Idea for programming committee rejected by 22 black organizations

Courtland T. Milby Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Twenty-two recognized black campus organizations rejected the Student Government Activities Council (SGAC) proposal calling for the establishment of a Black Programming Committee (BPC) Monday.

According to black coalition members, the idea was rejected because SGAC would not grant complete autonomy to the programming committee.

With the committee still a part of SGAC, Black Student Union member Bill Clark said the SGAC can veto any activity programmed by the BPC.

According to Tom Kelly, chairman of student activities, SGAC could not constitutionally grant autonomy to a member committee. All committees funded through SGAC are responsible to SGAC, he said.

Another issue evolving from the proposed committee is the amount of money to be allocated. Coalition members feel that since the SGAC is unable to give any specific figures concerning BPC funding, the proposal should not be accepted.

"Why accept something like this and not know what we will be able to do with it?" Clark said.

Autonomy was stressed as necessary for the committee because, according to Clark, the University as a whole has failed to meet the cultural needs of black people.

"With this in mind, why should one think that SGAC would not veto activities proposed by BPC members?"

In a petition read to SGAC members, the position of the black coalition was stated.

"We, the black students at SIU, have come to realize that our total needs are not being met by the activities, both cultural and social on this campus.

"The Arena Programming Board has scheduled no black entertainers, the convocation series includes no black lecturers or entertainers and the Celebrity Series presents no black celebrities.

"We further realize that out of the $344,000 budget allocated last year for student organizations, black student organizations received the inadequate and unfair proportion of $33,000, roughly 10 per cent. As black students we represent roughly 10 per cent of the population on this campus."

The petition, for which coalition members expect to have 2,000 signatures by Thursday, concluded with, "We would like to see our proportionate share of student activity funds utilized for black programming. We demand that the black student organizations be allocated this money."

J - school head blasts Expro plan

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Howard R. Long, director of the School of Journalism, said Tuesday that the University Senate has committed "a violation of academic freedom" in ordering the implementation of Expro, a plan to reorganize the Daily Egyptian.

In a prepared statement which he read to the committee, Long challenged the Senate's decision on three points. First, Long cited "the failure of the Senate to consult persons specifically responsible for the operation of the Daily Egyptian." He said that Tuesday's meeting was the first opportunity he has had to place his views on the record.

Long said, "It is true that I met for 20 or 30 minutes with a subcommittee of the University Senate to answer specific questions in the form of a cross-examination, but at no time was I afforded an opportunity to advance my own viewpoints. No other faculty member with the Daily Egyptian responsibilities was consulted at all."

Secondly, Long claimed that the Senate had failed to explore in detail the objectives of the Daily Egyptian, to evaluate the effectiveness of the Egyptian, to consider the alternatives to Expro and to consider the consequences of disrupting the Egyptian operating procedures. He urged the board to examine the practices within the Daily Egyptian and to suggest improvements in student working conditions and service to the reading public.

"The Daily Egyptian is a public service paper," Long said. "It has to think of the University as a complete community, much like the University Senate. Undergraduates are important, but they are not the only element."

Finally, Long said "the Senate Expro mandate is an invasion of the classrooms and laboratories of the School of Journalism, any of the sequence or program offered."

"Much of our course work pertains to the day-to-day operation of the Daily Egyptian," said Long. "In effect the Expro decision of the University Senate is a mandate to change our instructional procedures. I do not believe the University Senate has the authority to enter our classrooms and our laboratories."

One student included on city group

By David L. Mahaman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council Tuesday night approved the appointment of 15 Carbondale residents to Goals for Carbondale Steering Committee over some objections from SIU students.

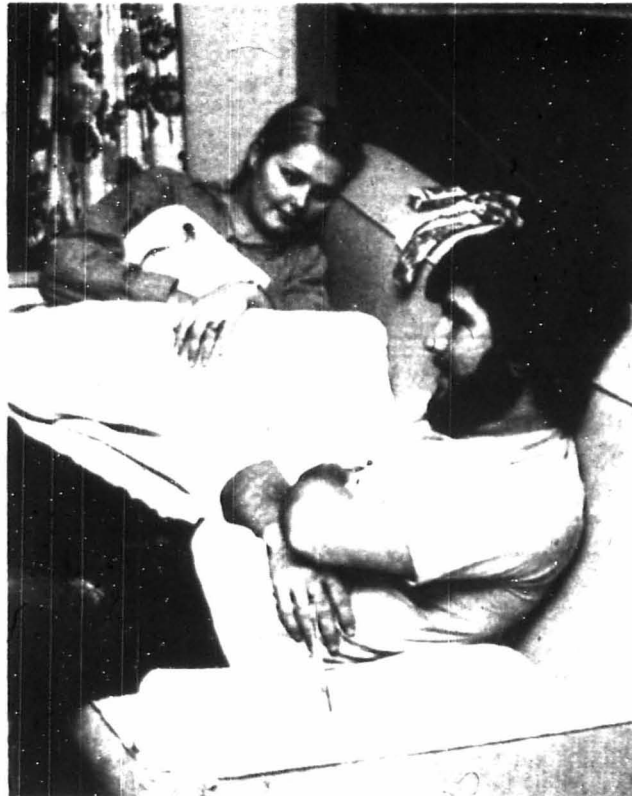

The steering committee is the core of the Goals for Carbondale program. The committee is to spend four to six weeks reviewing surveys on perceived problems in the city, and will hold public meetings to seek citizen participation in defining problem areas that need to be included in the program. After holding the meeting, the steering committee will identify problem areas and set up subcommittees to propose programs for dealing with the problems.

Of the 15 persons named to the committee, one is an SIU student Jack Wallin, student government representative to the council, protested, saying that more student participation is needed.

"The kids will never give a damn what happens to the town if they are not included (in the Goals program)," Wallin said.

James Fatur, the only student on the steering committee, told the council that he is surprised he is the only representative of the students.

Mayor Neal Eckert told Wallin and Fatur that most citizen participation will come in the subcommittees. He said that SIU students interested in the specific problems dealt with by the sub-

U.S. will respect Taiwan ouster

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Nations' decision to expel Taiwan will be respected by the United States, Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Tuesday, but the Nixon administration regards it as "a most unfortunate precedent." And some members of Congress demanded retaliation.

"This administration deeply regrets the expulsion of the Republic of China and thinks the precedent is a most unfortunate one and will have adverse effects in the future," Roger said.

Angry Senate and House conservatives urged a cut in U.S. contributions to the United Nations and some members demanded even more drastic action. Others called for continued support of the United Nations as the only hope for world peace.

Declaring "We have a new ball game," Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, moved to send the $3.2-billion foreign-aid authorization bill, which contains $139 million for U.N.-related activities, back to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

He said at least a week or two should be allowed to give Congress and the country time to "digest" the U.N. action and its implications.

Saxbe's move came as the aid bill came up for Senate debate.

In moving to sidetrack the foreign aid bill temporarily, Saxbe noted that 42 of the 76 nations that voted to expel Nationalist China and 12 of the nations that abstained from voting are listed as beneficiaries in the bill.

To begin a heated and emotional debate now might well lead to ill-considered action regarding aid for those nations, he said.

However, Saxbe later withdrew his motion when he became convinced it could not carry. But he said that to vote

Student's day of reckoning; walks into cops' stakeout

By Courtland T. Milloy Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

During a four year stay at SIU, everybody, at one time or another, will face a time of reckoning. A time of reckoning occurs when you have a knock down, drag out bout with the dean of your college or get caught, nude in Thompson woods, by your folks on Parents Day.

Reckoning time is not a time one looks forward to, but, nevertheless, it will come.

My time came at 11:40 a.m. Tuesday when I walked smack dab into a pre-planned stake out. Oddly enough, I was the one being staked, or better yet, staked.

After many months of parking my car in many places and receiving many tickets and expecting it to be many moons before I got caught... it happened.

Seven SIU patrolmen, all resting conspicuously around my car, awaited my arrival. Because I saw them before they saw me, I had time to get my rap in order.

Smooth and unassuming, I approached them, spoke politely and entered my auto.

If they were to ask any questions I was sure that I knew all of the answers...I mean the smart answers...the kind that cuts conversation short.

The first officer to approach me was a big one. This didn't bother me, however, I was in my car, the keys were in the ignition and my foot rested on the accelerator. In other words, I was ready.

With a smooth, but swift, motion, the officer opened the door took my keys and smiled. "Is this your car?" he asked.

"Well, yes, in a way...then again it's not...I mean I didn't exactly buy it...you see, I didn't really want a car in the first place."

I casually slid back into my seat. Something had gone wrong. "Well, let me see your driver's license," asked the officer. "Sure thing, I can let you see that, wait a minute...Uh..."

"Well, you do have some kind of I.D. eh?" he said. "No," I replied.

"And you don't have any driver's license?"

"Not with me."

"But this is your car, you say?"

"Yes."

"Do you have any registration papers for the car," he said. My heartbeat started doing funny things. "Well, you see my wife owns the car and she's not in town and...well, you see, I don't know where she lives, I mean I don't know how you can reach her."

Another officer interrupted. "Have headquarters run a 10-25 on this '64 Ford."

"Wait a minute," I exclaimed. "You don't think that this is a stolen car do you...I told you that my wife owns the car. Its registered in her name. I have a driver's license and some more I.D.'s but they're all in the cleaners. I mean that the clothes the cleaners have are in the license. You can understand that. It could happen to anybody."

"You're right," replied the officer, "so let's go to the station." When we got there I didn't even get out of the car. I just sat there, trying to look tough...you know...so when my friends saw me they would say, "Check out ole Courtland, don't he look tough!"

I even tried to make it look like I had handcuffs on.

"Well, Courtland, we're waiting for some information to come in on that car of yours. In the meantime let's go to the Security Office and get some information on you."

"Oh, what the hell, there ain't no need for all of that, I know everything about me, just ask me something, anything really."

So I waited at the Security Office and just for the hell of it, I decided to call my lawyer. "Say Helen, it's Courtland, I'm at the campus police station and I need you to come talk to these people for me. I think they're gonna do me up."

Helen didn't really answer a lawyer. She just talks like one. She can talk her way out of anything. Well, anything, maybe, except being caught in Thompson woods on Parents Day.

By the time Helen arrived, however, the situation had sort of cooled off. It had been brought to my attention that I was a genuine SIU student, that I had not stolen the car and that I had a valid parking fine to pay. I was free to go. We all piled into a patrol car, the officer, Helen and I, and headed back to that classic '64 Ford...only to find that two more parking tickets had been tucked under the windshield wiper.

Everybody thought it was rather funny, except me. "Don't worry," said the officer, "Just explain what has happened when you go see the people in the Parking Section, they should be able to take care of it." "I'm sure that they will," I muttered.

City committee includes one student committees could participate in those committees.

The mayor added that selection of steering committee members was made according to geographical representation, not by interest group representation.

Robert Leisner, graduate student in community development, also objected to the appointment, saying that two groups other than SIU students were singled. He said that some high school students should have been appointed to the committee, as some of the goals to be determined by that committee may affect their decisions about staying in Carbondale after high school graduation. Leisner also said that more women should have been appointed to the steering committee. Although three women were appointed, Leisner said that women represent 40 percent of the community.

The appointments were approved unanimously by the council.

In other action, the council discussed its proposal for a bicycle path system in Carbondale. Under the proposal, presented by Tom Wells, an engineer in the city's public works department, a bicycle path system could be set up on existing streets with no lanes restricted to bicycle use only. Wells explained that signs would be set up marking the bicycle paths, and cited studies that show that automobile drivers are more careful when driving along a marked "bikeway" system.

Wells told the council that incorporation of this system would cost some $1,158. He said it is intended to be a minimum cost trial system, with no permanent facilities. The routes could be changed by moving the signs.

In addition to the marked paths, Wells' proposal calls for a city ordinance giving bicyclists the right of way over automobiles at specially marked corners. According to the proposal, this would eliminate the need for four-way stop signs at busy intersections, but would allow bicycle riders the opportunity to cross busy streets.

In the future, the system could be expanded to include more of the city. Portions of streets could be set aside for bicycle use only and asphalt paths may be built for bicycles off the street, the proposal said.

Wells said the trial system could be in operation within six weeks of the allocation of funds. Changes in the route could be effected within one week, he said.

City Manager William Schmidt

told the council that he likes Wells' proposal, but added that he would like to review the city budget before making a final recommendation. He said although such a system is not in the budget and the city is facing a financial crisis, money for warning signs is budgeted and might possibly be used for the bikeway system.

Among other suggestions for obtaining money for the system were to seek voluntary contributions, the possibility of registering bicycles by fees, and use of traffic fines paid by bicycle riders.

Monkeyshines becoming hairy

PORT HARCOURT, Nigeria (AP)

There are enough problems in Port Harcourt's expensive department stores without having to put up with monkeyshines of real monkeys. One Nigerian housewife was upset when a playful monkey perched over the store entrance and scampered off with her wig. About 10 minutes later, after a merry chase witnessed by chuckling but sympathetic onlookers, the young lady retrieved her wig, put it back on and walked away embarrassed but stylish again.

Strangling the issue

Illinois Senate Democrats last week attempted to restore $22.3 million of funds which had been cut from the higher education budget by Governor Richard B. Ogilvie. The attempt failed by one vote. All but one Republican senator from state university districts supported Ogilvie.

Cecil Pardee, president pro-tempore of the Illinois Senate, and Clyde Choate, minority leader in the house, have announced that Democrats will seek legislation allowing universities to spend the funds they collect from tuition increases.

LT. Gov. Paul Simon last week met with a group of marchers in Springfield to protest the tuition hikes and assured them of his support of higher education.

The economy is not in its best shape these days, and members of the university community cannot expect to escape the effects of general belt-tightening. But they can expect to escape the excessive ill effects that come of being a pawn in a political chess game.

Elections are coming up next year, and higher education seems to be shaping up as a major campaign issue. Partisan politics run rampant in Springfield, as each party wagers that it best knows the mood of the public concerning higher education. Meanwhile tuition rates are up, enrollment is down, faculty members are not receiving salary increases, student work is cut back, library hours are cut back.

It is just over a year til the 1972 elections. Higher education cannot afford the distinction of being a campaign issue that long; the cost is already too high. Unless both parties are willing to stop using higher education in their political maneuverings, it may be a "dead" issue long before next November.

'Howdy folks' -- Elbie Jay rides again

By Arthur Hoppe
Chronicle Features

Howdy there, folks. How y'all. You oldtimers out there'll be right pleased to hear we're reviving that one-time, all-fired, popular tee-vee series, "Heaps o' Horse Sense," featurin' the routin'-tootin' Jay Family and starrin' of Elbie--of Elbie Jay, the kind of feller who don't give a fig what folks say. As long as they ain't talkin' about him.

Now as y'all recall, Elbie and his pretty wife, Birdie Bird, have retired to their lil' ol' million-acre Elbie Jay Ranch down Texas way, just a hoot 'n' holler from Elbie City on the banks of Elbie River in the shadow of ol' Mt. Elbie.

There, Elbie's been writing the history of his adventures among them highfalutin Easterners--a book he's modestly callin' "One Nation, Under Me."

The first chapters are just now appearin' in the papers. So as we join Elbie and Birdie Bird today, they're sittin' at the breakfast table, discussin' his favorite subject. Him.

Elbie. Now, Bird, I want you to give me your frank and honest opinion--don't hold anything back--about my lucid, fair, brilliantly-written, superbly-researched, fascinating book.

Birdie Bird. I think it holds up extremely well, dear. Honestly, it was just as exciting the 14th time you read it o me aloud as it was the 13th.

Elbie. How'd you like the part about the war in Vee-yet-nam?

Birdie Bird. You mean the part where you told how it was just one glorious victory after another? Or the part where you blamed your predecessor for getting us in that mess?

Elbie (frowning). Now hold on, Bird. I didn't lay all the blame on my predecessor. That wouldn't be fair. The blame for escalating the war's got to be shared. So I very carefully made sure it was shared between him, the Secretary of Defense, the Joint Chiefs, the South Vietnamese generals, the Nervous Nellies, the enemy dupes, the.

Birdie Bird. Yes, dear, you certainly shared generously. But I liked the part where, thanks to your escalating the war, you cleverly trapped the enemy into capturing most of the country during the 1968 Tet Offensive. I can't see why the Pentagon Papers didn't agree with your version.

Elbie (darkly). They got their Pentagon Papers. I got mine. (Brightening) But how'd you like the part where I mentioned in passing a few of the benefits my Great Society conferred on the country?

Birdie Bird. Oh, I loved all 678 pages of that, dear, particularly where you wiped out poverty, shuns, bigotry, Communism, war and disease. But I was surprised you left out that speech you made in Peoria against boll weevils.

Elbie (thunderstruck). Great balls o'fire, you're right, Bird! Get me my publisher! Recall the book! It doesn't do me justice.

Well, tune in again, folks. And meantime, as you mosey down the windin' trail of life, remember what Elbie's ol' granddaddy used to say:

"To be known as a great man, you not only got to write history--you got to get folks to read your version."

What kind of world

Public opinion gives latitude as Nixon deals with Chinese

by Harry S. Ashmore
Los Angeles Times Syndicate

One of the settled myths of American politics, currently voiced in connection with President Nixon's forthcoming visit to Peking, is that such a dramatic move toward rapprochement with a Communist power would be impossible for a Democratic President.

The reasoning is that Mr. Nixon, having maintained a posture of uncompromising anti-communism until after his election, is now free to act because he can't be accused of being ideologically soft. Such a suspicion presumably attends all those Democrats who have protested the obvious futility and high cost of the military and diplomatic Cold War policies Mr. Nixon helped impose upon the United States.

Aside from the Alice-In-Wonderland quality of the argument that one can be trusted to do the right thing only if he can prove that heretofore he has been wrong, the proposition is historically dubious. It presumes that the great majority of Americans are hard-liners on the issue of communism, while the evidence is to the contrary.

It is true, as Mr. Nixon and others demonstrated in the heyday of Joe McCarthy, that the people can be stampeded when their leaders tell them their way of life is threatened with imminent destruction by an alien ideology. But when the palpable absurdity of the proclaimed domestic threat of communism became self-evident the passion quickly died, and it has never been revived in support of ideological adventuring abroad.

Dwight Eisenhower set a new record for Presidential popularity when he accepted a compromise settlement with the Communists in Korea. The fact that he was, technically at least, a Republican was incidental; this most nonpartisan of Presidents was exalted because he ended a war that had never had any significant degree of positive public support.

So it is with Vietnam. The Pentagon Papers demonstrate how this climactic engagement in the Cold War required a sustained Presidential public-relations campaign, and a great deal of outright duplicity, to maintain what was at best no more than a steadily declining level of public toleration. There was never at any time anything approaching a majority commitment to the ideological justification offered for American intervention in Indochina.

In 1964, the year of the Tonkin Gulf Resolution and the beginning of the air war against North Vietnam, the Gallup Poll found that 63 per cent of the people had no opinion as to what should be done in that part of the world. Another poll showed that one in four adults didn't even know we were engaged in an Asian war. A current depth analysis by the Roper organization indicates that while 64 per cent of the people now feel that the government generally has gone off the track only 18 per cent cite communism as a primary cause.

The people applauded (and the stock market rose) when President Eisenhower invited Soviet Premier Khrushchev to the United States. The same thing happened when the Democrat, Lyndon Johnson, met with Premier Kueygin at Glassboro. It is, therefore, hardly surprising that the great majority of Americans, including the Democratic leaders, have expressed approval of Mr. Nixon's decision to go to Peking.

The only outspoken dissidents are among Mr. Nixon's old friends and supporters in the shrunken ranks of the China Lobby, who feel that the President has betrayed them and Chiang Kai-shek by trafficking with a godless usurper. The most influential of these are two or three national columnists, a Texas senator and a couple of John Birch congressmen from California.

It is evident that domestic public opinion provides President Nixon plenty of latitude in dealing with the Chinese. The only significant reservations arise from the lack of any clear indication as to what he proposes to do with it. The still unanswered question is whether he is not still, to an important degree, the prisoner of his own past.

A look in The Mirror

To the Daily Egyptian:

If one is going to do it, do it right or not at all. Such should be the philosophy of all critical reviews. However, this was not the case in last Saturday's Mirror.

One would question if the comments and criticism registered in this monumental literary masterpiece truly reflect the majority of the student body's opinions of those courses evaluated last spring and winter terms. Many of the courses that have been evaluated thus far were absent. Moreover, a brief survey of those that were presented show the majority receiving favorable reviews.

Can one assume that this also applies to those courses evaluated, but not in print? Or could it be deduced that those courses which received unfavorable evaluation were misplaced before going to press.

Alas, we fear these questions will remain unanswered until the next time when the "Magic Mirror" is called upon to answer the fabled question, "Who is the fair-est of them all?"

'Cheap shot' claim

To the Daily Egyptian:

Jim Mulbrandon has lied to you—he has "Wesley Fischeled" you. Mulbrandon's cheap publicity shot made at the expense of George Camille and Jim Peters subverts the dignity and integrity of SIPC.

Mulbrandon is fully aware that George Camille and Jim Peters are responsible for the existence of the Student Tenant Union. Last Spring, the Student Tenant Union presented an accurate minimum budget request of $7,200.00, required to launch the STU. The Senate wouldn't spend that much on a new organization. We said to forget it. The Student Tenant Union was dead at the close of Spring.

This summer George and Jim discovered that projected budget figures were below actual available funds. GEORGE TOLD ME THAT FUNDS WOULD BE AVAILABLE FOR THE TENANT UNION.

Jim and George fought for those additional funds—not us. We needed an absolute minimum of $7,200.00. They fought for $10,000.00 and got $9,580.00. If that is luke-warm support, we will take all we can get.

Especially irritating is that Mulbrandon played an important part in starting the Student Tenant Union. When CALA was really down and ready to fold because Legal Assistance couldn't spend as much, time with Student Tenant-Landlord problems, Jim Mulbrandon proposed the idea of starting the Student Tenant Union on campus thus relieving Student Activities funding. So, we thank Jim for his past help, hope that we get more of it, and hope that he apologizes to George and Jim Peters. All three have helped to launch the Student Tenant Union.

Four - letter words

To the Daily Egyptian:

Carl Holt (who submitted a letter to the Daily Egyptian on Oct. 14) states that he is not opposed to one voicing one's own opinion—this was a very hypocritical statement on his part.

Mr. Holt and his date were attending the Arkansas State-SIU football game when several students sitting near him began to "voice their own opinions" in their own words, be they four-letter words or other words (their own choice of words should also be granted them as part of their freedom of speech). I feel that Mr. Holt and his date did the right thing—they got up and left the game (because they were insulted by the students' choice of words). Anyone whose feathers can be so easily ruffled on a college campus in this day and age when society has been through so many moralistic changes—does not belong among the students.

He makes reference to the "younger generation" (meaning, I suppose under 30) and concludes that they are not good citizens and that they treat others only with filth and contempt. Belonging to the "younger generation" myself, I have attended football games and have heard as vile language as one could ever hope to hear issuing from the mouths of (not babes, but) people belonging to the "older generation"!!!!

So I ask Mr. Carl Holt—or anyone who feels as he does—can you honestly and unhypocritically state that your generation is more moral or "better" in any respect than our "younger generation"????

Looking for Charlotte

To the Daily Egyptian:

I am trying to locate a young lady by the name of Charlotte. Two summers ago she would have been in the French Quarter of New Orleans. She has long, blond hair, is about five feet, three inches tall and weighs about 107 pounds. She was or is working on her masters degree.

It is very important that I locate her. Anyone knowing of her or her whereabouts please contact me.

Flag violations

To the Daily Egyptian:

Speaking as a patriotic American, a veteran sergeant in Special Forces, and one-time member of the proud Counter Intelligence Corps, I as any good American, am incensed at improper displays of the flag. Therefore, I call for every right-thinking student and faculty member of this fine university to acquire a set of rules for the display of the American Flag. One cannot be too careful with symbols. Thus armed, it is their duty to report any violations of the flag they may observe, not only in the town of Carbondale, but in surrounding towns as well.

I know that I am personally insulted when I see a place of business display our flag improperly, or see a local business vehicle with the flag improperly flown or the use of the flag to sell a commodity (Roy Rogers?). I also know that I feel safe in the realization that every other good American feels the same way.

The commendable zeal of our fine security police should inspire every student and faculty member to press charges against any flag violator they ferret out. We should all remember that an excess of patriotism is no sin.

Opinion & Commentary

EDITORIALS—The Daily Egyptian encourages free discussion of current issues through editorials and letters on these pages. Editorials—labeled Opinion—are written and signed by members of the student news staff and by students enrolled in journalism courses and represent opinions of the authors only.

LETTERS—Readers are invited to express their opinions in letters which must be signed with name, classification and major, or faculty rank, address and telephone number. Letters should be typewritten, and their length should not exceed 250 words. Letter writers should respect the generally accepted standards of good taste and are expected to make their points in terms of issues rather than personalities. Acceptance for publication will depend on limitations of space and the timeliness and relevance of the material. Unsigned letters will not be accepted and authorship of all letters must be verified by the Daily Egyptian. It is the responsibility of the Daily Egyptian to determine content of the opinion pages. Other materials on pages four and five include editorials and articles reprinted from other publications, syndicated columns and articles, and interpretive or opinion articles submitted locally.

'Scholarly integrity'

To the Daily Egyptian:

With regard to the conference on "scholarly integrity" and university complicity with the theme of US imperialism, I would welcome a conference on US imperialism for there are many features of U.S. foreign policy that I consider undesirable and imperialistic.

But by clubbing together the questions of "scholarly integrity" and imperialism, the impression is left that "integrity" is being DEFINED in terms of adherence to a particular political view as to what our foreign policy ought to be, i.e., adherence of individuals to a particular political line.

Again, the principal organizer of this conference, Prof. Douglas Allen, in March of this year, publicly expressed contempt for the right of a speaker—with whom I and Prof. Allen both disagree politically—to speak without tactics aimed to distract the attention of the audience from what the speaker was saying while he was speaking.

When I complained of this conduct by a faculty member, an anonymous flyer was efficiently distributed in thousands of copies on the campus alleging that I had acted as part of a conspiracy of the administration. When I pointed out to Mr. Allen at the hearing that this allegation was untrue, Mr. Allen answered, "I may not have seen that until this morning." One cannot fail to be struck by the word "may," which can be heard on the taped recordings of the session, one of which was taken by Mr. Allen himself.

Again, as a result of these events, unknown persons or person have forged my name to numerous orders for magazines, book clubs, landscape shrubbery, cassette music tapes, etc., the latest item arriving this week.

I wonder whether this is the "integrity" with which participants in this conference really want to be associated or commend to this campus.

'Irony of democracy'

To the Daily Egyptian:

The arrest of Jim Veltri for his politically symbolic act has exposed the irony of democracy in America. The government used him in Vietnam to perpetrate their myths of fighting for freedom. When he returned home, the police taught him the second definition—the essence of democracy is not the freedom to dissent, but to adhere to pseudo-patriotic laws and respect the symbol that represents international murder and oppression.

It is also ironic that in a University dedicated to the advancement of learning and the forwarding of ideas and ideals, there should exist Security Police diligently protecting us from these ideas.

It is tragic that Jim Veltri had to come back disabled by the war and face the realization that it was all a waste. The right of an individual to make decisions and give expression to his feelings without fear of reprisal does not exist in a system that plays gangster to the world.

The only justice lies in the hope that Carbondale can be made free, if the bad people are evicted out.

Legal assistance

To the Daily Egyptian:

Mr. Richard Grun's letter of October 26, 1971 to the editor was quite depressing. Mr. Grun states that it takes more than anyone can learn in law school to help in a landlord-tenant dispute. If in fact this is true and students were to follow this advice, there would be no legal recourse for students as they do not have the money to hire an attorney and no one else, university personnel or otherwise, will stand behind them in legal actions. Occasionally, university legal councils will advise but they will not follow this action in court.

Students need legal advice and assistance in court when entering into a dispute against a landlord who is sure to be able to afford an attorney. The answer to this problem would be the hiring of an attorney by the Student Tenant Union. Yet, the legal councils at SIU have continually tried to find reasons why STU could not obtain an attorney.

I would hope that our SIU legal councils would devote their every energies to finding ways to obtain an attorney for students rather than belittle their efforts. Spouting legalities is always interesting but actually helping students in better time soon.

Street blockage probed

By Allan Gould
Student Writer

Building a mall area on S. Illinois Avenue is probably the best alternative to avoid a future student takeover of the avenue, said Bill Schmidt, Carbondale city manager. Students simply want to go where the action is. Any other solution is like "applying a bandage to a hemorrhage," he said. Schmidt explained that the problem with a mall is that it can not be considered until Route 51 bypass is completed which won't be for at least five years.

Another alternative being considered is opening bars near the campus. This would reduce the influx of persons that normally congregate in the three block area between College Avenue and Main Street, Schmidt said. Before this can happen, the ordinance which prohibits alcoholic beverages being sold within 1000 feet of campus must be changed, he added.

The city council is also considering asking the owner of Dairy Queen on Illinois Avenue to put in benches near the parking lot area, Schmidt said. The owner was not available for comment.

Utilizing land owned by the city or SIU for a park area was also considered. Schmidt said the most practical area for one would probably be behind the Newman Center. The only drawback, he said, is that the university cannot directly let land go for such a purpose.

The alternative of using the former site of Holden Hospital for a park was considered, said Schmidt. The land is owned by the First National Bank of Carbondale. Schmidt said both the mayor and himself had talked to the bank officials who said they prefer to use it as a parking lot.

Schmidt also said that if any of these alternatives went into effect they would be for the use of all persons in the community, not just as a deterrence for the younger students who cannot get into the bars.

Wednesday afternoon and evening programs on WSIU-TV, Channel 8:

3 p.m.—Observation; 3:30—Masquerade; 4—Sesame Street; 5—Evening Report; 5:30—Mister Rogers'; 6—Electric Company; 6:30—Spotlight on Southern Illinois;

7—The French Chef; 7:30—This Week.

8—The Great American Dream Machine. Kurt Vonnegut, Jr. and Dick Cavett are among the guests who take a look at death. Host Marshall Efron tells how to write your own famous last words and lead a discussion on the question, "Is there sex after death?" A feature on the late James Dean and a visual interpretation of Tom Paxton's song, "Forest Lawn," are also included in the program. A feature looks at the changed life of a family who suffered the loss of their father. An analysis of sympathy cards is also shown as another frivolous part of American life.

9—Soul! "Epitaph: the message I get is that drugs is death." A special hour film dealing with the life of a black youth who is killed by an overdose of heroin is featured this week when Soul! departs from its regular format. "Epitaph" was written by a 26-year-old black film maker, Richard Mason, who died from a heroin overdose before completing the work.

Free-running dogs cause city headache

By Stephen Daggers
Student Writer

While some species of animals are in danger of becoming extinct there is a definite overpopulation of dogs in Carbondale and in the entire country, according to Mark Berkowitz, Carbondale dog warden.

Berkowitz said the major reason for the overpopulation of dogs in Carbondale is that too many people let their dogs run free.

City ordinance 1457 is an attempt to control dogs from running free in Carbondale. Section five of the ordinance deals directly with the problem of dogs running free.

The section says that no owner or keeper of any dog shall permit the animal to run at large. The term at large is defined as the dog not being under the control of its master or a responsible party.

This ordinance does not apply to the SIU campus as the campus is not within the city limits, according to SIU security police.

Dogs found running at large may be impounded at anytime by the city animal warden. The fine for allowing a dog to run loose is $5 for the first two violations and $10 for any violations thereafter.

Section 2 of the ordinance states that all dogs kept in Carbondale must be licensed if they are over four months of age.

A tag is given to the owner when he registers his dog and this tag must be worn at all times by the dog.

Marguerite Boyd, assistant city clerk of Carbondale, said the licensing costs for a male or a female spayed dog is $3 and for a non-spayed female the cost is $5.

Berkowitz said that he feels that this difference in cost of licensing is a method to control the birth rate of dogs in Carbondale.

The average minimum cost for having a dog spayed in Carbondale is $30.

Section four of the ordinance makes it unlawful for a dog not to be anti-rabies vaccinated by a licensed veterinary surgeon.

The ordinance also provides that every owner must keep his dog from becoming a public nuisance.

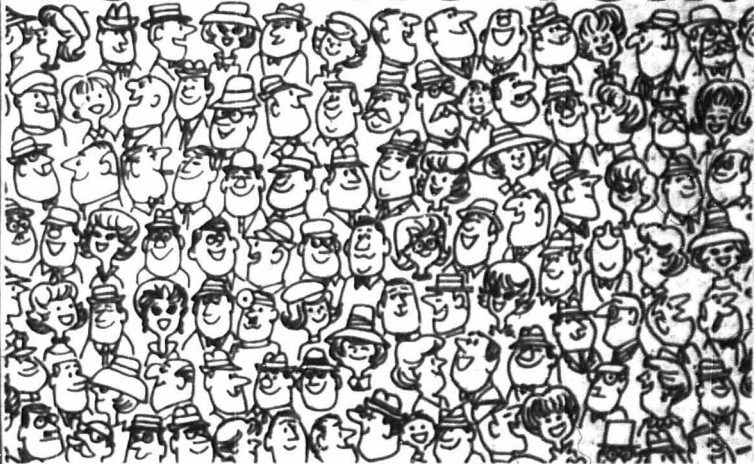

Owners must provide their animal with sufficient food, water, proper shelter and veterinary care when needed to prevent suffering, according to section 11. This section also says that no person shall poison or ill treat an animal.

If an owner wants to dispose of a dog he may give it to the Animal Warden at no cost to the owner.

Dance king featured at convocation

Jose Greco and Nana Lorca, this weeks convocation guests, will present a lecture-demonstration-rectal at 1:00 p.m. Thursday in the Arena.

The program is centered around Spanish dance, which Greco says, "is rich and very alive in our modern world—the only classic form to survive through the centuries."

Greco considers himself an educator and an entertainer. He says, "There is no reason why an educational experience cannot be lively, stimulating and certainly entertaining."

His lecture-demonstration-rectal consists of a discussion, followed by a demonstration with Nana Lorca of the various techniques and characteristics of dances. The main regions Greco will concentrate on will be Aragon, Basque, Valencia, Castile and Andalusia.

His program explores the character and history of the Spanish people in order to try and capture the feeling which Greco says "is so much a part of Spanish Dance and music." Greco and Nana Lorca will be accompanied by music from a piano and Flauto guitar.

Jose Greco

Greco, who is originally from the Abruzzi Mountains in Italy, has studied dance since childhood. He trained under the guidance of Spain's foremost teachers. He has appeared throughout Europe and Great Britain. Critics have described Greco as a "blending of fire and ice" and acknowledged him as a unique artist.

His motion picture performances include a dance scene in "Around the World in 80 Days" and a co-starring dramatic role in "Ship of Fools."

Sonora Lorca was born in Spain where she became an accomplished dancer at the age of nine, when she won the Grand Award for her interpretation of the "Jota" at Zaragoza. She is a graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Music and Declamation in Madrid.

His guest star television appearances have included the Bob Hope, Ed Sullivan, Perry Como, Garry Moore, Dinah Shore, Firestone, Revlon and Dean Martin Shows.

Her career has included an appearance as a soloist with the Pilar Lopez Company. She is equally accomplished in both the Spanish classical and flamenco dances.

She received unanimous acclaim from critics as prima ballerina with the Jose Greco Company and presently co-stars with Greco.

Following convocation there will be a free coffee hour sponsored by Student Government on the first floor of the Student Center.

Tenant union to instruct in legal aid

The Student Tenant Union (STU) is now offering instruction in paralegal counseling and assistance. Dick Pierce, a STU spokesman said Tuesday.

Student volunteers will be taught how to counsel tenants with landlord problems, though the volunteers will not become involved in litigation, he said.

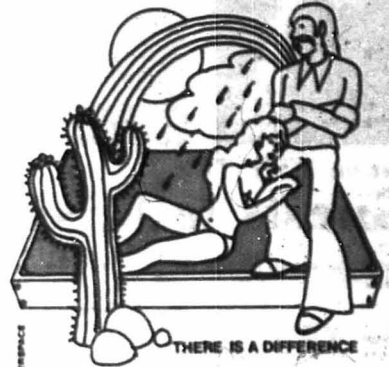

Douglas Duggie, director of the union's counseling services division, will conduct the course, Pierce said. No academic credit will be offered through the course this quarter, though there are plans to offer credit next quarter, Pierce said.

Students interested in taking the course should contact Duggie at the University Ombudsman's office, 433-3411, the location of the counseling services division.

The executive action division of STU maintains an office at the off-campus housing office in Building B of Washington Square. Special projects operate out of the student government office, Pierce said.

Long blasts Expro implementation

Expro is a plan for reorganizing the Daily Egyptian newspaper to give more control and encourage more volunteer participation in news and editorial operations. It is not designed to affect the advertising, mechanical or business operations.

The proposal was drafted last fall by a group of journalism students and was rewritten last spring when it was endorsed by the Student Senate. The U. S. Senate endorsed the plan in principle last summer.

Harry Stonecipher, associate professor of journalism, asked Long about student involvement in the Egyptian.

"More students than ever before are participating in the policy making procedures and in the production activities of the newspaper," Long said. "Students have had a proud and significant part in the development of the newspaper. But the students alone could not have the bulk the Daily Egyptian without the help of professional leadership any more than the faculty members involved could have accomplished this without the help of the students."

Long said he has never tried to dictate whether a story should or should not be published. He said he does have final control of what appears in the paper, but he has not exercised this power.

On the question of editorial policy, Long said he preferred that all editorials have the author's signature. Long said he did not want anyone to hide behind an anonymous letter.

Monorail talk set for Student Senate meeting

The Student Senate will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Lawson 231. Student body president George Camille and associate University architect John Loneragan will address the group.

Loneragan will discuss the proposed monorail system for the campus.

The Senate passed a bill last week establishing a new meeting time of 8 p.m., but Camille vetoed the bill. Objections were raised to the bill at the meeting last week, based chiefly on the premise that meetings would drag on indefinitely if the new time were adopted.

The Senate may consider legislation allowing a senator to hold office if he is enrolled as a full-time student for three of the four academic quarters. A senator is now required to be enrolled fall, winter and spring quarters.

Long did not rule out the possibility of compromise. He mentioned the possibility of a totally student-oriented paper separate from the Daily Egyptian.

Following Long's testimony, the committee approved a resolution making next Tuesday's meeting an executive committee meeting. The press will be barred from the meeting. At that meeting, it is expected that some type of concrete proposals will be formed which will be the basis for an interim report the committee must present to the Senate.

Congressmen ask retaliation

on the foreign and measure in the present atmosphere might bring defeat of the measure, something he wants to avoid.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said the United States should quit the United Nations outright and send its headquarters off to "some place like Moscow or Peking."

Senate leaders of both parties, Democrat Mike Mansfield of Montana and Republican Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, said they have long believed the United States pays too big a share of U.N. expenses and favor cutbacks on that basis, not as punishment for Monday night's vote to seat mainland China and oust Taiwan.

Their position would increase the chance that there will indeed be a reduction in the U.S. contribution, which now totals some $340 million a year.

Students laud Aleph Sanctuary

By Larry Glowacki
Student Writer

"It's the most fantastic thing to come to the Carbondale campus," said Doty Davis, a senior in clothing and textiles. "The sanctuary is very beautiful," said another viewer.

The Aleph Sanctuary, a collection of paintings by Israeli artist Mati Klarwein, is currently on display in Ballroom A of the Student Center. Most other reactions to the exhibit are quite the same in enthusiasm and wonder.

"I think it's excellent. It's very representative of the cosmic knowledge," said Joe Everhard, a senior in radio and television. "He is a beautiful painter," said one junior in art.

The sanctuary itself is a small rectangular room of wood, brass and aluminum with a curtain of golden beads at the entrance. Among the paintings covering the walls are "Annunciation," used by Santana on the cover of their "Abraxas" album and "The Tree of Uncreated Love" covers one entire wall of the sanctuary. It is known as the sexual energy tree and contains some explicit sexual scenes.

Upon the ceiling is the giant, circular "Grain of Sand," which the viewer can obtain in poster version. The inside of the sanctuary is coated with the artist's images, all of which seem to exist as one in the concept of the sanctuary.

"You could spend your whole life looking at it and never see it the same way twice," said Paul Schwartz, a student in physiology.

Outside of Ballroom A at the reception desk is a small book of lined pages labeled "Remarks." Here the viewer is asked to tell his reaction. Several of them did.

"Fantastic!" wrote one viewer. "Incredible!" wrote another. However, some viewers were not that enthused. "Weird," "Bizarre" and "I was bored" were other remarks.

One reaction seemed to sum up the general feeling of the viewers that the paintings represent a sort of "ordered confusion" as one viewer said, and are skillfully done if nothing else.

"It reminds me very much of Hindu-type art, with a kind of surrealistic overtone to it. It is very largely anecdotal art. Very skillful," said Nicholas Vergette, a faculty member.

Senate must fill 20 vacated seats

Fewer than 16 candidates have turned in petitions for the Nov. 10 Student Senate elections, Gary Dickerson, elections coordinator, said Tuesday.

"At least 20 seats must be filled, with a possibility that two more seats will be declared vacant in Senate action this week."

There will be races in a few districts, but, as it stands now, some seats may not be contested, Dickerson said.

Seats are open from Brush Towers, University Park, Thompson

Point, Small Group Housing, University City, outside dorm, outside non-dorm, outside dorm, outside non-dorm and the computer district.

Students who will be enrolled full-time (at least 12 quarter hours) by winter quarter and who expect to live in the district whose seat they seek are eligible to run.

Petitions must be picked up and returned to the student government office by 5 p.m. Friday. The signatures of 30 district residents are required.

'REMEMBER SOME OF THOSE HALF-TIME SHOWS—BEFORE THE BUDGET CUT?'

Campus briefs

SIU Employees Credit Union joined this week with the worldwide credit union movement in the observance of International Credit Union Week. Thursday was observed as International Credit Union Day.

Information regarding the services of the SIU Employees Credit Union may be obtained by phone (453-2736), or by stopping in at the office located at 903 West Whitney Street. J. E. Sinnott is treasurer and office manager.

Appointment of Chester E. Johnston of Carterville, long-time faculty member at the SIU Vocational-Technical Institute, as assistant to the VTI dean has been confirmed by the Board of Trustees.

Johnston, 44, will work in special projects and research in the office of Dean Arden L. Pratt. He first joined the VTI faculty in 1955 as an instructor in business and in recent years has been chairman of the faculty in secretarial and accounting. He retains the academic rank of assistant professor in his new post.

Paul Hurley, associate professor of English and the department's director of General Studies, attended the Illinois Association of Teachers of English last weekend in Urbana.

Hurley talked Saturday on "Training Teachers of Composition."

Prof. D. W. Slocum of the Department of Chemistry read papers and reported research of SIU graduate students at recent national and international meetings.

At the 22nd International Congress of Pure and Applied Chemistry in Boston, Professor Slocum reported research of W. E. Jones and C. R. Ernst—concerning essential identification and delineation of new features in the mass spectra of substituted ferrocenes. At the 162nd national meeting of the American Chemical Society in Washington, Slocum read two papers—one co-authored by Ernst and a group of research workers at Indiana University on electronic advances in certain organometallic systems, the other co-authored by Ernst and R. Marchal and reviewing the present knowledge of organometallic synthesis.

Ernst recently was awarded a National Research Council post-doctoral fellowship which will enable him to continue his studies in organometallic chemistry after he receives his Ph.D. degree from SIU.

Arden L. Pratt, dean of the Vocational-Technical Institute, is author or editor of three publications just released by the American Association of Junior Colleges.

He is author of "Environmental Education in the Community College," a monograph on development of environmental and ecological programs. Pratt is co-author with Angelo C. Gillie of "Marine Technology Program: Where We Are and Where We're Going." He is editor of "AAJC Information Exchange," a directory of 326 community and junior colleges and other post-secondary institutions.

Plans made for festival

By R. David Youngberg
Student Writer

Frank H. Schnert, international student advisor at International Student Services recently submitted a proposal to all interested parties for developing full university involvement in the annual celebration of International Week (IW) at SIU Jan. 24-30.

In the past, IW was a full week of night lectures and exhibits presented by foreign students attending SIU, Schnert said.

Schnert said the main purpose of advance planning is to involve as many SIU resources as possible so that IW will have a deeper, more significant academic base than it has in the past.

Schnert said the main idea of the IW is to get SIU faculty and students to become more sensitized to international relations.

The dozens of different academic divisions would be requested to integrate IW into daily classroom procedure, Schnert said.

Instead of the usual night exhibits and lectures, Fulbright Scholars who are visiting the U.S. at different universities would be invited to talk to specific SIU class meetings of the scholar's same field, Schnert said.

"International affairs does not depend solely on what happens politically or what happens economically," Schnert said.

It is important for college students to be able to relate all aspects of international relations, Schnert said.

Schnert said he thinks of a university as a world by itself. A university having this characteristic is able to test new ideas, he said.

With all of the academic majors of a university representing the many divisions of society, a university should be able to operate on a world community basis, Schnert said.

When universities acquire this attitude, perhaps all people will accept this belief, Schnert said.

Schnert said anyone with a creative idea concerning IW should feel free to contact him at International Student Services.

Residents of Steagall's first floor often stop by resident fellow George Scholtz's room to watch tv and talk.

Being different makes living in Steagall Hall a big deal

By Pat Nussman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The residents of Steagall Hall aren't a very sedate bunch, according to resident counselor Ms. Mary Mickus.

"There's almost always a card game going on in the hall," commented Ms. Mickus. "And people go out of their rooms a lot and visit with one another."

"They are quite enthusiastic."

So what makes this dorm and its residents different?

Steagall Hall is the first coed dormitory in the history of SIU. And, according to Ms. Mickus, this makes quite a difference in the attitudes of the residents toward dorm life and towards each other.

"They are very enthusiastic—eager to get going on various projects and activities and trips," she said. "There are always mixed-sex football games and frisbee games going on."

The residents are segregated according to suites, with both men and women on each floor. Ms. Mickus estimates that about 90 per cent of the residents are sophomores and juniors.

"It's very free and the students are very cooperative," Ms. Mickus said. "They think it's a more natural situation than the one-sex dorms they lived in previously."

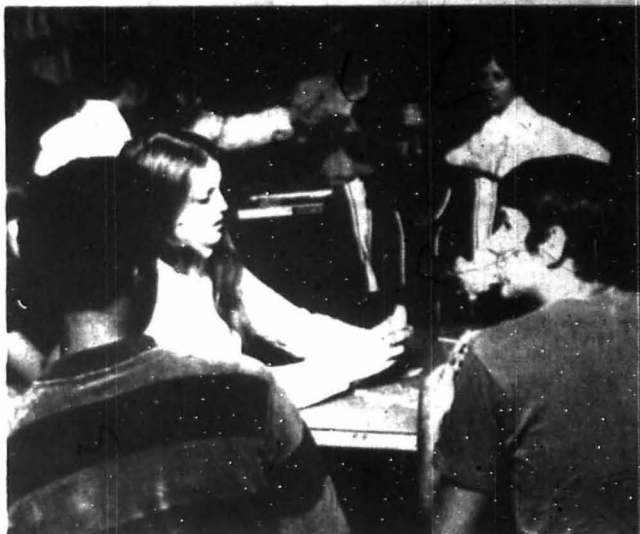

One other difference between a one-sex dorm and Steagall Hall is the limited visitation.

In other University dorms, people of the same sex as the residents can visit at any time. In Steagall, since there are both sexes residing there, there is also limited visitation for both sexes and the dorm is kept locked at all times.

"By limiting outsiders they get to know each other," Ms. Mickus said. "I've had some people comment that they know everyone on the floor."

The coed dorm is an experimental project, but Ms. Mickus said that she feels that it is beneficial to the students and provides a natural atmosphere.

"They just think it's a more natural-type situation," she commented. "They don't think it's so much of a big thing."

Games people play

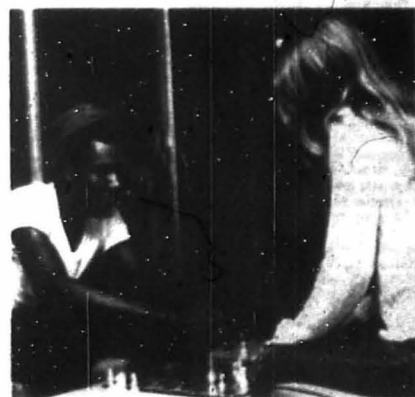

Cards and monopoly—those are two favorite games played by many dorm residents. Steagall residents are no exception.

Laboratory Shakespeare

Malcolm Rothman, Sandy Aker, Ron Travis, Jan Vest and Michael Moore, all members of the Southern Players will present William Shakespeare's Twelfth Night in the Laboratory Theater Communications Building, SIU Campus, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, at 8:00 p.m. Admission is $1.75 for students, $2.25 for non-students. This production to be directed by Tim Meyer will be the first opening play of the Southern Players Big Ten 1971-72 season. Tickets may be purchased at the University Box Office or the Central Ticket Office.

New head to help alien students feel at home

Arthur L. Casebeer, who directs the program of the International Student Services, hopes to develop a stronger relationship between his office and the academic departments of SIU.

Casebeer succeeds Clarence Hendershot, now retired from the post of assistant director of the International Services Division. The new head, who has been an associate professor of higher education at SIU since 1969, will spend half-time in the department of higher education and the remainder in International Student Services, which has contact with 600 international students on campus.

"We hope to develop a more comprehensive orientation program to American thought, culture, and life, and to afford international students a chance to feel and see America while they're here," he said.

These plans include development of a comprehensive course for international students called Introduction to America.

Casebeer pointed out that a new lounge in the international area of Woody Hall has been opened to both American and international students to provide avenues of rapport between the two groups.

Committee will select U-Senate candidates

By Chuck Hetschcraft
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Student Senate ad hoc screening committee will interview persons interested in serving as undergraduate representatives to the University Senate Wednesday.

The interview will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. in room C, second floor of the Student Center.

According to Michael S. Treiman, chairman of the screening committee, persons do not have to contact the committee before hand. They only have to be at the committee's interview Wednesday.

The requirements for a University Senator are that the person be an undergraduate and in good standing.

The terms for which these representatives will serve will extend from Nov. 1, 1971 to Nov. 1, 1972.

The Student Senate will choose eight persons from those recommended by the screening committee to serve as the undergraduate representatives at large.

The Student Senate will make its choice Wednesday night. It will also choose four student senators to fill the four remaining undergraduate positions on the University Senate.

The next meeting of the University Senate is Monday.

House calls for probe of airlines operations

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The Illinois House of Representatives, reacting to an airline crash that took 16 lives near Peoria, called Tuesday for a "thorough and complete investigation" into all airline operations within the state.

The House, by voice vote, approved and sent to the Senate the resolution calling for a full report to the General Assembly by Jan. 8, 1972.

The investigation will not only look into state regulations governing airlines but also will seek to determine the adequacy and safety of existing intrastate airline operations.

The Illinois Legislative Investigating Commission is a revamped group of the old Illinois Crime Investigating Commission. Charles Siragusa remains executive director of the new commission, which has broad powers of investigation and will spend least time investigating organized crime.

Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Chicago, said the commission would cooperate with federal agencies presently investigating the Thursday plane crash near Peoria.

Vida Blue wins Cy Young award

NEW YORK (AP) — Lefthander Vida Blue of the Oakland A's, who won 24 games in his first full season in the major leagues, was named winner Tuesday of the American League's 1971 Cy Young Award.

The 25-year-old Blue, who bled his way to a 17-3 record at the mid-season All-Star break, then tailed off to finish at 24-8, became the youngest player ever to win the premier pitching award. Dean Chance, then of the Los Angeles Angels won it at 23 in 1964.

Blue, who led the league with eight shutouts and a magnificent 1.63 earned run average, landed 14 of the 24 first-place votes in the Baseball Writers Association of America balloting.

He was also the only pitcher named on all 24 ballots, accumulating 90 points, 13 more than Mickey Lolich of the Detroit Tigers, who received nine first-place votes and appeared on all but one of the ballots. Veteran knuckleballing reliever-turned-starter Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox received the remaining first place vote and finished third with 23 points, followed by Baltimore's Dave McNally with eight points and Kansas City's Dick Drago and California's Andy Messersmith with one apiece.

The panel consisted of two baseball writers from each American League City, each voting for three pitchers with five points for first place, three for second and one for third.

Blue, a native of Mansfield, La., received nine second-place votes and Lolich received 13, with each hurler getting one third-place nomination.

Lolich, the Tigers' chubby 31-year-old southpaw ace, pitched consistently well throughout the year, taking a 14-6 record into the All-Star break and, beating Blue in victories in the waning weeks, finished at 25-14 with a 2.92 earned run average and a major league-leading 206 strikeouts, seven more than Blue.

Wood, 31, also a left-hander, was only 9-6 at the halfway mark, then caught fire to wind up with a 22-13 record, and was runner-up to Blue with seven shutouts and a 1.91 earned run average.

McNally led the Orioles' quartet of 20-game winners with a 21-6 mark. Drago was 17-11 and Messersmith finished at 20-13.

Booters stop Kentucky, 9-0

SIU's International Soccer Club evened its record last Saturday with a convincing 9-0 victory over Kentucky at Lexington. The win pushes the booters' record to 1-1.

Six of SIU's total goals came off the strong foot of Bijan Varjari while the remainder were scored by Duas Tarrares.

The loss dropped Kentucky, an NCAA team with a 14-game schedule, to a 5-3 mark.

SIU will play its last match of the season Nov. 6 at the University of Illinois.

New recreation facilities open

The Intramural Department has recently opened another facility for recreational use. Located in University School rooms 21 and 23, the facility will primarily be used for shuffleboard and other small game room activities.

At a later date the Intramural Department also announced the possibility for table tennis and other games to be included in the project.

The hours for this facility along with the University School gymnasium and weight room are: Monday through Friday 3 p.m. to 12 midnight, and Saturday and Sunday 9 a.m. to 12 midnight.

All students interested in using the intramural activities must present their SIU ID card and current fee statement to the supervisor in charge of the facility. Equipment is available through the supervisors on duty.

The following flag football contests have been set for 4:30 p.m. Wednesday by the Intramural Office.

Frosh defense stopped Redbirds

"These were two beautiful screens we utilized," said Hanna. "On the one to Willie, there was a big old lineman with his hands up in the air and I just got the ball over his fingers by an inch."

Hanna's running mate at quarterback, Kevin O'Boyle, came off the bench in the later going to engineer two time consuming drives, one netting O'Neal's touchdown.

O'Boyle, whose long suit is running the ball, said Ledbetter put his into the contest with a specific objective in mind.

"Coach told me to run the ball and control the game," O'Boyle said. And that was just what he did. O'Boyle carried the ball four times for 10 yards. He also completed two of two passes.

It's true that the frosh won the ball game, but they lost the battle of the statistics. Illinois State outgained them in total yardage by 67, 400-327. The Salukis had more passing yardage, but Illinois State won the rushing game, 222-106.

It isn't exactly over the river and through the woods, but SIU and Air Force cross country runners journey across the hilly and beautiful Midland Hills course last weekend. Southern won the meet 26-29. Saluki Dave Hill—who won the meet in a record-shattering time—leads the contingent of harriers followed by teammates Jack St. John and Ken Nalder. Harriers want to dethrone Illini Saturday

The University of Illinois hasn't lost an Illinois Intercollegiate cross country title since the big state meet began in 1969. SIU wants to change that.

Furthermore, the Illini haven't lost to the Salukis in cross country dual meets since 1968, the year current junior Gerry Hinton was a freshman. Southern won the first two meets between the two schools in 1966 and the following year.

The luck of the Illini didn't change this year when SIU lost 25-33 in the second meet of the season.

So, the Salukis would like to end Illinois' supremacy over them and the state at the Illinois Intercollegiate Saturday in Champaign, the first of three big championships this season.

Head coach Lew Hartzog points out with delight that SIU defeated Illinois those two times in the middle 60's, but he added that the "score spot with us is that we haven't won the Illinois Intercollegiate.

This may be the year.

"Four of our kids are running very tough," Hartzog said of Dave Hill, who has broken course records this year four times in a row, team captain Ken Nalder, freshman Jack St. John and Gerry Craig.

Now Hartzog is looking for a fifth man to place high enough to swing the meet to SIU. The coach said Jeff Bayles and Hinton will go to the meet and the eighth man will be Carl McPherson or Al Stanzak.

He feels these men are ready to "step up and do the job."

Despite a slow start and 4-4 dual meet record, the coach said the work the Salukis have done over the past weeks "is ready to pay off."

"Illinois is at home," Hartzog said. "So they're going to be doubly tough. They don't like to lose to SIU so they're going to be even tougher because of that."

Frosh defense unit sealed Redbirds' fate

Freshman defensive coach Harold Burgh sat in the front seat of a West End bus Saturday, puffing on "an eight cent cigar." Smoke turned around his blond hair as he sat savoring SIU's dramatic 27-21 victory over Illinois State.

"I've got to give the defensive unit credit," he said, as he turned halfway around to address a tired and sweaty bunch of ballplayers. "They played a heck of a game."

"What about the offense," someone from the back of the bus shouted.

Burgh sat for a moment and asked, "How many points did the offense score?"

"He was informed that the offensive unit scored 10 points on its own while the defense, including the specialty teams, set up the remainder."

"That's a pretty good split," he said. "You know I have to congratulate the defensive unit first because I am defensive coordinator."

Burgh couldn't have been more correct in his analysis, for in the end it was the defense, led by Paul Splawski's last second block of a pass that sealed Illinois State's fate.

The play came with seven seconds left and the Redbirds on the SIU 33 yardline following a blocked SIU field goal try and a four play drive. With third and three, ISU quarterback Eric Scott aimed a touchdown strike to his split end Bob Falls at the goal line.

The toss was right on the money, but Splawski got his hand in the way and the ball was knocked down as the gun sounded.

Splawski wasn't the only hero in West Frankfort High School Stadium Saturday. Defensive end Bill Crutcher was putting his 6-4, 210-pound frame to good use all afternoon, putting pressure on quarterback Scott. Crutcher also threw the key block in Willie Turner's punt return touchdown run in the third quarter.

Bob Habbe turned in another stellar performance playing both tight end and strong side linebacker. While at the tight end slot, the native of Nashville collected two passes for 24 yards. His first reception, a 14-yard pitch from Mike Hanna was the key play in a Saluki drive that netted the tying field goal in the waning moments of the first half.

But all the plaudits might have gone unsung if it had not been for an astute halftime adjustment made by coach Bob Ledbetter and his staff.

"At half time we tried to do two things," Ledbetter explained. "You see, they were trying to lead us up the middle then go outside on the sweep."

The Redbirds had the speed in the backfield to make that strategy work in the person of Scott and running back Dennis Laws. Laws had a busy day carrying a good portion of ISU's running attack. He amassed 157 yards in 26 carries to lead all runners in that department.

"I think we did a fine job," Ledbetter said. "You know, they had two kids back there that can run the hundred in 9.6 or 9.7."

Leading the SIU running backs was Bob O'Neal who scored the final touchdown on a nine-yard plunge. The St. Louis native rushed for 62 yards in 17 attempts plus pulling down four passes for 52 yards.

O'Neal had been experiencing some ankle and arch troubles in the early weeks of training camp and is still not running at full steam. "I still can't cut real well and I'm not running my best; but I had a tremendous team in front of me Saturday."

Thirty-four of O'Neal's total yards in the air came on a screen pass from Hanna in the first quarter. Hanna, who was performing in front of 14 relatives, had a good day at quarterback, completing 10 of 16 passes for 181 yards and one touchdown.

The touchdown came on the first play of the game, when Hanna tossed a short pass to Willie Turner who scored 69 yards for the score.
