USO winners announced; Phoenix dispute continues

By Cynthia Weiss
Staff Writer

Phoenix Party presidential and vice presidential candidates Tony Appleman and Tracy Stone received 536 of 1,528 votes cast in the April 18 Undergraduate Student Organization election, outdistancing Independent Party candidates Dan DeFosse and Mark Case by 215 votes and write-in candidates Stuart Lowrey and Mark Skowronski by 265 votes.

But whether Appleman and Stone — along with eight

Phoenix senators-elect — will take office remains to be seen.

Lamont Brantley, who said Tuesday that he and the other seven members of the election commission had resigned over a dispute with the Judicial Board for Governance, said Thursday that the election commission has not resigned and will pursue an appeal of the Judicial Board's decision.

On April 16 the election commission disqualified the Phoenix Party from the election after receiving a number of campaign violation complaints. The Judicial Board for Governance overturned that decision Monday.

Brantley, chairman of the election commission, said he will take his appeal to the senate Wednesday. The senate decision will stand, Brantley said, because appeals can go no further.

If the election commission wins its appeal, Appleman, Stone and the rest of the Phoenix Party will be back where they were — out in the cold. DeFosse and Case, who

Deans agree salary plan is a paradox

By Karen Wiltberger
Staff Writer

Deans of the University's 10 schools and colleges agree that a five-year plan to enhance faculty salaries through attrition is a paradox.

While the goal of the plan is to bring up faculty salaries to the level of those at comparable universities, it will reduce the number of faculty positions, which will shrink colleges and schools and leave the University wide open for program eliminations, they say.

The plan, initiated by John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs and research, calls for 2 percent annual faculty salary increases in addition to annual state increases for the next five years.

THE FUNDS will be generated from a 2 percent annual trimming of internal budgets through attrition, to be decided by the deans of the individual colleges and schools.

About $675,000 generated through attrition will be used to increase faculty salaries in Fiscal Year 1986, the first year of the plan, said Ernest Lewis, associate vice president for academic affairs and research. He declined to release a breakdown of attrition-faculty salary increase figures per school and college without the permission of Guyon, who was in Chicago Thursday.

But as deans cut faculty or downgrade or keep the emptied faculty positions vacant, a clear indication develops as to the impact each school and college faces in FY '86.

THE COLLEGE of Liberal Arts will have to make perhaps the most adjustments while the College of Engineering and Technology, in fact, will add 10 faculty members this fall, the deans say.

"We're kind of like the goose laying a golden egg," said Kenneth Tempelmeyer, dean of the College of Engineering and Technology, which has received $1.2 million in state funds to develop engineering programs.

Tempelmeyer said the state expansion funds will cover the 2 percent tax and, in addition, will allow the college to add 10 faculty members to the current 72.

"FOR US, the pain begins next year," Tempelmeyer said, referring to the start of dwindling state funds. "We're not going to see increases for a while."

He said that by the end of five years, the college, in which enrollment has doubled in nearly six years, will inevitably have to eliminate some of the faculty positions now being created, Tempelmeyer said.

James Light, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, on the other end of the spectrum, said he has two alternatives this year — to "swiftly destroy" or "slowly bleed" certain programs from some of the 13 departments.

"So far, I have not been willing to destroy," he said. "So the programs are slowly bleeding."

AT THIS POINT, the English and math departments have the most term faculty members, from which See DEANS, Page 16

German parliament supports visit by Reagan

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Parliament Thursday rejected a motion to cancel President Reagan's visit to a German military cemetery and a popular magazine blamed opposition to the trip on "the influence of Jews" in the United States.

In Washington, a spokesman for the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith called the Quick magazine comment on opposition to the Bitburg cemetery visit the kind of "straight-out anti-Semitism" that led to the Holocaust.

The Greens, a small opposition party, sought to drop the Bitburg cemetery from the itinerary of Reagan's May state visit because soldiers buried there include 47 members of Adolf Hitler's elite Waffen SS.

Meanwhile, President Reagan met with his Cabinet and top aides over lunch

Thursday to review plans for his European economic summit trip as Jewish leaders called for a "day of mourning" to mark his visit to Bitburg.

Almost 200 members of Congress signed a letter to West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl saying the planned visit "had the unintended effect of reopening painful wounds here" and urged Kohl to reconsider the invitation to Reagan.

Gus says he wonders how Reagan will dig himself out of this one.

Fighting flares near Sidon; president meets for talks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Some 200 Palestinian fighters stormed a southern Christian village Thursday, burning homes and sending residents fleeing, as rival militias battled in downtown Beirut. At least seven people died in violence nationwide. The fighting flared while president Amin Gemayel met outside the capital with Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy for talks on restoring "stability and peace" in Lebanon. Military sources said the fighters stormed into the hillside Christian village of Darb El Sim, near Sidon, a day after the Christian Lebanese forces militia pulled 450 of its men out of the area.

Student arrested during apartheid protest

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Police Thursday arrested 27 University of Florida students who chained shut the front door of an administration building during a protest of the school's investments in apartheid South Africa. About 150 youths were protesting for the second day on the front steps of Tigert Hall when some students pushed past university police and bolted together the building's double front doors with a lock and chain. A dozen officers rushed from the basement and started making the arrests, handcuffing the students and forcing them into a university bus that took them to jail.

American rescued from Soviet-seized ship

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U.S. Coast Guard cutter Thursday rescued an American fishery official who was aboard a Japanese fishing vessel seized by a Soviet Navy icebreaker in the Bering Sea off Alaska, the State Department reported. Department spokesman Bernard Kalb reported Wednesday that Kruppenbach was aboard the Japanese fishing vessel Fukuhou Maru when it was stopped by a Soviet naval vessel and ordered to follow it to a Siberian port.

N.Y. police arraigned on brutality charges

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two more police officers were arraigned Thursday on charges of torturing drug suspects with a stun gun and the entire 18-man top command of a city precinct was transferred in a growing brutality scandal. Gov. Mario Cuomo ordered a state investigation of the incidents, saying something was "terribly wrong" in the precinct. Four officers have been charged with brutality in the Queens precinct — dubbed the "torture precinct" by the press — and have been suspended without pay.

More charges made against murder suspect

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Witnesses say a narcotics trafficker accused in the murder of a U.S. drug agent "tortured and killed" two other Americans who wandered into a restaurant where he was eating, U.S. Ambassador John Gavin said Thursday. John Walker, 35, of Minneapolis, Minn., and Alberto Radelat, 33, of Fort Worth, Tex., disappeared Jan. 30 or Jan. 31 in the city of Guadalajara, 300 miles north of Mexico City.

Only part of waste sites to get funds before fall

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Only 10 percent of the toxic waste sites included in the government's Superfund cleanup operation will receive money before the first phase of the program ends this fall, environmentalists said Thursday. The report by the National Campaign Against Toxic Hazards said 708 sites in 48 states have not yet received Superfund money from the Environmental Protection Agency to finance their cleanup efforts.

Business productivity worst since 1982

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. business productivity fell 1.2 percent in the first three months of the year the worst quarter since the 1982 recession, the Labor Department said Thursday. Increased Social Security taxes temporarily raised labor costs, accounting for some of the deterioration, the department said. The decline in the output per hour of 83 million workers followed a fourth quarter in which productivity went up 2.2 percent and a year in which it improved 2.7 percent.

Legislators say officials illegally occupy canal

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — Opposition congressmen charged Thursday that government officials are illegally occupying canal zone property which was turned over to Panama by the United States. Christian Democratic legislator Guillermo Cochez said officials of the ruling Democratic Revolutionary Party were illegally occupying homes in the canal zone. Many buildings in the zone, including administrative offices and houses formally used by U.S. personnel, have been returned to the Panamanian government as part of the 1977 canal treaties signed by former president Jimmy Carter.

'Bagel man' continues despite city ordinance

By Jeff Curl
Staff Writer

"Bagel man" Jim McFadden, forced off South Illinois Avenue in Carbondale after 8 p.m. because of the city's enforcement of a food vendor's ordinance, sold bagels Wednesday night in front of the old Das Fass bar after getting permission from the bar's owner.

McFadden's night was not uninterrupted, however. He was at one time taken to the Carbondale Police Department for questioning, then released.

McFadden said he investigated the 1976 ordinance, (which says food vendors may not stay on South Illinois Avenue between 8 p.m. and 8 a.m.) with help from City manager Bill Dixon. McFadden found out that the ordinance does not pertain to food vendors on private property.

McFadden then asked

James Cleland, owner of Das Fass, 517 S. Illinois Ave., if he could set up his cart in the courtyard of the closed bar.

Cleland said he let McFadden sell bagels on his property because he didn't care about what the city is doing to the food vendors.

McFadden said he was questioned by the police, but after he assured police officials that being at Das Fass was legal, he was taken back to his cart.

"It was a polite mistake. They were pretty good about it," said McFadden, referring to the police.

John A. Miller, manager of El Greco's restaurant, 516 S. Illinois Ave., said he has no complaints about McFadden selling in Das Fass's courtyard. Miller said he wouldn't care if the street vendors were allowed back on South Illinois Avenue, but carts should be required to be a certain distance from buildings.

Oldest artificial heart recipient dies at age 62

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Artificial heart patient Jack Burcham died after blood collecting in his chest squeezed a remnant of his natural heart and stopped the flow into his mechanical heart, doctors said Thursday.

Blood backed up into Burcham's lungs and when his blood pressure dropped to zero, the Jarvik-7 heart was turned off at 8:48 p.m. Wednesday — 10 days after it was implanted.

Dr. Allan M. Lansing, chairman of the Humana Heart Institute, said the surprise complication may have been related to Burcham's weak kidneys plus the administration of anti-clotting drugs.

Burcham, at 62 the oldest of the world's five permanent artificial heart recipients, died at Humana Hospital Audubon where he had received his plastic and metal Jarvik-7 heart April 14.

The families of Audubon's two other Jarvik-7 patients, Murray Haydon, 58, who received his new heart Feb. 17, and five-month Jarvik-7 veteran Bill Schroeder, 53, were informed of Burcham's death before it was announced by Audubon.

The other two persons who received mechanical heart patients were Barney Clark who died two years ago at the age 62 after living 112 days with a Jarvik-7 in his chest and Leif Stenberg, 52, who received one April 7 in Stockholm and is recuperating.

Audubon said Burcham's body would be returned to his hometown of Le Roy, Ill., for burial.

"Everyone deserves a chance to live and this was his," said Burcham's son, Jack, 41.

"As far as any regrets about the operation — absolutely not," he said. "If you're asking should the Jarvik-7 be scrapped? Absolutely not — it should go on. It should definitely go on."

Dr. William C. Devries, who performed all four of the permanent artificial heart implants done in America, said Burcham's death would not prompt a change in the federally approved guidelines for selecting mechanical heart candidates.

"If we find a patient like Jack Burcham, we'll do it again," Devries said.

Confusion reigns supreme at USO

WHO'S ON FIRST? WHAT'S ON SECOND? Who's in charge at the Undergraduate Student Organization?

The answers to the first two questions are academic, the answer to the third is a mystery. In an election marked by incompetence and petty personality conflicts, the only thing clear about who won last week's election — beside the fact that the results have been kept secret — is that there probably aren't too many people that even care.

The fiasco began, predictably enough, just when the campaign season was drawing to a close. Less than a week before the April 18 USO elections took place, charges ranging from improper use of USO materials to harassment to shabby campaign practices — placing bumper stickers on unwitting motorists' vehicles — were filed with the USO Election Commission.

Two days before the election, the commission, led by former USO presidential candidate Lamont Brantley, ruled Tony Appleman and the Phoenix Party disqualified from the election. Confusion prevailed the next day at the USO with Appleman — because he had received no official notice, in writing — insisting that he was still eligible and the commission insisting otherwise.

WITH NO ONE QUITE SURE what the Phoenix Party's status was, USO President Andy Leighton, himself running unopposed for the student trustee position, stepped in and hastily called the Judicial Board into session. The election went on as scheduled, but the results were withheld, pending resolution of the dispute.

The Judicial Board has maintained that it has the final say in the matter, and earlier this week it overturned the commission's ruling disqualifying the Phoenix Party from the election. The Election Commission, stinging from this apparent insult, resigned en masse.

Leighton — because he has received no official written notice of the commission's resignation, maintains that the commission still exists. Sound familiar?

The latest word is that Appleman has won and that the commission has in fact not resigned. Apparently, the commission will now appeal to the USO Senate the Judicial Board's decision to not disqualify the Phoenix Party. Figure it all out.

A week after the election, it is as unclear as before just who the new USO president is. But judging from the USO's track record and tradition of Chicago-style election antics, not many SIU-C students will hold their breath waiting to find out.

With all the manipulation and secrecy, one might think that the USO is a fledgling Daley Machine, if only it was devious enough. More than likely, it's simply a case of the blind leading the blind. Those involved are hurting no one but themselves with their Clouseau-like behavior.

THEIR ALREADY LESS-THAN-ENVIUS CREDIBILITY rating with the student body, as witnessed by the predictably low voter turnout, will in all likelihood slip further as a result of the election mess.

Withholding the election results has only compounded the USO's credibility problem. It can only be hoped that once the dust has finally settled and a winner is determined, that person has the ability and integrity to give the USO the credibility it so badly needs.

Gays immoral in God's eye

Homosexuality is a problem for all people. Society has been so lulled into the "do your own thing" movement that we have lost sight of the fact that homosexuality is morally wrong and is the deceptive teaching of a twisted society.

It is unnatural, an abomination to god, and to those who realize this, it is a responsibility to be made known as such.

Gay people are God's children, and while hating the scent of their immorality, He still loves them very much.

Outrageous college tenure system protects lazy, incompetent faculty

To the University Professionals of SIU officers who bought a half-page ad to express dismay over lack of job security for tenured faculty:

Someone should take tenure out behind the barn, shoot it dead, and give it a decent burial. And when an administrator at SIU-C enforces proper standards and actually fires a tenured faculty member for unsatisfactory job performance, a special awards ceremony should be held to commemorate this courageous and rare event.

Tenure was originally conceived to protect faculty who express controversial opinions or engage in unpopular research and writing so that they could not be fired at the whim of a disagreeing superior.

Unfortunately, tenure has been abused over the years to the point that it now serves little purpose other than to guarantee lifetime employment to incompetent, non-productive faculty, as well as those worth retaining.

No private industry could survive economically if it guaranteed employment to competent and incompetent personnel alike, yet that is exactly how universities operate under the tenure system.

Some tenured faculty at SIU-C and other universities should be terminated. It's been years since they've engaged in meaningful research and writing; their classroom lectures are based on outdated, yellowed notes that are recycled each semester, and they are about as dynamic academically as wet socks.

They do not present at national conferences, publish articles in respected national journals, author books sold by bonafide publishing companies, or develop and implement creative, innovative teaching approaches. Yet some of these individuals are very highly paid.

To check their salaries, go to the Education Library on Morris Library's Fourth Floor and ask for the "Faculty Salary List" (The salary of every faculty person at SIU-C is a matter of public record).

While some faculty at SIU-C are seriously underpaid, you'll find many tenured faculty—both competent and incompetent—earning over $35,000 per year for nine months work. And don't fall for the argument that "faculty use the other three months for research and writing"—those tenured deadwood who should be terminated don't do research and writing.

Students at every level know who these faculty are—they suffer daily under their non-creative, uninspiring, lifeless, ineffective teaching. And creative, productive faculty readily identify incompetent, tenured administrators by their low tolerance for effective teaching and research, their insecurity and defensive reactions when in the presence of truly competent faculty (both tenured and non-tenured), and low ratings received when faculty do periodic "peer" performance evaluations.

Yet problematic, ineffective faculty executives often are conveniently "transferred" or "reassigned" to comparatively obscure positions—or even classroom teaching—with their prior administrative salary fully intact.

Selected university programs serve as cemetaries for tenured faculty who have been ousted from somewhere but cannot be fired due to tenure. They are merely shuffled from one position to another within the system until they retire or pass away, whichever occurs first.

Some progressive universities are doing away with the tenure system. If SIU-C would do the same, the quality of education could improve markedly.

But have no fear—politics, favoritism, fear of lawsuits, conflicts of interest and evaluation of performance based on factors having nothing to do with competency undoubtedly will guarantee that the tenure system remains in effect at SIU-C and most other universities.

Return of rec center hours an improvement

Public thanks are in order to the people who found a way to respond to my letter of the beginning of this month.

You may recall that I was extremely upset at the cut in Student Recreation Center hours.

Well, last night I was informed that a solution has been worked out. As of April 22, the SRC will be open in the evenings until 10 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

While this is not a full restoration of the lost time, it does represent a substantial improvement over the original cuts and is therefore deserving of public mention.

Now if we can only work out something for the basketball team. —Keith Adams, Graduate Student, Geology.

Letters Policy

Signed articles, including letters, Viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, whose members are the student-editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a Journalism School faculty member.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by mail or directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten, double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters of less than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters submitted by mail should include the author's address and telephone number. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Education graduates enter bright market

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

Not only are the days of teacher oversupply past, but in the view of the president of the nation's largest teacher association, the United States is on the verge of a shortage of elementary and secondary teachers unless steps are taken to draw more people into the profession.

But authorities on teacher education at SIU-C are unsure about what those steps should be and whether they would work. And these same authorities even seem to doubt whether a teacher shortage is on the horizon at all.

In a recent news release, Mary Hatwood Futrell, president of the National Education Association, charges that colleges and universities are not preparing enough students to fill present and expected teacher vacancies. The NEA predicts that by 1992 the rise in birth rates coupled with the retirement of current teachers will require schools to fill 1.2 million positions.

"SCHOOL systems that were firing teachers just five years ago are now out actively recruiting again," Futrell said. "We are looking at the start of a nationwide teacher shortage as the surge of births that started in the late 1970s produces rising elementary enrollments."

According to results from an NEA study released this month, elementary school enrollment increased in the fall of 1984 by 54,274 students. This is the first year the enrollment has not declined since 1971.

Nancy Quisenberry

Susan Gerwitz, director of the NEA study, says the increase was caused by children of the baby boom generation. "The increase in elementary school enrollment is minimal, but significant," she said. "There is no longer a decline. In the next two or three years, we can expect to see even more of an increase."

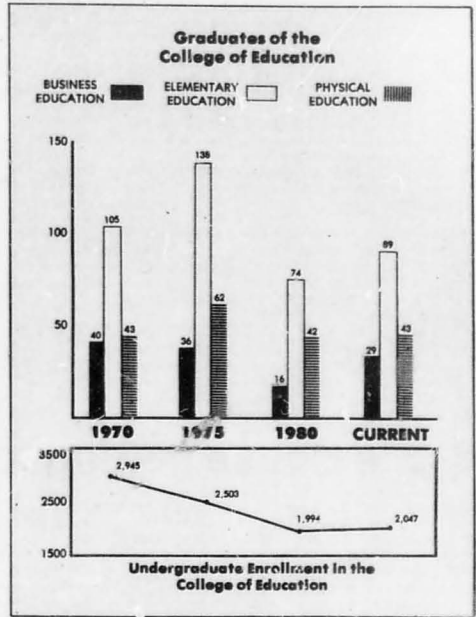

THE RISE in the number of students has not been accompanied by an increase in the number of people preparing to become teachers. Education Digest reported in March that the number of college graduates with degrees in education declined rapidly over the past ten years.

In 1973, 313,000 students received degrees qualifying them to teach in secondary or elementary schools. But this number dropped to 141,000 in 1981. The Journal of Teacher Education noted in August that "the rate of decrease in teacher training enrollment has not abated as the state of general teacher surplus has abated."

Teacher educators offer many suggestions about why fewer people are going into teaching fields. The most common reason is that students are under the impression that the profession is overcrowded.

ALSO, AS Nancy Quisenberry, associate dean of the SIU-C College of Education, pointed out, many students realize that they can make more money in other fields. But Quisenberry quickly adds that salary is only one of many reasons students go into teaching and low salaries do not necessarily turn away students who would be good teachers.

The degree programs represented above are consistently among the programs with the highest enrollment in the College of Education.

"A lot of people seem to think that turning the salary situation around will produce better teachers," Quisenberry said. "That remains to be seen."

If teachers and the public had a more positive attitude about the profession, she said, teachers might be less likely to be lured away by higher paying jobs in the private sector. "I really think that if the public had a better understanding of what happens in schools it would enhance the profession."

People outside the profession seem to think that teachers have it easy because there is a three-month break in the school year, Quisenberry said. "They forget that to stay ahead, teachers might have to spend half their summer in a classroom updating their skills."

QUISENBERRY was reluctant to agree with the NEA's projection of a teacher shortage in the near future. But she said that she feels there are and will continue to be jobs available for all qualified teachers as long as

Desire to teach overrides potential drawbacks

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

Student teachers from the SIU-C College of Education assigned to Carbondale Community High School this semester are not convinced that they will find a teaching job by next fall, despite the National Education Association's prediction that the job market is becoming less crowded.

But all 11 student teachers agreed that since teaching is their first choice as a profession, the risk of entering what may or may not be a crowded field is worthwhile.

The most common reason given by the student teachers for earning a college degree to enter a field in which, according to the NEA, salaries average $23,546 a year but can be as low as $15,971 is a strong desire to teach.

Linda Jeter, business education major, said she does not expect to find an open position right away. Her doubts appear to be well-founded in light of a 1983 study by the Illinois State Board of Education which showed that in the field of business education there are about three applicants for every open position in the state. And, something that might make her job search even harder, Jeter wants to live and work in only Southern Illinois.

Laura Jones, a senior in biological sciences education, teaches a freshman general science class at Carbondale Community High School East.

ART ENRICO, who plans to teach social studies at the high school level, said that he is "more optimistic than pessimistic" that he will have a suitable position by next year. The board of education's study shows that the chances of finding a job in his field of study are low, with more than five social studies teachers available for every opening in the state's school system. However, Enrico said he has no intention of confining his job search to Illinois.

Toni McCaughey, data processing major, is also applying for jobs all over the nation, but unlike Enrico, McCaughey expects a job to be tough to find.

Laura Jones, biology education major, is restricting her job search to the St. Louis area. But, though she has not yet received any offers, Jones said she expects to find a position by fall of 1985 or shortly thereafter.

SCOTT COFFEY, who plans to teach high school English, said that he is also confining his search to a specific area — North Carolina. But Coffey said that he has good prospects, mainly because the cities where he hopes to locate are among the most expensive in the United States. Coffey may have good reason to be optimistic because, as the ISBE study shows, even in Illinois there are less than two qualified English teachers for every open position.

Among the other student teachers, at least two said that though they are not sure if the teaching profession is crowded or not, they do believe that "peripheral talents," such as being able to coach or speak a foreign language, would make the job search easier for education majors.

One of these students, Daniel Flowers, said that he would be willing to coach athletics if it will improve his chances of getting a teaching position. The math education major said that before returning to school to earn a teaching degree he realized that he would be paid less than he had been paid in other positions.

Flowers said he accepted the conditions of the profession because, like many of the other student teachers, he enjoys the "thrill" of knowing that he has taught someone something that will be useful to them.

Wilde's comical play of manners succeeds in humoring audience

By Belinda Edmondson
Staff Writer

The adjective to describe the McLeod Theater production last Wednesday of "The Importance of Being Earnest," Oscar Wilde's famous satire of Victorian manners, is amusing. Not spectacular, not brilliant, but simply amusing. No doubt Wilde would have wanted it that way.

"The Importance of Being Earnest," Wilde's best known play, is not in itself very profound. It's primary concern is with manners, not morals.

The play does not attempt to plumb the depths of the Victorian mind. In like spirit, the McLeod cast did not soar to the stellar heights of acting. The performance, while not exactly riveting was, shall we say, serviceable. The cast did it's job: it made the audience laugh, and often.

"The Importance of Being Earnest" — an ironic title, there is nothing earnest about the entire play — tells the story of Jack Worthing (Wynn Alexander) and Algernon Moncrieff (Scott Perry), two foppish Victorian gentlemen who are pursuing two genteel Victorian ladies (Kim Basso and Bridg Corrigan). The two young ladies are absolutely determined to marry someone called Earnest, and there the trouble begins.

Wynn Alexander, though not a bad actor, seemed somewhat uncomfortable in his leading role. He fingered his attire continually throughout the production, and his British accent seemed to be in continual danger of reverting to its native twang.

However, the rest of the cast was uniformly credible. Surprisingly good were the minor characters, notably Mary Kevern as the moralizing governess Mrs. Prism, and Kenton Kersting as the goody Dr. Chasuble.

Faculty Senate president Lawrence Dennis should be commended for his performance as the bossy Lady Bracknell. It may come as a surprise to some of Wednesday's audience members, but Dennis is a man. However, with the exception of a few instances when his voice unaccountably deepened, Dennis made an excellent old lady.

Stone House setting for art show

Stone House, the home of SIU-C President Albert Somit, is the setting for the 1985 Faculty Art Show.

The collection of artwork will be open for public viewing on Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m.

Stone House is located on Douglas Drive, south of Campus Lake.

The annual exhibition will be the first of a planned series of art shows at Stone House, the home of SIU-C presidents since its completion in 1971.

Leyla Somit, the president's wife, said bringing the Faculty Art Show to Stone House is the culmination of two years of planning and preparation.

"Stone House is really made for things like this," she said. "It's kind of a dream of mine to have a show like this."

The work of more than 20 faculty artists will be represented in the show, which comprises 69 pieces in such media as: drawing, sculpture, painting, photography, blown glass, cast paper, porcelain, wood and metalsmithing.

The artist's represented teach in the School of Art and the Department of Cinema and Photography in the College of Communications and Fine Arts.

Much of the exhibit is housed in the front three rooms of Stone House.

A metal sculpture by I Brent Kington, director of the School of Art, stands in the home's atrium, while other pieces of sculpture have been set up on the grounds outside.

Staff members from SIU-C's University Museum were responsible for arranging the exhibit.

Earlier in the month, art critics from St. Louis and Chicago visited Stone House to see the work and meet the artists.

After the showing this weekend, the exhibit will be open again to the public on May 11 and 12 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Choir, opera theater plan performances

A student oboe recital, the SIU Concert Choir and the Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater are among the School of Music scheduled performers for the weekend.

Maureen McCarthy will perform a recital at 8 p.m. Friday at the Old Baptist Foundation Recital Hall. She will perform selections by Schumann, Eichner and Marcello.

The Friday performance will also include a violin and guitar duet with Byung Chuel Choi and Ming Jian Fang, and a violin and cello duet with Choi and Dane Ronvik.

The SIU Concert Choir will present a program of sacred and secular British choral music titled "Musica Britannica" at 3 p.m. Sunday at the Old Baptist Foundation.

The choir will perform works by Tallis, Morley, Handel, Greene, Britten, Vaughan Williams, Howells and Matias.

The Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater will also perform on Sunday with a scene show at 8 p.m. in the Quigley Auditorium. The opera theater, directed by faculty member Jeanine F. Wagner, will present scenes from "The Abduction from the Seraglio" and "Tales of Hoffman."

Joining Wagner will be two guest directors — faculty member Melanie Tomasz and student Eric McCluskey, play review

Dental clinic offers unusual 'spring cleaning'

By John Dyslin
Staff Writer

Individualizing the care of the patient and promoting oral hygiene are the main functions of the Dental Hygiene Clinic, said Renee Ahlf, clinic supervisor and assistant professor in the School of Technical Careers.

The clinic is sponsoring a spring cleaning program in an effort to make the public aware of the program and to promote the services.

The clinic offers such preventative services as cleaning teeth, taking X-rays and administering fluoride treatment. All the basic services provided by a dentist are provided by the clinic, Ahlf said.

"There is a real comprehensive effort to look at the oral cavity, but also the overall condition of the patient," she said.

The program's overall focus, Ahlf said, is oral hygiene.

Plaque and debris management, one of the clinic's programs, introduces the patient to plaque. She said many people are unaware that bacteria is in the mouth and about the consequences of plaque. She said patients are taught how to remove plaque.

Ahlf said that plaque contributes to gum disease and tooth decay. She said that many oral diseases go unrecognized because there generally aren't any visible symptoms.

Bleeding and puffy gums are indications that something is wrong, but she said it is not wise to scrub the gums.

Good brushing techniques remove about 85 percent of the debris in the mouth, Ahlf said. The other 15 percent is removed by flossing. She said that when brushing teeth, it is important to have a systematic approach and brush eight to 10 strokes in most areas, especially those that are most difficult to reach.

Ahlf said there is a natural pocket around each tooth and to clean each pocket area the toothbrush should be at a 45 degree angle. The pocket where the gum meets the tooth is where most of the debris sits.

Brushing also stimulates and circulates the gums, Ahlf said. This is similar to massaging the inside of the mouth. She said that this promotes healthy tissues.

The clinic also provides a pit and fissure sealant. Pits and fissures are the chewing surface of the teeth, and are vulnerable to decay, she said. At the clinic, they will put on a protective coating that seals the pits.

Mouthwashes and fluoride mouthwashes are also helpful, Ahlf said. She said mouthwashes can alter bacteria levels and gargling with fluoride tends to help sensitive areas. She said fluoride mouthwashes are good in preventing tooth decay.

Law team competes in NY in national moot court finals

A five-student team from the SIU Law School is competing in the 26th Annual Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition, which ends Saturday in New York City.

The team won the Midwest regional in February, qualifying for the national finals of the moot court competition since it began entering the event in 1980.

Other schools in the national finals are New York Law School, Tulane University, Notre Dame University, City University of New York at Queens, University of Georgia, Northwestern University, Southwestern University, University of Denver, University of Connecticut, and George Washington University.

Team members are captain William J. Knapp, John D. Fraser, Timothy M. Hurley, Dan M. Lesicko, and Timothy J. Sarsfield.

Political science professor to end distinguished career

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

Technically, he retired June 1, 1984, but at the prompting of the Political Science Department, Randall Nelson stayed on one last year to teach a two-semester course on constitutional law.

However, Nelson says that he will not extend his distinguished 30-year teaching career at SIU-C further.

"I just think that there comes a time when one ought to move on and make room for someone else," he said. "I've always worked under the assumption that there is no indispensable person."

The expert on constitutional law and civil rights and liberties may not be indispensable but John Foster, chairman of the department, said that Nelson is definitely an instructor who cannot be easily replaced.

"I think he's one of the finest teachers to ever have been here," Foster said.

Foster said that courses taught by Nelson have always been near their maximum enrollment while regularly receiving outstanding evaluations from students.

Before joining the SIU-C faculty in 1955, Nelson earned a bachelor's, a master's and a doctoral degree from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. Before that, he was a captain in the U.S. Army in World War II. During an engagement near the Rhine River he was blinded by shell fire.

His handicap has not inhibited his ability to teach or administrate. In 1970 Nelson was given the Great Teacher Award from the SIU Alumni Association and a similar award from the Amoco Foundation. From 1969 to 1976 he served as chairman of what was then the Government Department.

In his only class this semester, Nelson recites the facts and decisions of both recent and historical Supreme Court cases before delving into the logic behind the Court's decision. He often refers to facts in cases being considered by the Supreme Court, bringing his lectures all the more up to date.

After he quits teaching at the end of this semester, Nelson said that what he expects to miss most is meeting with students in the classroom, or as he calls it, "the fun part of teaching." What he won't miss is the two to four hours of preparation that goes into each of the four 50-minute lectures he gives each week.

Nelson said he will make finishing a case law book that he is writing his first priority once he winds up his teaching career. He also plans to use part of his newly freed time to read some of the books he has not had time for while teaching. One of the ones he said he plans to peruse is a biography of former Chief Justice of the United States Earl Warren.

Nelson said he will stay on as the University's ombudsman for at least another year. He will also continue to work with community groups, including the Carbondale Community Partnership for the Disabled.

Blind musician writing piano instruction book

By Jeff Curl
Staff Writer

After finishing a cup of coffee with a guest, Dorothy Dykema of Carbondale stands, places the cups in her kitchen sink, then goes into her bedroom to take off her slippers.

She comes out with shiny, black dress shoes then, sits down at her organ to play "The Sound of Music."

Dykema, who is blind, has spent a large part of her life doing two things — playing music and helping people. After getting a bachelor's degree from Chicago's American Conservatory in Music, she spent years as a counselor and teacher for disabled adults.

IN THE EARLY 1960s, she came to Southern Illinois as a counselor for the Anna Mental Health Center. Later she got a master's degree from the SIU-C Rehabilitation Institute.

But Dykema also kept up her love for piano playing by composing and performing in churches and chorals during her counseling years.

Now Dykema is mixing both of her interests — she's writing a book on how to teach blind people to play the piano.

There's very little literature on teaching blind piano players, Dykema said. "And it's mostly inspirational crap which is little help."

Dykema added that while there are many people who teach piano to blind people, it seems like those teachers don't publish anything on the subject.

SO, SHE DECIDED to do something about it. Her book is expected to be finished this summer.

Dykema decided to get information for her book by sending out questionnaires to those who have taught music to blind students. However, she thought more people would take her questionnaire more seriously if she did it as part of a thesis, so she entered graduate school in SIU-C's School of Music.

She finished that degree last

May.

"The hardest part about going back to school was finding my way across campus. I was like me nuts," Dykema said, smiling. "I love school and got to find a way to make it an eternal student."

KEMA SAID the information from the questionnaires, which asked teachers how they taught technique and music, only stressed what she already knew — that "many people do a terrible job in teaching" blind students, and not only in learning how to play the piano.

Blind children aren't learning Braille adequately, Dykema said. Too many blind students in music, and education in general, learn by ear via tape recordings.

"A lot of education is neglected that way," she said. "Kids need the basics. They got to be able to do things by themselves, and then they can use all the other things," such as electronic equipment, Dykema said.

THE RECORDED literature "is great, but one has to first be able to put a sentence together," Dykema said, adding that she has heard that many blind students entering college today have trouble constructing simple paragraphs.

Dykema said that after she finishes her book, she will travel to music conventions and put ads in magazines to promote it. In the meantime, she is having it looked over by friends.

SIU-C alum to present chemistry lecture

Daryle H. Busch, professor of inorganic chemistry at Ohio State University in Columbus, will present the Third Annual James and Jean Neckers Lecture Friday.

Busch will speak on "Management and Utilization of Dioxygen with Metal Chelate Dioxygen Carriers: From Synfuel to Synthetic Blood" at 4 p.m. in the Kenneth Van Lente Auditorium in Neckers Building.

The lecture is free and open to the public.

Neckers is the former longtime chairman of SIU-C's Chemistry Department. A reception, beginning at 3:30 p.m., will be held outside the auditorium.

Busch, a native of Carverville, is a 1951 chemistry graduate of SIU-C.

Retirement set for fraternity 'Mom'

By Cathy Brown
Staff Writer

"I have really had a lot of good years here," Martha Sachberger said, but after 11 years of being "Mom" to a couple of hundred fraternity men, 76-year-old Sachberger said, "I think it's time for me to retire."

She plans to quit in May, leaving the guys of Phi Sigma Kappa with the difficult task of finding a replacement who comes close to Sachberger in patience and dedication.

"We'll never replace her," said Andy Bruns, who will be president next semester. "I guarantee that. If we had our way we'd keep her around."

Sachberger came to SIU-C from Cairo after her husband died 16 years ago. Her daughter, who lives in Carbondale, urged her to take a job as housemother at a sorority house. After working there five years, she started working at Phi Sigma Kappa.

"You have to give up everything. I sold my home and everything in Cairo. You have to be free to live here."

But she doesn't regret her move for a minute. "I'm always telling them I'm gonna write a book."

"The boys I had when I first came, I still hear from them. It makes you feel like it's all been worthwhile," she said. "You know I have boys who have become doctors and lawyers. I'm just so proud of all of them."

The feeling is mutual, according to the men. "She's just like our Mom, really," said one Phi Sigma Kappa member. "We're gonna miss her very, very much."

the soda machines, washers and dryers.

The Phi Sigma Kappas sometimes try her patience with things such as waking her up at 4 a.m. with a loud party. "She puts up with quite a bit," the men admit.

"You have to have patience," she says. "You have to like people, you know, and understand them. Or try to understand them."

To show their appreciation for her patience and understanding, they've bought her many gifts, including several plaques, which she proudly hangs on her walls. Wednesday they presented her with roses. "They're a good bunch of kids," she says.

In addition to gifts, they have had parties in her honor. Last year they had a going away party for her because she told them she was going to retire. That was before they talked her into staying another year.

That was the second time she nearly retired. The first time was six years ago when the university told her that, at 70 years old, it was time for her to quit.

But she wasn't ready to quit and the Phi Sigma Kappas weren't ready to see her go. So she retired from the university and the fraternity began paying her salary directly to her.

But this time she says she's really going to retire. "I've made up my mind." She plans to travel this summer and stay with her daughter for a while. After this summer, she said she will probably get an apartment in Carbondale and settle down.

Other than that she doesn't know what she'll do. "I'm gonna miss it all. I'll tell you, I've got a lot of readjusting to do."

"The men have made it clear that she is always welcome in their house and she plans to keep in touch. "There's a tie or something that you just never sever," she said.

Photos aid search for children

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new national campaign to help find missing children will reach some 80 million people each week through supermarket displays featuring pictures of the children, sponsors of the effort said Thursday.

The campaign will also use radio and television public service announcements urging people to visit the displays and call a toll-free number if they have information about the children's whereabouts.

The hotline number is 800-843-LOST.

The children are all believed victims of kidnappings by strangers or their parents, sponsors said. Officials of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, in Washington D.C., said some 1.8 million children nationwide are believed missing.

Campaign sponsors, including the National Center, Supermarket Communications Systems Inc. of Norwalk, Conn., Nestle Foods Corp. of White Plains, N.Y., and 65 national and regional supermarket chains, said the displays would be posted in some 5,500 stores nationwide.

Each will carry photographs of six to eight missing children and the toll-free number for the National Center.

Report urges improvement of city's economy

By Bob Tita
Staff Writer

Developing Carbondale's economic base was the first of a list of goals for community improvement in a report resulting from the Greater Carbondale Goals Conference.

The goals report was presented to the City Council on Monday.

The conference was sponsored by the Carbondale Community Education Inc. and was held in November. Loren Taylor, president of the group, said economic development was considered most important because the other goals are dependent on economic growth.

The other goals identified in the report were improving education, improving and expanding community and social services, improving transportation and beautifying the city.

The conference report said downtown redevelopment should serve as a "magnet" for community revitalization. The report also indicated that a Local Industry Council be formed to promote the greater Carbondale area as a location for business and industry.

industry.

Taylor said he is pleased one of the suggestions proposed has already begun. Private developers have purchased the vacant Prairie Farms building on West Main Street and the former IGA store building on West Main Street for use as "business incubators." The buildings will be renovated to accommodate several small businesses that would otherwise have a difficult time getting started.

The function of Carbondale Community Education Inc. is to help identify problems in the community. The group is made up of representatives from government, business and social groups.

"We decided to take a look at where we are and where we are going," he said about the reason for the conference.

In the recommendations for improving education was a proposal for combining high school and elementary school districts into one unit. Taylor said he believes the state will eventually hold back education funding for communities with schools not organized under one unit.

Another recommendation dealt with increasing education in the arts along with instituting an international festival.

Plans for beautifying the city would make Carbondale the "Dogwood City of the World," by having grade school children care for dogwood trees.

Taylor said there is a need for city beautification. "Carbondale is an ugly city, there's no doubt about it," he said.

Although mass transit in Carbondale has failed in the past, the goals report nevertheless recommended that a privately owned mass transit operation be established.

Don Monty, Carbondale community development director, said the report reinforces some policies already adopted by city officials. Recommendations for expanding the city's bike route and continuing to work on the east-west couple to alleviate traffic congestion are established city policies, he said.

Former counselor charges 'cover-up' at Vienna prison

By Justus Weathersby Jr.
Staff Writer

A Human Rights Commission ruling that a Vienna Corrections Center counselor was discriminated against six years ago has been overturned by an Illinois appellate court.

The case stems from a prison inmate's charges that former Illinois Department of Corrections counselor Charles Clay witnessed sexual relations between an inmate, his wife and his 12-year-old stepdaughter during visiting hours and failed to report it.

Clay was released from his position at the prison after an internal investigation concluded that he viewed the sexual encounter from an office window, but failed to intervene or immediately report the incident.

Clay, who is black, contends that his release from the prison was racially motivated, and that the prison used him as a scapegoat to cover up apparent breaks in prison security.

The Illinois Fifth District Appellate Court granted a second review of the case less than 60 days after its initial review and reversal of a Human Rights Commission ruling.

Steven Nardulli, an attorney hired by the DOC for his expertise in this field of litigation, said that he was very pleased with the ruling the appeals court made last month.

The discrimination case is based on the testimony of a Vienna inmate who reportedly made the initial disclosure of the sexual incident.

Nardulli said the initial report led to a charge of aggravated incest. "The problem is that (Clay) hesitated to report the incident," he said.

Clay said that he was the first to report the incident and that the DOC was "embarrassed because a counselor discovered it and brought it to their attention. They (the DOC) were looking for a scapegoat to cover up the failures of the security staff," Clay said.

Nardulli said that while there was not constant surveillance at Vienna's minimum security prison, "random walk-through checks" were performed to give the inmates a certain amount of privacy.

Administrative law judge Linda K. MacLachlan, who reviewed the case, said in a recommendation to the HRC that an internal investigation by a Captain Phillip Huff, the center's internal investigator in 1979, was biased.

She also cited racial discrimination as the prime reason for Clay's firing. The HRC then upheld the administrative law judge's decision.

MacLachlan's recommendation said that Huff "altered the testimony" of the individuals he interviewed in order to create Clay's guilt and decrease the responsibility of the security staff.

Security guards' testimony states that they didn't witness the sexual incident and were not required to submit reports of it.

The circuit court of Johnson County reviewed and upheld the HRC ruling. However, the DOC appealed the case and the appellate court overturned the HRC ruling citing insufficient evidence as a basis for the reversal.

Clay said his role and duties as a counselor "were greatly exaggerated by the Department of Corrections. My job description was mainly to counsel the inmates, provide clinical services and prepare parole reports," Clay said.

"I thought I was beginning to see daylight," before the case was overturned, Clay said.

He will fight until his name has been cleared and the records corrected, he said. The review of his case could result in an award of about $25,000 in back pay and a mandatory record clearance.

Ruling reversed in racial suit

By Justus Weathersby Jr.
Staff Writer

A six-year-old civil court case concerning racial discrimination received a reverse ruling by the Illinois Fifth District Appellate Court early last month after a finding of racial discrimination made by the Illinois Human Rights Commission was overturned by the appeals court.

Experts say that the appellate court's reversal of the commission's decision shouldn't injure the commission's public image or raise doubt about the HRC's ability to reach or deliver expert opinions in future cases.

Howard Eisenberg, School of Law faculty member, said after reviewing the appeal court's opinion it was apparent that "the Department of Corrections did not investigate the case adequately."

Eisenberg said that the Human Rights Commission has expertise in deciding such cases and usually a court will respect the decisions made by an administrative body that has specific expertise. He said the investigation revealed apparent racially motivated discrepancies.

The court of appeals ruled March 5 in a 2-10-1 decision that a former counselor at the Vienna Correctional Center failed to prove a case of racial discrimination. Subsequently the ruling was overturned that supported the former counselor who filed suit maintaining that he was racially discriminated against when officials released him from the Vienna Correctional Center staff.

Kent Sezer, general counsel of the HRC, said the specific technical and legal questions of this case rendered specific facts that determined the HRC ruling. "The facts raised reasonable inference of discrimination" and the reverse decision made by the court of appeals "does not necessarily impact future decisions" of the HRC.

TEACHERS: Brighter job market

they are willing to go where the jobs are. "Students who are willing to go anywhere can get a job. It's the kids who won't stay around here who won't find jobs sometimes."

William Norris, coordinator of education experiences in the College of Education, agrees that jobs are available for graduates who are willing to relocate. "A lot of people have limitations on themselves as to where they will seek employment," he said. "They often put themselves out of the market."

Though Norris said he doubts that the reasons students go into teaching have changed much over the past 10 years, the reasons that students avoid the field do seem to have changed. Now students are worried about the "growing differential between teacher pay and the salaries of people in the private sector."

THE REASON for this "growing differential" is, in part, the rigid standards applied to teaching salaries. Norris said. "School systems are not in a position to manipulate pay the way the private sector can. They really don't have that kind of latitude."

However, he was not sure if an across-the-board increase in teacher salaries would improve the teaching profession, even if it attracted more students. "It's not necessarily going to ensure that every teacher hired is the best teacher available for that slot."

Norris estimated that up to 25 percent of the students majoring in education have no intention of teaching once they graduate. Some students view a teaching degree as an "insurance policy" in case they need something to fall back on, a symbol of prestige that they have no intention of putting to use or a means to please parents who insisted that they earn a college degree, he said.

BUT NORRIS also said that the number of students majoring in education who do not plan to teach seems to be decreasing. This is probably due to a belief that the field is too cluttered and the pay is too low, making the field less attractive as a stand-by, and because the cost of education has made it "a lot less likely for people to pursue a whim."

Senate slows debate on budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate began debate on the budget Thursday, but moved slowly despite Republican efforts to turn momentum from President Reagan's speech calling for national belt-tightening into a quick vote on a GOP budget plan.

Senate GOP leader Robert Dole of Kansas had hoped to bring up the Republican budget, which eliminates, slashes or reforms dozens of popular federal programs to cut $52 billion from the annual deficit, almost immediately.

Democrats refused to go along, however, and Dole was forced to begin a series of tangled parliamentary moves toward a preliminary vote on the GOP spending plan. Even if the budget passed, it could still be amended under the rules.

It was possible Democrats would try to thwart Dole's maneuvering with some of their own. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, indicated on the floor he was considering countermeasures, but held back.

Democratic leader Robert Byrd, in a prelude of possible delaying tactics, began by requiring that Dole's first parliamentary amendments be read aloud.

"We will not be rushed into an early vote," Byrd said of West Virginia. "Democrats oppose the budget for substantive reasons and we feel we should take the time to discuss what bothers us about the Reagan budget, cuts in Social Security, in research and education."

Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-

N.M., said the debate "won't be easy. Nothing of this magnitude is ever easy."

Domenici said he would fight those who would try to add money to the budget for favored programs. "I will ask the question of myself and of others, if we didn't have that program, would we start it, (while facing) $230 billion deficits? If the answer is 'no' it seems to me we've got to do something about it."

Dole, who was hoping Reagan's speech Wednesday night would provide enough impetus to approve the package, said he was "fairly close" to having enough votes in the Senate, which the GOP controls 53-47. Private meetings were being held with both Republicans and conservative Democrats.

Retired art professor, 92, dies

Lula D. Roach, 92, of 610 S. Thompson St., Carbondale, a professor emerita of art, died at 2:15 a.m. Thursday at home.

She was an associate professor in SIU-C's Art Department — now the School of Art — before her retirement in 1960.

Lula D. Roach

Services will be at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Huffman Funeral Home, 210 W. Oak St., in Carbondale. Burial will be in Rose Hill Cemetery, Marion.

Friends may call from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Friday at the funeral home.

During her years at SIU-C, Ms. Roach taught art history, weaving and art education. She also instructed art classes in the old SIU-C training school.

Ms. Roach, a 1915 graduate of Southern Illinois Normal University's two-year program in art, joined SIU in 1930 as an assistant professor. Before that, she taught 11 years in Carbondale public schools, three years in Aurora public schools and for a time at Marion High School.

She was born June 27, 1892, in Cartersville. She earned a bachelor's degree in 1929 from the University of Chicago. She earned a master of arts degree from Washington University in 1953.

She was a member of the First Christian Church of Carbondale, the American Association of University Women and the University Women's Club.

She is survived by two sisters, Jessie Roach, who lived with her in Carbondale, Loraine Bragg of Washington, D.C., and four nieces.

received 421 votes, the second highest number in the presidential-vice presidential race, would be declared the winners.

The only contested senatorial race was on the West Side, in which nine candidates ran for eight seats. Elected are Dan Cullen, Jeff Carver, Charsetta Reed, Donnette Bochantin, Jack Creagan, Larry Geiler, Tim Corcoran and Catherine Tweedy.

On the East Side, John Rutledge, Ed Lance, Mike Zurek, Jon Martin, Dan Sheridan, Rick Gioengo and Fabian DeRozario are elected.

Diane Egly, Stuart Lowrey and Gary Heflin won on East Campus, David Shafer for Thompson Point, Ralph Hasewinkle and Scott Nabe in the School of Agriculture, Cheryl Finke and Sharon Geelan in Business Administration, Elizabeth Dillon in Human Resources, Mike Shannon and Dave Madlener in Liberal Arts, Ron Foltz in the College of Science, Rich Newell in the School of Technical Careers and Sam Grenne in Communications.

Senators-elect Dan Cullen, Jack Creagan, Ed Lance, Mike Zurek, Jon Martin, Dan Sheridan, Diane Egly and Mike Shannon are Phoenix Party members.

DEANS: Salary plan called a paradox

cuts would be made, Light said.

Light said 10 of the departments would be affected, but he declined to go into detail about the cuts. He verified, however, that five term faculty members in the English department have received official notice of termination.

The math department will lose 4.5 term faculty members, a math department spokesperson said.

Though Light said he is not optimistic about the plan, he said he expects additional state funds that would improve this "worst scenario" by fall.

"I HAVE VERY mixed emotions about the wisdom of this plan," Light said.

Thomas Guttridge, dean of the College of Business and Administration, says he has decided not to replace one retiring faculty member. He said several other people leaving the college will either not be replaced or will be replaced at a lower salary.

"It's a paradox," Guttridge said. About three years ago one-third of the enrollment was majors outside the college. So far, it has been reduced to 20 percent.

"We are growing in student demand," he said about the 2,500-plus college enrollment. If there are no resources, how can the college accept students outside the college, he asked. "We've got to meet the demand within the college first."

KEITH SANDERS, dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts, said he has eliminated positions in six of eight departments for FY '86 by either not rehiring for or downgrading vacant positions or parts of those positions.

Sanders is the first to give official notice of termination to non-tenured continuing faculty members for FY '87.

Don Beggs, dean of the College of Education, said the college administration is formulating a comprehensive five-year attrition plan, for which it would rehire for vacancies arrived at by early and mandatory retirements and resignations as well as the elimination of some term positions.

DEANS FROM the School of Agriculture, the College of Human Resources, the School of Law, the College of Science and School of Technical Careers said they will meet the 2 percent tax through "natural attrition" for the most part.

"This is not a happy process, but it is something that I think the University has to do," said Russell Dutcher, dean of the College of Science.

Keep review of chancellor, GPSC says

By Tom Atkins
Staff Writer

The Graduate and Professional Student Council re-emphasized its concern Wednesday night that the Board of Trustees maintain the five-year review process of the president and chancellor of the University.

The five-year review, which was proposed to be eliminated by the board because of cost considerations, is too important to be eliminated, said GPSC president Glenn Stolar.

If the board decides to eliminate the process, the GPSC will conduct its own review of the president and chancellor, Stolar said.

"We would rather the board conduct the five-year review process, if not, we (the GPSC) will do it ourselves," Stolar said at the meeting.

The GPSC also sent a pro-active recommendation to the SIU-C administration reaffirming its stance that the merger of the men's and women's athletic departments would create more problems than it would solve.

The men's and women's athletic departments have developed distinct philosophies and policies and should be kept separate for administrative and cost-efficiency reasons, said the GPSC in a resolution.

After the meeting, Stolar said the essence of the GPSC's message to the administration concerning the merger of the two departments is, "You're not going to gain that much, but you're going to lose a lot. Don't do it."

Also at the meeting, the council revised its fee distribution guidelines in an attempt to alleviate "unequitable distribution of graduate funding," said Nancy Bandy, GPSC vice-president.

The revised guidelines drastically reduce the separate operating budgets of several student groups, but increase the general pool of funds all graduate and professional students can draw from.

The fee revisions were met with firm opposition from the students representing the SIU School of Law.

Law students aren't receiving benefits proportional to what they put in, said Paul Antonacci, a law school representative. The main complaint the law students have is that the changes will reduce their operating budget by about 75 percent, he said.

Stolar said reducing the separate operating budgets of the graduate and professional student groups, and then making a larger pool of funds accessible to all students will increase the equity of fee distribution.

Antonacci offered some middle ground, saying that the new fee guidelines are equitable, but the problem lies in a different area. The administrative budget is too large and uses the money that should go to the pool of funds that is available to all students, he said.

"You can sit around and increase the administrative budget till you're blue in the face," he said, adding that the council should focus its funding on money available for use by the graduate and professional students.

In other business, the GPSC allotted $7,000 to the Student Programming Council for fiscal year 1986.

The representatives for the Graduate Council were also elected at the meeting.

For the 1985-86 school year, the representatives are Michael Murray, Sebastian Chou, Cindy Buck and Michael Brown.

Study shows caffeine, breast cancer not tied

NEW YORK (UPI) — Contrary to prior research, caffeine does not appear to make a woman more susceptible to benign breast disease or breast cancer, researchers said Thursday.

The scientists studied hundreds of women in Israel and found no association between consumption of coffee, tea, cola and chocolate and the breast lumps known as benign breast disease.

The findings were reported in the April 26 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association by researchers from Israel and the New York Medical Association at Valhalla.

The Israeli scientists also reported in the journal of the National Cancer Institute that their study found no link between caffeine and an increased risk of breast cancer.

Strictly defined, benign breast disease refers to rapid but normal tissue growth in the ducts of the breast. Almost every adult woman has such growth at some time in her life, said Dr. Maurice Black, co-author in the study and clinical professor of pathology at New York Medical College.

The researchers evaluated the diets of 854 Israeli women diagnosed with benign breast disease and compared them with diets of more than 1,400 similar women without the disease.

The women were interviewed between 1977 and 1980 at home about their past and present consumption of 250 foods and beverages and about other possible risk factors for the disease.

Every entrant wins at Special Olympics

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

"Let me win; but if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt."

McAndrew Stadium looked like Los Angeles did during July and August 1984, but with a twist.

About 40 handicapped athletes from 24 schools gathered Thursday to participate in the 18th Annual Southern Illinois Special Olympics Track and Field Competition.

Special Olympics, created by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation in 1967, gives athletes of all ages with mental and physical disabilities the opportunity to train for and succeed in athletic competition.

George Whitehead, director of the Carbondale Park

District and announcer for the Area 15 games since 1978, said Southern Illinois has been involved in the games since the inception of the 1968 international competitions at Soldiers' Field in Chicago.

Thursday's games began with a traditional parade of athletes and dignitaries, including SIU-C President Albert Somit and Carbondale Councilman Neil Dillard.

Torch bearer Ronnie Holand, from Hurst-Bush Junior High in Hurst, lit the Special Olympics flame to officially start the competitions.

Athletes who placed first in events — such as Ben Chekeodia, from Franklin-Williamson Workshop, who threw a softball 16 feet, 9 inches — won gold medals. Those who placed second to sixth also received awards.

"They come out here for those ribbons, to say, 'Hey, look what I did,'" said Jill Vasquez, an SIU-C recreation major, to seven of the more than 400 volunteers gathered to give out ribbons and congratulatory hugs.

People volunteer their time to Special Olympics for many reasons, said graduate student Donna Minter, including credit for recreation classes.

Other events included the pentathlon, the standing long jump and various races. Gladys Colp, of the Jackson Community Workshop, won the female 25-meter wheelchair race. After her victory, Colp joined spectators in cheering on her opponent, Tricia Downey, of McElvain Grade School in Murphysboro, until Downey crossed the finish line.

Lisa Funk throws the ball through the clown's face.

Randy Osborn, senior in recreation, juggles for the students from Buncombe School.

Kevin Kenney holds his ribbon and medals.

Fund-raising effort lagging for cancer-fighting society

The Jackson County American Cancer Society is slightly behind in its fund-raising efforts for its annual April fundraising crusade.

So far, nearly $10,000 has been raised and the goal is to reach over $43,000 by the end of August, said Toni Intraiva.

Last year the society raised $39,000 by the end of its fiscal year. Intraiva said the returns haven't come in from the residential areas yet and that they will have to "get out and hustle."

She said the University has done a little better than usual this year. Flyers to SIU-C departments and administrators were sent out and the response has been positive.

The Bike-a-Thon netted $2,500 this year. May 10 is the American Cancer Society Social Event. Intraiva hopes that between $1,000 and $1,500 is raised during the event.

Anyone wishing to donate money to the American Cancer Society may call Toni Intraiva, 457-8603.

Bonds named to National Sports Festival cage team

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

Bridgett Bonds has advanced to the 12-player National Sports Festival VI North region team and Petra Jackson has won two honors while the remainder of the SIU-C women's basketball team continues off-season conditioning.

Bonds had been selected as one of five alternates to the North squad after tryouts held April 11-14, in St. Louis. When Lisa Becker of the University of Iowa moved up to the national team, Bonds' telephone rang.

"When the coach (Nancy Wilson) called Thursday night, she told me and I screamed in her ear—but I didn't mean to—I was just so excited," Bonds said.

Wilson, head women's basketball coach at South Carolina, will have 10 days of practice with the North squad at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs before competing against the other three regions at the sports festival, in Baton Rouge, La., July 27-Aug. 4.

"I always wanted to visit the Olympic Training Center and see how it was, but I never thought I'd get a chance to see it," Bonds said. "I'm looking forward to it. I think it's going to be a great experience and I know it will help me going into next season."

A 50.8 percent shooter in her freshman season, Bonds averaged eight points and six rebounds per game for the Salukis. She notched career highs of 24 points against Evansville and 12 rebounds against Oklahoma City and Southwest Missouri State.

Jackson, the Salukis' veteran guard, was announced as an honorable mention All-American by the American Women's Sports Federation. Jackson also received the Paul Robeson Award as SIU-C's black female athlete of the year.

"I think Pete's deserving of every that award she gets," Saluki coach Cindy Scott said. "I also think that, barring injury or anything, she's going to have a super senior year next season."

Jackson, previously named to the Gateway Collegiate Athletic All-Conference team, led the Salukis with 18.2 points and 6.2 rebounds per game. Jackson is pleased with her recent honors, but always sets higher goals.

"First of all, I'm going to play the best I can to give all I can each time I step on the court," Jackson said. "My goals for next year are, hopefully, to be able to make the NCAA playoffs and be a candidate for All-American. But all that goes back to hard work."

Jackson scored a career-high 26 points against Oklahoma City and won MVP honors for the second straight year in the Dial Classic, but she said she hasn't had a perfect game yet.

"I think my perfect game would be 20-25 points, 10 rebounds, a certain amount of assists and no turnovers—turnovers make me sick," Jackson said.

Scott, Jackson and the other Salukis know that the dedication to achieve high standards in basketball extends beyond the regular season and beyond what is regularly considered basketball. For instance, a casual passer-by might notice the team jumping onto plywood boxes outside Davies Gymnasium.

"It's plyometrics," Scott joked.

Sally Ford, who has helped the baseball Salukis, is directing the team in a variety of exercises, including jumping onto and off of boxes to increase leaping ability.

On the court, Scott is emphasizing the fundamentals and conducting scrimmages, but as of Aug. 1, the court is off-limits due to a new NCAA rule that set practice limitations "just like the men," Scott said. SIU-C won't be able to resume floor practices until Oct. 15.

The Salukis had a 21-7 season but did not qualify for post-season play. But Scott and the Salukis have put that behind them and are looking ahead to next season.

"These kids are looking forward to next year. They feel good about this year, but they feel disappointed about some of those close games we lost and would like to have a chance to maybe win some of those close ones," Scott said.

"A definite loss to our program," Scott said in response to a question about the loss of sophomore Tami Sanders. The 6-foot-2 forward averaged 2.2 rebounds and 2.7 points in her freshman season with a high of 11 points against Western Illinois and seven rebounds against Drake. However, this season she saw limited playing time and averaged 1.5 points and 1.5 rebounds in 11 games.

Sanders will transfer to Oklahoma State to play for Coach Dick Halterman. Halterman had recruited Sanders when he coached for a junior college, but Sanders opted for a four-year school.

Scott and Sanders both said they are parting on good terms, and Scott helped Sanders contact Halterman, who offered her a full scholarship.

"We agreed it'd be a better opportunity for me to play. Oklahoma State is a good Big Eight school and they play a great schedule," Sanders said.

Women golfers face tough task at GCAC tournament

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

The biggest two-letter word and the most experienced team in the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference stands between the SIU-C women golfers and a repeat of its conference title.

If the Salukis can play their absolute best, they could upset top-ranked Illinois State at the GCAC championship, hosted by University of Northern Iowa, in Cedar Falls, Iowa, Friday and Saturday.

SIU-C coach Sonya Stalberger admits, "that may be putting a lot of pressure on, but it's not too much to ask."

Because they've played a long, tough schedule to prepare to "play golf the way great teams play," Stalberger believes her young team can overcome the narrow margins of defeat to Illinois State and other opponents.

"We're not as experienced, but throughout the year we've worked to improve. The progress we've made is phenomenal," Stalberger said.

Playing different levels of competition on different courses helped the Salukis gain experience, maturity and team unity.

"They've come together as a team, and that's the only way we're going to beat Illinois State — if we play as a team. No one can slack off a bit, because if one person gives away one shot, we're likely to lose," Stalberger said.

Second place could even be tough, with the home course advantage to the UNI squad which finished just 10 strokes behind the Salukis in the teams' last meeting. Stalberger also expects the par-75 Pheasant Ridge Golf Course to play longer than its 5,900 yards, "because it's flat and wide open the wind usually blows strong. It's not the type of course I'd like to play the conference championship on."

The individual race should be exciting, and Stalberger predicted any one of the eight top golfers could take medalist honors.

All four of the Redbirds' seniors have a shot, including Julie Bazter who finished second behind Saluki Gi Magnusson at the Saluki Invitational. Pauline Kelly of UNI and Brenda Byer of Wichita State should also vie, along with Salukis Magnusson and Lisa Kartheiser.

"They're all capable, it just matters who wants it the most," Stalberger said.

Although Kartheiser struggled this spring, she placed third last year and would love to end her SIU-C career as the champion. She earned back her number one position with a qualifying round of 73 at Crab Orchard Golf Club in Cartersville and Stalberger said her game has come together again.

Magnusson has been outstanding this spring, and with the victory at the Saluki Invitational, shot her way up to a top 5 GCAC ranking.

Stalberger said Tina Kozlowski could be a surprise winner "because she's been playing really well as of late."

Jill Bertram, Pat Putman and Myona Weller qualified for the remaining traveling positions, but only five can compete in team play. Stalberger will await the results of Thursday's practice.

DeNoon splits track team; women entered in two meets

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

Because of homework and upcoming tests, Saluki women's track coach Don DeNoon will split up his team for competition this weekend.

DeNoon will send only six athletes to the Becky Boone Relays at Richmond, Ky., and will send 19 athletes to the Murray State Twilight Invitational at Murray, Ky.

"Our primary goal was to send athletes to Becky Boone who need the competition to qualify for the nationals," DeNoon said. "Our secondary goal was to send the athletes over to Becky Boone who can score."

But DeNoon decided to make changes after his athletes felt it would be difficult to get their homework done if they traveled to the 19-team Becky Boone Relays, which will be held on Friday and Saturday. The Murray State Twilight Invitational is a one-day meet and will be held on Saturday. "Our athletes provided an atmosphere to me that they need the extra time to study," DeNoon said. "We have a team that feels academics are important and I feel academics are important, that's why there here."

The six entries at Becky Boone are Connie Price in the shot put and javelin; Denise Blackman in the 400-meter dash, Sharon Leidy and Sue Anderson in the heptathlon; and Cynthia Joy and Laurie Dvorak in the javelin.

DeNoon thinks Price, Blackman and Leidy have the best chance of qualifying for the nationals.

Price came within a .5 inch of qualifying for the nationals in the shot put with a throw of 49 feet, 11.5 inch two weeks ago at the Murray State Invitational.

In Price's first year of competing in the discus, she set a personal best last week at the Eastern Illinois Pepsi Challenge with a 157-10 effort. The national qualifying standard is 167-0.

Blackman holds the school record in the 400-meter dash with a time of 54.35, and needs to cut a second of her time to reach the national qualifying standard of 53.34.

Leidy, who holds the school record in the heptathlon with 4,763 points, will compete in the event for the first time this season. The national qualifying standard is 5,340 points.

DeNoon will travel to the Becky Boone Invitational, and will send assistant coaches John Smith, Karl Schneider, and Eveline Desbarats to Murray State.

DeNoon expects the Salukis to dominate the seven-team meet at Murray State, which won't be scored.

"I think we should do very well," DeNoon said. "The kids should win half of the events down there."

The second-year mentor expects first place finishes from Kathy Raske in the 100-meter hurdles, Karen Cooper in the 400-meter hurdles, Brenda Beatty in the 100-meter dash, Darcie Stinson in the 400-meter dash and Kathryn Doelling in the 1,500-meter run.

He also expects first place performances from Sydney Edwards or Carmen Robbins in the triple jump; either Edwards, Robbins, Beatty, or Jennifer Bartley in the long jump, and the 4 x 100 and 4 x 400-meter relay teams.

The 4 x 100-meter relay team will consist of Bartley, Raske, Cathy Davis and Cooper; and the 4 x 400-meter relay team will consist of Cooper, Raske, Stinson and Bartley.

Ten intramural track records set

By Stan Goff
Staff Writer

The SIU-C office of intramural sports sponsored a track and field meet last Saturday with men's, women's and team competitions taking place in 15 events.

Ten SIU-C intramural records were broken, and Shirille McIntosh set two new records in the women's competition. McIntosh won the long jump with a distance of 16 feet 3 inches and the 400-meter dash in a time 1:05.32.

In the shot put competition, Kent Metzger won the men's class with a distance of 39-4, while Cindi Knight set a new women's mark with a toss of 37-7. Knight also won the discus (117-10) and the softball throw (198-5).

In men's competition, Glenn Wright won the discus with 116-7.5, Kevin Willis won the softball throw with a toss of 329 feet, and Jerry Withers took the top honors with a high jump of 6-2. Brett Venice finished first in the long jump with a leap of 20-3.

Ellen O'Brien equalled McIntosh's feat by winning two events and setting two new records when she captured both the 100-meter and 200-meter dash. Her time in the 100 was 13.62, while her time in the 200 was 29.95.

Glynn Braithwaite won the men's 100 with a time of 11.80, and Troyce Polk's time of 24.48 claimed the top spot in the men's 200. Tony Harvey triple jumped 42-8 to finish ahead of the field in that event.

Lee Halbert won the 400-meter dash with a record time of 53.47, and Dan Kristo also registered a record time in the 800, finishing in 2:00.91. Terrence Davis won the 1500 meter run with a time of 4:40.95, and Hugh Logue's time in the 3000 of 10:40.95 was the best in competition.

BCB & Co. and the Gold Medalists finished in a tie for first with 44 team points each. East Side Rollers took third with 25 points and Jerry's Kids II placed fourth with 22 points.

BCB & Co. won all three of the relays, setting record times in each event. They won the 4 x 400 relay in a time of 3:38.17, and also set records in the 400-meter and 800-meter relays.

This week soccer, softball and ultimate frisbee playoff action sponsored by intramural sports started, with the championship games scheduled for next week. In case of poor weather conditions, the intramural sports office asks that participants call the rec-check phone number (536-6602) on the hour for updated information on cancellations and playing times.

ISU football assistant hired at Purdue

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Greg McIntoch, an assistant coach at Illinois State for the past four seasons, was named Thursday as an assistant football coach at Purdue. Boilermaker coach Leon Burtnett said.

McIntoch, who will be responsible for linebackers, completes the Purdue coaching staff for the coming football season. McIntoch coached under Bob Otoliski at Illinois State, a Missouri Valley Conference school which finished 5-6 in 1984.

McIntoch a 1979 graduate of Indiana University, replaces Urban Bowman, who joined the staff of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football League.

Men netters to host 4-team meet

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

At the beginning of the season, SIU-C men's tennis coach Dick LeFevre set a goal for his team — finish with a .500 record or better.

LeFevre's goal will be put to the test this weekend when the Salukis host a quadrangler meet at the Arena tennis courts. SIU-C, 12-13, would have to beat two of its three opponents to reach the .500 mark for the first time this season. The matches will be the Salukis' final three decisions of the year.

The Salukis will face

Alabama-Birmingham at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Illinois State at 1:30 p.m. and Evansville on Sunday at 9 a.m.

LeFevre said Illinois State, a Missouri Valley Conference rival, will be the Salukis' toughest opponent. He said the match will have an impact on the MVC tournament, which will be played next week at Tulsa, Okla.

"It's an important match because it'll make a difference in the conference seedings," LeFevre said.

Per Wadmark, the Salukis' No. 1 singles player with a 15-10 record, will be expected to lead the team in the meet. A junior from Malmo, Sweden, Wadmark has also teamed with Rollie Oliquino to give SIU-C a solid team at No. 1 singles.

Gabriel Coch will play at No. 2 singles for SIU-C. Chris Visconti will be at No. 3 singles, Rollie Oliquino at No. 4 singles, Scott Krueger at No. 5 singles and Lars Nilsson at No. 6 singles.

Coch and Nilsson will play at No. 2 doubles and Visconti and Krueger will make up the No. 3 doubles combination.

GCAC meet awaits tennis team

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

Before leaving for the Gateway Conference Tournament, Saluki women's tennis coach Judy Auld hoped her team would get some good draws in singles and doubles competition.

The Salukis received three No. 1 seeds Wednesday night in the voting among the conference coaches.

Number one seeds were awarded to SIU-C's No. 6 singles player Amanda Allen, the No. 2 doubles team of Allen and Alessandra Molinari and the No. 3 doubles team of Mary Pat Kramer and Maureen Harney.

Wichita State received six No. 1 seeds and is favored to win the tournament, which started Thursday and runs through Saturday.

"I personally feel the conference title is up for grabs between Wichita State, Southwest Missouri State, Drake and us," Auld said. "It's basically in our hands and we can win it if everybody plays well."

The Salukis started the spring schedule with an 0-9 record but have won five out of its last seven matches to improve to 5-11 overall.

Other SIU-C entries are Heidi Eastman at No. 1 singles, Molinari at No. 2 singles, Kramer at No. 3 singles, Ellen Moellering at No. 4 singles, Harney at No. 5 singles and the No. 1 doubles team of Eastman and Moellering.

Harney is seeded second at No. 2 singles, while Kramer and Moellering are each seeded third at No. 3 and No. 4 singles, respectively.

But the No. 1 doubles team of Eastman and Moellering had the misfortune of drawing Sandy Sadier.

MVC: Salukis to battle Creighton

batting average is down from .338 on March 27 to .310.

"We haven't been hitting the ball," Jones said. "The only reason the games have been close is that the pitching has done a great job. I hope the bats break out this weekend because we can't expect the pitching to keep holding the other teams to less than four runs."

Infielder Jay Burch continues to pace SIU-C with 56 hits and a .384 average, but key Saluki contributors Robert Jones and Mike Gellinger have slacked off a little from their early season paces, and with Jim Kating's sore arm preventing him from catching, Jones hasn't been able to get much offense at the catching position.

Jones, who leads the club with 11 home runs, has just one hit in his last 18 at-bats and just four runs batted in in his last nine games. Meanwhile, Gellinger has seen his average drop from .345 to .313 in the last six games, as he has suffered through a 2-for-18 slump.

Kating, who has a .280 average and 21 RBI, has been limited to the designated hitter slot and Clay Brewer and Kerry Boudreaux haven't provided much offense has his replacements behind the plate.

"We've got to prove that we can go out and put someone away two or three times in a row," Jones said. "I hope we start this weekend. We're a better ballclub than the kids have been showing."

Davis' homers pace Giants to win

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The name Davis is certainly making headlines in San Francisco.

On Wednesday, it was the baserunning of Cincinnati's Eric Davis which made news and helped the Reds defeat the Giants.

Thursday it was the power hitting of San Francisco's Chili Davis that sparked the Giants to a 7-3 triumph over the Reds. Chili Davis belted two homers and a sacrifice fly to drive in four runs for the Giants.

An error by Reds player-manager Pete Rose helped the Giants score the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning after Nick Esasky's three-run homer in the top of the inning had tied the score at 3-3.

Rose, who went 0-for-4 and still needs 82 hits to break Ty Cobb's all-time record of 4,191, dropped Gladden's two-out pop-up for an error, allowing Jose Uribe to score from second base and give San Francisco a 4-3 lead.

Chili Davis hit a solo homer in the eighth to pad the Giants' lead to 5-3 and San Francisco added two more runs in the inning on a single by Jeff Leonard and a home run by Bob Brenly.

Mark Davis, 1-1, who relieved starter Jim Gott after Esasky's homer, pitched the final three innings to earn the victory. Tom Hume, 0-1, who pitched the seventh inning, took the loss.

The Giants took a 1-0 lead in the first when Dan Gladden scored on Davis' sacrifice fly. In the sixth, with Gladden aboard with a single, Chili Davis homered to right off starter Frank Pastore.

Third baseman Brad Wellman collected two hits for San Francisco in the victory, as did Gladden. Brenly ended the game with two RBI.

None of the Cincinnati players collected more than one hit. Esasky scored three runs for the Reds.

Softball Salukis to host GCAC opponents

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

With only three games separating the bottom nine teams of the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference, the softball Salukis are gearing up for this weekend's games with GCAC foes Bradley and Western Illinois.

The Salukis, 17-12 overall and 5-4 in the Gateway, are holding down third place in the conference, behind Illinois

State (10-2, 22-10) and Western Illinois (6-4, 14-13).

"These are really important games for us because the conference race is so tight for one thing. The better our conference record, the better our position will be when we get to the conference championships," SIU-C coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said.

The Salukis will face Bradley at 1 p.m. on Friday before entertaining Western Illinois at 2 p.m. on Saturday.

The Braves are 5-5 in conference play and are holding down fifth place in the league. The Braves are led by freshman pitcher Beth Hawkins, who leads the league in strikeouts, fewest hits allowed and fewest runs allowed. Hawkins has a record of 13-5 with a nifty 0.70 earned run average.

"Hawkins is certainly one of the best pitchers in the state. We'll have to be ready for her," Brechtelsbauer said.

The Salukis have faced six of the top nine pitchers in the conference this year and have fared well against the better pitchers. The Salukis have won all but two of the six games they have played in that situation.

Western Illinois has a record of 6-4 in conference, 14-13 overall. The Westerwinds are now in second place, just ahead of the Salukis. The Westerwinds will play at Eastern on Friday before traveling to Carbondale to take on the Salukis.

"This is a very important weekend for us," WIU coach Kathy Veroni said. "We haven't been playing as well as we thought we would before the season started, and we've lost a couple of games we shouldn't have."

Veroni, who describes her team as "balanced, with good hitting and solid defense" says the pitching is "the best it's been all season."

Baseball team to battle MVC foe Creighton

By Stan Goff
Staff Writer

Last weekend, it was crucial that the baseball Salukis split their four-game series with first place Wichita State. This weekend they travel to Creighton and may need to win at least three of four games to continue hopes of competing in this year's Missouri Valley Conference post-season tournament.

The Salukis, 28-19 overall and 5-7 in the MVC, are tied with Bradley for fourth place in the conference standings, one game behind Illinois State and two games behind second-place Indiana State. The top four teams at the end of conference play will compete in the tournament, with the winner advancing to the NCAA Regionals.

"We've got to win every game," SIU-C coach Richard "Itchy" Jones said. "As far as I'm concerned, we're in a must-win situation."

Creighton finds itself in the cellar of the conference with a 3-9 record, but Jones isn't overlooking the Bluejays in four-game series in Omaha, Neb.

"I saw them play an excellent ballgame against Miami of Florida earlier in the season," Jones said. "And they just lost four games on the road last week, so I'm sure they'll be ready to go out and play hard at home."

Bradley, which opened conference play by taking three of four games from the Salukis, will take on the first-place Shockers (10-2) four times this weekend, and finish up the conference schedule the following week against Illinois State, which plays Indiana State this weekend. SIU-C will play the Sycamores next weekend at Terre Haute, Ind.

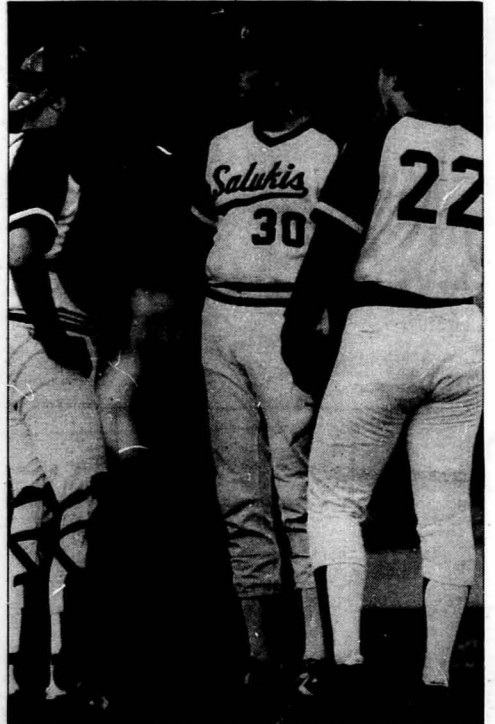

"We've got to go out and help ourselves," Jones said. "We can't be relying on help from other teams in the conference."

It was the Salukis' pitching that keyed last weekend's split with the Shockers at Abe Martin Field as SIU-C limited the powerful WSU bats to just 10 runs in four games. Wichita State came to Carbondale with a 50-7 record, including 8-0 in MVC games, and a team batting average over .350, but had a difficult time scoring on the Salukis.

"Coach (Jerry) Green and the pitching staff had as fine a weekend as they've had in a long time against competition that good," Jones said after Salukis had taken the final game of the series 5-2 last Sunday.

But while the pitching has improved steadily — lowering its earned run average to 3.84 — the bats that carried the team in the early part of the season have struggled. SIU-C has scored just 12 runs in its last six contests, and its team

Men's track and field team to run in 76th edition of Drake Relays

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

The SIU-C men's track team will head in two different directions this weekend — half the squad will compete in the prestigious Drake Relays at Des Moines, Iowa, and the other half will compete in a Saturday twilight event at Murray State.

The Drake Relays, now in its 76th year, are the oldest continuous relays event in the U.S. The Salukis will be entered in only eight events at Drake because Coach Bill Cornell said he wants to let the remainder of his young squad gain experience at Murray State.

"We'll be concentrating on five relay events at Drake," Cornell said. "We hope to give some of our other squad members experience at Murray."

SIU-C will have entries in the 400-, 800-, 1,600- and 3,200-meter relay events as well as the distance medley. The Salukis will also compete in three individual events.

In the 400-meter relay, SIU-C will use the quartet of Victor DuBois, Mark Hill, Steve Breathett and Michael Franks. The 800-meter relay team will consist of Breathett, Connor Mason, Hill and Franks.

The Salukis will have Breathett, Eric Gray, Hill and Franks competing as a team in the 1,600-meter relay. David Lamont, Bret Garrett, Richard McDonnell and Mike Elliott will compete in the 3,200-meter relay and the distance medley team will consist of Garrett, Mason, Elliott and McDonnell.

Jim Sullivan will compete in the pole vault, Tom Smith in the shot put and Ron Herrer in the discus in the individual field events.

Cornell said the 1,600-meter relay team has an excellent chance of qualifying for the NCAA finals. The quartet narrowly missed qualifying for the NCAA indoor finals in March.

Despite the prestige of the Drake relays, Cornell said he is not placing any greater emphasis on the meet than any other regular season meet.

"Everything we do is in preparation for the conference and national meet," he said. "We just hope to get a few relay teams qualified for the national finals."

The Salukis will have 10 athletes competing at Murray State. Bill Henning will see action in five events — the high hurdles, 400-meter dash, the shot put, javelin, discus, long jump and high jump.

Other Saluki entries are Mo Crawford in the in the triple jump; Darrin Kester in the discus; David Wallace in the long jump.

Brown, King to continue fight for quarterback job

The final battle for the football Salukis' No. 1 quarterback position will take place on Saturday when the annual Maroon-White game is played at McAndrew Stadium at 10 a.m.

Kevin Brown, a redshirt freshman who took the No. 1 spot from Pat King last week, will call the signals for the Maroon team during the first half. King will lead the No. 1 unit in the second half. Brown's play in the Salukis' third intrasquad scrimmage last Saturday enabled him to move into the No. 1 slot.

"He's earned a shot at the No. 1 position," SIU-C coach Ray Dorr said of Brown. "Even though Pat King has done almost everything we've asked him to do all spring, Brown has performed exceptionally well."

Dawson keys Expos to victory over Cardinals

MONTREAL (UPI) — Montreal outfielder Andre Dawson will do anything for the sake of the team — even rest.

Dawson drove in two runs and cracked his third homer of the season and Tim Wallach knocked in the game winning RBI Thursday to lead the Expos to a 4-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Everyone on this team is getting into the lineup," Dawson, who was given an unusual day off Wednesday by Montreal manager Buck Rodgers, said.

"If it takes giving players a rest to win, then we're going to win because it's a whole team effort," Dawson said. "Naturally, I'd rather play every day, but Buck is the boss and he'll run the team the way he sees fit."

Expo starter Bill Gullickson ran his record to 3-1, going 6 and two-thirds innings while allowing six hits. Jeff Reardon pitched the final 2 one-third innings for this fourth save.

Dawson hit a one-out solo homer off loser Danny Cox, 1-1, over the left-field wall in the fourth. Driessen followed with a double and scored one out later on Wallach's single to make the score 3-2.

Montreal added an insurance run in the eighth. Herm Winningham singled and went to second on pitcher Jeff Lahti's wild pick-off throw. He scored on Dawson's single to left.

Montreal took a 1-0 lead in the first. Miguel Dilone walked and raced to third on a groundout to third by Dawson. First baseman Jack Clark tried to nail Dilone at third but threw the ball past third baseman Terry Pendleton, allowing Dilone to score.

The Cardinals tied the score in the second. Andy Van Slyke reached on an error by shortstop Hubie Brooks and he went to third.

Skippers to test cardboard boats at regatta

By Jeff Curl
Staff Writer

Some boats might have a chance for the "Pride of the Regatta Award" and others will probably end up in a soggy mess, but the collection of boats and skippers at this year's 12th Annual Cardboard Boat Regatta will probably, like in years past, put on a good show for spectators.

The regatta was started in 1974 as a class project for beginning design students but has since become an SUC tradition, said Richard E. Archer, Design Department faculty member.

The object is to build a cardboard boat capable of running four heats — including quarterfinals, semifinals and finals — around a 200-yard, triangular course on Campus Lake.

Besides the typical streamlined kayaks, the regatta has been known to sport more irregular designs, including a floating coffin, a replica of an old Korean warship and the popular paddle boats.

Rumor has it that this year's entries will include a cardboard aircraft carrier built by an alumnus who works as a packaging engineer in Chicago, Archer said. Rumors, though, are an expected pre-race tradition for the regatta, especially due to the long rivalry between engineering and design students to build the best design.

Archer said engineering students should work long and hard on their boats this year because the Design Department has a secret weapon. The weapon is a 55-gallon drum of waterproofing substance called Roplex. If the Engineering Department wants to find a drum of Roplex, Archer's advice is "good luck" because the substance was ordered from "far, far away."

One of the additions for the regatta will be the High School Grudge Race, added because of the large number of high school entries expected.

Archer said a high school science teacher from Du Quoin last year started having students build cardboard boats for a project and, as a result, enrollments in his class soared. Other science and art teachers in the area caught word and had their students do the same, Archer said, so many high school entries are expected this year.

Another addition to the regatta will be the Technical Inspection Committee, a group of "mean, cold-blooded" judges who will try to spot illegal materials used in the boat-building process. Materials such as steel, two-by-fours, and plywood can't be used, Archer said.

Springfest scrimmage set for football Salukis

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

A month of hard work will come to a conclusion for the football Salukis on Saturday when they play in the annual Maroon-White game at 10 a.m. at McAndrew Stadium.

The Salukis began spring practice March 30 with 105 players. Coach Ray Dorr and his staff have conducted 20 practices since then, working to improve the team for the 1985 season. SIU-C finished 3-8 in 1984 and Dorr has vowed to build a better team for the upcoming season.

SIU-C will use 101 players in the spring game.

DORR SAID competition breeds success, and he has tried to stress competition throughout spring practice. He plans to decide on a starting lineup based on the players' performance in the spring season. The Maroon-White game will play a crucial role in these decisions.

"I've got mixed emotions on how to divide the teams," Dorr said. "We have to create competition and this might not be able to be done through splitting the No. 1 and No. 2 units."

HOWEVER, DORR said he would have difficulty listing his 22 players at this point. Thirteen of the spots are clearly up for grabs, and Dorr admitted he still could have trouble deciding on a starting lineup after the spring game.

"The spring game will have something to do with players solidifying their positions but that doesn't mean there won't be competition in the fall," he said. "It's important we find the best combination of 22 players to open the (1985) season for us."

PAST SPRING games have often developed into defensive struggles. Dorr said the Saluki defense has played better than the offense during spring practice.

But because of a fierce battle between Kevin Brown and Pat King for the starting quarterback job, this year's game could be more of an offensive showcase. Both Brown and King are considered good passers.

Dorr said both players will get a chance to throw the ball during the scrimmage. Brown will play for the Maroon team and King will play for the White team.

INJURIES may also play a factor in the game, Dorr said. Several players have been hurt since spring practice started and Dorr said it's important to avoid injuries in the final spring workout.

"We have to stay away from the injuries because the players have to train during the summer months," he said. "I'll be very concerned that our players maintain their strength."

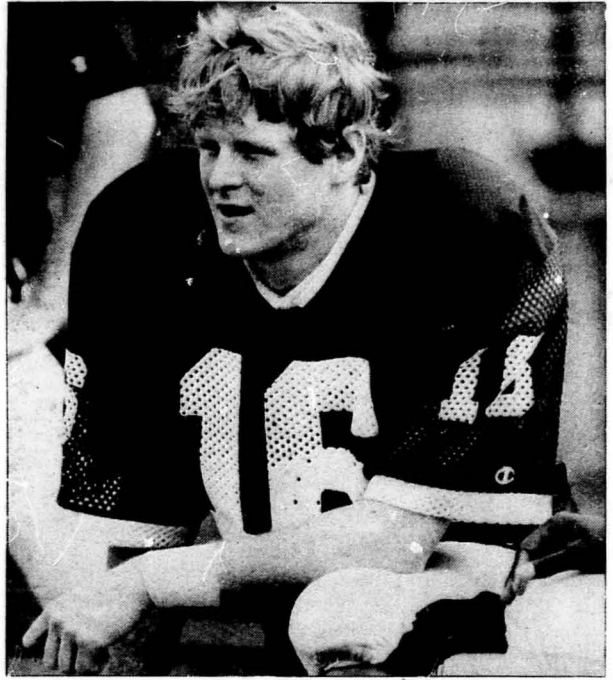

Saluki fans will have an opportunity to watch veterans as well as newcomers in the game.

ON OFFENSE, players such as Bruce Phibbs, the Salukis' leading rusher last season, will be in action. Phibbs will play for the Maroon team. SIU-C's veteran offensive line consisting of tackles Ralph Van Dyke and Dave Smith, guards Mark Banbury and Tim Redmond and center Tom Baugh will also play for the Maroon team.

Fans will also have a chance to see wide receivers Sebron Spivey and James Stevenson in action. The pair played key roles on the Salukis' 1983 Division I-AA national championship team but were academically ineligible last year. Spivey will play at split end, for the Maroon and Stevenson will play the same position for the White.

OFFENSIVE newcomers include running backs Mel Kirksy, a walk-on from Argo, and Malcolm Liggins, a junior college transfer from Tulsa, Okla. Liggins will play for the Maroon and Kirksy for the White.

Veteran linebackers Dan Wetzel and Frank Carr will anchor the White defensive unit. Carr was the Salukis' leading tackler last season. Returning starters Darren Wietecha, John Field, Greg Givens and Ira Davis will also play. Givens and Wietecha will play for the Maroon, and Field and Davis will play for the White.

and Anthony "Poneye" Woods, both junior college transfers, will be among the top defensive newcomers. Woods will play for the White and Carbonaro for the Maroon. Cornerback Tyrone Washington, another junior college transfer who will see action for the Maroon, has also played well during the spring.

Senior Olympics begin sports-filled weekend

Several sports activities are being held in conjunction with Springfest this weekend, providing opportunities for competition for both young and old.

The Senior Olympics on Friday and Saturday will give people 55 and older a chance to compete in various events including swimming, track and field, tennis, racquetball and badminton.

The Olympics, the first of its kind ever in Illinois south of Edwardsville, will begin with opening ceremonies at McAndrew Stadium at 9 a.m. Friday. The event will continue throughout Friday and the first half of Saturday. Other locations for competition will be Turley Park, the Recreation Center and Pulliam Pool.

Mike Dunn, Senior Olympics coordinator, said there are 76 athletes registered for the Olympics. He said this is a very high turnout for the first time event.

The second annual "Doc" Spackman Memorial Triathlon will meet Saturday at 8 a.m. at the boat dock area of the Campus Lake. The triathlon consists of three events — a two-mile run, a quarter-mile swim and a five-mile bike race.

A field of 300 entries is expected. There are six age categories for both male and female divisions.

The age categories are 18-21, 22-25, 26-35, 36-44, 44-54, and 55 and over. The triathlon will be held in conjunction with the Senior Olympics.

The SIU-C Phoenix bike club will sponsor the Primavera Bike Race on Saturday at 10 a.m. The event is under the authority of the United States Cycling Federation.

The race will begin and end at the intersection of Chatauqua Drive and McLafferty Road. Registration will begin at 8 a.m. at the University Press on McLafferty Road.

The 6.9 mile race loop will have rolling hills, but no major climbs.

The SIU-C men's tennis team will sponsor a quadrangular meet at the Arena tennis courts.

The Salukis will begin play Saturday at 9 a.m. with a match against Alabama-Birmingham. SIU-C will play Illinois State, one of its toughest Missouri Valley Conference rivals, at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Salukis will close the meet with a match against Evansville on Sunday at 9 a.m.

The Salukis women's softball team will play two doubleheaders. Friday, the Salukis will take on Bradley at 2 p.m.

Saturday, the Salukis will play Western Illinois at 1 p.m. Both doubleheaders will be played at the softball fields on East Grand Avenue.

Springfest activities set to provide fun for all

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

Spring has arrived in Carbondale and with it the annual SIU-C Springfest-Cardboard Boat Regatta Weekend.

Festivities begin at 8:30 a.m. Friday with the opening ceremony for the Senior Olympics in McAndrew Stadium. The games are sponsored by the Carbondale Park District and the Egyptian Area Agency on Aging.

The games begin at the stadium with track and field events at 9 a.m. and continue until the awards ceremony at 12:30 p.m. Tennis follows at 1 p.m. on the Arena Tennis Courts and at 2 p.m. in the Student Center Senior Citizens will compete in bowling and 8-ball tournaments.

A BARBEQUE and dance are scheduled from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. at Touch of Nature.

Also on Friday, SPC and USO are sponsoring a Springfest Teaser from noon to 2:30 p.m. The jazz-fusion band Unorthodox Behavior will be performing in the Free Forum Area. Balloons, suntan lotion and other promotional items will be given away.

The revelry continues Saturday with the Doc Spackman Memorial Triathlon, sponsored by Touch of Nature and Intramural Sports. Participants will check in at the Campus Boat Dock from 7:30 a.m. until the start of the event at 8 a.m. Prizes will be awarded.

Senior Olympics resume at 7:30 with a triathlon at Campus Lake. Other senior swimming competitions begin at 8 a.m. in the Recreation Center. Competitions, such as table tennis, racquetball and bike racing, continue in the Recreation Center until 11 a.m.

THE CARBONDALE Jaycees will be holding a rair- or-sline yard sale from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. in the Arena parking lot. Chairman Jim Gevas said booths may be rented for $20 and extra space is $15. Interested persons may call Murdale Custom Cleaners, 457-8244, to reserve a booth.

The Lion's Club will be sponsoring a pancake breakfast from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Free Forum Area. $2.50 buys all the pancakes you can eat.

At 9 a.m., the Saluki men's tennis team hosts ISU, Evansville and Alabama on the Arena tennis courts. The tournament continues throughout the day.

FROM NOON to 10 p.m., SPC will be sponsoring the Springfest in the Old Main Mall. The carnival-like atmosphere will feature hot air balloons, a jazz-and-soul dance stage and about 50 contests and games. Included in the games are an egg toss contest sponsored by the Obelisk II Yearbook staff, a medieval fighting demonstration and an oatmeal dive. Prizes for the dive will be awarded to the people creating the largest splash.

TAU KAPPA Epsilon is sponsoring the last leg of a keg roll at 1 p.m. The roll, to benefit St. Jude's Memorial Hospital, begins beneath the St. Louis Arch and is expected to arrive at Springfest sometime between 1 and 3 p.m.

A fireworks display at the SIU Arena fields concludes the festivities Saturday at 10 p.m.

Sunday's activities begin with men's tennis tournaments on the tennis courts at 9 a.m.

SCHEDULED FROM 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. in the Arena parking lot is the Musical Chair-ity, sponsored by the American Marketing Association, WCIL, 7-UP, KFVS, Like Cola and the Daily Egyptian. All proceeds from the go to Easter Seals.

Greek Week promotes springtime togetherness

By Jim Ludeman
Staff Writer

One of the springtime activities at SIU-C is Greek Week, a series of events sponsored by fraternities and sororities.

"It gets all the Greeks together to have fun after working all year," said Amy Novara, Inter-Greek Council chairman.

The fraternities sponsor events for sorority members and vice-versa, Novara said.

Greek Week began Monday with several events including a keg toss sponsored by Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity, a tug-of-war by Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, an ice cream eating contest by Alpha Epsilon Phi sorority, and a cigar garter race by Delta Chi fraternity.

GREEK WEEK activities conclude on Saturday with a keg roll by the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity. The keg roll is part of Tau Kappa Epsilon's national project, which is to raise money for St. Jude's Children's Hospital.

The roll begins at 6 a.m. Saturday morning, under the arch in St. Louis. Members then roll the keg from St. Louis to SIU-C, and are scheduled to arrive at Springfest between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m., Novara said.

The fraternity raises the money for the hospital by taking pledges for the keg roll, she said.

NOVARA EXPLAINED that Delta Chi's cigar garter race was a relay race. Participants are divided up into teams and each team member has to run to a sorority girl, remove a garter from her leg, run back to the team, smoke a cigar, then run back and put the garter back on her leg for the next teammate.

Other events included an all-fraternity shopping cart race Tuesday with the winner competing against other students in the shopping cart race Saturday as part of Springfest, Novara said.

The Pan-Hellenic Council sponsored a game show night Tuesday..

ALPHA GAMMA Rho sponsored sorority members in an obstacle course, a pie-eating contest and a hog chase as part of their Farmer's Follies Wednesday.

Returning the favor, Delta Zeta sorority conducted a wash bucket relay for fraternity members Wednesday.

Wednesday's activities concluded with a bonfire sponsored by the Panhellenic Council behind the Alpha Gamma Delta house.

Sigma Pi fraternity sponsored a canoe race on Campus Lake Thursday. It wasn't an ordinary canoe race, though. The people paddling were blindfolded and had to depend upon their teammate for directions. The person giving directions also had to balance an egg on a spoon, Novara said.

Alpha Gamma Delta had a reverse-a-thon Thursday night, Novara said.

The reverse-a-thon was just like Sigma Kappa sorority's track Thursday, except that all the events were done in reverse, she said.

A musical chairs practice game took place Wednesday afternoon in the Free Forum area. The real game is Sunday at the Arena parking lot.

'Musical Chair-ity' could break record

By Kelly Beatty
Student Writer

Stop and go rock-and-roll is on the agenda for the Saluki Musical Charity to be Sunday in the Arena parking lot, said Mindy Duggan, assistant program coordinator. Six thousand participants are needed in order to have the world's largest game of musical chairs, Duggan said.

The proceeds will go to Easter Seals. Game coordinators Kurt Kuras and Louis Pukelis are hoping to break the 1980 Guinness Book of World Records standing of 4,378 players, but the State University of New York in Albany cracked the record last week with 5,063 players.

"We're still aiming for 6,000 participants and so far we've sold 3,500 tickets," Duggan said.

"This event is turning out to be a much bigger event than we expected," she said. Local high schools are having an Easter Seal Spirit competition to see who can sell the most tickets, with a trophy going to the winning school, Duggan said.

"Area merchants are also getting into the action with the Waterbed Factory providing a waterbed, Curtis Mathes providing a $100 tape club membership and various other merchants providing gift certificates worth up to $50. Ten to 15 people will win grand prizes, with many others winning a variety of other prizes," she said.

The event is sponsored by Seven-Up, WCIL, KFVS and the Daily Egyptian. Music will be provided by the WCIL Jam Van and the Marching Salukis. Seven-Up will provide prizes such as kayaks and hot-air balloon rides. The rides will be raffled off at intermission to participants and spectators, Duggan said.

The money raised will aid people in Carbondale and the surrounding communities. The goal for Easter Seals is to raise $10,000, Kuras said.

Tickets cost one dollar and are on sale at the Information Desk and the Ticket Counter in the SIU Student Center, Duggan said. Participation is open to the general public, 13-years-old and above.

Stage to showcase jazz, soul dancers

By Sarah Rohrs
Staff Writer

The SPC-WIDB Jazz-Soul Dancestage, featuring six modern dance acts, will add another element to Springfest, said Connie LeBeau, one of the Springfest coordinators.

The dancestage will be in the empty lot between Anthony and Parkinson Halls, facing the same direction as the main stage in front of Shryock Auditorium.

Dance acts will be featured from 1 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. when the WIDB Dance Contest will begin. WIDB will be spinning records in between each act, during the dance contest and until 7 p.m., said Cori Cohen coordinator of WIDB's involvement in Springfest.

The Saluki Shakers will kick off the dancestage's activities at 1 p.m. with a jazzy piece created by Cindy Mueller.

The Phi Beta Sigma Steppers will perform synchronized step dancing using canes, LeBeau said. Their act will begin at 2 p.m.

The Black Fire Dancers will perform to rhythm and blues and rock music starting at 2:30 p.m..

The nine-member Southern Illinois Repertory Dance Theater will perform to "There's No Stopping Us," a tune from the movie "Breakin'."

James Barnes, formerly of the band "James and the Flames," will do a 15 minute solo dance at 4:15 p.m..

Fast Forward, with dancers Ron Godier and Charles Grundy, will perform two acts at 4:30 p.m. Godier said. The dancing is a combination of martial arts, break dancing and jazz dancing and the pieces are about street life, he said.

The dance contest will follow Fast Forward and last about 30 minutes, Cohen said. T-shirts and albums will be given away.

Dan Miller of Carbondale will start the dance contest with a Prince impersonation. Miller taught himself the choreography to the song "Let's Go Crazy" by watching Prince videos.

Additional shows slated

In addition to Springfest '85, a variety of entertainment activities are planned on campus this weekend.

On Friday, Bonnie Koloc and Corky Seigel will perform at 8 p.m. at Shryock Auditorium. Tickets for the show are $8.50 and $9.50.

Also in concert on Friday will be Foreigner at 8 p.m. at the SIU-C Arena. Tickets for the show, which will include the SIU Vocal Jazz Ensemble joining Foreigner on the hit single "I Want to Know What Love Is," are $14 and $16. Special guest will be Giuffria.

For those in the mood for a play, McLeod Theater will present Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Tickets are $5 for the Friday and Saturday performances and $4 for the Sunday performance. Students, alumni and senior citizens will receive a 50 cent discount upon presentation of identification.

Film buffs can see the weekly Student Programming Council features in the Student Center Auditorium and the Student Center Fourth Floor Video Lounge. The movie schedule is: "Cat People," 8 p.m., Friday and Saturday at the auditorium; "The American Soldier," 8 p.m., Sunday at the auditorium; "Animal Crackers" and "Duck Soup," 7 and 9 p.m. Friday at the video lounge; "Yellow Beard," 2 and 7 p.m. Sunday at the video lounge.

Slip-slidin' in oatmeal a squishy contest

By Dawn Cunningham
Student Writer

While some people construct cardboard boats and others set up hundreds of chairs, SPC Travel and Recreation's Deb Dobler will soon be cooking 200 pounds of oatmeal.

The oatmeal, once prepared, will be poured on two 20-foot sheets of plastic. The event is Oatmeal Slip-n-Slide.

When SPC Travel and Recreation decided to feature an event using oatmeal at Saturday's Springfest, Dobler, whose father is employed at Quaker Oats, volunteered to supply the oatmeal, using her father's influence.

"It's difficult to get funding and sponsorship for events, so it was fortunate that oatmeal was the product we needed. We probably couldn't have pulled it off if I didn't have the connections," said Dobler. "The cost of this event is virtually nothing."

Dobler's father, Robert Dobler, is not only providing the 200 pounds of oatmeal, but is attending Springfest to judge the event.

The event, Oatmeal Slip-n-Slide, is a contest in which two participants compete to see who can slide farthest on a plastic sheet covered by oatmeal. Each winner will receive a prize donated by Quaker Oats.

Neither Deb Dobler nor her father believed oatmeal could be so much fun.

"I was raised around oatmeal all my life, but I never thought I'd be sliding in it," she said.

Her original plan was to have a small pool filled with oatmeal, but couldn't decide how to make a contest out of it. "Somewhere along the way we came up with the Oatmeal Slip-n-Slide idea," said Dobler.

Dobler said participants won't have to worry about having oatmeal caked to their skin for the rest of the day. SPC Travel and Recreation will provide a hose for rinsing off oatmeal.

Patti Neville, Ted Hazelgrove, Barry Sommer, Deb Dobler, George Kelly, and Beth Karr help store 210 pounds of oatmeal for the SPC Travel and Recreation Oatmeal Slip-n-Slide, to be held at Springfest Saturday.

Guitarist prefers colleges to clubs

By Martin Folan
Staff Writer

He has been heard all over Europe and Canada and at many Illinois colleges; and when Springfest '85 opens Saturday, Eddie "The Chief" Clearwater will be back in Carbondale. Clearwater will perform on the Miller Main Stage from 8 to 10 p.m. Saturday.

Clearwater, a 50-year-old guitarist, will play an assortment of tunes, from blues to rockabilly to Chuck Berry to country, as well as songs from his latest album, "2 x 9."

"2 x 9" is a kinda Chuck Berry thing," Clearwater said in a telephone interview. "It's that kinda sound, but I write my own songs."

Having performed in Carbondale in July of '83, Clearwater said the SIU-C audience encouraged his return.

"I think Carbondale is very good. I think the reception is very, very, very good. They're very receptive," he said. Clearwater said he prefers playing at universities more than at clubs.

"I'm a campus man," he said. "I like universities more than clubs. At universities, the people observe what they're hearing. They find out the inside information. They do a little more research on the type of music being played, they know the background, and they do more than just hear a beat, that's all."

Clearwater's "up-beat tempo stuff" has earned him the label "high-energy performer," he claims.

"My up-tempo music is danceable. I dance while I play, and one way or another, I'll get them to move too," he said.

Chicago band adds African sound to 'Fest

By Bill Walker
Entertainment Editor

Cause for Passion, a Chicago-based band appearing in Carbondale for the first time, will kick off the musical entertainment on the Miller Main Stage Saturday at Springfest '85.

The band will perform from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.

Although new to SIU-C, the band is not a newcomer to the college circuit. Band member Joe Pusateri said the band has played at many Chicago-area colleges as well as schools in Indiana.

Pusateri said it is hard to define the band's musical direction.

"We use lots of percussion, such as marimba, African shakers and gourds," he said. "Sometimes we sound real African."

He said if the band's music must be classified, it might be called "emotional dance music."

Pusateri said the band prefers concert dates over the club circuit, especially in the Chicago area.

"When you stay in Chicago and play the clubs, people get sick of you," he said.

But on the road is a different story, he said, because you don't stay in one place, playing the same clubs over and over. College towns have been especially receptive to the band, he said.

Although the band members are from Chicago, they don't like to think of themselves as a Chicago band.

"We're an international band," Pusateri said.

PRESENTATION

Springfest to offer something to suit all

By Cathy Brown
Staff Writer

Springfest '85 has something to suit everyone's taste, from rock'n'roll and jazz to cockroach races and camel rides. The festivities start about noon Saturday and will last until 10:30 p.m.

For musical entertainment, the Student Programming Council has booked four bands to play on the steps of Shryock. Ed Fiala, a comedian and emcee of the show, is scheduled to start the show at noon.

He will be followed by the band "Cause for Passion" at 12:30 p.m. Fiala will perform again at 2:30 p.m.

"Uptown Rulers" are scheduled to play at 3 p.m., followed by "Tools of Romance" at 5:30 p.m. and Eddie Clearwater at 8 p.m.

Meanwhile there will be entertainment at the SPC-WIDD Jazz-Soul Dancestage between Anthony and Parkinson Halls.

The Saluki Shakers will perform at 1 p.m., the Phi Beta Sigma Steppers at 2 p.m., the Black Fire Dancers at 2:30 p.m., the Southern Illinois Repertory Dance Theater at 3:30 p.m., James Barnes at 4:15 p.m., and Fast Forward at 4:30 p.m.

An SPC-WIDD dance contest at 5:30 will top off events at the Jazz-Soul Dance Stage.

SPC has scheduled several more unusual events to take place in the Old Main Mall. Beginning at noon, people can race in the Dodge Daytona Shopping Cart 500 and play Hawaiian Tropic Crab Soccer with giant beach balls.

Carnival rides and an arts and crafts sale will also begin at noon. At 12:30 p.m. the SPC-WTAO booth will hold a stupid human tricks performance and competition.

Several more contests begin at 1 p.m., including the Quaker Oatmeal slip 'n slide, a Domino's pizza eating contest, Beatvision video jockey contest, Saluki Pride water balloon warfare, and a maintenance race, in which people cut wood, pound nails and perform other tasks from a wheelbarrow.

Camels from the Cape Girardeau zoo will also be on hand to give free rides at 1 p.m.

A biggest belch contest, trojan toss, wet t-shirt contest and film screen test will start at 2 p.m. A beach art party will also start then.

Registration is required beforehand for the banana punch, pass and kick contest at 3 p.m. Registration is also required beforehand for the sun-tanning contest and the second annual cockroach races, which will take place at 4 p.m.

At 4:30 p.m. a hot air balloon is scheduled to take off (winds permitting). The Disneyworld trip essay winner will be announced at 5 p.m. and film screen tests will be played back at 7 p.m.

In addition to the SPC events, there will be 30 carnival booths run by Registered Student Organizations. These include face and hair painting, a rotten tacky sneaker contest, cigarette rolling, a kissing booth, a giant egg toss and diving simulation.

The Student Center Food Service will be serving hamburgers, hot dogs, bratwurst, polish sausages, Texas barbecue plates and soft drinks from concession stands on the Old Main Mall.

SPC will top off the day's events with fireworks at 10:30 p.m. at the Arena Playing Fields.

The Springfest information booth will be in front of Shryock. Restroom facilities will be in Davies Gym, and first aid service from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. will be in front of Davies. Rain location is inside Shryock and the Student Center.
