6 sexual assaults reported in fall term

By Dean Weaver
Senior Reporter

A total of six women have reported they were sexually assaulted since the beginning of the fall semester. Six assailants were arrested, and Campus Police and the Carbondale Police Department have reported 17 sexual assaults in 1994, 18 last year and 33 in 1992. The Carbondale Police Department has reported 17 sexual assaults in 1994, 18 last year and 33 in 1992.

Of the six cases reported this school year, an arrest has been made in at least one of them. Since the report, Campus Police investigate any report of sexual assault that occurs on SIUC property. Crimes that occur off-campus are turned over to the Carbondale Police Department.

AMERICAN TROOPS FACE AIDS RISK IN HAITI
American troops sent to Haitis last month to help prevent the spread of HIV have been strongly warned about the disease, which is widespread. The U.S. military estimates that up to 70 percent of Haitian prostitutes are HIV infected. About 8 percent of young Haitian females, ages 15 to 24, are also thought to be infected.

HONG KONG REAL ESTATE COSTS SKYROCKET
HONG KONG—In the unreal world of Hong Kong real estate, prices for everything from offices to parking spaces are now among the world's most expensive. Monthly apartment rents in the city are not uncommon, while lucky owners of apartments have seen their small down payments balloon into multimillion-dollar fortunes. Underlying the high prices is a tremendous demand from foreign and local investors, the colony, hoping to cash in on the boom next door in China, combined with a shortage of land in Hong Kong's crowded territories, the most densely populated in the world.

OFFICIAL FOUND NOT GUILTY OF TAKING BRIBE—
TOKYO—The battle against corruption in Japan suffered a major setback Tuesday as former chief Cabinet secretary Takanori Fujimaki was found not guilty of accepting a bribe—despite having received more than $400,000 in funds from a favor-seeking businessman. It was the first verdict involving a politician in the infamous stocks-for-favors Recruit scandal of 1988-8882, which sparked the resignation of Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita and tarnished every leader of the then-ruling Liberal Democratic Party.

ABUSED MOTHERS DELIVER SMALLER BABIES—
Women who have physically abused their children are more likely to deliver a low-birthweight baby than women who are not battered, a three-year study of more than 1,200 women treated at public clinics shows. The study in Baltimore and Houston was carried out by researchers from the University of Virginia, Texas Women's University and the University of Maryland, found that one in five teenagers and one in six adult women said that they were abused while pregnant. Abused women were more likely to seek prenatal care later—after the sixth month of pregnancy—and to report the pregnancy—than nonabused women. Abused women had a higher percentage of non-viable births, and the babies were more likely to die in the first month of life. Abused women were also more likely to deliver a baby less than 5.5 pounds.

FORD HELPS JAGUAR PROWL INTO BLACK INK—
Rumors of profit have replaced rumors of demise at Jaguar Cars Inc., the British luxury automaker that was prestigious but practically broke when Ford Motor Co. took it over five years ago. The company, which had been losing money, is now making money, thanks to a turnaround that was engineered by Sanjay Jeyaraj. The turnaround, which has been aided by a strong US. dollar, has helped Jaguar gain ground in quality ratings, rivaling Mercedes-Benz, BMW and Volvo. A Jaguar success would be a big plus for Ford, which bought the British luxury automaker for $2.5 billion in 1989. Ford has since sunk another $1.5 billion into Jaguar to make it profitable.

BUYOUTS BYPASS LOWER-LEVEL EMPLOYEES—
WASHINGTON—Many lower-paid, long-time federal employees would like to get one of the 50,000 retirement buyouts that agencies will begin offering next week. But in most cases workers making less than $35,000 a year will be bypassed. A little change in the law could mean the difference of hundreds of thousands of workers with the least seniority—who most likely to be fired as the government reduces its workforce. But the buyouts are appealing to tens of thousands of lower-grade employees who would love to leave and save the job of a younger colleague.

Environmental studies offers new minor

By Aaron Butler
Staff Reporter

Environmentalists seem to be educated on subjects the rest of us know little about, but all that could change if students take interest in the new environmental studies program offered by the SIUC Department of Zoology. George Feldhamer, the program coordinator who holds a doctorate in zoology, said the environmental studies program has been in the works for quite a while.

"There have been efforts to get something of this kind going for more than 25 years," he said.

"Things really began to come together two years ago, and since February I have been meeting with an advisory committee coming up with specific policies and procedures."

The program offers a minor to students in all departments, providing a basic understanding of environmental issues, refining students' values, and to prepare students to translate those values into practical actions in a wide variety of career fields.

Feldhamer said one of the three core courses students will be required to take is scheduled to be offered in the spring of 1995, and the others are currently available.

"Interdisciplinary Approaches to Environmental Issues will probably be available in the spring," he said.

"For this course we will have teams of students looking at local and regional issues, not just from a scientific point of view, but also studying the social and political questions."

"For example, here in our area we have the Crab Orchard Incinerator and the logging in Shawnee Forest," he said.

"If there were easy answers to these problems, we wouldn't be talking about them, they would be solved."
State tuition freeze could cool increases

WHETHER IT IS POLITICAL OR NOT, ILLINOIS State Comptroller Dawn Clark Netsch’s proposal to freeze undergraduate tuition at state universities and colleges should be considered by legislators and Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar.

The tuition freeze, proposed for only fiscal year 1996, would keep next year’s tuition costs at today’s figures. One of the main ideas behind the tuition freeze would be to level out inflationary costs which increases tuition on an almost annual basis. The freeze also would take power away from the governing boards of the state universities and colleges.

This novel idea has come at an opportune time as the SIU Board of Trustees will be considering a 3.5 percent tuition hike at the next meeting for next year. The hike would include undergraduate and graduate costs. The board also will consider a 14.9-percent increase for law students, a 16-percent increase for dental medicine students, and a 16.9 percent increase for medical school students.

THE INSUFFICIENT AMOUNT OF STATE MONEY spent on higher education has caused universities to increase tuition in order to maintain the quality of programs and rising inflation. According to officials, tuition at the 10 state universities has increased 34 percent and 30 percent at state colleges since fiscal year 1990. Every year as the new fiscal year unfolds and Illinois legislators vote on an annual budget, University officials worry about how much funding SIU will receive. For next year, SIU has already requested $219 million from the state—a 6.29 percent increase from this year.

Under this freeze, the state would have to come up with $10 million from the natural revenue growth to repay universities for lost tuition. The proposal’s opposition says the money is not there, while Netsch’s team says the plan could be paid from the projected revenue growth of at least $100 million. The fund growth would come from an increase in generated income and sale taxes. But if this growth does not occur, the universities would be forced to make specific cutbacks to support the lost funds.

As it stands right now, higher education funding competes with a variety of programs in the general revenue fund. In this fund, higher education competes with other programs such as secondary and elementary education. Under the tuition freeze proposal, secondary and elementary education would be taken out of the general revenue fund and be separated from higher education funding. So doing so, higher education funding would increase by not competing with K-12 funding.

THE MAIN CONCERN OF THIS PROPOSAL is affordability. An affordable quality education is what college students around the nation are searching for. Currently, the Illinois Board of Higher Education is studying the affordability of higher education in the state. This freeze proposal is realistic enough to fund at least a higher education fund would give overburdened undergraduates a small break while putting more responsibility on the state to increase higher education funding thus making tuition more affordable.
Laws protect threatened species

By Diane Dove

Carbondale landlords might soon retain copies of amphibians or reptiles as pets, but unknowingly, these pet owners could be in violation of state laws aimed at protecting endangered species.

The Illinois Endangered Species Protection Board has identified 17.5 percent of reptile and amphibian species in the state are endangered or threatened. Many of these species are further threatened by poachers, commercial traders and unwary civilians, according to officials from the Illinois Department of Conservation.

Speaking at a meeting of the SIU Wildlife Society in Lawson Hall Thursday night, Scott Ballard, a natural history biologist for IDOC, said nine of the 122 species of reptiles and amphibians in Illinois are endangered at the state level.

"Many of the state's threatened or endangered species, such as the river cooter turtle, are often sold illegally in pet shops," Ballard said. "If an animal is endangered or threatened, it is illegal for anyone to sell them," he said. "But they may not know that they're doing it illegal and probably most of them don't.'"

Ballard said it is also against Illinois law to sell venomous snakes, unless under four inches long, or members of the crocodilian family.

"People who want to adopt an exotic pet should do some research on pet care and make sure the animal is not at state or federally protected Ballard said.

But Ballard said people should not try to make pets of wild animals because the creatures are best left in their natural habitats.

"They're doing just fine (on their own)," he said. "They don't need your help to live in the wild."

Graduate council to vote on resolution

Bill provides help for students filing official complaints

By Marc Chase
Senior Reporter

After a delay to study the terminology of a resolution that could create graduate advisors for students who have an official complaint to file against the University, the Graduate and Professional Student Council is scheduled to vote on the bill tonight.

The resolution, which originally was proposed to the council earlier this month, calls for the training of graduate students to be counselors for students who are filing a grievance against SIUC. GPSC President Patrick Smith said the council tabled the resolution, which was supposed to be voted on Sept. 15, because of disagreement in the bill's wording.

The council appointed a committee to study the resolution's language. According to the resolution, the advisors would serve as "advocates" for students who seek help in filing grievances.

Jason Matthews, GPSC vice president for administrative affairs, said some council representatives thought "advocate" implied that advisors would speak on behalf of students before grievance review boards, much like a lawyer speaks for a client in court.

He said some representatives feared this would make the advisors legally liable for how they represented students who filed grievances.

The SIUC Ombudsman, a University service that serves to inform students of their rights in the institution, already has approved the legal wording of the bill, Matthews said.

He said he expects the representatives' fears to be alleviated by the Ombudsman's approval.

Smith said Tuesday he believes the finding of the GPSC committee that studied the resolution will uncover no legal mistakes in the wording.

"I have little doubt that GPSC will pass the resolution tomorrow night," Smith said. "It is just a matter of clearing up some minor concerns.

Susan Hall, former GPSC president, who has served on grievance boards to hear students' complaints, said the resolution would be beneficial to students navigating through the formal process of filing a grievance.

"Students should have someone on their side," Hall said.

Plaff also said credit from one field of study may not be applicable to another. An example would be someone with credits in agriculture classes transferring into business, he said.

The board developed the curriculums so students with between 37 and 41 hours of class credit can transfer without problems.

Someone who takes a basic class, such as math, science, communications, social science or humanities, the school will be able to transfer those classes for equivalent credit at another.

"As long as it stays in the 40 to 45 hour range, we'd be okay," he said. "If there are too many hours, it could cut down on the flexibility."

When put into effect, the plan will make Illinois one of the few states, including California, Virginia, Missouri and Arizona, that have college transfer agreements.

Many community colleges in Illinois already have compact agreements with the major in-state universities. The compact agreements allow students who earn an associate's degree in liberal arts or science to transfer all credit to a four-year school without problems.

Plaff said SIU has recognized compact agreements since the mid-1960's and the school also accepts transfers with an associate's in applied science degree under the Cappone program.

Plaff said another program SIU offers that helps transfer students is the two-plus-two program. SIU works in conjunction with state community colleges to advise incoming freshmen of what classes to take if they plan to transfer to SIU.

Sue Wells, dean of Student Services at Wood Lake Community College said the two-plus-two program has worked well to build the relationship between the college and SIU.

"We do have a good relationship with the in-state schools, but we probably have the best relationship with SIU," she said.

John A. Logan College has a compact agreement with state schools and has worked well with SIU, Mees said.

"We've had an excellent relationship with SIU," he said. "This will help to meet the needs of the students."

Under the new rules the compact agreements already established between schools will not be eliminated — just re-written, Bragg said.

The plan for the core curriculum was devised over the past two years by a panel of 123 teachers and administrators from 40 community colleges, the public universities, and 14 private colleges and universities.

Wells said the state made a real good effort to satisfy all parties involved and at the same time look out for students' welfare.

The move could add to the enrollment of community colleges, but Wells noted that cutbacks probably will not change much, because most of the current students plan to transfer eventually anyway.

"There are still certain guidelines students will have to meet," she said. "Most of our students do transfer to SIU."

In most cases students attend community college because of the cost. In Illinois, 12 hours of class credit usually costs under $500 at a community college.

Plaff said one pitfall of having a standardized curriculum may be the loss of the unique qualities each school has to offer.

"With the different philosophies from different institutions, you may take some of the creativity out of the students' ability to get educated. But I also don't think there will ever be a strictly uniform curriculum," he said.

Bragg said the plan will not limit creativity, because the schools will be running their own general education programs.

The in-state schools will continue to work with the Illinois Board of Higher Education over the next year to iron out the plan, Mees said.
Dorms become expressions of individuality

By Stephanie Poizetti

When students move from their spacious house or apartment to a shoe-box styled dorm room, which they more often than not share with another student, there may seem few ways to turn that limited space into "home." Even students, however, students come up with innovative and often inexpensive ways to put their own personality and style into the room.

Stephen Kirk, assistant director of University Housing, said regulations for decorating residence hall rooms is spelled out in the residence hall guide book, which is a part of students' housing contract.

Students are not allowed to put nails and screws into the walls or anything else damaging to the room. "Basically, at the end of the year, the room must be in the same shape as it was when they moved in except for the normal wear and tear," Kirk said.

Rooms at Thompson Point are 12 feet by 19 feet and rooms on the east side of campus, including University Park and Brush Towers, are 17 feet by 14 feet, making rooms feel cozy, but spacious may be difficult.

Kirk said there is no "norm" to students decorating rooms. However, beds, which provide more space and posters are very common among dorm room residents.

"There are all kinds of creative things students do to make their room better suit themselves," Kirk said.

Ben Holland, a senior in radio and television from Franklin, has lived in the same room at Thompson Point for four years and three of the past four, he has painted an animated mural on his window.

This year's decal is a scene from Disney's "Lady and the Tramp." In the past years he has painted "Beauty and the Beast," "Beavis and Butthead," and "Aladdin." Kirk said there is no "norm" to students decorating rooms. Whatever he paints, which provide more space and posters are very common among dorm room residents.

"I just like animation," Holland said. "At one time I thought of being a cartoonist." Holland said painting is relatively inexpensive. He uses a black outline pen and liquid tempera paints. He buys a few colors and mixes to get the variety displayed on his window.

He began by drawing a grid on his window and a grid on a photocopy of the Disney scene. Then matched the two, see page 12.

Maximizing room space and decorating in an individual way seem to be great student concerns, but bare brick walls can dampen any mood and because closets are small, storage boxes are a necessity. Bening said boxes can be decorated with wallpaper to match comforters and other furnishings and if they are sturdy enough, they can be used as foot stools.

She said students may want to put a glass top or wood cover over decorated storage boxes to transform them into office tables.

Herrin artist-snuggles up with quilting
By Aleksandra Macys
Senior Reporter

Snuggling up under grandma’s quilt brings back feelings of warmth and comfort. And the local artist makes those feelings come to life with the quilts she makes.

JoAnna Johnson, co-owner of The Cottage Quilt Shop, 1221 S. 16th St. in Herrin, will shop be demonstrating at the Arts in Celebration Festival this weekend. She said she is excited not only because she will be among the other demonstrating artists, but also to help people understand what quilting is an art form and not just a craft.

Although this is the first time Johnson will be demonstrating her skills, she has been doing it for more than seven years by teaching others.

Johnson teaches classes in hand-piecing and machine-piecing quilts. Classes are offered at various times throughout the week.

At the festival, Johnson said she will be demonstrating how to make quilt pieces using a rotary cutter instead of scissors, a process that she said won the cutting time in half.

“Using scissors to cut is a long process where you have to trace each pattern individually,” she said. “When you use the template (instead of scissors) there is no marking time and it goes on wear and tear on the hands.”

Johnson said the time involved in making a quilt depends on the technique used and the size and purpose of the quilt. She said hand piecing and cutting can take up to one year, while machine piecing and cutting, the technique she will be demonstrating at the festival, can take up to one month.

Johnson said her shop sometimes makes custom quilts, but she mainly makes samples to inspire other people to make their own.

The Cottage Quilt Shop is open from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday with extended hours to 8 p.m. on Thursday.

Arts in Celebration will be held Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday noon to 5 p.m. at Evergreen Terrace on Pleasant Hill Road. Admission is $2 for adults.

In the corner of Giant City Road and Route 13, said throw rugs are one of the store's most popular items, along with pins and popular chairs. Cushions for the chairs come in many prints and solids. She said students look for unique decorations to dress up their small quarters.

"Anything Art Deco, like posters, pots and various candles add to rooms and take up little space," she said.

Bening said an unusual way to save space and hang hats or lightweight objects is to use adhesive hook hangers. Baskets and hard plastic storage bins are popular ways to hide away clothing, but students shop her son's store because of the reasonable prices and delivery fee. Brewer said her son goes to auctions and buys furniture and brings it back to the store. Although the merchandise fluctuates, desks, tables, chairs, lamps and a few ceramics are offered within the walls of the family-owned store.

SIUC's Debate Team director is excited about this year's debate season and as his team stood strong against some of the best teams in the nation. The team traveled to Namie, South Carolina. Even though SIUC did well, Greg Simely, the team's first year director, said he thinks the team has the ability to do even better in future debates.

"I'm pleased to get to the quarterfinals of a national tournament," Simely said. "I'm new to each team and three of the six debaters are new. It's a big accomplishment because we are new to each other."

With quality performances from Ken Rhude, a senior in speech and debate, and Ashley Frappier, a junior in political science, the improve this weekend in Murfreesboro, Tennessee for the semifinals.

"I'm pleased to get to the quarterfinals before losing to top seeded Michigan State by a unanimous decision at the 30-team-University of South Carolina's Chrisopher DeBakre Debates which took place last weekend."

The Salukis will attempt to improve this weekend in Murfreesboro, Tennessee for the Blue Raider. Debate Simely said the competition at this weekend's tournament will not be as stiff as it was in South Carolina, so Simely is setting his sights high.

"We have a good chance to win," Simely said. "Our goal is to get to the semifinals."

This semester's debate topic is punishment for people who commit violent crimes. Last weekend was highlighted when Rhude and Frappier defeated eighth-seeded Cornell University in a two-one decision in the sudden-death elimination rounds. The pair was victorious in five of the seven preliminary debates. Pappier, who transferred from the University of Houston to join SIUC's debate team, finished one point away from placing in the top ten of eighty-eight individual debaters.

by an acquaintance. After therapy, she began to compose the songs which would later become "Little Earthquakes."

Now 31, Amos still looks to her strict religious upbringing and sexual assault as fodder in her musical cannons.

"If there's a theme on 'Under the Pink,' it's one of self-empowerment," Amos said in a press release. "Whether it's women acknowledging the violence in themselves or people coming to terms with the loss of hope. It's about the refusal to see yourself as a victim, and how to have passion in your life without equating it with violence."

Tori Amos will appear at State Farm Center tonight at 8 p.m. Guitarist Peter Stewart, who opened the Counting Crows/Cracker show earlier this year at the SIU Arena, will open the show. A few tickets are still available.

The show is sponsored by Student Programming Council Conests.

Grad student earns honor, scholarship

By Anika Robertson

A hearing-impaired SIUC graduate student has won a national scholarship from the Alexander Graham Bell Association for the Deaf.

Pamela Kincheloe, a 27-year-old from Miami, was chosen as one of 73 winners of the annual $1,500 award. The graduate assistent in the English Department currently is pursuing her doctorate.

Kincheloe said she was proud to have been the recipient of the Second Century Fund Scholarship. "I'm honored and feel strongly about representing the hearing impaired," she said.

Born with a severe to profound hearing loss since she was 3 years old, Kincheloe was mainstreamed into regular classes without support from educational services.

Successfully meeting academic challenges during her elementary and high school years, she went on to Rollin's College, where she won both the Howard Fox Literary Award and the Sullivan Scholarship Award.

Kincheloe also was a member of the Omicron Delta Kappa Honor Society.

Kincheloe received her master's degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1992.

Currently majoring in 19th Century American Literature, Kincheloe said once she receives her doctorate, she would like to teach at Gallaudet University in Washington, D.C., the only hearing impaired university in the world.

Kincheloe said it would be nice to be a role model for hearing-impaired individuals.

"Anything is possible if you work hard and never give up," she said.

"It's been harder for her, but she's smarter than me," Kincheloe said.

Kincheloe said she dedicated her scholarship to her sister, who she said is the main reason she wants to teach the hearing impaired.

The restaurant seats 120 and about 30 in the bar.

Bryant Tom, an undecided sophomore from Burr Ridge, said he plans to take his parents to Ya Jing for Chinese food. "It's not like I'm gonna take them to the cafeteria (for dinner)," he said, "We'll (Tom and his brother who also is a student) definitely swing them by Wal-Mart for Carbohydrate (groceries), too.

"I have increased staffing at the check-outs for the weekend to compensate for the increase in people," Penney said.

Penney said the store did not have any specials for the weekends, but would run its all-you-can-eat, family-style fried chicken dinner on Friday and Saturday. "I said to them, "I mean why aren't we spending more money on the menu."

The lodge seats about 400.

The Family Weekend Craft Sale is sure to have something for everyone in your family. It features unique jewelry, silversmithing, dry flower arrangements, till painting, lapidary, candles, ceramics and much more by artists from across the Heartland. For more info, call 453-3026.

"There are so many great players in the league, and to pick me is great."

— Deb Heyne

"I was not pressed in that meet, except by my own teammates, so when I go up against harder competition I will improve," she said.

Horner said she wants to continue to improve for the Conference Championships and District as well as establishing some new records.

"One goal I have is to break Vivian Sinou's school record (16:52), but it is more important to win conference," she said. "My ultimate goal is to qualify for nationals."

Heyne had 67 kills in four matches to earn the honors.

Heyne was the MVP of the 17th Saluki Invitational last weekend, where she hit .418 with 53 kills to lead SIUC to its third straight title.

Heyne played the invitational with a broken nose suffered during the Evansville match Sept 20.

Heyne hit .470 with 31 digs and seven blocks in 12 games to lead the Salukis to four three-game sweeps.

Heyne, a native of Rochester, Mo., said the award is a great honor, being picked over the other players in the Valley.

"There are so many great players in the league, and to pick me is great," she said. "I felt confident before, and this honor re-emphasizes it."

Saluki volleyball head coach Sonya Locke said the pick was no surprise.

"She (Heyne) had a hell of a week last week," Locke said. "With those kinds of numbers, if she didn't get nominated, there is something wrong."

Locke said Heyne's move from middle to left side hitter may have lessened her numbers early in the season, but now it is no problem.

"She has more confidence now, because she has had time to adjust to the left side," Locke said. "It was a big time move for her, and she has handled it well."

Now that she has successfully made the adjustment, she is going to be fine the rest of the year."

Heyne said the position change was tough, but after a few matches, she has the hang of it.

"I think I'm finally starting to put it all together," she said.

"When I first moved to the left side, I played it safe and just tried to keep the ball in play. Now that I have the confidence that I can score, I am getting more aggressive, and it is leading to more kills."

The MVP honor is important, Heyne said, but some things are more valuable.

"My hitting is on right now, and that brings confidence to the team," she said. "The best thing about hitting well is that we are winning as a team. We are all excited to be playing, and an excited team is one that wins."
SIUC athletes show skills in cross country, volleyball

By Doug Duran and Sean Walker

Two Saluki athletes use to share a home, but now they share Missouri Valley Conference honors in separate sports.

Former roommates Jennie Homer and Deb Heyne both received MVC Athlete of the Week Awards for their accomplishments in cross country and volleyball respectively.

This is the second time in three weeks Homer has received the MVC honor, Heyne’s first.

Homer won the race with a time of 17:22, which was the second fastest time in a 5k course in MVC history and set the course record at Eastern Illinois University.

Women’s cross country coach Don DeNoon said he did not expect Homer or teammate Debby Dachler, who ran a time of 17:26, to win the meat they would run good times, but not as fast as they did.

DeNoon said he did not think Homer would be this good this early in the year.

“Jennie has really surprised me with the times she has been running,” he said. “I knew she was going to be one of our best runners, but not as dominating as she is running,” he said. “I knew she was going to be one of our best runners, but not as dominating as she is running.”

Homer ran to victory at the Eastern Illinois Invitational earning her conference’s top cross country honor. Homer and Heyne received their first conference athlete of the week award two weeks ago after she finished first in a dual meet with Southeast Missouri State.

Homer said she expected to run well because the course was flat and fast.

“I know I was going to run a fast time, but maybe not that fast,” she said. “My time at one-mile mark was 5:24 or I know I was fast,” she said.

While getting the second fastest time in SIUC is good, Homer said she can get better as the season goes on.

“I am training really well and I think I will continue to improve as I train,” she said. “One of the reasons, Homer thinks she will improve is that the weather is turned really well and I think I will continue to improve as I train.”
