Coronation Highlights ROTC Ball

The Holiday in Blue will take on a formal air tonight when "An Aerospace Fantasy" launches the Military Ball.

Beginning at 9 p.m. in the University Center Ballroom, this will be the only formal dance of the year. Music will be provided until 12:30 by Charlie Wasserman and his Orchestra, from St. Louis.

One of six candidates will be named Military Ball Queen at 11 p.m. The Queen, chosen by vote of the ROTC cadets, will be crowned by the 1964 queen, Kathy Jones.

Men Outnumber Coeds by 2 to 1

Men outnumber women almost 2 to 1 on both the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses.

Enrollment statistics released by Robert A. McGrath, registrar, show there are 14,078 men and 6,766 women. This is about the same ratio that has held for several years.

Total enrollment for the campuses is 20,844, with 14,501 students at Carbondale and 6,343 students attending Edwardsville.

Wham Re-Elected to 12th Term As Trustee Board Chairman

HERBERT F. TROTTER JR., AND A GAS LASER.

To Keep Up

Continuing Study Necessary For Engineers, Speaker Says

Students planning to stop studying after graduation should not plan to enter the field of engineering, says Herbert F. Trotter Jr., chairman of the board of General Telephone and Electronics Laboratories, Inc.

Trotter, speaking at a conference on communications Friday at the University Center, said that in engineering one has to study continually to keep from being passed and buried by the dynamic field.

Trotter also said large companies today want students with broad background studies, because they adapt to various jobs easier than those trained in specifics.

During the meeting, Trotter demonstrated and explained the principle of the laser beam. The beam is a method by which sound waves can be transmitted by light.

In the future, the laser will replace sound transmitted by wire, and will be used to communicate across the vast reaches of outer space, he said.

Using a stereo without speakers attached, and laser equipment, Trotter transmitted music sound waves across the front of the room to a receiving unit hooked to a speaker system.

The music would play as long as the light beam was uninterrupted, but when Trotter placed his hand in the front of the light, the sound would stop.

Vice Chairman, Secretary Also Named to New Terms

John Page Wham, Centralia attorney, has been elected to serve his 12th term as chairman of the SIU Board of Trustees.

Wham, son of the late George D. Wham, a professor of education at SIU, was first appointed to the board in 1949. Members of the board at their meeting Friday also re-elected their vice chairman and secretary to serve during 1965.

Kenneth L. Davis, Harrisburg businessman and former Saline County superintendent of schools, starts his fifth term as vice chairman. He also was first named to the university board in 1949.

Melvin Lockard, Mattoon banker, begins his 12th term as board secretary. He was appointed to the board in 1953.

Other members of the board are Dr. Martin V. Brown of Carbondale, Harold R. Fischer of Granite City, Arnold H. Muremont of Chicago, Lindell Sturgis of Metropolis and (ex officio) Ray Page, state superintendent of public instruction.

Sturgis will continue as board representative on the board of trustees, State Universities Retirement System; Dr. Brown on the Merit Board, University Civil Service System; and Lockard on the board of the Southern Illinois University Foundation.

Davis was named board delegate to the National Conference on Higher Education, to be held in Chicago March 7-10.

New Auditorium At Edwardsville To Seat 1,500

The first $540,000 accruing from student welfare and recreation fund fees paid by students will be used to provide a 1,500-seat auditorium at the Edwardsville campus.

SIU's board of trustees Friday approved a suggestion by President Delyte W. Morris that priority in use of the building fund be given to completing the interior of the ball room-auditorium at the University Center on the new campus. Other portions of the Center and the shell of the ball room are now under construction, with funds from the sale of revenue bonds. Morris said the largest

Mercury Drops to 6 Above; 1918 Record Was 2 Degrees

The temperature in Carbondale Friday dipped to near the record low for Jan. 29.

The low was six degrees at 7 a.m. Friday, the reading at the Carbondale sewage disposal plant indicated. The records of the SIU Climatology Laboratory show the record low for Jan. 29 was two degrees above zero, set in 1918.

The record high for the date was 70 degrees, set in 1917.

The all-time low temperature for Carbondale was 24 below zero on Jan. 13, 1912, Climatology Laboratory records show.

The cold wave that moved through the area covered a wide section of the nation.

In Illinois, the low readings included these: Rockford, 12 below zero; Chicago Midway, five below; Springfield and Quincy, four below; Belleville and Moline, three below; Peoria, zero; and Vandalia, one above.

Madison, Wis., had 21 below zero Friday, and South Bend, Ind., three below, the Associated Press reported.

Potpourri of Styles

Long Skirts, and Dressy Blouses Seem to Be Made for Military Ball

Ball gowns of all colors, shapes and sizes will be worn Saturday night to the Military Ball, which begins at 9 p.m. in the University Center Ballroom.

Spokesmen for Carbondale dress shops said the only definite trend in the Queen Candidates' preferences is towards a dress with a long skirt.

Cecile's Fashions at the Murdale shopping center reported that many girls had bought long black hostess skirts and dressy blouses. There was also a demand for white, floor-length gowns with an empire waistline. However, most all of the dresses sold have had either a straight skirt or a skirt with an "A" line.

Kay's Womens Wear reported to have sold mostly cocktail dresses with no definite color asked for.

The six candidates have described their ball gowns:

Arlette Alexander, sophomore, will wear a dress with a plain fitted bodice, scooped neckline and bell-shaped skirt. The skirt will be embellished with white brocade flowers and leaves outlined in gold and painted roses accented by white pearls.

Lace and satin will complement the white ball gown which Martha Edmison, sophomore, will wear. The lace-covered bodice has a scalloped neckline with a V shape in back. The bell-shaped skirt is of white satin.

Judy McDonald, junior, will wear a white, floor-length satin ball gown with a fitted skirt. The bodice is embellished with rhinestones and seed pearls. The gown is trimmed with lace over dark green satin.

A white satin, strapless, floor-length gown has been chosen by Pam Kidd, sophomore. The bodice has imitation pearls embossed on it and a satin bow compliments the waistline. The ball gown is bell shaped.

Sidney Ludwig, freshman, will be wearing a white brocade floor-length dress with folds at the waistline giving shape to the skirt. The bodice is fitted.

An empire waistline will accent freshman Velda Smith's full-length, white ball gown. The bodice is hand embroidered brocade with seed pearls and sequins and has a square neckline. The "A" line skirt has a full-length train.

The variety of gowns was shown further as two other students who plan to attend the ball gave a description of their gowns for this listing.

Barbara Nordstrom, a student from Scott Air Force Base, will wear a floor-length gown which she says is a cross between a royal and a peacock bell brocade. The skirt is bell shaped, and the bodice is set off by a scooped neckline.

Judy Boyd, of Jonesboro, will be wearing a floor-length, colonial styled, white strapless gown. The bodice is scalloped and embellished with sequins. The dress has a princess waistline, and the skirt is made up of layers of net over a white satin skirt.

British Lose One More Symbol of Greatness

Empire Scattered, Problems Mounting

Copley News Service

LONDON — A foreign visitor who considers himself a friend of this old country not only shares the sense of loss of Winston Churchill but also he feels a deep sympathy for the British people.

For with Churchill's death goes one more symbol of England's greatness.

She has had a tough time during recent years trying to hang on to her reputation. Churchill brought her her greatest victory in World War II. But ever since then her role as a world power has been steadily diminishing.

The empire over which she once proudly proclaimed that the sun never set is now in fragments. Even those former dominions and colonies which now form part of the British Commonwealth no longer look to Britain as their leader and protector.

Instead Britain turns with them and more to the United States for protection, much as it galls the independent-minded British to have to do so.

Once able to dictate her own destiny with deference to no one, she now finds herself caught between a junior partnership with the United States and a timorous relationship with the rest of Europe. How far her importance as a world trader—let alone anything else—has slipped was shown when France contemptuously denied her membership in the European Common Market.

Though Britain was the birthplace of the industrial revolution, her industrial power has diminished so much that she now lags far behind the United States and Russia.

The sterling crisis and the government's emergency 15 per cent tariff on imports heightened the already widespread criticism of outmoded methods in British industry, poor salesmanship and uncompetitive workmanship.

Britain's uncertainty over her future and doubts about which road to take were exemplified in the last general election. The Conservatives, trying desperately to preserve the fading image of British independence and greatness, lost by a narrow margin to the more sober Laborites.

Veltman, Hartford Times

Sanders, Kansas City Star

CHURCHILL LIVED HERE

Their confidence shattered, the Tories are now searching dubiously around for a new leader to replace the fragile, uninspiring figure of Sir Alec Douglas-Home.

For its part the Labor government is trying desperately to prove it can lead the country, if not to greatness in the old sense, at least along a path of state welfare and security—and protection by a richer, more powerful, foreign friend.

Grimly it is hanging on to its pathetically puny three-vote majority, while Prime Minister Harold Wilson puts on a bold face to parade in the tattered mantle of traditional British statesmanship.

Even in this he must pause to pay respects to the greatest of all British statesmen. The next on Wilson's busy list of summit meetings was to have been with West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard in Bonn. The weakening of Churchill's pulse was enough to postpone that meeting.

Another catastrophe which mocks this nation's reputation as the arbiter in world affairs is the resignation of Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker, because he failed to win a seat in the House of Commons. His successor is Michael Stewart, former Minister of Education and Science. Stewart is little-known to his own countrymen, not to mention foreigners.

The British today are deeply conscious of their falling prestige around the world. They read anti-British Gibes, which have become a fashion in much of the foreign press. They hear insults uttered by leaders in newly independent countries which owe much of their development to Britain. From the continent across the English Channel, which Britain shed her blood to defend, comes cool contempt mixed with half pity for a people who knew so much glory.

Said a typical Englishman: "Nobody could take that pride away from us. Winnie did not have to take an active part anymore. Just being around, hale and hearty as ever, smoking his fat cigars, occasionally beaming out on us and giving us the V-sign—that was enough. So long as he was alive it seemed England must remain great."

Truly, a bit more of England died when that great heart stopped beating.

Committee Showdown Next Week

Senate May Rebuff Nasser Despite Johnson Pressure

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House has voted to bar shipment of surplus food to Nasser's United Arab Republic. The administration, which views the action as usurpation of President Johnson's foreign policy prerogatives, is putting heat on the Senate to reverse the House.

To gauge the prospects The Associated Press polled the 27 members of the Senate Appropriations Committee. It found that only two of them are ready to say flatly they would support reversal of the ban.

On the other hand, only four committee members say they agree with what the House did and only three others say publicly they are "inclined" to.

Thus, the jury is still out, with a majority—15 of the 26 members reached, including Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana—refusing to disclose their positions at this point.

But the fact that the Johnson administration has mustered so little support thus far indicates it faces a tough, uphill battle in its efforts to have the Senate undo what the House has done—amend the agriculture appropriations bill to block shipment of $34 million worth of wheat, tobacco and vegetable oils to Cairo.

It is possible the administration may have to settle for half a loaf—reversal of the amendment with substitution by the Senate of a stern warning to UAR President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Some senators said privately they understand the State Department is working on non-binding language that would express "the sense of the Congress" that aid should be halted to Nasser or that would leave the President an "escape hatch" for continuing the shipments under certain specified conditions.

Nasser's fiery declaration last month that the UAR does not need America's money and "anyone who does not like our attitude can drink from the sea"—roughly this means "go to hell"—was a prime factor in Tuesday's 204-177 House vote. Another was longstanding disapproval among some members of Nasser's combative stance toward Israel.

The administration takes the view that the House is meddling in an area which is properly that of the executive branch—the conduct of foreign policy. But the absence of a condemnation of Nasser's speech by President Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk or other high administration officials apparently invoked in some members a feeling akin to "if they won't do it we will."

Next week, possibly Monday, Rusk goes before the Appropriations Committee to appeal for reversal of the House action.

The two senators who will say for the record they would support reversal of the House are A.S. Mike Monroney of Oklahoma and Gale W. McGee of Wyoming, both Democrats.

"Our handling of Nasser is a foreign policy matter over which the President and the secretary of state should have some discretion," Monroney asserted.

Agreeing, McGee said he thought it "unfortunate when we let our emotions regarding one man get away from us to the point we depart from a constructive policy of food for people.

"It is more important to feed hungry people than to spank Nasser."

The four members of the committee who say they favor the House amendment are A. Willis Robertson, D-Va.; Norris Cotton, R-N.H.;

Gordon Allott, R-Colo.; and Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb.

The three who say publicly what others say privately—that they are "inclined" to go along with the House—are Lister Hill, D-Ala.; Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.; and Clifford P. Case, R-N.J.

Said Case: "As a matter of policy, I think the time has come when we make it clear that the American people not only aren't going to be kicked around, but they are not going to be subject to blackmail."

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., said he would oppose "outright rejection" of the House amendment. That would be "tantamount to a vote of confidence in Nasser and a vote of approval for turning the other cheek to the Egyptian government and its policies," Mundt said.

Bayh Amendment Hearings Reveal Bipartisan Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — A chorus of bipartisan support arose Friday for swift congressional approval of a constitutional amendment to establish procedures for filling vice presidential vacancies and insuring continuity of presidential leadership.

Its volume far exceeded disents which included the expressed fear that the proposed presidential disability procedures might make possible a coup d'etat to unseat an unpopular president.

Foremost among favorable witnesses before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee were Nicholas Katzenbach, the newly designated attorney general; and Herbert Brownell, who filled that Cabinet post under President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Under examination in the public hearing was an amendment sponsored by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and 75 other senators. President Johnson in a special message Thursday endorsed the proposal and urged Congress "to act now without further delay."

Bayh, the subcommittee chairman, said after the close of the one-day hearing that his group will vote Monday on the amendment. Its ap-

Negro Protest

Halted by Court

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Negro leaders called off a mass demonstration Friday in response to state court orders and turned to other means to protest the killing of a Negro youth at the county jail.

The Negroes had wanted to march to the Hinds County courthouse to demand suspension of the five officers involved in the shooting of Ollie Shelby, 18. The demonstration was canceled on advice of attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Four state judges had banned the march on grounds it would interfere with the peace and dignity of the court and its proceedings. NAACP lawyers said a similar order had been upheld by the federal courts in 1963 and they urged the Negroes to comply.

To become effective, the amendment must be approved by two-thirds of the Senate and House and ratified by three-fourths of the state legislatures.

Judge Upholds Estes Indictment

DALLAS (AP) — Billie Sol Estes, whose towering financial empire crashed with his arrest three years ago, lost a bid Friday to have an indictment thrown out.

The effort to erase the indictment came during a pretrial hearing on charges that Estes, 40, lied to the government about the extent of his debts.

The case is before the court of U.S. Dist. Judge Sarah T. Hughes. Estes was brought to Dallas from El Paso Thursday.

Class Loses $100 In Market Flier

GREENCASTLE, Ind. (AP) — A year ago, Col. Henry Crown of Chicago staked a DePauw University economics class to $4,000 for a flier on the stock market.

Prof. Fred Silander reported today the investment had dropped to $3,898.32.

"And that's a lot of valuable experience for only a hundred bucks," he asserted.

"Considering the cost of doing business — we had $142 in brokerage fees — I think they are doing quite well."

Appalachia Bill Draws Complaints

WASHINGTON (AP) — Complaints were raised by some senators Friday that states which would benefit from the $1.9 billion Appalachian aid bill were well able to take care of themselves.

But Sens. Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va., and John S. Cooper, R-Ky., chief sponsors of the measure, said in the Senate debate that the region had peculiar problems which Washington must help meet.

Splendor Surrounds Churchill Funeral

LONDON (AP) — Britain and the world bid a final farewell today to Sir Winston Churchill with stirring professional pageantry, solemn salutes and brief ritual.

For the old warrior statesman it was the kind of funeral he wanted and at the public day's end he will be buried privately in a quiet country churchyard beside his parents — as he wanted.

The day of the great state funeral arrived with a bluster typical of Churchill at the height of his towering wartime leadership. But the harsh London weather did not deter those who wanted to pay him homage.

In chill and sleet they gathered near St. Paul's Cathedral before dawn to say their last goodbyes. Some stood grim and silent waiting through the long, cold hours for the funeral procession.

As the public started lining up for vantage points along the funeral route, two World War II generals — Dwight D. Eisenhower and Charles de Gaulle — paid a solemn, soldierly farewell to the bier of their old comrade in Westminster Hall on Friday night.

The two wartime leaders, both 74, each spent a few minutes of lonely silence near the Churchill catafalque as the procession of mourners filed through the vast, oak-beamed hall.

At midnight, nearly 300,000 persons had moved past the bier since 11 a.m. Wednesday when the lying in state began.

One government official who watched the long procession confided that Churchill had visited the Ministry of Works several years ago concerning his funeral.

"I want music and bands and I want lots of soldiers," Churchill told the official.

Ten bands and 7,000 soldiers stood ready to march in the procession.

Queen Elizabeth II ordered a state funeral for Churchill, which will rival any ever held in this ancient monarchy. Thursday night she showed the affection she felt for him by making a visit to the ancient hall where he lay in state, a rare gesture by a British monarch.

Implicit in it was her recognition of Churchill's magnificent feat in marshalling the strength of Britain in an effort which saved the nation.

She was the chief mourner at the funeral, with most of the royal family about her. From the decimated ranks of European royalty will come four kings, a queen and a

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH

Today I begin my eleventh year of writing this column in your campus newspaper.

I wasn't sure I'd be coming back this year. After a decade of doing this column, I had retreated to my country seat, tired but happy, to enjoy a nice long rest. But last night as I sat on my verandah, peaceful and serene, humming the largo from A Long Day's Night and worming my dog, a stranger suddenly appeared before me.

He was a tall, clean-limbed man, crinkly-eyed and crooked-grinned, stalwart and virile. "How do you do," he said. "My name is Stalwart Virile and I am with the Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blade people."

"Enchanted," I said. "Take off your homburg and sit down." I clapped my hands sharply. "Norman!" I called. "Another chair for Mr. Virile!"

"Another chair for Mr. Virile!"

Obediently my dog trotted away and returned directly with a fanback chair of Malayan rattan. He is the smartest dog in our block.

"I suppose you're wondering why I am here," said Mr. Virile, seating himself.

"Well, sir," I replied, my old eyes twinkling roguishly, "I'll wager you didn't come to read my meter."

"You can imagine how we howled at that one!"

"That's a doozy!" cried Mr. Virile, finally catching his breath. "I must remember to tell it to Alice when I get home."

"Your wife?" I said.

"My father," he said.

"Oh," I said.

"But enough of wit and humor," he said. "Let us get down to business. How would you like to write a campus column for Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades?"

"For money?" I said.

"Yes," he said.

"My hand, sir," I said and clasped his. Warmly he returned the pressure, and soft smiles played upon our lips, and our eyes were moist with the hint of tears, and we were silent, not trusting ourselves to speak.

"What will you write about in your campus column?" asked Mr. Virile when he was able to talk again.

"I will take up the burning issues that vex the American undergraduate!" I cried, bounding to my feet. "I will explore, without fear or favor, such explosive questions as 'Are roommates sanitary?' and 'Should protestors be given a salvia test?' and 'Should capital punishment for pledges be abolished?'"

"And will you also say a pleasant word from time to time about Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades?" asked Mr. Virile.

"Sir," I said simply, "what other kind of word except pleasant could I possibly say about Personna Blades, which give me more luxury shaves than Beep-Beep or any other blade I might name?"

"Another of my products is Burma Shave," said Mr. Virile. "Can you find it in your heart to mention Burma Shave occasionally?"

"But of course!" I declared. "For is not Burma Shave the whisker-wiltingest lather in the land?"

"Yes," he admitted.

And then he shook my hand again and smiled bravely and with a good will to my typewriter.

"Farewell, tall silhouette moving erectly into the setting sun."

"Farewell, good totalitarian!" I cried after him. "Aloha!"

And turned with a will to my typewriter.

Records May Fall in Swim Meet

Frosh to Face Fenwick Squad

A freshman swimmer will be trying to smash two school records, and an undefeated varsity squad will be trying for its fifth straight victory before meeting its better competition.

That's what's on the agenda in an action-packed afternoon and evening swimming program scheduled at University School Pool today.

The activities will begin at 4 p.m. when SIU's freshmen swim squad hosts national high school power, Fenwick. They will conclude at about 9 after SIU is expected to have made North Central College its fifth straight dual victim of the season.

The varsity meet will begin at 7:30 p.m. Admission for the evening meet is 50 cents for students with activity cards and $1 for the public, with free admission for students with season athletic event tickets. Admission is free at the afternoon freshmen meet.

Defending National Catholic High School Champion Fenwick is expected to provide some classy swimming in the matinee. The prep school has many of the states top young swimmers.

Although they will be swimming college events in the meet they will rate a definite favorite over SIU's first-year squad. The meet will be the third between Southern and the northern Illinois prep school with each school showing one win to its credit.

Expected to provide the excitement for the local fans in the afternoon meet will be freshmen sensation, Ed Mossetti. The big Missourian has already smashed three freshmen school records and has the potential to erase all of them.

Probably his most outstanding performance came in an exhibition race earlier this month when he swam a 53.5 in the 100-yard butterfly. The mark was a second and a half under the standard but more impressively is .4 of a second below the school varsity mark.

The two-time prep high school state champion's other records are in the 50 and 100-yard freestyles with times of 22.1 and 49.3. With good competition this afternoon the 18-year-old could breeze to new records in both.

Coach Ralph Casey's squad is riding the crest of a four-meet winning streak as it trounced Evansville 57-38, Mankato State 62-30, Nebraska 68-27, and Cincinnati 61-53.

North Central should be number five tonight although they have a fine backstroker in Jim Hartzell and some outstanding sprinters.

But overall they shouldn't be any match for the Salukis, who last year took a 65-28 decision at North Central.

Salukis Nearing End of 'Road' With Central Missouri Game

Southern's basketball team winds up its four-game road series Monday night when it crosses the Mississippi to meet Central Missouri State of Warrensburg.

The contest will be the last on the road before the Salukis return home to take on Ball State on Feb. 6. It will also be the next to the last road game of the season for the Salukis who have won four of six on the road so far this year.

After Monday's game the Salukis, 9-4 for the season, will play six of the remaining seven games at home.

Central Missouri is 13-3 so far this year, and is unbeaten in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association (MIAA) Conference. The Mules were also the champions of the MIAA Holiday Tournament.

Included in their 13 victims is Southwest Missouri which beat Southern 86-80 earlier in the season. The Mules beat Southwest 73-70 in the tournament and are re-matched tonight.

Heading the starting five for the Mules is forward Cozell Walker. The 6-5 junior played basketball with Marine Corps and Air Force teams before coming to Central Missouri and has averaged 17 points and 11 rebounds a game this season for the Mules.

Teamed with Walker at the forward spot will be former prep All-Stater Calvin Pettit from Springfield, Ill. The 6-4 freshman, who led Springfield Lanphier into the state tournament two years ago, has averaged 15 points and 11 rebounds a game this year for the Missourians.

The big man for the Mules is center Bill Pollock. The 6-7, 200-pound pivotman is averaging eight points a game and seven rebounds.

In the backcourt for the Mules are guards Bob Caine and Sylvester Mitchell. Caine, a 6-2 junior, is a good outside shooter and sports a 10-point average per game.

Speech Group Rush Set

Zeta Phi Eta, honorary speech fraternity for women, will be host to the final rush of the year at 2 p.m. Sunday in Morris Library Lounge. Rushes do not have to be formally invited, but must have at least 12 quarter hours in speech.

Frosh to Vie at U. of I.

SIU Varsity Trackmen to Test Big Ten Champs at Wisconsin

Coach Lew Hartzog's indoor track squads are expected to get their baptism under fire this afternoon. Both the freshmen and varsity teams go up against some strong competition.

The varsity will be in Madison, Wis., for a triangular meet with Wisconsin and Loyola while the freshmen stop off at Champaign to compete in an open meet.

Although this year's senior group is expected to be one of the strongest in the school's history, Coach Hartzog warns that his squad may get off to a slow start because of the lack of indoor practice facilities.

Despite the facilities, ace quartermiler Gary Carr and British distance star Bill Cornell may be right in the thick of things this afternoon against the defending Indoor Big Ten champion Badgers, and the Chicago school.

Cornell turned in a good 3:53.4 effort in the 1,500-meter run in the Sugar Bowl Holiday Track Classic—held at New Orleans last December, to serve notice he may be set for his greatest season.

Carr also appears ready. The junior from Mt. Vernon, Ind., recorded a career best of 47.6 in the 400-meter race at the same meet. At Madison the 5-11, 160-pounder will be competing in both his specialty, the 440-yard dash, and the 300, as well as anchoring the mile relay.

SIU Wrestlers Lose To Okla. State

SIU wrestlers fell victim to unbeaten Oklahoma State Friday night, 25-5.

The only Saluki victory was recorded by George McCreery in the 167 pound weight class. McCreery pinned Eric Lynn of the Cowboys in the second period.

George Feierabend Dies; Was on WSIU-TV Staff

George C. Feierabend, Jr., 43, a producer-director for WSIU-TV died Friday in Barnes Hospital in St. Louis.

Feierabend, a native of Louisville, joined the staff of the Broadcasting Service in November, 1964. Before coming to SIU he had worked at several educational and commercial broadcasting stations.

Feierabend, had been critically ill for about three weeks.

He is to be buried in Louisville but arrangements for the funeral are still incomplete, according to Buren C. Robbins, chairman of the radio-television department.

Cornell is set to go in the mile, where he has a career best of 4:00.5; the 880, where he has a 1:48.1 effort; and the mile relay.

Other Saluki entries will be Alan Ackman in the mile and the 880, Frank Whitman and Gene James in the 70-yard high and low hurdles, Herb Walker in the 1,000-yard run and the mile relay,

Freshmen's Top Scorer Lost For Game at St. Louis Tonight

Southern's freshman basketball team goes into tonight's game with St. Louis University freshmen handicapped by the loss of its leading scorer and rebounder. The game is being played in St. Louis.

Jay Westcott, a 6-3 center from Belleville, suffered a knee injury in practice this week and will be out of action for an indefinite time. Westcott has been one of the leaders in the Salukis' offense this season with a 19-point game average. He is also pulling down about 11 rebounds a game.

Westcott's replacement for the game will be Bob Kupicki. The six-footer from Antioch has been used as a reserve forward so far this season and has seen only limited action.

Joining Kupicki in the starting five for the frosh, who are 2-6 for the season, will be Bill Dial and Bill Blanchard as forwards, and Larry Underwood and Bobby Jackson as guards.

Jackson and Underwood are the second and third leading scorers for the freshmen, averaging 13.7 and 13 points per game respectively.

Tonight's game will be a preliminary to the varsity clash between St. Louis University and Cincinnati.
