Summit pact pledges era of peace

MOSCOW (AP)—Capping a historic seven-day summit, President Nixon and Leonid I. Brezhnev signed Monday an unprecedented declaration of principles pledging the United States and the Soviet Union to an era of peaceful coexistence with the goal of total world disarmament.

The 12-point statement, intended to ease East-West tensions born with the Iron Curtain a generation ago, was signed in solemn Kremlin ceremonies by the President and Soviet Communist party chief issued a joint communique making clear that no headway was made at the summit toward settling the Vietnam war.

After the signing, the President and Mrs. Nixon left Moscow for Kiev for an overnight stay before going on to Iran. The Moscow departure was delayed about 45 minutes because of engine trouble on the Soviet Ilyushin 62 jetliner the Nixons had boarded for the flight to Kiev, about 500 miles southeast of Moscow in the Ukraine. The difficulty was discovered before the plane took off and the presidential party switched to another Ilyushin 62. It landed at Kiev in the early evening.

The communique summing up Nixon's talks with Soviet leaders in the Kremlin pointed toward progress on easing European tensions through mutual troop reductions. It declared a readiness to help bring peace to the Middle East. It promised that a broad trade agreement between the two nations would be concluded in the near future.

Nixon invited Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai V. Podgorny to the United States for a followup summit and they accepted.

The chief executive returns to an election year America on Thursday, already declaring the first-ever Moscow summit a success. At the Kremlin, he signed agreements during the week to curb the nuclear arms race, to place U.S. and Soviet spacemen in orbit together and to increase cooperation in such fields as the environment, medicine, science and technology.

The communique made no mention of Soviet shipment of arms to North Vietnam, nor of Nixon's mining of North Vietnamese harbors to choke off the arms supplies.

Both Soviet and American spokesmen said the leaders made no secret deals on Vietnam, and Soviet spokesman Leonid Zamyatin declared "our assistance will continue to be given" to the Vietnamese Communists.

But in the statement of principles, Nixon and Brezhnev said they were "aware of the need to make every effort to remove the threat of war and to create conditions which promote the reduction of tensions in the world..."

They agreed that "in the nuclear age there is no alternative to conducting

City's role in Memorial Day recalled

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A group of about 100 people, including representatives from the Air Force, Army and Navy, attended the 106th Memorial Day service Monday in Carbondale's Woodlawn Cemetery.

Featured speaker was Brig. Gen. William Richardson of Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., who recalled the founding of Memorial Day in Carbondale and how the day has developed into a national "symbol of honor and respect."

Turning to the present, Richardson said it was the duty of all those gathered to insure that the men who died in the service of their country did not die in vain. Richardson called for a renewal of patriotic principles and a rededication to liberty.

Concerning protest, Richardson said, "Unity can be achieved through earnest effort. There must be a broad-minded approach. We must commit ourselves of the problems to today so future generations can have peace."

Following Richardson's speech, Col. Edward Griffin, president of the John A. Logan reserve officer association, read Logan's order which officially established Memorial Day.

Wreaths to honor the dead were placed by Elizabeth Leighty, representing the American Legion Auxillary; Mrs. Oscar Koch, representing the Ladies Auxillary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Mabel McGowan, representing the Dan Brush Chapter of the Daughter of the American Revolution; and members of Cub Scout Pack 60.

A rifle division from the 101 Airborne Division from Fort Campbell, Ky. shot three rounds to honor the dead. Michael Stergis, a junior at SIU, then played taps.

City officials attending the ceremony were Mayor Neal Eckert; Joseph Dakin, police chief; Hans Fischer, city councilman; and Clark Vineyard, city councilman.

Flag-raising ceremonies were handled by members of SIU's Air Force ROTC, VFW Post 2605, American Legion Post 514, Lt. Tom Wells, Navy reserve; and Capt. Rick Barber, Army reserve.

The invocation and benediction were given by Rev. Robert Worley of the Walnut Street Baptist Church. The ceremony occurred without incident.

Midwestern Conference athletic program will terminate June 30

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The athletic division of the Midwestern Conference will officially terminate June 30.

The decision to terminate the conference was made Friday at a Board of Governors meeting held in Terre Haute, Ind.

Jack McClelland, Midwestern Conference athletic commissioner, said Monday the decision was made by unanimous vote by the governors to terminate the athletic program of the conference. SIU abstained from voting. The termination will not affect the academic division.

The reasons given for the termination were SIU's withdrawal and the inability to expand conference membership with universities of comparable size, academics and well-rounded athletic programs.

McClelland expressed his regret at seeing the conference end.

The conference was born in Chicago on Sept. 22, 1969. Besides SIU, the other schools involved were Northern Illinois, Illinois State, Indiana State and Ball State.

League competition began in some sports in 1970-71. During the first year of competition, SIU won titles in cross country, indoor track, wrestling, swimming, basketball, gymnastics, baseball, outdoor track and tennis. During the 1971-72 season, SIU won indoor track, wrestling, swimming, gymnastics, tennis and outdoor track. League play in football was scheduled for 1973.

On April 22, 1972, the SIU Board of Trustees approved the school's withdrawal from the athletic portion of the conference.

The movement for withdrawal began on July 27, 1971, when the committee on intercollegiate athletics unanimously approved a motion calling for withdrawal. Supported, all head varsity coaches supported withdrawal. The University Senate approved a recommendation for withdrawal in January.

Tank car of acid derails; gas forces 2,000 to flee

ASHMORE, Ill. (AP) — Some 2,000 residents of Ashmore and three other rural Coles County communities were evacuated from their homes Monday because of toxic gas spreading from a derailed train tank car which contained nitric acid.

Officials said there was no danger of fire or explosion at the derailment site but the evacuation was ordered to prevent area residents from inhaling the fumes which were carried by gusty winds.

The Red Cross set up a center at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston, about 10 miles from Ashmore.

There were 22 cars of a Penn Central freight derailed a mile from Ashmore. A tank car ruptured and winds estimated at 20 miles an hour blew the toxic gas north and north-west.

Residents of Oakland, Buston and Raridan were ordered by the Coles County sheriff's office to leave the area until the fumes dissipated.

Rep. Kenneth Gray was supposed to be one of the speakers; however, Eckert said Gray's laryngitis prevented Gray from attending.

The first Memorial Day service was held in the early morning hours of April 29, 1866, when a crowd of about 200 people gathered at woodlawn.

People had come to clean and decorate the graves of some 20 soldiers buried at the cemetery. The ceremony last the entire day. Townspeople provided hogs and stock for a barbecue, while the baker donated bread. Col. Daniel Brush, founder of Carbondale, permitted the graves to be decorated with flowers from the gardens of his home. A prayer was given by the local Methodist minister, and the main address of the day was given by Gen. John A. Logan.

The observance of Memorial Day was officially designated in May, 1868, by Logan, who had become the first commander-in-chief of the newly formed Grand Army of the Republic. He chose May 30 as the day for the national observance.

IRA suspends guerrilla offensive

DUBLIN (AP)—The Official wing of the illegal Irish Republican Army announced Monday night it was suspending guerrilla offensive action in North Ireland. The rival IRA Provisionals indicated they would continue fighting.

The Marxist-oriented officials previously had rejected peace appeals from a growing segment of the North's Roman Catholic population.

The Dublin statement said the official cease-fire was "an invaluable opportunity for us to avoid a sectarian civil war."

The death toll on the nation's highways for the three-day Memorial Day weekend climbed Sunday to 462 as motorists began returning home from holiday trips.

Showers and thunderstorms left roads slick in many areas of the South and Midwest, but temperatures were in the 70s and 80s for most of the nation.

The tabulation of traffic fatalities began at 6 p.m. EDT Friday and ends at midnight PDT.

Pollution alive and well, especially at SIU

Pollution is alive and growing in the United States—SIU included.

The reason is obvious. Polluters are still abundant and people are not using pollution controls to their fullest extent—SIU students included.

But environmental agencies are springing up at all levels in the country. Some people are trying to solve the problems.

The first and most powerful level is the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), a department of the federal government launched by President Nixon. In the first months of its existence, the agency warned the mayors of Atlanta, Detroit and Cleveland to come up with a plan to correct water-quality violations.

The EPA ordered 23 plants in Birmingham, Alabama, to cut back on production during a five-day temperature inversion that was creating dangerous air pollution.

The EPA demanded and got action to help curb mercury discharges, thermal pollution and auto emissions.

The EPA's general policy is to single out violators who will serve as examples to others.

Another level in the environmental control agencies is the Council on Environmental Quality, a federal commission. This agency studies the conditions of the environment and then publishes an annual report.

The Council isn't an actual crusader against pollution but it does provide valuable information to those who are.

Then there are the national organizations against pollution like the Environmental Defense Fund (EDF), a coalition of 60 lawyers and 700 scientists. They call their approach calm and constructive, a strategy that has led increasing numbers of environmentalists to take their cases to court.

Some of the EDF's fights have been against the use of DDT and federal construction projects that have no real purpose, such as dams proposed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers which would serve neither water control nor agriculture.

The EDF isn't trying to sue every polluter but is picking out cases that would create legal precedents.

The next level of environmentalists, only a short step below the EDF, is the Club of Rome, a group of 70 eminently respected management heads, economists and the like. This group is dedicated to the study of issues facing society, such as survival.

The Club of Rome's computer studies have indicated that man's existence on earth can only continue if there is an all-out effort by the entire society to end exponential growth and stabilize population by equalizing the birth and death rates.

Progressing down the line of environmentalists, the next group on the list is an activist organization in Washington, D.C., called Environmental Action.

Their latest contribution to the pollution control movement is simple yet thought provoking. The organization sponsored an ecotage contest, defined as "sabotage done in the name of ecology." The contestants were not asked to act out their ideas but merely to suggest projects that caused no serious harm.

The severest contest entry came from a fourth-grade class in Wilmette, Ill., that suggested putting all the presidents of the big car companies in a room filled with car pollution for 30 seconds.

As the programs move down the line they also move closer to home. A group of environmentalists in Peoria stopped the plans to fill in and privately develop part of the Peoria Lake shoreline. Their argument was that the social and mental health of the Peoria community would be adversely affected by further development on the already industrialized shoreline.

Finally, the environmental programs hit the Carbondale area. Less than a year ago, the Student Environmental Center and the SIU Little Grassly Outdoor Laboratories proposed recycling programs for the University.

Although still on a limited experimental basis, the recycling programs now include glass recycling collection depots near the Student Center, at Thompson Point and at Winky's and Eckert's Country Store parking lots on weekends.

Paper recycling is limited to recycling some 18 million IBM cards used by the University every year.

But the ecology chain goes one step further down the line of performance—the individual.

On a campus where educated people meet and live and learn together, there should be no real environmental crisis. The intelligence of these people should tell them that littering is destructive to ecology.

Yet many of these people seem to be unaware of the problem judging from the amount of litter that collects over a weekend on the campus grounds. If there is a band playing behind Woody Hall on Saturday night, one can be sure to see an abundance of paper in the area on Monday morning.

The glass recycling cans that have been set up outside the Student Center are as equally filled with trash as they are with bottles. And if the recycling cans overflow with trash then the area around the cans becomes victim to the garbage.

Is it too much to ask that some care be given the campus? How much effort does it take to carry a popsicle stick until a trash barrel comes into sight? Rarely would such a gesture take anyone out of his way considering the number of trash cans dispersed around campus.

When others are going to court to fight the pollution problems of the country, how can someone rationalize throwing a piece of paper on the ground?

It just doesn't make sense that some should work so hard to help others who don't care enough to help themselves.

Letters to the editor

Somebody is listening

To the Daily Egyptian:

I doubt that Verdi will ever again be big box-office—at least in Carbondale, USA—to rival Jethro Tull or even the mighty Ellington. But box-office draw never told the whole story of any performer or performance, so perhaps what last Thursday's audience for the Manzoni Requiem lacked in numbers it made up for in deeper appreciation of great energy spent on great music. Prof. Robert Kingsbury deserves much credit for so large an undertaking. The outstanding soloists and choirs were forceful or poignant as the score demanded; the orchestra disappointingly less so. But that isn't the point; nobody should expect the Chicago Symphony. The point is that some people around here are thoughtful, talented, and ambitious enough to bring such a massive composition to life. If a university education essentially involves exposing people to new experiences, then Verdi through those musicians was as much a teacher as anybody. It's too bad that so many people prefer all sorts of comfortable self-insulation, and miss out. In any case, I hope Prof. Kingsbury does not figure attendance as any ultimate gauge of audience response. Somebody is listening. There should be more, but maybe with some noisier drum-beating, there will be.

Required reading

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to quote something from an article by Henry Steele Commager which is required reading for GSB 211b.

"And if you interfere with academic freedom in order to silence criticism, or critics, you do not rid the university of subversion. It is not ideas that are subversive, it is the lack of ideas. What you do is to silence or get rid of those men who have ideas, leaving the institution to those who have no ideas, or have not the courage to express those they have. Are such men as these what we want to direct the education of the young and advance the cause of learning?"

This article sort of struck me funny, being one of those clubbed and arrested in the Free Room Area. It might do old Mr. Derge some good to go back to school.

Also, being a victim of police harassment in Louisiana and other parts of the south, I must congratulate the campus and city policemen on being right down there with the worst.

Unfair attack

To the Daily Egyptian:

Officer Smith's attack upon the Rabbi's defense of student rights is unfair for several reasons:

a) Rabbi Vinecuv has never justified the use of violence by students. His whole message has been the opposite.

b) The first curfew declared by the town did not apply to the campus. The campus curfew came much later, so many students never even heard about it.

c) The many students who have marks from police clubbing can testify to police overreaction.

d) There was no law in existence that students could not stay in the free speech area day or night. In fact, the campus police at first told the students they could stay there all night.

It is easy for Officer Smith to make a scapegoat of the Rabbi—this is what has been done to minority groups in Jackson County for decades. To say that all students who protested were violent is as untrue as to say that all residents of Jackson County are violent because there has been an active KKK here for years.

Think a bit

To the Daily Egyptian:

In answer to the letter of Mr. Tom Hedenn on May 10, 1972, I would just like to know, who do you think you are blaming the people passing for the debris left on the ground? As for your little comparison, giving a knife to a baby is quite different from giving a pamphlet to a supposedly mature college student who knows to use one of the trash barrels on campus!

Since you seemed so concerned, I was wondering how many of the pamphlets you picked up. Now what do you think, should you have picked up the pamphlets, or should a "law" be passed against such pass-outs on campus?

I think you should have thought a little bit more about what you said!

Abortion defense plea

By Joanne Izbicki
Southern Illinois Abortion Repeal Coalition

The Daily Egyptian of Tuesday, May 9, carried an ad by the Newman Center against abortion. It followed the often-used ploy of anti-abortion groups—showing a picture of a five-month-plus fetus with a plea for its "life." It urged the defense of "the sacredness of the unborn" and that people be "pro-life not pro-death." The women of the Carbondale area, many, many of whom have had abortions (there are at least fifteen legal referrals every week) must wake up to the fact that the proponents of forced pregnancy and unwilling motherhood are on the move to continue and strengthen their control over women's bodies.

Those of you who complacently sit back, having gotten abortions legally in New York or illegally in Chicago or elsewhere, take note: recently, President Nixon repudiated the abortion recommendations of his commission on population, urged the repeal of the reform law in New York that permits abortion, and praised the New York forces who are working for that repeal. Also last week, in Chicago, seven women were arrested and accused of performing illegal abortions in a clinic connected with a women's liberation group. If women feel they have an out in Chicago or New York because they have the $100-$250 necessary, they must look at the facts and realize that the situation is critical (poor women already know it is critical). Women must begin to do something if they are to be able to avoid the hardships and indignities of bearing an unwanted child.

What can women do? Give money for the defense of the women in Chicago, who face sentences possibly of 60 years each (money can be brought to the People's Law Office): come to meetings of the Southern Illinois Abortion Repeal Coalition on Wednesdays, Activities Room A, SIU Student Center; learn the facts about abortion (that most are and would be done not when the fetus is 5½-months-old, but when it is 6 to 12-weeks-old; that the primary reason women have abortions after 10 or 12 weeks is because the anti-women laws now in force make it too difficult for them to get treatment in the first trimester of pregnancy; that the rates of population growth and of maternal deaths in New York have at least halved since the law was reformed; that there are seven times more maternal deaths from childbirth than from abortion in the first trimester; that over one million women each year in the U.S. are forced to take "criminal" action and get illegal abortions. At least write many, many letters—to Fr. Genesio of the Newman Center, to Nixon, to New York state officials, to Illinois officials, and to newspapers.

Do not be fooled by the ploy that the anti-abortion factions are merely out to "protect" the lives of fetuses. I will not question their sincerity in truly believing that is their main motive. But I strongly question their inability to perceive that in "protecting" a parasite, they are punishing a woman for her sexual activity and for not accepting the "fact" that she has an obligation to bear children because other people feel they have the right to demand that she be a breeding machine.

I strongly urge all women and men who agree with my position to make themselves heard, and to act on their convictions.

The innocent bystander

A well calculated risk

By Arthur Hoppe
Chronicle Features

Mr. Nixon's bold decision to mine Haiphong, bomb Hanoi and blow hell out of The China-Vietnam R.R. Co. while offering new peace terms, represents, the experts agree, "a well-calculated risk."

The risk, it can now be told, was well calculated by the U.S. Bureau of Calculations. The complex calculations that went into the risk taking were explained to newsmen yesterday by the Bureau's Chief Calculator, Homer T. Pettibone.

A transcript of the briefing follows:

Q—Can you tell us, Mr. Pettibone, exactly what risk is involved here?

A—Yes, World War III. You see, one of the mines we've planted in Haiphong harbor may blow up a Russian ship. We had to calculate whether the crazy, irresponsible, power-mad Kremlin leaders would blow up one of our ships in return—thereby risking World War III.

Q—And you calculated they wouldn't?

A—Yes, based on our experience during the Cuban Missile Crisis we calculated the odds were 14.2 to 11.8 that they weren't that crazy. Thus, it was safe for us to risk World War III on the grounds the Russians weren't irresponsible enough to risk World War III.

Q—It's good to know we can count on the Russians.

A—True. But at the same time we announced this bold, decisive step to end the war, we took the precaution of sending the Russians secret signals, reassuring them that we didn't really mean it and not to take it personal if one of their ships happened to bump into one of our mines.

Q—How are these secret signals transmitted?

A—Through Henry Kissinger's left ear. If he twitches it while denouncing the Russians on television, it signals them that he doesn't really mean a thing he's saying.

Q—What about the Chinese? Is there a risk involved in blowing up their railroad trains?

A—Very little. Now, as you know, the Chinese leaders are wily, inscrutable, power-mad revolutionaries with little regard for human life nor any fear of nuclear weapons. But what's a railroad train or two among friends? We calculated they won't risk World War III over a couple. So we were safe in doing so.

Q—Excuse me, Mr. Pettibone, didn't you also calculate the Chinese wouldn't enter the Korean War?

A—You know the Bureau's motto: "Win a few, lose a few."

Q—About stepping up the bombing of Hanoi while offering them new peace terms, what's the risk there?

A—That they'll think we're crazy. You know how stubborn they are. Dropping bombs on their heads may actually cause them to lose their tempers and thus not see our peaceful intentions. They may even pout and blindly reject our new offer out of sheer childish petulance. But we are counting on them to rise above such petty emotions and nobly accept our terms for the good of mankind.

Q—Are we also considering accepting their latest peace offer?

A—While they're killing our boys? Never!

Q—As I understand it then, Mr. Pettibone, we are now counting on the responsibility of the crazy Russians, the caution of the fearless Chinese and the maturity of the childish North Vietnamese to end this war and avoid a nuclear holocaust?

A—Well, we have to count on someone.

President's degree program supported

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Four SIU faculty members Friday said they are in favor of a president's degree program.

Voicing their opinions in favor of the program were Dormalee Lindberg, elementary education; Donald Detwiler, associate professor in history; Stanley Harris, professor in geology; and Vernon Anderson, associate professor in foreign languages.

The statements were made at the second group of hearings conducted by the new program subcommittee of the undergraduate education policy joint standing committee.

Ms. Lindberg said she was "excited" about the program. Detwiler favored the program because of the quality of the student the program such as this could attract.

Anderson said the program has received "very positive" response in his department. Harris said the program would be an opportunity to show confidence in young people.

The degree program would have no formal requirements other than 192 credit hours for graduation. It is designed to encourage and reward independent study. Entrance into the program would be based on test scores and previous work.

The subcommittee also heard testimony on a degree program in general studies. Herall C. Largent, director of the placement service, said people who graduated with such a degree could be employable. The general studies degree would have no concentration requirements but would limit hours of credit in any one school or college and is designed to encourage study in a variety of fields.

The subcommittee, for the second week in a row, did not discuss a program for a three-year degree. Previously, the subcommittee held hearings just on the three-year plan. Robert McGrath, subcommittee chairman, said the subcommittee will probably meet again Friday to discuss the three plans in light of the testimony that has been received.

Higher ed workshops slated here

By University News Service

The need for inter-institutional planning and sharing of resources will be highlighted Thursday and Friday at an Illinois Board of Higher Education Cooperative Planning Conference at SIU.

The meeting, to involve officials and leaders in higher education from throughout Illinois—both in public and private schools—will be the third conference of the school year sponsored by the IBHE. The first was held at Illinois State University in December, the second at Northern Illinois in February.

Most sessions here will be held in the Student Center. The Friday night meeting will be at the Holiday Inn.

Speakers include Joseph P. Cosand, deputy commissioner for higher education, U.S. Office of Education; Paul C. Reinert, S. J., president of St. Louis University; and Ernest L. Boyer, chancellor of State University of New York.

Those who will talk at the outset of the conference, from 9 to 9:40 a.m. Thursday, will be George L. Clements, IBHE chairman; SIU President David R. Derge; and James B. Holderman, IBHE executive director.

Holderman will explain the purpose of the conference, which is to analyze, review, and discuss in detail the issues and recommendations of the preliminary report of the Collegiate Common Market Task Force.

Cosand, former head of the Junior College District of St. Louis and St. Louis County, will speak on the topic, "Cooperation and Junior College Regions" following the Thursday noon luncheon.

President Reinert will address the gathering after the Thursday evening dinner at the Holiday Inn. His topic will be "Cooperation and Private Institutions."

"Regionalization and Higher Education" will be Chancellor Boyer's subject at the concluding session starting at 1 p.m. Friday.

Three sets of concurrent workshops are scheduled throughout the conference.

Health Service adds psychiatrist

SIU's Health Service will soon have its first staff psychiatrist in at least 15 years.

Dr. Lee Spalt, now completing a residency in psychiatry at Washington University in St. Louis, will join SIU on July 1, according to Dr. Walter Clarke, director of the Health Service.

Dr. Spalt will primarily see students on a referral basis. He will work closely with counseling and psychology departments.

Concerts, recital slated this week

The SIU Symphonic Band will present a concert in seven parts Wednesday, featuring compositions by famous concert artists. The concert will be at 8 p.m. at Shryock Auditorium.

Among the featured pieces will be works by John Philip Sousa, Caesar Giovannini, Maurice Weid and Johann Eberlin. Nick Koenigstein will conduct the University Symphonic Band. Admission is free.

A senior recital on the piano by Suzanne Garramone will be presented at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel.

The following night at 8 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium a Concerto Concert conducted by Richard Strawn will be presented.

Affirmative Action lists revised grievance procedures

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A revised set of interim grievance procedures for the Affirmative Action Program (AAP) has been released by Jerry Lacey, assistant to the president for Affirmative Action.

The new list follows consultation with President David R. Derge and other administrators about the AAP. Previously, the program was working under rules adopted on Dec. 16, 1971.

All grievances charging discrimination on account of race, sex, color, religion or national origin will be resolved exclusively under University grievance procedures. All University personnel can file written charges of discrimination with the Affirmative Action Office. Charges must be filed on a complaint form which will be provided by the office.

Upon receiving charges, the office will notify the person or unit being charged and serve a copy of charges with the person or unit. The office will request a response from the person and unit and will initiate and investigation of the charge.

The office will make a preliminary finding on the basis of the complaint, investigation and respondent's written statement as to whether probable cause exists to indicate if discrimination has occurred. Consultation sessions with the complainant and respondent will be held.

Should the consultation session not result in resolution of the problem, the office will present the matter to the Affirmative Action Review Committee which may hold hearings to determine whether or not the respondent committed the acts of discrimination and make recommendations for resolving the complaint.

The review committee will have five members appointed by the president with terms of one year each, with the exception of two members serving six months in the first year. No member will serve more than two consecutive terms on the committee. A chairperson will be selected from and by the committee.

The director of the AAO will be allowed to establish any additional rules it requires.

Charges of discrimination can be resolved by mutual consent between parties at any stage of the complaint process.

Civil Service employees, faculty and staff will be allowed to follow the established grievance procedures which they have adopted.

IRA announces end to guerrilla offensive actions

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP)—The official wing of the illegal Irish Republican Army (IRA) announced Monday night it was suspending guerrilla offensive action in Northern Ireland.

The announcement came after British troops were deployed through Belfast, Northern Ireland's capital, to forestall feared clashes between Protestant and Roman Catholic militants after a weekend of violence that killed eight persons. Nearly a score were injured.

Sun flare disrupts shortwave radios

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) - Short-wave radio communications were disrupted in North and South America and most of Europe and Africa Sunday by a large solar flare, the Space Environment Services Center reported today.

Don Baker, chief forecaster for the center, said the burst of solar radiation reached earth at 7:15 a.m.

EDT Sunday and its effects lasted up to two hours. Such a severe outburst, Baker said, "might occur once a year in the current solar cycle."

Flares, he said, are sudden brightenings in the areas of the sun's atmosphere near sunspots which put out X rays, radio waves and sometimes charged particles.

CDRS to discuss 'freedom' at SIU

A meeting of the Committee to Defend the Right to Speak (CDRS) "to discuss the end of free speech and peaceful demonstrations at SIU" will be held at 9 p.m. Tuesday in Magnolia Lounge of the Student Center.

According to a news release, the meeting will deal with plans to expose what the organization calls President David R. Derge's "repression", the denial of tenure to Douglas M. Allen, assistant professor in philosophy; the violent clearing of peaceful protesters in the Free Forum area and recent arrests of demonstrators on the lawn near the Center for Vietnamese Studies.

Artillery attack rips An Loc relief column

SAIGON AP—An enemy artillery barrage Monday tore through a stalled South Vietnamese relief column trying to reopen Highway 13 to An Loc, inflicting heavy casualties on government forces for the second time in four days.

Fifteen government soldiers were reported killed and 85 wounded on their last bloody mile up the highway north of Saigon named Thunder Road for the ambushes that hit U.S. forces when they fought big battles there five years ago.

On the central front, fighting for the provincial capital of Kontum continued for the fifth day but remained inconclusive although the North Vietnamese appeared to have backed off somewhat from the nor-western side of the city.

U.S. B52 bombers, F4 Phantoms and helicopter gunships blasted enemy positions in and around Kontum. American Press correspondent Michael Putzel reported from the town that buildings were set afire by the bombing.

The northern front appeared generally quiet.

In the air war, U.S. pilots using laser-guided bombs reported knocking out two small railroad and highway bridges in North Vietnam's southern parhandle. The Air Force said they were important because their location permitted the shipment of war materials along the coast into South Vietnam.

their mutual relations on the basis of peaceful coexistence." They said they attach "major importance to preventing the development of situations capable of causing a dangerous exacerbation of their relations."

"Therefore," the statement said, "they will do their utmost to avoid military confrontations and to prevent the outbreak of nuclear war."

The leaders pledged continued efforts to limit arms "on a bilateral as well as a multilateral basis" through concrete agreements.

Through press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon hailed the summit as "a week of major accomplishments" and said it "has met expectations in every respect."

Of the statement of principles, Nixon said he was convinced that it means "an era of confrontation can be put behind us" and that the superpowers now "will enter an era of negotiation."

Soviet leaders, through their spokesmen, said the summit has led to an "easing of tension throughout the world".

At a news conference presidential assistant Henry A. Kissinger said that as for enforcement of the agreement, the United States realizes it "won't be able to wave a piece of paper" and make the Soviets stick by the terms. But he said Soviet leaders had clearly indicated their attitude was one of compliance with the statement.

Kissinger said he doubted that the three Soviet leaders' visit to the United States would come before the November elections.

The week of discussions at the Kremlin summit followed by three months Nixon's mission to China.

In language beamed at the new-found U.S. friendliness with Peking—as well as toward U.S. allies and Moscow's Communist friends—the communique said:

"Both sides emphasized that agreements and understandings reached in the negotiations in Moscow, as well as the contents and nature of these negotiations, are not in any way directed against any other country."

In the five-paragraph section on Vietnam, both sides restated their positions and gave no hint of concessions on the troublesome questions.

The United States "emphasized the need to bring an end to the military conflict as soon as possible and reaffirmed its commitment to the principle that the political future of South Vietnam should be left to the South Vietnamese people to decide for themselves, free from outside interference."

The communique repeated Nixon's latest peace offer—total U.S. withdrawal within four months after the return of all American prisoners and the start of an internationally supervised cease-fire. But it separated more clearly than before the political and military issues, with the United States saying it approved "leaving the political questions to be resolved by the Indochinese people themselves."

The Soviets called in the communique for an end to the bombing of North Vietnam, but did not directly ask for removal of the mines blocking Haiphong and other harbors. It said the North Vietnamese terms "provide a realistic and constructive basis for settling the Vietnam problem."

Teddy to Wallace: 'You'll walk again'

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, brother of two assassinated politicians, encouraged Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace Monday never to give up the hope of walking again.

The Massachusetts senator, in a 25-minute Memorial Day visit to Wallace's bedside, recalled that after a 1964 airplane crash, doctors told him he probably would be permanently paralyzed.

Kennedy sustained a serious back injury when a small plane he was in crashed during his campaign for the Senate.

One Kennedy brother, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, was shot while campaigning for the Democratic nomination, as was Wallace. President John F. Kennedy, had he survived, would have been 55 on Monday.

The surviving brother talked to reporters briefly outside Holy Cross Hospital.

"As someone who was in the hospital for seven months and told that I may never walk again, I hope I reassured him he would be able to and I am sure he can walk again," Kennedy said.

Kennedy, accompanied by his wife, Joan, said he hoped that he helped to cheer up the governor. "He seemed in good spirits," Kennedy said.

"I was tremendously impressed by his spirit and determination to overcome the physical hardships he endured and I'm sure he will," said Kennedy.

Although he maintains he is not seeking the Democratic nomination for President, he was given Secret Service protection after the May 15 attack on Wallace. Kennedy left the hospital Monday by a rear door and was heavily guarded by Secret Service agents.

Charles Snider, Wallace's national campaign officer, said that the governor's son, George Jr., 20, would go along with him to appeal for votes in the California and New Mexico primaries.

In a daily medical briefing, doctors attending the governor said his abdominal wound shows less drainage of abscess daily.

They said Wallace's condition continued to improve slowly and gradually.

Wallace, whose legs are paralyzed, was in a wheelchair for 15 minutes Sunday and physicians say he is continuing with physiotherapy and is getting out of bed more each day.

Gunman kills 3, wounds 7, kills self at campaign rally

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—A gunman fired into a crowded shopping center where North Carolina Sen. B. Everett Jordan was campaigning Monday, killing three persons and wounding seven.

Police said the gunman, described as a young black man, killed himself after firing the shots into the crowd.

The gunman was identified as Harvey Glenn McLeod, 23, of Raleigh. Police said he had an arrest record dating back to 1964, including a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

The incident came exactly two weeks after Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace was shot and paralyzed while campaigning for the presidency at a Laurel, Md., shopping center.

Jordan, 75, who is seeking reelection, was not hit in Monday's shooting. It was not known whether the gunman was aiming at him.

Witnesses said Jordan was shaking hands with well-wishers when the shots erupted. The gunman was 100 to 150 feet away from the North Carolina Democrat at the time, witnesses said. Two of those hit were children.

Shortly after the shooting a man who refused to identify himself telephoned the Raleigh headquarters of Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Gardner and told a secretary: "You had better get a bodyguard for Mr. Gardner because he may be next." A witness to the shooting, Bruce Bland of Raleigh, said the gunman was "aiming at anything that moved."

Another witness, Roy Smith, of Richmond, Va., said he could hear bullets "snap up against the glass-tap, tap, tap."

The shootings occurred at about 12:05 p.m. at the North Hills Shopping Center.

Sen. Jordan is in the midst of a primary fight for renomination to his third full term in the Senate. His opponent in Saturday's runoff primary for the Democratic nomination is Rep. Nick Galifianakis, who led Jordan 49 to 44 per cent in the May 6 primary.

One witness to the shooting at the elaborate, enclosed shopping center about five miles from downtown Raleigh, said the gunman "stayed between two cars the whole time."

"He was shooting at anything that came by," added C. B. Barrett of Wilson, who said he was about 20 feet from the gunman.

Three persons were dead on arrival with gunshot wounds at Rex Hospital in Raleigh. They were tentatively identified as James G. Henry, about 31, of Woodstock, Va.; Mrs. Jackie Wharton, 47, of Raleigh; and Melvin D. Harrison, 23, of New Bern, N.C.

Seven wounded persons were taken to Wake Memorial Hospital.

One of the wounded was Jordan's press secretary, Wes Hayden, who was hit in the left chest.

Others who were shot were identified by a Wake Memorial Hospital spokesman as Carol Ann Homocov, shot in a shoulder; Terrie Sue Henry, 6, of Raleigh, shot in the chest and wrist; Carol Lyn Sutton, 3, wounded in the left thigh; David Elbert Wabry, about 30, of Raleigh, shot in the right chest; and Jessie B.

West, wounded in the head.

Jordan was appointed to the Senate in 1958 to fill the unexpired two-year term of the late W. Kerr Scott.

Expand Facilities

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (AP)—An increase in the number of students participating in Baptist student center activities at Southwest Texas State University has resulted in plans to expand facilities during the summer.

The Rev. D. Glen Norris, director of the Baptist Student Union, said attendance at Tuesday and Thursday evening vesper services warranted the planned expansion.

The proposed addition will cost $60,000, with the BSU raising half and the Texas Baptist general convention providing matching funds.

REGINA, Sask. (AP)—Obesity is putting a bulge in this city's weight-control program.

Grads uncertain

Job market no longer pot at end of rainbow

By John Kohler
Student Writer

The job market. It used to be the pot at the end of the rainbow for those lucky enough to get a college education.

But in the last three years the amount of gold in that pot has steadily diminished. Many students leave college as uncertain about their foothold in life as they were when they left high school. And SIU students are certainly no exception.

Certain fields are still afloat in the sea of rising unemployment but many others are sinking in the mire of glutted job markets. Many of the traditional employment outlets are full and grads whose training has not been adjusted to priority changes within their fields are not finding jobs.

The plight of the SIU graduates has been for the most part bleak over the past two years. While some fields, especially the more vocationally oriented, have been rather successful in placing graduates, other fields have little work available for new grads. Vocationally-oriented mortuary science, for example, achieved 100 per cent job placement in 1971, while only about 52 per cent of the government majors found jobs either teaching or working within their field last year.

All figures pertaining to 1971 SIU grads were compiled from placement service figures. The figures represent about 50 per cent of the total graduates in 1971. The other 50 per cent failed to respond to placement service inquiries.

On the national level, three surveys conducted by major placement services indicate that hiring of college graduates in 1972 will still be down about 60 per cent from 1968. This figure represents about a 10 per cent increase from 1971, but indicates that jobs will still be scarce and competition keen for most good positions.

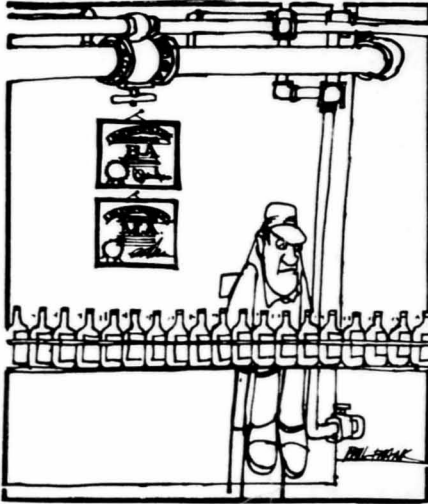

The largest sampling of business and industry that hire college grads was made by the College Placement Council (CPC). CPC contacted 835 organizations about their 1972 job plans. The survey indicated the organizations, on the average, foresee about a five per cent across the board increase in employment from 1971.

A Michigan State University Placement Service survey polled 346 major midwest employers about job prospects in 21 career fields both for 1972 and the next three years. Most of the fields shows a slight upturn in 1972 and even greater upturns within the next three years but total hiring will remain well below the level of the late 1960's.

The Northwestern University Placement Service poll of 185 major employers showed about an 11 per cent increase in hiring of graduates with a bachelor's degree in 1972. The NU survey also indicated that recruiting practices of 70 per cent of the companies contacted will be curtailed in 1972. Also, the hiring of women grads will increase 15 per cent in 1972.

The NU survey showed that salaries in almost every area are remaining stable from 1971 to 1972 for beginning grads. Most companies said not so much as a cost of living raise is being considered.

Although most of studies analyzing the overall job outlook for 1972 indicate the situation is improving, many of the largest employers have no plans for stepped up hiring this spring and summer. AT&T, the nation's largest private employer, is planning cutbacks as is General Foods. General Motors and Sears Roebuck foresee possible cutbacks and generally no increase in hiring this year.

Herrald Largent, director of the SIU Placement Service, said the employment picture is reflected by the recruiting activity on campus. While SIU used to draw recruiters from all areas of the nation, the East Coast and West Coast have deserted this year. "San Diego School District has recruited at SIU every year since 1954 but they cancelled in 1972," Largent said. He estimates the actual number of recruiters on campus is down 65 per cent from 1968.

Charles Gray, placement service counselor, said that some of the recruiters are on campus for public relations purposes and really have no positions to offer. Gray said the recruiters who have jobs to offer are very particular about who they interview.

"They now want someone who is specifically trained for that type of work," Gray said. "They no longer look for potential but for someone who will be immediately productive. While there used to be many recruiters who would talk to all majors, the only one I can think of right now is Hallmark Cards." He added that this situation especially hurts the liberal arts grad who is not specifically trained for anything.

Charles Rosenbarger, chief adviser in the School of Business, said today's situation puts the employers in the buyer's market. He tells graduating students to be prepared to sell himself in order to find a job. Most business majors take jobs that are actually their second or third choice, he said.

That seems to typify the situation over most of the campus this year. Some areas are hot, others are cold; the grad needs to break into the hot areas in some way to place himself in the job market. Job outlook, as it pertains to the various schools connected to the university, is an ever-changing situation. Many specialized fields that display need for new grads one-quarter, fill up by the next. Here is what the market looks like in May 1972.

School of Technology

Dean Thomas Jefferson in the School of Technology said the outlook in this area is still poor but shows signs of improving. "To find a good position this year," he said, "a beginner will really have to dig."

Jefferson said that 10-year predictions in the field of engineering indicate about a 40 per cent increase in demand. He said that certain areas of engineering, such as environmental and thermal engineering hold more promise than some of the more traditional forms.

Other areas within the school are suffering mainly from the current economic situation and will be improving with better times, Jefferson said. He said that career education has an especially bright future as high schools begin to accept that concept of education.

Of those reporting to the placement service, about 75 per cent of the 1971 grads within the School of Technology found jobs in their field. The CPS survey indicated a 10 per cent increase in demand for engineers in 1972. The Michigan State survey found fields hiring technology grads were experiencing little or no improvement in 1972 but a slight improvement over the next three years. Salaries for bachelor's level engineers are expected to rise one-half per cent in 1972.

Larry Eastwood, a senior in career education, said he has found job-hunting tough. "They're looking for the best," he said, "and if you're not it you may as well hang it up."

School of Communications

Dean Horton Talley put the job outlook in this field in very blunt perspective. "Supply has surpassed demand for trained people in communications," he said.

Talley placed theater in the worst position for job opportunity and broadcasting in the best because of the development of cable television. Speech and journalism fall somewhere in between. He advises students to develop more flexible educations to put them in the market for more jobs because media positions are becoming fewer and fewer.

Salaries in the communication field will not rise in 1972. The Michigan State survey indicates there will be no more jobs in 1972 and only a slight upturn over the next three years. A placement official on the Chicago Circle campus of the University of Illinois listed the journalism profession as a "total disaster."

Tom Steinkamp, graduating senior in journalism, said he has been completely frustrated in looking for a job within the journalistic field. He said he "will most definitely begin looking for other types of employment."

In 1971 only about 60 per cent of the graduates found jobs within their respective communications fields. Listed among the 1971 grads were a janitor and a truck driver. "The only thing we can hope," (Continued on Page 15)

Higher percentage of jobs available to VTI graduates

Talley said, "is that things pick up with the economy."

Vocational Technical Institute

Assistant Dean for Academic Affairs Marvin Hill said the job market for VTI grads is very good. "There is a tremendous demand for well-trained technicians in all fields," Hill said.

Last year, VTI placed an average of 95 per cent of its grads. Commercial art and data processing were the only two areas to fall below 90 per cent. They were 85 and 80 per cent respectively.

Hill said recruiting levels on the VTI campus have kept pace with the 1968 levels and foresees even better recruiting in future years. Placement of 1972 grads will be as good as last year, Hill said.

All areas on the VTI campus are hot and no grad who is looking will have a hard time finding a job, Hill said. He said those that did not find jobs last year were mostly girls who opted to marry and not pursue their career.

The Michigan State survey showed a good demand for trained technicians in the automotive and health service industries. The NU survey revealed salaries for trained technicians will rise nearly five per cent in 1972.

School of Agriculture

Dean Wendell Keeper said he looks for a definite increase in employment in the field of agriculture in 1972. He said salaries will probably not rise but more jobs will be available this summer.

Forestry will not pick up because national enrollment has exceeded demand for trained foresters, Keeper said.

School of Agriculture placement figures indicate a major slowdown in the field over the last three years. In 1968, the percentage of grads taking miscellaneous or unknown jobs stood at a record low of 1.9 per cent. This figure climbed to a record high of 26.1 per cent in 1971.

The Michigan State survey found job opportunities for agriculture grads to be limited with priority planned for veterans' hiring in 1972. The three-year outlook found an increasing need for college grads in agriculture.

Ken Knop, graduating senior in agriculture, said he was optimistic about the job situation this year. He said personal contacts help in the field of agriculture. Knop speculated that most of those graduating in June would find jobs by the end of summer if they really look.

School of Agriculture figures show there was a substantial increase in the number of grads taking jobs with the government in 1971 and 1972.

School of Business

Charles Rosenbarger, chief adviser, said employment is up about 15 per cent this year for business grads but estimated only about 50 per cent of the graduating seniors had firm job offers with six weeks remaining before graduation.

He said jobs in business are going to those aggressive enough to go out and really look. He noted a definite demand for women graduates in business this year.

Accounting was the hottest area in the business field this year. Substantial increases in demand were indicated by employers in both the Michigan State and Northwestern surveys. The CPC poll indicated a nine per cent increase for business grads in general. Salaries will rise slightly but not as much as the cost of living this year.

Don Adams, adviser in the economics department, said all areas are not picking up as rapidly as accounting but many grads with some type of business background are first choices for management trainee positions. These jobs used to go to anyone with a degree, he said.

Nearly 85 per cent of the 1971 graduates of the School of Business found jobs within their fields. Business education majors had the roughest time with only about 60 per cent finding teaching jobs.

School of Education

The Illinois Board of Higher Education instructed the SIU

teacher education program to reduce graduates by 20 per cent over the next two years. The Board said this was necessary to prevent further glutting of the teaching market in Illinois.

Dean Elmer Clark said all teaching areas are not overcrowded, but some of the most popular are in very bad shape. He said a quota system will be invoked to make students aware of which fields are still open. "This will undoubtedly channel some of the students into these fields," Clark said.

The School of Education has classified each field according to future demand determined by national and state trends and analysis of recent SIU teacher placement.

The completely overcrowded fields will be decreased by 50-60 per cent, while fields still in heavy demand will not be decreased at all. Fields falling in between will be decreased by appropriate amounts.

These fields rated greatly overcrowded were business education, English, men's physical education, and all social studies. The only field rated crowded was speech. Fields that are limited in demand were are, agriculture, biological sciences, elementary education, home economics, and music.

Fields still heavy in demand were chemistry, career education, physics, special education, and speech pathology. Fields still with some demand were foreign languages, general sciences, journalism, mathematics and women's physical education.

Liberal Arts and Sciences - Humanities

An LAS education does not lead to "a job" but does qualify the graduate for many types of work especially in the service areas, said D. L. Gobert, dean of the humanities section of the College of Liberal Arts.

"The LAS grad who is not going to teach or do graduate work has always had to look for work," Gobert said. "Now he has to look a little harder but there is still a place for the LAS grad in society."

Only about 60 per cent of the humanities grads found jobs related to their major field in 1971. Linguistics still offers fair opportunity but fields such as philosophy offer almost none at all, Gobert said.

LAS - Social and Behavioral Sciences

Government and history are the hardest hit in this area, according to D. E. Christiansen, dean of the behavioral science section of LAS. Most jobs in this field are found by specializing in subfields such as urban problems, health care, or housing development, Christiansen said. Liberal Arts education is only a starting point for this type of specialized training, he said.

Last year, grads in the social and behavioral sciences had about 65 per cent success in finding jobs related to their education. Geography was the best while government, psychology and history had mostly poor opportunity.

LAS - Physical and Life Sciences

The long range outlook in physical and life sciences is especially bright, according to E. H. Hadley, dean of the physical and life sciences section of liberal arts. A reorganizing of national priorities toward environmental conquests is providing a shot in the arm, Hadley said.

The Northwestern survey indicates that salaries are rising about five per cent in most of these areas. The survey also indicates there will be nearly a 40 per cent increase in employment of chemistry and physics grads.

The CPC survey predicts a 20 per cent increase in demand for degrees in mathematics and the life sciences.

Only about 25 per cent of the 1971 grads in these areas took employment unrelated to their education.

field that is actually restricting admissions because of overcrowded job markets. According to Jerry Pfaff, director of admissions at SIU, the university has no admission restriction policy on any of the other academic programs. If the student qualifies, he is allowed to enter the program, Pfaff said.

Many of the academic deans in the various departments expressed a desire to inform each student of the job prospects they are likely to encounter in a particular field, but did not favor outright restriction.

Dean Horton Talley said he did attempt to restrict admissions to the School of Communications but was told such restrictions could be imposed only when the department was unable to handle the volume of students wanting to be admitted.

Pfaff said that he is confident students will shy away from the terribly crowded fields, thereby restricting them without the aid of university policy. He said there may be some time lag but eventually an equilibrium between job market and trained persons will be reached. The fact that the 185 companies surveyed by the Northwestern Placement Service had an average of 42 applications for every position filled by a college graduate last year is blunt testimony to the fact that such an equilibrium has not yet been reached.

Tops in zoology

Michael Henry of Sumner (right) is winner of the 1972 Charles L. Foote Award in Zoology. The honor goes yearly to the top-ranking upperclass zoology major and is named after the late Charles L. Foote, professor of Zoology at SIU. Presenting it are George Garoian, chairman of the zoology department, and Florence Foote, physiology department acting chairman and Foote's widow. Henry expects to be graduated in December.

Music workshop slated for summer

By University News Service

Two workshops in music for exceptional children will be held at SIU this summer under sponsorship of the SIU-based regional Instructional Materials Center for Handicapped Children in cooperation with the SIU departments of music and special education.

The first, July 24-28, will be a follow-up for those persons who attended a short course in this field last summer at SIU. It will deal with music for the mentally disturbed or retarded, the blind, the deaf and the trainable.

The second, July 31-Aug. 4, is an outgrowth of a series of three one-day meetings conducted across the state in the fall of 1970. Registration will be limited to 60 participants, with preference given to teachers already involved in work with handicapped children, particularly the mentally retarded, the perceptually handicapped, and the physically handicapped.

Graduate or undergraduate credit of three hours may be earned for either workshop through the SIU Division of Continuing Education. Tuition for each will be $10 per credit hour.

Clinicians for the July 24-28 course will include Theodore Williams, music therapist, Stockton (Calif.) State Hospital; Marie

Shaker, Jacksonville State School for the Blind; and Charmine Young, pre-school specialist, Instructional Materials Center, Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and other teachers of the deaf and trainable.

Guest clinician for the July 31-Aug. 4 workshop will be Lane Ann Dexter, music therapist at the Fraser School, Minneapolis, Minn. Other specialists on the staff will include Robert Smith, University of Illinois, Marjorie Reeves of Springfield, and specialists from the state superintendent's office.

SIU music faculty members will serve as consultants or resource teachers for both sessions.

Electricity cut off for campsites at lake

Electrical service for public useage to all campsites at Crab Orchard Lake Campground will be discontinued immediately. Project Manager Arch Mehrhoff of Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge has announced.

A recent inspection by the regional safety officer pointed out electrical hazards in the public useage areas of the campground, located behind Pirates Cove on Route 13 East of Carbondale.

According to Mehrhoff, individual receptacles at the campground are not large enough for present-day camping needs, and are not tamper-proof devices.

Fuses have been removed and receptacles hot wired, leaving live electrical wires exposed, he said.

Mehrhoft said funds are not available to replace the existing electrical service with tamper-proof receptacles.

"Electrical service is being discontinued in order to properly protect the visiting public," Mehrhoff said. "We realize this action will cause many problems, but we feel there is no other alternative available to us."

Trackmen take Central Collegiates

Hill, MVP Crockett are double winners

Saluki track coaches Lew Hartzog and Aubrey Dooley were all wet Saturday evening. And they loved it.

The jubilant head man and his assistant were dunked in a steeplechase pond on the northern edge of McAndrew Stadium by their equally happy track Salukis.

The Salukis had just ran away with the outdoor Central Collegiate Conference championship to make themselves double-triple crown winners, sixth victories in six major track meets in as many tries.

It marks the first time Southern has won the coveted outdoor title of the CCC, a meet that can be dubbed a "mini-NCAA" SIU amassed 167 points to runnerup Tennessee's 98 in a meet that included three conference team champions and six NCAA individual titlists.

The Salukis managed to pull off: —Two double winners: sprint ace Ivory Crockett in the 100 and 220 yard dashes plus distanceman Dave Hill in the mile and three mile runs.

—Seven first places in 20 events. Besides two each to Crockett and Hill, the Salukis won the two relays and 440-yard dash (Terry Erickson) while not placing at all in only three events.

The 5-foot-5 Crockett—who has acquired the nicknames of Rocket, Mr. Reliable and Cricket while running the last three years at Southern—set stadium and CCC records in the 100 (9.2) and 220 (20.7) and help tie a Central mark as anchorman in the 440-yard relay (40.4).

The 9.2 clocking in the 100 tied the school record and equaled an earlier performance which was the best in the nation this year. Crockett's time is one-tenth of a second off the world record, a mark held by many world-class sprinters.

Crockett's 220 time of 20.7 was four-tenths of a second off his nation-best showing earlier this month.

"I'm pretty disappointed with my time," said Crockett after his 220 race. "The long curve at the north end of McAndrew's track really slowed me down. I probably lost around four-tenths of a second down there."

"I suppose I should be satisfied," he continued. "My performances this year have been pretty consistent. I guess that shows that I'm pretty good."

The news media which covered the meet thought Crockett was pretty good, too. They voted to give him the John P. Nicholson trophy for the meet's outstanding performer.

What did Crockett think of the competition? "In this particular race I had real good competition," he said. "They almost caught me loafing. They made me really push at the end."

While Crockett was burning up the sprints, teammate Hill was racking up 20 points in the distances as 2,500 stadium fans including his parents looked on. They came all the way from Three Rivers, Quebec (Canada) to watch him run.

Hill didn't disappoint the fans or his parents. He won the three-mile in 13:40.6 and mile in 4:05.7.

The lanky Canadian fell behind leader Kerry Hogan of Missouri by 15 yards at the beginning of the final lap but sprinted the last half-lap to win by 10 yards.

In the mile, Hill came within three-tenths of a second of tying the meet mark.

"I thought I ran a good race," said Hill. "The competition was tough. (Dave) Wottle scratched by there were still seven or eight real good runners in the pack."

"I'm just happy to win." Wottle of Bowling Green—who has a sub-four minute clocking in the mile—bowed out and elected to run (and win) the 880 yard run. The Ohioan is the NCAA indoor champ in the 880.

"I was not at all pleased," said Wottle about his 1:48.8 race. "I was trying for a 1:48.3 which I need for the Olympic trials."

"No one set a really good pace for me, and that was part of the problem."

Of the four other NCAA champs competing in the CCC last weekend, only one won his event—triple jumper Barry McClure of Middle Tennessee.

One SIU record fell on Friday, Jack St. John set the new mark in the 3,000 meter steeplechase with a third place 9:03.5. The old record of 9:12.0 was also set by the freshman.

The stadium record in the long jump fell three times Saturday. Saluki freshman Bill Hancock broke it first with a 24-11½ leap. Long strides by Tommy Haynes of Middle Tennessee (25-1) and winner Charles Geter of Tennessee (25-5½) followed.

In all, seven stadium records and two Central Collegiate records were broken over the weekend plus one stadium and CCC mark were tied.

The CCC championship brought Southern's regular season to a close with indoor and outdoor wins under its belt in the Central, Illinois Intercollegiate and Midwestern Conference meets.

The Salukis also have a 4-2 dual meet record with wins over Florida State, Northwestern, Murray State and Illinois. Losses came against Kansas and a disputed one-point decision at Florida.

Hartzog and his Salukis left Monday for the NCAA meet in Eugene, Ore. Southern qualified competitors in at least 10 events.

Just 10 years ago, the Salukis—fresh up from small college ranks—placed fourth in the NCAA championships behind Oregon, Villanova and Southern Cal.

Double winners

Dave Hill spreads his arms while crossing the finish line in the three-mile run over the weekend (above). At right, Ivory Crockett goose-steps toward a win for the Saluki mile relay team. Middle Tennessee and Tennessee runners follow. Both Hill and Crockett were double event winners as host SIU won the outdoor Central Collegiate championships to wind up its regular season.
