Street violence erupts in Managua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — President Daniel Ortega conceded defeat Monday night and congratulated president-elect Violeta Chamorro on her upset election victory, offering his help for a smooth transition, officials said.

But just 24 hours after polls closed, street violence erupted when Chamorro supporters took to the streets to celebrate and clashed with pro-Ortega Sandinista youth. Riot police used tear gas and nightsticks to put down the disturbances, the first since Sunday's election.

At least one person, a Spanish photographer, was injured when he was hit in the head by a thrown rock, a police officer on the scene said.

Witnesses said the disturbances began when a fistfight erupted during an otherwise peaceful celebration outside the headquarters of Chamorro's National Opposition Union and rapidly escalated into a melee involving more than 100 people at its height.

Police fired 20-30 volleys of tear gas grenades before UNO leaders arrived on the scene and asked their supporters to disperse.

transition," Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto told reporters after the meeting.

Ortega was accompanied by D'Escoto, former U.S. President Carter, United Nations special envoy Elliot Richardson and Organization of American States Secretary-General Joao Baena Soares, who monitored Sunday's election and pronounced it exemplary.

The Saluki men's basketball team won the Missouri Valley Conference regular-season title by beating the Wichita State Shockers 81-67 before a sellout crowd of 10,014 Monday night at the Arena.

The MVC crown is the first for SIU-C since 1977 and the first-ever outright title for the Salukis, who finished with a conference record of 10-4. Illinois State came from behind to beat Creighton Monday in Normal to assure the Dawgs sole possession of first place.

Illinois State, Creighton and Tulsa tied for second place with 9-5 records.

The Salukis take a 24-6 overall record into the MVC tournament this weekend in Normal. The 24 victories ties a school record for most victories in a season. The NIT-champion Salukis of 1967, led by Walt Frazier, had a 24-2 overall record.

The Salukis used tenacious defense to rout the Shockers early, as they pulled to a 38-18 halftime lead.

The Salukis were led by senior-center Jerry Jones, who scored 18 points and junior-forward Rick Shipley, who added 17.

Bar overcrowding

State university officials approach issue of bar overoccupancy with differing views

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

Carbondale isn't the only college town with bar overoccupancy problems, but other college towns are finding different ways to deal with overcrowding.

"Sure we've had problems, just like everybody else," said Champaign Building Safety Supervisor Gary Bowman. "But the bars make enough money letting people in to cover the fine."

Carbondale Fire Chief Everett Rushing said in the last three or four weeks Carbondale police have noticed a problem with overcrowding and upon discussion with the fire department, the police have begun issuing citations.

Champaign building inspectors check bars for crowding during special events such as Dad's Day and Homecoming, Bowman said.

"It's a tough situation of discovery and reporting back to the mayor," he said. "When we crack down too severely, we get complaints from the other side."

Champaign city code requires a counter at the front doors of the bars to regulate patrons entering and leaving.

Phyllis Gehrt, Champaign deputy liquor commissioner, said the Champaign mayor either fines a cited establishment or sends a letter of reprimand.

"He has a checklist based on how many times they have been over in the past and what percentage they were over. He sets the fine based on the Canger and safety aspect of their overcrowding."

Perkins loan recipients may feel budget crunch

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

University students receiving the Perkins loan will have to tighten their belts in fiscal year 1991 if President George Bush's budget is adopted.

If the U.S. Congress approves Bush's budget allocations, the Perkins loan program will receive no new funding beginning Oct. 1, 1990.

Rick Stuedel, assistant financial aid director at the University, said the most current statistics showed 961 University students received the Perkins loan during the 1988-89 school year.

The Perkins loan program is a revolving loan program, which means as long as the students continue to pay back the loan there will be money to lend out.

Stuedel said, however, there is cause for real concern because if many students don't pay back the loan, the funds will be depleted.

Moscow confirms nationalist win in Lithuania

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — A pro-independence movement swept to victory in Lithuania's first free multi-party elections in 70 years, clearing the way for the first non-Communist dominated republican Parliament in the Soviet Union, official results showed Monday.

"The new Lithuanian Parliament is to usher a new phase in the republic's history, in which Communists will probably no longer play the leading role," Česlavas Juršenas, a spokesman for Lithuania's Council of Ministers, told the official news agency Tass.

A leading member of the Sajudis nationalist movement, an umbrella group supporting candidates who backed its drive for independence, forecast Lithuania's secession from the Soviet Union as "attainable this year."

Official results released Monday showed 90 deputies have so far been elected to the '41-member Lithuanian Parliament in the Saturday balloting and 72 of them are endorsed by the Sajudis.

The nationalist movement claimed a landslide victory Sunday and the Tass dispatch from Vilnius on Monday officially confirmed the election results.

The Baltic republic's legislature will now be the first of all 15 republics of the Soviet Union in which the Communist Party will be a minority in Parliament.

The new Parliament, however, cannot convene yet because two-thirds of its members have not been elected. There will be runoff elections in 45 races in which no candidate won more than half the votes. Six races will be held again because of voting irregularities.

The runoffs will take place March 10 and the repeated elections April 7.

Salukis win MVC title outright

Saluki head coach Rich Herrin debates a call Monday night at the Arena. The Salukis won during SIU-C's victory over Wichita State the Missouri Valley Conference title outright.

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

Hail to the 1989-90 Missouri Valley Conference Champions — the Southern Illinois University Salukis.

The Salukis used their No. 1 weapon — DEFENSE — to hand the Wichita State Shockers an 81-67 drubbing Monday night at the Arena.

SIU-C, 24-6 overall, finished conference play with a 10-4 record, good enough for an outright Valley title and the No. 1 seed in the Valley tournament this weekend in Normal.

The title is SIU-C's first since the Salukis shared the title with New Mexico State in 1976-77. Coincidentally, that was the last time the Salukis made an NCAA appearance. The win gave Southern its first outright title since joining the Valley at the beginning of the 1975-76 season.

Illinois State played the spoiler and downed Creighton 83-77. The announcement brought the 10,014 Arena fans — the second consecutive sellout — to a standing ovation.

Creighton, Illinois State and Tulsa finished their regular season tied for second place with a 9-5 Valley mark.

Saluki head coach Rich Herrin had a difficult time putting the joy of winning the Valley crown into words. Herrin guided the Salukis to an 8-20 record his first year. It took him just four more seasons to produce a league-champion.

"I can't tell you how exciting and how much it really means to us," Herrin said. "I can truly say that for our total coaching staff and our basketball team. I don't know that words can exactly explain the feeling.

"It's been a tough five years of hard work and it just takes gradual improvement," Herrin said. "I've been very fortunate all my years. I've had good young men to work with and to play."

For the second consecutive game, five Salukis finished in double figures.

"We played very unselfish on the offensive end," Herrin said.

Seniors Jerry Jones and Freddie McSwain played their final game at the Arena. Jones led the way with 18 points and nine rebounds while McSwain added 15 points and eight assists.

Juniors Rick Shipley and Sterling Mahan chipped in 17 and 13 points respectively while sophomore guard Kelvan

Tourney tickets go on sale today

Missouri Valley Conference tickets go on sale at the Saluki ticket office at noon today.

Tickets prices are $46 for the entire Valley package that includes admission to all games. Tickets also can be purchased at $12 each for each session. There are two sessions of two games each Saturday, March 3, one session of two games Sunday March 4 and a one-game tournament championship session March 6.

Session tickets for SIU-C students are $6 each. Student IDs must be shown to purchase tickets and again upon admission into the ISU arena.

Lawrence finished with 11 points.

The Salukis' defensive pressure allowed only five Shocker field goals in the opening 20 minutes and the Salukis controlled the game from beginning to end. SIU-C outshot Wichita State 50 percent to 22 percent to close out the half with a commanding 20 point lead — 38-18.

"It's probably as good if not the greatest defensive effort I've ever had a basketball team play,"

Women swimmers win several awards

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

There probably is no consolation for the SIU-C women's swimming and diving team after barely losing the Gateway Conference title 662-657 to Illinois State, but receiving 11 all-conference awards and the Gateway Diver-of-the-Year award sure must help.

Junior Janel Patrick, sophomores Melissa Steinbach, Tonia Mahaira, Julie Hosier, Nancy Schmidkofer, Debbie Gutteridge, Abby Barnett, Laine Owen and Deirdre Lien and freshmen Kristin Harvey and Julie Adams received all-conference awards.

"It's a real nice honor for the young ladies and for the program here at the University as well," swimming and diving coach Doug Ingram said. "Each of them are very pleased with the honor and I think well deserving."

Owen, an NCAA qualifier, also was awarded Diver-of-the-Year in the Gateway and Midwest Conferences.

"I don't think anyone deserved the award more than Laine," diving coach Dave Ardrey said. "She worked her butt off all year to get it."

Throughout the year the women's team wore Saluki swimming T-shirts with the motto "Pain is Temporary, Pride is Forever" on the back. Having a record of 1-10-1 during the regular season made it a little tough for that pride to show through the frustration, but after their performance at the conference meet, the Salukis proved that they are a force to be reckoned with.

All year long the young women's team, with only two juniors and no seniors, swam against top-20 programs. Now, after swimming against competition on the same level, the Salukis have proved they can win.

"In our situation we are trying a couple of things," Ingram said. "One is that we are trying to raise the level of our women's program to the highest possible level and to do this we try to face the best competition that we can."

Ingram has at least two more years with his present swimmers to implement this strategy and see if it will benefit his program.

Sophomore Saluki swimmer Abby Barnett medley Saturday at the Recreation Center. Barnett made the all-conference team.

'Salukis' brings SIU-C flavor to downtown Chicago area

Tavern frequented by former students, University alumni

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

CHICAGO — Nestled in the heart of downtown Chicago, underneath the shadow of the skyscrapers and hidden by the neon glitter of the city's nightlife, a small bar that sports the name "Salukis" recently celebrated its one-year anniversary.

Outside Salukis, 11 E. Ohio St. in Chicago, a green and white awning catches the Windy City air, blowing the cloth above a bay window that looks out onto the corner of Ohio and State Streets, giving the bar its classic, big city appearance.

But inside, the bar is all Saluki. SIU banners decorate the brown, paneled walls. The bar and stools stretch through most of the inside with a few tables and chairs in front of the bay window and several tables in back.

A Saluki clock above the bar ticks away the minutes until closing—4 a.m. Sunday through Friday and 5 a.m. on Saturday.

Mirrors reflect the images of SIU-C bumper stickers and posters on both sides of the bar's walls. Painted images of a Saluki dog decorate one of the mirrors.

Homy Charminara, Salukis manager, said he and his brother Fred, the owner, didn't want to forget their alma mater, so they set out to keep their Saluki spirit alive almost 400 miles from Carbondale.

"The whole idea behind opening the bar was that we had a good time at SIU-C," Homy said. "We are trying to provide the same atmosphere as South Illinois Avenue—a home away from home."

While Fred graduated from SIU-C, Homy said he only stayed for seven months, but that was long enough.

"That's the time I learned how to party. I'll never forget that," he said.

Bartender Laurie Huizenga said the bar has many regular patrons, but SIU-C alumni and students are beginning to come in every night.

"They are a lot of fun and proud about being Salukis; that is for sure," Huizenga said. "They like to party and get pretty wild after a few."

University students and alumni who present University identification get 50 cents off any drink. The Charminaras also ask University students and alumni to sign a register.

The first entry in the Saluki register belongs to the Tau Kappa Epsilons of SIU-C on Feb. 16, 1989. Eighty-two alumni signed in for the first alumni party on Oct. 25, 1989.

Former manager Paul Deluso said he managed Salukis at the original opening. Deluso now runs the kitchen, which offers a variety of snack foods including Salukiburgers.

"The idea of a bar named after SIU is really catching on," Deluso said.

Law students triumph at national moot court

By Brian Gross
Staff Writer

Four SIU law school students successfully defended a chemical company accused of environmental violations before four federal judges to win the National Environmental Moot Court Competition.

The students, Arthur DeBruyn, Alice Noble-Allgire, Neal Perryman and Jeffrey Toothaker, defeated teams from Georgetown and Washington University in the final round. The SIU environmental moot court team won best oralist (Toothaker), best brief and best team, out of a field of 52 teams.

The team will receive the competition trophy from Arizona State, last year's competition winner. The trophy is a painting of the area involved in the first environmental court case.

The second annual competition, held in White Plains, N.Y., Feb. 21-24, featured an appeal case involving a city, a federal agency and a chemical company. A decision made about environmental violations was being appealed.

Three federal district court judges and a federal appellate judge decided the case in the final round.

"This is the first year we brought a team to this, and it's pretty nice to come back national champions," Perryman said.

Moot court involves hypothetical cases designed for practice and competition for law school students. A moot court class is required during SIU law students' first year.

Perryman said the team practiced for hundreds of hours and argued the case four times before University law professors. The team began practicing in September, when the competition's case was released to the participants.

"(SIU's moot court classes) are much tougher than most other law schools'," DeBruyn said. "It directly reflects onto our competition with schools across the states."

Aside from the environmental law team, the SIU law school has moot court teams in four other categories: national, international, Illinois and the American Bar Association.

Before the competition, the team prepared a brief, an appellate court document stating why the original trial court decision was right or wrong. The brief counted for 40 percent of the team's score. Oral argument made up the rest of the score.

DeBruyn said in the finals the team had to argue the opposing side of which their brief was prepared for.

"They're trying to make you see both sides of the story," DeBruyn said. "We argued and won on a point completely opposite of our brief."

The championship brief will be published in the Pace University Environmental Law Review.

Women's Services: Promoting equality

YOUR ROOMMATE stumbles in late one night, bruised and bleeding. Her clothes are all torn up and she is in hysterics.

It's quite a different picture than when she left for the night, on the arm of someone she'd been hoping to date for a long time. She has been raped, even though she's not "that kind of girl." And she probably won't report it.

Sound like an unrealistic scenario that just wouldn't happen to anyone you know? Wrong. Date and acquaintance rape occurs all too frequently on this and other college campuses across the country. Oftentimes, the women do not report this gross invasion of their privacy for fear of retribution and stigmatization. Popular wisdom prescribes that she probably asked for it or, worse, that she was just being a tease and got her "comeuppance."

THE UNIVERSITY Women's Services recently instituted a much-needed support group for sexually assaulted women. The group will provide a supportive atmosphere for women to share their common experiences. It will give these women an invaluable tool they can use to overcome their traumatic experiences.

The group and other activities such as this are an excellent opportunity for women to explore their feelings of being victimized and exploited. It also allows men the golden opportunity through education and discussion to understand and cope with the role of the aggressor that society sometimes places them in. By facilitating such an agenda, the service is breaking new ground toward total equality of the sexes.

HOWEVER, WHILE the focus of this group is very important, it is only one of several vital functions Women's Services has been providing for the University community since the mid '70s. From individual short-term counseling to workshops to classroom talks to assertiveness training to lessons on self-defense, the group's dedicated staffers work long hours to improve SIU-C through education and positive reinforcement of societal mores.

Three student workers, three part-time graduate assistants and service director Beth Firestein coordinate their program to give women support and information to enable them to be powerful, productive parts of society. They served over 4,000 members from all aspects of the University community last year on a walk-in basis or by appointment.

THEY CONDUCT support groups and practical auto repair workshops and maintain an excellent informational library filled with reference materials which is open to the public. Some programs are for women only, but several, such as the date rape workshops, are open to both sexes.

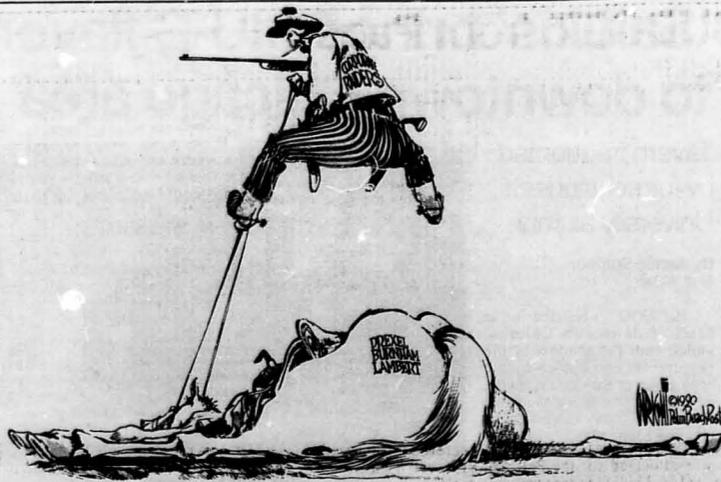

Exploring gender while promoting a greater understanding of ourselves as people beyond any sexual stereotyping is essential to the survival of our society. Groups such as Women's Services are laying the essential groundwork for a better tomorrow. While it may sound a bit wide-eyed and idealistic to believe we can change the world in such a manner, it is our right and our moral obligation to try. So thumbs up to the Women's Services. They deserve our utmost thanks and support for the wonderful work they do.

Marijuana relatively harmless drug; lawmakers should target hard stuff

I am deeply disturbed by our government's recent crackdown on marijuana consumers, and by the irrational disinformation campaign against cannabis use that has continued unabated for over 50 years. Today, the major arguments against marijuana (also known as cannabis or hemp) are as follows: 1) legalizing cannabis would create more users; 2) the potency of cannabis has increased and the plant is therefore more dangerous; 3) cannabis is detrimental to health.

Here are the facts: 1) Marijuana was legalized in Holland in the late 1960s. According to H.W. Janssen, a narcotics officer located in Heerlen, the percentage of marijuana users fell dramatically after legalization. Currently, about 1.5% of the Dutch population uses cannabis.

The percentage of users in this country is at least 15 times higher.

2) According to a study published in the Kansas Law review (Vol. 36), the percentage of THC in cannabis confiscated by the Drug Enforcement Agency has remained stable over the last 10 years. In 1981, the mean percentage had actually dropped to 2.5. This proves government figures regarding potency have been greatly exaggerated.

3) According to the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, our government has sponsored two long term health studies on cannabis, one in Jamaica and one in Costa Rica. The results of these studies are not widely known because they discovered marijuana users live longer than non-marijuana users. In over 8,000 years of known usage, no one has ever died from marijuana, yet we have over 400,000 deaths every year attributed to alcohol or tobacco.

Despite this evidence, more than 300,000 people are arrested every year for violation of our marijuana laws, mostly for minor possession. When people are jailed, it costs the taxpayers $30,000 per year per prisoner. If the government really wants to do something about drug abuse, they should go after the truly dangerous drugs, like alcohol, tobacco, cocaine and heroin. Our country was founded on the principles of freedom. Must our Bill of Rights be revoked in the pursuit of a relatively harmless plant?—David Bowman, freshman, music business.

Inaccuracies in DE Frisbee story

On behalf of the SIU Ultimate Frisbee team, I would like to thank the DE for the article about Ultimate Frisbee that appeared in the Feb. 22 edition of the DE. Ultimate is a new and growing sport, and we would like to see it get as much publicity as possible.

However, there were misquotes and misinformation written into the article that need to be corrected.

The first problem with the article is that I was misquoted as having said: "[Ultimate] is a non-contact sport, but I did break my jaw last year. This guy on the team and me, we didn't see each other and just collided." What I actually said was: "Like basketball, Ultimate is supposed to be a non-contact sport, but sometimes contact cannot be avoided...last fall I broke my jaw when a teammate and I inadvertently collided while going for the disc." Being misquoted is bad enough, but to have sentences put in my mouth that are sure to make English instructors wince is inexcusable. The English skills of students on college campuses are poor enough already; college newspapers do not need to play a role in making us look bad by translating student quotes into improper English.

The second problem with the article is it stated: "[Ultimate] is played without referees because there is no need for them." The article failed to sufficiently explain that Ultimate is played without referees because the players are responsible for policing themselves. This unique feature of Ultimate helps facilitate a high level of sportsmanship and is designed to shift the emphasis from winning to the quality of play and the conduct of the players themselves.

Finally, the article stated that

Greg King is the one member of our team who "never" plays.

Although Greg does focus mainly on managing the team and as a go-between with the Recreation Center, Greg does play with the team occasionally at practices and enjoys playing very much. It was a mistake to assume that because Greg is in a wheel chair he never plays with the team.

I realize Ultimate is not a well-known sport yet, and it is difficult to grasp the game in a few minutes.

I appreciate the DE's willingness to write an article about our team — we are looking for new members (students or non-students). But please, in the future, if you quote someone, be accurate!—Robert Johnston, graduate student, therapeutic recreation and President, SIU Ultimate Frisbee Team.

Early bird drivers get prime parking spots

After reading Mr. Dan Reed's letter, I thought, "What a hypocrite! He wants a good parking space, but he's not willing to work at it!"

I've got news for you, buddy. You can't have your cake and eat it too. If you want the good things in life, you've got to work for them. They are not going to be handed to you.

To borrow an analogy from a friend of mine, it's just like buying tickets to a basketball game or a rock concert.

If you want good seats, you have to go early and wait in line. If you're not willing to do that, there are a lot of other people who are.

The same thing applies to parking spaces. If you want a good space, then go early. If you don't, then don't complain that you can't find a space. It's not SIU's fault that you can't get on campus before 9 a.m.

Your solution is to build more parking spaces. While you're at it, why don't you build 10,000 front row seats in the Arena?—Phil Schuyler, junior, aviation management.

Congressman Glenn Poshard, D-Carterville, said although he did not have the actual figure, the loan default rate was relatively high in the United States.

Poshard told a standing room only crowd at John A. Logan College Monday that students concerned about the cuts should write to the president and members of the congressional education committees and urge them to change the budget.

"The government ought to be able to afford increases in education and health care, but that might not be likely," Poshard said.

Poshard said another problem with financial aid budget projection is the amount allocated for the Pell Grant.

In the 1990 fiscal year, $4.8 billion was allocated for the Pell Grant and $5.2 billion is expected to be allocated in the new budget.

"The numbers appear to show an increase, but in reality no additional funding will be gained,"

Poshard said.

The Pell Grant program had a larger expenditure than it had money for during the 1989-90 school year and most of the money will go to pay back the money from last year. When new students, about the same number as last year, are added to the program, no money will be gained.

Other financial aid programs in danger of being cut are the state student incentive grant and the Guaranteed Student Loan. Bush's proposal calls for $3.1 billion for GSLs, more than a $7 million drop in federal funding.

While only $7 million could be cut from the GSL program, the incentive grant could be cut entirely.

Stuedel said the incentive grant program will not affect University students.

Bush's 1991 budget proposal calls for the same funding for college work-study and supplemental grant programs that they received in 1990. The proposed funding for the supplemental grant program is $4.5 million and the college work-study is $6 million.

Poshard said it may be harder for students to obtain a GSL in the future because stricter guidelines could be placed on loan applicants.

The stricter guidelines include:

- requiring lenders to check credit histories of all loan applicants who are over 21 and would require credit-worthy co-signers for applicants with poor credit;

- requiring borrowers to present a drivers license at the time of the loan application, the names of the next of kin, and the borrower's expected employer upon graduation;

- and requiring all lenders to allow guarantee agencies to garnish wages of students who are in default.

"Basically, it is going to be harder to get the loan approved than it was before," Poshard said.

watching delegation said the former president had asked both the government and the UNO for a report on Monday's clashes.

In an afternoon news conference, Ortega sought to put the best face on his stunning defeat.

"The president of Nicaragua, will respect, will obey the popular mandate that emanates from this election," Ortega said in an emotional concession speech that had government officials weeping and breaking into a heartfelt rendition of the Sandinista anthem with raised fists.

"The victory which makes me proud: as president of Nicaragua and as a Sandinista militant is that this 26th of February we are opening for Nicaragua a new road ... where war will disappear and the Contras will disappear," Ortega said.

Chamorro, the 60-year-old opposition candidate and widow of pre-revolutionary newspaper publisher Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, was more than 14 percentage points ahead of Ortega in the latest official figures, despite being forecast as a loser in most pre-election polls.

She is scheduled to take over as president April 25, ending nearly a decade of monolithic Sandinista rule.

Ortega carefully avoided an open admission of defeat in his hourlong speech, mentioning a "trend" in the vote counting. Official returns based on 82 percent of the 4,385 polling places gave Chamorro a 55.2 percent to 40.8 percent lead over Ortega.

Former President Jimmy Carter, who monitored the Nicaraguan elections with about 1,000 other observers from the United Nations and Organization of American States, called the election "a victory for democracy, freedom and respect for human rights."

"The great surprise for many people has been the startling display of reconciliation," Carter said, praising the moderate tone of speeches by both Ortega and Chamorro. He told the ABC News program "Good Morning America" that he expected an orderly transfer of power.

The former president said Ortega and his associates "all pledged themselves to me personally ... that they would indeed accept the results of the election, no matter how they come out, that they would observe the constitution of Nicaragua, the orderly transfer of authority."

Shevardnadze intervened, saluted the results as a ballot for independence for the republic which was incorporated into the Soviet Union in 1940.

"It was a referendum on independence and independence won," said Christopher Cox, Rep-Calif., at a news conference in Vilnius Monday.

Richard Durbin, Dem-Ill., said: "I am proud that the United States has stood by Lithuania for 50 years. We salute the courage of Lithuania."

Republican Rep. John Miller of Washington, a member of the House Foreign Relations Committee, said: "We waited for five days to get into Lithuania, and it is nothing compared to your waiting 50 years to get freedom."

According to the official Communist Party newspaper

Pravda and the nationalist movement, the results in the 90 seats elected so far are as follows: 48 non-party, 22 independent Communists, 7 Communists loyal to Moscow, nine Social Democrats, two Christian Democrats and two Greens.

The elections brought into official politics for the first time Sajudis movement leader Vitautas Landsbergis and other top Sajudis chiefs Rencaldas Ozolas and Bronyas Genzylalis. All were elected.

The bulk of the Communists elected belonged to the new Independent Communist Party which broke away from Moscow in December and also advocates independence for the largely Catholic republic and endorsed by Sajudis.

"Only 30 Communists have so far been elected, mostly members of the Independent Communist Party of Lithuania," Tass said.

Pravda said 23 Independent Communists were selected and seven Communists still loyal to Moscow.

None of the secretaries of the Central Committee of the Communist Party were elected to the parliament, Tass said.

In contrast, the secretaries of the Central Committee of the new Independent Communists were elected. They are Algirdas Brazauskas, who is the new party's leader, Vladimir Beryozov, Kyastutis Glavyatskas and Justas Paletskis, Tass said.

Algimantas Kkuolis, a member of the Sajudis nationalist movement's 35-person Executive Council, forecast independence from Moscow as the next step.

"It is attainable this year," Kkuolis said.

she said.

Bowman said bar overcrowdancy is a tough situation with no easy solution.

In Carbondale, bars owners found guilty for violating their legal occupancy limits could be fined $10 to $500. The city attorney also can bring the citation before the Carbondale Liquor Commission for a hearing. The commission could vote to suspend or revoke a bar's liquor license.

Vince Quevedo, director of building safety in Bloomington, said Bloomington hasn't had a problem with occupancy within the last 10 years because the city started cracking down on overcrowdancy.

"About 10 years ago, some of the bar owners were caught, and they have shaped up," he said.

Bloomington could fine the bar owners $500 to $1,250 as they have in the past, City Clerk Earlene Nelson said.

"The mayor and any one of the four liquor commissioners can hold a hearing to either close them down or fine them," she said.

Quevedo said the bar owners have learned to comply with codes.

"What scares them is that we could close them down not the $500 fine," he said.

Charleston city officials two years ago posted occupancy signs in all buildings for public assembly, said Building and Zoning Enforcement Officer Jeff Finley.

"Right now it's been an education process to take care of ignorance at the door," he said.

Inspectors wander through the bars every couple of weeks or months, depending on how heavy a party week it is, Finley said.

University students awarded for PRSSA work

By Jerianne Kimmel
Staff Writer

Five SIU-C students were recognized for outstanding contributions to the Public Relations Student Society of America at the 1990 PRSSA Midwest District Conference.

The conference, which was hosted by the SIU-C student chapter of PRSSA, was held Feb. 23 through Sunday.

Amy Roberts, senior in speech communication from Willow Hill, received the Outstanding Chapter President award.

The following SIU-C students were awarded District Director Citations for exceptional participation at the chapter level: Michele Toti, a junior in speech communication from Rockford; Andrew Krause, a sophomore in speech communication from Prairie View; Laura Siwula, a junior in speech communication from Lindenhurst; and Lisa Hyden, a senior in speech communication from Decatur.

The Outstanding Chapter President Award is based on the ability of a chapter president to provide program development, leadership and motivation, Roberts said.

"Developing chapter programs and motivating members has been really important to me," Roberts said. "I try to get the chapter involved in the district and national levels."

Roberts said the chapter has expanded its program by adding a point and buddy system and increasing the relationship with professionals by bringing them to Carbondale to speak.

The citations recognize people who have important roles in the chapter and in PRSSA as a whole, Roberts said.

Elzey Roberts, professional adviser for the SIU-C chapter of PRSSA, was recognized as the Outstanding Professional Adviser in the Midwest District award.

"Elzey really goes beyond the call of duty. He is a tremendous source of information and continually offers encouragement and support. He does more than he has to," Hyden said.

The professional adviser acts as the liaison linking students in the chapter and professionals in the public relations field, Hyden said.

Roberts is the principal of Bright Central Agency, a public relations agency in St. Louis.

The Midwest District, consisting of Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin, is the largest PRSSA district in the nation. There were about 230 students attending the conference, Hyden said.

"This was a special conference for us," chapter president Roberts said. "It was our last farewell."

The SIU-C chapter will no longer be in the Midwest district because of redistricting in March, Roberts said.

The chapter, marking its 20th anniversary this year, was the Outstanding Chapter in the Midwest in both 1988 and 1989.

The chapter's student-run public relations agency, Pyramid, was named the 1990 Outstanding Firm in the Nation at the PRSSA National Conference in Texas last October.

Sam Black, former president of the International Public Relations Association, was the keynote speaker at the conference. Black is regarded as a pioneer of public relations in Europe, Michael G. Parkinson, PRSSA faculty adviser, said.

"An international business figure, somebody with the magnitude of a Lee Iacocca, coming to Carbondale for a student conference is extraordinary," Parkinson said.

Barbara Cordon

Barbara K. Cordon, director of Project Achieve Program, and Judith L. Carter, a teacher at the Brehm Preparatory School in Carbondale, will lead workshops at an international conference of the Learning Disability Association of America in Anaheim, Calif., Feb. 21-24.

Cordon's nationally acclaimed program shows students with learning disabilities how to succeed in college. Many enter the program reading at grade-school levels, but leave holding bachelor's degrees.

Her talk — "My Child Is More Than A Number" — will address

how to evaluate test scores of people with learning disabilities.

Carter, who teaches at Brehm — a private school for youngsters with learning disabilities — will speak on "Desk-top Publishing and the Learning Disabled Student."

Group seeks to eliminate clearcutting

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Members of a student environmental group, sporting green armbands and carrying signs, Monday demanded an end to clear-cutting in the nation's forests and a new Illinois rule ordering state employees to use recycled paper.

About 125 people braved the cold to participate in a march and rally held by Students Allied for a Greener Earth on the steps of the State Capitol. The signs had a variety of anti-deforestation slogans, including one reading, "Trees Rule"

Every year, a forest area twice the size of Rhode Island is lost to clearcutting and less than 1 percent of forest area is protected by law, said Bob Croteau, spokesman for the Sangamon State University SAGE chapter. Clearcutting ruins the forest, soil and animal habitat, he said.

"Trees that are 500 to a 1,000 years old were citizens of this land before we arrived on these shores," Croteau said. "We would not think of bulldozing our museums or burning down our libraries but we are sitting idly by while the remaining 5 percent of our nation's forest are clearcut down to stubble."

On the statewide front, Mark Donham of the Regional Association of Concerned Citizens, said his group wants a moratorium on clearcutting in the Shawnee National Forest in Southern Illinois and a congressional investigation into the U.S. Forest Services management of that area. Donham said the more than 13,000 acres of cut timberland in Shawnee represents waste of taxpayers' money.

Summer job information made available to students

By Phil Pearson
Staff Writer

Finding the many opportunities for summer employment in America's national forests and parks can be a hassle. To make things easier for students, a Montana man has compiled the information and made it available to summer job hunters.

Mick Sullivan, of Sullivan and Associates in Kalispell, Mont., has information available to anyone seeking a job in a park or forest. He doesn't have anything to do with the actual hiring and firing, he only conducts the research.

"They could get all the information themselves, but it would take a long time," Sullivan said.

Sullivan said he has five pamphlets individuals can purchase for $5 or less. He also has a resource book, titled "Guide to Cruise Ship Jobs," which can be purchased.

Through his eight years of providing the service, he has built up contacts. This year he has information on more than 6,000 jobs.

Anyone seeking details can write him. Mick Sullivan, Sullivan and Associates, 113 E. Wyoming St., Kalispell, MT., 59901.

The Student Conservation Association, Inc. has more than 1,000 positions in the fields of conservation and resource management.

High school and college students as well as older adults may apply for volunteer positions at various national parks and forests from Maine to Alaska.

Benefits include travel expenses, housing, a stipend for basic needs and a uniform allowance if a uniform is required for the position.

For details on the SCA program, one may call (603)826-4301.

Closer to Carbondale, the Army Corps of Engineers at Rend Lake is accepting applications for park aides. Aides are uniformed employees who assist regular rangers in their duties.

Salaries range from $5.70 to $6.22 an hour depending on experience.

For details, call (618)724-2493. In Illinois, the Department of Conservation is accepting applications for Campground Hosts and Host Interpreters

A Campground Host is simply there to greet visitors and encourages compliance with regulations along with other minor duties. Applicants must be at least 21 years old, possess a valid drivers license and agree to work for a minimum of four weeks for $1 per day.

The Host Interpreter, which can fill some college requirements for outdoor recreation majors, needs to have knowledge of outdoor skills. The interpreter often leads hikes and other entertainment for visitors.

Other summer job possibilities are:

- The Cincinnati Nature Center and Long Branch Farm needs teachers for a camp attended by youth 6- to 17-years old. For details call (513)831-1711.

- The Bradford Woods Outdoor Education, Recreation and Camping Center in Martinsville, Ind., is looking for recreation majors to work with children, some of who are physically handicapped.

Mandela's commitment to nationalization stands

SOWETO, South Africa (UPI) — Nelson Mandela met with the chairman of South Africa's largest corporation and later Monday reaffirmed his commitment to nationalization but also said the African National Congress wants an economy based on private enterprise.

Mandela's comments on nationalization since his Feb. 11 release from prison have sparked nervousness on the part of foreign and local investors.

Government ministers also condemned Mandela's statements as naive and said the economic policies of the African National Congress were outdated.

Mandela and Anglo American Corp. Chairman Gavin Reilly said their 30-minute talks concentrated on industrial relations and did not include the issue of nationalization.

But the two men told reporters that further discussions were necessary on the subject.

Nationalizing key sectors of the economy remained basic ANC policy, said Mandela, who is scheduled to travel to Lusaka Tuesday for his first meeting in more than 27 years with ANC leaders in exile.

Nationalization had been adopted in the past to meet social problems in the country, "and it should come as no surprise whatsoever that the ANC has made it one of its policies," he said.

"The sectors which we have selected are those which we feel will give us the resources as a country to tackle some of the problems facing especially blacks," Mandela said in reference to the ANC's commitment to nationalizing South Africa's mines and banks.

"I must stress that the entire economy, insofar as we are concerned, will remain intact," he said. "It will continue to be based on private enterprise."

Anglo American dominates the country's gold mining sector and has interests in diamonds, coal, base metals, steel, paper and car manufacture.

Man charged in burglary

By Chris Walka
Staff Writer

James P. Brown, a University student and resident of Warren Hall, was arrested at 2:57 a.m. Sunday in connection with the theft of items from a car parked at 101 W. Monroe St., Carbondale, Carbondale Police said.

The car, owned by Murphysboro resident Janet Vale, was entered after a window was broken, police said.

Two men, one of which eluded police, took some grocery items and car fuses, police said. Damage to the car was estimated at $100. Stolen items were valued at $15.

Police said a call came into the Carbondale Police Department that two men were breaking into the car. A University police officer, who was aiding Carbondale police officers, spotted Brown on Beveridge Street and stopped him.

State's Attorney Charles Grace said Brown is being held on burglary charges and that his bail was set at $2,500. Grace said Brown is slated to appear at 1 p.m. March 7 for a preliminary hearing.

City to review water plant

By Nora Bentley

The Carbondale City Council will hold a special meeting at 7 tonight to discuss alternatives to renovate the City's Water Treatment Plant or to build a new plant.

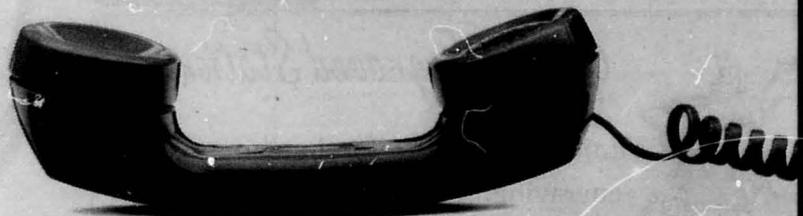

The discussion will be based on a report prepared by the Crawford, Murphy and Tilly, Inc. Engineering Consulting Firm.

Renovations to the plant at 1001 S. Wall or building of a new plant is being considered to comply with new water quality standards and to improve the efficiency of the water plant.

The consultant's final report was expected to be delivered to the city yesterday for examination by council members.

In January of 1989 the City Council voted to begin a feasibility study for renovation of the plant.

Former home ec professor and 'great teacher' dies at 76

By Wayne Wallace
Staff Writer
and University News Service

Anna Carol Fufts-Khattab, emeritus professor of home economics education and founder of that department's doctoral program, died at 12:35 p.m., Feb. 22, at Carbondale Memorial Hospital. She was 76.

Fufts-Khattab, former chairwoman of the Department of Home Economics Education, retired from SIU-C in 1983 after 31 years on the faculty.

Phyllis Bubnas, coordinator of the University's home economics education program and a former student of Fufts-Khattab's, said, "teaching was her greatest love," noting that Fufts-Khattab continued to teach courses in home economics research throughout her 30-year career at SIU-C.

"She was a human relations expert anyway you look at it," Bubnas said. "She was such a warm, caring person who knew how to bring out the best in people."

Bubnas said a memorial service for Fufts-Khattab will be in Carbondale either in late March or early April. Huffman-Harker Funeral Home is in charge of the arrangements.

Fufts-Khattab was instrumental in establishing and funding the construction of the School of Home Economics in the newly built Quigley Hall in 1959, Bubnas said.

"She helped in acquiring a Ph. D. program in home economics education here in 1963," Bubnas added.

In 1972, Fufts-Khattab received the Great Teacher Award, voted on by the University's Alumni Association.

Bubnas also said that a scholarship for graduate students in home economics was established in Fufts-Khattab's name when she retired in 1983.

Fufts-Khattab came to SIU-C in the fall of 1952 as a professor of home economics and in 1957 was promoted to chairwoman of the Department of Home Economics Education.

During her career, Fufts-Khattab served on several state and national committees on home economics education. She was a member and former president of the American Association of University Women.

She helped other nations develop and improve their home economics education programs, working with various international students at SIU-C and directly with the Nepalese government.

"She brought a lot of international students here," Bubnas said, noting Fufts-Khattab's 1963 sabbatical leave abroad to visit former students in Japan, the Philippines, Greece, Hong Kong, Thailand, India, Lebanon and Egypt.

While touring Egypt, she met and married Ibrahim (Abe) Khattab, who preceded her in death.

Fufts-Khattab was born on Christmas Eve, 1913, in Tracy City, Tenn.

She earned her bachelor's degree from the University of Tennessee in 1937, a master's from Cornell University in 1941 and a Ph. D. from Ohio State University in 1946.

She headed the home economics departments at Arkansas State Teachers College.

Freedom of information expert to speak on laws

By Jerianne Kimmel
Staff Writer

Bill Miller, director of the public affairs reporting program at Sangamon State University in Springfield, will speak on Freedom of Information laws Wednesday.

Miller has actively promoted freedom of information throughout his career. He had helped draft the first Open Meetings Act in 1957 and has pushed for bills in the General Assembly to strengthen freedom of information.

Miller serves on the Illinois House Speaker's Task Force on Open Access to Government. The special task force is charged with revamping both the Open Meetings and Freedom of Information laws, Miller said.

"We're trying to strengthen them and eliminate some of the obnoxious exemptions," Miller said.

His topic, "Freedom of Information—Where We Stand," will cover changes that he said he believes are needed in the laws. Miller will speak at 4 p.m. in Lawson 231.

Miller was named "Illinoisian of the Year" in 1989 by the Illinois News Broadcasters Association for his work in freedom of information and journalism education.

While at SIU-C, Miller will also recruit students for the graduate public affairs reporting program. The one-year master's degree program at SSU includes an intensive six month internship with newspapers, wire and audio services, radio and TV stations, and magazines covering the Illinois General Assembly and state government.

Miller said he is looking for "good writers with a good academic record who are interested in news, government and politics, and who are motivated to be journalists."

Students who are interested in the PAR program can meet with Miller in the Radio-TV Department Wednesday from 1 to 2 p.m. and in the Press Club room.

Nicaraguan vote influenced by war, economic instability

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

Nicaraguans voted against economic instability and civil war in their country's election Sunday in the defeat of Daniel Ortega that toppled the Sandinistas regime, SIU-C's Latin American expert said.

"The economic hardship we (the U.S.) put on them plus the damage of the civil war, which was half U.S. backed, forced the Nicaraguan voter to cry uncle," Bill Garner, associate professor of political science, said.

Reagan and Bush wanted the Nicaraguan government to cry uncle, Garner said, so they applied as much pressure as it took and finally the people have given in. However, it cost the United States hundreds of millions of dollars to get, he said.

U.S.-backed presidential candidate Violeta Chamorro and her National Opposition Party (known by the Spanish acronym UNO) came away with a strong victory in Sunday's elections. The 14 party-coalition that comprises UNO range from the far right to communist on the left, Georgeann Hartzog, member of the Southern Illinois Latin America Solidarity Committee, said.

It's clear that the overwhelming desire of the Nicaraguan people was to have peace and to be able to have some sort of economic recovery, Hartzog said.

"I think that perhaps Violeta Chamorro won because the Nicaraguan people see the Sandinistas as anti-U.S., and they don't want to fight the U.S. anymore," Odilia Leal-McBride, assistant professor of Spanish from Brazil, said.

Chamorro has no experience, Leal-McBride said, but she does have U.S. backing. There are a lot of hungry and sick people in Nicaragua, she said.

"I feel sad that the U.S. is always interfering in the business of Latin America," Leal-McBride said. "If there were no economic constraints and the civil war I can't imagine that the Sandinistas wouldn't have won. Without U.S. interference the last 10 years, the political picture would have been different and the Sandinistas would be in power," she said.

On the one hand, Chamorro has promised a government of unity and reconciliation. On the other hand, there was fear among the people that if the Sandinistas won, Bush would have invaded Nicaragua, Leal-McBride said.

Garner said he did not believe the United States would have invaded Nicaragua if the Sandinistas had won because there are too many people watching, but it is possible that some Nicaraguans believed such an invasion would have occurred.

"The Sandinistas tried to help the country with positive social programs," Hartzog said.

Hartzog added that democracy works in Nicaragua—probably better than in the U.S. Voter turnout in Nicaragua for this election and for the election in 1984 were very high and both have been nationally monitored, she said.

Nicaragua's economy was ruined during former Nicaraguan president Anastasio Somoza's power, Garner said. Nicaragua had a ruined economy when Somoza was ousted from power in 1979, but the economic picture worsened after he was out, Garner said.

Nicaragua experimented with Marxist and other kinds of economic planning that wasn't working, but the biggest problem Nicaragua had was the sabotage of its economy through the Reagan administration, he said.

"We put a stranglehold on their economy," Garner said. "They (Nicaraguans) have had enough. They're sick, hungry and they want an end to the damage the civil war has caused."

Garner said the civil war between the Sandinistas and the U.S.-backed Contras caused more than 50,000 deaths.

Peace Corps comes to campus, recruiting tables in Student Center

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

Eastern European countries are now among about 65 countries volunteers can serve in for the Peace Corps. Peace Corps recruiters will be at the Student Center today and Wednesday.

"We're recruiting for all of our 65 countries," Steve Rypkema, an SIU-C graduate who spent two and a half years in the Philippines with the Peace Corps, said. Rypkema will be among the recruiters here this week.

60 people will be sent to both Poland and Hungary. Persons with experience in teaching English as a second language are needed for those countries, Rypkema said.

Although the Peace Corps has a need for many skills, some skills are needed more than others. Where people are sent is based on the where their skills are needed, Rypkema said.

Rypkema said 45 to 50 percent of new recruits will go to Africa, about 25 percent will go to Latin America and the Caribbean, about 20 to 25 percent are needed for Asia and the Pacific and less than 5 percent are needed in Eastern Europe.

The Peace Corps has a real need for people skilled in agriculture, animal husbandry, forestry, biology and zoology, he said.

Persons skilled in education are also needed, Rypkema said. The subjects in education include English, science, math, special education, vocational education and agriculture, he said.

Skilled trades such as construction, carpentry, auto mechanics and industrial arts also are needed, Rypkema said. There is a limited need for people with business skills like small business management, cooperative extension and accounting, he said.

The skills above are what are needed now, Rypkema said, but anyone can apply. Rypkema added there is an initiative to increase the number of minorities in the Peace Corps. Senior citizens who are interested are encouraged to speak with recruits.

"Senior Americans have a lot of good experience that could be used," Rypkema said.

Today and Wednesday there will be a Peace Corps table in the Student Center. There will be a film seminar on the Peace Corps Wednesday at noon and at 7 p.m. in the Ohio Room in the Student Center.

The Peace Corps will return March 6 and 7 to do interviews at the University Placement Center in Woody Hall, he said.

People who join the Peace Corps get transportation to and from the country, a living allowance paid in local currency, a vacation allowance, health insurance and medical supplies if needed.

In addition, upon return to the United States, Peace Corps volunteers are entitled to $200 for every month of service.

For details about the Peace Corps, call toll free, 1-800-621-3670.

South African prisoners start hunger strike

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — More than 300 inmates at Robben Island Prison began a hunger strike Monday because they consider themselves political prisoners eligible for release under President Frederik de Klerk's racial reforms.

The Prisons Service confirmed in a statement that "a number of prisoners" declined food at Robben Island but said the inmates "have ample other foodstuffs in their possession."

Since de Klerk announced his reform measures Feb. 2, eight political prisoners have been freed under his program to release everyone serving time for violating laws in connection with the 30-year ban on the African National Congress. De Klerk's program excludes those convicted of crimes of violence.

The independent Human Rights Commission estimates there are between 2,500 and 3,000 people detained in South Africa that it would define as political prisoners, including inmates charged with violent crimes related to political activities.

There are 343 prisoners who regard themselves as political prisoners involved in the hunger strike on Robben Island, regarded as South Africa's Alcatraz, a source in the ANC-aligned United Democratic Front said.

Friends and relatives picketed outside the main entrance to Parliament in Cape Town Monday in an effort to win support for the prisoners' release, and police detained more than 20 people.

Robben Island sits in the middle of Table Bay opposite Cape Town.

Herrin said. "Wichita is a good basketball team, a good scoring team yet we held them to five field goals (first half) with great effort and great defense."

Wichita saw its three game winning streak snapped and will enter the MVC tourney at 10-18 and 6-8. Sophomore guard Gaylon Nickerson scored a game-high 26 points to pace the Shockers.

Shocker head coach Mike Cohen said the Salukis deserved to win the Valley title based on their season-long showing.

"By far they have the best talent in the league," Cohen said. "They did a great job tonight and all year long."

"There's nothing I can take away from their team," Cohen said. "They earned it tonight."

The Salukis showed no mercy at the beginning of the second half, opening up a 29 point lead

Wichita State showed a lot of character by not rolling over and bringing themselves back to within 14 points before the final buzzer sounded.

Men's tennis avenges loss to Murray St.

By Eric Bigger Staff Writer

Success is the best revenge. At least it was for the Saluki men's tennis team as it beat Murray State 5-3 Friday after losing to the Racers last year 6-3 at the Southwest Missouri State Quadrangular.

The Salukis, after falling to Northern Illinois 5-4 a week earlier, had their sights set on winning against the Racers on their home Ken Lake Tennis Club courts before they head south for their spring trip.

"This was a very good match for us," tennis coach Dick LeFevre said. "It was very satisfying to beat them on their courts after losing to them last year."

SIU-C won four of the six singles matches. Junior Joe Demeterco (6-3, 6-3), and freshmen Rikard Stenstrom (6-2, 6-1), Yan Lerval (6-1, 6-1) and Tim Derowin (6-4, 6-7, 6-2) took victories in singles play.

Senior Mickey Maule, the Salukis No. 1 player, still was out of singles action with a pulled stomach muscle, but was able to compete at the No. 1 doubles spot with Lerval. They won their match 6-4, 4-6, 6-0.

"Mickey wasn't very sharp, but he got the job done," LeFevre said. "He had the go ahead from the team physician, but we didn't want to chance anything in singles, so he just played doubles."

"With our schedule it is almost impossible to win all the time especially without your No. 1 player. It will be really nice to have Mickey back at full strength."

Maule, along with the rest of the team, will have two weeks of rest before traveling to Florida for the spring trip. The Salukis compete against Florida March 12 and Tulane March 14.

Women Salukis have chance to host Gateway tournament

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

It was sweet revenge for the Saluki women's basketball team.

The Salukis lost to Southwest Missouri State 69-54 Jan. 25 in Springfield, Mo., but returned the favor with a 70-59 victory over Southwest Saturday at the Arena.

A pressure defense by Southwest took the Salukis out of their game plan in the first meeting. But the Salukis dictated the pace of Saturday's game.

"I think they (Southwest) caught us off guard when we played there," Saluki coach Cindy Scott said. "We knew what to expect this time and our game plan went the way we wanted it to. We had balanced scoring and they weren't able to key on (Amy) Rakers."

Rakers led the way with a game-high 18 points and 9 rebounds. But she received help from her teammates.

Colleen Heimstead had 17 points and continued her heroics at the free throw line (9-for-10) and Alison Smith had 16 points and 4 assists.

Both teams had a lot on the line in an emotional game. Unfortunately for the Bears, their emotions were out of control at a critical point in the game.

With 4:22 remaining and the Bears leading 55-53, Kristen Denmon fouled Heimstead and slammed the basketball on the court in disgust. A technical foul was tacked on.

Heimstead, who has been stellar at the charity stripe, connected on both personal foul free throws and hit one of two technical shots putting the Salukis up 56-55.

Both coaches said the technical was a key factor.

"That was a crucial play and probably the turning point," Scott said.

Burnett agreed and wasn't happy with Denmon.

"That was uncalled for on her part," Burnett said. "That was a major, major turning point. Our kids work hard, but they tend to talk a bit — to the officials anyway. That's not what we want to represent."

Gateway Battle

Southwest entered last week's action with a one-and-a-half game lead in the Gateway with three games to play.

But Southwest lost Thursday at Eastern Illinois and to the Salukis. The Bears are winless on the road against both teams (0-7 at Eastern and 0-9 at Southern) lifetime.

The defeats knocked Southwest out of first place. Illinois State (13-3) owns the top spot followed by Southwest (13-4) and SIU-C (12-4).

"We have been talking about hosting the tournament," Burnett said. "I don't think we can talk about that anymore unless some miracles happen."

The top four teams in the Gateway advance to the postseason tournament. The conference champion will host the tournament March 9-10.

Southwest and Illinois State already have clinched postseason bids. SIU-C must win one of its two remaining games to clinch a berth.

Fourth-place Bradley (11-5) and fifth-place Eastern (10-6) still are in the running. Eastern has won seven consecutive games.

The Salukis could finish anywhere from first to fifth pending the outcome of their final two games.

With victories at Illinois State Wednesday and at Indiana State Friday, the Salukis would win the conference outright.

The Gateway could end in a three-way tie if the Salukis win both games, Illinois State wins against Eastern Friday and Southwest wins at Wichita State Saturday. This would give each team a 14-4 record.

If there is a three-way tie, the Salukis will receive the No. 1 seed because of their two victories over fourth-place Bradley this season. Illinois State and Southwest split with Bradley this season.

Eastern is the only team that could knock the Salukis out of the postseason tournament. If Eastern wins its two remaining games, the Salukis have to win one of their remaining games to clinch a postseason tournament spot.

Remaining Schedule

First-place Illinois State will finish the season at home where it has won 25 straight.

After playing the Salukis Wednesday, the Redbirds close out the regular season against Eastern Illinois Friday.

Southwest ends the regular season Saturday at Wichita State.

Bradley plays its last two games at home against Drake Thursday and Northern Iowa Saturday.

Eastern Illinois plays Wednesday at Indiana State and Friday at Illinois State.

Bench Comes Through

If the Salukis advance to the postseason tournament, the performance of their reserve players will be remembered.

In a week their star player, Amy Rakers, was questionable because of a virus, the Saluki bench responded.

In the Salukis' 63-61 victory Thursday over Wichita State, sophomore guard Karrie Redeker and freshman center Kelly Firth combined for 24 points.

Junior forward Cyd Mitchell replaced Rakers in the starting lineup Thursday. Mitchell ended with 4 points, 5 rebounds, 2 assists and 2 steals.

Senior forward Deanna Kibelkis replaced struggling freshman Angie Rougeau in the starting lineup against Southwest. Kibelkis scored 8 points and grabbed 7 rebounds.

Firth scored 21 points and grabbed 11 rebounds in two games last week.

"She (Firth) is going to be a great player," Rakers said. "I think Kelly is going to help us a lot."

Baseball talks recess for indefinite time

NEW YORK (UPI) — Talks recessed indefinitely on Day 12 of the spring training lockout Monday, endangering Opening Day and prolonging what 15 governors have called "a national disgrace."

Maryland's Gov. William Donald Schaefer went even further. Schaefer and 14 other governors from states with teams sent letters to Vincent and to organizations representing the players and owners, urging them to settle.

"This continuing dispute is a national disgrace ... Baseball is too important to our country — both economically and culturally — to allow this to drag on," Schaefer said.

Astro owner has had talks on expansion

HOUSTON (UPI) — John J. McMullen, who reportedly has expressed interest in selling his majority ownership in the Houston Astros, has had discussions about acquiring television rights to a potential expansion baseball franchise in Orlando, Fla.

McMullen has held discussions with William du Pont III, who heads a group that wants to acquire a new franchise, probably in the National League, for Orlando, the Houston Chronicle reported Monday.

McMullen, however, is not interested in an ownership stake in the Florida club, but in gaining rights for its local television broadcasts, sources told the Chronicle.

The Chronicle reported on Saturday that McMullen has expressed an interest in selling his majority interest in the Houston Sports Association, which includes the Astros. McMullen, who also is majority owner of the NHL New Jersey Devils, is owner of a marine engineering company in New York.

McMullen is known to be disappointed with Houston.
