Readjusting: Fire victims begin road to recovery

By Sean J. Walker
DE Campus Life Editor

Marcy Price lies in bed with her eyes open and hears a thump, thump, thump coming from the other side of the wall next to her bed.

She bounds out of the bed and runs to the door only to find a person leisurely marching up the stairs to her apartment. Price turns around and returns to bed, but still cannot shut her eyes and go to sleep.

Price is a victim of the Feb. 20 Garden Park Apartment fire, 607 E. Park St., and she is having trouble adjusting to everyday life since the disaster a week ago.

"I am still really upset," she said. "In my new apartment, I can't sleep.

"There are new noises and every time things get too loud, I think there may be another fire, so I jump up and run out the door."

This is not an uncommon response after a person goes through a disaster or tragedy, said Janet Coffman, director of the SIUC Counseling Center on the third floor of Woody Hall wing A.

"Whenever there is trauma, students will have definite psychological and emotional reactions," she said. "The initial trauma is over and from now through the next six weeks, students will experience periods of sleeplessness and maybe nightmares.

Mardi Gras

By Kristi Dehority
Daily Egyptian Reporter

NEW ORLEANS — It's one of the biggest street parties in existence; everyone is obsessed with beads, the streets are littered with beer cans and cups, the air has a constant stench of old beer, and it could possibly be one of the best times of a person's life — it's Mardi Gras.

Today, Mardi Gras will come to an end with Fat Tuesday. But this weekend, SIUC students took the nine-hour journey to New Orleans to experience the craziness for themselves.

Joanna Melone, an undecided sophomore from Dolton, said she went to get the Mardi Gras experience.

"I went because I heard a lot of stories about how crazy it was," Melone said. "You have to experience the madness for yourself at least once."

Carlos Reyna, a senior in administration of justice from Lyons, said Mardi Gras was one of those college things he had to do.

"P-A-R-T-Y! Why? Because I had to," Reyna said.

At the Gras, people will do anything for a nice set of beads.

Denise Cassel, a junior in early childhood from Champaign, said she started getting beads after all of her friends had them.

"At first, I didn't care if I had any," Cassel said. "But once everyone else started getting beads, I wanted them."

Reyna said beads became valuable.

"Beads are better than money," Reyna said.

For both sexes, the way to get the best beads is to flash and show some skin.

Some girls would sit on guys' shoulders and flash, not limiting the guys from fondling their breasts, and guys were quick to drop their drawers and show their genitals at a moment's notice. Kissing and doing other deeds ranked high among the

35 acres charred in Crab Orchard blaze

By Rob Neff
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Thirtyfive acres of ground cover near Grassy Point on the Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge went up in smoke in a fire of unnatural origin Monday night, according to U.S.

Fish and Wildlife Service Wildlife Biologist John Mabery.

Mabery said no recreational facilities or endangered species' habitats were damaged in the fire and no injuries were reported.

"There was some temporary loss of ground cover, but the loss is fairly insignificant," he said. "We are sure it was man-caused, but we do not know whether it was arson or accidental and we probably never will."

Mabery said while it may be difficult to understand why someone would start a fire on the refuge, arson in uninhabited areas does happen.

"We do have intentional fires," he said. "I guess they see a wide-open area and figure they can get away with it. I don't know why they do it.

Students experience library heat wave

By Jason E. Coyne
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The heat is on. At Morris Library excessive heat is the hot topic, especially on the first floor.

"I'm sweating my brains out — the combined stress level of 18 credit hours and this unbearable heat is making it difficult for me to study here," said Jerome Connelly, a senior in technical resource management.

Other students working on the first floor of the library expressed similar views.

"It's hot all over this place, isn't it? It needs to be cold so you can stay

RUSSIAN LEADERS PLAN REBELLION SUPPRESSION — MOSCOW—Russia's beleaguered leaders are pursuing a two-track strategy aimed at staving the separatist rebellion in the breakaway republic. On one track, the Russian military is delivering fresh assaults on Chechen resistance positions in southern Grozny and in towns to the east, south and southwest of the now-devastated capital. On the other track, the Russians and their Chechen allies have launched a political and public-relations campaign to isolate the rebellion leader, Chechen President Dzhokhar Dudayev, and persuade the local population of the inevitability of the rebels' defeat.

BANK'S END COMPOUNDS DERIVATIVE PROBLEMS — TOKYO—With the demise of Britain's venerable Barings investment bank, the problem of managing the complex financial products known as derivatives has suddenly gone global. A 28-year-old trader in Singapore loses more than a billion dollars in speculative trading in Japanese stock-index futures — wrecking a 230-year-old company and triggering a plunge in worldwide stock prices. The Barings fiasco emerged in the international markets, where trading in so-called derivatives — futures, options and other such risky financial instruments whose value is "derived" from underlying securities — is growing by leaps and bounds.

CLINTON SIGNS FEDERAL CHILD SUPPORT ORDER — WASHINGTON—Saying he wants the government to be a model for private employers, President Clinton signed an executive order Monday to help force deadbeat parents in the federal workforce to pay the child support they owe. Under the order, federal agencies including the military must help enforce child support and paternity actions against their employees by assisting in the service of legal papers and by searching their personnel records for names of delinquent parents.

'CONTRACT WITH AMERICA' POINT DISAPPEARS — WASHINGTON—A key part of the Republican "Contract With America" disappeared recently. It was a part of the Citizen's Regulatory Bill of Rights that would require the government to alert people who might be the target of criminal or civil investigations that the feds were on their way. Deputy Attorney General Jamie S. Gorelick blasted the proposal earlier this month before House Judiciary subcommittee Chairman George W. Gekas. R-Pa. If made law, she said, undercover police work would be no more, since all targets would be warned and given time to destroy evidence or run for it.

BUSH'S RECORDS AGREEMENT DECLARED VOID — WASHINGTON—A federal judge Monday declared "null and void" an agreement signed in the last hours of the Bush administration giving the former president broad legal control of computerized records of his presidency. U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey ruled that the agreement between George Bush and then-Archivist Don W. Wilson on Jan. 19, 1993, circumvented the Presidential Records Act, which abolished presidential ownership of White House records and was passed after Watergate and the fight over former President Richard M. Nixon's documents and tapes.

8 await primary turnout

City Council primary:
Four will be selected
today for the April 4
general election.

By Shawna Donovan
DE Governmental Affairs Editor

The political fate of eight city council candidates rests in voters' hands with today's primary municipal election.

But as booths are set up and election judges start working, election officials are expecting a low voter turnout.

Irene Carlton, Jackson county clerk, said she has prepared for the low turnout.

"I cut down on my own staff to save funds," Carlton said. "But we still have the legal number of ballots and election judges."

Voting polls open at 6 a.m. and close at 7 p.m.

Carlton said of the eight candidates, the four who receive the most votes will be placed on the April 4 general election ballot.

Michael G. Neill, city council candidate, said he campaigned during the weekend.

"I did most of my work over the weekend," Neill said. "I have been making personal contacts and calls along with putting signs in yards."

Neill said he enjoyed talking with other city council candidates.

"I cannot gauge what will happen," Neill said. "But I liked what the other candidates talked about at the candidates' forum last week."

Incumbent Councilman Richard Morris said he has gone door-to-door campaigning in different neighborhoods.

"I'm not targeting any particular group," Morris said. "We are just trying to get out the vote."

Halloween task force approves party plan

By Stephanie Moletti
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Recommendations for putting an end to the Halloween street party have been approved and the final drafts will be submitted to SIUC President John Guyon and Mayor Neil Dillard Thursday.

Patrick Kelley, chairman of the Mayoral/Presidential Task Force on Halloween, said he received a majority written and oral approval of the final draft from members of the group Friday.

The recommendations of the task force include:

- Close the University for either a two to three day period or one week;
- Raise the bar entry age to 21, all year;
- Close the bars on the Strip and prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages by restaurants on the Strip during Halloween;
- Close city parking lots in the downtown area, including First National Bank;
- Enact an ordinance banning possession of beer kegs during Halloween;

■ Commit resources for effective publicity before and after Halloween stating that the party is over; and

■ Enforce sanctions of the Student Conduct Code for students engaging in criminal activity during Halloween.

Kelley, an SIUC law professor, said members made a few suggestions for changes in the wording of the report. He made the changes and circulated the report Monday. If there are no strong objections to the wording, the report will go on to the Mayor and President.

City Manager Jeff Doherty, a task force member, said he thought the final outcome of the task force is good, but corresponding actions will need to be taken.

"I think the task force process was good — it allowed for representatives from different groups to have input on the Halloween problems," he said. "The task force agreed as a whole that some things have been effective and some haven't and the idea of enacting a combination of the

Simulation gives students governing experience

By Amanda Estabrook
Daily Egyptian Reporter

SIUC students won four awards and one executive office for next year at the Model Illinois government simulation that took place in Springfield this weekend.

The four awards went to Angel Longshore, for outstanding contribution to MIG; Jenny Rubin, as best attorney; Don Rehmer, for outstanding lobbyist; and Robert Ludwig, best Senate committee member.

SIUC student Jason Svanda was selected to serve as state treasurer in next year's simulation. A John A. Logan students James Longshore, governor, and Jason Fulks, secretary of state, were elected for next year.

Barbara Brown, faculty advisor, said about 225 students from 20 campuses in Illinois compete in the simulation.

She also said state Comptroller Loleta Didrickson spoke to the students about the values of public service.

She said Didrickson also spoke about current issues such as the state government providing services to people.

State Rep. Mike Bost also spoke at the simulation.

The four-day simulation took place in at the state capitol where students used both House and Senate chambers as well as courtyards for moot court.

SIUC student Angel Longshore won the Perry Award, the highest award given at MIG, for her work as governor.

"It was a lot of stress, but it was also a lot of fun," she said. "Receiving the award really surprised me. I wasn't expecting it."

Longshore also said this was her fourth year in the MIG competition. James Longshore said he is looking forward to a good year.

"Some valuable lessons were learned this year and some small changes need to be made, but other than that things ran pretty smooth," he said. Longshore suggested changing the way the individuals were selected to receive awards, a disciplinary action code that would outline procedures for discipline and getting bills out earlier.

Rehmer, as a first year SIUC delegate, said being a lobbyist gave him the freedom to go into both chambers.

"I was always running back and forth between chambers and I guess I ran the fastest."

He said he spent his first two years in the competition as the delegation from Kankakee Community College. He said he was the only delegate from that college.

Carbondale. Election judges watch over polling places by giving voters ballots and making sure voters are registered.

SIUC student Robert Ludwig, an election judge for Carbondale District 26, said he is ready for the election.

Ludwig, who also is a Republican precinct committee man, said after the primary he is planning on registering more people to vote.

"Starting March 2, we will have a massive voter registration drive until March 6," Ludwig said.

Higher-ed funding needs priority status

PRIORITIES ARE IMPORTANT THINGS TO SET and adhere to in our personal lives and in society to ensure that we all achieve as close to our best accomplishments as possible. One of the key priorities of our nation since it was established has been education. This priority must remain intact if we are to keep up intellectually with others locally, nationally and internationally.

For many years, the priority of funding public higher education in Illinois has seemingly been slipping, however. The state must do whatever it takes to bring higher education back to the top of its priority list.

THE FACULTY SENATE LEADERS OF ILLINOIS, a group of top officials from faculty senates of Illinois public universities, has called upon the state to realize and act upon the slipping priority.

The group has reported that the decline of funds for public universities has forced these institutions to increase tuitions. This increase in the cost of undergraduate, graduate and professional academic programs is making it more difficult for students to afford a college education.

THE CONCERNS OF THIS GROUP AND OTHER groups representing students and faculty are soundly justified. Since 1970, the amount of the state budget that is allocated to public universities has dropped by 6.3 percent, according to allocation records compiled by the Faculty Senate Leaders. This decline in funding was approved by the state legislature over a 25-year period despite an increase in students who attend public universities from 328,067 to 490,900. As a result of these factors, average Illinois tuition has risen by 809 percent since 1970. Average disposable income has increased by only 427 percent within the same time period.

The Illinois Board of Higher Education has also reported that the burden of funding a college degree has been shifting from state allocations to the shoulders of students and their parents. Since the students are the ones receiving a service in higher education, it could be argued that they should shoulder more of the funding burden. There is more to be considered, however. If a state has a large number of educated citizens, it will have more intellectual resources. In addition, for this nation to compete with economic and intellectual giants that exist in Europe and Asia, it is going to have to begin spending more money at the state level for higher education.

IN THE SHORT RUN, THIS PROBABLY WOULD require the Illinois legislature to do some reorganizing and reallocation of their budget. This could be a healthy audit for the state government, however, serving as a way to re-evaluate its spending priorities. Perhaps during this audit, the state would also find other funding areas that could be downsized or eliminated.

Also, an increase of funds for higher education would be an investment in producing competitive workers and specialists that can put back into society what they have taken out — and possibly more. This could save money for the state and the country in the long run.

ILLINOIS FACULTY SENATE LEADERS ARE asking the Legislature and the governor to approve IBHE recommendations for the next public university fiscal budget. This budget calls upon the state government to keep higher-education budgets at current levels so there is no decrease in the present quality of higher education.

This plea does not go far enough, however. The state needs to re-evaluate its budget and its priorities and increase what it allocates to public universities.

Administrative salaries too high

I would like to take a few minutes and discuss something I know nothing about — finances. President Guyon's (140,000 salary per year) approval of a salary "wage cap" recently, through a little probing, seems to be nothing more than a public-relations stunt.

Southern Illinois has, on average, one of the lowest wage compensation systems for students in this state, and with legislation in progress to cut funding to many established programs, progress seems bleak.

Even with a national minimum-wage increase being proposed, internal programs will again have to suffer cutbacks as the administration greets (about) how there is no alternative, while pulling in six-figure salaries per year.

This University pays over $1 million a year to people who no longer even work here.

And they are worried about coming up with $8,000 for the Student Center wages — which, by the way, is partially student funded on the average of about $30 per student.

If you do the math, this comes out to a little over $130,000 of what they are currently spending on student wages.

I realize that there are other factors involved, and I am wondering — more than complaining — why it is that it takes almost 300 students per year just to fund the top five guys' yearly wage (300 times the full-time tuition), and we worry about finding a few thousand dollars that 95 percent of student workers will never see.

I'm very lucky to work with great people at two great jobs on campus, so I am not saying efforts are unappreciated; I'm just questioning what the ulterior motive is.

Finding ways to implement conservation of diminishing funding already existing would be of much better value when compared to increasing presidential public image.

Negotiations may succeed at solving Ulster crisis; both sides sick of killing

Washington Post

British Prime Minister John Major and his Irish counterpart, John Bruton, took an important first step last week in opening negotiations for the permanent resolution of the Ulster crisis. The leaders released a framework for talks that offers a set of opening suggestions they hope will lead to permanent reconciliation.

As usual, the Rev. Ian Paisley and his colleagues were not impressed. Blasting the agreement as a conspiracy to force Ulster Protestants into union with the Irish Republic, the 68-year-old hard-liner seeks to block talks before they begin.

But other, younger men who might have stood with him in years past were more responsive. One leader of a Protestant paramilitary group rejected the Paisley position and announced that he is tired after 25 years of killing and is ready to talk.

That sentiment was echoed by a Protestant member of the senate of Northern Ireland whose own daughter was killed by an IRA bomb. If that view is widespread, there is reason for hope.

The framework announced is simply the opening move in what may be a protracted series of negotiations.

Devised over 18 months of consultations between the British and Irish governments, the document suggests steps that could be taken to heal divisions in the province.

The British, for example, want to create a new legislative assembly in Northern Ireland, with voting procedures that will protect the Catholic minority.

The Irish government will support changes in that country's constitution that would revoke legal and political claims to the counties in the North.

Both governments suggest the creation of a cross-border authority composed of elected legislators from Ulster and the Republic, which would work together on matters of common interest such as tourism, economic development and environmental regulation.

"These are our ideas," Major stressed, "but the future is up to (the people of Northern Ireland)."

That last assurance is critical. No steps will be taken without the consent of the governed. There will be parliamentary debates ahead, counterproposals, compromise and eventually referendums. But there is no rush so long as the cease-fire holds, as it now has for many months. Peace has given a whole generation of combatants an idea of what life should be like. Young people who until last September never experienced a day free of fear that some indiscriminate killer or hidden bomb would destroy them don't want to see the old ways return. Neither do most of their elders who have borne the full brunt of the violence.

The fire started north of Grassy Point Road, west of the peninsula known as Grassy Point and spread northward toward Crab Orchard Lake.

Mabery said the agricultural land and goose-hunting blinds located on Grassy Point were unaffected by the blaze.

Norm Ruth, Fire Chief of the Lake Egypt Fire Protection District said it took forty firefighters and fifteen fire vehicles more than four hours to put the ground fire out.

"We were notified a little after 9 p.m. and the last truck didn't leave until about two in the morning," he said. "The majority of the trees are still intact. I'd say about half a dozen of them burned."

Volunteer Firefighter Brent Ibita, a junior in pre-med from Chicago, helped battle the blaze by stomping it out with a flapper, a device resembling a huge rubber fly swatter with a six-foot handle.

"The fire just crawled along in a line," he said. "The way you fight it is you just heat the fire out in a line."

This was Ibita's first brush fire. He said he was impressed by the amount of light put off by the fire.

"We were working by the light of the fire," he said. "It was pitch black that night. As soon as we put the fire out, all the lights went out."

sible for temperature adjustment and regulation.

"The physical plant is in charge of heat distribution to most buildings, and they have cut back on the heat being pumped in here," Kilpatrick said.

The library is aware of the problem, and it is not being ignored, he said.

Morris was built with very few windows and doors that can be opened, so that is not an option in cooling the building down, he said.

He noted the hottest area was the reserve library, where seven fans circulated the air Monday afternoon. Nine of 12 staff members said the library was too hot.

Kilpatrick said heat-generating lights, computers and other machines add heat to the air, and the tall book shelves block air circulation.

He also said the library has two air-conditioning/heating systems that often work against one another.

Superintendent of building maintenance Harrel Lerch and Max Waldron, administrative aide, both of the physical plant, were unavailable for comment on Monday.

those students with emotional and psychological trauma due to the fire to let them know that these symptoms are normal, and other people are feeling the effects as well."

"The ability to normalize the symptoms, like sleeplessness and nightmares, according to Coffman, can be lessened by "simply talking through the experience with a person who acts as a listening post or sounding board."

Price, an undecided sophomore from Trenton, said she might have to get some help.

"I am not having any nightmares right now, but when I sleep I don't remember any of my dreams," Price said. "I usually remember something about my dreams, and I think it is just because I don't sleep at all or I don't sleep long enough to have dreams."

"It seems like I never sleep at all."

Talking a problem out is a great way for disaster victims to get over the pain, said Coffman, and it is even better when they can talk to someone who has been through the same kind of experience.

"These displaced students of the fire have had to go through the same problems throughout this entire ordeal," Coffman said. "They have had to answer media questions about the horrible night, find new places to live, buy new clothes, try to replace the lost memories, and basically rebuild their lives."

"Most, if not all, of the victims have encountered the same hardships and problems that went along with the rebuilding process, so sitting down and hashing out the problems with a counselor is good, but doing it with another victim is better."

Coffman said she and other counselors are available to talk anytime at the counseling center.

The ordeal continues to haunt the victims.

"People are not getting over this very easily, and even last night my roommate just broke down out of nowhere and cried," Price said.

selections, as long as one had the beads to do the trade.

Cassel said, "The funniest thing I saw was some girl flashing and doing jumping jacks at the same time."

Melone said the Gras was pretty intense, and things started getting crazier after dark.

Some signs included religious people praying for the parterers' souls, transvestites, a little police brutality and a lot of people on major drugs.

Thousands of people lined the streets to get a peak at whatever they could, while chanting in unison, "Show your (chest)," to every girl on the street.

At some points throughout the day, one could hear SIU chants echoing from inside the bars.

Fraternity songs and the famous "S-I-U" were chanted frequently.

"It was as wild as the stories I've heard," Melone said. "People started being more violent at night after everyone had been drinking all day."

Whatever the choice of entertainment, the overall sentiment was that the Gras was a good time.

Joe Robinson, a senior in administration of justice from Berwyn said the Gras was the best time he has had at college.

"I've been on three spring breaks. I was at the Gras for two days, and it was better than all three," Robinson said.

"It was crazy!" Melone said the Gras offers a fun-filled week.

"If you think about it, the Gras goes on for a week," Melone said. "And in that week, you can be as stupid as you can possibly be and still get away with it."

Charlie Niehaus, a senior in public relations from South Elgin, said a person can't tell any of his or her stories.

"What happens at the Gras, stays at the Gras!" he said.

White House admits 'slip'

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON—The White House said Monday that Henry W. Foster Jr. "misspoke" when he declared over the weekend that his nomination as surgeon general was under attack by "white right-wing extremists."

White House spokesman Mike McCurry said the Tennessee physician had not intended to include the word "white" when he spoke to his church in Nashville. "It was a slip of the tongue," McCurry said.

Foster asked the First Baptist Church Capitol Hill congregation for its prayers and help "to fight the latest attack from the white right-wing extremists that are using my nomination to achieve their radical goals."

recommendations over a long period of time, will be more effective." Doherty said the report will not be on the March 8 City Council meeting agenda.

"We need to sit down with President Guyon and see what their time table is and try to coordinate it with the city's," he said.

The task force was appointed in November and began meeting in December to discuss what should be done about Halloween. Guyon said he will study the report and hopes to meet with Dillard soon.

"There will be additional discussion within the University," Guyon said. He said he hopes to take action on the report within the next two months.

Dillard said he hopes to review the recommendations with Guyon and other University officials next week. City Council members will also receive a copy to review, he said.

He said he hopes the council will take action on the recommendations before school is out in May, preferably by the end of April.

Carin Musak, vice president of the Undergraduate Student Government and a member of the task force, said her attitudes about Halloween completely changed after joining the task force.

"As a student representative, I went in thinking we could make this work and make it a safe, fun party," Musak said. "But after reading the history, I knew that it was impossible and beyond help."

Musak said although she is not satisfied with everything in the report, she is pleased with the fact that Halloween is coming to an end.

The final report consists of three parts. The first section identifies the problems of the Halloween street party in Carbondale. The second section looks at alternative solutions to the problems. The final section explains the specific recommendations of the task force to eliminate the party completely.

The task force agreed in the report that the party continues to harm students, the University and the city by fueling SIUC's party school image.

The Karamazov Brothers are a world famous comedy/theater/juggling troupe that are currently touring the country with their new show, "Club Sandwich."

"Club Sandwich," which is written and performed by the Karamazovs, is a story which begins with a murder in Club Sandwich (a social establishment for wealthy jugglers).

The Karamazovs play a pantheon of characters as the story follows the adventures of three-millionaires, their butler, a detective, an exotic woman, a fat man in a fez and his pop-eyed cohort as they try to discover the murderer. They find both halves of an ancient Egyptian map which will lead to the legendary Clubs of the Pharaohs (juggling clubs with magical properties).

Woven into the show is the ultimate in audience participation — "The Gamble." In The Gamble, the audience is invited to bring impossible objects for the troupe's champ Ivan to juggle. The objects must be heavier than an ounce, lighter than ten pounds and no bigger than a bread box. The champ gets three tries to juggle the objects to the count of 10. If he succeeds, the Brothers win a standing ovation; if he fails, he gets a pie in the face.

"Howard usually experiences 'The Gamble,'" he said. "Audiences read about the articles and then plan ahead and bring anything that ranges from pizzas, a pigs stomach stuffed with Jell-O, blocks of ice and a cow's tongue.

The Karamazov Brothers will perform tonight at 8 p.m. at Stryker Auditorium. Tickets are $14.50 or $12.50 depending on the type of seat and will be available at the Student Center Ticket Office and at the box office in Stryker.

Strike not affecting Sarasota

Newsday

SARASOTA, Fla.—The route to Ed Smith Stadium is dotted with distractions. There is the Ringling Museum of Art, the Mote Aquarium, a greyhound track and, of course, the glistening, white-sand beaches that stretch the length of Florida's Gulf Coast.

So, if you're looking for a major decline in tourism because of the baseball strike, you've come to the wrong place.

"There has been only a minuscule negative impact on tourism in the Sarasota area," said Larry Marthaler, executive director of the Sarasota Convention and Visitors Bureau, "because there are so many other reasons to spend your winter vacation here."

That opinion may not be shared by every Florida community—many of which depend far more heavily on spring training to generate tourist revenue—but it leaves room to wonder if the "regional economic crisis" the baseball strike supposedly has caused in Florida and Arizona is more of a political creation than a serious problem.

Don't misunderstand. The labor dispute will have a significant impact on a number of communities, especially those that have built expensive spring training complexes on the premise that March revenues will help pay for them. There also will be a negative trickle-down effect on local charities that benefit from concession and parking tickets.

Exhibition crowds figure to be smaller if Major League Baseball goes through with its plan to play the Grapefruit and Cactus league schedules with replacement players and minor-league talent, but the overall impact on Florida tourism apparently has been exaggerated by opportunistic politicians and strike-weary baseball fans.

Marthaler cites a study done in 1987 by the Florida Department of Commerce that showed spring training is largely a peripheral Florida tourist attraction. The study indicated that about 8,000 tourists a year come to Florida exclusively for the purpose of seeing a spring training game. That's a small percentage of the visitors who come south.

Sarasota isn't hurting. Neither is Tampa/St. Petersburg, an area so large that 30 exhibition dates at All Lang Stadium (capacity 7,227) isn't going to make a blip on the economic radar screen. The combined ticket revenues generated by the Orioles and Cardinals would total about $1 million in a normal exhibition season.

Carr led the way for SIUC with 25 points, while senior swingman Marcus Timmons poured in 20 points and grabbed 10 rebounds.

But what may have been the key to the game was the performance of senior guard Paul Lusk, who has scored 36 points in SIUC's last two games after struggling offensively throughout most of the Valley season.

"I don't think there's any doubt about it," Herrin said of Lusk's improved play. "I probably played him too much (35 minutes) tonight (Monday), but I think he's alright and beginning to come back."

Herrin said chalking up his fourth-straight 20 win season was one of the more difficult tasks in his 10 years at SIUC due to the strength of this season's schedule.

"Well, we sure wanted to (win 20), that's for sure," Herrin said. "I guess you always think that because I'm a very confident person. It's nice to win 20 and I felt like we could all along."

difference in the match.

"I knew I was going to win all along because my play was more consistent. I just had to hang in there and wait for the right balls."

Jack Oxler, a freshman with the Saluki squad, did not have a tough time with his competition in flight five.

"The win against Austin got me in a good mood for Mardi Gras weekend," he said.

The Salukis swing back into action against St. Louis University on March 4. The Dawgs host the Billikens at the University Courts at 1 p.m.

Merchant has never played the Billikens in the four years he has been with the squad.

"Usually after the first half hour of doubles play, we will be able to tell the standard of competition we are up against," Merchant said. "It should be a close match, but SIUC should win it at home."

McCall.

And now who owns the WBO title? The WBO thing is the newly created heavyweight title that somehow fell into the hands of Foreman, and is now owned by somebody named Herbie Hide.

Herbie Hide? How did this fellow get into the picture? Simple. He licked Tommy Morrison, and Morrison is the fellow who once licked Foreman, who was then claiming the WBO title. Thus, Foreman was without a title until the fortuitous Moorer affair.

At this point the odd man out is the unreliable Bowe, who blew his titles in a return match with the unreliable Holyfield. But Bowe's manager, Rock Newman, sees a title chance when his man fights Hide March 11 in Las Vegas. That the WBO thing is the least of the titles and somewhat scoffed at in boxing company will not deter the shrill Newman from calling from the mountain tops if his man Bowe beats Hide—as he undoubtedly will.

All of which will be irrelevant the moment Mike Tyson decides to step into the ring again. Who will he fight? Foreman, Bowe, McCall, whoever? They all want a piece of the zillion bucks a Tyson fight will command. But nothing in their resumes says any of them will be around for long after that night's referee tells Tyson and the other guy to come out fighting. None belongs in the same ring with him. With either fist, Tyson will pick up all the titles that are out there. You can bet on it.

However, pitching will be the main focus for the Salukis this week as the Dawgs prepare for the Saluki/Best Inn Classic this weekend.

Callahan said the problems with pitching against Mississippi St. were mental ones.

"We really didn't have pitching mechanic problems, I think it was just a lack of confidence," he said. "We allowed too many walks and had too many 2-0 base hits."

The Salukis next opponent is Ball State. The first pitch is scheduled for 11 a.m. Friday at Abe Martin Field.

Dawgs: Next stop St. Louis

Salukis end season with 86-73 win at Creighton

By Grant Deady
DE Sports Editor

SIUC cleared the final bump on its road to St. Louis Monday night with an 86-73 win at Creighton.

With the victory, the Dawgs locked up a second place finish in the Missouri Valley Conference and a third seed in the league tournament, which begins Saturday at the brand new Kiel Center in St. Louis.

SIUC (20-8) and Illinois State finished with identical 13-5 Valley marks, but the Redbirds get the tournament's second seed as a result its two-game season sweep over the Dawgs.

Drake is slated to be SIUC's first round opponent Saturday night, while ISU faces off with Southwest Missouri State. Other first round match-ups include fourth seeded Bradley taking on five seed Evansville and No. 1 seeded Tulsa playing eight seed Wichita State.

Saluki coach Rich Herrin said his troops will have to be ready to handle a Drake team that has played solid basketball down the stretch.

"Drake has played very good and got the sixth seed over Southwest because they beat Tulsa at Tulsa," he said. "It's just a matter of getting ready to play basketball now. We've got to be tough mentally and start right now."

Creighton didn't make the Dawgs 20th win of the season an easy one despite the Blue Jay's dismal 7-19 overall record. CU and the Dawgs were deadlocked at 39 heading into the halftime locker room before SIUC used an offensive burst midway through the second half to put the Jays away for good.

SIUC baseball off to slow start

By Doug Durso
Daily Egyptian Reporter

It really wasn't fair. The SIUC baseball team had to travel to Oxford, Miss. to play a Rebel team that was ranked 18th in the country and already had five games under its belt; the Salukis were opening their season.

The University of Mississippi showed why it's Top-20 ranking was deserved by beating the Dawgs 11-2 Saturday and completing the series sweep with an 8-0 victory Sunday.

Dan Callahan, first-year SIUC baseball coach, said it was a tough situation to be in.

"I would have liked to have played them with a couple of games under our belt, but we did get to play against great competition and now we know where we are.

"However, it was nice weather, a good stadium and it was just nice to get out and play."

The Salukis could only muster two runs and 11 hits, compared to Ole Miss' 19 runs and 26 hits.

In Sunday's game SIUC was shut out on four hits, while in Saturday's contest the Dawgs fell behind 4-0 after the first inning and could never get back in the game.

"Overall we did not play that well, but we did get to see nine pitchers," Callahan said. "Unfortunately only (Mike) McConnell really pitched well."

McConnell pitched four scoreless innings in the second game and went on to complete six innings, giving up three runs on nine hits.

"He pitched five strong innings, but hung a breaking ball in the sixth, which hurt, but he really pitched well overall.

"We got an inning out of Mike Blang and while you can't tell if he is back by one inning the signs are encouraging."

"The first game did not start well as Ole Miss jumped out to a 4-0 lead, which Callahan said took some of the emotion out of his team.

"Our kids were pumped up to play, but getting down 4-0 nothing in the first inning is hard to come back and that drained the team."

A couple of bright spots for the Salukis came from the top and bottom of the Saluki lineup.

Lead-off man Jason Smith went 3-for-7 with two doubles and accounted for SIUC's only run batted in. Saluki shortstop Craig Shelton went 3-for-6 including a double and a run scored.

"It's not a real good thing to have the one, eight and nine hit-

Men's netters get revenge at Austin Peay, streak at 2

By Cynthia Sheets
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The spring season has been nothing short of victorious for the SIUC men's tennis team.

With two road trips under its belt, the Salukis have notched wins against both Edwardsville and most recently, Austin Peay State.

With the final team result as a 5-2 win, four of the six SIUC team members won individual matches and two of the three doubles pairs garnered wins.

SIUC men's tennis coach Jeremy Rowan said Austin Peay was a tough match for his squad.

"They beat us last year with a score of 4-3," Rowan said. "This year, it was another very close match. In both the matches this year, we have beaten teams that we lost to last year.

"I was also very pleased with the results of the doubles matches. We struggled last year, but we have improved considerably."

Andre Goransson, who competed with partner Dan Jones in the doubles event, said Austin Peay is probably the best doubles competition in the Ohio Valley Conference.

"I think they might have lost one match last year," Goransson said. "Our score is not an accurate measure because we didn't play badly."

In individual flights, Goransson avenged a loss to Cristian Duma from last semester.

Altat Merchant, playing in flight two competition, is happy with his spot in the line-up.

"The guy I was playing against was a freshman," Merchant said. "He was playing really flashy and aggressive, but I think my experience made the

Boxing: 'unadulterated garbage'

No clear cut champion exists in list of 'jokers'

By Shirley Povich
Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Affairs among boxing's heavyweight division, if anybody cares, have now devolved from a mess to indescribable, unadulterated garbage. The heavyweight title has now been hacked into four parts. All gall has been surpassed. The heavyweight champion of your choice is available, which is not to say he won't get knocked stiff when Mike Tyson gets out of jail and suits up. This will happen some time after his release on March 25.

Take your pick of the jokers who hold the fragmented titles: George Foreman (WBA and IBF), Oliver McCall (WBC), and somebody named Herbie Hide holding a newly invented coronet (the WBO-World Boxing Organization—as distinguished from the World Boxing Association and World Boxing Council, plus the International Boxing Federation).

The unarguable fact is that there isn't a legitimate heavyweight champion among them. None in the faintest image of a Dempsey, a Louis, an Ali or a Tyson. They aren't champions, they are creations of promoters such as Don (Bad News) King, who attaches himself to a fighter and then wrangles a piece of the alphabet from friendly organization presidents such as Jose Sulaiman, who owns the WBC and awaits King's bidding.

George Foreman is a limp 46-year-old has-been who has re-created himself as a fighter after a shelf life of 10 years. His snake-oil comeback campaign had the cooperation of as willing a bunch of siffs as could be rounded up for that purpose. At his advanced age, and with the mobility of a mannequin monolith, Foreman lucked into his titles by licking one Michael Moorer, who had taken them from Evander Holyfield—a renowned in-and-out.

Foreman lucked into his titles because the idiot Moorer, who had won all of the first nine rounds, just stood there in the 10th in front of a badly beaten Foreman and caught a right to the chin. Until then, it had been so easy for Moorer to stay out of the limited range of Foreman, who was showing at his age all the agility of a rheumatic snail.

The WBC champion, as it happens, is Oliver McCall, of dim fame who is managed by King, who got his foot back in the door when McCall feasted on Lennox Lewis for a two-round workout. McCall proved that Lewis, as always suspected, could not fight much.

McCall's WBC title is the one Riddick Bowe trashed, literally, when he was WBC, WBA and IBF champion after beating Holyfield. Bowe consigned the WBC belt to Lewis with the haughty taunt of tossing it into a nearby garbage can from which Lewis retrieved it—thus claiming the WBC title for which he was, in turn, trashed so hastily by
