Local experts react to Ortega's upset in Nicaraguan election

Just one hour before the clashes began about 7:30 p.m., Ortega visited Chamorro at her home and said he discussed issues of "peace and reconciliation" with his successor.

"The president has come to congratulate Violeta for her victory at the polls and offer cooperation in every way for a smooth transition," Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto told reporters after the meeting.

Ortega was accompanied by D'Escoto, former U.S. President Carter, United Nations special envoy Elliot Richardson and Organization of American States Secretary-General Jeannine Anez, who attended the closed Sunday election and pronounced it exemplar.

Salukis capture MVC title

By Jeff Grieser
Staff Writer

The Salukis men's basketball team won the Missouri Valley Conference regular-season title by beating the Wisc-Green BayPhoenix 71-67 before a sellout crowd of about 10,014 Monday night at the Arena.

Salukis vs. Phoenix

The MVC crown is the second for SIU-C since 1977 and the first MVC regular-season title for the Salukis, who finished with a conference record of 10-4. Illinois State came from behind to beat Creighton Monday in Normal to assure the Dawgs sole possession of first place in the MVC.

Illinois State, Creighton and Tulsa tied for second place with 9-5 records. The Salukis take a 24-6 overall record into the MVC tournament this weekend in Normal. The 24 victories ties a school record for most victories in a season. The NIT-champion Salukis of 1967, led by Walt Frazier, had a 24-2 overall record.

The Salukis used tenacious defense to rout the Shockers early, as they pulled to a 38-18 halftime lead.

The Salukis were led by senior-center Jerry Jones, who scored 18 points and junior-forward Rick Shipley, who added 17.

Bar overcrowding

State university officials approach issue of bar overcrowcency with differing views

By Jackie Spinnler
Staff Writer

Carbondale isn't the only college town with bar overcrowcency problems, but other college towns are finding different ways to deal with overcrowcency.

"Sure we've had problems, just like everybody else," said Champaign Building Safety Supervisor Gary Bowman. "But the bars make enough money letting people in to cover the fine."

Carbondale Fire Chief Everett RunBlng said in the last three or four weeks the city's bars have noticed a problem with overcrowcency and open discussions with the fire department, the police have been helping cìtizen.

Champaign building inspectors check bars for overcrowcency during special events such as Dad's Day and Homecoming, Bowman said.

"It's a tough situation of discovery and responding back to the mayor," he said. "When we crack down too severely, we get complaints from the outside." Champaign city code requires a counter at the front for we've had problems with the bars to regulate patrons entering and leaving.

Phyllis Gehri, Champaign deputy liquor commissioner, said the Champaign mayor either fines a cited establishment or sends a letter of reprimand.

"He has a checklist based on how many times they have been there for the price and what percentage they were over. He sets the fine based on the Canger and safe ty aspect of their overcrowcency,"

Perkins loan recipients may feel budget crunch

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

University students receiving the Perkins loan will have to tighten their belts in fiscal year 1991 if President George Bush's budget is adopted.

If the U.S. Congress approves Bush's budget allocations, the Perkins loan program will receive no new funding beginning Oct. 1, 1990.

Rick Steudel, assistant financial aid director at the University, said the most current statistics showed that 961 University students received the Perkins loan during the 1988-89 school year.

The Perkins loan program is a revolving loan program, which means as long as students continue to pay back the loan, there will be money to lend out. Students, however, there is cause for real concern because many students don't pay back the loan, the funds will be depleted.

Vilnius, U.S.S.R. - A pro-independence movement swept to victory in Lithuania's first free multiparty election in 70 years, clearing the way for the first non-Communist dominated republic parliament in the Soviet Union, official results showed Monday.

The new Lithuanian Parliament is to usher in a new phase in the republic's history, in which Communists will probably no longer play the leading role, a spokesman for Lithuania's Council of Ministers, told the official news agency TASS.

The voting, an extension of the Sajudis nationalist movement, was herald a landslide victory Sunday and the Tass dispatch from Vilnius on Monday official confirmed the election results.

The Baltic republic's legislature will now be the first in 70 years and the 11th in all 15 republics of the Soviet Union in which the Communist Party will be a minority in Parliament.

The new Parliament, however, cannot convene yet because two-thirds of its members have not been elected. There will be runoff elections in 45 races in which no candidate won more than half the votes. Those races will be held again because of voting irregularities.

The runoffs will take place March 10 and the repeated elections will be held April 7.

Salukis win MVC title outright

Hall to the 1989-90 Missouri Valley Conference Champions — the Southern Illinois University Salukis.

The Salukis used their No. 1 weapon — DEFENSE — to hand the Wichita State Shockers an 81-67 drubbing Monday night at the Arena.

SIU-C, 24-6 overall, finished conference play with a 10-4 record, good enough for an outright Valley title and the No. 1 seed in the Valley tournament this weekend in Normal.

The title in SIU-C’s first since the Salukis shared the title with New Mexico State in 1976-77. Coincidentally, that was the last time the Salukis made an NCAA appearance. The win gave Southern its first outright title since joining the Valley at the beginning of the 1975-76 season.

Illinois State played the spoiler and downed Creighton 83-77. The announcement brought the 10,014 Arena fans — the second consecutive sellout — to a standing ovation.

Creighton, Illinois State and Tulsa finished their regular season tied for second place with a 9-7 Valley mark.

Saluki head coach Rich Herrin had a difficult time putting the title into perspective of winning the Valley crown into words. Herrin guided the Salukis to an 8-20 record his first year. It took him just four more seasons to produce a league-champion.

“I can’t tell you how exciting and how much it really means to us,” Herrin said. “I can truly say that for our total coaching staff and our basketball team, I don’t know that words can exactly explain the feeling.

“It’s been a tough five years of hard work and it just takes gradual improvement,” Herrin said. “I’ve been very fortunate all year, I’ve had good young men to work with and to play.”

For the second consecutive game, five Salukis finished in double figures.

“We played very unselfish on the offensive end,” Herrin said. Seniors Jerry Jones and Freddie McSwain played their final game at the Arena. Jones led the way with 18 points and nine rebounds, while McSwain added 15 points and eight assists.

Juniors Rick Shipley and Sterling Mahan chipped in 17 and 13 points respectively while sophomore guard Kelvin Lawrence finished with 11 points. The Salukis’ defensive pressure allowed only five Shockers field goals in the opening 20 minutes and the Salukis controlled the game from beginning to end. SIU-C outshot Wichita State 50 percent to 22 percent to close out the half with a commanding 20 point lead — 38-18.

“It’s probably as good if not the greatest defensive effort I’ve ever had a basketball team play,” See CHAMPIONS, Page 14

Tourney tickets go on sale today

Missouri Valley Conference tickets go on sale at the Saluki ticket office at noon today.

Tickets prices are $46 for the entire Valley package that includes admission to all games. Tickets also can be purchased at $12 each for each session. There are two sessions of two games each Saturday, March 3, one session of two games Sunday March 4 and a one-game tournament championship session March 6.

Session tickets for SIU-C students are $6 each. Student IDs must be shown to purchase tickets and again upon admission into the ISU arena.

Women swimmers win several awards

By Erin Bugger
Staff Writer

There probably is no consolation for the SIU-C women’s swimming and diving team at barely losing the Gateway Conference title 662-557 to Illinois State, but receiving 11 all-conference awards and the Gateway Diver-of-the-Year award can help.

Junior Janet Patrick, sophomores Melissa Steinbach, Tonia Mahairs, Julie Hosier, Nancy Schmidtkoer, Debbie Gunteridge, Abby Barnett, Laine Owen and Deirdre Lien and freshmen Kristin Harvey and Julie Adams received all-conference awards.

“It’s a real nice honor for the young ladies and for the program here at the University as well,” swimming and diving coach Doug Ingram said. “Each of them are very pleased with the honor and I think well deserve.”

Owen, an NCAA qualifier, also was awarded Diver-of-the-Year in the Gateway and Midwest Conferences.

“I don’t think anyone deserved the award more than Laine,” diving coach Dave Andrey said. “She worked her butt off all year to get it.”

Throughout the year the women’s team wore Saluki swimming T-shirts with the motto “Pain is Temporary, Pride is Forever” on the back. Having a record of 1-10-1 during the regular season made it a little tough for that pride to show through the frustration, but after their performance at the conference meet, the Salukis proved that they are a force to be reckoned with.

All year long the young women’s team, with only two juniors and no seniors, swam against top-20 programs. Now, after swimming against competition on the same level, the Salukis have proved they can win.

“In our situation we are trying a couple of things,” Ingram said. “One is that we are trying to raise the level of our women’s program to the highest possible level and to do this we try to face the best competition that we can.”

Ingram has at least two more years with his present swimmers to implement this strategy and see if will benefit his program.

Sophomore Saluki swimmer Abby Barnett swims the breaststroke during the individual medley Saturday at the Recreation Center. Barnett made the all-conference team.
Liberator Gorbachev meets ex-dissident Vaclav Havel

MOSCOW (UPI) - Czechoslovak President Vaclav Havel met with Mikhail Gorbachev Monday and the two nations signed a pact for the unit withdrawal of Soviet troops in the future. Gorbachev had been given two years ago to crush Prague's democratic reforms. "We have moved beyond what was negative in our relations," Gorbachev said after the accord was signed under the grimmest chapter of the Brezhnev era, the Aug. 25, 1968 invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Winds, rain kill 27 in British isles, Europe

LONDON (UP) - A fierce storm lashed the British isles and northern Europe Monday, disrupting essential services, inflicting millions of dollars in damage and causing two deaths in Britain. The storm left destruction in its path, and meteorologists feared the tempest of rain and winds, some recorded at more than 100 mph, would rage into the night across the nation. The showers were quite heavy and "violent," said a weather official, who compared the storm's intensity to a June 25 storm that left 94 people dead and caused billions of dollars of damage.

Police official challenges newsmen to duel

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI) -- A senior police official Monday formally challenged a newsmen to a duel following an incident in which he said he was tammned in a story accusing him of possible corruption. Uruguay's chief police inspector, Siera Claveria, sent his thanks to Britain, France and other European nations, for their help in finding the "unknown," who was killed in the city. The police official, said, "There is no such thing as a true official who deserts his duty and leaves his post."
'Salukis' brings SIU-C flavor to downtown Chicago area

Tavern frequented by former students, University alumni

By Jackie Spinnir

CHICAGO — Nestled in the heart of downtown Chicago, underneath the shadow of the skyscrapers and hidden by the neon glint of the city's nightlife, a small bar that sports the name "Salukis" recently celebrated its one-year anniversary.

Outside Salukis, 11 E. Ohio St. in Chicago, a green and white awning "attaches the Windy City air, allowing the cloth above a bay window that looks out onto the corner of Ohio and State Streets, giving the bar its classic, big city appearance.

But inside, the bar is all Saluki. SIUU banners decorate the brown, paneled walls. The bar and stools stretch through most of the inside with a few tables and chairs in front of the bar,allowing and several tables in back.

A Saluki clock above the bar ticks away the minutes until closing—4 a.m. Sunday through Friday and 5 a.m. on Saturday.

Mirrors reflect the images of SIU-C bumper stickers and posters on both sides of the bar's walls. Painted images of a Saluki dog decorate one of the mirrors. Honny Charnimara, Salukis manager, said he and his brother Fred, the owner, didn't want to forget their alma mater, so they set out to keep their Saluki spirit alive almost 400 miles from Carbondale.

"The whole idea behind opening the bar was that we had a good time at SIU-C," Honny said. "We are trying to provide the same atmosphere as South Illinois Avenue—a home away from home."

While Fred graduated from SIU-C, Honny said he only stayed for seven months, but that was long enough.

"That's the time I learned how to party. I'll never forget that," he said.

Bartender Lauri Huijenga said the bar has many regular patrons, but SIU-C alumni and students are beginning to come in every night.

"They are a lot of fun and proud about being Salukis. That is for sure," Huijenga said. "They like to party and get pretty wild after a few."

University students and alumni who possess University identification get 30 cents off any drink. The Charnimara also ask University students and alumni to sign a register.

Former manager Paul Deluso said he managed Salukis at the original opening. Deluso now runs the kitchen, which offers a variety of snack foods including Saluki burgers.

"The idea of a bar named after SIU is really catching on," Deluso said.

Four SIU law school students successfully defended a chemical company accused of environmental violations before four federal judges to win the National Environmental Moot Court Competition.

The students, Arthur DeBruyn, Alice Noble-Allige, Neal Perryman and Jeffrey Tookeyer, defeated teams from Georgetown and Washington University in the final round. The SIU environmental moot court team won best orator (Tookeyer), best brief and best team, out of a field of 52 teams.

The team will receive the competition trophy from Arizona State, last year's competition winner. The trophy is a painting of the area involved in the first environmental court case.

The second annual competition, held in White Plains, N.Y., Feb. 21-24, featured an appeal case involving a city, a federal agency and a chemical company. A decision made about environmental violations was being appealed.

Three federal district court judges and a federal appellate judge decided the case in the final round.

"This is the first year we brought a team to this, and it's pretty nice to come back national champions," Perryman said.

Moot court involves hypothetical cases designed for practice and competition for law school students. A moot court class is required during SIU law students' first year.

Perryman said the team practiced for hundreds of hours and argued the case four times before University law professors. The team began practicing in September, when the competition's case was released to the participants.

"SIU's moot court classes are much tougher than most other law schools," DeBruyn said. "It directly reflects onto our competition with schools across the state."

Aside from the environmental law team, the SIU law school has moot court teams in four other categories: national, international, Illinois and the American Bar Association.

Before the competition, the team prepared a brief, an appellate document stating why the original trial court decision was right or wrong. The brief counted for 40 percent of the team's score. Oral argument made up the rest of the score.

DeBruyn said in the finals the team had to argue the opposing side of which their brief was based.

"They're trying to make you see both sides of the story," DeBruyn said. "We argued and won on a point completely opposite of our brief.

The championship brief will be published in the Pace University Environmental Law Review.

Women's Services: Promoting equality

YOUR ROOMMATE stumbles in late one night, bruised and bleeding. Her clothes are all torn up and she is in hysterics.

It's quite a different picture than when she left for the night, on the arm of someone she'd been hoping to date for a long time. She has been raped, even though she's not "that kind of girl." And she probably won't report it.

Sound like an unrealistic scenario that just wouldn't happen? Do you know why? Wrong. Date and acquaintance rape occurs all too frequently on this and other college campuses across the country. Oftentimes, the women do not report this gross invasion of their privacy for fear of retribution and stigmatization. Popular wisdom prescribes that she probably asked for it or, worse, that she was just being a tease and got her "comeuppance."

THE UNIVERSITY Women's Services recently instituted a much-needed support group for sexually assaulted women. The group will provide a supportive atmosphere for women to share their common experiences. It will also be an invaluable tool they can use to overcome their traumatic experiences.

The group and other activities such as this are an excellent opportunity for women to explore their feelings of being victimized and exploited. It also allows men the golden opportunity through education and discussion to understand and cope with the role of the aggressor that society places them in. In addition to such an agenda, the service is breaking new ground toward total equality of the sexes.

HOWEVER, WHILE the focus of this group is very important, it is only one of several vital functions Women's Services has been providing for the University community since the mid '70's. From individual short-term counseling to workshops to classroom talks to assertiveness training to lessons on self-defense, the group's dedicated staffers work long hours to improve SIU-C through education and positive reinforcement of societal mores.

Three student workers, three part-time graduate assistants and service director Beth Fiestein coordinate their program. They support and information to enable them to be powerful, productive parts of society. They served over 4,000 members from all aspects of the University community last year on a walk-in basis or by appointment.

THEY CONDUCT support groups and practical auto repair workshops. They maintain an excellent informational library filled with reference materials which is open to the public. Some programs are for women only, but several, such as the date rape workshops, are open to both sexes.

Exploring gender while promoting a greater understanding of ourselves as people beyond any sexual stereotyping is essential to the survival of our society. Groups such as Women's Services are laying the essential groundwork for a better tomorrow. While it may sound a bit wide-eyed and idealistic to believe we can change the world in such a manner, it is our right and our moral obligation to try. So thumbs up to the Women's Services. They deserve our utmost thanks and support for the wonderful work they do.

Inaccuracies in DE Frisbee story

On behalf of the SIU Ultimate Frisbee team, I would like to go on record as disagreeing with the article "Ultimate Frisbee" that appeared in the Feb. 22 edition of the DE. It is difficult to provide a growing sport, and we would like to see it get as much publicity as possible.

However, there were misquotations and misinformation written into the article that need to be corrected. The first problem with the article is that I was misquoted as having said: "[Ultimate] is a non-contact sport, but I did break my jaw last year. This guy on the team and me, we didn't see each other and just collided." What I actually said was: "Like basketball, Ultimate is supposed to be a non-contact sport, but sometimes contact cannot be avoided... last fall I broke my jaw when a teammate and I inadvertently collided while going for the disc." Being misquoted is bad enough, but to have sentences put in my mouth that are sure to make English instructors wince is inexcusable. The English skills of students on college campuses are poor enough already; college newspapers do not need to play a role in making us look bad. By translating student quotes into improper English.

The second problem with the article is stated: "[Ultimate] is played without referees because there is no need for them." The article failed to sufficiently explain that Ultimate is played without referees because the players are responsible for policing themselves. This unique feature of Ultimate helps facilitate a high level of sportmanship and is designed to shift the emphasis from winning to the quality of play and the conduct of the players themselves.

Finally, the article stated that Greg King is the one member of our team who "never plays." Although Greg does focus mainly on managing the team and as a go-between with the Recreation Center when they play with the team occasionally at practices and enjoys playing very much. It was a mistake to assume that because Greg is in a wheelchair he never plays with the team.

I realize Ultimate is not a well-known sport yet, and it is difficult to grasp the game in a few minutes.

I appreciate the DE's willingness to write an article about our team — we are looking for new members (students or non-students). But please, in the future, if you quote someone, be accurate — Robert Johnson, gradate student, therapeutic recreation and President, SIU Ultimate Frisbee Team.

Marijuana relatively harmless drug; lawmakers should target hard stuff

I am deeply disturbed by our government's recent crackdown on marijuana consumers, and by the irrational disinforcement campaign against cannabis use that has continued unabated for over 50 years. Today, the major arguments against marijuana (also known as cannabis or hemp) are as follows: 1) legalizing cannabis would create more users; 2) the potency of cannabis has increased and the plant is therefore more dangerous; 3) cannabis is detrimental to health.

Here are the facts:
1) Marijuana was legalized in Holland in the late 1960s. According to H.W. Janssen, a narcotic officer located in Heerlen, the potency of marijuana fell dramatically after legalization. Currently, about 1.5% of the Dutch population uses cannabis.
2) According to a study published in the Kansas Law review (Vol. 36), the percentage of THC in cannabis confiscated by the Drug Enforcement Agency remained stable over the last 10 years. In 1981, the odor percentage had actually dropped to 2.5. This proves government figures regarding potency have been greatly exaggerated.
3) According to the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, our government has sponsored two long term studies on cannabis, one in Jamaica and one in Costa Rica. The results of these studies are not widely known because they discovered marijuana users live longer than non-marijuana users. In over 8,000 years of known usage, no one has ever died from marijuana, yet we have over 400,000 deaths every year attributed to alcohol or tobacco.

Despite this evidence, more than 300,000 people are arrested every year for violation of our marijuana laws, mostly for minor offenses. If people are arrested, they are usually fined $30,000 per person. If the government really wants to do something about drug abuse, they should go after the truly dangerous drugs, like alcohol, tobacco, cocaine and heroin. Our country was founded on the principles of freedom. Must our Bill of Rights be revoked in the pursuit of a relatively harmless plant? David Bowman, freshman, music business.

Greg King is the one member of our team who "never plays." Although Greg does focus mainly on managing the team and as a go-between with the Recreation Center when they play with the team occasionally at practices and enjoys playing very much. It was a mistake to assume that because Greg is in a wheelchair he never plays with the team.

I realize Ultimate is not a well-known sport yet, and it is difficult to grasp the game in a few minutes.

I appreciate the DE's willingness to write an article about our team — we are looking for new members (students or non-students). But please, in the future, if you quote someone, be accurate — Robert Johnson, graduate student, therapeutic recreation and President, SIU Ultimate Frisbee Team.

Early bird drivers get prime parking spots

After reading Mr. Dan Reed's letter, I thought, "What a hypocrite! He wants a good parking space, but he's not willing to work at it!"

I've got news for you, buddy. You can't have your cake and eat it too. If you want the good things in life, you've got to work for them. They are not going to be handed to you.

To borrow an analogy from a friend of mine, it's just like buying a ticket to a basketball game or a rock concert.

If you want good seats, you have to go early and wait in line. If you're not willing to do that, there are a lot of other people who are.

The same thing applies to parking spaces. If you want a good space, then go early. If you don't, don't complain. When you can't find a space, it's not SIU's fault that you can't get on campus before 9 a.m.

Your solution is to build more parking spaces. While you're in it, why don't you build 10,000 more row seats in the Arena? —Phil Schuyler, junior, aviation management.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinion of the author(s) only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Board, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, the associate editor, the managing editor, a news editor, a feature editor, the faculty managing editor and a School of Journalism faculty member.

Letters to the editor must be submitted directly to the editorial page editor, Room 414, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-students by occupation.

Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Congressman Glenn Poshard, D-Carverville, said although he did not have the actual figure, the loan delinquency rate was relatively high in the United States.

Poshard said a story room only crowd at John A. Logan College Monday that students concerned about the cuts should write to the president and members of the congressional education committees and ask them to change the budget.

"The government ought to be able to afford increases in education and health care, but that might not be likely," Poshard said.

Poshard said another problem with both local and state funding is the amount allocated for the local government.

In the 1990 fiscal year, $4.8 billion was allocated for the Pell Grant and $5.2 billion is expected to be allocated in the new budget.

"The numbers appear to show an increase, but in reality no additional funding will be gained," Poshard said.

Shevardnadze intervened, saluted the November 22nd elections for the presidency for the republic which was incorporated into the Soviet Union.

"It was a referendum on independence and independence was won," Shevardnadze said.

"The American people have been coming here," said Congressman Glenn Poshard, D-Carverville, at a news conference in Carbondale Monday.

Richard Durbin, Dem-Ill., said: "I am proud that the United States has been a friend of Nicaragua."

"We are opening for Nicaragua, we are going to help the people of Nicaragua, the war will disappear and the Contras will disappear," Ortega said.

"The bar owners have learned to comply with the law," said Poshard.

Bowman said bar occupancy in Carbondale is a tough situation with no easy solution.

In Carbondale, bar owners found that the city’s legal occupancy limits could be exceeded when the bar is closed. They also can bring the citation before the Carbondale Liquor Commission for a hearing. The commission could vote to suspend or revoke a bar’s liquor license.

Vince Quevedo, director of business services in Bloomington, said Bloomington hadn’t had a problem with occupancy within the last 10 years because the city started cracking down on overcapacity.

"About 10 years ago, some of the bar owners were caught, and they have shaped up," he said.

Bloomington could fine the bar owners $500 to $1,250 as they have in the past, City Clerk Sandra Nelson said.

"The mayor and any one of the four liquor commission can hold a hearing to either close them down or fine them," she said.

"We have bar owners who have been arrested and they have been convicted," said Quevedo.

University students awarded for PRSSA work

Five SIU-C students were recognized for outstanding contributions to the Public Relations Student Society of America at the 1990 Midwest District Conference.

The conference, which was hosted by the SIU-C student chapter of PRSSA, was held Feb. 23 through Sunday. Judy Roberts, a senior in speech communication from Rockford, Andrew Krause, a sophomore in speech communication from Prairie View; Laura Siwula, a junior in speech communication from Lindenhurst; and Lisa Hyden, a senior in speech communication from Decatur.

The Outstanding Chapter President Award is based on the ability of a chapter president to provide program development, leadership, and motivation, Roberts said. "Developing chapter programs and motivating members has been really important to me," Roberts said. "I try to get the chapter involved in the district and national levels."

Roberts said the chapter has expanded its program by adding a point and buddy system and increasing the relationship with professionals by bringing them to Carbondale to speak.

The citations recognize people who have important roles in the chapter and in PRSSA as a whole, Roberts said.

Elsey Roberts, professional advisor for the SIU-C chapter of PRSSA, was recognized as the Outstanding Professional Advisor in the Midwest District award. "Elsey really goes beyond the call of duty. He is a tremendous source of information and continually offers encouragement and support. He does more than we have to," Hyden said.

The professional advisory acts as the liaison linking students in the chapter and professionals in the public relations field, Hyden said. Roberts is the principal of Bright Central Agency, a public relations agency in St. Louis.

The Midwest District, consisting of Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin, is the largest PRSSA district in the nation. There were about 230 students attending the conference, Hyden said. "This was a special conference for us," chapter president Roberts said. "It was our last farewell.

The SIU-C chapter will no longer be in the Midwest District because of redistricting in March, Roberts said. The chapter, marking its 20th anniversary this year, was the Outstanding Chapter in the Midwest in both 1988 and 1989. The chapter's student-run public relations agency, Pyramid, was named the 1990 Outstanding Firm in the Nation at the PRSSA National Conference in Texas last October.

Sam Black, former president of the International Public Relations Association, was the keynote speaker at the conference. Black is regarded as a pioneer of public relations in Europe, Michael G. Parkinson, PRSSA faculty advisor, said. "An international business figure, somebody with the magnitude of a Lee Iacocca, coming to Carbondale for a student conference is extraordinary," Parkinson said.

Educators to lead workshops on learning disabilities at conference

University News Service

Barbara K. Cordoni, director of Project Achieve Program, and Judith L. Carter, a teacher at the Brethren Preparatory School in Carbondale, will lead workshops at an international conference of the Learning Disability Association of America in Anaheim, Calif., Feb. 21-24.

Cordoni's nationally acclaimed program shows students with learning disabilities how to succeed in college. Many enter the program reading at grade-school levels, but leave holding bachelor's degrees.

Her book, "My Child Is More Than A Number," will address how to evaluate test scores of people with learning disabilities. Carter, who teaches at Brethren Private School, will speak on "Desk-top Publishing and Learning Disabled Student."

Group seeks to eliminate clearcutting

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) - Members of a student environmental group, sporting green arm bands and carrying signs, Monday demanded an end to clear-cutting in the Shawnee National Forest.

A new Illinois rule ordering state employees to use recycled paper. About 125 people braved the cold to participate in a march and rally held by Students Allied for a Greener Earth on the steps of the State Capitol. The signs had a variety of anti-deforestation slogans, including one reading, "Trees Rule!"

Every year, a forest area twice the size of Rhode Island is lost to clearcutting and less than 1 percent of forest area is protected by law, said Bob Croteau, spokesman for the Sangamon State University SAGE chapter.

Clearcutting ruins the forest, soil and animal habitats, he said. "Trees that are 500 to a 1,000 years old were citizens of this land before we arrived on these shores," Croteau said. "We would not think of bulldozing our museums or burning down our libraries and we are sitting idly by while the remaining 5 percent of our nation's forest is clearcut down to stubble."

On the Divide front, Mark Donham of the Regional Association of Concerned Citizens, said his group wants a moratorium on clearcutting in the Shawnee National Forest in Southern Illinois and a congressional investigation into the U.S. Forest Services management of that area. Donham said the more than 13,000 acres of cut timberland in Shawnee represent waste of taxpayers' money.

WASHINGTON (UP) - Jesse Jackson said Monday he will not be a candidate for mayor of Washington, D.C., because "I have no plans to run for mayor," Jackson said at a news conference. "I didn't and I don't." Jackson, the nation's most prominent black politician, said his political agenda continues to grow, but did not say whether he will be a candidate for president in 1992. However, his decision to pass up the mayor's contest leaves him free to make a third run for the White House.

Jackson has consistently said he would not run if Mayor Marion Barry, a political ally since his days as young civil rights activist in the 1960s, sought a fourth term. But until Monday he had never ruled out a candidacy.

Race a factor in death penalty
WASHINGTON (UP) - People who murder whites are more likely to get the death penalty than those who kill blacks but it is not as "color cut" whether the race of the killer is as influential in executions, a study showed Monday.

The General Accounting Office, in a report prepared for Congress, said the study "shows a pattern of evidence indicating racial disparities in the charging, sentencing and imposition of the death penalty."

The findings by the congressional watchdog group were based on the research of 26 other studies done since states resume their laws after the 1972 Supreme Court decision that ruled unconstitutional a death penalty imposed in an arbitrary or capricious manner.

"In 82 percent of the states, race of victim was found to influence the likelihood of being charged with capital murder or receiving the death penalty — those who murdered whites were found to be more likely to be sentenced to death than those who murdered blacks," the report said.

Significant share of blacks afoot of law
WASHINGTON (UP) - Nearly a quarter of all young black men in America are behind bars or under supervision for criminal violations, the highest percentage ever recorded, a new study said Monday.

The 11-page report, "Young Black Men and the Criminal Justice System: A Growing National Problem," said the 609,690 young men, ages 20 to 29, is at least $2.5 billion a year.

"These new findings should be disturbing to all Americans," said Marc Mauer, the study's author.

Of young black men, 35 percent are enrolled in higher education, 23 percent are employed and 1.8 percent of all young black men are behind bars.

Barry's study of 1989 figures from the Bureau of Justice Statistics by the Sentencing Project, a private group, found that 436,000 black men were under supervision for criminal violations, the highest percentage ever recorded.

The report, based on an analysis of 1989 figures from the Bureau of Justice Statistics by the Sentencing Project, also concludes the cost of incarcerating blacks for criminal violations far exceeds the cost of incarcerating whites.

Summer job information made available to students

By Phil Pearson
Staff Writer

Finding the many opportunities for summer employment in America’s national forests and parks can be a hassle. To make things easier for students, a Montana man has compiled the information and made it available to students who are interested.

Mick Sullivan, of Sullivan and Associates in Kalispell, Mont., has made available to anyone seeking a job in a park or forest the information he has put together and does with the actual hiring and firing, he only conducts the research.

"They could get all the information themselves, but it would take a long time," Sullivan said.

Sullivan said he has five pamphlets available for $5 or less. He also has a resource book, titled "Guide to Cruise Ship Jobs," which can be purchased.

Through his eight years of providing a job service, he has built up contacts. This year he has information on more than 6,000 jobs.

Anyone seeking details can write him. Mick Sullivan, Sullivan and Associates, 113 E. Wyoming St., Kalispell, MT, 59901.

The Student Conservation Association, Inc. has more than 1,000 positions in the fields of conservation and resource management.

High school and college students as well as older adults may apply for volunteer positions at various national parks and forests from Maine to Alaska.

Benefits include travel expenses, housing, a stipend for basic needs and a uniform allowance if a uniform is required for the position.

For details on the SCA program, one may call (605)826-4301. A closer to Carbonate, the Army Corps of Engineers at Red Lake is accepting applications for park aides. Aides are uniformed employees who assist regular rangers in their duties.

Salaries range from $5.70 to $6.22 an hour depending on experience.

For details, call (618)724-2493. In Illinois, the Department of Conservation is accepting applications for Campground Hosts and Host Interpreters.

A Campground Host is simply there to greet visitors and encourage them with regulations along with other minor duties. Applicants must be at least 21 years old, possess a valid driver's license and agree to work for a minimum of four weeks for $1 per day.

The Host Interpreter, which can fill some college requirements for outdoor recreation majors, needs to have knowledge of outdoor skills. The interpreter often leads hikes and other entertainment for visitors.

Summer job opportunities are:

- The Cincinnati Nature Center and Long Branch Farm needs teachers for a camp attended by youth 6-17 years old. For details call (513)831-1711.
- The Bradfield Woods Outdoor Education, Recreation and Camping Center in Marietta, Tenn., is looking for recreation majors to work with children, some of who are physically handicapped.
- The American Camp Association is seeking recreation majors to work at various summer camps. For details, call (618)724-2493.

Mandela's commitment to nationalization stands

SOWETO, South Africa (UPI) — Nelson Mandela met with the chairman of South Africa's largest corporation and later Monday reaffirmed his commitment to nationalization but also said the African National Congress wants an economy based on private enterprise.

Mandela's comments on nationalization since his Feb. 11 release from prison have sparked controversy on the part of foreign and local investors.

Government ministers also condemned Mandela's statements as naive and said the economic policies of the African National Congress were outdated.

Mandela and Anglo American Corp. Chairman Gavyn Relly said their 30-minute talks concentrated on industrial relations and did not include the issue of nationalization.

But the two men told reporters that further discussions were necessary on the subject.

Nationalizing key sectors of the economy remained basic ANC policy, said Mandela, who is scheduled to travel to London Tuesday for his first meeting in more than 27 years with ANC leaders in exile.

Nationalization had been adopted in the past to meet social problems in the country, and "it should come at such a time as today when the ANC has made it one of its policies," he said.

"The sectors which we have selected are those which we feel will give us the resources as a country to tackle some of the problems facing especially blacks," Mandela said in reference to the ANC's commitment to nationalizing South Africa's mines and banks.

"I must stress that the entire economy, insofar as we are concerned, will remain intact," he said. "It will continue to be based on private enterprise."

Anglo American dominates the country's gold mining sector and has interests in diamonds, coal, base metals, steel, paper and car manufacture.

Man charged in burglary

By Chris Walka
Staff Writer

James P. Brown, a University student and resident of Warren Hall, was arrested at 2:57 a.m. Sunday for breaking into a car parked at 101 W. University St. Carbonate Police said.

The car, owned by M. Pampholus resident Janet Vale, was entered after a window was broken, police said.

Two men, one of which eluded police, took some grocery items and car fuses, police said. Damage to the car was estimated at $100.

Stolen items were valued at $15.

Police said a call came into the Carbonate Police Department that two men were breaking into the car. A University police officer, who was aiding Carbonate police officers, spotted Brown on Beveridge Street and stopped him.

State's Attorney Charles Grace said Brown is being held on burglary charges and that his bail was set at $2,500. Grace said Brown is slated to appear at 1 p.m. March 7 for a preliminary hearing.

City to review water plant

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

The Carbonate City Council will hold a special meeting at 7 tonight to discuss alternatives to renovate the City's Water Treatment Plant or to build a new plant.

The discussion will be based on a report prepared by the Crawford, Murphy and Tilly, Inc. Engineering Consulting Firm.

Renovations to the plant at 101 N. Wall St. or building a new plant is being considered to comply with new water quality standards and to improve the efficiency of the water plant.

The consultant's final report was expected to be delivered to the city yesterday for examination by council members.

In January of 1989 the City Council voted to begin feasibility studies for renovation of the plant.

Anna Carol Fults-Khauab, emeritus professor of home economics education and founder of that department’s doctoral program, died at 12:35 p.m., Feb. 22, at Carbondale Memorial Hospital. She was 76.

Fults-Khauab, former chairwoman of the Department of Home Economics Education, retired from SIU-C in 1983 after 31 years on the faculty.

Physician, coordinator of the University’s home economics education program and a former student of Fults-Khauab’s, said, “teaching was her greatest love,” noting that Fults-Khauab continued to teach courses in home economics research throughout her 30-year career at SIU-C.

“She was a human relations expert anyway you look at it,” Bubnas said, “such a warm, caring person who knew how to bring out the best in people.”

Bubnas said a memorial service for Fults-Khauab will be in Carbonado this in late March or early April. Huffman-Harker Funeral Home is in charge of the arrangements. Fults-Khauab was instrumental in establishing and funding the construction of the School of Home Economics in the newly built Ivory Hall in 1959, Bubnas said.

“Her help in acquiring a Ph. D. degree in home economics education here in 1963,” Bubnas added.

In 1972, Fults-Khauab received the Great Teacher Award, voted on by the University’s Alumni Association. Bubnas also said that a scholarship for graduate students in home economics was established in Fults-Khauab’s name when she retired in 1983.

Fults-Khauab came to SIU-C in the fall of 1952 as a professor of home economics and in 1957 was promoted to chairwoman of the Department of Home Economics Education.

During her career, Fults-Khauab served on several state and national committees on home economics education. She was a member and former president of the American Association of University Women.

She helped other nations develop and improve their home economics education programs, working with various international students at SIU-C and directly with the Nepalese government.

“She brought a lot of international students here,” Bubnas said, noting Fults-Khauab’s 1963 sabbatical leave abroad to visit former students in Japan, the Philippines, Greece, Hong Kong, Thailand, India, Lebanon and Egypt.

While touring Egypt, she met and married Ibrahim (Abi) Khauab, who preceded her in death.

Fults-Khauab was born on Christmas Eve, 1913, in Tracy City, Tenn.

She earned her bachelor’s degree from the University of Tennessee in 1937, a master’s from Cornell University in 1941 and a Ph. D. from Ohio State University in 1946.

She headed the home economics departments at Arkansas State Teachers College.

Freedom of information expert to speak on laws

By Jeranne Kimmel

Bill Miller, director of the public affairs reporting program at Sangamon State University in Springfield, will speak on Freedom of Information laws Wednesday.

Miller has actively promoted freedom of information throughout his career. He had helped draft the first: Open Meetings Act in 1957 and has worked for bills in the General Assembly to strengthen freedom of information.

Miller serves on the Illinois House Speaker’s Task Force on Open Access to Government. The special task force is charged with revamping both the Open Meetings and Freedom of Information laws, Miller said.

“We’re trying to strengthen them and eliminate some of the onerous exemptions,” Miller said.

His topic, “Freedom of Information—Where We Stand” will cover changes that he said he believes are needed in the laws. Miller will speak at 4 p.m. in Lawson 231.

Miller was named “Illinoisian of the Year” in 1989 by the Illinois News Broadcasters Association for his work in freedom of information and journalism education.

While at SIU-C, Miller will also recruit students for the public graduate affairs reporting program. The one-year master’s degree program at SIU includes an intensive six month internship with newspapers, wire and audio services, radio and TV stations, and magazines covering the Illinois General Assembly and state government.

Miller said he is looking for “good writers with a good academic record who are interested in news, government and politics, and who are motivated to be journalists.”

Students who are interested in the PAR program can meet with Miller in the Radio-TV Department Wednesday from 1 to 2 p.m. and in the Press Club room.

Nicaraguan vote influenced by war, economic instability

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

Nicaraguan voted against economic instability and civil war in their recent election. In reference to the defeat of Daniel Ortega that toppled the Sandinistas regime, South African prisoners on Robben Island said.

The economic hardship they (the U.S.) put on them plus the damage of the civil war, which was half backed, forced the Nicaraguan voter to cry uncle,” Bill Garner, associate professor of political science.

Reagan and Bush wanted the Nicaraguan government to cry uncle, Garner said, so they applied as much pressure as it took and finally the people have given in. However, it cost the United States hundreds of millions of dollars to get, he found.

U.S.-backed presidential candidate Vicente Rosales and his National Opposition Party (known by the Spanish acronym UNO) came away with a strong victory in Sunday’s elections.

The 14-party coalition that comprised the pro-communist and right-wing opposition to Marxist regimes in the region, Nicaragua, had invaded Nicaragua, Garner said.

In the end, Rosales did not believe the United States would have invaded Nicaragua if the Sandinistas won, Bush would have invaded, Garner said.

There is no one that the Sandinistas would have invaded Nicaragua if the Sandinistas won, Bush would have invaded, Garner said.

Although the Peace Corps has a need for many skills, some skills are needed more than others. Where people are sent is based on the where their skills are needed, Rypkema said.

Rypkema said 45 to 50 percent of Peace Corps volunteers go to Africa, about 25 percent will go to Latin America and the Caribbean, about 20 to 25 percent are needed for Asia and the Pacific and less than 5 percent are needed in Eastern Europe.

The Peace Corps has a real need for people in agriculture, animal husbandry, forestry, and education.

Persons skilled in education are also needed, Rypkema said. The subjects in education include English, science, math, special education, vocational and adult education.

Skilled trades such as construction, carpentry, auto mechanics and electricians are also needed, Rypkema said. There is a limited need for people with business skills such as small business management.

The Peace Corps is also looking for people to work in the Peace Corps’ field office in Wooden Hall, he said.

People who join the Peace Corps come from all over the country, a living allowance paid in local currency, a vacation allowance, health insurance and medical supplies if needed.

In addition, upon return to the United States, Peace Corps volunteers are entitled to $200 for each month of service.

Nicaraguan vote influenced by war, economic instability

Eastern European countries are now among about 65 countries volunteers can serve in for the Peace Corps. Peace Corps recruiters were on campus today and Wednesday.

"We’re recruiting for all of our 65 countries," Rypkema said, an SIU-C graduate who spent two and a half years in the Philippines with the Peace Corps, said.

Rypkema will be among the newly recruited.

60 people will be sent to both Poland and Hungary. Persons with experience, going English as a second language are needed for those countries, Rypkema said.

Men's tennis avenges loss to Murray St.

By Eric Bigger
Staff Writer

Success is the best revenge. At least it was for the Salukis men's tennis team as it beat Murray State 3-2 Friday after losing to the Racers last year 6-3 at the Southwest Missouri State Quadragular.

The Salukis, after falling to Northern Illinois last weekend, have their sights set on winning the MVC regular season title to clinch a trip to the NCAA tournament.

Senior Mike Rikard, a singles player, has been pivotal in the team's success. He has won his last five matches and is currently ranked No. 1 player in the country.

Rikard's performance has inspired the rest of the team to perform at their best. The Salukis have won their last three matches, including a doubles win over Murray State.

The Salukis are currently in second place in the MVC, trailing only the University of Missouri-Kansas City. A win this weekend against Wichita State could give them the edge they need to claim the regular season title.

The MVC regular season championship is important because it determines who will represent the MVC in the NCAA tournament. The Salukis are aiming to win it to ensure their spot in the NCAA tournament.

In summary, the Salukis are determined to make amends for their loss to Murray State last year. They have a strong team and are focused on winning the MVC regular season title to secure their place in the NCAA tournament.
Women Salukis have chance to host Gateway tournament

By Greg Scott

It was sweet revenge for the Saluki women's basketball team. Saturday's 69-54 victory over Southwest Missouri State on senior day kept the Salukis in the thick of the Gateway Conference race.

The Salukis outscored the Bears on both ends of the court. They outscored the Bears 18-9 in the first half and 31-21 in the second. The Salukis scored 38 points in the paint compared to 23 for the Bears.

The Salukis are now 11-9 overall and 3-2 in the Gateway Conference. They are currently tied with 3rd place Bradley for first place in the Gateway.

The Salukis will host the Gateway Conference tournament this weekend. They have already defeated the Southwest Missouri State Bears twice this season. However, the Bears have won their last three conference games.

But Southwest is without its leading scorer, Amy Rakers, who scored a game high 18 points and had one assist. Rakers was held to just four points.
