Executive Club closes 'voluntarily'

By Terri Bradford
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Executive Club Massage Parlor, 219 W. Main St., will be closed by its owner, Phil Brown of Springfield. Carbondale City Atty. John Womick said on Friday that Brown agreed to "voluntarily shut down" the business without undergoing judicial proceedings.

The Executive Club is charged with violating the same eight sections of the city ordinance regulating massage parlor operations that affected Deja Vu, 213 W. Main St., Womick said.

Deja Vu was ordered closed by Jackson County Circuit Judge Peyton Kunce Thursday.

Ordinance sections violated by Deja Vu and the Executive Club include restrictions on revealing dress of masseuses, covering genitalia of patrons' during massages, fondling patrons' sexual areas, massages intended to arouse sexual desire in patrons, use of alcoholic beverages, massages to persons with skin disorders and forbidding massage parlor operations between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. Larry Kläsen, owner of Deja Vu said, "We've been expecting this to happen since Deja Vu has been involved in legal proceedings for over six months." Deja Vu, which employs six persons, will officially close upon receipt of a written injunction prepared by Womick. Kläsen said closing the business could conceivably cause financial problems for he and his partner, Larry Keith. At press time Brown could not be reached for comment about his decision to close the Executive Club. Womick said, "The city did not attempt to prosecute anybody until Thursday when the court decided the validity of the city ordinance." He said the Executive Club and Deja Vu had been operating without licenses, because the businesses opened before the city ordinance requiring licenses passed in July, 1975. The ordinance does not prohibit operating massage parlors in Carbondale if the businesses are properly licensed and adhere to city ordinance guidelines, Womick said.

Same-sex dancers resubmit complaints

By Tom Chesser
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Complainants in the case charging Merlin's of Carbondale, 315 S. Illinois Ave., with sex discrimination in enforcing a policy of no same-sex dancing are preparing to formally resubmit their complaint to the Carbondale Liquor Commission Monday.

Attorney Jona Goldschmidt, working in cooperation with the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) to represent the complainants, said the complaint must be resubmitted in written form to conform to state law, and must be signed by at least five co-complainants and be specific as to the charges being alleged.

This week an administrative meeting was held between Chief of Police George Kennedy, City Manager Carroll Fry, assistant city manager Scott Ratter, the assistant city attorney Phil Gilbert and chief complainant Jerry Hemstock.

At the meeting Hemstock reiterated his charge that Merlin's policy forbidding persons of the same sex from dancing together is illegally enforced on males only. Hemstock charged that the policy itself was illegal because it infringes on people's civil rights. He confirmed his position quoting the Illinois Revised Statutes saying he was "denied full enjoyment of the premises."

Hemstock said later that Police Chief Kennedy investigated the allegations and reported at the meeting that they were unfounded. Hemstock said Fry will tell the Carbondale Liquor Commission that there was insufficient evidence to document charges of sex discrimination.

Hemstock said that Fry said this would not necessarily rule out his right to a public hearing.

The administrative officials present at the meeting either refused or were unavailable for comment.

Goldschmidt is representing Hemstock and nine other co-complainants, both male and female, who wished to not be identified. Goldschmidt said the "ad hoc" administrative meeting was insignificant because only the mayor or a majority vote of the liquor commission can guarantee Hemstock a hearing under Carbondale's municipal ordinance.

Hemstock has already appeared before the Liquor Advisory Board and the liquor commission to plead his cause. He said he has been contacted by many persons supporting his position that there should be no law or policy forbidding people of the same sex to dance. He said a petition has begun to be circulated to that effect.

Goldschmidt said he will ask the liquor commission to postpone a decision to grant or deny Hemstock a public hearing until it considers the complaint in its revised form.

If the mayor or a majority of the commission members vote in favor of a hearing, Merlin's owner John Hitchcock will be asked to appear. If the allegations are proved to be true and are proven in violation of state law, the liquor commission can revoke Merlin's license.

Hemstock said earlier that his only intention is to eliminate the policy and that it was not his original intention to have the license revoked.

Goldschmidt said that if the commission denies a hearing, he is prepared to appeal the decision to the Illinois Liquor Control Commission in Springfield and if necessary take it to court.

Hitchcock refused to comment on the allegations.

Council to vote on revised liquor code

Carbondale City Council members will vote on an ordinance amending the city liquor code in a formal meeting at 7 p.m. Monday at the council chambers.

If passed, the ordinance will remove a restriction prohibiting operation of any business selling liquor within 1,500 feet of SIU.

"This is the first ordinance of its kind in Illinois," said John Womick, city attorney.

A revised route of the Bike Centennial '76 trail extending it through Carbondale will be voted on by council members. They will also take action on the proposed emergency plan to be followed at Unity Point School in the event of fires or tornadoes.

City Manager Carroll J. Fry will present a site plan report on Doctors' Memorial Hospital parking lots.

Fry will also discuss alleged sex discrimination charges against Merlin's of Carbondale, 315 S. Illinois Ave.

After Fry's recommendations to the city health department, James Rayfield, planning director, will report on needs of physically handicapped persons.

Council members are expected to vote on requirements for Planning Commission procedures to be followed when studying areas to be rezoned and on acquiring deeds for three lots to be used for additional City Hall parking.

Discussion of a note and security agreement with a Carbondale bank for purchasing a Systems 3 IBM computer and the purchase of a tank and pump for non-leaded gasoline to be utilized by city vehicles is scheduled.

Review of a letter from the Interstate Commerce Commission regarding General Telephone Co. rate increases and approval of a final report of Cedar Lake archaeological findings are also on the agenda.

Northeast Carbondale to get apartment complex

By Curt Monsen
Student Writer

An 80-unit, two story apartment complex offering extensive social services to occupants and neighborhood residents is planned for northeast Carbondale.

Construction of the low- and middle-income housing complex is expected to begin this spring, according to Edsel Clark, director of Clark Enterprises, Inc., based in Carbondale. Clark Enterprises is the project's developer.

Called "Portraits in Living", the complex will be built on 5.8 acres of urban renewal land under the Neighborhood Development Plan (NDP). The land is owned by the city and is subject to federal urban renewal controls, said Eldon Gosnell, director of Carbondale's Division of Renewal and Housing.

An urban renewal land use plan presently affecting the site calls for the development of a public park. Gosnell said a change in this plan would require public hearings and would be necessary before development could proceed.

The $1.8 million project will be financed through Delmar Financial Co. of Clayton, Mo.

"Portraits" will provide efficiency, one- and two-bedroom apartments at rents of $117 to $212 per month. The apartments will encircle a recreation area including a swimming pool and tennis and volleyball courts.

The plan also provides for a broad range of social services, including financial assistance, free transportation to campus and shopping areas, counseling and referral services.

"We are more concerned with supplying decent housing and social services than with trying to get rich," Clark said. He feels that low profits and overhead will enable "Portraits" to achieve its goals.

Clark said he would like to involve university students majoring in social welfare in the project in order "to augment the program and provide students with a working experience as well."

Social services at "Portraits" will be available primarily to residents. "There are other agencies already providing these kinds of services in the community and we are not trying to draw anyone away from them," Clark said. "But if someone comes to us from the neighborhood with a serious problem, and we can help, we are not going to turn that person away."

"Portraits" will be built between Chestnut, Green, Barnes and Wall Streets, in a predominantly black district. Clark and most of his staff are black. "In this case we are the majority and whites are the minority, according to the federal agencies involved," Clark explains.

This means that promotional efforts to attract renters must be directed largely toward whites, in compliance with integration-oriented Federal Housing Authority (FHA) equal housing standards, Clark said. FHA's approval and financial guarantee will be based in part on a consideration of Clark's marketing plans.

Clark has projected a 40 per cent black occupancy, with 3 per cent aged and 1 per cent handicapped residents. Final occupancy ratios will be determined through a breakdown of applicant ratios.

Gosnell said the apartments will be "the largest housing project ever to be developed in Carbondale, aside from public-financed housing. Up to now we have only had single-family units and some churches developed on NDP land," he said.

It is also the largest project to be sponsored by Clark Enterprises, Clark said. He said the firm developed a similar, but smaller, housing complex in Benton Harbor, Mich. in 1967. The firm has been involved in civil engineering and urban development in Carbondale since 1958.

Clark also revealed long range plans to develop a commercial center on NDP land adjacent to the "Portraits" site. He said he has spoken with several businesses "that have expressed a definite interest" in the idea. Clark said this center could include a supermarket, a drug store, and a service station.

News Roundup

Race war fears increase in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Fears of race war are increasing in the African subcontinent, upsetting the complacency of the lingering bastions of white rule. Most worrying to whites is the prospect that Soviet arms and Cuban troops in Angola might be used in Rhodesia to back militant black movements in a conflict that could spill over borders to engulf the entire region.

Neighboring black-ruled states—Tanzania, Angola, Mozambique and Zambia—all have warned a racial "bloodbath" is imminent in Rhodesia. The white territories are reacting with a mixture of hard line defiance and piecemeal concessions to the black majority.

Efforts pushed to remove Peron in Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—President Isabel Peron left Buenos Aires on Friday for a long carnival weekend by the sea as opposition forces pressed efforts to remove her from office. Opposition and dissident Peronist legislators urged Italo Luder, the senate president, to call a special legislative assembly to discuss a resolution declaring Peron incapable of finishing her term. There was a question about the constitutionality of the action, but congressional sources said Luder could convene a joint session while legal implications were under study.

Marion hospital poisonings still unsolved

MARION (AP)—After more than a year of intensive investigation, authorities appear to be no closer to a murder indictment in the poisonings of Marion Memorial Hospital patients than when they began. Hospital officials last February told State's Atty. Robert Howerton that two emergency room patients died in October after being administered local anesthetics adulterated with lethal amounts of a muscle relaxant. Two more nonfatal poisonings and at least three more nonfatal incidents were suspected.

Howerton's office, starting to work on a trail that was 4½ months old, launched an investigation which he says has now consumed perhaps 10,000 man-hours, maybe more. But he couldn't say when he might have a case. Announcing "possible homicides" at the hospital last September, the first public disclosure, the young prosecutor said he could not say when an indictment could be expected.

Lake Road brush fire burns five acres of vacant fields

A brush fire Friday afternoon burned approximately five acres of vacant fields south of the Jackson County County Club.

The property burned is located on Lake Road just east of the Country Club Road and is owned by Bob Miller and Clifford Tippy of R.R. 2, Carbondale. The fire apparently started when trash, burning in a barrel on the property of Jack Clark, was blown by the wind onto the open field, said Murphysboro fireman Jerry McClerren. No damage to any buildings was reported, although the fire came close to the residence of L. Glasford Jr., R.R. 2, Carbondale.

McClerren said the Murphysboro Fire Department answered the call at 12:15 p.m. Friday. Jackson County Sheriff's Office reported the fire. Firemen from the Carbondale Fire Department were also called in.

Firemen fought the fire for about two hours, McClerren said.

Disease prevention subject of new program

By Peggy Sagona
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Decreasing susceptibility to disease and heightening host resistance of disease among persons in the university community is the purpose of the human lifestyling program sponsored by the prevention division of the Student Health Service program, according to Sharon Yeargin, coordinator of the program.

The program is a "wholistic, synergistic" approach to living designed to increase one's ecological awareness of one's environment and reduce stress through rigorous exercise, a nutritious diet of unprocessed foods and alternative mind-body therapies, Yeargin said.

She said that "one of our primary resources" is John McCamy, a physician who specializes in the field of preventative medicine, author of the book, "Human Lifestyling, Keeping Whole in the 20th Century." McCamy lectured at SIU Dec. 17 about the book which serves as a model to the program.

Yeargin said, "There is a crisis in our culture in the rising costs of medicine, doctors being sued for malpractice, the rising incidence of disease and highly sophisticated and costly medical technology that serves only a very few people.

"We need more resources for teaching people to stay healthy," Yeargin said.

"All of our time and money goes into treating disease after it has already developed," she said. "What we need is to encourage the preventive practices and teach people how to remain healthy."

You are what you eat, drink, breathe, think and do, according to McCamy, and bringing all the elements of human lifestyling together is what makes the program work.

"The process of changing one's life habits to support health is a step by step process—one at a time," Yeargin said. "Eating nutritious food helps one to develop good exercise habits and helps the reduction of stress to become aware of the environment which then develops naturally as an attempt to live well," she added.

McCamy said that the prediction of disease is based on correlation studies of disease patterns and lifestyle habits.

If a person can become more aware of the choices he is making unconsciously that affect his health, then it is possible that he could make a decision not to have a heart attack or develop cancer at the age of 50.

More people in the United States are getting sick than ever before and they are getting sicker younger, McCamy said.

In his book, he refers to a study conducted with subjects ranging from 17 to 24 years of age. The results showed that 50 per cent had some form of degenerative disease.

A degenerative disease is one that develops slowly, and once it has developed, it is chronic.

Yeargin said, "It is not so much the fault of the physician. We simply don't have people trained in our culture to fill the role of a health adviser trained in preventive medicine.

"As a culture, we have bought into the idea that it is inevitable that one becomes sick when one grows old," she said. "This does not have to be so. One can decide to begin a new lifestyle and have it last a lifetime."

"The main point is that it is each individual's choice to begin a new lifestyle, and it is each individual's responsibility to remain healthy," she said.

Workshops will be held March 1, 2 and 3 from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. and will focus on exercise, stress reduction and meditation along with ecological awareness. A schedule will be in the display area of Ballroom B of the Student Center.

The film, "Diet for a Small Planet," will be shown continuously from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. all three days in the Ohio Room of the Student Center.

"The film shows how to combine non-meat protein sources to get complete high-quality protein requirements," Yeargin said.

Persons interested in human lifestyling as a topic for workshops, lectures, seminars and ongoing groups may contact Yeargin at 453-3311.

Jury selected for triple murder trial

By Debbie Absher
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A jury was selected Friday evening in Jackson County Circuit Court for the trial of three men charged with a triple murder Nov. 1 in Carbondale.

A 12-member jury and two alternates were chosen from a panel of 50 prospective jurors after 11½ hours of interviewing in the court of Judge Richard Richman. Only three prospective jurors remained to be interviewed when the state and the defense accepted the alternates to complete the jury box.

The jury is comprised of eight men and four women. The two alternates are males. All members of the jury are white, and the defendants and alleged victims are all black.

Charged with three counts of murder and one count of attempted murder are Grady Bryant, Luther Carter, both of 314 N. Washington Ave., and Ronald M. Jenkins, No. 16, Ambassador Apartments on East Danny Street.

Killed were Terry L. Eanes, Robert Gilmore, both of 401 N. Barnes St., and James A. Williams of East St. Louis. The only survivor was Buford Lewis, 415 E. Fisher St.

The shooting occurred in the mobile home of Eanes and Gilmore.

Richman admonished the jury not to discuss the case with anyone and not to read anything appearing in newspapers about the case because they have not yet heard any of the evidence.

The trial is scheduled to resume Monday with the swearing in of the jury at 9:30 a.m. in the north courtroom of the courthouse in Murphysboro.

Spears, APSC push ahead despite risks

By Judy Vandewater
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Barbara Spears, chairperson of the Administrative and Professional Staff Council represents "the smallest, least defined constituency at SIU." The constituency is also the most susceptible to administrative pressure, Spears said.

"The necessity of our role is to augment the direction of the administration." That position creates strain when the interests of the constituency conflict with those of the administration. To disagree with the administration is to take a "pretty high-level risk right now," she said.

"That may not be a fair judgement because I have not pushed ahead on some things I felt strongly against." With approximately two months left in her one-year term as chairperson of the council, she is ready to make some waves.

Spears values professionalism. She played a vital role in the development of a learner training program for civil service workers at SIU. The programs are recommended for women and minorities because they provide direct training in management and leadership skills.

Although Spears was raised to be "self sufficient and self reliant," she said most women have been trained in "low-key skills" as mothers, wives and disciplinarians. They need to be taught professional skills, Spears said.

The training programs are a means of moving women and minorities into higher level administrative and managerial positions.

Spears is supervisor of staff training and development in addition to being the spokeswoman for 406 high-level administrative and professional personnel.

She compared her position to a cowboy in an old western dancing to the rhythm of a desperado's six-shooter, and she doesn't know who is shooting, the civil service workers, President Warren Brandt or the Board of Trustees. "I only know I am in the street dancing." She added, "Maybe I will come out of this a better dancer."

"I don't feel very comfortable about the amount of my power," Spears said her concern is shared by a number of administrators. "I think there is a lot of input we have here that is being overridden."

Spears said her constituents have vehicles for input in the upper echelons of the administration, but "in day to day decision making, the power is being centralized in upper administrative levels." She sees this as a negative influence and said, "I realize it is his (Brandt's) style. I see him becoming involved in a lot of detail."

Spears said she is not sure of the reason for intense scrutiny of programs initiated by administrative staff. "Maybe it is because I can't see the whole picture of what he is working towards. I will feel better when I know what his overall philosophies are in education and management."

"I hope he will turn out to be someone with better foresight than many of us have." Spears said she hopes Brandt is progressing toward a point where her constituents "will be able to plan out our programs without being preempted. The sooner that comes, the better I will like it."

"One of the main functions of administrative and professional personnel is to make sure University policies are smoothly enacted. As a result our role (as a separate constituency) has been so secondary that we have not forcefully moved our own cause forward," Spears said. "I begin to get a little frustrated over that."

"Our own employment benefits are not very clear." The Administrative and Professional Staff Council is completing final revisions on a handbook which will define the conditions of employment for administrative and professional personnel.

The handbook ranks personnel according to their level of responsibility. Spears said that under the diverse and unspecific job titles currently used, equitable pay is not given to employees with similar levels of responsibility.

Spears fears specific job titles "might be constraining," but added, "I don't know how to get fair pay for constituents without demanding our job titles be defined."

GSC approves student trustee amendment

By Kathleen Tokemoto
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Graduate Student Council has approved an amendment to the student trustee election laws spelling out the post-election requirements for the student trustee.

The amendment, previously ratified by the Student Senate, must receive final ratification by the student body in a referendum on April 14.

Before approving the amendment, however, the GSC Thursday night inserted a clause which will allow the student trustee to have a maximum total of three hours of incomplete or deferred grades. The clause will affect the student trustees if he is a graduate student. Undergraduates cannot defer grades.

The amendment states that the student trustee must be a full-time student at SIU-C. If the student trustee is an undergraduate, he must also have a 2.0 grade point average (GPA) or be in good standing, and if he is a graduate, he must have a 3.0 GPA or be in good academic standing. The student trustee must also maintain a good disciplinary standing.

If the student trustee is disqualified from holding office because of failure to meet these requirements, a special election to elect a new student trustee will be held within four weeks from the date of disqualification, the amendment states.

In other action, the GSC approved a motion to request an additional $5,100 in unallocated student fee money from the Board of Trustees. GSC President Ellen Schanzle-Haskins told the council that the increased enrollment at SIU-C this year generated $5,100 more than the $38,000 budgeted into the account.

The GSC voted to allocate $1,000 of the $5,100 to the Fee Board, $3,100 to the Special Program Committee and $1,000 to administrative costs.

The request for the additional funds will be presented to the Board of Trustees in March, Schanzle-Haskins said.

IBHE student rep lauds new advisory vote

By Kathleen Takemoto
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The establishment of an advisory vote for the student member of the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) will set a statewide precedent, said James K. Zerkle, the current student member of the board.

James Zerkle

Zerkle, who spoke to the SIU Graduate Student Council (GSC) Thursday night, said the student member's advisory vote "will strengthen student positions on other governing boards."

Zerkle said he "actively sought" the board's approval of an advisory vote for the IBHE's student member. "In the end, the majority of the board saw it as an advantage," he said. The IBHE voted at its February meeting to allow the student member to have an advisory vote.

Zerkle said he thinks the other board members respect his views. "I think the board is mature enough to judge issues on facts or arguments," he said. "Board members are just as willing to listen to the student board member as to any other member," he said.

Zerkle, who is a senior in political science at Western Illinois University (WIU), was elected by the IBHE's Student Advisory Committee last spring as student member of the board. The 21-year-old student is also a student senator at WIU.

The IBHE's Student Advisory Committee is a major source of student input, Zerkle said. The committee represents students from all sectors of higher education.

Zerkle has attended Lincoln Land Community College, where he was student senator, student vice president and student member of the college's board of trustees.

As the IBHE's student member, Zerkle represents students of public universities, private institutions and community colleges throughout the state.

In order to balance the diverse constituencies which he represents, he relies upon his own judgment and upon input received from students, Zerkle said.

Since taking office, he has visited most major colleges in the state to talk with students and student leaders, Zerkle said.

He said he has tried to cooperate with other student organizations such as the Association of Illinois Student Governments and is on a first-name basis with a number of student trustees in the state.

Zerkle, who is now in his eighth month as student member of the IBHE, said it is "critical that the Board of Higher Education have a viable, vocal student input." He said it is important that the student board member present students' views "well and coherently" to the board.

Zerkle said he wants to do his job right, but is cautious about jeopardizing the position of future student members of the board. "The next student board member is going to have this year to build on," he said.

Zerkle said his position as the IBHE's student member has affected his grades. But he added, "I was elected to do the job, and I have to do it regardless of anything else." He said he is presently considering running for reelection to the board this spring. His term expires July 1.

Zerkle told the GSC about his meeting with Gov. Daniel Walker in Chicago earlier this month. He said he recommended to the governor that the tuition increase proposed in the IBHE's Master Plan—Phase Four not be sent to the legislature. He also recommended $3.95 million in supplemental funding to the Illinois State Scholarship Commission for this year and an additional $6 million allocation to the commission for Fiscal Year 1977.

Zerkle said he did not favor collective bargaining for faculty members, but thought it will be "inevitable" in the future. "It is essential that we as students get involved with collective bargaining in one way or other," he said. As long as increased faculty salaries are tied to increased tuition rates, "we as students stand to lose the most," he said.

Legalize heroin

By Debbie Absher
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Drug-related crimes comprise about half of all violent crimes in the United States. Yet citizens and the government continue to shun proposals that addicts be administered free drugs in an effort to prevent their resorting to crime to support costly habits.

The most recent proposal comes from U.S. Rep. James Symington, D-St. Louis County, who suggests that to curb drug-related crime the government provide free heroin and other hard drugs to addicts. Symington's proposal seems to condone drug use and appears to be a drastic effort to control the problem. Yet one has only to examine statistics to realize that perhaps it's time for desperate measures.

Statistics from the Federal Bureau of Narcotics, for example, show that about one of every 400 persons in the U.S. is addicted to heroin. In the last 15 years the number of heroin addicts has increased 10 times. Drug-related crimes have climbed in proportion.

Before Symington's proposal is rejected, it should be noted that government attempts to prohibit heroin use by making distribution illegal have done to hard drugs what prohibition did to whiskey. The supply has been forced to an underground market, thus driving up prices of drugs and requiring addicts to commit crimes to pay for their habit.

Symington doesn't suggest that heroin and other drugs be doled out in any requested amount to anyone for the saking. He merely asks for "a very tightly limited test of providing drugs to addicts." He bases his proposal on a program used by the British which provides free drugs coupled with psychological counseling to addicts.

That country faces almost no drug-related crime, he points out.

The United States must quit whistling in the dark and face its drug problem—a problem that will not improve without drastic changes in attitudes and approaches. The government must realize that past programs have failed miserably in decreasing and even controlling crimes caused by drugs.

As for expense involved in providing free drugs to addicts, it would be less than the expense of paying for drug-related crimes.

Stonewall Nixon

Tim Zgonia
Student Writer

Richard Nixon is in China again, and from over the left edge, we hear that he has some scheming, nefarious trick up his sleeve. Knowing Nixon, he probably has.

Nixon is powerless now, at least legally. The old guard in China is either going or gone; what is left is in turmoil. Nixon has nothing on his mind so dastardly as selling out to the Commies.

Richard Nixon is trying to crawl back into the public spotlight.

Hounded at home, he cannot re-debut here. Logically, he has returned to the scene of his great triumph.

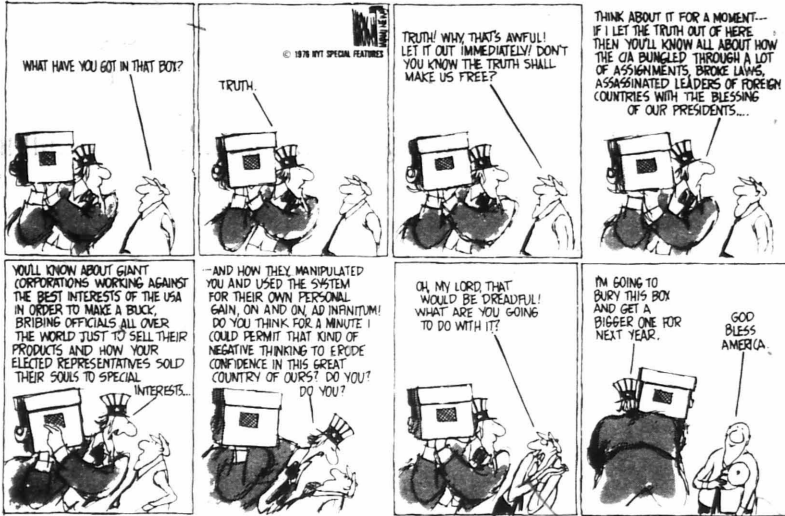

Knowing when to move is a Nixon hallmark, and he has chosen New Hampshire primary time to reappear. Perhaps he hopes to take the spotlight away from New Hampshire, perhaps he is trying to make his presence felt there. Whichever is the case, he has something up his sleeve. In his initial trip in February 1972, Nixon knew the applause of the nation and the world. He is now trying to relive those memories. Perhaps he hopes to ignite them.

Nixon still has the strong emotional backing of his "silent majority." Many grassroots Americans still believe in Nixon.

If he is using the China trip as a catalyst for that support, it would not be surprising to see him turn up in Kansas City at the Republican National Convention, bargaining for something.

Nixon still clamors for the public limelight. It is almost absurd to think Nixon would want to crawl back into politics, but such may be the case.

Richard Nixon bears watching, and with his gray spectre now again cast upon the American political scene, he should be watched with a wide eye.

Presidential quiz proves anyone makes ideal candidate

By Arthur Pope

Now that the Democrats have proved anyone can run for President you may want to take a crack at it yourself. What the heck, why not?

To see if you've got what it takes, here is The Rate Yourself as a Presidential Candidate Quiz.

Allow yourself one minute and 17 seconds to complete the test. You will find the answers in the last two paragraphs. DO NOT LOOK AT THE ANSWERS under any circumstances until you have completed all the questions. A perfect score is 30 per cent. Ready? Go!

(1) The solution to the stagflation we suffer from is: (a) regulating Big Labor; (b) regulating Big Business; (c) regulating Big Government; (d) proper nutrition; (e) none of the above.

(2) Detente should be: (a) a one-way street; (b) a two-way street; (c) a two-way street with a planted divider down the middle; (d) the name of a meringue-topped, snail-stuffed French pastry; (e) all of the above.

(3) My personal view on abortion is: (a) none of your damn business; (b) there is much to be said on both sides; (c) I would never have one myself no matter how much my wife nagged me; (d) it is a matter to be decided between each woman and her Pope; (e) Supreme Court justices should not be allowed to perform them; (f) they should be permitted in private between consenting adults; (g) some of the above; (h) I just wish to hell the issue would go away.

(4) If nominated, I would accept a woman as Vice President: (a) if I knew what was good for me; (b) if she had a large bosom; (c) of the Green Bay Packers; (d) one of the above.

(5) If elected, I promise to: (a) cut $90 billion from the budget like my opponent; (b) add $90 billion to the budget like my predecessor; (c) leave well enough alone; (d) do away with the budget because they never work anyway and it's always more fun to spend money as soon as you get it before somebody bops you on the head and takes it away from you; (e) probably a few of the above.

(6) On education, I believe: (a) in busing children to their neighborhood schools; (b) busing their neighborhood schools to the children; (c) horsing children to their neighborhood schools to avoid busing; (d) every child deserves a quality education and a side of french fries; (e) reading rots the mind; (f) what was the above?

(7) No matter what, I shall always stand for standing up: (a) to the Russians; (b) for elderly women on buses; (c) after falling down; (d) above all of the issues above.

Good for you. You cheated, you foxy scamp, and peeked here for the answers before you finished the test. This shows you aren't about to take on a bunch of questions unless somebody else supplies you with the answers in advance. With the help of a smart campaign manager and a large research staff, you will make an ideal Presidential candidate.

If, by any wild chance, you tried to answer those questions without sneaking a look, you could run as an honest candidate. But who'd believe you?

Feminist theology taught in Free School

By Patricia Lauten
Student Writer

In the past few years, a woman's "place" has been gradually moving from the home into the office. Now it is headed in a new direction—the altar.

Many women, no longer content to cook the Sunday "pot-luck" dinners or clean and decorate the church for services, are questioning the traditional Judaic-Christian teachings of the church.

A new theology based on the equal dignity of men and women, not the domination of one over the other, is the subject of a Free School course in Feminist Theology.

The course, run by Lyn Muldoon, meets every Monday from 8 to 9:30 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation, 815 S. Illinois. The current session runs until March 1 with an additional spring session scheduled from April 5 to 26.

Muldoon said that two views being examined in the unstructured, informal discussions are those of Mary Daly, an assistant professor of theology at Boston College, and Father Tissa Balasuriya, an Asian chaplain of the Catholic Student Movement.

Daly, the writer of several books on the topic, including "After the Death of God the Father," advocates human liberation or a "sisterhood of man." According to Daly, women have been oppressed by "the Judaic-Christian tradition (that) has functioned to legitimate male-dominated society."

She envisions the sisterhood, like a church, as a charismatic community set apart from the rest of the world with a specific exodus, or purpose, much like the early Christians.

In contrast, Father Balasuriya approaches the Scriptures as statements only understood within the context of the day. The Scriptures, Balasuriya said, need to be critically evaluated "in light of the growth of human awareness concerning what is right and just."

As an example, he cites St. Paul's encouragement to masters to treat their slaves well. Although slavery is now recognized as evil, to defend it as right because of St. Paul's statement would be unthinkable. The same can be said for the oppression of women within the church.

Lyn Muldoon, right, leads the discussion in the feminist theology class, as Ileen McClellan and Andrea Rea ponder some points. The class is being held at the Wesley Foundation as part of the Free School curriculum. (Staff photo by Chuck Fishman)

Housing committee meets to discuss organization plans, determine goals

By Peggy Sagona
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The housing regulations advisory committee met for the first time this week to discuss plans for organization and to determine its goals.

The all student committee consists of representatives from every area of University Housing.

Doug Harre, chairman of the committee, has asked Sam Rinella, director of University Housing, to select a person from University Housing to serve as an administrative adviser to aid in the interpretation of regulations.

The committee will look at University policy on regulations and rules pertaining to on and off campus housing, Harre said.

"What we are going to do is take a look at what we see needs to be changed, what we would like to see changed and research to see if it is necessary for something to be changed," he said.

A final proposal will be written and presented to Rinella when all recommendations have been made and compiled, Harre said.

"This is an important job. It is the first time a committee of this type has been set up to look at regulations. Before, it has always been administration only."

Harre said he would like to see the proposal completed by the end of the semester.

The housing rules and regulations have not been reviewed since 1970, when the current set went into effect, Rinella said.

"It is always good to have student input, providing, it is constructive input on things that need to be reviewed periodically," Rinella said.

"I am most happy to provide any information we have in this office that would help them," he said.

"I hope they decide to have a sub-committee that can come to the housing office between the hours of 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. if they need assistance in the interpretation of rules," Rinella said.

The committee decided that one of the first issues it should address is the regulation requiring unmarried freshmen and sophomores under 21 to live in approved housing.

The next meeting of the committee is scheduled for 6 p.m. Wednesday in Activities Room A on the third floor of the Student Center.

Harre said that he welcomes input from students on ideas they have for making changes and on their personal feelings about housing problems they are or have been involved with.

Human sexuality workshops will stress rational attitudes

Human Sexuality Services is offering several workshops on sexual awareness in conjunction with the Division of Continuing Education and the Counseling Center.

On March 5, 6 and 7 there will be a weekend workshop on sexual awareness in life styles at the lounge in the Home Economics Building. The purpose of the workshop is to explore the range of peoples' sexual behavior and to help them participate in getting in touch with their own attitudes and to deal with their own sexuality in a rational manner.

The workshop will be from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. on Friday, from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Saturday and from 9 a.m. to noon on Sunday. The cost is $10 per person and registration must be completed before the workshop begins.

A sexual attitude experience group will meet every week beginning March 10 from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. Interested persons will need to be interviewed and selected by someone at Human Sexuality Services to participate in the weekly workshop. A meeting place has not been arranged.

Male and female groups will meet individually for a one-day seminar on April 3 from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. The seminar will provide people with an opportunity to discuss their feelings and attitudes toward sex and how it affects their daily lives.

The female groups will meet at the Wesley Foundation and the male group will meet at the group room in the Counseling Center. The cost will be $3. To register, contact the Division of Continuing Education or Human Sexuality Services.

Contraceptive raps will be held weekly every Tuesday beginning March 2 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the River Rooms of the Student Center. Meetings are free and open to the public.

Carbondale Briefs

The Sandettes will hold an induction ceremony from 4 to 6 p.m. Saturday at 403 W. Freeman St., Apt. 2.

Antoinette R. Appel, assistant professor in the School of Medicine, will speak at the Carbondale Unitarian Fellowship, 301 W. Elm St., at 10:30 a.m. Sunday. She will speak on "We Are Human and That Is the Worst That Can Be Said of Us."

A discussion on "The Pros and Cons of Abortion" will be held at the Student Christian Foundation at 5 p.m. Sunday. The discussion is sponsored by the Southern Illinois Citizens for Life. Students are invited.

The Bahai Club will sponsor a coffeehouse at 8 p.m., Sunday in Felts Hall. The public is invited.

The black faculty and administration at SIU will meet with black students and Black Affairs Council representative organizations at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Student Center Ohio Room. Other Black History Month activities on Sunday are the film "White Man's Country" at 2 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium and a talk by Dick Gregory at 8 p.m. in Student Center Ballrooms B, C and D.

The La Leche League of Carbondale will meet at 1 p.m. Tuesday at 1112 Walkup St. to discuss "The Advantages of Breastfeeding to Mother and Baby."

A scripture session on "Introduction to the New Testament" will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the Newman Center, 715 S. Washington.

A program of displays and workshops on "Becoming Whole: You and Your Health" will be presented from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Wednesday in Student Center Ballrooms A and B. Monday's workshop at 3 p.m., presented by the Health Service, Student Activities and SGAC, will cover "Your Rights and Your Responsibilities for Your Health." Tuesday's workshop at 3 p.m., presented by the Health Service, will discuss "Human Lifestyling: A Wholistic Approach to Healthful Living."

Three SIU professors listed among candidates for post

Three SIU professors are among six final candidates for the position of associate vice president for academic affairs and research for services.

The candidates' names were released Friday by the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs and Research.

The candidates are Jack Cody, professor of guidance and educational psychology at SIU-C; Raymond N. Kieft, associate vice provost at Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant; James Kolka, senior academic planner at the University of Wisconsin system in Madison; Sue Pace, professor of speech pathology and audiology at SIU-C; Edward Pauley, assistant vice president of academic affairs at the University of Rhode Island in Kingston; Eugene Trani, professor of history at SIU-C, who is presently on leave. Interviews of the candidates will begin next week, said Linda Bevis, secretary to Frank Horton, vice president for academic affairs and research.

New P.E. classes to begin in March

Three additional general studies courses for this semester are now available for registration. The classes will start the week of March 22 to accommodate students with scheduling problems.

The courses are GSE 104N, one credit, cross country, 11 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday; GSE 104V, one to two credits, self defense, 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Saturday and GSE 104Y, one to two credits, racquetball, 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. Saturday.

Opera presentation colorful, comic

By Robert Stone
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater's presentation of Gaetano Donizetti's "The Daughter of the Regiment" is a colorful, highly melodious and romantic comedy. It was also comic.

Although historically significant, its theme and spoken dialogue contain the classical pattern of light opera and the old-fashioned Broadway musical comedy...that is, boy-meets-girl, boy-loses-girl, boy-gets-girl.

The boy who can't seem to hang on to the girl is a Tory named Tonio, who insists on marrying the girl, Marie, the daughter of the regiment.

A Review

The reason Tonio can't hang on to Marie is Marie's possessive Bostonian aunt, the Marquis of Berkenfield. Obnoxious in her splendor, the Marquis insists on Marie's traveling to Boston to marry a wealthy and spoiled man of German nobility.

But out of New England's dark forests comes Marie's hero...and our hero, Tonio, the loyal Tory. The wedding is called off and a new one is planned. Tonio and Marie shall be one at last.

The musical score, prepared by Marajan Marvin, associate director of the Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater, is fascinating. The set designs by Darwin Page are a must to see, as are the colorful costumes by award-winning costumer Richard Boss.

The cast for the Saturday performance will include Robert Phillips, Janet Morrow Stearns, Leslie Conerly, and James Quesenberry Jr. The Sunday cast will include Frederick James, Nancy Wandland, Nora Bailiff-Bostaph and David Doyle. All cast members are graduates with the SIU School of Music.

The presentation will be presented again at 8 p.m. Saturday and at 3 p.m. Sunday in the University Theater, Communications Building. Tickets are $1.50 for students and $3 for the general public and are available at the University Theater Box Office.

SIU solar energy specialist to head Illinois study panel

A solar energy specialist at SIU has been named to head the Solar Energy Study Panel of the Illinois Energy Resources Commission (ERC).

Walter L. Borst, associate professor of physics and astronomy, was named chairman of the 16 member solar energy group at its first meeting Feb. 19 in Springfield.

The Solar Energy Panel—one of six panels formed as part of the ERC—will study several aspects of the solar energy question and then advise the Illinois legislature on a

The first area of study will be in the possible use of solar energy to heat and cool private residences. This includes the feasibility of solar heating in different geographical areas of the state, and the question of "sun rights," or whether one resident is obstructing the sunlight of another.

The panel will conduct the study for eight months and will submit a formal report to the Illinois legislature towards the end of 1976.

Preventive health seminar set

A three-day seminar on preventive health will be sponsored by the SIU Student Health Service Monday through Wednesday in Ballrooms A and B of the Student Center.

Workshops and displays will be offered during the seminar, which is entitled "Becoming Whole: You and Your Health." Topics on display include nutrition, cancer prevention, heart problems and a variety of related subjects.

The displays are set up by various health groups. Included are displays on hypertension, conception and smoking.

The workshops will be offered during the afternoons in Ballroom B. Each day from 1 to 3 p.m. Four workshops will be run on the topics of exercise and body movement, stress reduction and relaxation, environmental awareness and "You-Food Trip."

Health awareness workshops will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. in Ballroom B. The schedule Monday is health rights and responsibilities. Tuesday will offer an approach to healthy living, with Wednesday finishing with health care for women.

The workshops and displays are free and open to the public.

King Biscuit debut scheduled Sunday

"The King Biscuit Flower Hour" returns to WIDB at 10 p.m. Sunday. The program features a new series of concerts performed by major rock artists and groups from around the world.

"The King Biscuit Flower Hour" will debut with a recent performance by Fleetwood Mac, featuring Christie McVie, Mick Fleetwood and Stevie Nicks.

Senior Citizens Center sponsoring open house

Carbondale's Senior Citizens Center is sponsoring an open house at their new facilities 606 E. College St. Sunday from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

The open house will begin with the formal opening of the center at a ribbon cutting ceremony expected to be attended by Mayor Neal Eckert, City Manager Carroll Fry and a representative from the Illinois Department of Aging, Ken W. Holland.

Carol H. Johnson, director of the center, said the center was first occupied in December. Johnson said the open house will give the community and specifically the area's senior citizens an opportunity to see for themselves the vast array of services offered by the center.

The center offers programs in drivers license test preparation and income tax filing. The Golden Goose lunch program provides meals five days a week from noon to 1 p.m. to persons over 60 for a recommended donation of 75 cents.

The center has a lounge with pool tables, a library, a first aid center, a small beauty shop and meeting rooms. These are all available to member senior citizens.

Johnson said the only requirement necessary to become a member is a resident of Carbondale and 55 or over.

New administrator at local hospital seeks good relations with community

By Ron Morgan
Student Writer

After one month as the new administrator of Doctors Memorial Hospital, George Maroney said he will work to improve the hospital's relations with the Carbondale community and to lower hospital costs.

Maroney, 33, was the associate administrator at St. Louis City Hospital for two years before coming to Doctors Memorial on January 26.

Maroney said he would like to improve the hospital's image by making the people in the area more aware of the specialized care available at Doctors Memorial.

"This hospital has a very high level of sophistication when compared with hospitals in other areas of this size," Maroney said.

He emphasized that the hospital serves more than just Carbondale, with over 50 per cent of the patients coming from other areas.

The hospital serves as the medical center for this part of Southern Illinois, providing the more specialized secondary and in some cases even more advanced tertiary care to patients who come in from area hospitals, Maroney said.

Maroney said he was "optimistic" that a hospital could not only hold down but lower the cost of hospital care with better management techniques.

"In the past, hospitals have sometimes been too quick to justify rate increases with rising costs, without making a determined effort to control them," Maroney said. "Hospitals have an obligation to do everything they can to keep the cost of health care down."

Maroney cited such things as government action and malpractice insurance rates as variable factors that the hospital could not control but which could force rates.

Malpractice insurance rates for Doctors Memorial increased from one dollar a day per patient to four dollars a day per patient in the last year, Maroney continued. This is less than in some places but it is still a very rapid increase.

Maroney said, he would like to see cooperative efforts between the hospital and SIU continue and expand.

"We're just in the embryonic stage as far as what we can do in this Maroney said.

Much of the community is made up of people who tend to move within a few years, which causes problems in identification with the community but it is also an asset because new people and ideas are always coming in, Maroney said.

"I still have a lot to learn about the area but so far, I think I'm going to like it here," Maroney said.

Amateur gardeners being offered community plots again this summer

Community garden plots are being offered again this summer by the Carbondale Park District and the SIU Recreation Department for all amateur gardeners.

Plots were offered last summer, and after a successful season, they will be offered again, said Douglas McEwen, assistant professor in recreation.

The 15 by 20 foot plots will be rented on a first come, first served basis for a cost of $5 for the summer. The city will provide water during the dry season and a project coordinator will be available to give technical advice.

An organizational meeting and lecture will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Oakdale House, 940 N. Oakland.

The lecture by Harold Hunzinger of the Jonesboro Agriculture Extension Service will cover the types of plants that grow in this area, soil and watering, planning and planting procedures and the care of seedlings.

McEwen said he hopes that by the time planting season arrives the park district will be able to sell fertilizer on a cost basis and provide tool rental.

Anyone interested in gardening a plot but unable to attend the meeting should contact the Carbondale Park District at 457-8370.

Attention students pre-registering for Fall '76

Three new interdisciplinary courses will be offered in Fall '76. Each course will deal with value problems that arise in the practice of the professions and careers that base themselves upon 1) biological sciences, e.g., nursing, forestry; 2) communication arts, e.g., TV, journalism; and 3) the social sciences, e.g., corrections, rehabilitation. They are:

LAC 310 Values in the living world. Coordinators: Bengtson and Hutch.
LAC 311 Values in the communication arts. Coordinator: Lawson.
LAC 312 Applied values in society. Coordinator: Schedler.

The courses have been developed by teams of people from the humanities, the relevant disciplines, and practitioners of these disciplines. The courses will proceed by study of actual cases chosen to illustrate the kinds of value decisions workers have to make, beginning with personal choices, and moving on to decisions that involve wider and wider circles of people: communities, the professions, or the nation.

Heavy use of cinema, slides, case-presentation by workers in the fields, and site-visits will help insure the relevance of the subjects treated to the real decisions students will confront in their futures. Term projects will be the chief work asked of students.

Each course will meet twice a week, Tues.-Thurs., and one evening a week for films, site-visits, etc.

The courses are intended for the non-humanities student, do not presuppose prior work in the humanities, and are not designed to lead to a major in the humanities.

The courses are being offered under a project funded in part by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Meade's winning tradition depends on Saturday victory

By Jerry Tucker
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Coach Bill Meade and his youthful men's gymnastics team need a win Saturday to bring Meade his 18th winning season in 20 years at SIU. The 6-5 Salukis face the University of Iowa in the Arena following the SIU-Evansville basketball game.

Regardless of Saturday's outcome, the season will rank as one of Meade's worst, at least percentage-wise. Only his 7-8 1974 squad and his 1-8 first-year-team in 1957 lost more often.

Meade's preseason prognostications about his team have proven amazingly precise. Prior to the season Meade said, "Being realistic, I have to plan for the following year." Meade cited a weakness in the rings as one of the team's glaring weaknesses, but warned, "I still feel we will surprise people before the year is over."

When the master speaks, listen. The rings have indeed been SIU's downfall in several of the losses and the young, but determined Saluki squad has surprised some people. LSU, Oklahoma and Nebraska were among them.

Unfortunately, the gymnasts then hit a slump, losing three consecutive matches decisively before recovering Saturday to overtake Michigan State fairly easily.

Iowa should be one of the easier teams the Salukis have faced this year as the Hawkeyes enter the meet with a 3-7 mark. They do have an outstanding pommel horse man in Bob Siemianowski, but the squad has been plagued by injuries and inelegibility.

Meade will again depend on Kim

Athletic Club sets new officer slate

The Saluki Athletic Club recently re-elected Charlie Monroe as president, along with an entire slate of new officers.

Also elected was Bob Campbell (vice-president) Harold Dycell (treasurer) and Sue Eberhart (admissions and records). Saturday night the club will hold a cocktail party and dance after the Evansville game at the Jackson County Club. Potential members and guests are invited.

Last home game is Color Night

Student organizations will have a chance to win a trophy at Saturday's SIU-Evansville game for a change, as the Special Olympics and the Vets Club cosponsor Colors Night.

All student organizations can compete—the group with the most members in SIU's maroon and white will win. Tables will be set up outside the Arena for students to check in and the winning organization will be announced at half time.

The game is SIU's last home game.

Wall and Rick Adams to perform consistently overall while specialists should stand out in individual events.

Junior Tony Hanson has won six times on the pommel horse this season, averaging over 9.0 (of 10) per meet.

Another upperclassman, Steve

Shepard, should get the Salukis off to a good start in the floor exercise.

The Salukis need a win Saturday for confidence as well as a winning season. The dual meet is the final regular season competition before the Salukis begin preparing for the Eastern Regionals, to be held March 12-13 at Penn State.

Road Runners go to marathon

Southern Illinois Road Runners members will be active on two fronts Sunday. Several club members are scheduled to compete in the annual St. Louis Marathon Sunday morning and the club will host its weekly fun runs starting at 1:30 p.m. in front of the SIU Arena.

The fun runs will include half-, 2.2- and 4-mile distances. Certificates are awarded to all finishers.

Local entries in the marathon include last year's top two women finishers, Carolyn Gibbard and Marilyn Good, and Ron Knowlton, last year's runner-up in the men's over-40 division.

The top Southern Illinois entry, however, may be Ed Zeman, who will be making his first start at the 26-mile, 385-yard distance. Zeman has won three of the club's first four 1976 races including the Feb. 15 22-miler.

In last week's final tune-up, for the marathon, Ron Trowbridge won

87 tosses wins free throw title

Bill Schuh, a junior in engineering, won the men's intramural free throw contest with a score of 87 out of 100. He defeated Bill Gress, last year's champion, who hit 85 of 100. Gress, a sophomore in pre-dentistry, made 91 shots last year.

There were 156 participants in the contest this year according to Larry Schaafe, coordinator of the IM office. "That's more than we've ever had," he said.

Stamina, depth provide key to Valley track title

By Mark Kazlowski

Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

The team that wins the Missouri Valley Conference Indoor Track Championship Monday will be the team that has the most stamina and depth.

SIU Coach Lew Hartzog feels his team has those qualities. Based on times and distances compiled this season, the Salukis are favored in the meet.

Some teams may run into problems in that the preliminaries and finals of all 16 events are being run in one day. If a person is entered in more than one running event, it is almost certain that he will have to run in a preliminary heat to qualify for the finals. The only individuals exempt from more than one heat are those in the one and two-mile runs.

"The way we are running it, it will have a particular effect on those kids that try to double," Hartzog said. Gary Mandehr is the only SIU runner that Hartzog is planning on using in two events. He is scheduled to run in the mile and 800.

"Depth shows up," Hartzog said. "We have two or three good people in every event. I think it (running meet in one day) will be to our advantage."

Hartzog said freshman Mike Sawyer would be entered in the mile and two mile but would probably be scratched in the mile so he would be fresh for the two mile.

"I feel like I'd rather have sure, strong performances out of a kid than bleed a freshman too much," Hartzog said.

The Salukis have a tradition to carry on for their coach. Since he began coaching track in 1960, Hartzog said he has never had a team that competed poorly in conference championships. In those years, his teams have lost only three conference championships.

Drake has won the last eight indoor championships, but the Bulldogs have the best times or distances in only three events while SIU tracksters are tops in 10. West Texas competitors head the list of the other three events.

The field events may be the areas that SIU earns many of its points.

Hartzog said the one event that he thought SIU could take the top three spots would be in the pole vault where Gary Hunter leads the way. His best this season is 16-6. Mark Conard and Mark Kramer have each vaulted 15-6.

In the triple jump, Hartzog said he would be shocked if Philip Robins did not win with ease. No one in the Valley has come close to Robins in the triple jump. The long jump is a tossup between Richard Rock and Wichita State's Veryl Crawford, Hartzog said. Both are capable of 25-foot efforts, according to Hartzog.

Duels are also expected in the high jump and shot put. SIU's Kim Taylor is one of the three top high jumpers and is an inch under Drake's Paul Allard.

John Marks is expected to give Wichita's Marvin Self a battle in the shot.

Hartzog said one of the strongest running events for SIU will be the 300-yard dash. He picked SIU's Mike Monroe as the favorite. Mike Kee and Joe Laws are also expected to place high.

Track Coach Lew Hartzog considers freshman Michael Bisase the favorite in the 880-yard run in the conference indoor track meet Monday at Columbia, Mo. It will be the first time SIU has participated in the Valley indoor meet. (Staff photo by Mark Kazlowski)

Rebounding key to Arena streak breaker

By Dave Wiczorek

Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Two beers and some pizza is not much consolation after a heart-breaking loss, but at least it diverts your concentration from the mind to the stomach for awhile.

For SIU basketball Coach Paul Lambert, the beer and pizza at home after the game took his mind off Thursday night's 73-72 loss to Louisville in the Arena, if only temporarily.

Lambert said he cannot dwell on the loss too long.

"You can't afford to do that," he said. "You can't use this as an individual thing, teaching-wise. But as far as the mental aspect is concerned, you try to stay objective and say 'Okay, this is a learning experience.' I'd be a little more concerned if these guys were seniors."

The Salukis have a chance to get back on the winning track again when they host the Evansville Purple Aces Saturday night in the Arena. Game time for the non-conference contest is 7:35 p.m. It is SIU's last home appearance of the year.

The coach added, "You can't let yourself get to the point where you dwell so much on the negative aspects of the loss and lose the positive aspect of the game."

"When you play as well as we did and lose, it's tough. They beat us to death on the boards. If we had done a better job on them on the offensive boards, which is their strength, we might have beaten them."

The Salukis are not used to getting whipped on the boards but Louisville held a 40-25 rebounding advantage in the loss that dropped SIU's record to 14-9 for the season. The Cardinals had 15 offensive rebounds and turned several of those into baskets.

Despite the loss, many fans were saying that the game was SIU's best all-around effort of the year.

"I would have to agree," Lambert said, "particularly since it was against a team of this caliber."

There was plenty of pressure on the young Salukis in the waning moments of the game. Louisville television cameras zoomed in on them; a near-capacity crowd was almost in a frenzy; they were about to knock off one of the best teams in the country; and yet, the pressure didn't get the best of the SIU players.

"I was really pleased with the cool and poise of our players at the end of the game," Lambert said. "If our team could get into the tournament (NCAA) this year, what a difference it would make in terms of experience for the future."

It was the first time this year that Lambert actually made mention of a post-season tournament without being asked. But after seeing the young squad handle the pressure against Louisville he was encouraged about the possibilities of this team.

One positive aspect of the game for SIU was the crowd. It was the biggest and noisiest crowd of the year in the Arena. Saluki fans put on a good show for the television audience watching in Louisville.

"It was a super crowd," Lambert said appreciatively. "They have been good this year. We would have had 8 or 9,000 for those games with New Mexico State and Wichita State if they weren't during (Christmas) break."

"I don't think there's any doubt that being in the conference has created more interest. And we've played some good teams. There's no doubt that joining the Missouri Valley is the most important thing that has happened to SIU basketball."

IM hardcourt meeting shifted

By Rick Korch

Student Writer

The team manager's meeting for the IM basketball playoffs has been rescheduled for 4 p.m. Monday in the Morris Library Auditorium. Playoffs will start either Monday or Tuesday evening in the Arena, and will end with the championship game March 11.

Most of the teams will receive byes on the first night of action, but all teams will play in the second round Wednesday and Thursday.

The playoffs will continue through the weekend with games Saturday and Sunday afternoon. The semi-finals will be held March 10, and the final game will start at 7:30 p.m. the day after.

There is still no pre-playoff favorite, Al Jerry, graduate assistant in charge of the league said.

With one game each left on the schedule, about 16 teams can either win, and get into the playoffs, or lose, and not make the playoffs.

A basketball officials meeting has also been rescheduled for 8 p.m. Monday in Room 128 of the Arena.

What is also important is for SIU to win Saturday night. A victory over Evansville would be the first of a new home winning streak. (Louisville ended the SIU 27-game home streak.)

The Purple Aces beat the Salukis during Christmas break, 81-76 at Evansville. Mike Glenn was still suffering from a foot injury at the time and the Salukis had a poor shooting night.

Lambert said he expects a running, pressing game from the Arad McCutchan-coached Evansville team. Evansville is 19-6 for the year and is the top team in the Indiana Collegiate Conference.

A win for the Salukis would provide some momentum for Thursday's big showdown with West Texas State in Amarillo, Texas.

Locals capture IM wrestling title

By Rick Korch

Student Writer

The Locals won the team championship in men's intramural wrestling finals held Wednesday in the Arena. The meet involved the most participants ever in an IM wrestling meet, according to Larry Schaaek, coordinator of the IM office.

About 125 spectators watched as matches went on in eight weight classifications. Although there were no pins, only three of the matches were won by one or two points.

Rick Palmer beat Kevin Dailey 6-2 in the 128-pound bout. In the 136-pound match, Esao Hashimoto decisioned Curt Parrish 5-4 in a match that went to the end. At 145 pounds, Mike Rossetti defeated Bill Harazin 6-3, and in the 155 pound classification, Ralph Berg eked out a 3-2 decision over Mike Beck.

The match that came closest to a pin was in the 163-pound fight when Terry O'Boyle defeated William Jakse 7-0. O'Boyle nearly pinned Jakse twice in the first round.

The next two matches were easy for the victors as Eric Bihl beat Scott Ellis 7-2, and Gary Cobe defeated D. Svanson 8-2. The heavyweight match was the roughest, and also the closest, as John Schroeder slipped by D. Brown 2-0. Both of Schroeder's points came in the first period, and from that point on, the match remained a deadlock.

The team standings were as follows: The Locals, 30; Gladiator, 27; Das Fass, 18; the Rough Rangulars, 10 and TKE, 0.

"It was the best meet we've ever had," said Schaaek, "both in the number of participants and in the number of spectators."

Schaaek added that it was a very competitive meet "since the team championship came down to the finals."
