Competitive spirit surrounds trustee election

By Tracy Barton
Staff Writer

The student trustee election today will be more competitive than elections in the last two years, says Eric Landrum, student trustee election commissioner and member of the Graduate and Professional Student Council.

This year's election has four candidates: Mark E. Lauburg, Mark Glassford, Phil Lyons and Daniel DeFosse. Elections during the last two years had only one candidate each. Andy Leighton ran unopposed in 1985 and Ed Lancer in 1986.

A student trustee is a member of the Board of Trustees and has an advisory vote.

"A student trustee is the student's voice to the board," Landrum says. "That's where many of the crucial University decisions are made."

Lauburg, a graduate student in health education, said his first priority is to represent the opinions of the majority of students. "If the majority wants a certain vote and my opinion is different, I'll vote for the majority of what students want," Lauburg said, adding that the student trustee is "a very influential job that has to be handled in a delicate manner."

As a liaison for the student body, he said, he must present himself in a responsible and respectful manner. Lauburg has been a member of several student organizations, including the Undergraduate Student Organization, the Akido Club and the University Park Program Board. He also has

Iran says more territory in Iraq has been captured

By United Press International

Iran said Monday that its forces have captured 100 square miles of Iraqi territory and killed or wounded as many as 2,700 Iraqis during a 48-hour offensive against an offensive in northern Iraq. Tehran radio quoted a military communique as saying Iranian troops, who launched an offensive code-named "Karbala 10" early Friday in northern Iraq, captured 100 square miles of territory in a three-pronged attack.

Nakashane readies for trade talks with Reagan

TOKYO (UPI) - Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone said Monday it will be difficult to convince U.S. officials during his visit to Washington this week that Japan is not a threat to the world's economic stability. Nakasone said Monday the two sides would continue their "most important" talks on a bilateral trade agreement.

Soviets offer draft of nuclear missile treaty

GENEVA (UPI) - The Soviet Union presented a draft Monday for a treaty on medium- and shorter-range missiles. The treaty, similar to one proposed by the United States, would limit the number of missiles and warheads each side could have.

U.N. says poverty causes people to strip land

LONDON (UPI) - A United Nations-sponsored commission said Monday that overpopulation, poverty and hunger were forcing desperate people to strip the Earth and to contribute to environmental problems that are devastating the planet's natural resources. The World Commission on Environment and Development, with representatives from 31 nations, unveiled "Our Common Future" - a 400-page report summarizing a three-year investigation into what is happening to the Earth and why.

1,000 protesters swarm CIA; 500 arrested

LANGELEY, Va. (UPI) - Nearly 1,000 demonstrators swarmed the CIA Monday to protest administration policies in Central America and South Africa and more than 500 protesters were arrested for trying to block entry to the spy agency. But the non-violent protest failed to halt work at the vast CIA complex in the woods of northern Virginia.

Officia l gives Texaco 2 creditors committees

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) - A federal bankruptcy official, in a rare move, Monday named two separate creditors committees to oversee Texaco Inc.'s bankruptcy proceedings and gave its archrival Pennzoil Co. a seat on one panel. U.S. Trustee Harry Jones of the Bankruptcy Court of the southern District of New York said he decided to set up two creditors committees rather than one because "this is an unusual case."

Judge won't stop Arab deportation, blasts law

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - A federal judge, calling the case "historic," Monday attacked a law being used to deport two accused members of a Palestinian terrorist group, saying it is too broad and could rob them of their rights. The Immigration and Naturalization Service intended to charge the two Palestinians with advocating or belonging to an organization that advocates the violent overthrow of any government, the killing or assault of government officials, destruction of property or sabotage.

65 mph legal only where signs are, state police say

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) - Motorists will be allowed to drive a little faster on some rural interstate highways as Transportation Department crews began installing 65 mph signs Monday on 1,486 miles of Illinois roads. Motorists should be cautious as the signs are going up, as the higher speed limit will be in effect only on stretches of highway where 65 mph signs have been installed, said Linda Prince, spokesman for the Illinois State Police Department.

Commitment permeates her past, present and future. Perhaps her drive comes from a religious upbringing, or the family closeness surrounding an only child. But whatever the influence, it taught Helen Westberg to put her mind to the task at hand.

She was the first woman to serve on Carbondale's City Council, then she was the first woman mayor. She has raised two sons, has been married for 46 years and continued to keep her family close knit after her children moved away.

Now, she is looking forward to making her own tracks. On April 7 Neil Dillard was elected mayor of Carbondale.

Westberg's decision not to run for re-election was based on the theory that when you commit yourself to doing something, you complete the job, she said.

The former mayor just wasn't sure she wanted to reserve another four years for Monday night council meetings.

"LET'S FACE it, none of us are getting any younger," the 70-year-old Westberg said. If you accept the responsibility of being mayor, she added, you owe it to the people to do it, she said.

Her time will belong more to herself now — without the restriction of a public schedule that sometimes filled up two months in advance. She and her husband, Bill, don't have any specific plans yet, but what they do have is an option.

"If we get inspired to go away, then fine, we don't have to worry about being back here on Monday nights," she said.

The next four years involves a lot of Monday nights. But council members commit themselves to more than just a couple of hours three times a month.

"We also spend a lot of the weekend studying the information and I don't think people realize that," Westberg said. If you accept the responsibility of being mayor, you have to study before meetings.

THE POLITICAL arena attracted Westberg early in life. She was a class representative for three years at Hood College in Maryland and elected class president her senior year.

After graduation, she taught home economics at the junior high and high school level until 1941 when she married another teacher at the high school where she worked.

The family, which by 1952 included sons Bill and Bob, came to Carbondale when her husband accepted a teaching position with SIUC. Their first introduction to Carbondale was not a pleasant one, Westberg said. "You can't please all the people all the time - and if by some magic you did, you probably wouldn't be accomplishing anything."

"I feel very privileged to have been part of so many of the city operations since 1973," she said. "There's been a tremendous amount happen, and it would have been nice to witness it, but it was even more of a privilege to be part of it. I appreciate that."

What are her plans for the near future?

"I expect and intend to be busy," she said. "I'm not going to sit around the house. Exactly what am I going to say yes to.

Tips on preventing harassment

Sexual harassment on the SIU-C campus is a serious problem: 30 to 40 percent of the students on campus have experienced harassment during their time at SIU-C. Such harassment undermines the educational and employment opportunities of women. Letters such as David Clark's only trivialize the experiences of sexually harassed women and point to the need for a commitment by the SIU-C administration to educate all faculty, staff and students about sexual harassment. So far, this commitment has been limited. For example, most faculty, staff and students are unaware of the SIU-C sexual harassment policy. Ignoring the problem will not make it go away.

Education should include that harassment is an act of power. Harassers are predominantly male and have power over their female victims. In this context their sexual advances (touching, kissing, fondling, grabbing and a hostile work environment) are initiated without consent of the victim whose grade, career or job may be threatened.

Education should also include that women and men define sexual advances differently. Women are more likely to define unwanted sexual advances as harassment, while men feel flattered and define only a few sexual advances as unwanted.

We encourage our colleagues to take a good, hard look at their own behaviors regarding sexual harassment and the potential abuse of power in their working and teaching relationships. In this way, SIU-C can have an environment more conducive to education and work. — Kathryn Ward, assistant professor of sociology, and three others.

Let the Lion’s Club have its day

I think it’s time someone told the people at Marriott that the purpose of the University isn’t to make as much money and step on as many people as possible. The University is here to serve the students and the community. One of the ways this is done is by allowing students and co-munity members to raise money for charity during special events.

I was shocked to discover in Friday’s Daily Egyptian that the Lion’s Club was not going to be allowed to have its annual pancake breakfast during Springfest. It seems that Marriott is worried about losing money. (I doubt that Marriott makes much money during Springfest.) I guess they don’t realize that most of the customers of the restaurant go there to donate to a worthy cause and to get an excellent meal in the bargain. If the event doesn’t take place, the people will eat breakfast at home, not at the Student Center.

Since Marriott has taken over the Student Center food service they have shown a disregard for student needs by raising prices and lowering service. Some students are now tending that disregard to the community by trying to support Lion’s Club as it competes. Come on, one Saturday morning. Give me a break Marriott!! — Michael A. Phillips, graduate student, geology.

SIU-C bites the hand that feeds it

Even after working for the Army for almost a year, I’m still convinced that Southern Illinois University is a bigger bureaucracy.

I arrived at approximately 5:10 a.m. on Easter Sunday to stay with a friend. By 6:37 a.m. my vehicle had been towed. After looking at the signs and calling the police, I realized I was wrong.

However, this was the least of my concerns after driving all the way from Arizona.

Is there no form of warning about these things? I would have paid a ticket. Do you know what it’s like to wake up and find out that all your worldly possessions, personal papers, and travelers checks are with Billy Bob Sleafall at the local (or pound.) They must be paid in cash of course, which creates yet another vicious cycle.

I try to donate what I can afford to the Alumni Association when they send me a letter. This year $34.50 will be subtracted from whatever amount I was going to give. Or better yet, wherever the school would like to hire a new professor, continue a service, or build a building, go ask Jim’s Towing. — Robert Pagan, SIU Alums ’86.

“Condom Carnival” pinned ideas home

Congratulations to the organizers of Saturday’s “Condom Carnival” at Thompson Point. While games like “Pin the Condom on the Stud” offered some tender sensibilities, it exposed the public to what, besides abstinence, is the most effective weapon against sexually transmitted disease.

Many readers complained about the Daily Egyptian’s front page coverage of the event and the accompanying plot. But it was this frightened attitude about prophylactics that makes both unwanted pregnancy and STDs hard to fight. As usual, Americans have no problem with bikini photos and beauty contests, but unseal the red pencils at any attempt at sex education.

A condom is a tube of rubber latex sold in most drug stores which will cover over the penis, prevent sperm and guard against viruses which may be carried by semen, from being transmitted from one person to another and thus helps to prevent pregnancy and disease.

But while the DE did a good job showing what a condom looks like, many students are still ignorant about both sexual diseases and birth control. Janice Kulp of the Wellness Center, who distributed quizzes, free condoms and pamphlets at the event, said the most common problems are fear of birth control pills, ignorance about the effectiveness of birth control methods, and a difficulty internalizing the idea that pregnancy and STDs can happen to anyone.

Kulp says that two questions commonly missed on the Wellness Center’s quizzes included: “Why do condoms prevent pregnancy?” and “What are the benefits of the pill?” Kulp says many students think women experience terrible side effects from the pill and that the risks of stroke or heart attack are the same for all women who use it. But Kulp asserts that side effects are mild compared to the risks linked to pregnancy, and that blood clots or heart problems are rare complications rather than common effects of pill usage.

It surprises some students to learn that the condom is 90 to 98 percent effective against pregnancy and practically 100 percent effective when used with spermicidal foam. This is important to know, Kulp says, while students are taking the pill, they do not think other forms of birth control are effective.

Another commonly missed question on the quiz asked whether women with short menstrual cycles are more likely to get pregnant during certain periods. Kulp says this idea is false and forms part of an entire barrage of misconceptions about the regular menstrual cycle. “Women should be aware of their calendars and think they can cut out sex a few days here and there and it will be all right,” they don’t understand how (the rhythm method) works,” Kulp says.

Kulp says the biggest problem in the fight against STDs and unwanted pregnancy is that students will say “no sex before marriage.” Kulp suggests students take responsibility for their own behavior. “They’re embarrassed to talk about birth control with a partner, or they’re uncomfortable about finding out if they are sexually active.”

Kulp says there is an ambivalence about whether one should engage in sexual behavior that mysteriously transfers to birth control. “I have students tell me they can’t use birth control because it is against their religion, and I say ‘Well, don’t that same religion say ‘no sex before marriage’?” Kulp explained that because of this ambivalence about sex and birth control, sexual encounters are often unplanned and thus unprotected.

It is this kind of fear and embarrassment about sexual behavior that keeps people from participating in the Condom Carnival.” In its own weird way, addressed. By turning birth control into a fun event, Kulp and the student volunteers at the event brought the issue to the streets. Detractors who still want to play “see no evil, know no evil” monkeyshines with sexuality should realize that information and more information is the best defense against sexually transmitted tragedies. But now that the acquired immune deficiency syndrome scourge has opened up so many facts, it is up to the individual to transfer that knowledge into behavior. The weapon of information is only so many words unless people are willing to use it.

Arms agreement may be near as Reagan changes tune on Soviets

By Ina R. Allen
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For what may be the first time in his career of Kremlin-bash ing, President Reagan is taking the Russians at their word.

Eager to achieve a nuclear arms agreement of some kind before his two terms expire in 21 months, Reagan is praising Mikhail Gorbachev.

In a little-noted response to a question from a camper at an outing in Santa Barbara for young cancer patients last Saturday, the president reiterated his "ultimate goal . . . to get rid of nuclear missiles and other weapons forever ."

It may seem strange, but as soon as Gorbachev proposed '86 as an annual summit, the United States with treaties banning medium- range, short-range, and battlefield nuclear missiles, it was the NATO allies, Secretary of State George Shultz and Reagan himself who expressed caution.

"We must look at this issue in a calm, careful, and deliberate manner," the president cautioned.

The problem for the United States and its European allies is acute: Without nuclear weapons, the NATO alliance could be at the mercy of a far superior Soviet conventional force.

But the key to Reagan's thinking was a statement in answer to a child's question about "our deal on nuclear missiles."

"This hasn't been said enough, but it's the first time there has ever been a Russian " "Without nuclear weapons NATO could be at the mercy of a far superior Soviet conventional force."" leader who has actually suggested eliminating some of the weapons. There have been meetings before, but it was always to decide, well, how fast a rate should we agree to build more weapons. And this time, they are actually suggesting, as we have been doing, to get rid of some of those weapons.

There are other, subtle, indications, that the desire for a lasting move toward nuclear sanity, like a lasting peace in the history books, is motivating a change in Reagan's long-held suspicions of Kremlin leadership.

U.S. officials, at the same time they are analyzing Gorbachev's arms proposals, are scratching their heads over the Russian leader's motives and his political strength at home.

The big question is whether Gorbachev's initiative on arms and on opening his country to self-criticism and limited human rights is the real thing.

After all, as Reagan is fond of reminding partisan crowds, authoritarian governments "call" peace on their own people cannot be counted on to achieve a nuclear peace with their neighbors.

For the first time, the president seems to think that Gorbachev is what he appears to be, takes the latest Kremlin arms proposals seriously and will be a lasting move toward nuclear sanity, like a lasting peace in the history books.

"It was a lasting move toward nuclear sanity, like a lasting peace in the history books,"

Flying over residence halls threatens lives

On April 18, I had the opportunity of watching a Blackhawk helicopter, an Army chopper and a Cobra gunship fly up and over Smith Tower at approximately 150 feet. On Monday I learned this "show" was part of a special ROTC program. The three aircraft with their crew were, I am sure, being flown by competent pilots. But why risk flying so close to a residence hall? Did they wish to scare the students to death?

Weren't they looking for topless sunbathers on the observation deck? If the ROTC wishes to do "Top Gun" antics, then I suggest they respect the other students doing them at the SU.

Williams ’Walks This Way’ in lively country, rock mix

By Ellen Cook
Entertainment Editor

Wednesday night in the Arena, Hank Williams Jr. did a remake of Aerosmith’s “Walk This Way.” That’s one of many that have turned Run-D.M.C. green with envy.

Although you usually wouldn’t expect to hear “Walk This Way” at a country performer’s concert, it fits right into Williams’ act, which featured a broad spectrum of musical styles and frequent references to friends such as Van Halen, Lynyrd Skynyrd and George Thorogood.

WILLIAMS TOLD the crowd that many types of music have influenced him — from honky tonk, boogie woogie and rock to country and blues — and in the song “Young Country,” he described a new breed of country fans that seems a lot like himself. “We like our country mixed with rhythm and blues... We like Waylon, Van Halen, ZZ Top and rock.”

But fans who came to hear Williams sing country music were disappointed. Williams and his large backup band performed newer hits “Texas Women” and “If Heaven Ain’t a Lot Like Texas” and it gave him the opportunity to poke fun at laws, androgyny, and Jim and Tammy Bakker. It also provided him the chance to discuss his country pride when he mentioned his hatred for pollution in country skies.

But unlike most musicians, whose banter with the audience grows tedious and pointless, Williams is a good storyteller who entertained the audience with off-color tales of his musical roots and his childhood.

Most of Williams’ childhood was spent without his father, who died when Hank Jr. was quite young. Although Williams said that he was influenced by Jerry Lee Lewis and Fats Domino, it’s clear that he hasn’t forgotten his father’s contribution to music — during the song “Family Tradition,” he mixed in lines from his father’s classic rockabilly tune “Your Hands to Yourself” and several of his songs featured excerpts from his father’s hits.

WILLIAMS IS one of the most popular entertainers on today’s country charts and his musical diversity has helped him to cross over onto the pop and rock charts.

One of his songs is titled “Country Boy Can Survive,” and Hank Williams Jr. seems destined to prove it.

CONCERT REVIEW

The most controversial of Williams’ recent projects is his version of Aerosmith’s “Walk This Way.” That’s one of many that have turned Run-D.M.C. green with envy.

Gardening is good for body and mind

By Kate Zager
Wellness Center

Where can you save money, improve the quality of your diet, manage stress, get some exercise, air and sunlight, and maybe even lose some weight? No, it's not an expensive spa. It's a backyard garden.

Gardening in the United States is now a $15.2 billion market. Every spring 20 million gardeners take up the rake and hoe and, by the year 2000, they could meet half of the nation's vegetable needs, according to a recent survey by a large gardening tool company.

GROWING YOUR OWN vegetables gives you more control over the quality of your produce. Store-bought vegetables are often picked before they are ripe and spend days traveling to and sitting on the grocer's shelf before being eaten. This can significantly lower the nutritional value of the food.

Vegetables eaten at their peak of ripeness, shortly after harvesting, have more vitamins C and A and folic acid than those sitting on the shelf for even a day. Lightly steaming, stir-frying or microwaving your vegetables will help retain those nutrients during cooking.

GARDENING organically with manure and compost as fertilizers will add life to the soil itself, where peak nutrition begins. Gardening without toxic pesticides is possible and helps maintain a natural balance of pest and predators in your garden.

The first step in beginning your garden is to find a spot where your vegetables will have access to plenty of light and water. If your garden space is limited, try growing in raised beds.

Tomatoes, Peppers, greens, beans and herbs can even be grown in large pots. Cucumbers, peas and other vine vegetables can be grown on fences and trellises.

Condition of the soil is also an important aspect to consider. Nutrition content and pH can make the difference between spindly weak crops and hearty prolific yields.

Among the easiest vegetables you can grow are the most nutritious. Broccoli, collard and mustard greens, Brussels sprouts and spinach are good sources of vitamins A and C and provide some calcium and iron, too.

Most GREENS - broccoli, lettuce, spinach - do well in cool weather and are best when planted very early in the spring or late in summer for fall crops: Brussels sprouts, collards and mustard greens.

Seed packets and nursery personnel can give you good directions on how and when to plant and expected time to maturity.

Other popular, easy-to-grow vegetables include tomatoes, peppers, cucumbers and green beans. These crops are planted when the soil is warm and yield from late June until frost.

Many VEGETABLES, flowers and herbs are available as plants at nurseries, grocery stores and garden centers. Gardeners find that growing from these plants helps guarantee success by eliminating problems that can occur during the germination process.

The first step in beginning your garden is to find a spot where your vegetables will have access to plenty of light and water. If your garden space is limited, try growing in raised beds.

been a member of the committee that hears student worker grievances. Glasford, a senior in education and political science, said his main objective is to let students know the position of student trustee exists. Glasford, who has been chairman of the Inter-Greek Council and campaign manager for state Rep. Larry Hicks, D-Mount Vernon, said he favors keeping student fee increases at a minimum and making sure fees benefit all students. He said he favors building a new day care facility for Rainbow’s End, which provides care for children of SIU-U students, faculty and staff, and addressing the campus parking problems.

Lyons, a senior in speech communication, said his main qualification for the position is his knowledge of the board’s operations. “From my experience as USO president, I’ve been in many channels of information and have learned a great deal about the financial information of the University and a member of the Board of Trustees. I think this information is my biggest advantage.”

behind in its commitments to academic quality, student access and support of statewide economic development efforts, Pettit said.

Without new funding, he said, special initiatives to assist minority students at SIU will have to remain at their current status. Those programs include the Minority Accelerated Entry program at SIU-C and the Outreach Program for Minorities at SIU-E.

Pettit said SIU is “close to the end of our tether” in its annual scramble to make ends meet by reallocating dollars internally.

Election polling places, times set

Polling places and times for the student trustee election:

Grinnell and Lentz halls from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m.; the Student Center and Law School from noon to 3:30 p.m.; and Trueblood Hall and the Student Recreation Center from 4 to 7 p.m.

Students must present a valid SIU-C identification card to be eligible to vote.

“Education, says he can help expand the voice of the students. “We need a strong trustee who can sit in there and present issues and argue for what is important for all the students.” DeFosse said. He said he considers each issue that comes to the board to be important and that he will represent students on each issue.

DeFosse said he favors student medical fee increases as long as they are not too extravagant, and students get something for their money. He said he favors building a new day care facility for Rainbow’s End because it will open student work jobs and encourage more people who have children to attend SIU. DeFosse says the oral proficiency test is “absolutely necessary.”

DeFosse is a USO senator and has worked for three years for Good Samaritan Hours, which provides temporary shelter for the homeless. He also is co-founder of the Non-traditional Student Union, president of Leadership and Educational Developments, a program being developed to help Registered Student Organizations develop leadership potentials, and has served for two years as chairman of the Evergreen Terrace Resident Council.

Hobert L. Hester
labor activist, 64,
died in his home
Funeral services for Hobert L. Hester, retired laboratory assistant in the botany department, will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday at St. Aloysius Catholic Church in Royalton. Burial will be in Blairsville Cemetery.

Mr. Hester, 64, a resident of Royalton, died Saturday.

A University employee for 25 years before his retirement in 1984, he helped organize the University’s Civil Service Employees’ Council and Civil Service Bargaining Organization.

He said once that he believed SIU-C would be better off if more people were willing to make a little noise now and then.

“We have a tendency to let George do it,” then, we’re met with a catastrophe,” he said during an interview.

Mr. Hester, who was born May 17, 1922, in Bush, was an Army veteran of World War II and a member of St. Aloysius Catholic Church.

Survivors include his wife, Doris; a daughter, Leanne Dominek of Car-terville; six sisters and two brothers.

Thompson sets no-smoking policy

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Employees for Gov. James R. Thompson who smoke at their desks soon will have to find another place to puff away, the governor said Monday.

The policy bans smoking in open and common areas.

However, smoking will be permitted in private offices with the door closed as well as in cafeterias and break rooms.

“This policy will minimize the risks associated with smoking and protect non-smokers from secondhand smoke,” Thompson said. “I hope that many other agencies will follow this example.”

Some employees were critical of the program, saying they objected to being told when they could and could not smoke. In addition, they said it is a case of “rank has its privileges” because top level staff members with their own offices can continue to smoke, while employees in pool situations cannot.

SIU-C's Lew Hartzog, head track and field coach for SIU-C for 24 years until his 1984 retirement, became part of the Drake Relays' Coaches Hall of Fame Thursday, April 23 at a Drake Relays banquet.

Texas native Hartzog and long-time friend Sonen "Baldie" Camp were instrumental in establishing a national and American collegiate mile relay record with a time of 3:00.78.

National Track and Field District V head coach of the year for six years, Hartzog was selected earlier this year by a national panel of the year twice while working at SIU-C.

Hartzog, son of a former track coach, was recognized before the Drake Relays crowd by the SIU-C athletic director.

The women's softball team will prepare for its last weekend of conference play with a nonconference doubleheader at 5 p.m. today against Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville in Edwardsville.

The Salukis, 19-15 overall and 9-5 in the Gateway Conference, will play a strong Division II school when they face the Cougars, and coach Kay Kattreh said the team will need to play well to win.

"The players are well rested and should come back fresh," Brechtlebslauer said.

The Salukis have not played since April 21 when they were scheduled to play a doubleheader against Harvard. Illinois State and Missouri State and only played one game because of rain.

Brechtlebslauer said at this point in the season, if the players don't know what to do, one practice will not help.

In addition, Brechtlebslauer said the players have spent the time wisely finishing any assignments before the Salukis leave for the Gateway Conference Championship in Normal, Ill. on May 7-8.

Brechtlebslauer said the team needs to finish strong in order to retain a good seed in the conference tournament.

"We are still in the hunt for first place in the conference and we want to be the deciding factor," Brechtlebslauer said.

"To do so we need to win all of our remaining games."

Brechtlebslauer said if the Salukas drop 3 out of 4 when they play two conference doubleheaders this weekend on the road they will finish in the bottom five.

The Saluki baseball team, 26-15 following this weekend's series with Missouri Valley, will host a doubleheader against the 27-20 Racers of Murray State at 1:30 p.m. today in Murray, Ky.

The Racers, a Division I team, handed the Salukis their 12th defeat of the season April 21 when SIU-C pitching ace Dale Kuten allowed 11 hits in 4.2 innings and was tagged with his second loss.

Saluki coach Richard "Ricky" Jones blamed lethargic play for the loss. SIU-C will need an alert defense to minimize the Racers' strong-hitting team.

Second baseman Dan McNamara leads Murray State in hitting with a .365 average. McNamara, of Mt. Vernon, Ill., has hit 12 homers and 40 RBI.

Dave Winder and Steve Groehn are tied for second in the Racers' hitting department at .355. Winder, the first baseman, has .454 with 48 runs, 18 doubles and 10 home runs and Groehn, the utility infielder, has 16 doubles and 21 RBI.

The Salukis are not slouches in the hitting department, by any means. Senior Steve Finley and junior Rick Gable were able to strike aerve in the teams' last meeting.

Finley went 2-3, including one double. He also scored one run and earned one RBI.

Gable got two hits in four at-bats in the contest.

SIU returns to Abe Martin Field with a single game at 3 p.m. Wednesday against Southeast Missouri State. The Salukis' last home game will be May 9 against the University of Missouri-St. Louis. The doubleheader will begin at 11 a.m. today.
