

A pillar in the University's creative writing program since his arrival on campus in 1984, Jones also teaches beginning and advanced poetry writing courses in the Department of English.

Senior to give performance on 'Showtime at the Apollo'

By Annette Holder
Staff Writer

It's finally showtime for a SIUC student who has been singing since he was seven years old.

Ivory Henderson, senior in speech education from Chicago, will give a solo vocal performance for "Showtime at the Apollo" in June for broadcast at a later date.

"Showtime at the Apollo" is a nationally televised program shown on NBC stations.

Many famous singers, including Anita Baker and Billy Holiday, have gotten their big break as a result of an appearance on the show.

Henderson said he received a letter in the mail telling him the judges liked his voice and they asked him to send another video. He said he was surprised because he never contacted "Showtime at the Apollo."

Ivory Henderson

"I was talking to some friends about what had happened," Henderson said. "One friend laughed... she was acting like she already knew what happened."

Henderson said she later admitted she had sent in the video.

Henderson prefers singing ballads by Luther Vandross and Johnny Gill.

He was surprised he was accepted because he did not think he could sing well.

"I think I sing horrible," he said. "But everyone else seems to like (my voice)."

Henderson said he is excited about a possible career in singing. "If there's something you want to do, don't be afraid to try it and experience all that life has to offer," he said.

He said it would be great if a professional career in music results from this.

"I never took (singing) seriously," he said. "I was afraid to go that route — I wanted to finish my education first."

Fraternity feud leads to school suspension

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — The University of Florida temporarily suspended the campus's two largest black fraternities Tuesday, following a weekend shootout between members of the feuding organizations at an off-campus housing complex.

The Phi Beta Sigma and Kappa Alpha Psi fraternities were barred from all campus activities pending the outcome of criminal investigations into the shooting and other reported assaults between members.

James Scott, UF's Dean of Students, said the graduate advisers for the fraternities were notified late Monday of the suspensions.

"They are also going to be receiving an official letter advising them of this action as well as a strong statement by the university, which says that if there are any further incidents, the chapters face the possibility of being removed permanently," Scott said.

Members of the fraternities could not be reached for comment.

Scott said the feud apparently began five years ago, but school officials do not know the root of the conflict between the Greek houses.

"There is a great deal of competition and rivalry between both of these organizations, because they are the two largest black Greek fraternities on campus," Scott said.

"Often the competition is healthy, but it appears in this situation things have gotten out of hand."

There are 31 fraternities and 16 sororities on the UF campus. Four of the fraternities and four of the sororities are black.

Problems began Saturday afternoon at a dance competition sponsored by several black fraternities and sororities.

Members of Phi Beta Sigma and Kappa Alpha Psi got into a verbal argument and someone was hit with a cane used as a prop in the competition, campus police said.

The dance ended peacefully, but at about 2 a.m. Sunday two members of Phi Beta Sigma were leaving a campus party when they were approached by about 40 Kappa Alpha Psi members.

The Kappa Alpha Psi students beat the Phi Beta Sigma members about the head with canes causing multiple welts, though no medical attention was required, said Angie Tipton, a spokeswoman for campus police.

Campus police recommended Tuesday that the state attorney's office file aggravated battery charges against Harold DeWayne Mackey, 19; Raya Teron McCray, 18, and Ernest Tolliver III, 23.

An hour after the Sunday morning assault, about 10 Phi Beta Sigma members attempted to break into the apartment of UF junior and Kappa Alpha Psi member John Kincaide, 20. Someone inside the apartment fired at the group and the gunfire was returned.

Gainesville Police Lt. Sadie Darnell said no one was injured in the exchange and the shooters for either side have not been identified or arrested.

Man charged with smuggling Irish artifacts

BOSTON (UPI) — Authorities have recovered artifacts more than 1,000 years old that were reported stolen from an Irish monastery, and an Irish national who tried to sell them is facing smuggling charges, the FBI said Tuesday.

Peter Kenny, 68, whose last known address was in Australia, was arrested Monday at a motel in suburban Wellesey. He was being held pending a hearing Wednesday in U.S. District Court, the FBI said.

Kenny first came to the attention of authorities when he allegedly tried to sell three stones, similar to gravestones in appearance, to Boston College. BC officials decided to check the descriptions of the items with Irish officials.

"Once the material had been presented to them, they contacted Irish authorities to determine some background," said Special Agent William McMullin of the FBI's Boston office.

Irish authorities, realizing the items were those stolen from an ancient monastery, contacted the FBI. An undercover agent began negotiating with Kenny to buy the items, the FBI said.

The three artifacts have an estimated value of $7 million on the international market.

Delayed Discovery

Mysterious electrical glitch delays launch of 'Star Wars' flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) - Launch of the shuttle Discovery Tuesday on a "Star Wars" research flight was delayed until at least Sunday because of a mysterious electrical glitch with a fuel pump on one of the ship's three main engines.

Discovery's countdown was proceeding smoothly toward a planned liftoff at 7:05 a.m. EDT Tuesday, but the launch had to be called off after engineers noticed suspect readings from a critical sensor on main engine No. 3's high pressure oxygen pump.

One of two such sensors used to monitor pressure inside an internal cavity showed a reading of more than 330 pounds per square inch, some 20 times higher than allowed by NASA's launch safety rules. The other sensor showed a normal 15.7 psi reading.

Engineers said the suspect reading likely was caused by one of three possible problems: a faulty sensor, trouble with the electrical cable leading to it or problems with the engine's computer controller. The pump itself is believed to be in proper working order.

The sensors are in place to detect potentially catastrophic leaks that would require a quick engine shutdown in flight. All such sensors on each engine must be operational before a shuttle can be cleared for launch and engineers will not know what will be required to fix Discovery until they can get into the ship's engine room Wednesday.

Assuming a faulty sensor or cable, officials said Discovery's countdown could be restarted as early as Thursday for a launch attempt at 7:01 a.m. Sunday. If the engine computer has to be replaced, the eight-day mission would be delayed a few days.

"This is the first case of a transducer failure like this in the whole entire program," said Boyce Mix, deputy manager of the engine program.

Engineers now plan to service the payload Wednesday and Thursday in hopes of making a Sunday launch try.

More stringent inspections of aircraft passed by House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, responding to concerns about the safety of older planes being flown by U.S. airlines, voted Tuesday to require more stringent inspections of the aircraft for metal fatigue and other safety problems.

The bill, passed on a voice vote, is intended to deal with the increasing use of older aircraft. In 1988, 28 percent of the world's commercial jets were 20 years old or older, but the percentage is expected to increase to 35 percent by 1995 and to 40 percent by the year 2000. The problem received widespread public attention in 1988 when an 18-foot-long section tore off the top of an Aloha Airlines plane that was flying at 24,000 feet over Hawaii. The plane, a Boeing 737, had made 89,000 flights, the second highest number for any of that model aircraft.

Later inspections of the plane revealed evidence of corrosion and cracking throughout its structure.

Following that accident, the Federal Aviation Administration imposed new inspection rules.

Changing self-image of men in '90s focus of seminar at Interfaith Center

By Jefferson Robbins
Staff Writer

A seminar Wednesday at the Interfaith Center will examine the changing self-image of men in the 1990s.

Jeff Harris, a psychologist with the Counseling Center, will conduct his "Men and Masculinity in the '90s" discussion at 7 p.m. as part of a University Christian Ministries lecture series, said Karen Knodt, UCM director.

Knodt said the series, "Growing Toward Wholeness," is designed to focus on personal growth and spiritual and mental wellness. UCM has previously sponsored lectures and workshops on such topics as racial stereotyping, AIDS and conscientious objection to military service.

Harris, who joined the Counseling Center staff in September 1990, said a shift in American men's perceptions of themselves is occurring.

"I think in the 1990s there's much more of an awareness that the traditional male role may be outdated," Harris said. "Some men suffer stress from trying to live up to the expectations of that role."

"I think men are much more open to change today," he said.

Harris quoted psychology researcher Robert Brannon on the four points of masculinity most men feel they must live up to. The first, "no sissy stuff," teaches that men must avoid any hint of femininity, such as willingness to do housekeeping work or an appreciation of art.

"The big wheel" principle says in order to have a positive self-image, men must attain status and success in their professions. In other words, a man may perceive himself as a failure in life if he believes he is a failure in his career.

"The sturdy oak" idea teaches that a man must always be strong and self-reliant in a crisis, even against impossible odds. Finally, there is the "give 'em hell" standard, which Harris describes as "the aura of violence and aggression" men feel they must carry to maintain their balance in many social situations.

Harris said the seminar will examine the development of the traditional masculine role, the reasons why it has become outdated and the alternative male image that is evolving.

Admission to the seminar is free.

Unwarranted police chase evidence allowed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court said Tuesday a police chase without probable cause does not become illegal until an officer actually touches his suspect, thus allowing evidence discarded during the chase to be used in court.

In what dissenting Justice John Paul Stevens called a "profoundly unwise" reversal of traditional protections against unreasonable searches and seizures, the court said police who chase down and confront someone without "reasonable suspicion" have not illegally "seized" him as a matter of law until he has been physically touched.

Until Tuesday, most courts had interpreted such a chase itself to constitute an illegal "seizure" in violation of the Fourth Amendment, regardless of whether the suspect was captured.

"The word 'seizure' readily bears the meaning of a laying on of hands or application of physical force to restrain movement," Justice Antonin Scalia wrote for the majority in the 7-2 ruling. "It does not remotely apply, however, to the prospect of a policeman yelling 'Stop, in the name of the law!' at a fleeing form that continues to flee. That is no seizure."

In other action Tuesday, the court said a limit can be placed on the number of unions that represent doctors, nurses and other health care workers in the nation's 4,000 private acute-care hospitals.

Armed Iraqi troops helping relief efforts in refugee sites

United Press International

Armed Iraqi troops in the neighborhood of refugee camps are a "concern" but while they are an intimidating force, so far they have not been hostile and in some cases have helped the relief effort, U.S. officials said Tuesday.

"They've been cooperating, there haven't been any attacks," said White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater. "Obviously we would prefer that they not be there. That's all been communicated (to Iraq)."

With the relief effort along the Turkish-Iraqi border progressing each day, Western nations turned their attention to refugees crowded toward Iran. The United States was negotiating with Iran on relief help and Germany increased its level of aid to that region.

While Iraq officially protested the presence of U.S. troops on its soil to the United Nations, reports coming from the Mideast indicated the Iraqi Cabinet might be taking over some of the powers formally held by President Saddam Hussein.

Secretary of State James Baker took his Mideast mission to Syria in an attempt to bring President Hafez Assad into the peace process. Baker also added a quick stop to the Soviet Union on his schedule to discuss his efforts for a new Middle East agenda.

"We feel he's (Baker's) making progress," Fitzwater said. "We feel the secretary has had productive talks during his visit to the Middle East." But he refused to characterize what has been accomplished to date.

Several hundred Iraqi troops described as "lightly armed" are located in positions within Zakho, a town about nine miles from the Turkish border, and in high ground above the town, Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said.

More than 7,300 U.S. Marines, along with British, French, Canadian and Italian forces, are building emergency camps in the area of Zakho to help the hundreds of thousands of Kurds who fled Saddam's crackdown following the Persian Gulf war.

"The Iraqis are not interfering with the humanitarian effort, either with our provision of supplies to the refugees anywhere in Iraq or along the Turkish border or with the construction of the refugee centers in and around Zakho," Williams said.

"So, for now, they are cooperating, it's not a problem," Williams added. "They have been cordial. They've actually assisted in some cases or gotten out of the way in others. They appear to be keeping a distance while at the same time appearing to argue their sovereignty by demonstrating a presence."

U.S. forces asked the Iraqis to withdraw behind a line about 20 miles south of Zakho. Williams said Iraqi artillery units that had been in the area did depart. The ones who are left are like a border guard or police units.

Iraq, accusing the United States of violating its sovereignty, asked the United Nations to take over refugee camps.

Iraq's Foreign Minister Ahmed Hussein said in a letter to Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar that the presence of U.S. Marines in Iraqi territory is a "serious, unjustifiable and unfounded attack on the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Iraq."

War may be over but nightmare lingers in Iraq

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UPI) — The daily bombing raids ended nearly two months ago, but for Baghdad residents the nightmare started by the Persian Gulf War continues.

Six weeks of bombing raids left the city without electricity, running water, telephones and gasoline.

"It would have been better to die from the American bombardment than to have to continually suffer like this," Ibrahim Falah, a Baghdad taxi driver, said Tuesday.

"The Americans are so proud of their precision bombing and think it civilized," said an Iraqi businessman at his middle-class, downtown Baghdad home who did not want to be identified. "But they have hit our most sensitive nerve and drastically affected our livelihood — our power system." Already feeling isolated from the world, Iraqis also have become isolated from each other because of the damage to their communication and transport systems.

Strict gasoline rationing has made Baghdad a city of pedestrians. In the countryside, families can be seen walking in remote areas where the nearest town may be up to 30 miles away.

Under rationing, each car is allowed about eight gallons of gasoline every 20 days.

Iraqis buy gasoline coupons at state-subsidized prices. Black market gasoline is unaffordable to most people.

Most of the oil refineries were damaged during the war, but the Dura oil refinery, near Baghdad, was repaired last week and is expected to supply 93,000 barrels of fuel a day. Iraq, a major oil-producing nation, normally consumed 300,000 barrels a day before the war.

Many families were separated by the fighting. Some have been reunited. Others have not.

One hotel employee, who also did not wish to be identified, lost track of her parents who had fled to their home town in southern Iraq when the war broke out.

No sooner had the cease-fire been declared than the Shiite rebellion erupted in the southern provinces.

"I do not know if they are dead or alive," she told United Press International in the Baghdad hotel lobby.

Leyva fired, Fregosi hired

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies Tuesday fired manager Nick Leyva only 13 games into the season and replaced him with Jim Fregosi.

Leyva, 37, who was in his third season as manager, saw the Phillies get off to a 4-9 start and fall into last place in the National League East as he became the first manager to be fired this year.

During spring training, team president Bill Giles and general manager Lee Thomas said they expected the Phillies to win around 85 games and contend for the divisional title.

"The team hasn't played good," Leyva said. "It's only 13 games into the season but things have gone like this quite a few times (in the past) and they don't want to get buried early."

Leyva, who had a record of 148-189 with the Phillies, has the rest of this season and all of next season left on a contract that is worth $500,000.

Fregosi, 49, a former manager with the California Angels and Chicago White Sox, received a contract for the rest of the season. He has worked as a special assignments scout for the Phillies since May, 29, 1989.

"I just felt a change was needed at this particular time," said Phillies General Manager Lee Thomas, who made the decision to fire Leyva. "As in the case of many managerial changes, the outgoing manager isn't always the total problem. But I didn't like the way the team was playing and decided not to wait any longer."

King: Tyson wants Holyfield next

NEW YORK (UPI) — Don King, the promoter for former heavyweight title-holder Mike Tyson, Tuesday said he and Tyson are ready to negotiate to fight champion Evander Holyfield in the fall.

Holyfield and his promoters said after his victory over George Foreman Friday night they wanted Tyson next, but claimed King and Tyson did not want the bout.

"I want to expose to the light that Don King is not going to be an obstacle," King said Tuesday.

"Tyson wants to fight Evander Holyfield, I want to fight Evander Holyfield, we're ready to fight. There are no encumbrances at all."

"I want the fight to get on. I don't want politics to get in the way."

King said he has not yet spoken to Holyfield's promoters Dan Duva and Shelly Finkel about making the bout.

Duva and Finkel have been feuding with King, and blame him for standing in the way of a Holyfield-Tyson fight. Holyfield

"I'm not going to get into the pros and cons of Nick Leyva. That's in the past. I'm just looking ahead. Jim is an excellent baseball man. He has extensive knowledge of our entire system, majors to minors. He and I are going to work together to get this team headed in the right direction, a climb we started last season."

Before opening a 12-game home stand Tuesday night against the New York Mets, the Phillies had lost seven of their last eight games.

Philadelphia's team batting average of .221 was the lowest and its ERA of 4.61 was the highest in the National League.

"The club has not played good," Leyva said. "When the club does not play good and you have high expectations, somebody has to take the blame."

said he wants to fight Tyson next.

Tyson is scheduled to fight a June 28 rematch against Razor Ruddock but King said he would be able to battle Holyfield in October—when Holyfield's promoters say they want his next fight.

Duva and Finkel say King does not want the fight because a Tyson loss would put the promoter out of the heavyweight division.

"King is ready, willing and able to talk to them and do this fight," King said.

Steinbrenner testifies at Spira gambling trial

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Steinbrenner broke down twice Tuesday when he testified in the trial of admitted gambler Howard Spira, and said the entire incident embarrassed him and destroyed him in baseball.

Steinbrenner last year agreed under pressure from baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent to step down as general partner of the New York Yankees because of his involvement with Spira.

Spira is on trial in U.S. District Court in Manhattan and charged with trying to extort Steinbrenner and with threatening to harm him. Steinbrenner Tuesday testified a $40,000 payment he made to the gambler was to stop Spira from making threatening and harassing calls to his family and friends.

Steinbrenner twice hunched his shoulders and sobbed, holding back tears, during his testimony. The first time came when he was shown pages from one of Spira's notebooks with names of his family and friends.

Assistant U.S. attorney Gregory Kehoe asked Steinbrenner if he would continue and he said yes.

Steinbrenner broke down again during cross-examination from defense attorney David Greenfield. Greenfield asked if Steinbrenner feared Spira? "It has been a real embarrassment to me and my family," he said of the entire episode.

Greenfield then asked Steinbrenner if he had been destroyed.

"As far as baseball, yes," he replied before breaking down again.

Greenfield then asked Steinbrenner if he could continue, and again he said he could.

Steinbrenner also listened to tapes of phone calls and read transcripts of the calls and copies of letters written by Spira that were introduced as evidence. He chuckled at times while reading the transcripts and listening to tapes.

In the taped conversations, Steinbrenner repeated told Spira he would not pay him money.

Jackson suffers from muscle tear

CHICAGO (UPI) — Pitcher Danny Jackson's groin injury was confirmed to be a muscle tear, which could sideline him at least one month, Chicago Cubs team physicians said.

Jackson was examined Monday in Chicago and originally a team spokeswoman said the injury was a strain of the left groin. But doctors said they did find a tear.

"He tried to do too much," Cubs Manager Don Zimmer said. "He wasn't pitching like Danny Jackson can pitch. (The first) two outings he walked 11 men. That's not his game."

Jackson, signed as a free agent this past winter after going 6-6 at Cincinnati, will not rejoin the Cubs, who are in the midst of a three-city road trip. He was expected to rest a week, then begin therapy.

The left-hander, who was the Cubs' Opening Day pitcher, suffered the injury Friday in Pittsburgh and was placed on the 15-day disabled list Saturday. It is the sixth time in the last 22 months that Jackson has been on the disabled list.

Stadium removed from McCormick expansion

CHICAGO (UPI) — A domed stadium intended to become the new home of the Chicago Bears was removed Tuesday from a McCormick Place expansion project.

The Metropolitan Pier and Exposition Authority voted to remove the stadium construction and proceed with efforts to win legislative approval to build a new exposition hall at an estimated cost of $1 billion.

"I think it is clear to everyone that the dome cannot be done at this point," said John Schmidt, authority chairman. "To try to get it would put a risk to the remainder of the expansion."

Schmidt said the Authority would set up an office in Springfield specifically to lobby lawmakers this session to approve funding for the expansion.

He said removing the domed stadium as part of the project should make it easier to win legislative approval.

"Let's not kid ourselves into thinking this is now a sure deal to pass but I now think it is possible to pass without the dome," Schmidt said.

Bears President Michael McCaskey declined comment on the latest development. He previously threatened to move the team out of the city if a replacement is not provided for aging Soldier Field.

After freshman Jason Smith singled to lead off the inning and junior Kurt Endebrock drew a walk, senior Bob Geary singled into the hole to load the bases.

Freshman Clint Smothers then drew a walk to score Smith. Boehlow then relieved and got the final three outs.

Bilikens' head coach Bob Hughes said it was a big victory for his team.

"It's a big milestone for St. Louis University when we come down and defeat SIUC," he said. "I don't think we expected the score to be what it was, but we have been competitive all year. Had they executed the way they are capable of, it would have been a closer game."

Riggleman said he did not know what the problem was for his team.

"Our pitching was not a problem up until the sixth," Riggleman said. "Our defense got us into trouble and then their offense was in a position to take advantage of that. We are not the kind of club that can just stand there, make mistakes and expect to win. Now we have to regroup and come back against Eastern Illinois."

average in 39 games. Jetel is close behind, hitting .355 and leading the team with a .470 on-base percentage.

Aten supplies the power for the Panthers with 10 home runs and 38 RBI.

Eastern's troubles are on the mound. None of EIU's starting pitchers has a winning record. Opposing teams are hitting .300 and scoring 5.4 runs a game against the Panthers. EIU does have a strong reliever in right-handed Mike Fahey, who has an ERA of 0.87 to go with three wins and the team's only save.

After the doubleheader at Eastern, the Salukis travel to Murray State for a single game Thursday. The Dawgs then face Illinois State in two doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday.
