Amtrak to eliminate route

Gus Bode

By Todd Welvaert
Politics Writer

Amtrak officials announced Wednesday plans to eliminate the rail line running from Carbondale to St. Louis.

The Amtrak Board of Directors has 60 days in which to hear public comment on the cut.

Amtrak runs a line between St. Louis and Carbondale which connects with the "City of New Orleans" train running between New Orleans and Chicago.

Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Carterville, said he hopes to change Amtrak's mind.

"The Board of Directors has approved dropping the line, but a lot of folks who depend on the line are concerned about it," Poshard said. "We are going to put a public comment period together for Carbondale in which this office will take a leadership role in trying to convince Amtrak to back away from this decision."

The St. Louis-Carbondale and New Orleans line began operating March 29, 1984, and was designed to connect major Midwest markets.

Amtrak said it will cancel the line because of the poor ridership on the route. In 1991, only 17,000 passengers used the route with an average of 23 passengers a trip.

Pell Grant funding not sure

Senate refuses guaranteed funds for financial aid

By Casey Hampton
General Assignment Writer

Efforts by student organizations to ensure guaranteed funding for the Pell Grant have failed in the Senate.

But student lobbying efforts for the provision are far from over.

A provision attached to the Higher Education Act that calls for the Pell Grant to become an entitlement was taken out in the Senate last week because it violated the spirit of the Budget Enforcement Act, which allows no transfer of money for a different program.

The Budget Enforcement Act expires in 1995, so the proposed entitlement would not go into effect until 1997.

Making the Pell Grant an entitlement would affect about 1 million college students nationwide, including those who now receive the grant and those who are eligible under law.

Because the provision was deleted before the bill came to a vote in the Senate, the Higher Education Act passed and the entitlement provision can now be introduced in the House.

The bill, with the entitlement provision attached, will be under debate in the House of Representatives sometime this week.

Alicia Ybarra, program coordinator for the U.S. Student Association in Washington, D.C., said the House should be more sympathetic to the provision.

"We've been working on this for two years bringing it up to this point," she said. "We're going to continue our lobbying efforts to try to get it passed through the House."

More than 6,800 SIUC students received Pell Grants in 1990-91.

A Pell Grant Entitlement would guarantee eligible students to receive a Pell Grant and ensure the maximum grant is funded.

Law allowed the maximum Pell Grant to be $3,100 in 1991, but Congress only funded $2,400.

The maximum Pell Grant covers only 25 percent of the costs of attending college, compared to 50 percent in 1980.

"There's a difference between what Congress passes and what appropriations give out," Ybarra said. "Students whose families make $30,000 or less are eligible for the Pell Grant, but in reality

U.S. worker productivity increases following declining two-year trend

By Christy Gutowski
General Assignment Writer

U.S. worker productivity increased in 1991 after two years of decline, according to government figures released earlier this month.

The productivity of U.S. workers increased 0.2 percent for the year, with the highest rise in the fourth quarter. It was the first rise since a 0.9 percent increase in 1988.

Worker productivity is measured as the output of work each hour by non-farm workers.

Productivity declined 0.1 percent in 1990 and 0.9 percent in 1989.

The nation's weakened state of economy is a key factor when considering worker production, said Chris Kask, an economist for the Bureau of Labor Statistics in Washington.

During the beginning of a recession, productivity follows a typical pattern with productivity growth decreasing at a rapid rate, Kask said.

"Though there is a lower demand for services, companies are hesitant to lay off workers and cut hours," he said.

The hesitation, called "labor hoarding," occurs when companies do not lay off employees because of the time and money they have invested in training the workers.

It also takes time to order layoffs because a notice is given to the employee to ensure the individual has time to plan.

"The decision to cut laborers takes a long time while the output declines immediately in response to the economic condition," Kask said.

Court: Title 9 allows compensation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Wednesday ruled that federal law barring sex discrimination in education allows those who prove a violation to collect monetary damages.

The court said a private party can recover compensatory damages for an intentional violation of Title 9 of the Education Amendments of 1972.

The ruling had six justices in the majority with three concurring.

But the concurrence by Justice

Antonin Scalia, joined by Chief Justice William Rehnquist and Justice Clarence Thomas, differed with the court's theme that compensatory damages are available in such cases when Congress has not specifically noted otherwise.

The case involved Christine Franklin, who now is free to sue for compensatory damages for alleged sexual harassment by a teacher at her Georgia public high school.

The government had asked the court to rule that compensatory damages are not available in Title 9 or two other closely related statutes: Title 6 of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

Justice Byron White, writing for the court, said the "general rule" being announced Wednesday was that "absent clear direction to the contrary by Congress, the federal courts have the power to award any appropriate relief in a cognizable cause of action brought pursuant to a federal statute."

Student Health Program to sponsor abortion forum

The Student Health Program is sponsoring a forum today on whether abortion should be covered under the SIUC student health insurance policy.

Sam McVay, director of Student Health programs, said because student fees pay for the health insurance program, the health service policy has been that students have a say in what types of benefits they receive.

The forum will be from 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 4 p. m. and 6 to 8 p. m. in the Student Center.

A survey done last fall showed SIUC students favored including elective abortion under the student health insurance program.

Saluki swimmers coaches favorite SIUC picked to win conference again

By Cyndi Oberle
Sports Writer

The SIUC women's swimming and diving team will get its chance to live up to a first-place ranking in the Gateway Conference in the championship meet this weekend.

The team was picked to finish first in the conference in a recent coaches' poll, while Illinois State was picked to finish second.

The Salukis captured the league title last season and ISU took second.

SIUC and ISU are the only two Gateway schools that have won Gateway titles. The Salukis won in 1983, '84, '85, '87 and '91.

The meet begins today, and head coach Doug Ingram said the championship will be a close race again this year.

"It will come down to a few key events," he said. "We are swimming well, but we have to be at our best to repeat.

"We are strong in many events, but the key for us will be the breaststroke. We have just begun to improve in it. Our distance freestyle events also have just been rounding into form. I think it may be these events that will make the difference for us."

Ingram said the men's team will have more of a struggle in the Midwest Conference Championship, but they still have a chance to do well.

The women's team is coming off a second-place finish in the Eastern Independent Championships at Rutgers University last weekend. The men took first in the meet.

Ingram said the men were behind after the first day's events, but they battled back to take first.

"We won three of the five relays, and that was encouraging," Ingram said. "We knew we were on the right foot."

The women had many individual performances that paced the squad, Ingram said.

Senior Nancy Schmidkofer was the first Saluki swimmer to qualify for the NCAA Championship. She qualified for the NCAAAs and set a school record in the 50 freestyle with a time of :23.25. She also made provisional cuts in the 100 freestyle.

Senior Julia Hosier provisionally qualified in the 100 butterfly with a time of :56.48.

Ingram said he hopes Hosier and senior Tonia Mahaira make automatic qualifying times in the conference championship.

Mahaira placed first in the 200 freestyle with a time of 1:51.45. SIUC's 200 and 400 free relay team, also made provisional cuts. Schmidkofer and Mahaira were members of both relay teams.

All three seniors also have been named Gateway Swimmers of the Week during the regular season.

Ingram said all his swimmers are in top form at this point in the season.

"We are close to qualifying in a few events, so we will be a solid team this weekend," he said. "The women's team certainly wants to repeat as Gateway Champions, and we have seniors who have worked hard over the years. They would like to add another title to their accomplishments."

Schmidkofer said she has high expectations for her team.

"I have learned a lot in my four years here," she said. "And I hope in my final year we can repeat as conference champions. That would mean a lot to me and to all the seniors."

The meets begin today at the University of Illinois-Chicago.

Investigation clears Mitchell from bar brawl

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Seattle Mariners outfielder Kevin Mitchell is not expected to face criminal charges as a result of a fight outside of a San Diego nightclub Friday night.

A police investigation confirmed Mitchell was talking to a woman outside Smokey's Night Club near Jack Murphy Stadium. Police say a parking-lot brawl involving several patrons started after the woman's boyfriend arrived. The boyfriend and the woman's brother were upset by the attention Mitchell was paying her.

Mitchell, a one-time Most Valuable Player with the San Francisco Giants, was not involved in the subsequent fight.

Raymond Hightower, a friend of Mitchell's, was charged with assault with a deadly weapon. Wash Commander Lt. Tom Orban said Hightower was hitting someone who was unconscious.

Mitchell's brushes with the law spurred his December trade from San Francisco to Seattle. One month earlier, a woman accused him of raping her in his suburban San Diego home.

Women assured second in Gateway

WITH SIUC'S WIN over Illinois State last weekend, the women Salukis secured the No. 2 spot in the conference.

SIUC is in a struggle for first place in the Gateway with 13-1 Southwest Missouri State, ranked 10th nationally by the USA Today poll.

A pair of road victories against Western Illinois at 7:30 tonight and Bradley Saturday would keep alive the Salukis' hopes of gaining the top seed and home-court advantage for the Gateway Tournament.

Since the conference was founded, neither Bradley nor Western have beaten the Salukis. SIUC already beat Bradley and WIU at home.

SIUC equestrian team horse of different color

By Thomas Gibson
Sports Writer

For the past 15 years SIUC has had a little-known organization: the equestrian team.

Even people who are well-versed in every facet of sports seem to be unfamiliar with this organization. Despite the lack of publicity, the team has been fully functional from day one, said team member Joe Eberhardt.

Eberhardt, a senior in finance from Highland, is a hunt seat rider. A hunt seat rider uses an English-style, small saddle in jumping fences, sitting and posting trot. The events last 11 hours with an hour break.

"You only ride for 20 minutes, and the rest of the time you're sitting and waiting or giving encouragement to other riders on the team," Eberhardt said. "It's a lot of fun."

"It's not that much of a strenuous effort," he said.

The team is sponsored by Intramural Recreation, but the team still must pay for classes and transportation and motel costs incurred from traveling to events.

in the conference standings. The Westerwinds have dropped six straight including games last weekend against Northern Iowa and Drake.

When WIU played SIUC Feb. 1, they managed to control the inside game in the first half, but the Salukis overpowered WIU 75-59. WIU coach Kelly Hill said SIUC is hard to contain.

"You can't shut down SIUC," Hill said. "They are talented inside and on the perimeter with (senior guard Karrie) Redeker, (junior point guard Anita) Scott and (junior forward Angie) Rougeau. They also have shooters off the bench with (sophomore guard) Karen Powell and (senior guard) Colleen Heimstead.

"They have a very balanced team. We'll try to control them inside again and hope they're having trouble with their outside shot," she said. "SIUC also has controlled the boards in most of its games. SIUC has more height and depth than us."

For WIU, Gail Dlsak is in the top 10 in scoring in the Gateway averaging 14.5 points a game. Michelle Nason is averaging 13.2 and Amy Houtzel is averaging 10.7.

BRADLEY IS ONE of the hottest teams in the Gateway.

The Braves, 8-6 in the conference, have won six of its last seven games, losing only to SMSU. Bradley is in a race with Illinois State, 9-6, Wichita State, 7-7, and Indiana State, 7-8, for third place in the conference.

Accident injuries to sideline Quintana until All-Star break

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI) — Boston Red Sox first baseman Rod Quintana, injured during a weekend car accident in Venezuela, is expected to be sidelined until at least the All-Star break.

Quintana suffered a broken left arm and a broken bone near his big right toe in the Sunday accident outside Caracas.

Dr. Arthur Pappas, the Red Sox team physician, spoke with doctors at the hospital where Quintana underwent surgery Monday. Pappas said he would not know more of Quintana's condition until the player returns to the United States.

In any case, the 26-year-old Venezuelan will not be ready to play until mid-July at the earliest. He will need at least one month of recovery before he can begin rehabilitation.

Quintana's accident took place when he was rushing two of his brothers to a hospital. The initial reports said Roberto Quintana, 21, and Eddy Quintana, 18, had been shot after being involved in an earlier auto accident.

COURT ORDER RESTRAINS UNION ACTION — A Tazewell County judge Wednesday issued a court order to keep striking Caterpillar, Inc. workers from blocking entrances to the heavy equipment maker's plants in the Peoria area. Judge William Young imposed a 10-day restraining order that limits the United Auto Workers to only five picketers per plant entrance. The company had sought to allow no more than three picketers to stand outside factory gates.

DUNHAM AWAITS REPLY ON FATE OF HAITIANS — Dance legend Katherine Dunham waited Wednesday for a reply from President Bush to her plea to halt the forced repatriation of Haitian refugees. However, the famed choreographer entered the 26th day of her fast to protest U.S. policy toward Haiti while waiting for the president's reply to her Feb. 3 telegram. Dunham, 82, remained in serious but stable condition at St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis.

Author, professor to discuss racism

By Sherri L. Wilcox
General Assignment Writer

She writes and lectures about race, class and gender and regularly leads workshops on such subjects.

African-American sociologist Kesho Y. Scott teaches people how to lose racist tendencies and to remove racial stereotypes from their everyday lives.

Scott will present a free workshop, "Unlearning Racism" at 7 p.m. March 3 in Ballroom A of the Student Center.

Scott has taught for the past 15 years at colleges throughout the Midwest.

She is the first tenured African-American woman professor at Grinnell College in Grinnell, Iowa, where she is professor of sociology and American studies.

She writes and lectures about race, class and gender, and regularly leads workshops on such subjects.

She was awarded recently the Phillip Hubbard award for human rights from the University of Iowa.

She is the author of "Tight Spaces," a collection of autobiographical stories, which won an American Book Award in 1988.

She recently released her new book, "The Habit of Surviving," which focuses on the lives of four African-American women who left the South for better northern opportunities.

Scott is currently working on a book about mixed-race Americans for which she received a Puffin Foundation Grant.

Scott will give a public reading from "The Habit of Surviving" and will be available for booksigning at 2 p.m. March 4 in the Morris Library Auditorium.

The book is available at the University Bookstore.

The workshop is free, but limited to 60 participants. Those interested can register through the Women's Studies program at 453-5141.

Air Force commander dead at 75; credited with ROTC development

By Scott Wuerz
Special Assignment Writer

Obituary

Lt. Col. Oliver K. Halderson, the first commander of the Air Force ROTC squadron at SIUC, has died.

Halderson died Sunday at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau. He was 75.

Halderson, of Murphysboro, served as a U.S. Air Force pilot after his graduation in 1941 from Augustana College until 1962. He served in Saudi Arabia and several bases in the southern United States.

Halderson served his tenure as ROTC commander at SIUC from 1951 to 1954, with a faculty rank of professor of aerospace studies.

Lt. Dan Fowler, spokesman for the SIUC ROTC, said Halderson was responsible for the smooth implementation of Detachment 205.

"At the time of Commander Halderson's reign at SIUC, the ROTC was mandatory for all Air Force pilots," he said.

"Establishing the program here was a tough task simply because of the number of individuals involved," Fowler said.

SIUE changes GPA scale; moves from five point to four

By Brandi Tipps
Administration Writer

SIUE is converting its grade point average scale from 5.0 to 4.0 beginning March 30.

Eugene Magac, director of admissions and records for SIUE, said the conversion involves subtracting one point from all student GPAs.

SIUE is changing the scale now after a decision was made to change to a new Student Information System.

The Student Information System keeps records on all student personal and scholastic information.

SIUE currently uses the new system for students registering for spring quarter, Magac said.

Letter grades will not be changed.

Purchasing system benefits SIUC, city

THE RECENT DECISION BY SIUC President John C. Guyon to accept a point-of-sale card system for students should be recognized as a step toward strengthening relations between the University and city.

The new system will help bridge a gap that has existed between the University community and business owners of Carbondale. By allowing both University and local businesses to utilize the same system, no longer should there be claims of unfair competition.

Similar to bank teller cards, the point-of-sale plan will allow students to make transactions at businesses. The transaction fee is shared between the vendor and the customer's bank with no charge passed on to the customer.

PAST PROPOSALS FOR DEBIT CARD systems using student Valadine ID cards created an uproar among off-campus businesses. The program was criticized because only University merchants would have access.

Carbondale merchants also criticized the Valadine system costs. The proposal would have charged merchants $2,000 to $3,000 for leasing equipment. The high costs made the system affordable to only the University. But with the point-of-sale cards, merchants will only be charged $30 for a terminal.

WITH LIMITED TRANSPORTATION AFFORDED to SIUC students, off-campus businesses have been left out of the buying scheme. The debit card system would have further discriminated against local merchants in favor of on campus businesses. Once the new card system is in place, students will be compelled to shop around for the best deal and take advantage of the program.

The new system may be the best deal for students, SIUC and Carbondale, but the costs of investing in the Valadine debit system take away from the success of the new program. The University already had invested more than $47,000 for leasing Valadine equipment.

Next time the University plans to spend thousands of dollars on equipment it would be nice to make sure it will be used. With more planning and investigation, the money could have been saved.

ALTHOUGH MONEY HAS BEEN WASTED, the point-of-sale program hopefully will be a stepping stone for positive interaction between the University and the city with students coming out the real winners.

Letters to the Editor

Writer steps on rights of 'rednecks'

As a Central Illinoisian, I understand Tom Giesler's use of the term, "redneck." For some time I despised these people for their closed-mindedness, but Mr. Giesler proved that this is universal.

According to Mr. Giesler, I'm a "primitive native" of Southern Illinois because I live outside his boundary, which stretches "north of Peoria and east of Mississippi." It seems I've regressed from an educated honor student, living part-time in Decatur, to a despised, "primitive" hawling with no knowledge about the world. I'm sure affluent "natives," such as Mr. Paul Simon, would take offense just as I did. Such a subjectivity exposes the lack of experience in your life, Mr. Giesler.

As far as the "Alliance to Contain Hick-ism (ACH)," maybe it should be named the AOB—the Alliance of Bigots. Doesn't this subgroup have the right to act as they please like any other subgroup—suburbanites, African-Americans, Caucasians, etc.? Mr. Giesler, whether or not you and I approve of these so-called "rednecks" is irrelevant. If everyone was as close-minded and judgmental as you, our nation would be a bunch of feuding tribes.

Perhaps if you took the time to acquaint yourself with a few "rednecks" or "hicks," you'd notice that some of them are pretty damn smart about world affairs. In closing, I urge you to tell one of your Southern Illinoisian professors that he or she is a "primitive native." You and your ego might learn something!—Todd Hillman, junior, psychology.

Sports philosophy complements study

To suggest that athletes are "herded" to study sessions, and taught academic responsibility through "duress," are vast assumptions. This seems to be a clear attempt by the writers of several letters to misinform the University about the true intentions of the Athletic Department.

According to Evan Taylor, mandatory study sessions "dehumanize" the student athlete. Mr. Taylor doesn't fully understand the meaning of the word. To get an accurate view of these individuals in a "dehumanized" state, the Athletic Department should, as Mr. Taylor suggests, allow its athletes the right to fail, then witness the effects of life after college athletics without an education.

Vaughan Harry seems to have confused himself, and the issue, with a lot of doubletalk. On one hand, he suggests that the Athletic Department should provide suitably funded opportunities to be taken advantage of by its key athletes. On the other hand, he says that students fail on their own, and no one else should be blamed. If that failure or success of the athlete is solely his/her responsibility, what the Athletic Department does in regard to funding is irrelevant.

Finally, athletes are not allowed to fail athletically without first being given the opportunity to succeed. Through the guidance of the coach, they receive mental and physical preparation through rigorous training sessions. Failure to attend these sessions results in some sort of disciplinary action on the coach's part. If the Athletic Department supports this philosophy in terms of athletics, it should uphold a similar type of philosophy in regards to academics. Otherwise its priorities, as Mr. Harry suggests, will indeed be out of order.

The above letter may not reflect opinions of all members of the Student Athletic Advisory Board.—Amie Padgett, president, Student Athletic Advisory Board.

Gay minority influences public, contributes to decline of family

Boy, I'm sick of liberals and homosexuals complaining about being mistreated when some decent person takes a stand on moral issues. The fact is this small minority has clouded the minds of a lot of decent and moral people, collapsing the family structure right before our very eyes with their immoral behavior.

The family is the nucleus of our great country, and we're letting it decay because of immoral behavior. On 2-12-92, Michelle L. Malkin's letter spoke about how "male homosexuals might hold the highest percentage of reported HIV-positive cases, but they are the most decreasing group."

Statistics prove this to be true! But she fails to tell you why. The fact is a recent TV documentary interviewed homosexual men and not one of them was not affected by the death of a friend or ex-lover.

The fact is the AIDS virus is reducing the male homosexual community by death. It's not the myth of safe sex that is reducing the numbers, but death itself. And another point is how this immoral lifestyle has corrupted the Church. Look what the Rev. Stephen M. Edfors had to say in a letter on 2-12-92, accusing Professor Helmer of hidden homosexual tendencies because he stood up for what is right and moral.

The Church views homosexuality as sin. The Church does not hate that person, but hates that sin in their lives—the sin of homosexuality.

Homosexuality is a truly bizarre behavior. Even nature bears this truth out. Nature itself shows us the proper order of life, the way God made woman for man.—Roy Huffine, West Frankfort.

Letters to the Editor

Gay rights, human rights equal; homosexuals targeted unfairly

It seemed almost ludicrous to find Wayne Helmer protesting that to label him a homophobe was an attempt to intimidate him.

I found the actions of the publishers of Marvel Comics to be worthy of applause, if they intend to show gays to be as decent and loving and as capable of being heroic as their heterosexual counterparts.

Dr. Helmer brought up the calumny that gays wish to make having sex with children legal. I challenge him to show where any mainstream gay group has advocated this. Gays are as loving and competent around children as heterosexuals, and I would have no qualms about supporting their right to adopt children.

Opposing "age of consent" laws simply questions regulation of the age at which sexual activity can begin. The extent of sexual activity among teens shows that the laws are not realistic—if every violation of these laws was brought into court, our judicial system would collapse.

Such laws are not subject to general enforcement, but are selectively enforced to support bigotry and prejudice.

Laws against sodomy are laws which invade the privacy of the individuals involved. Anal sex is not only practiced by male homosexuals, but is not an uncommon practice among heterosexuals.

But almost universally, the laws against sodomy are applied in the cases involving homosexual males for the purpose of oppression.

Nowhere is Helmer's hypocrisy more notable than in his condemnation of gays for having multiple partners while opposing their right to be married—a contract which involves a monogamous relationship.

The question of homosexuality is not one of science, but one involving the right of individuals to control their destiny.

Those who would deny gays the right to sexual fulfillment do not do so on scientific grounds, but on the ancient and archaic laws of Deuteronomy and Leviticus, laws of oppression and human enslavement.

My position on gay rights can be summed up in the five words, "Gay rights are human rights."
—Robert T. Phillips, Carbondale.

Break day bewilders students

According to the Feb. 13 Daily Egyptian article, President Guyon said that a free day would be given on the first Monday of Spring Break. Hasn't this day always been included in our break? Or did you mean to say the Monday of March 23 (which would be the following Monday)?

We do not speak for everyone, but adding an extra day to an already week-long vacation doesn't make a whole lot of difference. It would have been nice to have had an extended weekend now, when we could use a short break.

What is even more confusing is that in the spring schedule book, we are not given President's Day off, nor are we given an extra day for spring break.

So why is President Guyon pretending to give us a day off when one was never given to us from the start? —Susan Mueller and Tracie Wargo, seniors, visual communications.

Chicagooan sticks up for 'hicks'

I am writing in response to the "anti-hick" message published in the Daily Egyptian on Feb. 19. I am from Chicago Heights, a town 32 miles south of Chicago, and I am by far not the best representative for a hick rebuttal, but here's how I see it, Mr. Giesler.

First of all, nobody put a leash around your neck and dragged you to Carbondale. You more than likely came here on your own and should have expected a change in lifestyles, activities, and music. If you don't like it here, go to a college in the north.

Second, what's wrong with getting addicted to country music? I myself own every Garth Brooks CD, along with Alabama, Carlene Carter, and many more. If you don't like the music, bring your own and stay out of Fred's. The southerners probably hate Top 40 and headbanging music as much as you hate country. I'll even admit that when I'm back home, I listen to U.S. 99 and not the Loop, WCKG, or WXRT like all my friends do, but that's by choice.

Lastly, I catch hell all the time because I'm from the Chicago area, but it's all in good fun. On the 19th, it wasn't funny anymore. What you wrote offended a lot of people, and I don't in the least bit blame them for being ticked off. I'd be mad too; someone told me I don't know how to act civilized.

I don't think hicks are the danger to America. Instead, it's the people like you who are always trying to differentiate people because of who they are and where they are from. I'm sorry I'm not perfect in every way, but until you are, I suggest you keep a lid on your comments.—Dave Braasch, senior, plant and soil science.

'Hick' letter insults hospitality

Southern Illinoisans are proud of SIU, and in a way, we serve as hosts to a multitude of students. Mockery is a very ill-mannered response to hospitality.

Don't misunderstand me. The job market in our area is poor, and we appreciate the revenue contributed by students. Coming into an area and spending money there, however, does not give one the privilege of foregoing common courtesy. Mr. Giesler, your drivel was an inane breach of good taste. Furthermore, there is nothing that you or anyone like you could ever teach me that I consider valuable. I do not include my friends from upstate in this category. Unlike you, I try to avoid stereotypes; they only demonstrate one's ignorance.

Perhaps you simply did not consider how your letter would be construed. I am merely grateful that my Southern Illinois upbringing instilled me with the good sense to keep from embarrassing myself in such a public manner.—Amy Perry, law student.

only those whose families earn less than $15,000 are receiving the grant."

The Pell Grant does not reach a lot of needy and middle income students, Ybarra said.

Dianna King, coordinator of public relations for financial aid at SIUC, said eligibility for Pell Grants involves more than just income, such as the number of family members, assets and debts.

"If (the entitlement) passes, we know there are going to be some changes," she said. "But it will benefit many students and help eligibility of students."

If the bill including the entitlement provision passes the House, the possibility remains for the entitlement to pass as part of the compromise bill between the House and the Senate.

Susan Filion, legislative director of the Illinois Student Association, said the poor financial condition of the state leaves no option other than federal aid.

"Our budget going into fiscal year '93 is in the worst possible shape it could be," she said. "Our only hope is to get the federal government to help higher education."

Filion said the bill, including this entitlement, is the most critical bill ISA could be lobbying.

Pell Grants constituted 80 percent of available financial aid in 1975 to 1976. Today, the grants constitute 48 percent of available aid, forcing more students to borrow.

SIUC Undergraduate Student Government President Jack Sullivan said he is somewhat encouraged by the slightly better chance the bill has in making it through the House.

"I want to be optimistic, but I have to be realistic," he said. "I'm very cautious—I'd like to see it happen, but the Bush Administration is against the entitlement status."

Sullivan said USG would continue efforts to help get the entitlement provision passed.

Amtrak is making the cut in the face of a projected $67 million loss this year.

"Right now, unless business picks up, we will have to cut more lines," Amtrak spokeswoman Debbie Hare said.

Amtrak projects it will save $1.4 million in annual operating costs and about $800,000 in reduced federal subsidies. Amtrak covers 80 percent of the costs of running the trains with the federal government picking up 20 percent. "We know how important rural transportation is and it hurts when you lose service of any kind," Poshard said in a press release. "We need to capitalize on this opportunity and let Amtrak know our concerns over the direction it is apparently heading."

Hare said the Carbondale-to-Chicago train is safe from cuts because the train receives funding from the state.

The influence of African music and culture continues to be present in today's popular music and dance. African music carries a tradition that can be traced back to the early cotton field slaves who used a special technique to communicate with each other.

African music influence lies in culture of early field slaves

By William Ragan
Entertainment Writer

The culture and song of Africa began shaping American music since slaves first sang in the cotton fields and continues to influence everything from rap to modern dance.

Music Professor Robert Weiss said many Americans have lost touch with the roots of their music.

"People are aware of the glitz and glamour. They don't think about where it originated," Weiss said.

Africans carried their tradition along with their belongings when they were enslaved and brought to America.

They also carried with them the foundation of blues, jazz and gospel music.

In African music, a rhythm is established by a group of musicians and repeated, while the song leader signals changes in rhythm and improvises over the theme.

This style of repeated musical phrasing is called rifting. The riff was used widely in big band jazz and can be found in every style of music from rhythm and blues to heavy metal.

The riff is an offshoot of "call-and-response" singing, which can be heard clearly in gospel and spiritual music as well as the sermons of black preachers.

Although slaves working in the cotton, sugar and tobacco fields of the South were forbidden to talk to each other while working, singing was permitted at times.

Slaves developed a gravelly type of singing known as "field hollers" or "cries," closely related to the songs of West African tribes.

These songs became a way for slaves to communicate with each other in the field, while shielding their intentions from the ears of their white overseers.

This screaming lyrical style, coupled with the use of the five-interval pentatonic or blues musical scale and a strong foundation in folk and country forms, became the blues.

The blues were born in the late

Larry 'Big Twist' Nolan, one of the most successful artists to emerge from Southern Illinois, was a noted blues singer.

1800s but did not become popularized until the 1920s and '30s, when country blues artists such as Robert Johnson and the female-dominated "classic" blues genre were at the forefront of black popular music.

Mississippi-born artists such as Howlin' Wolf, Muddy Waters and B.B. King played an upscale, big city variation of country blues called urban blues, which laid the foundation for rock and roll.

Jazz sprung from the African-American community of New Orleans, where it was performed at social functions such as wedding receptions, parades and funerals.

Jazz was a raw fusion of ragtime, blues and African polyrhythms. Bebop artists of the '40s such as Charlie Parker and Dizzy Gillespie enriched the style using complex chordal arrangements and improvisational soloing.

Sandra Reaves-Philips, a performer who adopts the singing and performing styles of legendary jazz, blues and gospel singers such as Bessie Smith, Billie Holiday and Mahalia Jackson, said the emotions expressed in African-influenced music cross all racial boundaries.

"Music breaks down the barriers between races and colors," Reaves-Philips said. "I think it's wonderful that we can exchange our cultural heritage and not be afraid to express it."

The influence of African music and culture is present in much of today's popular music, particularly rap and dance, Reaves-Philips said. "Dance music relies heavily on the rhythm," she said. "The expression of dance captures African movement."

Daniel Essavize, a graduate student in business from Cameroon who plays traditional African drums, said the steady beat of hip-hop music has a direct correlation to African drumming.

"There is a lot of African input to what our brothers and sisters are doing (in the United States)," he said.

Ultimately, we must go beyond current musical definitions and explore the true roots of popular music, Reaves-Philips said.

"I think we should be aware of all music, not just Bach and Beethoven, but blues and gospel as well," she said.

Males face risk of osteoporosis, researchers say

BOSTON (UPI) — Adolescent boys who undergo delayed puberty may be at greater risk in later years of developing the bone-thinning disorder osteoporosis, researchers said Wednesday.

Osteoporosis primarily afflicts older women, who suffer most of the fractures which result from thinning and brittle bones, but the disorder also occurs in men, who constitute one-fifth of all hip fracture cases among the elderly.

A study involving men in their mid-20s who had not undergone the sexual maturation process of puberty until after the age of 15 found that the density of the bones in their spines and forearms was less than that of a comparison group, doctors at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston reported.

Because the peak bone density that people achieve in young adulthood is a major determinant of bone density later in life, "men in whom puberty was delayed may be at increased risk for osteoporosis-related injuries," the researchers said in The New England Journal of Medicine.

Since about 2 percent of all boys have delayed puberty, many adult men "may be at increased risk for osteoporotic fractures when bone loss due to aging occurs."

Drug used to treat optic disorder found ineffective, possibly harmful

BOSTON (UPI) — A drug commonly used to treat an eye disorder that is often linked to multiple sclerosis appears to be ineffective, and may actually make symptoms worse, it was reported Wednesday.

Oral doses of the drug prednisone did not benefit patients suffering from an inflammation of the optic nerve known as optic neuritis, and appeared to increase the risk of future attacks, researchers involved in a 15-center nationwide trial concluded.

Prednisone is one of a group of drugs known as corticosteroids, which are similar to natural hormones produced by the adrenal glands and are widely used for their anti-inflammatory effects.

The researchers said the "unexpected" findings of the trial, which involved 457 patients, raise questions about the widespread practice of using corticosteroids to treat patients with multiple sclerosis and other neurological diseases involving nerve cell inflammation.

Optic neuritis affects an estimated 25,000 Americans yearly, most of them women between the ages of 18 and 45. Those affected experience vision loss and optic nerve pain. Because many of those who have an attack later develop multiple sclerosis, many scientists feel the disorders are linked.

The new study divided trial participants into three groups. One received oral prednisone alone for two weeks, another received a combination of oral prednisone and a related drug — methyl prednisolone — over two weeks and the third received a worthless dummy drug.

At the end of six months, "unexpectedly, patients in the oral-prednisone group had a higher rate of new attacks of optic neuritis than did patients in the other two groups," the researchers reported in The New England Journal of Medicine.

Patients who received the combination drug treatment generally recovered their vision loss faster than those in the other groups, but did not have better visual acuity, they said.

Cornell hackers charged with spreading virus

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — Two Cornell University students charged with spreading a computer virus around the world made bail Wednesday and were released from jail.

Cornell Public Safety officers arrested David Blumenthal, 19, of Worthington, Ohio, and Mark Pilgrim, 19, of Valley Forge, Pa., in the second incident of computer tampering at the Ivy League school in four years.

Blumenthal, a sophomore on Cornell's College of Engineering, and Pilgrim, a sophomore in the College of Arts and Sciences, were charged with computer tampering in the second degree, a Class A misdemeanor, said Cornell spokeswoman Linda Grace-Kobas.

The FBI was investigating to see whether federal laws were broken, and authorities were expected to file additional charges against the pair, she said.

Blumenthal and Pilgrim allegedly tainted computer games with the virus and put the programs on public file at the university's archives.

Computers at Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif., and in Great Britain and Japan crashed after users called up the games, Grace-Kobas said.

Anyone putting the Obnoxious

Tetris, Tetricycle or Ten Tile Puzzle games into their system risks spreading the virus, Grace-Kobas said.

"Once we found that it was launched from Cornell we had to investigate," she said.

"We absolutely abhor this type of behavior, which appears to violate the university's computer abuse policy as well as applicable state and federal law," said M.

Stuart Lynn, Cornell's vice president for information technologies.

Unlike the computer virus launched by Cornell graduate student Robert Morris in 1988, which damaged high-level systems in important government and university research networks, this virus was able to be lesssoed quickly, Lynn said. It was not self-perpetuating like the one launched in 1988, he said.

Costs of studying at U of Chicago rise to $23,286; most costly in area

CHICAGO (UPI) — The cost for undergraduates living on the University of Chicago campus will rise to $23,286 a year next fall, the highest in the Chicago area.

The 6.3 percent hike in tuition, room and board and fees will make the prestigious private university one of the most expensive in the United States.

University officials Monday announced a 7 percent hike in tuition to $17,346.

Add to that a 4.5 percent hike in room and board to $5,940 for freshmen who are required to live on the Hyde Park campus.

Other undergraduates can live off-campus, a school spokesman said.

The university said it plans to boost undergraduate financial aid 12.7 percent—to $20.4 million—and nearly double that amount to provide financial assistance to graduate and professional students.

Graduate program tuition will range from $11,394 for Divinity School to $19,250 for students enrolled in the graduate School of Business.

Students at the University of Illinois in Champaign Tuesday began voting on whether to impose a $40 tuition surcharge to make up for cuts in aid to needy students.

The Illinois Student Assistance Commission said 3 percent budget cuts ordered by Gov. Jim Edgar and the General Assembly will force it to reduce awards by $4.7 million to some 95,000 needy students statewide.

Grants to about 5,800 students on the Champaign-Urbana campus will be cut an average $150. Tuition at the University of Illinois was increased 5 percent last year and additional hikes are being considered.

Students at U of I take advantage of immunization to halt meningitis

CHAMPAIGN (UPI) — The pace of undergraduates taking advantage of free vaccinations to combat meningitis picked up Wednesday at the University of Illinois, where the disease killed two students last year.

Some 3,000 students got the shots Tuesday at a vaccination clinic the university set up at the campus armory as part of a three-day program.

"We were disappointed at first because only a few hundred showed up but it picked up considerably in the afternoon," said university spokesman Jeff Unger.

He said initial reports Wednesday indicated even more students were appearing at the clinic.

He attributed the steady rise to phone calls parents made to students urging them to get vaccinated and a pro-vaccination editorial that appeared Wednesday in The Daily Illini, the campus newspaper.

"I believe the word is finally getting out," he said.

The Centers for Disease Control recommended the university vaccinate all 26,400 undergraduates because at least five of the seven reported meningitis-related cases at the school in the last year were caused by the same sub-type of bacteria.

Two students died of the infection in February 1991.

The bacteria can cause meningococemia, a bacterial infection with flu-like symptoms.

In turn, meningococemia can lead to meningitis, a potentially fatal inflammation of the membranes surrounding the brain and spinal cord.

Eastern Illinois University student Peter Giese of Batavia, who died of a meningitis-related disease last Thursday, had bacteria in his body similar to those found in the U of I cases.

Tests are continuing to determine if the same sub-type of bacteria present in the Champaign cases also afflicted

Study: CFCs not main cause in destruction of ozone layer

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — Chlorofluorocarbons, the family of chemicals fingered as a leading cause of global warming, may be contributing much less to the greenhouse effect than previously believed, a study released Wednesday said.

The chemicals, used mostly as a refrigerant, destroy the atmosphere's protective ozone layer.

But at lower levels, chemical reactions offset their effect on the buildup of greenhouse gases, said the study reported in the Feb. 27 issue of the journal Nature.

Global warming is believed to have two main culprits: the depletion of the ozone layer, which allows more ultra-violet rays from the sun to reach the earth, and the greenhouse effect, the trapping of fossil fuel gases at lower atmospheric levels.

Carbon dioxide, mostly caused by the burning of fossil fuels, is blamed as the leading cause of the greenhouse effect.

The study's finding appears to undercut the Bush administration's policy on global warming.

Defying international pressure to reduce fossil fuel emissions, the administration has focused on measures to phase out CFCs.

Researchers at Princeton University, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the University of Reading in England fed known increases in CFCs over the past decade and satellite data on lower stratospheric ozone losses into supercomputer models.

Nuclear plant to close permanently

BOSTON, Mass. (UPI) — The longest operating nuclear power plant in the nation, closed last October for safety reasons, will remain closed permanently, it was announced Wednesday.

Yankee Atomic Electric Co., which operated the 32-year-old plant in the western Massachusetts town of Rowe, said the closure decision was brought about by economics and regulatory uncertainties.

Atomic Yankee President and Chief Executive Officer Andrew C. Kadak said the 770 employees involved — 550 at company headquarters and 220 at the plant — will be retained through the end of 1992 to facilitate an orderly decommissioning.

Kadak cited continued economics and regulatory uncertainties as key factors in the board of directors' decision to close the plant eight years before its operating license expires.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission's staff concluded last year the facility's steel containment vessel could crack during an emergency injection of cooling water.

The operators voluntarily shut down the 185-megawatt plant Oct. 1 after the NRC staff reversed an earlier decision and said new calculations provided by Yankee Rowe showed the embrittled reactor vessel could crack and release radiation.

Since that closure, work has been under way to test and inspect the effects of 32 years of operation on the reactor vessel.

"Yankee was faced with the prospect of spending more than $23 million in the next six months to complete very sophisticated testing and analysis on the plant's reactor vessel," Kadak said.

"The technical criteria we must meet and the path we must follow to restart the plant are not sufficiently defined to justify spending that amount of money."

He said the weak economy has resulted in decreased demand for electricity. Existing generation facilities can make up for the loss of power from the Yankee plant, he said.

Company agrees to change beer ads designed for teens

NEW YORK (UPI) — A beer company whose advertisements raised the ire of black activists who claimed the product was aimed at teens and promised sexual conquest has agreed to change its advertising practices, officials said Wednesday.

The company marketing St. Ives Malt Liquor has agreed not to continue advertising its beer in a way that appears to encourage teenagers to drink it, said Attorney General Robert Abrams.

The agreement also requires its manufacturer, the McKenzie River Corp. of San Francisco, to stop touting the beer's alcoholic content, Abrams said.

The beer has an alcohol content level almost twice as high as that of regular beer, he said.

One offending ad says, "And when she sees the black can and the trees, it'll make her talk about the birds and the bees." Another ad urges: "Get a grip, take a sip and you'll be picking up models and it ain't no puzzle."

Without admitting any guilt, the company agreed to pay the state $50,000 to cover the cost of the investigation, he said.

Many top companies such as General Motors have been closing plants and laying off employees.

General Motors Corp. announced Monday it would close several plants, but it is pursuing the sale of operations at the Danville foundry, which employs 1,449 people.

GM chairman Robert Stempel said in a statement in December that a total of 21 manufacturing and assembly operations would be idled during the next few years.

The opposite cycle occurs at the end of a recession.

"The productivity index is measured by the output of an industry divided by the labor hours worked," he said.

Productivity of factory employees increased 1.4 percent in 1991, following an advance of 2.5 percent in 1990.

Economists believe productivity will rise as the United States climbs out of the recession, which began in July 1990.

"Production growth will undoubtedly rise when the economic status of the country improves," he said.

"Hopefully, it will go back to a normal rate," Kask said.

Productivity growth jumps quickly in response to demand while companies still are hurrying to hire employees.

"The demand for output grows faster than the time it takes to rehire workers," he said.

Service sectors fared better than manufacturing industries in regard to productivity growth in 1991.

But Kask said this figure is debatable because service sectors have a less tangible product to measure than manufacturers.

U.S. workers earned an average of $14.77 an hour in 1990. The figure includes total compensation, wages and benefits. The average compensation rate has increased only 1.4 percent since 1985.

This figure, when compared to foreign countries, is moderately higher when based on the different cost of living and purchasing power between countries, Kask said.

U.S. wages in 1989 averaged higher than Japanese, Norwegian and European workers, he said.

YOU KNOW, POP, IT'S STILL HARD TO THINK ABOUT THOSE WHO HAD TO SERVE IN VIETNAM AND THOSE WHO DIDN'T...

YOU REMEMBER SPARKY WALLER, MY BEST FRIEND IN HIGH SCHOOL? WE HAD ABOUT THE SAME GRADES, BUT SPARKY COULDN'T AFFORD COLLEGE, SO THEY NAILED HIM.

THE GUY WAS ON HIS WAY TO VIETNAM WITHIN SIX MONTHS. HE WAS ASSIGNED TO A MOTOR POOL, AND HE SPENT THE WHOLE WAR, SITTING AROUND COMPLETELY STONED, LISTENING TO ROCK MUSIC.

THAT COULD HAVE BEEN ME, DAD!

THAT WAS YOU, SON.

first riding program is estimated at $200 a semester, and other lessons may be up to $120 a semester. In addition, it costs $75 to $100 for a weekend of travel.

The team helps defray these costs through fundraisers, youth shows, bake sales and car washes.

Currently, the team has 24 active members, including a show team that competes twice a month with 15 other colleges and universities in Missouri, Kentucky, and Tennessee.

Hunt seat rider Andrew Jonas won the Novice Equitation, which consisted of walking trots and sitting trots, in the last competition Feb. 21-22.

The team next has a competition March 7 and 8.

Hunt seat coach Myke Ramsey said show team members are obligated to pay for their own horse riding lessons, proper attire, and other training necessary to compete in the Intercollegiate Horse Show Association.

The non-competing members help raise money for the club, and some are aspiring to compete on the intercollegiate level, she said.

The equestrian team also offers structured riding programs for riders of all levels.

Fitness is mandatory for the sport, Ramsey said.

"Topnotch fitness and mental concentration are needed for endurance in practice," she said.

Practices are once a week at the Nance Ranch in Cartersville. In practice, riders do not stay with the same horse, said stock seat coach Gina Shiplett.

"Some of the events in the competition are based on the riders' performances with an unfamiliar horse," Shiplett said.

Anyone interested joining the team may call Ramsey at 536-7528.

McEnroe selected to Davis Cup team

NEW YORK (UPI) — John McEnroe, who holds the American record of 12 years of Davis Cup play, was selected Wednesday to compete in next month's quarterfinals when the United States faces Czechoslovakia.

Joining McEnroe will be Andre Agassi, Pete Sampras and Rick Leach, the same team which defeated Argentina 5-0 in Hawaii in the opening round of the 1992 competition.

Agassi and Sampras each won two singles matches against Argentina while McEnroe and Leach, playing together for the first time, clinched the victory by winning the doubles.

The quarterfinals will be played at Fort Myers, Fla., March 27-29, outdoors on a hard court.

McEnroe has an overall record of 41-8 in Davis Cup singles and 16-1 in doubles. Agassi has played Davis Cup every year since 1988, compiling a 14-4 singles record, while Sampras is 2-2 in singles.

Leach previously played Davis Cup in 1990 and 1991 when he and Jim Pugh compiled a 6-0 record in doubles.

This will be the third meeting between the United States and Czechoslovakia, with the Americans winning the two previous times.

The United States won 4-1 in New York in 1981 and 4-0 in Prague in 1990.

After winning the Davis Cup in 1990, the United States was upset by France in the 1991 final.

The Salukis will take on a tough competitor in rebounding when they face Bradley. The Braves are third in the conference averaging 39 rebounds a game. Senior center Sileen Yerkes from Bradley is the No. 1 rebounder in the Gateway averaging 10.5 a game. Yerkes also is 24th nationally.

Cindy Scott said the 6-4 Yerkes has a height advantage over SIUC. She said Bradley is fighting hard for third place right now, and she expects it to be a tough game.

Bradley coach Lisa Boyer SIUC has a strong inside and outside game. "Southern pretty much handled us the last time we played them," Boyer said. "One of our key players was hurt. Kelly and Eileen will try to clear the boards. It will come down to who else is going to step up and help them."

Bradley have four players scoring in double figures.

Yerkes is averaging 13.4 points a game, Andrea McAllister is averaging 15. Mich Bingeman is averaging 12.4 and Dawyel Jones is averaging 10.9.

BESIDES REBOUNDED, SIUC leads the league in 3-point shooting and is eighth nationally. Redeker is making 45.2 percent of her treys. She ranks second in the conference and 10th nationally. Powell is making 37.3 percent of her shots from the perimeter and is seventh in the conference.

Anita Scott, SIUC's leader in scoring assists, steals and minutes played, ranks in the top 10 in the Gateway in steals and assists. Scott, who is averaging 13 points a game, has posted double figures in 18 games.

Firth is making 54.7 percent of her shots and is averaging 12.6 points a game. Rougeau is averaging 11.4 points a game.

All of the Salukis games are broadcast on WUEZ radio.

Swiss leads windy World Cup skiing in training round

SHIZUKUKISHI, Japan (UPI) — Switzerland's Franz Heinzer, coming off a poor Olympics, recorded the fastest training time Wednesday on a wind-swept course—the site of Thursday's downhill and the 1993 World Championships.

Heinzer, a four-race winner on this season's World Cup tour, withstood the gusts to post the day's best showing of 1 minute, 36.58 seconds on the 1.7-mile Mount Takakura track.

Tommy Moe of the United States was second at 1:36.79, just 21-hundredths of a second behind, under conditions which made skiing more of a lottery than usual. Daniel Maher, another Swiss who would like to forget the Olympics, was third at 1:37.32.

Conditions were dictated by a capricious wind that came and went in great gusts. All of which does not bode well for the first of three weekend downhills in Japan, Canada and the United States, the wrap-up to the World Cup competition entering the finals in Switzerland.

Men race a super-giant slalom in Japan Sunday.
