GPSC calls for health study on herbicide

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

"Fall-out dollars" would be better spent to maintain the funding of the Learning Resource Service than on remodeling the locker rooms at the Arena, a resolution passed by the Graduate and Professional Student Council Wednesday stated.

The GPSC also called for a delay in spraying Round-up herbicide in Thompson Woods until questions on health and spraying are answered and until the Campus Natural Areas Committee is maintained as an active committee.

President Somit was reviewing recommendations for uses of the $400,000 in "fall-out dollars," according to John Baker, executive director for planning and budgeting. Baker suggested to Somit that $200,000 be used to buy microcomputers, $100,000 be allocated to Morris Library and $100,000 be used to remodel Arena locker rooms.

Baker said the $400,000 came from salaries from "unfilled positions, which were caused in part by the hiring freeze." The freeze was started in January, 1983 and was lifted Feb. 8, 1984. Retirements and attrition also contributed to the fall-out dollars, he said. Somit may reach a decision on the use of the money next week, Baker said.

The GPSC resolution asked that $60,000 of the funding to remodel the Arena locker rooms be diverted to maintain the funding of the Learning Resource Service, which provides instructional support for students and instructors. The Library Affairs Advisory Committee recommended a

Reagan promotes capitalism as cure for China's economy

PEKING (AP) -- President Reagan lectured the Chinese nation Friday on the benefits of capitalism and encouraged the country's communist leaders to move forward with their tentative economic liberalization.

At the same time, he used his first speech here to sharply criticize the Soviet Union, saying "America and China both condemn military expansionism -- the brutal occupation of Afghanistan and the crushing of Kampuchea (Cambodia)."

In remarks prepared for an afternoon speech and later scheduled for broadcast on Chinese national television -- before a video audience that White House officials estimated could reach 200 million -- Reagan said that it was the profit motive that spurred America's development.

Speaking in the Great Hall of the People to an audience of 500 to 600 Chinese business leaders and experts in U.S.-Sino relations, the president said:

"The societies that have made the most spectacular progress in the shortest period of time are not the most rigidly organized nor even the richest in natural resources. No, it is where people have been allowed to create, compete, and build, where they have been permitted to think for themselves, to make economic decisions, and benefit from their own wits that society has become the most prosperous, progressive, dynamic, and free.

"Nothing could be more basic to the spirit of progress for a farmer, laborer, or merchant than economic reward for legitimate risk and honest toil," the conservative American president told the world's most populous nation and its communist leadership.

The speech followed a morning meeting with Premier Zhao Ziyang on Reagan's second day in China.

Referring to the move toward a consumer-oriented economy and the relaxing of official opposition to private enterprise that has emerged over the past five years or so, Reagan said:

"Today, China's economy crackles with the dynamics of change, expansion of individual incentives for farmers ... new bonuses for workers, more disciplined management in terms of profits and losses.

"As China moves forward on this new path, America welcomes the opportunity to walk by your side," he said.

Libya envoys depart Britain for homeland

LONDON (AP) -- One hundred forty expelled Libyans flew out of London Thursday night and 30 Britons, mainly diplomats' families, arrived home from Tripoli. The mass departures were the first since Britain broke ties with Libya last Sunday.

The Britons landed at London's Gatwick Airport Thursday and were welcomed by Richard Luce, minister of state at the Foreign Office.

"It's certainly a sense of relief," he said as the scheduled flight of the British Caledonian Airlines touched down soon after 10:30 p.m.

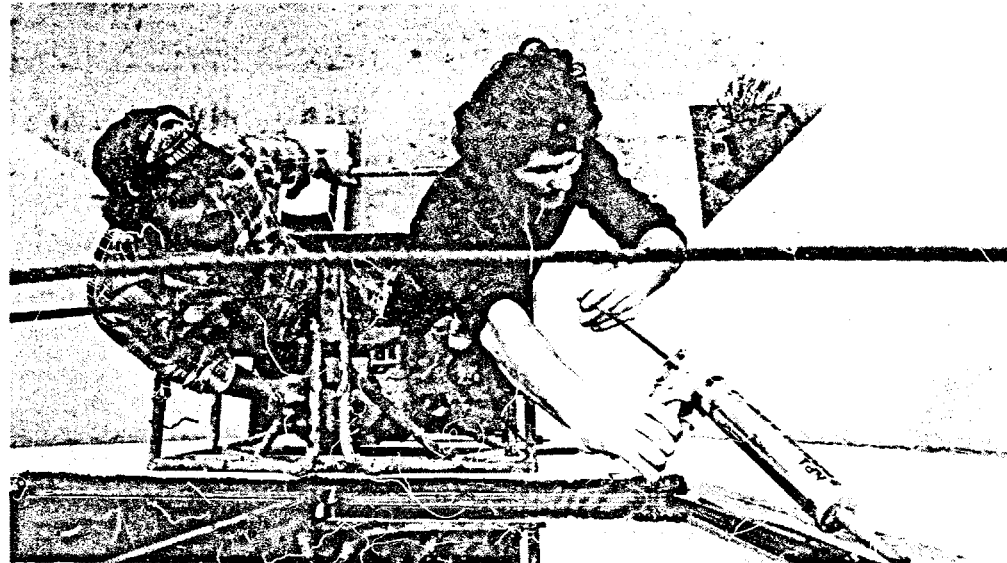

The white-and-gold Libyan Arab Airlines Boeing 727 took off from London's Heathrow International Airport at 7:25 p.m., about 25 minutes after the jet carrying the British left Tripoli.

The British reported their people waited about five hours at the airport in Tripoli. The Libyans, mostly families of 40 diplomats and students still in their besieged embassy, waited about four hours after arriving at Heathrow.

British police ringed the Libyan Embassy, which had been blockaded since a gunman with a submachine gun fired from an embassy window at demonstrators April 17, killing a policeman and wounding 11 protesters.

British Ambassador Oliver Miles and 13 other diplomats still in Tripoli were due to leave Saturday. Britain has given the rest of the estimated 200 Libyans being expelled until midnight Sunday to leave the country.

Officials would not confirm whether any Libyan diplomatic bags were on the flight. Eighteen of the white canvas bags were fugged out of the besieged embassy Thursday afternoon.

Jury rules student hanging in jail suicide

By Jeff Wilkinson
Staff Writer

In a brief hearing Wednesday night, a Jackson County coroner's jury ruled the hanging death of SIU-C student Michael Strandell was a suicide.

Strandell, 22, of Wilmette, was found hanged in the women's detention block of the Jackson County jail about 12 hours after he was arrested for disorderly conduct.

A coroner's report said the cause of death was asphyxia, secondary to self-inflicted hanging. The jury found that Strandell ripped up his mattress cover and used the strips to hang himself.

Carlton Smith, who was in a meeting with inmates and sheriff's department officials at the time of the hanging, criticized the coroner's jury for leaving too many questions unanswered or answered vaguely.

Smith attended inquest on behalf of the inmates in the west cell block of Jackson County jail, where Strandell had been detained before being moved to the women's cell block. A statement written and signed by several of the inmates stated Strandell had been locked-down "naked and terrified." The statement said that Strandell had refused to put on a jail jumpsuit.

The statement said that Strandell was placed in a cell by himself and had not been threatened by the other inmates. The inmates claim they asked jailers to allow Strandell in the corridor because he "was having trouble stabilizing in the cell."

Smith called the coroner's inquest "a farce" because so few questions had been asked by the coroner's jury.

The jury heard testimony from only two witnesses, Henry Pierce, the part-time jailer who found Strandell's body, and an Illinois Division of Criminal Investigation agent, Richard Evans.

Pierce said he found the body 20 minutes after his last cell check.

Prior to the hanging, Pierce said Strandell had asked if his bail money had arrived.

When a juror asked why Strandell had been placed in the

Broadening of special tax use a lesser evil, say city officials

By Paula J. Finlay
Staff Writer

Mayor Helen Westberg and City Manager Bill Dixon say they see broadening the city's privilege tax as the lesser of two evils.

Both say that although they would prefer not broadening the tax, the alternative is less attractive. If the use of the privilege were not extended funding for redevelopment costs would have to come from the general fund which comes from property tax levies.

Councilman Keith Tuxhorn said he would "reluctantly" go along with broadening the tax, but that it should not continue until 1987 as scheduled. Instead, the city should end the tax when it finds out the fate of downtown redevelopment, which should be by the end of this year, he said. The city's redevelopment expenses are not great enough to justify a five-year tax which mainly effects students who will never see the results of it, Tuxhorn said.

"That's too much to ask for too long," he said. "It's unfair to too many people."

Progress on the city's downtown redevelopment efforts have not been ideal, Westberg said.

A $2.071 million grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has been "frozen" until a definite project is in the works, City Manager Bill Dixon said Thursday. The city has continued to purchase property in the city's four-block redevelopment area to attract a developer, but since the grant money has not been released an alternate source of revenue must be found.

"If the grant would cover our expenses, that would be the ideal situation. But right now we can't be sure of that," Westberg said.

The City Council will vote May 7 to amend the ordinance that established that 1 percent tax on food and alcoholic beverages in restaurant and 4 percent tax on renting motel or hotel rooms. The amendment would allow the city to use revenue from the tax to finance redevelopment efforts. Currently, the use of the tax is restricted to finance bond debt service on the proposed downtown parking garage, finance tourism efforts and pay for the cost of collecting the tax.

Jazz great Count Basie dies at 79

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Count Basie, whose bright, simple piano style brought him international fame in the "swing" era of jazz, died in his sleep early Thursday of cancer, a disease his doctors never told him he had. He was 79.

"It's a great loss. I hate to even think about it," jazz musician Lionel Hampton said. Basie was "one of the true greats of music. He had his own particular style... It was one of the greatest styles you could hear."

"He'll be remembered as long as there is a world," said composer pianist Dave Brubeck. "He was loved all over the world and all the jazz musicians had tremendous respect for him and he'll never leave us."

"He was the best. He was a cool person," said Anita O'Day, who sang with Basie's orchestra in the 1940s. "Everything he played was always the right little riff in the right little place."

Basie, who began his career in the 1920s as a $3-a-night piano player, was hospitalized for treatment of a severe ulcer, but doctors soon learned he had pancreatic cancer, said Dr. Leo Schildhaus.

"Had he known or been aware that he had cancer—he had such a fear of it—he would have given up hope of living. Anyone that might have seen him in Hollywood would know that he did not look as though he had a problem," Aaron Woodward, Basie's adopted son, said at a news conference.

Basie was admitted to Doctors' Hospital Feb. 4 with jaundice, Schildhaus said. He said that condition was relieved but Basie "had another upset," a bleeding ulcer. Basie was released from the hospital Feb. 14, then was readmitted March 27, Schildhaus said.

"The family was with him to the end," the doctor added.

He had performed at the Hollywood Palladium in California March 19.

Casey says Senate not told of mining

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA Director William J. Casey admitted Thursday he failed to adequately inform the Senate Intelligence Committee about his agency's supervising mining of Nicaraguan ports, the panel said.

After a "very spirited" meeting at which Casey made the acknowledgement, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., agreed to stay on as vice chairman of the panel. He had resigned Wednesday to protest what he considered inadequate briefings by the spy agency. The CIA is required by law to brief congressional committees about intelligence activities.

FTC OKs Gulf, Standard merger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission on Thursday tentatively approved Standard Oil Company of California's $13.2 billion takeover of Gulf Corp., the largest corporate merger in history.

The commission voted 4-1 not to challenge the merger as anti-competitive on the condition that Social sell 30 Gulf terminals, 4,000 Gulf service stations, a Gulf refinery and interests in two oil pipeline companies in areas where Social and Gulf now compete.

Unemployment up slightly in Illinois

CHICAGO (AP) — Unemployment rose slightly in most Illinois cities from February to March, with the biggest increases — of 0.6 percentage points — recorded in the Bloomington-Normal and Chicago areas, the state Bureau of Employment Security reported Thursday.

Chicago had an unemployment rate of 9.6 percent in March, up from 9 percent in February. Bloomington-Normal saw its rate climb from 7 percent to 7.6 percent in that period.

Kankakee led the Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area jobless figures with an unemployment rate of 14.4 percent, up 6.2 percentage points from February.

Faculty, staff separated under new grievance policy

By Terry Levecke
Staff Writer

The Faculty Senate on Thursday approved a 3-1 abstention to adopt a new grievance procedure policy.

Under the new policy, five Judicial Review Board members will be named by the Faculty Senate after the candidates have been selected by the Committee on Committees.

The new policy separates grievance procedures for the faculty and the administrative-professional staff. The policy also states that the JRB members will hear all grievances.

In the past, JRB members appointed members from the University community-at-large to sit in on grievance hearings.

The new calendar outlined by the administration was also discussed and was referred to the Status and Welfare Committee.

According to the calendar, all 12-month employees must now take a holiday on Dec. 31 or lose a day's pay. In the past, the University implemented that policy only on Dec. 24.

In other business, the senate referred a set of considerations for summer session back to committee. A guideline that was the main cause for sending the considerations back to committee stated that if a class did not meet enrollment guidelines and it was not a stated exception, "the college's funding for the subsequent summer shall be reduced by an appropriate amount." Senate members questioned the potential damage that such a guideline could cause to experimental classes.

An amendment was proposed to allow summer classes two semesters in which to meet enrollment guidelines before penalizing the college for holding the classes during the summer. The document was referred back to committee after objections were raised to that amendment.

The senate was responding to concerns that some professors create low-enrollment classes in the summer solely to make work for themselves.

The guidelines will be re-examined by the senate, which is scheduled to meet Monday to elect a president for the coming year.

Fourteen senate members were elected in the past week to represent their colleges:

Elaine Alden and Steven Jensen from technical careers; Michael Altekruess, James Leming and Donald Paige from education; Richard Blumenberg and Jervis Underwood from communications and fine arts; William Jack Brown, Kenneth Danhof, William Garner, and David Gobert from liberal arts; Donna Falvo from medicine; Thomas Jefferson from engineering; and Gola Waters from business administration.

The recently-elected members will serve through spring of 1986. Fifteen senate members will finish their term in spring of 1985.

$60,800 cut in LRS funds so the library could maintain current journal subscriptions.

A letter was sent by the GPSC executive board to Robert Mohlenbrock, chairman of the Campus Natural Areas Committee, asking what provisions were made for the spraying in the woods.

GPSC members expressed concern that the timetable for the spraying has not yet been developed, and that spraying would take place without notification to students, faculty and staff. GPSC's resolution also asks that the CNAC be maintained as an active committee to supervise the spraying, and that health authorities be notified when spraying is to take place.

women's detention block. Pierce said other jailers had told him that Strandell had "trouble with the inmates in the west cell block."

Coroner Don Ragsdale read a toxicology report to jury stating the alcohol content of Strandell's blood was 0.046 percent at the time of his death, about 12 hours after his incarceration. A .10 percent alcohol level in the blood is legal minimum for drunkenness.

Ragsdale said Strandell and a friend Steve Mowatt had been drinking at DuMaroc's nightclub prior to Strandell's arrest at about 4:30 a.m. March 17. The report showed no evidence of drug abuse.

DCI investigator Richard K. Evans said Strandell had used a considerable amount of alcohol and was very abusive because of it. He said his investigation indicated no inappropriate action was taken by the Sheriff's Department.

Strandell was arrested for disorderly conduct at Jackson County Courthouse after becoming abusive while protesting Mowatt's arrest for a traffic violation.

Mowatt was arrested for driving with a revoked driver's license after he was allegedly involved in an auto accident with Ronald Aue of DeSoto.

In an interview Thursday, Aue said he was driving south on Route 51, just north of DeSoto, when he saw Mowatt's car stopped in the middle of the road. Aue said as he passed, Mowatt's car pulled out and hit him.

Turnabout is fair play in World Court

ON THE ISSUE of international law and terrorism, President Reagan should heed his own administration's statements.

Earlier this week, the president's chief spokesman said that the United States is taking a stronger stand against international terrorism.

"No nation can condone international terrorism," said Larry Speakes. "It is the right of every legitimate government to resist the use of terrorism against its people, institutions or property by all legal means."

That's a noble declaration; it would be noble of the United States to abide by it.

The Sandinista government in Nicaragua is a legitimate government—at least in the sense that the United States maintains diplomatic ties with it. It has recently been the victim of terrorist acts—the CIA secretly planted mines (weapons of terrorism that don't discriminate between friend and foe) in three Nicaraguan harbors. The Sandinistas, who claim that the United States has violated international law and Nicaraguan sovereignty, are resisting the mining by legal means—through a protest to the International Court of Justice in The Hague, the World Court.

THE REAGAN administration, however, has told the Sandinistas to go take a jump in the Caribbean.

Earlier this month, shortly after the CIA's ties to the mining operation were revealed, the State Department declared that it would not acknowledge the World Court's jurisdiction in the matter. The United States will defend its position in the case, which opened before the court in the Netherlands this week, but will not abide by any decision rendered.

It may seem that ignoring the World Court's authority is no big deal—after all, the international panel of 15 judges—which includes a U.S. judge—has no power to enforce any measures it deems appropriate. But by boycotting the court, Reagan is setting an ignoble precedent in this country.

Although only a third of United Nations members recognize the World Court, the legal body of the United Nations, the United States has acknowledged it since its inception in 1947. In addition, the United States has been the primary financial backer of the court, and every president until now has strongly advocated U.S. adherence to its jurisdiction. In fact, the United States is currently appealing to the court in an argument with Canada over fishing rights.

REAGAN SAID THAT the mining incident is different. The Nicaraguans, he said, were merely appealing to the court in an effort to "evade the spotlight of responsibility." Reagan said it is the Sandinistas who are acting like terrorists by aiding the leftist guerrillas in El Salvador. Furthermore, members of his staff have said that while the court may be an appropriate arena for settling fishing rights, it is no place to debate acts of alleged terrorism.

That opinion is a bit perplexing coming from a country which four years ago appealed to the World Court after 50 of its citizens were taken hostage in Iran. No one expected the Ayatollah Khomeini to hand over the hostages because of the court's edict, but American leaders said a moral victory was gained when the court ruled that the hostages should be returned.

Four years ago the United States felt wronged by the Iranians and rightly took its case to the World Court. Today, the Nicaraguans are doing the same.

There is another interesting parallel between the two instances: four years ago, Khomeini declared that Iran would not abide by the World Court's decision. What does that make Ronald Reagan?

Letters

Vigilant press guarantees freedom

We wish to thank Mr. McGowan for his persuasive arguments in favor of a constantly vigilant free press in his recent letter to the Daily Egyptian. He correctly points out that the press approaches its job from the "position that the government is suspect" in everything it does and must be watched closely.

As we are also members of the public sector which reads the news, we would like to point out another source of the "confrontation between the press and government."

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances." U.S. Constitution, First Amendment.

When the people of a country, the ultimate source of all sovereign power, vest that power in a representative government, it is absolutely imperative that that government be scrupulously watched and its exercise of power constantly controlled. As Lord Acton noted in a letter to the Bishop, Mandell Creighton in 1887: "Power tends to corrupt and absolute power corrupts absolutely."

The method by which the government's power is kept from becoming absolute was noted in a letter by Thomas Jefferson in 1786: "Our liberty depends on freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost."

While Mr. McGowan has every right to express his displeasure with the press (by writing a letter to a newspaper free from government censorship, for example), he seems to have some trouble distinguishing the forest from the trees.—Nathan Maddox and Terry Corrigan, 2nd Year Law Students

More money needed for El Salvador

I have just finished reading Mr. Luebke's letter to the editor which appeared in the April 19 issue of the Daily Egyptian. I feel that he has a very biased view of the situation in El Salvador and has not taken the time to get his facts straight.

In this letter, however, I wish to address only one of Mr. Luebke's accusations: the statement that the United States is supporting torture and murder in El Salvador with financial and military aid.

It is true that the national guard, treasury police, and other internal security forces in El Salvador are guilty of abuses. The thing that Mr.

Luebke has not found out concerns Congress', not the president's, rules for giving aid to El Salvador.

These rules state that military and financial aid can only be used to upgrade the Salvadoran army and civic action or medical assistance projects. Our military advisors are not allowed to even coordinate with the security forces. It should be mentioned that U.S.-trained Salvadoran army units have a very good civil rights record.

There is a law enacted by Congress in 1975 that prohibits the use of funds or personnel to train foreign law enforcement agencies. This is one reason that the security forces have resorted to "jack boot" tactics. They are fighting for the survival of their country.

So let's remember the next time we speak out against the death squads that we can solve the problem by getting funds to these people. Also, let us remember that to some extent these people are living in a backward society. We cannot expect them to jump from the horseless carriage to the space shuttle overnight.—R. Mitchell, Freshman, Electrical Sciences and Systems Engineering

Cash and controversy mark lottery's history

Editor's note: The following commentary was written by Joan Parker and Jack Van Der Slik of the Illinois Legislative Studies Center at Sangamon State University.

SINCE ITS inception in 1974, the Illinois State Lottery has generated a lot of money—and a lot of controversy.

In its first year, the lottery produced net receipts of nearly $58 million, all of which went to the state's General Revenue Fund. In fiscal 1983 the net had increased to a staggering $214 million and accounted for 2.8 percent of total Illinois tax revenues—ahead of the cigarette and liquor taxes, incidentally. During the current year the lottery is expected to bring in 4.3 percent of total tax revenues, and some predictions make it 6 percent for next year.

THE PHENOMENAL growth of the lottery has not, however, followed a steady progressive pattern. In the late 1970s the lottery fell on hard times and bottomed out in 1973, when it made a profit of less than $28 million.

A lottery spokesperson explained that the decline had to do with a complicated distribution of the lottery tickets to agents throughout the state—an administrative snafu which caused the number of agents to drop from 10,000 to 2,000 by 1979. (There are now about 7,000 agents statewide.)

Apparently, the reintroduction of a simplified daily game in late 1979 gave the lottery a much needed boost and the game has grown in popularity and revenue ever since then.

Between July 1, 1983 and January 1, 1984 there were 11 new millionaires who won between $1 million and $6 million in the instant game and Lotto grand prizes. That's more millionaire winners than in any previous full fiscal year.

BUT THE LOTTERY has been controversial since its inception. There are some who oppose it on the grounds that all gambling is wrong and the state's profit should be thought of as ill-gotten gains.

Other critics claim that the lottery exploits the state's poor because they are the people most apt to play it. A recent article in Springfield's State Journal-Register stated that minority neighborhoods in Chicago and East St. Louis remain the lottery's "mainstay." Lottery officials dispute this claim and contend that sales are increasingly successful among all income and age groups.

DISCUSSING THE clientele in poorer neighborhoods, one lottery spokesman said the lottery has partially replaced the notorious "numbers" or "policy" games sponsored by organized crime. The state, according to this theory, has thus managed to gain money which previously went to criminal interests.

An advocate for public aid recipients told us that as far as he knows his clients are not using their subsistence dollars for the lottery. He was quick to point out that the lottery proceeds in the General Revenue Fund were used for human service programs which benefited his clients.

HIS GROUP IS currently supporting passage of a bill which would allow a special lottery game to fund Homeowner's Emergency Mortgage Assistance, a benefit to low income homeowners. (The only other time that lottery revenues were devoted to a special purpose was to bail out the University of Illinois athletics program when it went on probation a few years ago.)

Sorting out the controversy surrounding the lottery is not easy. The moral worth of the lottery has not changed, but the lottery has become a significant source of revenue for state government services. Thus defenders of the status quo also defend the lottery.

The logo for the Illinois State Lottery is a pot of gold at the end of a rainbow. Apparently enough people believe that the gold is worth chasing.

Special Olympics a day of smiles for contestants

By Phil Milano
Staff Writer

Let me win,
And if I do not win
Let me be brave
In the attempt.

With the crowd and contestants repeating that oath, the Special Olympics began in McAndrew Stadium Thursday. For the special people competing in these games, though, it was obvious that being brave, although important, had to take a back seat to just having fun.

Whether it was dancing with the costumed clowns and characters on the sidelines or showing off ribbons to friends, the entire day added up to one big smile for the contestants.

"That's the best thing, to just see the smiles on their faces," said E. L. Pavledes, track and field event chairman. "When they get those medals, they just go crazy."

Contestants from schools such as Goreville Grade School, Herrin South Side Grade School and the Rehabilitation and Vocational Education Workshop in Anna participated in the games, co-sponsored by the Recreation Department and the Carbondale Park District.

The games presented an opportunity for handicapped children and adults to compete against each other in events just as demanding as those to be held this summer in Los Angeles.

And one thought similar to one of U.S. Olympic athletes surely went through the minds of these special athletes as they strode across the finish line or made one last attempt to clear a high-jump bar—the thought that "I can do this, I can win."

The range of emotions this day ran from the highs of sheer joy to the lows of aching disappointment.

One winner, Gayle Jones, from Franklin -- Williamson County Workshop, clutched the gold medal she had won in the softball throw event while waving to her parents in the stands.

"I won, and I got my picture taken," she exclaimed. "I'm going to be on TV, too!"

But tears rolled off the cheeks of Roxanne Bailey from Tri-County South Special Education Workshop in Anna, who, after winning a 220-yard dash, found out she wouldn't be able to compete in her next race. She found satisfaction in winning the pentathlon event for her age group, though.

President Albert Somit and Mayor Helen Westberg took part in the opening ceremonies. Former Saluki and St. Louis Cardinal football great Jim Hart, who has worked with the Special Olympics for 12 years, made it a day to remember for some of his young fans as he chatted with them, and the SIU-C skydivers put on a show from the sky.

The spirit of the day could be summed up in one boy's eyes as he looked for his coach while lining up for the start of a 50-yard dash. The gun was about to be fired to start the race. Amid the confusion and shouting, the coach and the boy's eyes met. The boy looked at him for a second before the race began, and simply gave a thumbs up sign to his coach.

The following are some contestants who took home gold medals from Thursday's games:

USO adds paid post; IGC funds cut

By John Stewart
 Staff Writer

With one exception, Priority I Registered Student Organization's fee allocations were passed as submitted Wednesday by the Student Senate.

The Undergraduate Student Organization funding bill was amended to add $750 to pay its public relations director, while amendments to add to the Inter-Greek Council's funding bills failed.

The USO Finance Commission recommended to fund Inter-Greek Council $9,245, which was $1,710 less than IGC requested. IGC was funded $9,500 last year. IGC Treasurer Angie Cler told the senate that USO President Bruce Joseph promised her that IGC would receive its full funding request if it didn't pad its request. Cler said IGC had only asked for funding to maintain necessary campus-wide programs.

The senate denied two amendments to allocate an additional $1,710 and $255 to IGC after senators remarked that the coordinating body of SIU-C's 21 fraternities and sororities had no self-generated income in 1983-84.

Cler said IGC was a philanthropic organization that did not sponsor fundraising events. Receipts from programs, such as Theta Xi Variety Show, were used to fund scholarships, she said.

"I am Greek, and I have no problems with it (the IGC bill as submitted)," said Joe Nikoleit, chairman of the USO Committee on Internal Affairs. Lamont Brantley, a senator from the East Side, said Joseph had no right to say that IGC would receive its full request.

An amendment submitted by Andy Leighton, USO president-elect, to pay USO's public relations director $750 was passed, while all other groups were funded as recommended by the finance commission.

Priority I groups received the following funding for 1984-85: Student Programming Council, $100,580; Undergraduate Student Organization, $38,805; Black Affairs Council, $14,995; International Student Council, $13,770 and Inter-Greek Council, $9,245.

Two Priority II RSO's received funding-- the Agriculture Communicators of Tomorrow and the United Nations Simulation Association -- while bills to fund the Southern Publishing Information Network and the Synergy Student Auxiliary were sent back to the Finance Commission.

State pays for official's tuition

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - A second top-ranking official in Governor Thompson's administration has billed taxpayers for courses taken to obtain a professional degree, records showed Thursday.

Michael B. Witte, director of the Department of Energy and Natural Resources, has charged the state $6,100 for the first year of a two-year master's program in business administration at the University of Illinois, state records showed.

Witte, 33, earns $43,000 a year in his cabinet post.

It was disclosed earlier this week that Michael E. Fryzel, director of the Department of Financial Institutions, has been reimbursed $4,500 over the past two years for courses taken to obtain a law degree at Loyola University in Chicago.

State employees were reimbursed nearly $1 million for tuition in the fiscal year that ended last July, according to figures from the comptroller's office. For the current budget year, the tuition payment program cost the state about $563,000 through February, the last month for which figures were available.

Witte, like Fryzel, has himself approved the paperwork necessary to authorize the use of tax dollars for his tuition. But he said he received permission in advance from Thompson.

Witte defended the use of taxpayers money for the program as "absolutely" proper, saying the course was designed to help mid-career executives be better managers.

"I want to be the best director I can be," Witte told The Associated Press shortly before heading into a Statehouse hearing room to present his $72 million budget request to a Senate appropriations committee.

"One thing government doesn't do well enough is understand the methods business uses in its efficiency of operations," Witte said.

The cabinet official described the course work as "extremely rigorous."

U.K. Subs shows punk still alive and slamming

By Joe Walter
Staff Writer

The U.K. Subs' performance Wednesday night at Airwaves demonstrated that punk rock is not dead in the United Kingdom nor around here.

Thrusting out hard core riffs, the Subs played angry songs — sung, not screamed, by vocalist Charlie Harper — such as "You Don't Belong," "Violent Revolution" and a pack of other loud, energetic and frenzied numbers.

Some crowd members sianced, causing those surrounding the action to give room or to push stray slammers away.

A similar but less intense situation occurred when The Drooling Idiots, from Paducah, Ky., played jackhammer rhythm tunes such as "Someone's Gonna Die Tonight," and "I Wanna Be Your Dog."

The only break from the slamming came when local progressive popsters The Hip Chemists took the stage to perform an energetic set.

A spike-haired Brent Starkey, vocalist for the Idiots, said his band formed in Paducah about two years ago. He said he was into heavy metal until he heard The Sex Pistols and Iggy Pop.

Starkey said the Idiots' following has been mostly students from Murray State University and a few fans from Paducah.

"We get a lot of the Murray crowd," Starkey said. "In Paducah, we're kind of like a freak show."

The more conventionally hair-styled bass player, Kenny Martin, said he is a Kentuckian born and reared.

Martin said he first became a punk rocker because he wanted to be unique.

"First of all there was the desire to be different from everyone," he said. "Then I really listened to what it's all about."

Martin said the "rebellion and pure honesty" of punk appeal to him.

"Plus," he said, "it makes us sweat. It's better than jogging, going to the spa or being a Mason."

From under a mop of black hair resembling small dreadlocks, Harper, the Subs' vocalist, talked about the punk scene in the mid-70s and today.

Harper, who formed his band in 1977, said he wasn't influenced by the punk music of The Sex Pistols and added, "They couldn't play as well as us, The Clash or The Damned."

Harper told the story of how entertainment entrepreneur Malcolm McLaren formed the Sex Pistols and invented the media term "punk rock."

"McLaren," Harper said, "wheeled and dealt and made it a big thing."

Harper said The Sex Pistols "were all hype and publicity" after Glen Matlock, their original bass player, left.

"Then Vicious joined," Harper said, "and many came just to see Sid."

Punk rock music, Harper said, can be traced to 1975, when some youths of England wanted a change from the complacently conventional and lightshow-oriented rock scene. The disaffected young rebels formed street bands that later became punk bands, and they found an eager audience.

"There were lines outside where the bands played," Harper said.

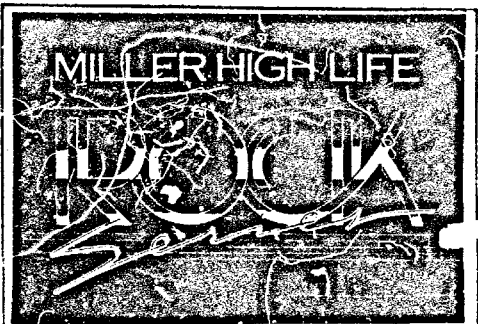

His band was unknown shortly after it formed, too, Harper said, but it still had a large following.

However, now the heyday has passed and Harper sees some bands forgetting why punk rock started.

"The Clash," he said, "have double values. They say a lot but they won't give kids a minute of their time."

"Black Flag doesn't want to play punk gigs," Harper said, "but large halls."

"A lot of bands," he added, "don't want to go play with a bad F.A. and Mickey Mouse equipment."

University kicks in $25,000 to fund faculty research trips

By Jay Small
Staff Writer

The University has matched $25,000 that the SIU Foundation donated for faculty members to travel for research-oriented purposes, according to Barbara Hansen, dean of the Graduate School.

Hansen sent a letter to the Graduate Council, deans and department executive officers last week notifying them of the University's contribution. The funds will be used to assist faculty with expenses for travel undertaken before June 30.

Of the $50,000 received from the foundation and the University, about $10,000 remains, said Michael Dingserson, director of research development.

"That may seem like a lot, but the demand has been tremendous," Dingserson said. "We have tried to use the money to assist as many people as we can."

Dingserson said the largest contribution to any single faculty member has been $600.

Faculty members use the travel funds for a variety of purposes, he said, but the majority of requests come from faculty who need to travel to regional or national conferences to present research findings.

Two faculty members asked for help for a trip to China to attend workshops and other scholastic activities, Dingserson said. Money from the fund supplemented other funding sources those faculty members had.

"A couple of faculty members in music asked for travel money to be available for a competition," Dingserson said. "In that way, it is a mechanism for creative activity, as well."

Dingserson said applications for travel funds are still being taken at the Graduate School and, he said, the school hopes that arrangements can be made to make the fund permanent.

The University's donation was announced to Graduate School administrators by President Albert Somit and John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs, in early March. The donation came from state funds, Dingserson said.

Simon sponsors bill to curtail 'phantom tax' used by utilities

By John Kacine
Staff Writer

U.S. Rep. Paul Simon is cosponsoring legislation that he hopes will end the practice by electric utility companies of charging users with a "phantom tax" and using the money as a source of interest-free loans.

The Makanda Democrat is one of several backers of the Phantom Tax Reform Act, which would correct a system that Simon says "encourages" a wasteful and costly over-expansion of power plant capacity.

"Our bill would encourage utilities to be more realistic in their planning," Simon said. "It would reduce this artificial inducement to rush new plants into construction, and it would let customers share in the tax breaks enjoyed by their utilities."

Phantom taxes are the tax liabilities that utilities would incur if not for federal tax breaks, like the 10 percent investment tax credit and accelerated depreciation.

Simon press aide David Carle said that the phantom tax was born out of the 1981 Reagan administration tax package and should return the money to consumers over several years.

It has instead been used as a permanent fund for capital construction by electric utilities nationwide, Carle said. He said that the surplus funds created by the tax have caused a tendency within the industry to construct too many facilities.

Carle points to figures from the Environment Action Foundation which show that in 1982 the top 15 electric utilities around the country show a 37 percent increase in phantom tax listings since the year before.

The survey shows that Commonwealth Edison Co. leads in Illinois with $261.1 million in phantom tax funds. The statewide total is near $500 million.

Central Illinois Public Service Co., which serves Carbondale, gathered phantom taxes totalling $29.1 million in 1982, according to Simon's office.

The EAF found that phantom taxes from 1982 cost the average household $60.91 in electric bills and for goods and services.

The Phantom Tax Reform Act would give the state utility commission authority to decide whether rate payers would be charged the phantom tax. The Illinois Commerce Commission would be the governing body in Illinois, Carle said.

He said it is not likely the bill will be voted on before August. Carle said the bill will be in committee within the next three weeks.

He said the legislation has a large backing in Congress as well as from environmental, consumer, labor and tax reform groups, but is opposed by electric companies and their trade associations.

New oral drug could reduce spread of genital herpes virus

CHICAGO (AP) — While there is still no cure for genital herpes, a new study indicates an oral drug now being tested holds great promise to speed healing and reduce sufferers' chances of spreading the disease, doctors say.

"This antiviral agent acyclovir offers a genuine ray of hope to patients with herpes — both as an effective treatment and as a potential prophylaxis (preventive measure)," said an editorial accompanying the study in Friday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

The study is the first to establish in a comprehensive way that acyclovir is effective and lacks apparent adverse effects, the researchers said.

If the Food and Drug Administration approves oral acyclovir, it could be one of the most widely used preventive drugs on the market, doctors say.

The study, involving 250 patients at six medical centers, found that people who already had herpes and who took oral acyclovir when symptoms reappeared gave off less virus and healed faster than patients given placebo.

No cure has been found for sexually transmitted herpes simplex virus, which typically remains in the body after the first episode of the disease, causing genital sores to appear over and over again for months or years.

But the new study indicates acyclovir can reduce the rate at which sores give off virus and can speed healing. The drug worked best when patients took it immediately after signs of a new episode appeared, rather than waiting the usual day or two it would take to see a doctor, researchers said.

"The drug was well tolerated and no laboratory or clinical evidence of toxic reactions was seen," reported the researchers, led by Dr. Richard C. Reichman of the University of Vermont College of Medicine at Burlington.

Patients took 200 milligram capsules four times a day for five days, the researchers said.

Acyclovir has been tested previously in several forms: ointment, intravenous and oral, the researchers noted. But the ointment form has shown limited effectiveness in treating herpes and the intravenous form is usually practical only for hospitalized patients.

"Orally administered acyclovir has the most encouraging record to date for widespread applicability," added the editorial, written by William L. Whittington and Dr. Willard J. Cates Jr. of the national Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

The potential market for the drug is "awesome," they added, considering that an estimated 5 million to 20 million people in this country suffer from recurrent genital herpes.

"Even using the lower estimate, and assuming just one in five persons elect oral prophylaxis (taking the drug by mouth to reduce their chances of spreading the disease), a projected 1 million persons ... would be taking acyclovir daily," the editorial said.

"This would make acyclovir the second most commonly prescribed daily prophylactic medication, next to oral contraceptives," the editorial added.

It cautioned that no one yet knows whether herpes virus might become resistant to acyclovir, or whether taking it for prolonged periods might be harmful.

For heart transplant candidate, the waiting is the hardest part

HANOVER PARK (AP) — Frank and Mary McCauley try not to jump every time the phone rings, but it's hard to stay calm when that call might give McCauley a second chance at life.

"He's waiting for a new heart... "Out of all we've been through, the waiting is the hardest part," said Mrs. McCauley.

For almost two months the McCauleys have been waiting for word from a team of specialists at Loyola University Medical Center in Maywood. Doctors say without a heart transplant, McCauley probably won't live more than another year.

When the call finally comes, the McCauleys will have three hours to get Frank to the hospital and into surgery. After that, the donated heart would be useless.

McCauley's health problems started in July 1980, when the 37-year old ex-Marine and Vietnam veteran suffered a major heart attack. The attack almost killed

Police spray mace on violent crowd following bar fight

Carbondale police used mace to disperse a violent crowd protesting the arrest of a man ejected from the American Tap.

Police said that at about 1 a.m. Thursday a large crowd threw glasses and cans at police officers who were trying to arrest John C. Ward, 20, of Carbondale. Ward was arrested for two counts of aggravated battery and one count of battery when he allegedly fought with officers and bit the manager of the American Tap.

Police said Ward began fighting with the manager of the bar when he was refused service. When the police arrived, Ward began fighting with them. As he was being placed in the police car, Ward broke away and fled north on Illinois Avenue and had to be dragged back to the car, police said.

Police said that as Ward was being dragged back to the car, a crowd formed around the suspect and the officers. The police said that mace was sprayed "in the direction of the crowd" and they moved back, allowing the officers to pass.

him and made triple bypass surgery necessary. Although the bypass cleared the arteries to the heart, McCauley also suffers from a progressive deterioration of the heart muscles, known as cardiomyopathy.

About three months ago, Loyola specialists gave him an ultimatum: undergo a transplant or face death within a year.

"It hit us very hard," Mrs. McCauley said. "We had talked about it as a possibility sometime in the future, but there's a big difference between that and a doctor actually saying that's what's got to be done."

But the couple has come to accept the fact that Frank will become the second patient to undergo a heart transplant at Loyola. And they have explained the situation to their children, Elizabeth, 7, and Meghann, 5, who look forward to the day when dad can play with them and teach them to ride their bicycles.

"I'm a walking time bomb and I could have another heart attack any time," said McCauley, who is restricted from almost all activity other than sitting and watching TV. "Sometimes it's like you're a strained and stretched rubber band, but it really doesn't do any good to worry."

McCauley admitted he is a bit spooked by the idea of a heart transplant.

Percy seeks investigation of Radio Liberty

WASHINGTON (AP) Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., asked Thursday that the chairman of the Board for International Broadcasting investigate reports that Radio Liberty has transmitted anti-Semitic and anti-democratic broadcasts to the Soviet Union.

The board is an independent federal agency that is responsible for Radio Liberty, which broadcasts to the Soviet Union, and Radio Free Europe, which broadcasts to Poland, Romania, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Bulgaria.

Percy asked chairman Frank Shakespeare to conduct a review by the board, which oversees the stations.

Percy, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the complaints originated from B'nai B'rith International.

He said in a statement that a Jan. 13 Radio Liberty broadcast contained comments "which could be construed as inflammatory against Jews in the Ukraine."

The broadcast included selections from the memoirs of Mykola Kovalevsky a minister of agriculture in the Ukraine in the early 1900s, which seemed to justify the attacks on Jews that occurred there in the 1800s and early 1900s, Percy said.

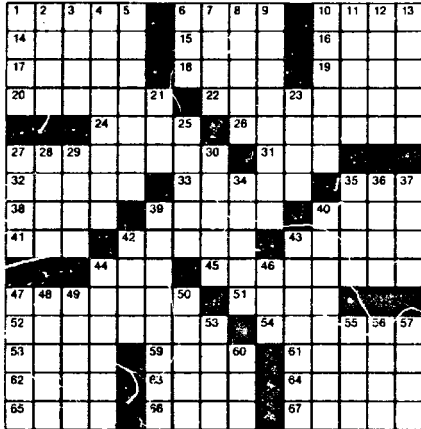

"It is inexcusable that such a broadcast could ever be aired," Percy said. "Incredibly, the broadcast occurred in the context of the official anti-Semitic campaign being waged by the Soviet media in the Ukraine now. Radio Liberty broadcasts should not be so insensitive."

Stereotypes lend misconception to ag writing, columnist says

By Joyce Venderheide
Staff Writer

"Farmers are not uneducated buffoons. They are technicians of the highest degree..."

Gordon Billingsley, SIU-C's Country Columnist, added agriculture deserves better than a second-class status in the public's eye because agriculture is the largest industry in the United States.

Some agriculture writers, though, accept the stereotype and do second-rate work, Billingsley said. He believes that as farmers' public image improves, so will that of the farm journalists.

Billingsley, 28, has written his weekly column for almost five years. The column, sent to 400 newspapers and radio stations in Illinois, Missouri, Indiana and Kentucky, has never missed a week since 1984.

Though many people think agriculture writers write only for the agricultural sector, Billingsley said that is a misconception. "I write for people who don't live on farms," Billingsley received his master's degree in journalism from SIU-C in 1983. Journalists who don't have a farm background sometimes think that they can't write about farm issues. But "you don't have to grow up on a farm to be an agriculture writer," just as a science writer doesn't have to be a scientist, he said.

Billingsley said there's no "hidden mystique" to agriculture, adding that half of the agriculture majors at SIU-C have not been raised on farms. Only 3 percent of the U.S. population lives on farms and enough agricultural writers cannot be recruited from that small part of the population, he added.

Billingsley, who grew up on a farm in Goreville, said he went to the University of Illinois to become a paleontologist, but decided he didn't want to take so many science courses. Though he said he didn't want to farm, he was most familiar with agriculture. So he specialized in agriculture communications; he calls that the best decision of his life.

A typography instructor at the U of I, Glen Hanson, taught Billingsley to be critical and cynical -- qualities that Billingsley feels are the best a journalist can have.

Billingsley says he isn't a "flowery" writer but he considers that an asset because he doesn't try to dazzle readers with fancy words.

"I'm pretty much a hick," he says. "I think like my readers think."

Billingsley worked two years at the Danville Commercial News before taking a position as agriculture writer at the State Journal-Register in Springfield. While at the Journal-Register, Ciba-Geigy Corp. named him the Newspaper Agriculture Writer of the Year for his article "Love in the Baryard," a feature comparing the mating habits of different farm animals. In 1979, he was cited for the best series of farm columns by the U.S. Newspaper Farm Editors of America.

When his father became ill, Billingsley moved back to Southern Illinois, along with his wife, Pam. Billingsley began working as public information specialist for the School of Agriculture and took care of the Goreville farm at nights and on weekends until his father recovered.

His work at SIU is more relaxing than at his former positions, Billingsley said. "I like to wear blue jeans and torn-up tennis shoes (to work)," he says cheerfully.

Besides writing Country Columnist, Billingsley supervises the agriculture communication interns and is an adjunct instructor in agriculture education and mechanization.

Some journalists tend to follow the pack and write about what everyone else is writing about. But agriculture, he said has many facets, including politics, business, forestry and conservation.

Billingsley said two types of farm stories are written so often that he is tired of them.

One is about the farmer rising at the rooster's crow, climbing into the dusty old pickup and driving off in the sunrise to begin the day's work. That treatment is too stereotypical it "approaches racism," he said.

The other approach is an eloquent portrayal of farming as a noble occupation with no ugly side. "Farmers can be wrong," he says. "They're people too." In agriculture, as in any business, he said, not everything is beautiful.

Owner of Six Flags chain buys Marriott's Great America

CHICAGO (AP) -- Bally Manufacturing Corp., parent company of the world's second-largest operator of theme amusement parks, said Thursday it has agreed to buy Marriott Corp.'s Great America for $114.5 million.

The proposed purchase, outlined in a letter of intent signed Wednesday, would bring to seven the number of major theme parks operated by Six Flags Corp., a subsidiary of Chicago-based Bally.

Last year, nearly 100 million people visited Six Flags parks, producing record revenues of $300 million.

Attendance at Great America, located in 325 acres north of Chicago in Gurnee, has ranged from 2.4 million to 2.8 million people annually between May and September since it opened in 1976, according to Robert E. Mullane, Bally's chief executive officer.

Great America's rides, shows, shops and restaurants relate to the theme of the nation's heritage.

Mullane told a news conference that it would be "foolish to change anything major" at Great America, which will be renamed Six Flags Great America.

However, Mullane said some expansion was likely, including more live shows and the possible addition of a group of water-based amusements.

He predicted that most of Great America's 320 full-time employees and 3,000 part-time employees will remain once the proposed acquisition by Bally is completed, probably by late May or early June.

Early indicators show 1984 will be "just outstanding" for the amusement park industry, Mullane said, although weather is an unknown factor

"Morale is back," Mullane said. "They're (the public is) optimistic."

Business at amusement parks fell off in 1979 and 1980, but has started to come back in the last two years, Mullane said.

He said the proposed purchase shows Bally's "firm and long-term commitment to the amusement park" business.

"We have a track record of making major investments in continual improvements to our parks and look forward to building Great America into an even more exciting attraction than it is," he said.

"By acquiring this fine park, we have (gone) one step further in living up to our corporate theme: 'America's fun is Bally's business,'" Mullane said.

Simon supports peace academy; Percy cautious

By Phillip Fiorini
Staff Writer

U.S. Sen. Charles Percy is hedging on support for a National Peace Academy, while U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, one of 168 co-sponsors of HR 1291, said an academy "can't do any harm and might do some good."

Simon, D-Makanda, said Wednesday that for a small portion of the federal budget a peace academy can initiate talk about reconciling differences between the United States and other countries.

"An academy can talk about the practical ways to reconcile differences rather than promoting violent settlements of our conflicts," said Simon, who is trying to unseat the Willmette Republican senator.

Spokesman for Percy's foreign relations committee office, Alan Safran, said, however, that the senator believes existing programs such as the State Department and the foreign services schools have adequately performed the function of a peace academy.

An academy would design curriculum to teach conflict resolution in schools, or "institutionalize" peace by promoting training and research programs.

Proponents of the academy claim $20 million for creating a program is a small price to pay to promote peace, especially compared to the $190 billion the United States spent last year for defense. Opponents say that money is already being spent.

"The State Department has a mandate to resolve conflict and not provoke war," said Safran. "Peace is paramount to U.S. interests."

"It's not too much money to spend for peace," said Safran. "But the senator questions whether it's not money already being spent."

Percy remains uncommitted on a proposal that would create a national peace academy, though some constituents urged the senator to support the resolution, Safran said.

"The Senate has yet to address the resolution."

Simon said he feels an academy would strengthen the bargaining power of the United States and its policies to promote peace.

"In the international arena, too often we start shooting at each other rather than trying to settle our differences peacefully," he said.

Simon, a member of the Post-Secondary Education Subcommittee, disagrees, claiming an academy would be more than a substitute for the State Department and foreign service schools. The State Department advocates the policies of the administration and is not simply devoted to peace, he said.

He also said the country can afford to spend $20 million to create an academy specifically to promote peace.

"It's so important to study how to resolve conflict without going to war," Simon said. "We need to study the details of arms control, which presently is vastly understudied."

The bill would promote private sector support for the academy.

'Tricks of the trade' help production

by Terry Leveck
Staff Writer

Memories of departed loved ones are generally fond, but how cherished would the memories be if a loved one came back to haunt you? Charles Condomine finds out in "Blithe Spirit," by Noel Coward, which is running through Sunday in McLeod Theater.

Ruth Condomine (Veronica Ruth Petrillo) is Charles' wife of five years, but she still is a bit insecure about Charles' late wife, Elvira, who has died seven years before of a heart attack she suffered from laughing too hard at a British Broadcasting Corp. program.

When discussing Elvira with Charles in the first scene, Ruth insincerely comments that she would have liked to have met Elvira. Little does she know her insincere wish would become reality, or unreality.

Condomine (Rohan Quince) invites a spiritualist, Madame Arcati (Mary DeSalle Kevern), to his home for an after dinner seance in order to pick up some "tricks of the trade" for a book he is working on.

In the presence of the Condomine's close friends, Dr. Bradman (Alan Stevenson) and his wife Violet (Mary Fahey), Madame Arcati achieves an "ectoplasmic manifestation." Charles is the only one who can see it.

This manifestation is Elvira, who makes her appearance when Charles and Ruth are alone, and that's when the shenanigans begin. While Elvira is making rude comments about Ruth, Ruth is trying to calm down Charles because he is acting as if he is seeing a ghost. Poor Charles has one angry live wife and one playful, "blithe" dead wife.

The play is set in England in the 1950s, and the costumes, designed by Richard Boss, are magnificent. The illusion of Elvira is achieved with makeup and a beautiful blue-gray flowing gown.

Just why Elvira is called to the house is pondered throughout the play. Elvira's superior motive and her scheming to reach that goal backfires, and Charles seems to be doomed to have two nagging wives.

The humor is derived not only from Charles' situation, but also from a particularly comical characterization by Elizabeth Susan Cahill, who plays Edith, the Condomine's hyperactive young house servant.

Mary DeSalle Kevern also provoked laughter with her characterization of the eccentric Madame Arcati and the ritual she goes through to prepare for seances.

All the performances were convincing, and Rebecca O'Brien did a particularly fine job as a teasing, childish woman whose only desire is to have fun.

Quince, who has rendered many fine performances this season at both McLeod and at the Stage Company, effectively dealt with the problem of controlling two conversations. One to a figure only he could see and the other to his live wife.

Petrillo, also, was convincing in not being able to see the ghost, even though that character was physically on stage at the same time.

The play is quite worthy because of the need to reveal past occurrences to put the play into perspective. The script has a few problems, especially with Ruth's persistent denial of Elvira's presence and her continued misunderstanding when Charles is talking to Elvira.

However, director Cindy Totten, a graduate student in theater, kept the play moving as much as possible.

Special effects, by Cheryl Hall, should also be commended. The set was designed by graduate student Mike Banks, who also helped design the special effects.

It is a lengthy play, over two and a half hours, and the humor fades in the wearing situation. But Coward was not only trying to make a comedy, he was examining matrimonial relationships and insincerity.

This is McLeod Theater's last production of the season - a season which has had its ups and downs. This play falls in the middle of this season's success scale.

Faculty concert to show those who teach can also do

"Dancescapes," the spring faculty dance concert, will be performed at 8 p.m. Friday in Shryock Auditorium.

This year's program will feature seven dances. Dance faculty members Linda Costalik and Sallie Idoine, and graduate students David Zambrano and Jeff Gurley choreographed one dance each. A choreography class, consisting of predominantly undergraduates, choreographed two dances.

The show will represent mostly modern dance techniques, with a departure from traditional modern dance techniques in "Sweet Campaign" by Sallie Idoine, which has a '50s theme.

The 10 dancers who will perform represent faculty, graduate students and undergraduates.

Tickets are $4.50 before the show and $5.50 at the door.

Eisenreich put on disabled list

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Jim Eisenreich of the Minnesota Twins was placed on the 15-day disabled list Thursday to undergo treatment for a nervous disorder that has plagued him since he entered major league baseball two years ago.

"He had been getting along fine, but he's been very sluggish," said Tom Niece, Twins public relations director. "He's been very slow with the bat. We feel that the medication (Eisenreich is currently taking) is not the answer."

Eisenreich, 25, will undergo treatment as an outpatient at a Minneapolis-area hospital. The nervous disorder, which causes muscle twitching and hyperventilation, prompted him to temporarily quit baseball last season.

"We're going to have him undergo a new course of treatment," said Niece. "I think it's a therapy type of thing." As for the outfielder's return, he said: "We're optimistic, but we're far from confident."

Eisenreich was batting .259 with 27 at bats, two RBI and two stolen bases.

The Twins called up left-handed pitcher Ed Hodge from their Toledo farm team to replace him. Hodge has a 2-0 record in three starts.

Eisenreich got off to a good start as a rookie in 1982, playing well in the field and batting .303 in 34 games. But he was hospitalized in May for treatment of the disorder and sat out the rest of the season.

He tried a brief comeback last year, appearing in only two games before he went on the voluntary retired list May 27. He returned to his home in St. Cloud, Minn., about 65 miles northwest of Minneapolis, and played both amateur baseball and softball.

During the off-season, he sought help from Chicago hypnotist Harvey Miesel, who has treated other athletes.

Manager Billy Gardner said the team is hopeful that Eisenreich will be able to return to the lineup.

"We decided to do it now so he'll be with us the rest of the season," Gardner said. "He wants to play and we want him to play. He gets along with everybody. He had no problems."

Eisenreich could not be reached for comment. He has previously declined to talk with reporters.

Golfers aim for Gateway title

By George Pappas
Staff Writer

SIU-C golf Coach Mary Beth McGirr has had the same problem with both her men's and women's Saluki golf teams this year—inconsistency.

With the men's team finishing fifth in its conference tournament last weekend, it's time to see where the women will finish in the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference championship this weekend in Normal.

The women will play 54 holes of golf on Illinois State's home course. Par is a 73.

"Basically," McGirr said, "the favorite has to be Illinois State because for one, they won the GCAC last year, and also because they're playing on their home court."

McGirr is looking for her team to be consistent throughout the tournament.

"Our objective is to put ourselves in a position to win the first two rounds of the tournament," McGirr said. "and then to come back strong for the third one."

McGirr said she will use Lisa Bremer, who has a 79.23 average this spring, Barb Anderson (80.2), Lisa Kartheiser (81.5), Sue Arbogast (81.7) and Jill Bertram (83.0). Last year, Bremer tied for sixth in the GCAC, while Arbogast and Bertram tied for eighth. The Salukis finished third. This season, McGirr expects the team to finish second to JSU. She said Northern Iowa should finish a distant third.

ISU has beaten the Salukis in the two last outings they had together.

MUST Rent Summer or to obtain fall price. Even if you're not going to be here for summer, it would be cheaper in the long run to rent the house and to sublet. Having a summer house opens you the market.
1. Purchase storage
2. The expense of coming back to the city and lost money from time off from work.
3. Start work from campus back a week early to get your house set up. If you have a summer house, you can stay up north & work until the last day of your summer break.
4. Rent from the house and work around it more than equals your share of summer rent.

Playoff action heats up for IM divisions

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

The Intramural softball playoffs continue in two divisions while the ultimate frisbee playoffs start Sunday.

In softball, the finals of the men and co-rec B playoffs are scheduled for Monday. Six teams remain in the men's B playoffs.

Thursday's quarterfinal winner between the Depressives and Gotta Grow Up, both 10-0, face Busterhymen (8-2) in the semifinals Friday. Busterhymen defeated Cubangelsox 14-9, on Wednesday to advance to the semifinals.

In the other quarterfinal game, the winner between Saggenghemys (9-0) and the Slammers (7-2) meets the Skydogs (10-1). The Skydogs advanced to the semifinals by shooting down Ethan's Boys, 15-12. Ethan's Boys finished at 5-1.

In co-rec B, three quarterfinal games were slated for Thursday. The matchups include the No Names (7-1) playing Neomanoids (5-3), the Goonyghous (8-0) playing the Spoofters (5-3), and the Wasinyas playing Ace's Angels (4-0). The Wasinyas-Ace's Angels winner faces the Phi Sigs (7-2), who defeated Utopia 7-5 Wednesday.

Ultimate Frisbee concluded its regular season on Thursday in four divisions, men's A and B, and co-rec A and B. All 17 ultimate frisbee teams will advance to the playoffs.

In other recreational sports activities, the Canoe Races and Obstacle Course was held Wednesday and the 3.1-mile Annual Bunny Run was held Tuesday.

In the canoe race, the winner of the men's division was the tandem of Dale Cooney and Mike Yuan, who finished the 206-yard race in 1:32. The second-place finisher was Nick Kirby and Bill Hagler (1:39).

The women's winner was Amy Sobiech and Adrienne Wesol (1:44.5) and Joadie Hawkins and Joan Sullivan finished in second place (1:57.2). The co-rec winner was Don Matulka and Wesol (1:38.55), while Hawkins and Randy Johnson finished second (1:46.34).

In the obstacle course, Mark Schwartz and John Dini won the men's division (1:59.44). Sobiech and Wesol took the women's division (2:13.17), and Steve Balas and Kathy Letko won the co-rec (2:11.07).

In the bunny run, Bill Moran and Robyn Lee were the overall winners and finished closest to their predicted time in the men's and women's division, respectively.

Moran ran the race in 17 minutes and came within 30 seconds of his predicted time (17:30). Lee ran the event in 27:52 time and her predicted time was 26 minutes. She finished fifth overall in the race. Tom Strachan finished second overall (18:08) and Gordon Pitz was third (20:05).

White Sox lose

CLEVELAND (AP) - Brook Jacoby hit a tie-breaking home run in the eighth inning Thursday to give the Cleveland Indians their fourth consecutive victory, 5-4 over the Chicago White Sox.

Jacoby's shot to left off Ron Reed, 0-2, his second homer of the year, sent the White Sox down to their fifth loss in six games.

Women to compete in 2 meets

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

The SIUC women's track team will split up this weekend, with nine of the athletes performing in the 75th annual Drake Relays and the rest of the team competing in the Parkland Midwest meet at Champaign.

Three Saluki individuals and two relay teams have qualified for the Drake Relays, which will be held Friday and Saturday. The Drake Relays will attract more than 3,000 men and women athletes from all over the country and many individuals and relay teams are looking to qualify for the NCAA outdoor championships.

Saluki Coach Don DeNoon said the 18,000-seat Drake Stadium will probably be sold out Friday afternoon and Saturday.

"There is no meet quite like this," said DeNoon, who used to coach at Drake. "This is the granddaddy of them all."

Entered in the meet from SIUC are Rhonda McCausland in the shot put and discus, Cynthia Joy and Laurie Dvorak in the javelin, and two relay teams, the 800-meter medley and the 4x400.

The 800 medley team should consist of Jennifer Bartley, Cathy Davis, Denise Blackman and anchor Debra Davis, who will run the final 400-meters. Bartley and Cathy Davis will each run a leg of 100-meters and Blackman will run a 200-meter leg. The 4x400 should consist of Debra Davis, Karen Cooper, Tammy Talbert, and Blackman.

DeNoon said he is hoping McCausland can qualify for the nationals in the shot put, which requires a distance of 50 feet. McCausland's best effort is 48.35.

DeNoon said he would like to see the Salukis run a 3:46 in the 4x400. The race could center on the performances of Blackman and Cooper. Blackman has recovered from her hamstring injury, but Cooper has been stricken with a virus and has missed two days of practice this week.

DeNoon predicts a 1:38 is going to win the 800 medley relay.

"One of the events I think we should do really good in is the 800 medley relay," said DeNoon. "We should be competitive in that race."

DeNoon thinks the athletes will have a harder time winning an event in the Drake Relays than in the NCAA meet.

"When athletes attend the national championships the pressure is off," DeNoon said. "Most of the athletes are happy shooting for second or third place. But in this type of meet the majority of the athletes are hoping they can win it."

"If our kids can run their best I think we can break some school records. I hope we can continue to improve and have some personal bests this weekend."

Sutton, Fingers team up, lead Brewers to victory

MILWAUKEE (AP) -- Don Sutton and Rollie Fingers scattered seven hits and Paul Molitor had three hits to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a 2-1 victory over the California Angels Thursday afternoon.

Sutton, 2-2, walked one and struck out four before being relieved in the eighth by Fingers, who struck out the side in the ninth en route to his third save. Tommy John, 1-2, was the loser.

Milwaukee went up 1-0 in the fourth when Mark Brouhard singled to center, advanced to second on Ed Romero's groundout and scored on Rick Manning's single off the glove of shortstop Dick Schofield.

The Brewers added another run in the fifth when Cecil Cooper doubled and scored on Jim Sundberg's double to right off John.

California scored in the sixth on Doug DeCinces' double that drove in Fred Lynn, who had singled.

Corso seeks rankings, recruit exposure at NIU

DE KALB (AP) -- Northern Illinois University football coach Lee Corso says there's no reason the Huskies cannot crack the top 20 in the national rankings.

"I think the goal of any team at this level has got to be to make the top 25 in the nation, and then the top 20," said the first-year NIU coach who winds up spring practice with a scrimmage Saturday. "Maybe not every week or every year, but we want to get at that level."

The Huskies have had only four winning seasons since stepping up to major college competition in 1969 and have never been nationally ranked. Last year, they were Mid-American Conference champions and had a victory in the California bowl.

Corso said NIU is close enough to Chicago, that media coverage could help present a national image.

Corso had six winning seasons in 14 years at Louisville and Indiana before replacing Bill Mallory at Northern Illinois last January.

The new coach wants to see additional facilities at NIU such as enlarged meeting and training rooms. He also wants to recruit nationally to get more players at skilled positions, players he says he believes are not readily available in the immediate area.

"Maybe some of the money already available just has to be utilized in different ways, but it wouldn't require that much more," he said.

THE PARAGON GROUP

Clark sidelined with back injury

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

Sunny Clark will not pitch this weekend when the SIU-C softball team travels to Indiana State and Illinois State for a pair of Gateway conference doubleheaders.

Clark has a strained lower back and is out indefinitely.

That will give four starting assignments to sophomore Eileen Maloney, who has pitched only seven of the Salukis' 23 games. Maloney is 2-4, and is yielding more than two earned runs per game. The Salukis have only two pitchers.

The Salukis hope to have Clark back for the conference tournament, which begins May 3.

Without her, the Salukis still managed to split a doubleheader at Southeast Missouri Wednesday. SIU-C lost the opener 4-1, but Maloney bounced back and won the nightcap 4-0. It was the first career shutout for the right-hander.

SIU-C is 9-14, but has won five of its last seven games. The team heads into Gateway action this weekend with a 3-6 conference mark.

The Saluki hitters kept their momentum going at Southeast Missouri, collecting 12 hits on the afternoon.

In the opener, SIU-C took a 1-0 lead in the fourth, but SEMO tied it in the third inning, and put the game away with three runs in the sixth inning. SEMO used three hits, a walk and an error by shortstop Tonya Lindsey to clinch the victory.

The Salukis had scored in the first on singles by Lindsey, Chris Brewer and Pam Flens. Lindsey was two for four, including a leadoff triple in the fifth inning. Toni Grounds had one hit and stole a base.

SIU-C backed Maloney in the second game with seven hits, and scored three runs in the fourth and one in the fifth. Lindsey went three for four and Grounds added a pair of hits.

SIU-C will play doubleheaders at Illinois State Friday and at Indiana State Saturday. Those games will round out the team's conference schedule.

entertainment business and "be my own boss," he said.

But first, he'll try another time at professional football, either the National Football League or the USFL.

"I don't want to second guess myself later on if I don't give myself one more shot at the pros," Foster said.

Foster has two goals left that he would like to meet before he leaves SIU-C. One is to win the MVC, something the Salukis have come close to a couple of times but have never done. The second is to win back-to-back I-AA titles, which would be a first in Division I-AA history.

"Winning it the first time is nice," Foster said. "I wouldn't want to pass up a chance to be able to do it twice."

comings at the plate this year was their four-game series with Bradley, in which Creighton mustered just three hits.

The Salukis, 3-3 MVC mark, 13-18 overall, have also struggled at the plate this year. As a team, SIU-C is hitting .261. The Salukis have failed to get consistent hitting from the middle of the batting order, Coach Itchy Jones said.

"To win, you need to have six or seven guys hitting consistently, with the others contributing some other way," Jones said.

Jones' No. 3 hitter, Scott Bridges, has been over the .350 mark all year, and currently owns a .374 average, best among the regulars.

Mike Blumhorst, a 310 hitter in his junior season last year, struggled to reach the .200 mark for most of the season, but he's been warming up of late. He hit two home runs at Evansville Tuesday to bring his RBI total to 18, third-best on the team behind Robert Jones (28) and Bridges (25).

Creighton's top hitters are

Jones said he'll probably start Gary Bockhorn (3-5, 5.01) and Rich Koch (2-1, 4.82) in Saturday's games. Sunday, he'll go with a pair of freshmen, Lee Meyer (4-1, 4.23) and Todd Neibel (0-1, 9.49). Neibel had his best outing of the season

Wednesday against Eastern Illinois.

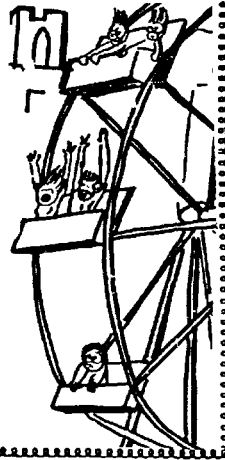

Jay Bellissimo, the Salukis' No. 2 starter, will probably miss the series. He's still hobbled with an ankle injury suffered two weeks ago.

Creighton will pitch its top two starters Sunday, since they were used in Wednesday's double-header with Nebraska. They are left-handers Dave Hartnett (5-1, 2.53) and Tom Drees (2-4, 4.15). Hartnett won the two games Creighton took from Nebraska this year.

SALUKI NOTES: The Salukis are 3-10 in one-run games this year. Their three conference losses have each been by one run... After the Creighton series, SIU-C travels to Illinois Wednesday for a non-conference double-header in Champaign.

Kenny Foster (76) ranked third on the Salukis last year with 116 tackles while posting a team-leading 14 tackles-for-losses.

Foster's future in doubt as scrimmage day nears

By Jim Lexa
Sports Editor

Last year when SIU-C stormed opponents on its way to the I-AA football championship, defensive right tackle Kenny Foster keyed the Salukis' ferocious pass rush.

The defense sacked opposing quarterbacks 60 times while SIU-C recorded a 13-1 record. The pass rush enabled the secondary to intercept a team-record 41 aerials and helped set the offense up for its 40-yard touchdown drives.

As the Salukis' Maroon and White Game at 10 a.m. Saturday nears, Foster is now in what he calls a "state of limbo."

In December, he thought the I-AA title game would be his last as a Saluki. In January, he thought he had a chance to sign with and play for the New Orleans Breakers of the United States Football League. In late January, he learned he might have one more year of collegiate eligibility. He'll find out for sure on May 16 from the Missouri Valley Conference.

His eligibility status concerns how much, or how little, he played as a freshman. If he played in 20 percent of the team's games or less, then he is eligible. If he didn't, then he is not. It's sounds simple, but it isn't. Foster played sparingly his freshman year, and his tour of duty consisted of playing on the special teams. How often he played is the big question.

For now, Foster practices with the team, where he regained the No. 1 spot on right tackle this week after losing it the first week of practice when he injured his shoulder.

Foster's future is up in the air. He has only one certainty. He will start at right tackle for the White team in Saturday's game. After Saturday, he will have a three-week wait for an answer on his eligibility status.

"I wouldn't be out here if I didn't think I had a chance to play next year," Foster said.

If Foster isn't able to play, then he'll try to graduate in December with a bachelor's degree in administrative sciences. He wants to go into the

Cagers need freshmen for long-term success

In collegiate sports, the quick-fix formula is used to build a winning team in a hurry. And it has been established at SIU-C.

When coaches are hired to resurrect a dying sports program, they will recruit junior college players and transfers from four-year institutions to try to achieve success within a couple years. Then the coaches usually build on that success by recruiting top-rated high school seniors, often signing them to acquire a sense of stability and building the team into a power.

But at SIU-C, that is not the case with the men's basketball team.

With the signing of another junior college basketball player, SIU-C Coach Allen Van Winkle has made it clear that he cannot sign quality high school players to join his team.

THIS SEASON, he signed Steve Middleton, a 6-2 senior guard from Brooklyn, N.Y., during the early signing period in November. Since the second signing period, which began April 10, Van Winkle has signed only two players, both of them juncos.

Van Winkle's 12-man roster this year had one freshman walk-on and 10 transfers. Seven of the transfers were juniors and three were redshirted the year before.

What Van Winkle needs is about three top-notch freshmen. He needed to sign them this year, so when the seven seniors leave the team after next year he will have players who can fill the gap and make the transition somewhat smoothly.

HE ALSO needs a good point guard, someone who can pass and dribble the ball exceptionally well. Last season, the squad's major weakness was at the point, where Van Winkle had hoped he could get by with Roy Birch.

From the Press Box

Jim Lexa

Birch, though, played forward at Coffeyville (Kan.) Junior College, and is primarily a shooting guard, not a point guard. Switching him to the ballhandling chores did not solve the problem.

His dribbling and passing abilities are not good enough to play the point, and it showed when Van Winkle tried two other players at the point, hoping that one of them would work out.

They didn't, and Van Winkle will probably still be searching for a quality point guard when practice begins in November. He said that Middleton can play the point. Middleton, however, did not play the point last season. Like Birch he is a shooting guard.

ALTHOUGH VAN WINKLE needs freshmen to provide stability on the team, this was the year he should have been able to have a good recruiting year from the high schools. SIU-C had its first winning season in four years with a 15-13 mark, which, incidentally, was the same record as the 1978-79 team. Only once have the Salukis gone through four consecutive losing seasons, and that streak took place more than 50 years ago.

The program appears to be on the upswing after the Salukis won a total of just 20 games in the two years before. SIU-C was even competitive in the Missouri Valley Conference. Granted, the Valley isn't the Atlantic Coast Conference, but it has been a long time since the Salukis had a shot at finishing in the top three in the conference.

IF THE team could've won a couple more games in the last minute instead of losing them, the Salukis would've finished third instead of fifth in the MVC. SIU-C played well against Tulsa despite losing, and beat Illinois State, Wichita State and Creighton at the Arena. Tulsa and ISU made it to the NCAA tournament, while Wichita State and Creighton received bids to the National Invitational Tournament.

Perhaps it wasn't so funny when Van Winkle was asked at the team's first press conference last November if the Salukis could make it to the NIT. The squad was probably just four wins away from an NIT bid, and four SIU-C losses could easily have gone the other way.

WITH THE reputation as a team on the rise, Van Winkle may have set the team back. That probably won't happen next year, when seven seniors will lead the squad into each game, but the program will be in bad shape in the next couple years after that.

In two years, Van Winkle will not have more than two experienced sophomores on his team, and he will probably keep reaching back into the juco market for players to once again resurrect his basketball program.

The quick-fix formula has been established at SIU-C. It almost worked this time. It appears, however, that the quick-fix will be around for a long time.

Baseball team to host Creighton

By Daryl Van Schoewen
Staff Writer

Weather permitting, the Saluki baseball team will play host to Creighton in a "win" of Missouri Valley Conference double-headers this weekend. The action is set for noon Saturday and Sunday at Abe Martin Field.

Mother Nature has wreaked havoc on the MVC's first round-robin schedule, causing 20 of 48 scheduled games to be rained out. Last weekend, eight of the 12 games were scrubbed, including SIU-C's four-game set at Wichita State.

None of the rainouts will be made up, putting the 1984 conference tournament format in jeopardy. The plan calls for the top four teams to play a double-elimination tourney at the site of the regular-season champion (based on winning percentage), but since such a large number of games were rained out, the league may decide to allow all six teams in.

Creighton has been victimized more than any other team. The Bluejays, 18-14 overall, have played just four Valley contests, all losses. They occupy the cellar in the standings.

Creighton, which has had a frustrating year, received the resignation of Coach Dave Underwood this week, amid some degree of unrest among his players.

Assistant Jim Hendry has taken over. According to Creighton sports information, Underwood resigned because of conflicts with his players. Underwood recorded a 124-82 mark in his four years at Creighton. The Jays went 39-17 last year and reached the nation's top-30 rankings three separate times during the season.

Unfortunately for Underwood and the Bluejays, six of the team's top eight hitters were lost to graduation this year, and nobody has picked up the slack in 1984. Typical of their short-

Relay team seeks 3rd triple crown race

By David Wilhelm
Staff Writer

In search of the elusive intercollegiate track and field triple crown, the SIU-C 1,600-meter relay team and Coach Lew Hartzog travel to Des Moines, Iowa, this weekend to compete in the 75th annual Drake Relays.

The Saluki relay team, of Parry Duncan, Tony Adams, Elvis Forde and Mike Franks will be trying to accomplish something no other Saluki individual or team has ever done.

The triple crown consists of winning the same event at each of three Relays - the Texas, Kansas and Drake relays. Duncan, Adams, Forde and Franks are undefeated in the outdoor season and have been beaten only once in the indoor season. That defeat was at the NCAA Indoor Championships. The foursome won last weekend at the Kansas Relays with a time of 3:07.59.

Good weather is what the Salukis are hoping for this weekend. Last weekend at Kansas they competed in windy, wet and cold conditions. Hartzog described it as being "as bad of weather as I've ever been in at a track meet." Fortunately, no Saluki was injured and the team heads into the meet at full strength.

The Relays will feature many of the nation's top athletes. Nine of the top 18 squads, three individual champions and 20 place winners from the indoor championships will be there.

Hartzog will use the 1,600 relay quartet in the 4x100 and 4x200 relays unless slightly injured Mark Hill is ready to run. Adams, who has not been running the shorter relay events because of a slight groin injury, may be forced to replace Hill.

Other Saluki entries will be Sam Nwosu in the 400 intermediate hurdles, John Smith in the shot put and discus, Andy Geiger in the pole vault, Stephen Wray in the high jump, Edison Wedderburn in the 5,000 and Mike Keane in the 10,000. The Salukis will also compete in the distance medley event. Mike Elliott, Dave Lamont, Wedderburn and either Hill or Nwosu will make up the team.

Alabama and Iowa State are expected to be strong performers at the Relays. Alabama will be trying to defend three relay championships - the 4x100, 4x800 and the sprint medley. The Crimson Tide set meet records in the latter two events with times of 7:15.22 and 3:12.19.

Iowa State finished fourth in the indoor championships.
