Business Educators Meet Here

About 150 heads of schools and departments of business in the Midwest are expected on campus today and Friday for a regional meeting.

They will participate in the Mid-Continent University Association of Collegiate Schools of Business. The conference is sponsored by the SIU School of Business.

"A Blue Skies Look at Schools of Business in the 1970's" is the theme. Charles Hinderman, chairman of the conference, said "It has a very forward-looking format."

Hinderman is assistant to the dean of business education at SIU.

Dean and business department chairmen from regional member and non-member schools are expected to attend. The Mid-Continent East region extends from Iowa to West Virginia and from Kentucky to Minnesota.

The meeting opens with registration at 8 a.m. today. All sessions will be held at the University Center Ballroom except the 9 a.m. Friday session at the Morris Library Auditorium.

Peter Peterson, president of Bell and Howell Co., will speak at today's luncheon. Arthur Wilson, representative to the president, Indiana University, will speak at tonight's dinner.

Mr. Peterson will also discuss "What Should the School of Business Expect of Business?"

Tax Increase Uncertain, Ackley Says

Economic Adviser Talks to Press

The prospect for federal tax increase still depends on facts not yet determined, or still undecided.

This is the position of President Johnson and it was reiterated at SIU Wednesday by the President's chief economic adviser, Gardner Ackley.

He said he had commented on a remark made earlier in the day by another distinguished economist visiting SIU, John K. Galbraith, who said he considered a tax increase "inescapable" after the November election. In so doing, Ackley cited the President's position on the question.

Congress can and will act to "do the right thing" for the economy, Ackley said. He called "measures" the tax increases enacted during the Korean War, and promised re-employment of President Johnson's tax recommendations on a sizeable depreciation this year.

His guess, he told a press conference, is that Congress will act promptly if the President recommends a tax increase in January.

Acting on a proposal of a tax increase has been a "close question" all year. Many advocated it this past spring when the spring sessions of Ackley said.

He did say, however, that the Viet Nam war resulted in increased federal spending as its first impact, but the growth rate has dropped to a "healthy" range during the past two or three quarters.

He expressed the opinion that greater understanding of federal policy—government as calculated to influence the economy—will lead to doing the right thing. He recalled the opposition to cutting taxes during the 1962-63 period after a planned recess to stimulate the economy.

Coronation, Festivities Set Tonight

SIU's 1966 Homecoming queen will be crowned tonight amid all the glory of the ancient Egyptian court.

King Menes, the traditional mysterious sovereign of SIU homecoming, will preside over the ceremony in which Janice K. Ockerby, 1965 homecoming queen, will crown her successor.

The new queen will be crowned from a court of six queens. They were voted on in an all-campus election last Friday. The five runners-up are "May Queens." Candidates are Johnny Belle Black, senior from Rantoul; Janice A. Giacchetti, senior from Gillespie; Sharon K. Johnson, junior from Decatur; Jane Pinkstaff, junior from Springfield; and Sharon Stilte, senior from Dallas City and Nancy Sunderland, senior from Carbondale.

After the coronation the queen and her court will be presented to the public at the queen's reception at 9 p.m. in the University Center Ballroom. The receiving line will include campus dignitaries, refreshments will be served.

Other highlights of the Homecoming weekend are the Homecoming stage show featuring Harry Belafonte, Nipsey Russell's Mouskouri and the Belafonte singers at 8 p.m. Friday in the Arena; the Homecoming parade at 9 a.m. Saturday; the SIU-East Carolina State football game at 1:30 p.m., and an alumni homecoming dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the University Center.

Board Asked to Limit University's Jurisdiction

Campus senators Wednesday rejected a resolution urging the Board of Trustees to incorporate policies into the Constitution of August 15, 1966, that would limit the University's control on motorcycles and autos.

The policy states that the right of the University to control the operation of motor vehicles shall be limited only to the campus and its immediate environs.

The resolution will be referred to a committee for further consideration.

General Studies Senator David Wilson resigned because of what he termed the "feelings of powerlessness, futility and bitterness" that had accompanied his attempts to reach an understanding with the administration on student body policy.

The letter to be sent to parents by Student Body President Bob Drinan is not designed to "put President Morris down," but to ask parents to be concerned with the student situation. It will explain to the parents that the students have a legitimate reason for their actions.

Drinan said the spokesman stated that it is possible that some house- holders and landlords will be present at the meeting.

The Campus Senate resolution called for an examination of present housing and motor vehicle regulations.

Speakers at rallies held in protest of the current regulations have called for a large student attendance at the meeting.

A review of the housing situation was called for at the September Board meeting by chairman Kenneth L. Davis of Harrisburg. At that meeting, students and householder Sidney R. Schoen attempted to speak to the Board but were denied permission because they had not been placed on the agenda.

The spokesman said that administrative personnel, school boards and the press along with a large number of students and other interested persons would overlook the room.

The trustees meeting on the Edwardsville campus is held in a conference room in the President's office there.

Trustees Invite Four Students to Attend Housing, Vehicle Meeting in Edwardsville

Student participation and attendance at the Nov. 10 meeting of the SIU Board of Trustees at Edwardsville will be limited to four official representatives of the student body.

The announcement of the limitation came Wednesday from the President's Office.

The four invited are Bob Drinan, Carbondale campus student body president; Ann Bosworth, Carbondale campus student body vice president; Bard Groose, Carbondale campus senator and cochairman of the University Student Council; and Terry Profton, Edwardsville campus student body president.

The students will speak on a proposal by the Carbondale campus Student Senate for a review of University housing policies by the Board of Trustees.

An assistant to President DeWitt W. Morris said Wednesday the number of students present is being limited because the Board feels it can deal more effectively with a few designated representatives than with a large number of students.

He said that space in the assigned meeting room for the Board session is limited and will not effectively accommodate more students.

The spokesman said that administrative personnel, school boards and the press along with a large number of students and other interested persons would overlook the room.

The trustees meetings on the Edwardsville campus are held in a conference room in the President's office there.

Freshman Swaps Circus Glamour for Books; Served as Clown, Stilt-Man for Ringling

By Jim Hodl

Many freshmen come to college directly from high school. Others, more cosmopolitan, spend some time in the armed forces first. But Robert E. Handley, a first-term freshman majoring in architectural design at VTI, came to SIU after traveling for several years with the Ringling Bros., Barnum and Bailey Circus.

Handley, 21, served the greatest show on earth as a backdoor man, a stilt-man, and a clown. He took Harry Belafonte’s children on a tour of the show, and has a photograph as a souvenir.

Handley’s fascination for the big top led him to become a dropout from high school. He worked for the Circus World Museum in Baraboo, Wis., then left school to join the army for six months, and return to work for Ringling Bros. in the summer of 1962.

He started as a backdoor man. A backdoor man helps set up and take down the circus in each new town. He also loads and unloads the Ringling train and watches the animals backstage during the big show.

Handley became a clown in 1963, working with the great Lou Jacobs. His photograph in clown garb appeared once in Life magazine.

A year later Handley became a stilt-man, and strutted around the ring 10 feet in the air.

His last job with the circus took him from the “show biz” side to the administrative side as assistant supervisor of transportation. But he didn’t get away from the manual labor which is part of any traveling show; he helped load and unload the trains and wagons.

Had he continued with the circus, Handley would have had still a different job, that of photographer. But after finishing high school as a part-time student while he was with the circus, he decided to attend college.

It was a glamorous experience, however, while it lasted. In Seattle, Handley’s boss approached him with a group of people and asked that he show them around the lot. He did, and the children got such a kick out of the tour that they told their father about it.

Their father was Harry Belafonte, who in town with his own show. He wanted to meet the person who had shown his kids such a good time, and did. Someone took pictures of him and Handley together.

Handley says he has met other celebrities, but Belafonte is the most charming and pleasant of the lot.

His circus career also took Handley before the TV cameras as an extra on the “Greatest Show on Earth” program.

He is a student now, but says he still thinks about the circus and he is sure he has a glamorous job waiting for him if the books get on his nerves.

Following his talk here, Percy's train will take him to Carbondale for a speaking engagement Friday evening.
New City Manager Lists Ideas, Plans

C. William Norman, a dynamic newcomer in the Carrollton scene, his new position as city manager, has wasted little time in initiating new plans for better city improvement. Mr. Norman, who is from Florida, has served as city manager for Pinellas Park, Fla., for three years before coming to Carrollton.

He was graduated from the University of Michigan with a bachelor of science degree in civil engineering and a master of science degree in public administration.

The facilities most needed in Carrollton, already been started or are in the planning stage, according to Norman. He said a new city hall is an urgent need. Extensive remodeling of the present building, for the required city’s needs. At the present city is working with architects to use the building and the available space from the west to the south.

Norman said Carbondale voters turned down a proposal to build a new city hall a long time which would have authorized the creation of a body to plan and build a new city hall. The proposed plan would have been financially by revenue bonds.

The proposed building authority would have been sold and the city constructed the structure and leased it to the city.

Office space is lacking in the present building. In addition, the building and the city suffers because of the noise, people of being made to meet SIU growths. If the work force is ever up dated, a real demand will be added for additional city hall space.

Norman said the city already has a need for a public works department and a city planning department to augment the City Planning Commission at the present time. The survey also indicated a need for a finance department but the proposed additions are counted, Norman said many good ideas were initiated before the came. He was pleased by the number of citizens groups working on various projects.

Carbondale is unusual in having so many groups taking an active part in city government. There are 10 advisory or administrative boards in the city and it is a major effort to coordinate them, he said.

Referring to traffic problems created by the University, Norman said that a former study is being revised to determine further action. Norman said present energy is being devoted to what has been started.

He was impressed with the activity of the city government and with the progress made in civil rights, "Carbondale is a community of people, not only of men, but of more than many other cities," he continued.

Norman said that urban renewal and public housing accounts for more of the activity in the other city in this part of the state than the planning and open housing by the Carbondale Real Estate Association. In the same way, city influence, has been requested by many cities as a guide for help in organizing such a program.

Today's Student Conservative, Harvard Sociologist Asserts

Many attempts have been made to define their generation, some observers calling them the "flower power" generation, others calling them "the worst generation," etc. Harvard sociologist, challenging the university administration, professor of sociology, marching for civil rights.

To others, today's students are the voice of society and politics indifference, seeking to escape from the world and its problems, looking for refuge in psychedelic experience or narcotics. Still others view the young generation as hopelessly obsessed with sex.

To all these views of youth today, Prof. Seymour M. Lipset, Harvard sociologist, provides a different perspective. Examining public opinion surveys, he finds that "a picture, not of campus radicalism, but of campus conservatism and passing away. Students may be described as politically passive, socially conservative and environmentally liberal.

He sees the average student presented with his personal objectives in life, eager to get into the best universities and best graduate schools as the most effective way to his future career. The pressures of competition cause him to study hard. Besides, the results of cases do they contribute to a growing suicide rate and lead to beatnck escapism or political radicalism. "Progressive Literacy" shows some available evidence to show that most students support the Vietnam war, continue long established patterns of sexual behavior, and show little but "more concern and more involvement in religious activities on campus." The more radical and the more bizarre get by far the most publicity. The professor warns that undue fascination with these movements may result in our failure to discern the needs of the more passive, conventional majority.

It is a timely warning. High schools should enable us to view the younger generation in clearer perspective.

An Answer to Tight Money? Just 'Blow, Gabriel, Blow!'

By Arthur Hoppe

Ronald Reagan gave a smashing address to the California Savings and Loan League's convention in Carson City, the day before it was a great lunch, too. But personally, I liked the invocation best.

As all the banker types stood over their avocado salad in the pesky dining room of the Hotel Coronado, the Rev. Roger B. Schalm, pastor of the local Resurrection Lutheran Church, devoutly invoked the urgently-needed blessings of the Lord in, as he put it, "these days of tight money."

Now there's a timely, hard-bitting prayer. And I know we all hope it will be granted. But I can't help worrying a bit about how it's going to be received.

So, have a message in his hands, and you necessary

The Chairman (worryingly): Let's see, there's a super nova coming in Galactica XII Region, Orion's Belt is exploding, and I've definitely noticed a disturbance in the Big Dipper. If it's not one thing, it's another. What have you got there?

Gabriel: An urgent message from earth, Sir.

The Chairman (worryingly): That trouble spot? If it isn't famine, flood, pestilence or war, it's pollution, erosion and blight. Really, the way they run down the property and then come around pleading for help, they're dubious investment. Well, what is it this time? Gabriel: Tight money, Sir. The Chairman: Tight money, eh? That's a new one, (laughing). Well, I suppose I'll have to do something. Get off an inspiration right away to the Federal Reserve Board to reduce the prime interest rate.

Now, let's see, about that super nova in Galactic XII, if I... Gabriel: Excuse me, Sir, but reducing the prime interest rate will set in motion definite inflationary pressures on the entire economy and... The Chairman: What? Oh, I suppose you're right. Well, then, have them knock off interest tax credits to discourage plant expansion. Now, about Orion's belt, if hoist up herculean couple a million light-years and...

Gabriel: Forgive me, Sir, but they've got nothing immediate enough. Furthermore, they're worried about its overall long-range deflationary tendencies.

The Chairman: Deflation, eh? Then they'll be on our back again at the first sign that they've got a million cosmic problems on his hands, and you come in every once in a while with one of their pleas for help. (wearily) Well, let's see, to create a balanced money market with neither inflationary nor deflationary pressures, (suddenly elated) I've got the solution! I don't know why I didn't think of it sooner. Gabriel (eagerly): What do you want me to do, Sir?

The Chairman (with an airy wave of dismissal): Blow, Gabriel, blow.

Viet War Strengthens Soviet Bloc

To the editor:

While P. S. Randall's interesting letter in which he points out the necessity of maintaining a strong military in Vietnam. I can agree that it is necessary, but cannot agree that more force is the answer to the Viet Nam problem.

If there is one observation to be drawn from the past, it must be that political relationships are extremely complex in development and relatively unaffected by small scale events. The individual who is cognizant of the big trends in world politics will find the Viet Nam war is probably small-scale, and is certain to change until we force it into a much larger confrontation.

I believe that the next era of world history will result from relationships between the United States, USSR, and Red China. Should any of these two or the other nation—the rest of the world, and the future—become politically ineffective. Through our presence in Vietnam, we are alienating the USSR and provoking China, who are both branches of the same Soviet alliance at the very time that this alliance is tentative and vulnerable. What is more, we are weakening our own position and, in the last analysis, we are weakening our own democracy. Therefore, we should not consider the Viet Nam war in terms of war, but in terms of a world of peace.

Viet Nam Fixes Vivid Memories for Alum

By Bob Poos

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—An odd thing happened to me today. I put on a tie and went to work. No one shot at me.

My associates here, a few days ago were soldiers and they wore lightweight jungle fatigues or camouflaged “tiger suits.” They were soldiers from the United States, Viet Nam, Korea, Australia and New Zealand.

They were Filipinos I shall never forget. A few times they were responsible for my remaining alive, and some of them died in the performance of their duty.

Anyone who witnesses a war retains indelible impressions of it. It is a bludgeon of mine, whack, whack, of helicopter blades getting a good bite on the air as they head in, noise down, to a landing zone. Green and brown rice paddies below that look like a bright patchwork quilt.

A helicopter crew chief shouting over the engine’s roar: “Be ready to get out quick. We ain’t going to be down long.” Soldiers 18 and 19 years old, teeth clenched in anticipation, leaping out, yelling and dashboarding for cover.

The sickness that a bullet makes when it smacks into human flesh and bone.

One night with a company of U.S. cavalrymen enduring rain, mortar shells, sheaves of machine-guns and rifle fire, short rounds from their own artillery and the certain knowledge that they were outnumbered, cut off and surrounded. Rows of them were lying dead and wounded in a captured enemy trench. Yet no one through that endless night uttered a whimper.

The morning. The roundhouses, the mortar shells dropped into tubes with a “chunk” and the fearful wait for them to come as they lay huddled in a hole. The aftermath, picking up bodies.

Tough little Vietnamese airborne soldiers and marines, aged 17 and 18, with obsolete American equipment, going out on operations such as “Hog So. 176,” which means that they had swept the area 176 times before.

The U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division coming to Viet Nam more than a year ago, fresh-faced, eager and hopeful that their concept of how to fight a guerrilla war would prove successful.

It did. The survivors evolved into lean, tough professionals before they lined up at the An Khe airstrip to go home after making history in the Bagong Valley, the second Dang Son and the Sai Cu Valley.

Through, battalions of the 183rd and 110th Airborne Brigades who grimly as they watched the last Cavalry get its feet wet.

Then there were the always solid, U.S. Marines going on endless patrols, plagued by their long, awful laments about fighting the so-called “lightning war” with fighting hordes of North Vietnamese along the demilitarized zone.

One can never forget the might and majesty of the U.S. 7th Fleet sailing serenely in the South China Sea, its 8-inch guns hammering endlessly at unseen targets, its carriers planes forever taking off and landing on flight decks.

Likewise one never forgets countless times of Viet Nam’s young men allowing fear and charge into fortified enemy positions as machine-gun bullets mugged through smoke and gas.

And the warm bottles of beer shared in Vietname village with shifty soldiers.

Bearded, dirty men in rotting uniforms sharing their C rations with absolute equality whether they were big or small, white or Indians.

Sometimes it takes something as foul and dirty as war to bring out the best in men: medics risking their lives to take care of a riflemen dashing across bullet-swept ground to drag back that dangerous man Helped by the dawn sharing his meager rations with a bewildered, weeping child left homeless by battle.

And the “clean war,” the sweep down from 5,000 feet to 50 feet from the ground in Skylarkers, or jet unloading bombs, rockets and napalm, burning, twisting, writhing and cool red beer to return to—if they return.

Recollections include waiting long hours at airbases trying to get thinking some of the while that you really don’t want to go to them.

Last of all one remembers getting on a big, shiny, commercial jet airplane at Saigon’s Ton Nguen Van Cu airport to go to Phnom Penh, perhaps for good. And feeling rather like a traitor to be going.

Spirited Filipinos Create Economic Stalemate

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

MANILA, Philippines — Across Manila Bay, where 68 years ago Admiral George Dewey gained history’s most one-sided naval victory (Spanish fleet sunk, no American sailors killed), the patient jungles of Corregidor are ed (patience), the patient jungles of Corregidor are

The bay marks the beginning of the short-lived American Empire. Some congressman, jealous of the far sweep of the British dominions, did entertain a momentary hope we might find some other exotic lands on which we could plant the Stars and Stripes. But the American people, preoccupied with their own Great West, were uninterested. Only the Philippines became an American “protectorate” that smelled like a colony.

Corregidor marked the end of the American Empire. After World War II, in gratitude for Philippine resistance and in sympathy for their agony under Japanese occupation, we hastily ratified the long-promised Philippine independence. For 20 years now our one “colony” has been aloof on the seas of freedom, its sails filled occasionally by gales of American- Philo.

Not so hot.

The 32 million Filipinos occupy an archipelago of 13 major islands stretching 10,000 miles from north to south. It is one of the richest agricultural regions on earth. But the per capita gross national product has not risen in the past five years. There have been recent rice shortages. Manila’s streets are a profusion of chuck holes and puddles. In mid-September President Ferdinand Marcos hurried to Washington to seek more American aid. What’s wrong?

One of the most engaging characteristics of the educated Filipino is his power to eloquent self-criticism. So let’s him tell it.

A few weeks ago, Xavier University in Manila called a seminar to consider the self-defeating mental habits of Filipinos.

Congressman Emmanuel Pelaez hit at “pork barrel mentality” the wasteful belief of many citizens that if they can only find the right president, or governor, or mayor, prosperity will arrive for all.

One general priest observed that few students want technical education that requires hard, devoted work. “Everyone” he said, “is looking for positions high in prestige and low in labor.”

Psychologist Louis V. Lapuz says the rural Filipino is security-minded. He will put up with marginal living as long as no risks are involved. This has made him family tied to support him in times of difficulty. But this also discourages any attempt to become prosperous, for if he does so, poorer relatives will simply move in.

Juan Flaviez of the Philippine Rural Reconstruction movement described a family that grew so skillful at bamboo weaving it began to hire workers and set up a factory. All the poor relations not only demanded jobs but they began to eat with the family. The factory was closed. The level of public ethics in the Philippines is a matter of people. It is estimated that less than 75 per cent of legal customs duties are collected because the collectors are not underpaid, underweight, undermining, undervaluing. As in many parts of the Middle East, wealthy Filipinos are defrauding the government in lieu of taxes; the one sardonic Admiral Thomas H. Blackhall says, “They have tax laws they’d be giving foreign aid, rather than asking for it.”

The crime rate is terrific and there are loud complaints that known gangsters get end legal protection from their trials.

Manila Times columnist Maximo Soliven says: “[Below the presidential level] everything tends to blow out. Because our politicians know their superiors to be crooked they can’t enforce discipline below without risking exposure. As for the incompetent, they believe in playing safe by not doing anything at all. The result is stagnation and stagnation.”

Economic writer Teodoro Valencia says: “We are a really poor country. Our poverty is of the spirit.”

Sen. Jovito Salonga warned that the moment Filipinos come to believe they can solve all their problems, “they are lost.”

Although the majority in the nascent middle class, the small farmers, businessmen, and industrialists, are among the richest people in the world while the Filipinos, sitting in a potential treasure house, earn an estimated $90 a year, anthropologist Marcelino Maceda mourns “People have retained their uneconomic culture.”

“Uneconomic culture.” This explains why Americans have to some extent achieved marvelous results, as in Taiwan, and aid to others, as in Laos, disappears without a trace, a matter of people.

Some day we may have to steel ourselves to say, “Look, Bunker, when you scrape off your barnacles and fix the rudder we’ll talk about helping you get up more steam.”

But since that time, the level of public understanding of fiscal policy has increased.
Many politicians now take the position that "the right thing to do for the economy is also the best politics," Ackley declared.
He also questioned whether the term "inflation" was the right word to describe the price movements. Prices are up about 3 1/2 per cent over a year ago, but this comes at the end of a period of price stability dating back to 1959 and in Ackley's expressed opinion, the record is "far better" than for any other trading partners of the United States.
Furthermore, the price level is balanced against a 25 per cent expansion in the economy.
Food prices, he said, have been the biggest factor in the increase in the cost of living. The answer is complicated, Ackley said, but the higher prices have served to stimulate supplies and these effects are now being felt in leveling off prices.
His guess, he said, is that food prices will be level to declining for the rest of this year, but it's difficult to predict next year's levels. He mentioned weather, and heavier exports, as factors.
He also foresees employment as "very healthy" at present, with the unemployment level at about 3 3/4 per cent. He described the outlook as "extremely bright, overall," but said a serious problem remains in a "disturbingly, high rate for Negroes," and particularly for Negro teen-agers.
The September rate for them was over 14 per cent unemployed and Ackley said this was higher in ghettos areas.

Ackley is chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers and was on campus to deliver the School of Business lecture Wednesday night in Davis Auditorium in the Wham Educational Building.

The bus service operated by the student government has accommodated more student riders in the first month of operation this year than it had in a three-month period in 1965, according to William C. Gard, a spokesman for Auxiliary Enterprises.
Gard said a report submitted to his office Oct. 21 showed that over 29,000 riders had been counted since the beginning of the fall quarter. This already exceeds the 25,000 riders reported for the entire fall quarter of last year, he said.
"The obvious reason for this spectacular increase in student riders," Gard said, "is due in part to the addition of another separate run, instead of running two buses daily, we are running three.
"It is safe to say," he added, "that the increase is also due to the reduced number of motorcycles and cars on campus.
"The fare has also been decreased from 10 cents to 5 cents," Gard said, "and there are definitely more off-campus dormitories and other living areas that we are trying to accommodate.
A density chart was compiled at the beginning of this quarter to determine the routes that would yield the most riders," Gard said.
However, according to Gard, the service is definitely operating at a loss. The cost per mile per hour will never be paid for in fares, he said.
"This does not worry us," he said. "This is to be expected with any service operation. We did not plan to come out ahead from the start. We are just interested in offering a service to the students with a minimum of cost to them."
Gard said that the service last year also operated at a loss.
"Needless to say, we are not going to discontinue the service because of the loss," Gard said. "In fact, we are thinking of running more buses when the weather gets bad."
"As it is now," he said, "if we are overcrowded at time so the 7 to 9 a.m. runs to University City and Greek Row. The buses are filling, and on occasion, we've had to leave students because of lack of space.
"We plan to put back-up buses on these routes when the weather gets bad to collect the overflow," he said.

Civil Rights Seen as Issue
In Percy-Douglas Campaign

"Civil rights is the most important issue in this election, and there is nowhere else that it is more sharply etched than in Illinois," said John Kenneth Galbraith, in support of Sen. Paul Douglas' candidacy for re-election.

Speaking to about 200 persons Wednesday at the University Center Ballroom, the Harvard economist and author of "The Affluent Society," said: "We should make no mistake on the issue of peace versus violence, for there is only one source of peace and tranquility—and that is justice.

He said Douglas has always been "a leader" in civil rights legislation, and expressed doubt of Douglas' opponent, Charles Percy.

Galbraith said Percy has "taken both positions" on open-occupancy legislation, depending upon whether he spoke to white or Negro audiences. (Percy has denied the charge, also made by Douglas, and leveled similar charges against Douglas.)

When civil rights legislation was directed against the Southern forms of discrimination, Galbraith said, "Even the more seasonal of summer soldiers could get in on the fight, including (Senator) Everett Dirksen and Percy and other wavering stalwarts."

"But now the fight has moved to the north, and such items as open occupancy and the Head Start program will affect more people than does access to Lester Maddox's stewed chicken."

Galbraith said that as the "fight for civil rights was 'nationalized,' it has run into problems—and the summer soldiers now are gone."

Violence in the streets, he said, has led many people to declare that "all progress should come to a halt and that justice and decency don't pay, that the only thing to do is to fall back on the strong arm of the law."

He said he did not agree with "those who would prolong violence over another 100 years by pretending to champion law and order."

On other issues he said: That Douglas has been "standing guard" over the nation's oil-shale deposits on public land, against a "most rapacious collection of speculators," the oil companies.

That Douglas has fought the proliferation of big capital gains tax breaks and stock options, and he said "Percy has declared himself solidly on the side of the rich."

On Douglas' age (74) versus Percy's (47), he noted that Douglas had joined the Marine Corps at the age of 50, and characterized him as "a man of mental and physical vigor."

And on whether SIU students over 21 are having their civil rights abridged by being denied the right of free choice of housing, Galbraith said: "I will take a strong stand on the side of righteousness on that."

Business Students Work With Faculty On Committees

The School of Business faculty has approved a resolution allowing members of the School of Business Student Council to serve on faculty committees.

Through membership on these committees, the students will be able to project their interests and ideas to the faculty members, said Donald N. Batesen, assistant dean of the School of Business.

The students will serve on these committees: Business Bulletin, radio series, lecture series, seminars, social, library, and superior student programs committees.

Miss Harrison Elected Nursing League Head

Virginia H. Harrison, former chairman of the Department of Nursing, has been elected president of the Southern Illinois League for Nursing.

Mary L. Friess, former secretary in the department, was elected treasurer, and Sister Mary Bede of Murphysboro was appointed secretary to fill Miss Harrison's unexpired term as secretary.

The league was organized in the late 1940s under the guidance of Miss Harrison. Since her retirement from the Nursing Department in 1965 she has been working part-time in the General Studies student advisement program.
LBJ Flies to Viet Nam

CAM RANH BAY, South Viet Nam (AP) — President Johnson, as commander in chief of U.S. forces, flew here in wartime secrecy Wednesday and rubbed elbows with the Cam Ranh Bay contingent of the 300,000 American fighting men in Vietnam.

"We in America depend on you, the young and on the brave, to stop aggression before it sweeps forward, for then it must be stopped by larger sacrifice and a heavier cost," he told them.

Flanked by platoons of armed helicopters circling overhead for protection as Johnson arrived in Viet Nam, he looked to a relatively secure seaside base north of Saigon.

He spoke of popular anger over the war.

"I left Washington to cover a national story," Johnson said, "but I was surprised by the response of the people in the area to this visit.

"The visit was a success because of the strong support I received here and because of the confidence the men and women in the area had in their country's leadership.

"The visit was an opportunity to re-examine the reasons for the war and to reaffirm the commitment of the people of this country to the cause of their country.

"The visit was an opportunity to show the people of this country that the war is not a battle of the United States, but a battle of the American people."

Johnson's Visit
To S. Viet Nam
Not 'Unexpected'

TOKYO (AP) — Hans' off-the-record visit to South Viet Nam, reported President Johnson's visit to South Viet Nam "surprised nobody since he had already been there.

"But the fact that he had to cover his flight in a veil of complete secrecy showed his fear for his own life before the great flames of people's war in South Viet Nam.

"It also showed what extent the U.S. imperialists are afraid of an outburst of popular anger of the Saigonese people as well as the people in the whole world at their criminal scheme to intensify their war of aggression in Viet Nam."

In War Zone; 43 Die

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A raging fire that broke out Wednesday on a carrier wasablaze for days, and fighting men were mowed down. The fire started about 7:00 a.m. shortly before President Johnson visited American troops at the base, in downtown Saigon.

Sixteen other men were injured seriously in the blaze. Two helicopters were destroyed and four A-4E Skyhawk fighter-bombers were damaged. The captain, a veteran of the Korean War, was expected to go to Subic Bay in the Philippines for repairs.

Fast action by plane crew and fire fighters prevented rockets, bombs and fuses from going off, and a greater loss of life and equipment.

The Navy launched an investigation into the cause of the fire, which raged out of control for three hours.

In Washington, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, who visited the Oriskany two weeks ago during a tour of Viet Nam, extended his ground combat than any president since Abraham Lincoln.

Not since World War II and Franklin D. Roosevelt, has any chief executive ventured into a war zone, Dwight D. Eisenhower went to Korea in 1952, and LBJ Flies to Viet Nam.

Johnson was at one moment the rambunctious commander in chief, holding in his stomach and standing tall in kaki ranch clothes that somehow managed to give him a military look, then he would become the friendly, joking politician, ready to exchange banter with all who came his way.

There was the pepe-talk leader urging his field commanders to "come home with that cooskin on the wall."

The President's big message at this sweltering, sandy bastion was this:

"Tell me my pledge: We shall never let you down. Thank you for what you are doing for your country."

While he was in Viet Nam he was guarded by only eight Secret Service agents, an unusually small number.

He was Secretary of State Dean Rusk and a small White House group. Johnson was back in his suite with Mrs. Johnson at the time the President-elect realized he had been missing.

President Johnson Will Visit
Thailand Airbase, Bangkok

MANY (AP) — Safely back from Viet Nam, President Johnson leaves Thursday for a personal look at Thailand, the nation many believe is next on the Communist timetable for conquest in Asia.

He goes first to an airbase in Thailand, and Friday will begin his state visit to Bangkok. Next week he goes on to Malaysia, and later South Korea, before returning home.

The President was missing from the Philippines just under seven hours. His schedule had called for a speech to U.S. Embassy personnel. Mrs. Johnson appeared there in his place.

At that time, Johnson was en route to Viet Nam in his Air Force One jet on a trip which was a closely guarded secret of the President, his Commander in South Viet Nam, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, and Vietname leaders.

UNANIMOUS VOTE
NATO MOVES TO BELGIUM

PARIS (AP)—The Atlantic alliance decided Wednesday to get its political headquarters out of France and move it to Belgium.

The decision, taken by the NATO Council, was unanimous. Even the French delegate voted for the transfer to Brussels.

At the same time, France’s NATO allies agreed to a 24-month promise plan for discussions on the alliance role of the 70,000 French troops stationed in Germany.

A brief resolution distributed after the council meeting said, “Considering that the proper functioning of the alliance requires the council to be located near SHAPE headquarters we decide to move the headquarters of the North Atlantic Council to Brussels.”

Bishop Sheen Transferred To Rochester

NEW YORK (AP)—Pope Paul VI named the Most Rev. Fulton J. Sheen to be bishop of Rochester, N.Y., promoting a man with secular popularity such as few Roman Catholic priests ever attained.

Bishop Sheen told a news conference Wednesday he will resign as national director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, but will continue the television programs and two syndicated newspaper columns that have made him a national figure.

At Rochester, he succeeds Bishop James E. Kearney, who asked to retire because of his age. Bishop Kearney will be 82 on Friday. Bishop Sheen is 71.

The Pope also announced Wednesday appointment of the Most Rev. Gerald France O’Keeffe, auxiliary bishop of St. Paul, Minn., as bishop of the Davenport Iowa Diocese. Bishop O’Keeffe succeeds Bishop Ralph Leo Hayes, 80, who also is retiring because of his age.

“I am deeply happy to follow in the footsteps of Bishop Kearney,” Bishop Sheen told newsmen at the residence of Francis Cardinal Spellman.

“The work he has done there makes it very easy for me to be transferred here.”

“I shall miss you very, very much.”

Bishop Sheen said his new duties will afford an opportunity “to be closer to the people.”

Bankers Ask For Tax Hike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Inflation has the American Bankers Association so deeply disturbed that it suggested by convention resolution Wednesday a possible general increase in federal taxes.

“Toward the extent that the control of expenditures does not provide for the achievement of a federal budget surplus, the clear implication is that added revenues must be obtained from a temporary across-the-board increase in federal tax rates,” the adoption said.

The president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce joined the bankers in suggesting a possible tax increase.

“Some say tax cut. I say no,” said Chairman of Hume Oil, told the 10,000 delegates “If, because of Viet Nam and other factors, a balance is not yet restored to the trade and the money supply, and costs for goods and its capacity to produce, the government must be willing to reduce its domestic spending and possibly even increase taxes until the inflationary pressures ease.”

Wright said the federal government, to put the brakes on inflation, should apply the same self-discipline it has asked of private citizens by cutting back on non-defense spending.

“Attempts to blame bankers for what happened on the current conditions will not be accepted by the public as a substitute for fiscal policy on the part of the government,” he said.

Activities Board Sets Six Programs

The Activities Programming Board, a group of students who plan educational and social events for students and faculty, is sponsoring all regular weekly programs this term.

The programs begin with a Convocation Coffee Hour at 11 a.m. each Thursday in the River Rooms of the University Center.

The informal reception honors the convocation speaker or performers for the week, Roger Price, editor of "Grump," a satirical magazine, was a guest at the reception last week. Future guests include Earl Wilson, the syndicated columnist.

The next activity on the program is Cinema Classics, shown each Friday at 8 p.m. in the Classic foreign and American films, "The Great Train Robbery," the first movie to tell a story, are shown.

Programs from the "Bell Telephone Hour" series will be shown in the Wham Auditorium in the Wham Education Building.

A children's program, usually a movie, is given at 2 p.m. on Saturday in Purr Auditorium in the University School. Several Walt Disney movies, including "Aladdin" and "Alice in Wonderland," and "Johnny Tremain," will be shown.

The board is also working to develop children's programs, to show magicians and children's plays.

Savam, a film series based on works of literature, is presented Saturdays at 3 p.m. in Davis Auditorium in the Wham Education Building. Sugar films as "Lord of the Flies" and "The Cardinal," which will be shown Parents Day weekend, are shown.

The last program sponsored by the programming board in October, a combination of Creative Insights and Sunday Seminar which will be presented Sunday, Nov. 6.

No God Movement Seminar Subject

Martin McLean, visiting professor of philosophy from the University of Chicago, will speak at the Sunday Seminar at 3 p.m. Sunday in Room D of the University Center. McLean will talk about "The No God Movement," and play a taped interview with Thomas J. J. Altizer, the father of the "God Is Dead" philosophical movement.

Other activities the Programming Board is sponsoring include bus trips to baseball games, to downtown St. Louis for shopping and on scenic tours of southern Illinois; hayrides and other recreational programs; and dances, which are held Friday and Saturday nights in the University Center.

Among the dances to be held is a "Cafe Night" dance Nov. 18. The new student lounge on the second floor of the University Center will be decorated as a sidewalk cafe for the occasion.

Besides their regularly scheduled programs, the Activities Programming Board sponsors special programs, such as a series of informal discussions between American and foreign students, the first of which was held Oct. 23.

The program's term's program of special events will be the annual Season of Holidays, which celebrates religious observances of several different religions which come in the latter part of December. This year's program includes a semiformal dance, a children's party, an international program, a special conversation with the President's coffee hour.

Members of the Activities Programming Board and their advisors will attend the regional College Union Conference which will be held at the University of Illinois Nov. 18 and 19. The conference is a workshop to help students know what is available for scheduling on programs at college and universite.

Publications Fraternity Schedule Elections

The first meeting of Phi Delta Epsilon, publications honorary fraternity, will be held at 9 p.m. Nov. 2 in the University Center, activities Room D.

Besides the regular business meeting including filling the offices vacant this fall, there will be an initiation for new members.

After the meeting, group pictures for the ODeclaration will be taken.
Storage Space Acute After Warehouse Fire

The fire that razed one of SIU's warehouses in Edwardsville Tuesday has created a critical shortage of storage space, according to James F. Metcalf, director of business services.

Metcalf said the loss amounted to 18,000 feet of storage space that will have to be found elsewhere for the present. He said a study is being conducted to determine whether to acquire a new building or use some of the existing facilities.

Metcalf said there is a possibility that the office spaces and classroom areas of the Wagner complex might be converted to this use. The building that burned down was one of the Wagner group.

Also destroyed in the fire included everything from furniture to paper towels and janitorial supplies, according to Metcalf. He said items like the hand towels will present the greatest immediate problem in shortages.

"The items that were readily available, were not too heavily stocked in the warehouse. It was those materials that took longer to obtain that we had the largest amount, Metcalf said.

He said canned goods used by some of the University food services were also lost in the fire. He said these will have to be replaced quickly.

Although there are other warehouses for SIU, the Wagner complex handles much of the supplies for all of Southern's campuses.

Roy Stone, General Services supervisor, said SIU has enough office supplies and paper stored at Carbondale to operate for about 30 days.

The cause of the fire, which started between 3 and 4 a.m. Tuesday, is still undetermined. It is speculated that it was caused by one of the furnaces overheating.

The value of the contents of the building amounted to about $150,000. The value of the building has not been appraised yet.

Parents of Day Applications Due On Wednesday

Parents of the Day applications must be returned to the information desk of the University Center by 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Two applications will be drawn at random from those submitted.

The winning parents of two surprise winners will be the guests of the University during Parents Day celebrations, Nov. 11-13.

Other Parents Day activities will include a musical highlights variety show at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 11, in Shryock Auditorium. The show will feature the Male Glee Club, Argosy, and individual acts.

Tickets for the Ferrante and Teicher piano recital, 7 and 9:30 p.m. Nov. 12, are on sale at the information desk.

A dance from 8:30 to midnight will feature the Don Lomasters band.

Resident and faculty coffee hours will be held Nov. 13 and after the SIU-Ball State football game at 1:30 p.m. at McAndrew Stadium.

REMAINS OF A WAREHOUSE—This is all that remains of 18,000 square feet of storage space for SIU supplies, following Tuesday's fire at Edwardsville. Materials for both campuses were kept in the building, and the loss of contents alone was estimated at $150,000. The resultant loss of storage space has been called critical.

Mill Street Progresses to Curing Stage

A two-week curing period for the concrete is required before the Mill Street project from University to Oakland will be completed, according to Eugene T. Simon of the Howell Construction Co.

The concrete was being poured Tuesday and Wednesday. Simon expects the pouring would be finished by today.

"After that, we hope that things will be pretty much finished within the next two weeks," he added.

Late Monday afternoon, a crane that was maneuvering one of the pieces of equipment into position came into contact with several overhead electric lines.

The contact resulted in a fire.

"There wasn't much damage," Simon said, "the only thing involved was a fuel storage barrel on top of the machine."

The Carbondale fire department was called to extinguish the blaze.

The accident will not delay the work on the street.

SIU Alumnus Will Fall for Alma Mater

An alumnus of SIU will be dropping in (literally) for a visit to his alma mater on Saturday.

Dick Roberts, who graduated in 1965, will parachute into McAndrew Stadium at 12:45 p.m. as part of the pre-game entertainment. The skydiving exhibition is the contribution of the SIU Sport Parachute Club to the Homecoming activities.

Roberts made a similar jump in 1964 when he was serving as president of the organization.

This year Roberts will leave the plane at 8,000 feet and freefall for 30 seconds. He will carry a colored smoke bomb on the fall.

The Club is a three-time winner of team competition in the National Collegiate Parachute Championships.

Tourney Set In Badminton

An intramural badminton tournament will be held at 8 p.m., Monday and Tuesday in the SIU Arena, Glenn (Abe) Martin, director of intramural athletics, announced.

Students entering the tournament should report at 7:45 p.m., Monday in Room 125 of the Arena.

Martin said the tournament will be a single elimination event. Complete rules governing the tournament may be obtained at the intramural office, Room 128 of the Arena.

Pool, Weight Room, Arena Will Close

The Intramural Office has announced that some of the recreational facilities will be closed Friday and Saturday.

The weightlifting room at McAndrew Stadium and the Arena facilities for basketball, volleyball and other activities will be closed both days. In addition the University School Swimming Pool will be closed Saturday.

All of the campus recreation facilities will be available for use Sunday at their regularly scheduled times.

His Dream Came True

Meadowlark Waited a Long Time To Be Member of Globetrotters

By Mike Schwefel

When "Sweet Georgia Brown" gets things rolling for the Harlem Globetrotters, Meadowlark Lemon is always the center of attention.

Meadowlark, the man with a million ad libs and just as many moves on the court, is something else.

The only current Globe-trotter who didn't attend college, Meadowlark has been living for the past dozen years in a dream he had as a youngster.

"Meadowlark first wrote Abe Saperstein, the originator of the Trotters, as a young teen-age," relates Joe Anzivino, publicity man for the team.

"Saperstein wrote back and told him to keep practicing and to get in touch with him later on," continued Anzivino. The "later on" came in Germany where Lemon was stationed in the Army and the Globetrotters appeared for an exhibition.

"Meadowlark went up to Saperstein and told him that he was the one who had written him years ago," says Anzivino.

"He had been playing service ball, so Abe told him to see him as soon as he finished service. Meadowlark did, and he has been with the team ever since."

Believe it or not, Lemon's given name was Meadow Lemon, Saperstein, seeing that he loved to sing, simply added the lark to it, and it was a natural.

After taking voice lessons in his spare time, Meadowlark is now beginning to take his singing a bit more seriously.

He has just released his first record which he hopes will make it big on the rock-and-roll charts.

"Doing the Meadowlark" is the name of it, and chances are that Meadowlark will do even more singing if it starts selling.

He already has a great album idea—not the songs, just the title.

"Just a Twist of Lemon," is the title, and if Meadowlark can slip a few songs in, who knows?

"Doing the Meadowlark" may never replace the tune of "Sweet Georgia Brown" as the theme song of the Globetrotters, but then Meadowlark himself may never really be replaced.

Editor's Note—Information for this story was gathered through interviews with Stanford foreign students by members of the Journalism 201 classes.

In England, baseball isn't cricket, and in the United States, cricket certainly isn't baseball.

Foreign students attending Southern California were recently questioned about their native land, and the results cover information from a number of different countries. From the possibility of playing ping pong and tennis in the Saigon Circle Sporting for a game of badminton in Singapore, it might be wise for the U.S. students to ask some of what is—or isn't—the sporting thing.

To the dismay of baseball, football and basketball fans and the U.S.A. soccer-growing around the world at a tremendous pace.

The recent formation of the National Professional Soccer League with headquarters in St. Louis is an example of the growth of soccer in popularity.

Several SIU Track Members Competing in Tennessee Meet

Several SIU track and field standouts will compete in the Southern Invitational Meet at the University of Tennessee Saturday.

Oscar Moore, Southern’s top distance runner, will enter the six-mile run at Knoxville.

Moore has been beaten once in six outings done in the present cross-country season. He will also compete in the distance medley relay event.

Other competitors for Coach Lew Harrington’s team are: Long jump—Ian Sharpe, Sidney, Kansas; and Del Jeffries, John Vernon, Nottingham, England.

Triple jump—Sharpe and Jeffries, respectively.

Pole vault—Rich Ellion, Bethesda, Md.

High jump—Mitch Livingston, Decatur.

Discus—Grove Webb, East St. Louis.

Run—Jeff Dubovsky, New South Wales, Australia; Al Ackman, Mt. Vernon, Ind., and Dave Chisholm, Oklahoma City, Okla.

300-yard dash—Ross Mackenzie, Manitoba, Canada; Rich Campbell, Detroit, and Charles Holcomb, East St. Louis.

100-yard dash—Al DePpe, Percy, and Del Jeffries, Detroit.

High hurdles—Jim Thomas, El Paso, R.L.; and Frank Whitman, Paxton.

220-yard dash—DePpe and Jeffries.

440—yard intermediate hurdles—Thomas and Whitman.

Distance medley relay—Mackenzie, Ackman, Dubussy and Moore.

Relay—DePpe, Holt, Campbell and Thomas.

Soccer Popularity Growing Fast

The 12-team league is expected to begin operations in April.

North America is just now catching up in the world of soccer, which has been an institution for years in many other countries.

Turkey and Argentina are crazy about the sport, sometimes in a mad frenzy as risers involving thousands of fans are not uncommon.

Soccer is the sport in other places such as Iran, Hong Kong, Laos, Ethiopia and Arabia to name a few.

It is rapidly growing in popularity here in the States, as well as in the U.S.S.R., and as in the U.S., the prospects of the sport's catching on in a big way are good.

Soccer doesn't dominate in all countries, however.

Lebanon, for example, still goes with volleyball, and cycling is big in France.

Turkey keeps up its tradition in wrestling and the Irish hold rugby in high esteem.

In Korea, women's basketball is an up-and-coming sport. The climate in the Netherlands maintains the popularity of ice skating and tennis.

Down in Australia, swimming and tennis are still kingspene.
Six Lettermen Gone

Losses Dim Wrestling Outlook

By Bill Kindt

Jim Wilkinson, SIU wrestling coach, finds it hard to be optimistic about this year’s wrestling outlook because of a heavy loss of lettermen, injuries and a tough schedule.

At the end of last season Wilkinson thought he would have 14 returning lettermen but that number has now dwindled to eight.

Dan Schneider, last year’s team captain and most valuable player, will do his wrestling this season in the U.S. Army. Schneider had a record of 27-2-2 last year.

George McCrerry, with a record of 19-3 last year, is now eligible for competition and Tony Pierannunzi and Julio Puentes, two other letter winners, dropped out of school.

Added to this are injuries to Wayne Lenhare and Joe Domko, also letterman.

Wilkinson pointed out that Lenhare and Domko might be able to wrestle this season, but their status at present is uncertain.

“We are very weak in the middle weights, we are thin in experience and injury prone in these classes,” Wilkinson said. “We are better in the first three weight divisions and strong at heavyweight,” he added.

Of the eight returning letterman, Larry Baron, Terry Magoun and Domko are the best bets to make a showing in the NCAA championships. That is if Domko can rid himself of the injury and get into shape.

Of Baron, Wilkinson says, “Baron could be the best wrestler on the squad.”

Last season Baron, who normally wrestles at 130, had a record of 15-2.

The Saluki grapplers once again face a stiff schedule including meets against last year’s top three in the nation – Oklahoma State, Iowa State and Oklahoma.

Major College Foe

Homecoming Opponent
Will Be East Carolina

Saturday’s Homecoming game will feature the first meeting between Southern and East Carolina. The Pirates replace Tulsa, last year’s Homecoming opponent, on the Saluki schedule. But don’t breathe that sigh of relief yet.

East Carolina has recently graduated to big-time status in football. The Pirates are coming off three consecutive 9-1 seasons, including bowl victories in each of those seasons. Last year East Carolina won the Tangerine Bowl for the second straight year, with a 31-0 romp over Maine.

The Pirates haven’t had a losing season since 1957. They recently became a member of the Southern Conference, which includes such schools as West Virginia, George Washington, William & Mary, the Citadel and Furman.

Head Coach Clarence Stasavich has a career record of 135 wins, 45 losses and 8 ties. Since coming to East Carolina Stasavich has a 35-9-1 mark. He coached at Lenoir Rhyne previously and led the small college bears to undefeated seasons in 1955, ’56, ’59 and ’60. Lenoir Rhyne won the NAIA National Championship in 1960.

This season, Stasavich’s pirates have averaged about 20 points a game.
