Thompson, Stevenson speak; disagree on economic policy

By Jennifer Polk
Staff Writer

Gov. James Thompson and former U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson III agree that economic development is vital to Illinois. And both agree that Illinois has some problems in that area.

They disagree, however, on the current administration's effectiveness in coping with the problems that beset the state.

Both men addressed the Working Conference for Exploring Government, Industry, Labor and Education Partnerships held in the Student Center Tuesday.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting, Stevenson, a declared candidate for the Democratic nomination for the office of governor, told leaders of business and education that the Thompson administration "contains itself with a narrow and antiquated view of the state's responsibility for economic development."

"The governor and legislature play out rivalries and divisions between city and suburb, labor and management and upstate and downstate instead of building on a clear and common interest," he said. "With no state strategy for dealing with industrial change, the hardships suffered by the communities are prolonged."

Later in the day, Thompson told the same crowd that Stevenson was "wrong," saying that under his administration, Illinois has emerged as one of the most aggressive states in pursuing economic opportunities for its people.

"When I took over, the General Assembly and the governor's office were not speaking to each other," Thompson said. "The government and industry weren't speaking to each other and labor and industry weren't speaking to each other and labor and the government weren't speaking to each other. Now there is communication between all of them."

He said he brought labor and industry together even though it was assumed that as a Republican governor, he would "do whatever industry wanted and turn my back on labor."

Thompson said that part of his job is "selling Illinois" to prospective industries. There is a tendency among residents of the state to "bad-mouth" Illinois, but Thompson emphasized that Illinois has abundant natural resources that include water, coal and agricultural products and a diverse transportation network that involves railroads, highway systems and river traffic. He said he is working closely with sources in Washington to get federal projects in the state, including federally-financed road projects and military installations.

Stevenson, a U.S. Senator from Illinois from 1971 to 1980, said the biggest economic problem stems from the U.S. government's propensity to intervene in the financial affairs of industry in response to special interest groups, while other countries concern

Book-co-op workers hard to find for USO

By Andrew Strang
Staff Writer

Plans for the Undergraduate Student Organization book cooperative have reached a hurdle because of difficulties in finding workers to run the project.

The USO has asked the Black Affairs Council to run the co-op after the College of Business and Administrative Student Council refused to help. The BAC has not reached a decision yet.

Chip Anderson, COBA president, said his organization refused because they don't want to spend the time during finals week on an idea that is not "feasible."

USO sources, who asked not to be identified, believe the COBA students do not want to participate so that the USO, composed mainly of people in the Maverick political party, will not get credit for the project. Last year, Anderson ran for USO president under the Cobra political party, composed of COBA students.

Sources said failure of the book co-op would make it easier for a member of the Cobra party to win the USO presidency in the spring election.

Anderson, however, said politics has nothing to do with the COBA decision.

Business students don't want to help because they feel the co-op will fail, Anderson said. He said students will not participate because they will not be able to get money for their books until the spring semester begins. The University Bookstore and the 710 Bookstore pay students immediately for used books.

"I don't think too many of the students are going to want to give up their money for six weeks," Anderson said.

Anderson said business students are concerned the co-op will require too much time during finals week of the fall semester.

Jerry Cook, USO chief of staff, who is trying to find students to work the book co-op, said he felt it is "unfortunate that they are not willing to work with another organization to provide a student service."

He said it has been difficult to find an organization to run the book co-op because a large number of people are needed at the beginning and the end of the semester.

USO president Todd Rogers said the co-op will require about 2000 man-hours to operate, which is making it hard to find workers because, "they've never tried something this monumental."

Illinois professors' salaries 7.2 percent below median

By Mike Anthony
Staff Writer

Pay and fringe benefits for Illinois public university professors ranked 7.2 percent below the median for similar universities in other states last year, an Illinois Board of Higher Education report said. The figures were adjusted for the cost-of-living differences in various states, according to the report prepared for the Nov. 3 IBHE meeting in Chicago.

Although state faculty salaries rose 8 percent last year, the report cited that, nationally, average faculty salaries increased by 8.7 percent.

The report also stated that "the loss of purchasing power due to inflation has been a persistent problem throughout the 1970s."

GSC in violation of fee guidelines

By Alan Sculley
Staff Writer

The Graduate Student Council is in violation of the graduate fees disbursement guidelines approved by the council earlier this month, Laura Nelson, GSC vice president, said.

Nelson said that the $2,115 the GSC has allotted so far this year for university-wide events exceeds the $1,580 limit set by a 10 percent guideline, Nelson said.

Oct. 14, the GSC approved disbursement limits of 60 percent for professional development activities, such as attending conferences; 10 percent for university-wide activities; and 30 percent for special support activities, or events that don't fall under the other two categories.

Nelson said she would discuss the issue with the GSC at its meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center's Mississippi Room.

Nelson said that in the past, the GSC has put more emphasis on university-wide activities—citing last year's GSC spending of 41 percent of its money on them.

"Since we are now out of our development activities, such as attending conferences; 10 percent for university-wide activities; and 30 percent for special support activities, or events that don't fall under the other two categories.

Nationwide 1-hour strike plans continue by defiant Solidarity

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity defiantly went ahead with plans for a one-hour, nationwide strike Wednesday over food shortages and other problems. The Polish Communist Party's Central Committee and the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact were reported preparing separate meetings.

Lech Walesa, leader of the independent labor movement, had been expected to hold talks with government officials Tuesday night, apparently in hopes of heading off the walkout. But union sources said he had not met any officials, and that the nationwide protest would go ahead as planned at noon.

The government information agency interpress said Polish troops were taking up positions in villages and towns and their initial reception was "friendly."

Communist Party officials said the 200-member Central Committee would meet just hours after the strike, the biggest since a four-hour, national walkout March 27. They said Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the party chief, defense minister and prime minister, might reshuffle the Cabinet or Communist Party Politburo.

The Hungarian news agency MTI said the Warsaw Pact defense ministers would meet soon in Budapest, Hungary. MTI did not give a date but there have been fears of Soviet intervention in Poland ever since Solidarity was created 14 months ago as the first union free of party control in the Soviet bloc.

The Polish protest is expected to idle millions of workers, and has been condemned by the government and party as threatening Poland's "political, economic and defensive" foundations. It has also sparked protests from state-run unions who vowed to work.

State pays governor's ex-firm

CHICAGO (AP) — Gov. James R. Thompson's former law firm was paid $272,000 by the State of Illinois to draft the governor's plan to fund the state's struggling transportation system with a new oil tax, it was reported Tuesday by the Chicago Sun-Times.

State records show that the Chicago law firm, Winston & Strawn, which former employed Thompson, billed the state $253,451 in legal fees and $18,483.89 in expenses. This was done while under contract with the Transportation Department from March 2 until June 30.

Dave Gilbert, Thompson's press secretary, said the contract was not an act of favoritism. The firm did the job at reduced rates and was one of the few large, diversified law firms available without conflicting transportation clients, he said.

Thompson said, "They're a damn fine law firm and they did a superior job ... I've been stiffing (them) long enough. I will not back away from a firm I was associated with."

CIA infiltration plans opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee urged the Reagan administration Tuesday to scrap its proposal to let the CIA infiltrate and try to influence U.S. organizations.

USO forms committee to study fee increase

By Andrew Strang
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Organization has formed an ad hoc committee to study the proposed $8 Student Center fee increase.

The committee is composed of Leith Smith, senior in accounting, John Mitchell, senior in accounting and Mark Murphy, senior in finance.

The committee will make a recommendation to the Student Senate Nov. 4 on whether the budget. Another provision under the 60-30-10 guideline, which sets lower limits on the money the GSC can allocate for a special support event, may make it hard for organizations to fund projects, Nelson said.

In the past, the GSC could fund up to 250, or 50 percent of an activity's cost. The new guidelines set the limits at 200 and 25 percent. This lower percentage may create a problem in getting funding for projects under the special senate should support the fee increase.

The proposed $8 increase will offset an expected deficit of $206,827 in fiscal year 1983, which will occur if the fee remains at its present level of $24, according to a report by the Student Center Board.

Smith said the committee will investigate the possibility of meeting the deficit by raising prices, cutting services or raising the fee.

"We want to make sure that this $8 increase is actually warranted," Smith said.

support category, Nelson said.

Medical, law and business administration students can usually only look to the special support, their school and their student organization for funding, Nelson said. The new guidelines could make it hard to find full funding, she said.

She said, however, that special support money applicants can still go before the full GSC to get funding in excess of the $200 or 25 percent limit.

Birchler says he won't run again

Former state Rep. Vincent A. Birchler, who lost to Rep. Wayne Alistat, a Republican in the 58th District, in 1980 after six years in office, has announced that he will not be a candidate in 1982.

Birchler of Chester, a Democrat, said the recent redistricting has divided his Randolph County base of support.

Birchler could run in either the new 116th District, where State Rep. Bruce Richmond D-58th District has already announced his candidacy for reelection, or in the 115th District.

State Rep. Ralph Dunn, R-58th District, recently announced his candidacy for reelection in the 115th District, and Birchler has said he did not want to run against him.

Opinion & Commentary

University is in need of new fiscal philosophy

It appears that if the Student Center Board and the center's director have things their way, the students will see yet another increase in fees—in this case, the Student Center fee.

A couple relevant points need to be added to the arguments already made against it.

To briefly recap: two weeks ago, the Student Center Board recommended an $8 increase to the existing $24 fee, citing an expected $206,827 budget deficit in fiscal year 1983. The $8 increase would provide for a surplus until fiscal year 1984, when the deficit would be $4,396. The Student Center director has attempted to get Student Senate support for the increase, but it has not made any determination of its position as of yet. The only campus constituency group that has come out in favor of the increase has been the Inter-Greek Council.

As to why a deficit is expected, it appears to be based on projections of declining enrollment. That is one of the points that needs to be brought into question.

The Student Center budget projected an enrollment decline for the fiscal year 1982. Instead, the enrollment for the fall semester, the first full semester of fiscal year 1982, increased by 2.58 percent. The fact is that the enrollment declines that have been projected have yet to materialize and it is simply fallacious for them to be used to bolster the Student Center's case.

Another important point to be made concerns the bowling alleys. The fee increase will be used partly to finance the replacement of bowling alley equipment. It has already been said here that the replacement of equipment in a bowling alley should be financed through the raising of line fees. Some specifics need to be added on that point: The Student Center bowling alley presently charges 60 cents per game. A quick survey shows that the going rate at other local bowling alleys is $1.10. If the Student Center were to charge 90 cents per game, they would increase their revenue by 50 percent and would still be charging less than the competition. And that revenue is nothing to be sneezed at. In the previous fiscal year, the Student Center made $62,000 from the bowling alleys alone. A 50 percent increase would mean an annual take of close to $100,000.

That is not the only area where extra revenue can be obtained. Increasing the prices for non-student use of the meeting rooms and even charging a nominal fee—say $1—for students would bring in a not-inconsiderable amount. Measures like these would be far more practical than a fee increase that cannot guarantee a budget surplus past fiscal 1984.

The Student Center is asking for an extra $8 now. In 1984, there will be a request for yet another increase. Where does it all end? It ends with the determination to stop the spiral now. The Student Center and many other areas within this institution are locked into the philosophy that the only way to obtain financial solvency is to charge higher fees. It is simply time for a new philosophy.

Everybody, make the most of Halloween

Well, it's time again for all the brouhaha concerning Halloween. Carbondale style. Not just any old event, but a week of fun, entertainment, insanity and wild parties. It makes me sick! Administrators in cahoots with the Council of Fools are attempting to whitewash this incident like some mucky-muck, prim and proper, regimented bugle call. I say make the most of it. Make the most of it for SIU students, Carbondale residents, businesspersons, as well as all that attend. Recent talk by some UIO members to advertise the event was an experimental lesson in supreme intellectual decision-making. I honor them with a toast of brilliance. It was truly a lesson in "higher education."

What a learning experience! What about the Wall Street Journal? Sure, why not, let's pull all the stops. We'll hook up with the nouveau riche riding in the fast lane down South Illinois Ave. Let's provide an environment where they can spend some cash in backwoods Illinois, hell, it's probably our hard earned money anyway. Maybe this is what Bonzo had in mind all along—creative economics. Let's test it! All this talk we do not want to convey an impression the SIU is a "party school" is rather naive and ridiculous. Of course it is a "party school," just like any other university. What do you want, drones that eek out a regimented living that entails dinner at 5, two Pabst's at 6, and bedtime at 10? Let's be a little realistic. SIU will always be the "party school." That's right folks, this is the real world with all those real climbing tuition notices, real textbooks bills, real utility rate hikes, and my getting up at 5 a.m. to be at work at 6 a.m. to pay my real expenses. So, let's be real. It's money we all love, right? Economics and incentives and all that crap. Well, bring it all on I say. Let's utilize good ol' American, land of the free, home of the brave, capitalism to our advantage. Hell, we may even be generous and donate a percentage of the generated income to the football team.—Mike Bingham, Graduate student, Nutrition.

Accept responsibility if engaging in sex

Ann Elizabeth Wheeler's article on abortion produced a list of emotional arguments which contain as many holes of faulty logic as her emotional appeal is strong. However, since I'm a man, I don't suppose Ann will appreciate anything I have to say, because "women, not men, bear children." Men only "agonize over the issue." Oh well, just the same, here goes. Her first argument was slamming the "sense of morality which will force me to bear a child I don't want and cannot, emotionally or financially, afford." Oooh, you poor baby (excuse the pun)! She, then, stated that she is sickened by disregard of the issues which surround and underlie the basic one of abortion. Well, so am I. And so are other rational people who read and listen to such selfish and perverted propaganda. What a crying shame, that so many gullible people have been sucked into the polluted philosophies of humanism.

that it "must be considered within the framework of an ethos which promotes action without responsibility." However, this framework also extends into the adult world. What gives an adult or a teenager the right to enjoy sexual intercourse without being subject to a life that is conceived as a result of that action? This certainly isn't nature's way. If one is mature enough to engage in sexual relations, it only makes sense that they be willing to accept the inherent responsibility that comes as a result of their actions. It was asked in Ms. Wheeler's article, "If a woman has no right to choose whether she will or won't have an unwanted child, why should she have enough control over her own body to choose sexual partners? Where does one draw the line?" The line is drawn in one's own mind before sexual activity occurs. One must make a conscious choice before conception occurs. (You see, I'm pro-choice, too.) If a child is not wanted, then that girl and her sexual partner are responsible to avoid conception, through contraception or total abstinence. Although some birth control methods are best suited for each individual, there are relatively effective methods to guard against conception. However, far too often, sexual relations occur spontaneously, with disregard for the consequences that come as a natural result of this action. Therefore, unless one chooses to abstain from sex altogether, there will always be the chance that conception will occur. The real question concerning this issue is not, "Can there be with high moral standards force me to bear an unwanted child?" That is to negate one's responsibility for the consequences of their own actions (particularly where another human life is at stake). We all know how it really is, if we're honest.—Andy Gillespie, Senior, Speech Communication. Editor's Note: This letter was signed by 20 other people.

A plug for senate elections

"Student Senate silliness rides again" an editorial in the Oct. 23 Daily Egyptian tells us. The implication is that our Student Senate is merely a series of repeating farces. This is, of course, strictly a matter of opinion. It is additionally a matter of opinion about which each of the differing viewpoints could probably be made to seem at least somewhat sensible, with arguments presented in the proper fashion. I do not intend in this letter to join in any dispute about whether our senate is indeed a farce. Rather, I send out an appeal to my fellow students to act upon the information the Daily Egyptian has published. Toward this end, I plug the Student Senate elections, which are now quickly approaching. If the senate is in fact a silly farce, I suggest that it is about time somebody do something about it. If for one do not want a bunch of nitwits representing me and deciding how the fees I pay are spent? Perhaps you don't either. If, on the other hand, the majority of our senate consists of responsible, level-headed students, then we are dealing with a viable, constructive organization which deserves the support and participation of the students here. However one chooses to argue on the question of how worthwhile the senate is, one point remains clear on both sides of the issue. The senate must consist of responsible, level-headed students if it is to perform its job effectively and positively. All of the necessary information for those interested can be obtained in the Undergraduate Student Organization office on the third floor of the Student Center. A few initial forms are due back there Friday, Oct. 30. Petitions must be back in by Wednesday, Nov. 4. Let's agree on something. Whatever our opinions about some senate actions of the past, let's agree to do whatever we have to to see that the senate henceforth is not a farce, but a responsible representation of ourselves, the students.—Daniel J. Faust, Sophomore, Journalism.

Teen-ager's murder defense: 'The devil possessed his body'

By Scott Kraft
Associated Press Writer

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — The devil gets his day in court this week in a case authorities call "a routine murder" and the defense attorney calls a clear-cut case of demonic possession.

The case involves a husband-wife team of nationally known "demonologists," a 13-year-old boy some say is possessed by the devil, the efforts of Roman Catholic priests to rid the boy of the spirits and a curly haired teen-ager named Arne Cheyenne Johnson who challenged the demons to take him on.

That teen-ager, Arne Cheyenne Johnson, stands accused of murder and Martin Minnella, the defense attorney, plans to argue that the devil made him do it, literally.

The trial begins Wednesday in a tiny, second-floor courtroom here, and attorneys predict it could take up to two months to seat a jury because of detailed questions about spiritual beliefs Minnella is expected to ask prospective jurors.

Johnson, 19, has been in a Bridgeport jail in lieu of $125,000 bond since his arrest on charges in the Feb. 16 stabbing death of Alan Bono, 40-year-old manager of the Brookfield Kennel.

Minnella's defense is straightforward: that the devil possessed Johnson's body several times in the months before Bono's death and then again at the moment of the attack.

Minnella will first have to convince the jury there is such a thing as the devil and demonic possession. Secondly, he will have to convince jurors that, in his words, "this vile force or spirit manipulated my client's body and caused the ultimate demise" of Bono.

If allowed into court and if successful, the defense would be a landmark in U.S. law, legal experts say. But the decision to admit Minnella's evidence rests with Superior Court Judge Robert Callahan.

Minnella says he's confident Callahan will see things his way.

"The state must prove he had specific intent to murder Bono, and the defense is allowed to show any evidence that indicates he didn't have intent," Minnella said in an interview last week.

To Walter Flanagan, the state's attorney who will be prosecuting, the case is "a routine murder, insofar as homicide can be classified routine."

John Anderson, chief of police in Brookfield, a quiet town of 12,000 north of Danbury, said, "There's nothing in the crime itself to indicate it had anything to do with demons."

The stabbing occurred while Johnson and Bono were arguing over Johnson's girlfriend, Deborah Glatzel, 26, police said. Johnson and Miss Glatzel were living in an apartment next door to the kennel, and Miss Glatzel groomed dogs for Bono.

A acquaintances have described Johnson and Bono as "the best of friends."

Five months before the stabbing, Johnson was involved in efforts to rid Miss Glatzel's brother, David, then 11, of 42 demons, according to Ed and Lorraine Warren, self-styled experts on demons, who are expected to testify for the defense.

In tape recordings the Warrens say were made in the home, a voice identified as Johnson's can be heard challenging David's demons to "take me on. Control me. Leave this boy alone."

The Warrens claim the demons did just that.

Efforts to rid the boy of demons last fall included three minor exorcism rites performed by five Connecticut priests. The Diocese of Bridgeport acknowledges some involvement with David's problem but says it knows nothing of Johnson, said the Rev. Nicholas Grieco, a diocese spokesman. Bishop Walter Curtis has ordered the priests not to talk to reporters or attorneys about the case, Grieco said.

David now attends a special school for emotionally disturbed children. The Warrens say he is still possessed by demons. Minnella says Johnson has been "under attack" by demons while in jail but doesn't remember the attack on Bono.

Minnella said he plans to subpoena all five priests, including the Rev. Francis Virgulak, whom the bishop sent to investigate the Glatzel case last fall. "They'll have to talk to us in court," Minnella said.

Other Catholic priests are also on Minnella's witness list. He said he may even subpoena an exorcism expert, whom he declines to name, from the Vatican.

Minnella said one "benefit" of the trial could be that "people will realize there is a demonic spirit and will gravitate closer to the church and closer to God. "It certainly has brought me closer to God."

With testimony still weeks away, Minnella has concentrated on developing a profile of the ideal juror—Catholic, female, between 40 and 65 years old, a mother who has a child Johnson's age, a believer in both the existence of God and the devil.

"Our research has shown that a woman is more likely than a man to believe in demonic possession and to express those views," Minnella said.

Since the case and the unusual planned defense were first reported by The Associated Press, hundreds of newspapers and radio and television stations around the world have sent reporters to Connecticut. About 50 spectators can fit on the four oak benches in the 82-year-old courtroom, and Callahan has said seats will be first-come, first-served.

Police Chief Anderson, like others involved in the case, has received hundreds of letters and phone calls. A crucifix which arrived in the mail now hangs on the wall of his office.

"The day I levitate five feet off the floor is the day I'll believe," Anderson told a reporter. "But I figure, why push your luck?"

U.N. Day speaker blasts Cuba's policies

By Steve Moore
Staff Writer

The Cuban government was sharply criticized by Timothy C. Brown of the U.S. State Department in his United Nations Day address Monday night.

Brown, speaking to an audience of about 50 people in the Student Center Auditorium, called the Cuban revolution a failure. Brown is currently deputy coordinator for Cuban affairs in the State Department's Latin American Bureau. His specialty is economics.

Brown said he came to give an alternative view of Cuba. He said that, "through the power of positive propaganda, many Americans have an illusory view of Cuba as a model Third World socialist state."

According to Brown, many people persist in believing that Fidel Castro was just a "good" nationalist who turned bad in reaction to the policies of the "bad United States." Brown, who was a diplomat in Mexico at the time of the Cuban revolution, said, "I had no doubts that Castro was a Moscow-line, Marxist-Leninist from the start."

Brown's strongest criticisms were of Cuban foreign policy. Cuban "adventurism," he said, was exemplified by the sending of troops to Angola and Ethiopia and the support of leftists throughout South and Central America and the Caribbean.

"Castro must stop trying to impose by force what he cannot impose by force of logic or the ballot box," Brown said.

He cited economic and social statistics which he said supported his evaluation of the Cuban revolution as a failure.

According to Brown, Cuba before Castro was one of the most prosperous countries in Latin America, but since the revolution the Cuban economy has declined severely. Brown said that figures from the World Bank show that the Cuban gross national product grew at a negative annual rate of 1.2 percent between 1960 and 1978.

He also said that the Cuban foreign debt now equals 55 to 60 percent of its total GNP, while the average debt of other underdeveloped countries is around 25 percent of their GNPs.

Before the revolution the United States dominated two-thirds of Cuba's foreign trade, he said, and the country could compete in world markets. Now, the Soviet Union dominates two-thirds of Cuban trade, and Cuba can no longer compete favorably in world markets. Brown said.

Although industrial production has improved, Brown said that Cuba is dependent on massive subsidies from the Soviet Union to maintain its economy. He said that Cuban sugar, which normally costs 12 cents per pound on the world market, is bought by the Soviets for 49 cents per pound. Sugar makes up 80 percent of all Cuban exports.

The Soviets also subsidize the Cuban economy by selling oil to the country for only $12 per barrel, Brown said.

He also disputed Cuban Communist Party claims that land is distributed more fairly than before. He said that prior to Castro, 8 percent of the population owned 71 percent of the land. Now, according to Brown, 75 percent of the land is owned by the government, so farmers and peasants own less than before.

Brown said that efforts to provide Cubans with adequate housing have also failed because new construction has not kept pace with demand and because older facilities have deteriorated.

Even when Brown praised certain results of the revolution, he maintained his critical attitude. He said the Cuban literacy rate has improved from 72 percent to 96 percent of the population under communism. But, he added, "literacy itself can become a tool of oppression when more people can read, but only what the government allows them to."

He said that the distribution of wealth has also improved, but not nearly as much as the Communist Party has claimed.

Brown's lecture was sponsored by the Southern Illinois Chapter of the United Nations Association and the Expressive Arts Committee of the Student Programming Council. The U.N. Association sponsored a dinner for its members before the lecture as part of its celebration of U.N. Day, designated by the U.N. General Assembly each year to commemorate the founding of the organization Oct. 24, 1945.

Westminster Choir will perform

The Westminster Choir will perform as part of the Southern Illinois Celebrity Series at 7 p.m. Nov. 1 in Shryock Auditorium.

The 40-member, internationally recognized group consists of students from New Jersey's Westminster Choir College, which was founded by John Finley Williamson in 1920. The choir often represents the United States on its goodwill tours to other countries. It has appeared as chorus-in-residence since 1972 at the Spoleto Festival of Two Worlds in Italy.

The group performs Renaissance motets and madrigals, Romantic quartets, contemporary sacred and secular works, folk and popular songs.

Joseph Flummerfelt, director of choral activities at Westminster Choir College for the past 10 years, leads the choir. Leonard Bernstein once described him as "the greatest choral conductor in the world." Flummerfelt has trained choruses for many of the world's top symphony orchestra conductors.

Tickets for the concert are $9.50, $8.50 and $7.50. They may be purchased at the box office in Shryock Auditorium between 11:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. weekdays or one hour before curtain on the night of the show.

Tickets may also be obtained through mail order. A money order and a self-addressed, stamped envelope should be mailed to Shryock Auditorium, SIUC, Carbondale, Ill., 62901.

themselves with the competitiveness of the market before providing financial help to their industries.

"It is a failure of our politics," he said. "Increased tax breaks are inconsistent with Reagan's budgetary policy. Economic fundamentalism and its faith in the magic of the market are betrayed by the pattern of protectionism, bailouts and unproductive government intervention in industry which characterize the Reagan administration no less than Carter's. Today, more than one manufacturing worker out of five is employed in an industry that has an uncertain future—an industry that is losing out to competition from abroad."

The system does not promote $100 mink collar could be cure for snoring problems

CHICAGO (AP) — Does your wife snore, and snore, at the opera? Get her a snore squelcher.

It's a cervical collar covered with mink and rhinestones. And at a cost of $100, it could be a good Christmas gift for a woman who has everything, including whiplash.

Dr. J. Dewitt Fox, owner of Fox Medical Products in Los Angeles, says he developed the collar to treat headaches, neck pains and whiplash.

"But some patients told me it also kept them from snoring," he said Tuesday at his display booth of the American Surgical Trade Association show.

He said when they wear the collar to bed, it keeps their mouth closed and their neck straight, and a peaceful sleep is had by all.

"I've sold about 2,000 collars in a little more than a year," said Fox. "We have doctors buy them for their wives who snore or wives buy them for their husbands, but always a mate buys them for a mate, not for themselves. A person who snores never thinks he does, even when he is told he does."

Fox said his patented collars, which sell for $37.50 and up, are contoured for comfortable wear, "fitting the neck, chin and jaw better than any other cervical collar."

They also come in fashion shades.

industrial winners, he said, but "dictates intervention for industrial losers, ad hoc bailouts and disguised forms of trade protection and subsidies for inefficient producers."

Special tax breaks to industry totalled $70 million in 1980, Stevenson said, and the government issued $22 billion in loan guarantees and had $2 trillion in insurance outstanding.

The nation is a slave to "defunct" economic policies which don't get to the root of the competitive problems that U.S.

industries have, he said. The federal government is shifting the responsibility of transportation, waste disposal and water to the states and that forces up state and local taxes.

"The structure upon which development depends is eroded, especially in the Midwest, as resources are shifted to the weapons and fuel-producing states of the South and Southwest," he said. "States like Illinois are left with eroding tax bases, rising costs and a hostile bond market. It is a harsh environment for development."

'Practicing History' is initiation into the style of a fine historian

By Christopher Kade
Staff Writer

Ever since the publication of "The Guns of August," the historical writings of Barbara W. Tuchman have been eagerly awaited and lavishly reviewed.

She definitely has the Midas touch. "The Guns of August," an account of the battles and behind-the-scenes maneuverings of the first and decisive month of the Great War, won the Pulitzer Prize for History in 1962. "Stillwell and the American Experience in China"—more a history of the Sino-American relationship from 1911 through 1945 than a formal biography of the commanding American in the China Theatre, "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell—won the Pulitzer in 1971.

In addition, she has written on subjects as diverse as the American entry into World War I and the social and political milieu of 14th century Europe. The common denominator throughout and the factor that has made her one of the most widely read of modern historians is her ability to make history come alive on the printed page—a none-too-simple feat which she accomplishes through the use of well-paced narrative and intricate character development.

Her latest book, "Practicing History," is a collection of essays and addresses spanning the length of her writing career from the early 1930s to the present. It is a virtual primer on her research and writing techniques and more than adequately displays the writing style that has won her so much acclaim. But, in truth, it will probably appeal to only two groups of readers: the Tuch-

A Review

Practicing History. Selected Essays by Barbara W. Tuchman. Alfred A. Knopf: New York, 1981. 306p. $16.50

man devotees, who anxiously await anything she writes, and the history lovers, who may gain from this sampling the motivation to read the books that have made her famous.

The book is divided into three parts: "The Craft," "The Yield" and "Learning from History." The first deals with the actual writing of history—the techniques, the problems encountered, the opportunities to be found—and offers some sage advice gleaned from her own experience, including the need to rely on primary sources and sift the significant from the superfluous.

The second part presents a sampling of her writings, including a superb piece on the state of Israel in the days before the Six-Day War and an original piece of research for which she is justly proud, "If Mao Had Come to Washington"—based on government documents revealing the request by Mao Tse-tung to visit Roosevelt in January 1945. The request was never answered—much to the detriment of the subsequent Sino-American relationship.

The final section includes essays on history as a guide to the future, generalship and Watergate. It also includes an essay, written during the 1976 Bicentennial celebration, on how far we have come—mostly for the worse—since the Founding Fathers. But it finishes with a passage which begs to be reprinted in its entirety:

"The United States has slid a long way from the original idea. Nevertheless, somewhere between Gulag Archipelago and the featherbed of cradle-to-grave welfare, it still offers a greater opportunity for social happiness—that is to say, for well-being combined with individual freedom and initiative—than is likely elsewhere. The ideal society for which mankind has been striving through the ages will remain forever beyond our grasp. But if the great question, whether it is still possible to reconcile democracy with social order and individual liberty, is to find a positive answer, it will be here."

That is as fine an example of Barbara Tuchman's writing style as one is likely to find, but it is only one small nugget taken from a life's work that is a virtual gold mine to those who are entranced with the flow of mankind's history and the lessons to be learned from it.

This particular book is a fine introduction to Barbara Tuchman, but she would probably agree that it would be a wasted effort if it did not lead the reader to pursue the subjects that she and many others have written about in much greater detail.

Ex-teacher shares experience

By Kathy Kamienski
Staff Writer

Ralph Tyler may have been a teacher for 60 years, but when he stopped for a cup of coffee with some 40 graduate education majors Tuesday, he warned them that reform and improvement in education must come from them.

Tyler, although he says he is retired, is still lecturing all over the country and outside of it, drawing from his lengthy experience as a researcher and consultant in instruction, teaching, learning, curriculum and evaluating education.

He visited SIU-C to deliver the Glenn "Abe" Martin Lecture, but also shared some insights with graduate students. He told them not to be too worried when they hear that education is on a downhill slide.

"The same type of talk was prevalent in the 1930s during the worst of the Depression," Tyler said. "We were facing the demise of the public school system then, or so people thought."

But our society today requires more education, he added. Historically, Tyler said, reform in education has occurred during times of austerity. Those were times similar to the budget-cutting activity that's on the increase now.

Tyler said one of the benefits of times with less money is "we begin to look at what we really need. Reforms take place when you no longer spend time to chase money."

The problems in education today suggest the need for reform as well as the kind of issues today's educators will be involved in during the next 10 to 15 years, he said.

Some of those reforms will involve realizing that 20 percent of the students will be those with learning difficulties and finding ways to deal with them, Tyler said.

"You can't force a kid to learn something he doesn't want to, but you can, bit by bit, widen his areas of interest," Tyler said.

Parents are charged in kid porn case

BATAVIA (AP) - Parents used their three young children "and at least 50 other kids" to pose for their pornographic photo business, say authorities who confiscated more than 1,500 explicit pictures.

Undercover police with search warrants Monday night raided a mushroom factory at Elburn, where a darkroom for developing pictures had been set up; a studio with various props in Batavia, and the family's home at Maple Park. The sites are about 40 miles west of Chicago.

David Kummer, 37, was charged with two counts of taking indecent liberties with children, one count of child pornography and one count of contributing to the neglect of a child. His wife, Gail, 35, was charged with cruelty to children and contributing to the neglect of a child.

The couple's children—two girls, 4 and 8 years old, and a 9-year-old boy—were turned over to the Department of Children and Family Services.

Police Chief F.S. Reed said Kummer worked at the mushroom plant and apparently belonged to several nudist camps.

"He and his wife had been operating the business for at least two years," said Reed. "Not only were they using their children but we got photos of at least 50 other kids, none over 10 years old, who we believe were obtained from nudist camps. We have signed papers from parents giving their consent to use their kids in various nude poses."

Authorities said about 600 photos were confiscated at the studio along with various props and colored backdrops.

Two students still hospitalized after Friday's collision

Two SIUC students remain hospitalized at St. John's Mercy Medical Center in St. Louis with serious burns suffered when their car was struck from behind at a traffic light by a semi-trailer truck Friday at Illinois 13 and Reed Station Road.

Boni Hastings, 18, was listed in critical condition in the intensive care burn unit suffering from third-degree burns over 47 percent of her body, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Deborah Goddard, 20, was listed in serious condition with second-degree burns in the intensive care unit.

Both women were passengers. The driver of the car and another passenger were released from Carbondale's Memorial Hospital earlier this week.

Tickets to be sold for King Crimson limited view seats

There will be limited view tickets on sale for the King Crimson Concert, scheduled for 8 p.m. Nov. 11 at Shroyck Auditorium, Thursday at the Student Center ticket office.

The 54 tickets that are left will allow concert-goers to see only part of the stage. There will be a diagram to show customers where their seats are located. Tickets are $6 and will be on sale from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Weekend trash to be recycled

The Student Environmental Center will operate one and possibly two recycling booths for bottles and aluminum cans Saturday night during the Halloween celebration.

One booth will be located in the First National Bank and Trust Co. parking lot on Illinois Avenue between Cherry and College streets, according to Joe Proffitt of the SEC.

A second booth may be located in the parking lot of the new Amtrak train station if the railroad's management approves, Proffitt said.

People can throw their bottles and cans into bins that will be set up near The Strip, he said.

The cans and bottles collected will be sold, and the proceeds will be donated to the Illinois Environmental Council, Proffitt said.

The booths will be operating from about 7:30 p.m. to 2:30 a.m., and will be manned by volunteers from the SEC and the Student Senate.

The SEC collected about $50 by selling 150 pounds of aluminum, 2.5 tons of glass and 200 pounds of newspaper collected during Clean-up Day, Proffitt said.

GSC to hear appeal for fee increase Center Board report has said. Also at the meeting, John Jackson, acting dean of the Graduate School, and Dennis Leitner, associate dean of the Graduate School, will give a presentation on cancellation waivers for graduate assistants.

Jackson said Tuesday that he and Leitner are still examining data on the number of students using cancellation waivers and haven't decided whether they will support continuing or eliminating the waiver privilege in their presentation.

The cancellation waiver process allows graduate students to defer paying tuition and fees to a later date while waiting to receive their paychecks, Leitner said.

Cancellation waivers are a convenience to graduate students on state money, Jackson said, but they inundate the Graduate School with the paperwork needed to process them each fall semester.

The GSC will probably reaffirm its stand opposing elimination of cancellation waivers at the meeting, Brown said.

Brown said the first installment on tuition and fees is due before a graduate assistant receives his first paycheck.

The GSC will also reaffirm its opposition to a proposed $6.60 bond revenue fee increase and will give a presentation to President Albert Somit acknowledging him for sanctioning the student athletics fee referendum, Brown said.

The bond revenue fee increase is a back door tuition increase, and students shouldn't have to subsidize University housing," Brown said.

John Corker, director of the Student Center, will seek support for a proposed $8 Student Center fee increase from the Graduate Student Council at the council's meeting Wednesday.

The meeting, at 7:30 p.m. in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center, will include a presentation on cancellation waivers, Debbie Brown, GSC president, said.

Brown said that after Corker's presentation she will ask the council to make a motion favoring or opposing the Student Center fee increase. A vote will probably not be taken until the council's Nov. 11 meeting, however, to give members time to see how their constituencies feel about the increase, Brown said.

The fee increase is needed to offset an expected deficit of $26,827, which will occur if the fee remains at $24, a Student intermittent all day Monday, and the National Weather Service said a storm front would move through the New York area in full force Tuesday night.

Wednesday's forecast called for clouds and a 20 percent chance of rain.

Tuesday night's game would have been played on the latest date of the year ever for a World Series. The 1911 World Series, won in six games by the Philadelphia Athletics over the New York Giants, ended on Oct. 26 after a week of rain.

If the 1981 World Series is completed without further rain, it will end on Oct. 28 or 29.

The front line for baseball's Fall War of 1981 moved about 3,000 miles east after three Los Angeles victories at Dodger Stadium. The wounded included Yankees boss George Steinbrenner and Ron Cey, the Dodgers third baseman.

Sunday night, after New York had lost its third straight game at Dodger Stadium, Steinbrenner, the Yankees owner, got into a fight in an elevator in his hotel with two young men whom he said made derogatory remarks about his team.

Steinbrenner sustained a possible broken left hand from a punch he said he threw, and he said he was hit in the head by a beer bottle one of the men held. He knocked out three of one of the men's teeth and knocked both of them down, Steinbrenner said.

Cey, meanwhile, was expected to start Game Six after being hit on the helmet with a pitch from Yankees reliever Rich Gossage in the eighth inning of Sunday's fifth game, a 2-1 Dodgers victory.

Cey sustained a slight concussion and did not travel with the team to New York Sunday night. Instead, his head was X-rayed, and he spent the night with his family before flying to New York Monday morning.

Both sides ruled out the possibility that Gossage had thrown at Cey, and there appeared to be little chance of repercussion.

"If he didn't have a helmet on, he might be dead," Gossage said after the game. "It hit him so solid, like a hollow log or something. My coordination was off today. I really didn't know where the ball was going."

Women's Frisbee club beats Illinois at Purdue

Divine Wind, SIU-C's women's Ultimate Frisbee Club has only been in existence for six weeks, but it has qualified for regional play Oct. 31.

At the Purdue sectional, Divine Wind beat Illinois 6-5 in quadruple overtime, improved its record to 5-2 and gained a berth to regional play.

"It was a hard game," said Sheryl Hirschbein, team captain. "We kept tying the score. In the last two minutes of the fourth overtime we took the lead and held on. It really felt good to win that one."

Hirschbein said the steady play of Michele Blanchette and Gayle Krueger kept Divine Wind in the game.

"Michele plays heavy duty defense," Hirschbein said. "She's a good jumper and a good disc handler. She also has a good throwing arm and is a real asset to the team."

"Gayle hustles down to the goal and eludes defenders with quick cuts and stays open for a pass," she said.

Hirschbein said she is looking forward to the regional tournament and said the club will probably face teams from St. Louis, Springfield, Mo. and Michigan.

 We go on trips and eat breakfast at Wendy's or McDonald's. I'm always annoyed when we go to a good restaurant and my teammates order hamburger's." Molinari laughed.

But the American tennis courts may have been harder to just to than the food. In Eden, the outdoor courts are made of red clay and the indoor courts are carpeted. The courts in the states are made of a synthetic surface which causes the ball to move faster than the other surfaces.

"She was frustrated because she was used to playing on power courts," Auld said. "The surface threw her timing off. I realized she would have problems, but in time her game turned around."

The difference in court surfaces disturbed Molinari at first.

"I felt like I was playing worse than when I was 10-years-old," Molinari said. "I felt uncomfortable with most of my shots. My backhand has always been my second shot and my forehand has always been good. In the beginning they both were bad, but it came around."

"When I played my first match I decided to go out and hit with the means I had," she said. "Even if I dropped dead out there, I just wanted to go out and win."

Winning is the reward that keeps Molinari striving to improve her skills. Keeping a positive attitude is important too.

"The word failure doesn't exist in my vocabulary," she said. "I don't think you ever fail if you do your best."

Hartzog aware of stiff opposition at MVC meet

By Doug Applebaugh
Staff Writer

A week-and-a-half ago, when the men's cross country team edged rival Illinois in the state championships at Normal, Coach Lew Hartzog's attention was taken off this weekend's upcoming Missouri Valley Conference championships.

But now, with the conference meet breathing down his neck, Hartzog can't help but think about it. And his thoughts aren't all positive.

"We have some problems," he said, referring to the favorite at the conference meet, which will be held Saturday at Indiana State in Terre Haute, Ind.

Wichita State, which last year finished second behind Hartzog's crew at the MVC championships, has improved. On Oct. 16 the Shockers finished second in the highly prestigious Arkansas Razorback Invitational, defeating talented Iowa State by 33 points—a feat that both impresses and worries Hartzog.

"They are awfully tough," he said. "They have to be the favorite, because when you beat Iowa State, with all the natural talent that team has, you've got to consider them.

George Collier, who last year ran in the third or fourth spots for the Shockers, now is their No. 1 runner, according to Hartzog. He placed seventh at the hazorbak invitational with an impressive 24:21 time on a hilly five-mile course. And he has been the team leader throughout the season.

"Collier is a super runner, and he just keeps running ahead of everybody," said Hartzog.

Keeping stride with Collier is Alan Reimer, who holds Wichita State's second position. Reimer placed 10th at the Arkansas meet and has consistently managed to finish second to Collier throughout the season.

Full-Tilt captures first at Frisbee sectional

By Keith Mascitti
Staff Writer

Full-Tilt, SIU-C's Ultimate Frisbee Club, has advanced to regional play by winning the Purdue sectional tournament at West Lafayette, Ind.

Full-Tilt won the 11-team tournament by defeating Ball State in the opening match 12-5, then dumped the University of Chicago in the second round by a 14-5 score.

In the second day of competition, SIU-C beat Ball State again 19-10, and defeated Purdue 19-7 to advance to the final.

In the championship game, Full-Tilt trounced Earlham, 18-8, for the sectional title. The win upped the club's record to 12-3.

SIU-C will travel to St. Louis this weekend to compete in regional play. Club president, Gene Treacy, said the team has a good chance of making it to the semifinal round were anything can happen.

"I'm very optimistic we'll make it to the semifinal round," Treacy said. "Once you get to the semifinals of regional play everyone has an equal shot. It's a matter of who is on their game that day."

The winner of the regional will travel to Austin, Texas Nov. 27 to compete in the national competition. The top five teams in the country will battle to be the best in the nation.

Series Game Six postponed

NEW YORK (AP) — The sixth game of the 1981 World Series was postponed by rain Tuesday with the Los Angeles Dodgers leading the New York Yankees 3-2 in the best-of-seven set.

Game Six will be played Wednesday night at Yankee Stadium with a seventh game, if necessary, on Thursday night.

The baseball commissioner's office announced the postponement at 3:45 p.m. EST Tuesday. The game had been scheduled to be played at 8:20 p.m., but with intermittent rain during the day and the threat of heavy rain at night, the game was postponed.

The last World Series game postponed by rain was Game One of the 1979 classic between the Baltimore Orioles and Pittsburgh Pirates. That Series opened in Baltimore.

It began to rain in New York Sunday evening and rained most of the night and into Monday. Showers were in-

Molinari taught confidence, coolness on Sweden's courts

By Keith Mascitti
Staff Writer

Stockholm, Sweden and Carbondale are oceans apart, but they both have been a part of Alessandra Molinari's tennis career.

Molinari is an 18-year-old freshman who came to SIU-C via Sweden, and played a vital role in turning the women's tennis team around. Her powerful forehand slams and developing backhand shots helped her compile a 12-4 singles record in the No. 3 spot.

Not only is her physical game good, but, according to Saluki Coach Judy Auld, Molinari is one of the most determined players Auld has ever seen—a player who will stay out as long as it takes to win. She also has a lot of confidence in herself, Auld said.

"She knows she's good," Auld said. "But there is a big difference between being cocky and confident. It's not that she is saying that she's unbeatable, she has the confidence to go out on the court and win. You can't give that to a player. Either they have it or they don't."

Playing in the upper part of the lineup as a freshman could shake the confidence of many young players. Pressure to perform and nervous stress can cause a young athlete to perform below her ability. According to Molinari, pressure and nerves have never hampered her game.

"It's not my nature to get nervous," said Molinari, her Swedish accent very obvious. "I've never been nervous for a match. The coach put me in that spot, if she has confidence in me, I have confidence.

"I don't feel pressure," she said. "If I do well I might move up in the lineup, if I lose I might move down. But moving down might be good for the team if I win more matches. I'm playing for the team, not myself."

Auld illustrated Molinari's sincere team feelings by pointing out that she played most of this season with a nagging ankle injury.

"The injury effected her mobility," Auld said. "She played in pain, but she realized if she didn't play it would effect the team."

Molinari's cool style of play may be attributed in part to her coach in Sweden, Percy Rosberg—the man who tutored Bjorn Borg and helped Molinari to be ranked the No. 7 women's player in Sweden.

Molinari said Rosberg asked her to try out for his tennis club when she was 13-years-old. She made the club, played a lot of tennis with him and valued his word highly.

Molinari has had to make some adjustments though. From American tennis courts to American food, she has been able to adapt.

She still teases teammates about their eating habits on Women ruggers named all-stars

Six players from the SIU-C Women's Rugby Club have been named to the Illinois Select Side team.

Barb Cavato, Karen Paquin, Beth Beyerl, Jean Dusbabon, Chris Lupica and rookie Maria Erikson were named to the all-star squad following tryouts held in Chicago over the weekend. Lupica will not play for the team due to prior commitments.

Cavato and Paquin were named to the Midwest Select Side team at a tryout the same weekend.

The SIU-C ruggers defeated the City of Evansville Club 12-4 Sunday, despite the absence of six players attending the select tryouts and an early-match injury to Nora McKilligan.

Mary Ellen Corrigan, Lupica and Carol Brinkman all scored points for SIU-C.

The SIU-C record is 7-2. The team will compete in the All Illinois tournament Nov. 7 through 9.
