Surveyed faculty opt for escape in case of quake

Emergency services director advises hiding under stable item

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

A professor is in the middle of a long lecture when suddenly an earthquake strikes. Do you know what to do? If you don't, you're not alone.

Those who do not know the recommended procedure for surviving an earthquake include a large percentage of campus staff persons.

Of 11 campus faculty persons surveyed, five said they would seek immediate shelter under a desk, table or in a doorway or corner. This is recommended by an earthquake preparedness and reaction pamphlet, the Earthquake Safety Checklist, distributed by the American Red Cross.

Karen Waldren, secretary in the School of Journalism said, "I have no idea" when she was asked what she would do if an earthquake would strike while she was working.

Russell Wright, professor in the School of Medicine in Lindgren Hall, knew the recommended procedure for an earthquake, but said, "I'd get out of here."

Henrietta Miller, administrative assistant in Morris Library, said, "Hopefully, I could try to get out the back door, because in this building it would all fall on top of you. That's why I want out of it."

Anna Lawrence, secretary and stenographer for the English Department, said she had been in an earthquake on campus in the early 1970's and "everyone just went outside. I guess that's what I would do if there was an earthquake now."

"First, find something stable to get under, like desks, tables or a doorway or archway, something that is reinforced," Tom Harris, director of the Emergency Services and Disaster Agency of Carbondale, said.

Find some shelter and then get out after the earthquake has stopped, but watch out for falling debris while exiting, Harris said.

Bush signs disaster bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush, commending congressional speed and bipartisanship, signed a $2.85 billion disaster aid package Thursday to help earthquake-stricken California and areas of the Carolinas and Caribbean devastated by Hurricane Hugo.

Congress passed the measure just eight days after Northern California was rocked by the Loma Prieta earthquake, which measured 7.1 on the Richter scale and caused extensive damage throughout the San Francisco Bay and Santa Cruz areas.

The disaster relief was enacted as part of a stop-gap spending bill to keep the federal government functioning while lawmakers finish work on several stalled appropriations bills.

The aid package adds $2.85 billion for grants, loans, highway repairs and other assistance to roughly $1.3 billion already available through the Small Business Administration for disaster loans.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said that with the bill, California would be eligible to receive a total Increased police presence expected on S. Illinois Ave.

About 100 Illinois State Police officers and an increased Carbondale police presence will be on the Smp area during this weekend's banned Halloween street party.

Carbondale's traditional Halloween street party was banned after last year's celebration, which drew about 25,000 and turned into "a drunken brawl, total madness," Bob Harris, University Police director, said.

Harris said he thinks the party is over.

Harris said area hotels are not booked up as in years past. He also said local beer distributors are not reporting heavy Halloween orders and a recently enacted University housing rule limiting the number of people allowed in dormitory rooms also will help.

"It's just got too weird. People were drunk out of their gourd," Harris said. "But most of the arrests University Police made last year were not students."

A rumor that the Illinois National Guard would be in town was squelched Wednesday by Maj. Bob Arnett, public affairs officer for the Illinois National Guard in Springfield.

"No guardsmen are on alert or standby regarding Carbondale's Halloween celebration, and I would know about it if they were," Arnett said.

Edward Hogan, Carbondale Police chief, told a UPI reporter,

Williamson County National Guard to receive funding for new armory and United Press International

The U.S. House approved $2.6 million for a new National Guard Armory in Williamson County late Thursday night.

"Williamson County and all of Southern Illinois is well served by this," Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Cartersville, said.

The new armory will be constructed at the Williamson County airport and will replace the present armory at John A. Logan College.

"The present armory is just about falling apart," Dave Stricklin, spokesman for Poshard, said.

The money for the armory was part of a $8.5 million military construction appropriations bill. The measure was worked out by House and Senate negotiators who ironed out differences between separate bills passed by the chambers. The Senate is expected to vote on the bill in a few days.

Dorms face Halloween rules

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

University Housing officials are enforcing stricter rules on student residents this Halloween weekend to help get the message out that the party is over.

Steve Kirk, assistant director of housing-resident life, said the goal of University Housing this year is to discourage students from having a lot of out-of-town visitors.

"If we become aware of extra guests in the buildings, the staff will ask them to find some place else to stay," he said.

In order to enforce the no-alcohol rule, staff members will be searching any cooler, backpack or luggage in the residential area, according to flyers sent to all the residents.

Kirk said the residential halls have not had many problems with Halloween parties in past years. "The students party somewhere else and come back to the dorms drunk," he said. "All we have to do is shepherd them safely into bed."

University housing also will be enforcing the following rules:

- all furniture must remain in the hallways and lounges,

- non-residents walking around building without an escort will be asked to leave,

- residents will be responsible for the actions of their guests; and
- overnight guests are permitted only if the roommate has given permission.

Since the University is closing the dormitories next year and residents will have to vacate their rooms, Kirk said housing officials will not have to contend with any Halloween problems.

"We won't have to do the things we do now, but we will have a different sort of problem for students who cannot leave," Kirk said.

Costa Rica summit to focus on drugs, democracy, debt

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — The summit in Costa Rica this weekend of 17 North and South American leaders, including President Bush, will focus on a joint approach to regional problems of drugs, democracy and debt, organizers and observers said Thursday. Costa Rican President Oscar Arias hopes the summit will also inaugurate a new, more cooperative relationship between the United States and Latin America, but that depends on the Bush administration's willingness to deal with Latin nations on a multilateral basis.

Gobachev promises withdrawal of subs

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev said Thursday his country would complete the planned withdrawal of four remaining nuclear armed Golf class submarines from the Baltic Sea by the end of next year and appealed to the West to make the region a nuclear free zone. The United States and other Nato nations have previously rejected the nuclear free zone proposal saying the Baltic Sea is an international waterway which cannot be locally administered. Scandinavian diplomats have said the retirement of the vessels would have little impact on the strategic balance in the region.

Flights, calls halted for "day of mourning"

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — Libya draped buildings in black and halted airline flights and telephone calls Thursday in an official "day of mourning" for thousands of people it claims were killed, wounded or deported when the country was a colony of Italy. Libyan leader Col. Moammar Gadhafi has been calling on Italy to pay unspecified war damages — a claim Italy says was settled when Libya became independent in 1951 under its monarch, King Idris, whom Italy paid about $2.7 million.

Freeway decks' joints failed during quake

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A stretch of the Nimitz Freeway collapsed on commuters because joints connecting the two decks failed during last week's earthquake, scientists said after inspecting the crumbled structure. The scientists from the University of California, Berkeley, who studied the 1 1/4-mile section of road, said reinforcement of its 35-foot columns would not have prevented the Oct. 17 disaster. In Washington Thursday, President Bush signed a $2.85 billion disaster aid package to assist California's recovery from the earthquake.

State police called to correctional facility

CAMP HILL, Pa. (UPI) — State Police were called to the State Correctional Institution at Camp Hill late Thursday when inmates set fires in the second uprising in as many days at the overcrowded facility. Flames from at least five fires lit the skies at the compound, and police fired two dozen warning shots. About a dozen ambulances and several fire trucks were also at the prison. Authorities called for reinforcements at about 7:30 p.m. when the first report went out that a new disturbance had begun. Inmates were milling about in a yard in the western corner of the facility.

Employees work without pay at nearly broke sheriff's office

ELIZABETHTOWN (UPI) — The Hardin County sheriff's office is nearly out of money, Sheriff Lowell "Deon" Lasater said Thursday. Lasater said money to pay his jailer/secretary, Shirley Oxford, and two part-time jailers ran out Tuesday. But Lasater said he is "scraping by" because Oxford has continued to work without pay and several part-time employees are doing the same. Lasater said an emergency appeal last week for more money to the county's commissioners was turned down.

Comedy team delivers act with props, music, slides

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

The comedy team of Scott Jones, Jools Brandt and Mac N. Tosh gave a wacky performance full of props at the Comedy Cellar Wednesday night.

Jones' and Jools' act was full of characters, synthesizer music, toys and slides of their travels. The performance took place in the Student Center Ballroom D because of the audio-visual nature of the act, but the audience was as loud and enthusiastic as ever.

A Review

Jones dominated the first part of the act, complaining about vibrating beepers, Chihuahuas, piano teachers and old people who drive slowly on the highway. "If I was 138 years old and had to get somewhere, I'd hurry," Jones said.

Jones then went over to his synthesizer stack and, aided by his trusty computer, Mac N. Tosh, proceeded to play a few tunes. He played classical music with sound effects, noises from cartoons and a version of "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas" with lyrics referring to drugs and booze. He also joked about operas, where people sing, instead of die, after they get stabbed.

Joined on stage by Jools, the pair sang as the country duet of "Luke Warm and Kitty Litter." Later, the two gave away prizes as part of their game show, which combined elements of "Let's Make A Deal," "The Dating Game" and "Family Feud."

Jones and Jools perform one of their comedy skits Thursday night as a part of the Comedy Cellar season.

Aided by boxloads of props, Jones joked about such toys as koalas that grip, strolling bowling, Popples, a naked Raggedy Ann and Suckerman, with a number of comments about what "sucked" and what didn't.

The act concluded with a slide show of strange signs and other weird things the two have photographed while traveling across the country (like "Real People" used to do.)

Among the slides was the Toadsuck Inn, a street sign that only said "no," a road called "A Street" (whose Jones said he lived in a house on a street in a city), the Amigone Funeral Home, a dead end that led to a cemetery, a "speed limit 24" sign, a speed limit sign that said "55 means 55," a variety of spellings for "boiled peanuts" and a sign for "Bob the Nutman's" products that urged people to "Eat My Nuts."

The slide show was hilarious. The country duet was funny. Some of the jokes were lame. After hearing Jools try to tell jokes on her own, it became obvious why Jones seemed to dominate the act.

Jones and Jools got huge reactions from the crowd. They relied very heavily on props to carry the show, and it worked. The slides and the music were really funny, but as straight comedians these two were unremarkable. If a power failure ever occurred midway through a performance, these two could be in serious trouble.

Advertising group spends time with Carbondale elderly

By Mario Millikin
Staff Writer

As the elderly population in the United States continues to grow, increased health care and financial needs are growing with them.

The American Advertising Federation chapter at SIU-C is taking steps to make sure some elderly Carbondale residents don't have a lack of social attention to add to this list of needs.

The "Adopt a Grandparent" program was implemented by AAF in an effort to provide some basic social interaction for residents of the Styrest Nursing Home, Jim Legg, AAF community service director, said.

"So far, it (the program) is going great," Legg said.

Legg, who was involved in a similar project while in high school, said participating AAF members were assigned to one "grandparent" to meet with from 2 to 4 p.m. each Saturday.

"My grandfather, Mar., hall, loves to play cards so I play poker with him once a week," Legg said.

AAF member David Balcom said his adopted grandfather, James, isn't much of a game player.

"He doesn't like to play games or anything, so we walk around and talk," Balcom said.

Debi Edwards, AAF member, said since three of her natural grandparents have passed away, she enjoys having a grandmother figure here at school.

"No one else comes to visit Pearl," Edwards said. "It's a really good feeling just knowing that she looks forward to me coming to see her."

With about 16 members active in the program, Legg said the project is proving to be a big success.

"If we only make one person's last few years happier, then we know we have done something very special," Legg said.

Theater guild will present third annual haunted house

You're too old for trick-or-treating, you're not interested in going to the Strip and you can't find any really interesting biographies to read at the library. Sound like Halloween is gonna be a bust?

Guess again! The Student Theater Guild is holding their third annual haunted house Friday through Sunday at the WCIL building at 211-1/2 W. Main St.

The house will include several fright-filled rooms and a maze of horrors. Members of the theater guild will be there to provide scares as well.

The haunted house will be open from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday and from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children accompanied by an adult.

Death of Halloween should be peaceful

IT'S OVER.

The Halloween street party is over like a bad dream, over like a rule of drunken tyrant, over like a bitter war — over.

We have heard all of the different testimonies being thrown around on the issue and now it all comes down to Friday and Saturday when the two sides will have to watch the "cherished" event die. And it will die.

How it will die is another matter.

Local and state police presence has been increased compared to other years when the event was tolerated. About 100 Illinois State Police officers, six canine units and every available Carbondale police officer will be on duty to ensure that no laws are broken and everything runs smoothly.

Sgt. Jerry Rosson, a spokesman for the Illinois State Police office in Du Quoin, said the police will be there to look for illegal alcohol consumption, drugs and criminal activity. He said the canine units will be used for drug searches and crowd control if there should be an extreme emergency.

That is all there is to it.

THE POLICE are not going to storm the streets and mace everyone who looks at them funny, and the Illinois National Guard is not going to be on standby at the armory to come out and crush the heads of innocent Americans having a beer or two.

All that lies between the death of Halloween is how many people the police will have to deal with to ensure order, which is the main concern on the Strip.

People have the ability within them to go out on Halloween and create quite a disturbance — which is true for any weekend — but, as always, there will be a price to pay.

How many arrests will there be? How many people will get hurt? How many dollars worth of damage will there be?

Hopefully, very little, but whatever the amount is, the actions of these people are moot and whatever they do or say will never change the fact that the Halloween street party is over.

Rumors about Halloween have been everything from grossly erroneous to downright laughable, but whatever is going to happen away from the Strip, such as house parties or "keggers," we urge everyone to exercise good judgment and play the weekend safe.

IT IS not going to be like any other weekend. There is excitement and people know it's Halloween — they want to have a good time.

We do not have to tell you that it is all right to have a good time, but there are several ways to have a good time. Use the time to think of something you have never done or want to do.

This weekend will provide the opportunity to do more alternate activities than most other weekends. So, why not take advantage of the weekend and change your annual agenda.

Stop and think about it all. It is one weekend out of your entire life — two days — and it has the potential to be a very bad one for some people or the whole city of Carbondale and the University. None of it will matter come Monday morning.

Take it for just a weekend — have fun, relieve some pressure and prepare for classes Monday.

The bottom line is that Halloween will die. Let's just all have the sense to let it die peacefully.

Commentary

Nancy and Don, quit backstabbing each other with those dull knives!

Please, Don and Nancy, stop your squabbling. It is getting to be embarrassing.

I'm referring to Nancy Reagan and Donald Regan, who was Ronald Reagan's chief of staff until Nancy squeezed him out of the job.

As you may remember, Regan got even with Nancy by writing a book and revealing that she consulted a stargazer before planning the President's schedule and some of his decisions.

This surprised many people, including me. Based on some of President Reagan's actions, I had assumed they used tarot cards.

It also came out that when Chief of Staff Regan became fed up with Nancy's constant nagging, he hung up the phone on her.

Now Nancy is getting revenge with a newly published book of her own in which she goes after Regan.

Among the many shocking disclosures, Nancy reveals the incredible "my patio is bigger than your patio" story.

It seems, according to Nancy, that Regan noticed how nice and big the patio was outside of the President's office.

So Regan, in his lust for status and power, had a patio built outside his office that was bigger than the President's patio.

And Nancy has also disclosed that at official functions, such as banquets, Regan would infuriate her by getting in the reception line to shake the President's hand.

This, she said, was inconsiderate because members of the White House staff knew that it caused excessive wear and tear on the President's mitt.

Well, all of this business of bigger patios, unnecessary shaking of the President's hand and other nastiness has "Washington in a tizzy, which is where it often is."

Mike Royko

Tribune Media Services

However, the rest of the country is not as tizzy-prone as Washington. In most places, it takes a riot, a blizzard, an earthquake or a hurricane to create a tizzy.

But here we witness a full-blown Washington tizzy being caused by dueling "nyah-nyah-to-you" books.

So I hate to say this to Nancy and Don, but to most of us who don't live in Washington, this is already becoming a bore.

The fact is, you can go to any Police Court after a weekend in Chicago and find better, much better, squabbles than over who has the bigger patio and who gave the Prez's hand a needless squeeze.

When I was a police reporter, I used to visit the small courts, where husbands and wives aired their grievances.

I remember the man who said his wife — irked because he had loitered too long in a tavern on payday — struck him on the head with their dog. Fortunately, it was a small dog, a cocker as I recall, so the man's wounds were slight. The dog also survived, although I would guess that on future paydays, it hid under a chair.

And there was the man who told the judge that it was his wife's hot temper that caused him to try to stuff her into their refrigerator to cool her off.

Times haven't changed, nor have the ways those of the opposite sex find to make each other miserable.

But any desk sergeant or judge would just chortle if a man and a woman came in and said:

"She's a nag and meddled in my job and consults a stargazer."

And "He's arrogant and wanted a bigger patio and once hung up the phone on me."

Come now, you two. All over this great nation, at this very moment, police cars are being dispatched to (ital) real (end ital) he-and-she disputes.

If you expect to capture the attention of mainstream America, stop sniping at each other on TV talk shows, in magazines and in dueling books.

Get out there and fight like real shrews and clods.

Don, cash your paycheck and get loaded. Kick in Nancy's front door. Break up some furniture. Throw a lamp through the living room window.

Nancy, snatch up the steam iron. (If you don't have one, borrow the maid's.) Warn Don that if he comes one step closer you will bash his head. Throw utensils at him. Get hysterical. Call the cops. Better yet, chase him with a meat cleaver.

Enough of this elitist bickering. If you expect to capture our imagination, you had better get down and dirty.

Which man has the bigger patio, indeed. Tsk, tsk. I wonder what Dr. Ruth or Joyce Brothers would have to say about that.

Flyer for thinking, not partying

First of all, for Mr. Smith's benefit, the flyers referring to the Kent State protest were not a comparison to Halloween in Carbondale and they said nothing about partying.

The flyers were meant to get people thinking and cause controversy. Mr. Smith was quick to start controversy, but a little lacking in the thought department.

For all he knows, those flyers could have been posted by someone who was at the Kent State protest. Doesn't he think that students today can believe in things? I can see why he doesn't. Look at all the fine examples. So, for Mr. Smith and all ignorant partiers, have a Kent State Halloween and kill all the people who urinate on dumpsters. — Steve Hutchcraft, senior, anthropology.

Letters

Protect yourself in case of Halloween violence

"Have a Kent State Halloween," the bulletin board sign read. Though those words did not inspire them, they reflect a growing fear of potential Carbondale police violence this Halloween.

"Zero tolerance" is the policy local police have said they're applying to their handling of this year's Halloween festivities.

As students, voting citizens and human beings we cannot accept such an impending threat. Therefore, in order to deter aggressive police brutality, I urge you to bring video tape recorders, cameras and audio recorders to the Strip this Halloween weekend. These devices will enable the documentation of intolerable police behavior.

But if police cause bloodshed, this documentation can be used against the City of Carbondale when we hold them accountable for its actions in court. After all, this town belongs to us. — Ken Buyte, graduate student, journalism.

Officials: Money well spent in ending party

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

Carbondale and University officials aren't sure what is going to happen this Halloween Weekend, but they said all the money spent to stop out-of-town partiers from coming to Carbondale should at least decrease the crowd size.

Jack Dyer, University Relations director, said the University has spent more than $4,000 to get the word out that the party is over.

"It was an inexpensive campaign for the results we are going to have," he said.

Dyer said the University spent about $300 for mailing, $1,000 for television and radio announcements, $400 for fliers by the Public Relations Student Society of America and $2,600 for additional fliers.

Deputy City Manager Jeff

Doherty said the media campaign to stop people from coming to Carbondale for Halloween has been effective.

Doherty said the city spent about $200 on three news releases and phone calls to respond to the media.

"We really are not sure what is going to happen, but (the city) is confident people know there is no party in Carbondale this year," he said.

James Prowell, executive director of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce, said the chamber has spent between $700 and $1,000 on fliers, media packages, telephone calls and postage in its campaign.

"It's not a campaign against Halloween," he said. "It's a campaign to stop public consumption of alcohol and underage drinking."

Lot 31 to be renovated

Parking Lot 31, across from Stegall Hall on Thompson Point, will be barricaded this morning, Marilyn Hogan, coordinator of the Parking Division, said.

Hogan said five additional handicapped spaces will be added to the lot. She said once the work is completed, only disabled people and head residents will be allowed to park in the lot.

Hogan said all others parking in the lot will be ticketed and towed.

Prof's research being investigated

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

An investigation into possible research misconduct by an SIU School of Medicine faculty member is being conducted by Medical School faculty, Nancy Zimmers, director of public affairs for the medical school, said.

Zimmers said Anthony Paparo, a professor of anatomy at the University, is being investigated for possible misconduct in his research on fingernail clams and their reaction to toxic substances.

"We are concerned about some possible research results and products," Zimmers said. "We are also concerned about the rights of the faculty member in being treated fairly."

A secretary at the School of Medicine said Paparo was currently on sick leave from the University.

Paparo had no comment on the matter.

Zimmers said the investigation started Sept. 20 after Paparo had a telephone conversation with Richard Moy, dean of the School of Medicine.

Outside, look for an area away from things that can fall on you, such as power lines, telephone poles or pieces of buildings, he said.

It is not recommended to try to exit a building during an earthquake because of the possibility of being struck by falling debris, Harris said.

Families should survey every room in their home and safe places should be designated beforehand. Children should be shown where they should go when an earthquake strikes, Harris said.

"The time to think about where you're supposed to go is not while the earthquake is happening," he said.

According to the American Red Cross pamphlet, there are still many things left to do.

First, check to see if anyone is injured. If everyone is all right, do not use the telephone right away. Next, check gas, water and electrical lines. If there is a broken line or an odor of gas, shut off the main valve. Do not search for gas leaks with a lighted match or turn on electrical switches or appliances if gas leaks are suspected.

"Be prepared to be without services for up to 72 hours," Harris said. It might be very difficult for help to reach some areas because of obstructions or damage to the help itself, Harris said.

"Our firetrucks are stored inside. The buildings could collapse on them," he said.

"Have materials ready for use, because people need to be self-sustained until help can arrive," Harris said.

USG to support fee increase

By Tricia Jording
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Government will support a resolution of a $2 activity fee increase and a $1 increase in support of Illinois Student Association.

Because of an increase of more than 100 new registered student organizations and an inflation increase, the activity fee would be increased for the first time in ten years.

Tim Hildebrand, USG President, said, although the increase will be effective by providing the organizations with the funding they have needed for years, more money is needed to fund the organizations.

The fee is expected to generate $80,000.

Police Blotter

An 18-year-old SIU-C student was charged with disorderly conduct and given notice to appear in Jackson County Courthouse Nov. 15, University Police said.

Police report that Kevin Davis was arrested at Allyn Building at 12:35 p.m. Thursday. The arrest report stated that several female witnesses saw Davis in the women's restroom. One witnessed him holding a mirror under a bathroom stall.

"We're going to give it a max effort. We'll have virtually every local policeman available. We'll be in high profile, but we're not sure what reaction we'll get."

"Rumors have been rampant recently," Hogan said. "We're hearing the party has been moved to Champaign, Cape Girardeau, that house parties are planned and students are still going to come downtown for one last party."

"I don't foresee any problems with all the media exposure the end of the street party has gotten," Rosson said.

Rosson said the patrols will be concentrated in the downtown Strip area and officers will be looking for alcohol consumption, drugs

Guyon to 'check out' University's success in ending street party

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

University President John C. Guyon will be on South Illinois Avenue this Friday and Saturday night to see first hand how well the University's plan to bring about the end of the Halloween street party celebration works.

This weekend, Oct. 27 through 29, probably would have been the weekend that the Halloween street party took place. Opponents of the party, which had been a tradition in Carbondale for about 20 years, said it had become an excuse for wild and destructive behavior in recent years.

Guyon, who initiated the ban on the annual festival, said he would be there only as an observer.

"I will neither break any laws or enforce any laws," Guyon said

"I'll just be around to observe."

In an editorial viewpoint, published in the Nov. 29, 1988, issue of the Daily Egyptian, Guyon began an effort to end the Halloween party.

"The event that occurred on South Illinois Avenue was not a party. It was an incipient riot," Guyon wrote. "There is no possible way to construe that evening as anything other than an unmitigated disaster."

Guyon, who attended the 1988 event, said the event had changed "from a party to a mean spirited, dangerous fiasco." He then called on the city government to remove the Halloween celebration from the Carbondale Fair Days Ordinance, making public consumption of alcohol illegal.

Guyon said Thursday he is satisfied with the effort the University has put into informing the public and other universities the party is over.

"I think we've done everything we can," he said. "We're a little anxious, maybe. We'll just have to wait and see what happens."

At the Oct. 12 SIU Board of Trustees meeting in Edwardsville, Guyon commented on the effort to get the message to other Illinois universities.

Guyon referred to a flyer with his picture on it distributed at the University of Illinois in Champaign. The caption of the flyer read, "Don't let one bad apple spoil the bunch."

"I think I'm starting to do my job," Guyon said in reference to the flyer.

In place of the Halloween party, Guyon proposed and succeeded in getting a fall break.

Jackson wants statehood for D.C.; not mayoral seat

CHICAGO (UPI) — Calling the nation's capital an "occupied zone," the Rev. Jesse Jackson Thursday said he is committed to making Washington, D.C., the 51st state.

Jackson, in town for an appearance at the American Public Health Association's 117th annual meeting, told a news conference he has no interest in running for mayor of Washington.

"I have no plans to run for mayor of Washington but I do have plans with the Rainbow Coalition of fighting for statehood status of Washington," said Jackson, who was.

Jackson said, like Puerto Rico, Washington deserves full representation in Congress.

Governor criticizes Ragsdale dispute

BELVIDERE (UPI) — Gov. James R. Thompson Thursday criticized efforts to settle a legal dispute over abortion clinic regulations before the U.S. Supreme Court can use it to set precedent, saying Attorney General Neil Hartigan is playing politics with the case.

Thompson, during a tour of the Chrysler Belvidere plant, said he does not understand how a compromise can be reached in the case, which pits Rockford abortion clinic operator Dr. Richard Ragsdale against state regulations governing abortion clinics. Ragsdale has prevailed both in the district court and at the appeals level.

"I don't understand how you settle the case," Thompson said. "I don't understand how you do that without letting one side win everything."

Lawyers for the American Civil Liberties Union, which is representing Ragsdale, and the attorney general's office met last week to talk about settling the case. Another negotiating session had been scheduled for Thursday but was postponed until next week.

The Supreme Court is scheduled to hear arguments in the case Dec. 5.

The governor said the case cannot be resolved out of court because any change in the law governing abortion clinic operations would need legislative approval.

Jackson: Health care needs new direction

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson Thursday blamed President Bush and former President Ronald Reagan for creating a health threat to the poor because the nation's health care system is really a "sick care system."

Jackson, in a speech at the 117th annual meeting of the American Public Health Association, called for a national commitment to disease prevention, health maintenance, health education and good health habits.

The two-time presidential hopeful said Reagan-Bush domestic policies have caused increased poverty, a decline in protections for workers, farmers and the environment. He said a "new direction" must be taken to improve the nation's health system.

The civil rights leader said the United States must bridge the gap that shuts out the indigent, elderly, minorities and working people from quality and affordable health care.

"Our present system is not a health care system. It's a sick care system," Jackson said. "If we get sick, it'll take care of most of us — and take care of us better if we've got some money ... A genuine health care system would do much more in prevention and maintenance and education to keep the country healthy."

In a briefing just prior to his speech, Jackson said it is clear that "the cost of health care is increasing and the ability of working people to afford health care is decreasing."

He said that the United States and South Africa are minorities among Western industrialized nations in not providing a "cradle-to-grave" health care system for all citizens, and said it was "morally unacceptable" for people to go without health insurance and to be refused medical care.

Jackson said the president and Congress are misdirected in saying the problem of inadequate health care is a fiscal one.

"They are wrong," he said. "We have the resources but we have the wrong priorities."

Jackson said private health care providers are greedy and the system — which includes high administration costs, bureaucratic red tape and a "lack of focus on prevention" — enables them to be unconscionably profitable.

What You Should Know About Date RAPE

High Risk Factors:

SEX ROLE STEREOTYPES:
Men - Be aware of stereotypes that promote violence against women, such as "It is manly to use force".

IGNORING YOUR INSTINCTS:
Know that you have the right to set sexual limits. If you feel you are being pressured past your limit, you are right. Trust your gut feelings.

INEFFECTIVE COMMUNICATION:
Communicate your limits. If someone starts to offend you, tell them. Tell them directly, forcefully, and don't worry if you have to be firm.

Protecting Yourself:

- Say no when you mean no, say yes when you mean yes, and stay in touch with your feelings to know the difference.
- Believe in your right to express your feelings and learn to do so assertively.
- Be aware of stereotypes that prevent you from self-expression, such as "Being passive is feminine".
- Be aware of specific situations in which you do not feel relaxed and in charge.
- Hear what the other person is saying. Don't guess. Don't assume.

Remember:
- You and your partner have the right to say no, at any time, without feeling guilty.
- Stopping doesn't mean a loss of manhood or womanhood.
- Stopping doesn't mean that something is wrong with you.
- It does mean people are people, not objects, and have a right to different opinions.
- Alcohol and drugs interfere with clear thinking and effective communication.
- Money spent on a date doesn't obligate either person to sexual favors.

Healing Yourself:

If you or someone you know has been raped, there are services available to you:

- Women's Services (453-3655) provides short term counseling and a Rape Survivors Support Group.
- SIU Counseling Center (453-5371) provides long-term counseling.
- Rape Action Committee (529-2324) is a 24 hours crisis intervention service providing emotional support, information, and advocacy for rape victims, their friends, and family.

House votes to speed payments to internees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House approved a compromise plan Thursday to ensure that reparations payments to Japanese-Americans who were interned during World War II will begin in 1991.

Payments to an estimated 60,000 surviving internees were authorized under a 1988 law, but funds have not been available for the program. A provision added to the appropriations bill for the departments of Commerce, State and Justice makes the reparations an entitlement program, with payments to begin in 1991.

Under the 1988 law, internees are eligible for payments of $20,000 each, with the government's total liability set at $1.25 billion over 10 years. The entitlement provision reduces the payment period to 2 1/2 years. It limits the appropriation to $500 million in 1991.

The original House version of the bill provided just $50 million for the program, but the Senate made it an entitlement program, placing it ahead of any discretionary spending decisions when the next budget is prepared. A House-Senate conference committee accepted the Senate amendment.

The provision was criticized by several House members who said it will take money away from other vital programs.

The entitlement provision shields the payments from "annual budget battles" and says they "are more important than child care ... more important than fighting drugs ... more important than education ... and on and on and on," said Rep. Harold Rogers, R-Ky. "Let's pay this claim as we can afford it."

But Rep. Norm Mineta, D-Calif., argued the payments should be made quickly.

Senate OKs death penalty for terrorists who murder

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted overwhelmingly Thursday to allow the death penalty for persons convicted of murdering an American during an act of terrorism, turning down a mandatory penalty of imprisonment for life without parole.

The Senate debate reflected revulsion against terrorists who commit individual or mass murders.

"Where the death of a United States citizen results as an act of terrorism anywhere in the world, it is appropriate for a jury to have the option to impose the death penalty for that kind heinous act," Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., told the Senate.

The Senate approved the proposal, 79-20, and sent it to the House.

The Senate voted 70-29 against an alternative of Sens. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., and Carl Levin, D-Mich., to require a mandatory life sentence without parole for anyone who murders an American outside the country as part of a terrorist operation to intimidate or retaliate against the United States.

The Senate debate reflected revulsion against terrorists who commit individual and mass murders of Americans and others, including the shooting of wheelchair-bound Leon Klinghoffer in 1985 and the bombing of a Pan American Airlines flight last December in which 259 people died.

Levin and Hatfield said their alternative was tougher than the death penalty, and that Specter's proposal could actually make it more difficult for the United States to win the extradition of suspected terrorists.

Specter's proposal allows the courts to retain the option of also ordering a lesser sentence, with the possibility of parole, as well as just a fine for someone convicted of murder during an act of terrorism.

"Those are two options I find totally abhorrent," Levin said. "Anybody convicted of murdering an American during an act of terrorism ought to go to prison for life and we ought to throw away the key."

Mall owner tells Bakker's followers to 'get out'

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — The few remaining in the flock of imprisoned swindler Jim Bakker have been ordered to vacate the decrepit shopping mall where he and wife Tammy Faye tried in vain to salvage their ministry, their landlord said Thursday.

"I've told them to get out now," said Stewart Gilman, owner of the nearly defunct Shopper's World outdoor mall.

"Now I understand they want to hold one last service Sunday, and I'm not going to be out there with a warrant for them to leave. But if they do not depart in an orderly fashion soon after I'll have to do something," he said.

Gilman said ministry volunteers agreed to move out when he charged them with violating the lease agreement, terms of which were never disclosed.

The Bakkers moved into Shopper's World May 5, announcing grandiose plans for a visitors center, television studio and home for their New Covenant Church.

"They basically had a lease for 30,000 square feet," Gilman said. "The plan was to expand that with the arrival of this large group of followers, who never materialized."

In the weeks since Bakker's conviction Oct. 5 on 24 counts of fraud and conspiracy, his followers have boxed up belongings and withdrawn into about 8,000 square feet of the mall.

"As they shrank back, that meant there basically was no longer a lease," the landlord said. "Their previous commitment could not be kept."

Gilman said the ministry owes him no money, and the eviction had nothing to do with Bakker's sentencing Tuesday to 45 years in federal prison for swindling his followers in a bogus time-share scam at the defunct PTL ministry in Fort Mill, S.C.

Jim Bakker was lodged temporarily in the Talladega Federal Correctional Institution in Talladega, Ala., awaiting permanent assignment to another prison.

Police hold Illinois man for trafficking marijuana

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (UPI) — An Illinois man was held on $1 million bond Thursday on a smuggling charge after a drug-sniffing dog found a half-ton of marijuana stashed in a truck that was stopped for speeding, state police said.

A state trooper assigned to a traffic enforcement unit stopped the truck Wednesday on Interstate 81 just south of Route 40 near Hagerstown, and summoned the drug dog "Geronimo" to inspect the vehicle, said state police spokesman Chuck Jackson.

The trooper searched the truck with the driver's permission and found a special compartment in the truck bed that was packed with 59 individually wrapped bales of marijuana, totaling about 1,000 pounds, Jackson said.

The driver and a passenger were arrested and charged with smuggling marijuana with intent to distribute, the spokesman said.

The driver, Thomas Sherwood, 37, of Urbana, Ill., was being held in the Washington County Detention Center on $1 million bond. His passenger, Edward Preston of Tucson, Ariz., 31, was being held on $15,000 bond, authorities said.

"We don't know where the drugs were headed," Jackson said, but said the shipment apparently originated from Arizona. "That truck was customized for drug trafficking. It was quite apparent that's what it's used for."

Masked thieves send police on bogus 911 chase, rob furrier

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three masked thieves — one wearing a mask of the Joker in the "Batman" movie — crashed a Jeep through a furrier's plate-glass window early Thursday and cleaned out the shop in a quick high-tech heist.

Police said the three men or an accomplice telephoned in several phony reports of crimes to the 911 police emergency number to divert police in the area away from the Jindo furs store, police said.

Witnesses said the men were carrying silver guns and police radio scanners — presumably to eavesdrop on dispatchers sending officers away from the shop — as they tossed the furs in two waiting cars, said police spokeswoman Janice Swinney.

The 4:45 a.m. heist lasted between 10 and 15 minutes, police said.

"During the 10-15 minutes they were hitting the place, they had numerous radio runs off the northern end of the precinct, all of which were unfounded," said Sgt. Diane Kubler.

The thieves left the white Jeep Cherokee, which had been stolen earlier, sitting in the furrier's smashed window and fled across the East River to Queens in a Monte Carlo and a blue Camaro and lost the police.

Two of the thieves wore ski masks and the third wore a mask of the Joker from the movie "Batman," said one witness, who asked not to be identified.

East German lawyers demand changes in country's legal code

BERLIN (UPI) — East Germany's lawyers Thursday called for a sweeping reform of the legal code to make elections free, protect civil rights and prevent police brutality and the jailing of political prisoners.

If accepted by the government, the legal reform would meet many of the demands of the country's new reform movement.

In another move to meet discontent, East German Premier Willi Stoph announced in a television interview the government has decided to import more food, textiles, technical equipment, and spare parts. He gave no figures.

He promised hard work by the government and well thought-out decisions "to strengthen the trust of the citizens in the government or to restore it."

The East German Bar Association, in a statement distributed by the official ADN news agency, said a new election law should allow the electorate to choose among several candidates. Now they are asked to approve a single list of candidates of the communist-run National Front.

The lawyers called for a clear distinction in criminal law between what is allowed and what is forbidden, concentration on real criminal activity and revision of the statutes on "crimes against the state" and "crimes against public order." Both statutes have been used to jail political prisoners.

The association said the independence of judges must be protected to prevent the interference by officials that now takes place at times.

They said the rights of citizens should be clearly listed to allow judicial reviews of violations and the many limitations on rights now in force should be removed.

Police authority must be more clearly defined to prevent illegal police actions against demonstrators of the sort that took place earlier this month, the association said.

The association said it issued the statement because its members consider the situation in East Germany "very serious." It said miscarriages of justice had been tolerated too long.

Colombian judge backs extradition of traffickers

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — The Supreme Court vice president reaffirmed the constitutionality of extraditing alleged drug traffickers to the United States in a statement published Thursday and police said they broke up a drug-linked terrorist ring run by an ex-policeman.

U.S. officials meanwhile asked Colombia to extradite a fifth suspect since President Virgilio Barco re-established extraditions in a state-of-siege order on Aug. 18. Barco's order prompted cocaine cartels to wage war against the government through assassinations and bombings.

The violence continued Thursday when assassins shot and killed two policemen walking a beat in Medellin, home to one of Colombia's most powerful cocaine cartels.

The attackers drove up on a motorcycle and opened fire with a submachine gun, killing both policemen after 1 a.m., a Medellin city official said. The gunmen fled and no one claimed responsibility.

Supreme Court Vice President Hernando Gomez Otalora, apparently trying to alleviate confusion over a statement by another judge earlier in the week, said Barco's extradition order was legal under the Colombian Constitution.

The Supreme Court "resolves it is perfectly clear to declare: the legislative decree No. 1860 of Aug. 18, 1989 is constitutional," Gomez said in a statement broadcast on radio and television late Wednesday and printed Thursday in Bogota newspaper El Tiempo.

Gomez attributed confusion early this week over the status of extradition by decree to an "isolated paragraph" of a court document.

"This paragraph is superfluous to the effects of the adopted decision because the court had declared Barco's decree constitutional earlier this month.

Tuesday, Supreme Court Judge Jaime Sanin indicated the court

extraditing drug suspects by presidential order — bypassing the court — and reasserted the constitutionality of the procedure.

In Washington, the Justice Department said Thursday the United States has asked Colombia to extradite a suspect accused in New York of conspiracy to distribute cocaine. Nelson Cuevas was arrested Oct. 19 in Colombia and is the 12th suspect in Colombia sought by the United States on drug charges.

Of the 12, four people have been extradited to America.

Colombian police, meanwhile, confirmed Thursday that undercover officers staged 15 raids around Bogota Wednesday and broke up a terrorist ring allegedly hired by reputed drug lord Jose Rodriguez Gacha.

The violence continued Thursday when two Medellin policemen were assassinated while walking their beat.

sion, and has no effect," the judge declared, without specifying the contents of the paragraph in question.

Monday, a Colombian senator received a letter signed by a cartellinked hit squad asking the government to respect "the latest decision of the Supreme Court" abolishing extradition. That generated confuhad agreed extradition under Barco's order was legal only if no extradition treaty was in effect. He indicated a 1979 treaty — suspended by the Supreme Court in 1987 — remained in effect because the United States had not formally canceled it.

Barco's government promptly reaffirmed its commitment to

Japanese media remains silent on $2 million, 9-day Reagan visit

TOKYO (UPI) — There are two clear signs that former President Reagan has been elevated to the level of royalty in Japan: his $2 million speaking fee and the Japanese media hush-up about the money.

No major Japanese newspaper or television station has reported that Reagan is being paid $2 million by the Fujisankei media conglomerate for his nine-day trip to Japan.

The payment has stirred debate in the United States, where several commentators criticized Reagan for putting the presidency up for sale.

But the Japanese media has been silent.

Reagan — in a tradition also extended to the Japanese emperor — has been received with an enthusiasm that squelches any mention of possibly distasteful subjects.

He has been treated to headlines like, "Smart and Magnificent Political Philosophy." It appeared over a story in Thursday's Sankei Shimbun, the national newspaper that is partly sponsoring Reagan's visit.

"Mr. Reagan's speech deeply impressed every person in the audience," the article said. "With a single breath, he renewed the friendly mood between the United States and Japan."

This is not China and that was not the People's Daily. This is Japan, where the press is free.

But the free press in Japan, as with other systems Japan adopted from the West, has been altered to fit the Japanese culture.

The Japanese place great emphasis on maintaining harmony and avoiding discord. Thus, most Japanese reporters are uncomfortable asking tough questions.

Hours before Reagan was interviewed by Fuji Television, the sponsor's flagship station, a judge in Washington ruled that Reagan must surrender notes and diaries related to the Iran-Contra case for use in the criminal trial of Reagan's ex-aid, John Poindexter.

Most American reporters would have jumped at the chance to ask Reagan if he would willingly turn over his diaries to the court. The Japanese interviewer did not.

Poland wants Warsaw Pact more political, less military

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Poland's Solidarity-led non-communist government vowed Thursday to maintain good relations with its East bloc allies despite widening ideological differences and called on Warsaw Pact foreign ministers to make the organization more political and less military.

The appeal came at the start of a two-day meeting of the seven-nation Warsaw Pact, its first since the August installation in Poland of the first non-communist government in the East bloc since the end of World War II.

It also was the first gathering since Hungary proclaimed an end to four decades of communist rule earlier this week — two clear signs the communist alliance may be fraying at the edges.

Stefan Staniszwski, spokesman for the Polish Foreign Ministry, said at a news conference that Poland urged the foreign ministers to make deep changes in the pact designed to make it "a less military but more political organization."

The official Polish news agency PAP said high on the agenda of the two-day meeting were disarmament issues, economic problems and cooperation of the Warsaw Pact countries. PAP also said there were calls for the "democratization" of the organization.

"The participants of the meeting were for the continuation of the democratization of the mechanism of cooperation of the Warsaw Pact and for accommodation of it to the changes in West-East relations," PAP said.

Last month Romania called for military intervention in Poland to prevent the "liquidation of socialism."

The pact has been dominated by the Soviet Union since its founding in 1955. There are fears in conservative circles in Moscow that the wave of reforms in East bloc nations such as Poland and Hungary will severely weaken the alliance.

"The meeting will contribute significantly to the construction of a lasting foundation of one, indivisible Europe," Polish Foreign Minister Krzysztof Skubiszewski said at the opening ceremony.

"Poland attached great significance to the meeting and has a sincere will to maintain friendly, mutually advantageous ties with state-parties of the Warsaw Pact and since respect for mutual interests on the principle of equal rights," Skubiszewski said.

But while Poland and Hungary move toward democracy other members of the pact such as Romania, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria have made no move to follow Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's lead on liberalization.

Last month Romania called for military intervention in Poland to prevent the "liquidation of socialism" following Solidarity's rise to power. The call was rejected by other Warsaw Pact members.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze held talks with Polish officials Tuesday and Wednesday before the Warsaw meeting and assured them Moscow will end any interference in the internal affairs of other pact countries.

Along with the foreign ministers, Warsaw Pact trade ministers are also meeting in Warsaw in an attempt to improve cooperation.

Bhutto claims legislators bribed

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto charged Thursday opposition leaders are using drug money and blackmail to buy support of legislators in a no-confidence motion against her embattled government.

Meanwhile, the speaker of the National Assembly set Oct. 1 as the date for the vote after 98 of the 237 members of the House endorsed the no-confidence motion.

An opposition spokesman also announced the names of 118 Members of the National Assembly, including nine from Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party, who he said would support the motion against her.

Bhutto, 36, daughter of hanged prime minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, took office in December following the first democratic elections in 11 years in Pakistan, which has been under martial law for about two-thirds of its 42-year history.

But her party currently has only 114 members in the national assembly, less than half the chamber's 237 total seats, and must rely on the support of smaller parties and independents in order to govern.

The most serious challenge to her rule has come from Nawaz Sharif, chief minister of Pakistan's most populous province of Punjab and leader of the Islamic Democratic Alliance, the main opposition grouping founded by associates of late President Mohammad Zia ul-Haq. Zia died in a mysterious plane crash last year.

Bhutto, in her fiercest attack on the opposition to date, charged the Punjab government was trying to coerce and intimidate legislators, but said she was confident of victory in next week's vote.

"This is a move and a conspiracy to strike at the very roots of the integrity of the country," she told a news conference. "We have never ever in the history of mankind witnessed a provincial government seeking to subvert a federal government."

She added: "A whole provincial government has been used, the machinery of that provincial government has been used, and drug money has been used against my government. Because if it is not drug money, I do not understand from where people could go and put half a million dollars in front of people."

Crude oil tanker turned away by Alaskan officials

Unocal tanker lacked spill response plan

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — The state of Alaska prevented a tanker carrying 15 million gallons of crude oil from docking at a refinery because it lacked a required oil spill response plan, environmental officials said Thursday.

The 810-foot Unocal tanker Sansinena II, carrying more than 15.1 million gallons of crude, dropped anchor in Cook Inlet, southwest of Anchorage, while company officials scrambled to meet Alaska's demands.

"The message to the oil industry is if you can't get your act together and do it in a safe manner, we don't want you in state waters," said Larry Dietrick, director of the state Division of Environmental Quality. "The fisheries resources and the biological resources are too significant."

Dietrick said the state is not opposed to the tanker trade in Alaska. "But we are definitely opposed to tankers entering state waters and risking biological resources without (oil spill) contingency plans and adequate resources to respond to a spill," he said.

He also denied Alaska was trying to make an example out of the Unocal tanker, saying, "Our example occurred March 24." That's when the Exxon Valdez ran aground in Prince William Sound, spilling 11 million gallons of oil, the biggest spill in U.S. history.

Unocal and Tesoro officials were caught off guard by the state action Wednesday.

The Sansinena II was delivering Prudhoe Bay crude from the Valdez oil terminal to the Tesoro refinery at Nikiski, southwest of Anchorage in Cook Inlet. After unloading, the tanker fills with Unocal's own crude from Cook Inlet for delivery to refineries in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Unocal and Tesoro officials were caught off guard by the state action, which came suddenly Wednesday when a routine paperwork check revealed that the tanker had no spill plan on file, Dietrick said from Juneau.

"I'm very disappointed to find a vessel operating without a Contingency Plan," Dietrick said, referring to the oil spill contingency plans required of tankers since Jan. 1, 1981. Dietrick said current debate in Alaska and in the industry is over adequacy of spill plans, not whether they were required.

Tankers in Prince William Sound, where the Exxon Valdez ran aground, had been allowed to operate without contingency plans because the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., the oil industry consortium that operates the pipeline and the Valdez terminal, was responsible for spills. But after the Exxon spill, Alyeska made it clear that it felt a duty only for initial spill response, prompting Dietrick to notify tanker operators that by Nov. 13 all tankers in Prince William Sound must have spill plans or be turned away.

The situation in Cook Inlet is different. No single terminal like Alyeska's Valdez terminal was responsible so Alaska required each company and tanker to have spill response plans when the law went into effect nine years ago.

Unocal spokesman Barry Lane said from Los Angeles, "We thought we had an approved contingency plan."

DEA starts drug raids for equipment in states

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal drug agents began a nationwide series of raids Thursday, searching in 42 states for equipment that can be used to grow marijuana indoors.

The unusual raids were aimed at people who sell plant-growing equipment, such as "grow lights." Such equipment also has many legal uses.

The Drug Enforcement Administration said agents had 38 search warrants and that 65 stores were under investigation. The DEA said it had arrest warrants for 11 store operators "at this time."

It said agents had "acquired the name; and addresses of thousands of individuals who are suspected of being involved in the indoor cultivation of marijuana."

The DEA would not say how it "acquired" the names of suspects, but said, "This represents the first phase of a comprehensive attack against the proliferation of indoor marijuana cultivation in the United States."

In addition to the arrests of store operators, the DEA said it expected to make "over 100 arrests today in conjunction with state and local law enforcement officials" of people who grow marijuana.

While the DEA said raids were conducted in 42 states, it did not list them and officials did not respond immediately to requests for more information.

"There is no such thing today as a casual or innocent user of illegal substances," said Terrence Burke, acting DEA administrator.

"Users are a major factor in the drug trafficking problem, and they are going to be held accountable — and subject to suitable penalties, both civil and criminal," Burke added.

The DEA said the people it arrested would be accused of "various violations of the controlled substances act." It also said it was conducting "further investigations."

Federal authorities also have tried to crack down in recent years on outdoor growing of marijuana, particularly on government lands such as national forests.

The DEA said that before the current series of raids began, 112 people had been arrested "on federal, state and local charges," and authorities had seized "94 indoor marijuana-growing locations containing 17,000 sinsemilla marijuana plants."

Sinsemilla is a high-potency variety of marijuana that attracts high prices and is generally grown domestically.

"It is believed that domestic production now provides approximately 25 percent of the marijuana available for use in the United States," the DEA said.

The key active ingredient in marijuana that induces a euphoric sensation is "tetrahydrocannabinol," or THC. In sinsemilla marijuana, the DEA said, the THC level can be as high as 18.6 percent.

 did seek,
 so we stuffed napkins for 2 weeks.

When Saturday came near,
 we felt no

At the football game we had a blast, and at halftime we were named

#1 at last.

To The Ladies
 Of Delta Zeta

We stuffed those napkins
 till our fingers were numb...

Thinking at first, this project was dumb.

We stuffed and stuffed till our fingers were blue...

But as it turned out, we had fun too!

We won first place,
 our dreams
 came true...

But best of all,
 we did it
 with you!

See ya
 for Theta Xi...

Tagliabue inherits more than a job when he assumes NFL's top spot

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Television contracts must be renegotiated. The NFL players' union demands an agreement. Several groups want NFL expansion franchises. Salaries and other expenses are up.

Welcome to the NFL, Paul Tagliabue.

Tagliabue, 48, was elected NFL commissioner Thursday after 50 hours of meetings by owners over six days in three cities. He received the 19 votes needed for approval on the 12th ballot of the NFL's 28 owners.

Tagliabue is a Washington attorney who has represented the NFL in various legal cases for the past 20 years, becoming familiar with such problems as franchises shifts and antitrust suits.

After years of working behind the NFL scenes, Tagliabue's next challenge will be governing a group of rich, powerful business leaders accustomed to success.

Owners vowed unity after the election, but their actions of the past three months created an impasse along NFL political lines.

Tagliabue's victory over New Orleans President and General Manager Jim Finks was a triumph for the newer owners and a new power base and a defeat for older owners who traditionally had the votes to get their way.

A new coalition of owners prevented Finks from being elected in July after he was the only nominee presented to the assembly by a search committee. Eleven owners abstained, denying Finks a victory by three votes and sending a message to the traditional power brokers who formed the committee — send more choices.

Owners reconvened in Dallas two weeks ago and narrowed an expanded field to Tagliabue and Finks.

Utah Jazz want to vindicate last season's dismal finish

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—The Utah Jazz claimed the Midwest Division championship last season, but now must prove they didn't deserve elimination in the first round of the playoffs.

The Jazz went 51-31 last year, but were swept by Golden State in the opening round. All-Star guard Karl Malone says the Jazz are determined to challenge for more than a pass to the playoffs this season.

"Anything less than that and we're letting ourselves down," said Malone, who averaged 29.1 points and 10.7 rebounds per game last season.

Malone, the MVP of the All-Star game last year, and nine other players return from last year's team.

One reason for the Jazz playoff collapse could have been the lack

One reason for the Jazz playoff collapse could have been the lack of experience on the bench.

of experience on the bench, with three rookies and three other players who had just one year.

That meant the veterans were given little rest during the regular season. Malone and point guard John Stockton, the NBA 1988-89 assist champion, both averaged 39 minutes per game, and center Mark Eaton 37.

"The key to our season is how the bench plays this year," said forward Thurl Bailey, Utah's top reserve and No. 2 scorer last season. "In the past, it hasn't been very strong. With a better bench, we can definitely have our eye on an NBA championship."

Plus, guard Bob Hansen and forward Mike Brown, who missed 36 and 16 games respectively due to injuries, both say they are fully recovered this year.

a spark on offense to have a chance at beating the Salukis.

"We have not been able to put together two halves all season," Head said. "My contention is it's a matter of concentration. We haven't been able to execute when we needed to."

Head said his team is physically smaller than the Salukis but could have a chance to win if the game were close after three quarters.

"We need to keep SIU's offense off the field," Head said. "They have many potent weapons."

The Saluki weapons include the arms of quarterbacks Scott Gabbert and Fred Gibson. They have combined for 1,837 yards passing on 171 completions in 308 attempts with 12 interceptions and 12 touchdowns.

The starting Saluki quarterback for the game Saturday will depend on how well Gibson responds to treatment of his injured knee.

Gibson experienced swelling in the knee in the middle of Tuesday's practice allowing Gabbert to practice the majority of Tuesday and Wednesday.

Smith said Gabbert had the upper hand from the extra practice time. But because Gibson seems to have the hot hand, after sparking the team to a fourth-quarter rally against Southwest Missouri last week, he will be the starter if healthy.

The health of the entire team is also a concern of Smith. "We have got to get some kids back to finish the season," he said.

Those not expected to play against the Thorobreds include defensive back Willie Davis, out with a severe thigh bruise and defensive end Scout Boelie with an ankle sprain.

Freshman running back Yonel Jourdain and junior linebacker Kevin Kilgallon may see some action. Both are recovering from ankle injuries.

Hawks' playoff record a psychological block

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Hawks have suffered too long from poor showings in the playoffs to make a positive prediction for the 1989-90 season.

The postseason has been the Hawks' albatross. Despite winning 50, 57, 50 and 52 games respectively over the past four seasons, they have failed to get past the second round of the playoffs.

"That's a psychological road-block we need to get over," Coach Mike Fratello said. "With our experience and our ability, I believe we can it."

The problem facing Fratello now is that his team may have peaked without ever living up to expectations.

"According to some of the reports I've seen, we're picked to finish as low as fourth or fifth in the Central Division," Fratello said. "It will be interesting to see how our players respond to that."

As usual, the Hawks offense will be built around Dominique Wilkins, a 6-foot-8 forward who averaged 26.2 points last season. But last year's No. 2 scorer, 6-10 center Moses Malone (20.2 points and 11.8 rebounds), is 34 and entering his 14th NBA season. And the No. 3 scorer last year, guard Reggie Theus (15.8), was lost in the expansion draft. "We were disappointed about our finish in the playoffs (when Milwaukee eliminated the Hawks in the opening round), but like our chances this time," Fratello said. "There's no question that the loss of (injured) Kevin Willis (a 7-0 forward) hurt us last year and we're expecting him back at full strength."

"With Willis rejoining Dominique Wilkins, Moses Malone, Glenn Rivers, Jon Koncak and Cliff Levingston, we should be a much improved ballclub."

The Hawks almost lost Koncak as a free agent to Detroit but came up with a $9.4-million offer for five years to keep the 7-footer even though he averaged only 4.7 points and 6 rebounds last season.

"I know my role on this team," said Koncak, who is expected to alternate between power forward and center. "My job is not to score 20 points a game. My job is to rebound, help Moses out, do a lot of things that don't even show up in the box score."

The loss of Theus left the Hawks without a proven shooting guard, a position they hope John Battle can fill when he comes back from arthroscopic surgery on his right knee.

 2. Leeann Conway: "Leeann has been a little down over the last 10 days. But you can't ever count her out. She is a gutsy performer that will give 100 percent. I think she could be one of the top finishers."
 3. Amie Padgett: "Amie is training well. She is relaxed and confident with a goal of finishing in the top 10. She may do better than that."

 4. Dona Griffin: "Dona has been up and down. But she is a well-conditioned athlete and I think she could give a top ten effort."
 5. Dawn Barefoot: "Dawn was struggling from fatigue last week. But she's relaxed and confident now. She could be in the top 10."
 6. Cathy Brown: "Cathy is coming off a good race in the Ole Miss Invitational. Her time of 19:09 has her ranked 20th in the conference."

 7. Laura Batsie: "Laura ran well at Mississippi last week. She is doing very well in training and is capable of finishing in the top 25."
 DeNoon, who has a goal of winning conference in cross country, indoor and outdoor track within one calendar year, said he's anxious going into the conference meet.
 "I'm stressed out right now," DeNoon said.

Major league baseball to help quake victims

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Bay Area, site of the earthquake-interrupted World Series, will receive at least $1.4 million in disaster relief from major league baseball, Commissioner Fay Vincent said Thursday.
 "We feel its only appropriate to make this donation," Vincent, flanked by Mayor Art Agnos, Oakland Mayor Lionel Wilson and Los Gatos Mayor JoAnne Benjamin, said at a news conference. "All of us in baseball are proud to help the recovery effort of the people of this wonderful area."
 "We want to assist the recovery to demonstrate our appreciation for the cooperation we have received while guests here and to emphasize our support for the people who have suffered."

 Game 3 of the best-of-seven Series between the San Francisco Giants and the Oakland Athletics was about to begin Oct. 17 when the Bay Area was shaken by an earthquake registering 7.0 on the Richter scale, killing at least 63 people and causing about $10 billion in damage.
 The Series resumes Friday night in San Francisco's Candlestick Park, with the A's leading two games to none.
 Major league baseball, the two teams and the players stand to make about $100 million from the Series, not counting each team's concession profits from the games.

have in the past few seasons."
 Even with the Sycamores overall record of 14-12, Hagemeyer said the Salukis aren't looking past anyone. "We can't afford to overlook any team in the conference," she said.
 "We still have to play them," Hagemeyer said. "Indiana State isn't going to come in and roll over. They want to win as bad as we do."
 The Sycamores will rely on junior outside hitter Julie Kovacs (.280 hitting percentage, 3.23 kills per game) and senior Mary Kay Bahnman (.298 hitting percentage and 3.22 kills per game). Both players rank among the Gateway's top 10 hitters.

 "Outside hitter Julie Kovacs was out with an ankle injury for awhile, but she's back and (the Sycamores) have been playing better since her return," Hagemeyer said.
 The Salukis' Saturday match is Parent's Night and begins at 4:30 p.m. in Davies Gymnasium. Football ticker stubs from Saturday's game can be used to gain free admission to the match.
 Tonight the Salukis will take on last year's Gateway Conference champion Illinois State at 7 p.m. in Davies Gymnasium.

Salukis favored over Kentucky State

By Daniel Wallenberg
Staff Writer

Being an independent NCAA Division II school, Kentucky State head coach William Head said it's difficult to find equal competition. On Saturday the Thorobreds will compete with a team with an equal 1-7 record but a step up in level of play.

"For probably the only time this season the Salukis, classified as Division I-AA, will be considered the outright favorite. It also marks the last time the Salukis will play at home this season.

"It's a must-win situation for us," Saluki head coach Bob Smith said. "It's a game that we can win and should win."

"It may be the only game of the season that anyone who really knew about our talent level would have picked us as favorites," Smith said. "And they are a Division II team. They are allowed to give 40 scholarships. We are allowed 79. That should in itself make us the stronger football team."

The Salukis have 62 players on scholarship while the Thorobreds have 15.

Head said some people have criticized the scheduled game with the Salukis because of the difference in divisions. But because the school does not belong to a conference there was not much of a choice.

"We can't try and schedule people who we think we can beat," Head said. "People schedule us because they think they can beat us."

Despite the difference in division, Smith said he still has some worries about the Thorobreds' strong point — speed.

"The thing that makes us a bit nervous about playing Kentucky State is that their strength happens to be where we lack a little bit," Smith said. "They have real good overall team speed. If we had a big need, that would be it."

Head said his team will have to play their best game of the season to be able to compete with the Salukis.

"SIU has struggled against some fine competition while we have struggled against competition we were equal or above," Head said. "We have had inconsistencies on both sides of the ball."

The Thorobred defense has allowed at least 20 points in eight games this season, giving up an average of nearly 31 points a game. The most the Thorobreds have allowed came in 46-0 loss to Central State Oct. 14.

The offense has fared no better scoring an average of almost 11 points a contest. The Thorobreds have been shut out twice and have scored 32 points in a game.

The Saluki defense has allowed an average of 25.5 points a game while the offense has averaged 16.25.

Head said his team needs to find

Cornell wants early birthday gift

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

Saluki men's cross country coach Bill Cornell turns 50 Monday, but he wouldn't mind celebrating his birthday Saturday.

"They could give me a birthday present with a conference championship Saturday," Cornell said.

In order for Cornell to receive that coveted present Saturday, the Salukis will have to upset the favored Illinois State Redbirds in the Missouri Valley Conference championships at Peoria Saturday.

The Salukis have won the team title in each of their last two meets. Cornell said his team is confident and ready for this weekend's challenge.

"We're primed as we can be," Cornell said. "The runners are healthy and fit. I hope they're confident at the starting line. I think we have a shot at the upset."

The Redbirds are the defending conference champions and have won four of the last five conference meets. Their top runners are juniors David Wilson and Tony Daniel. Wilson finished second in last year's conference meet and Daniel ended in fifth place.

The only time the Salukis competed against Illinois State this season was in the Country-Fair Saluki Invitational here Sept. 30. The Redbirds won the meet with 41 points, followed by the Salukis in second with 77.

MVC rival Indiana State also participated in the nine-team Invitational. The Sycamores finished fifth with 122 points.

Cornell said his team has improved since the Invitational.

"We've come a long way," Cornell said. "Hopefully we've closed the gap on Illinois State. I think our backup men have improved. We have to depend on depth because Illinois State really has excellent front runners."

Drake and Wichita State are also considered threats for the championship. The Bulldogs are led by sophomore Bill Sitton. The Shockers are led by Tjaart van Nieuwenhuizen who finished third in the meet last season and could be a top finisher this season, Cornell said.

Cornell is confident in his top four runners — freshman Gerallt Owen, sophomores Mark Stuart and Vaughan Harry and senior Paul Burkinshaw.

Owen and Stuart tied for the top spot in the Ole Miss Invitational last Friday with a time of 25:10. Burkinshaw finished third with a time of 25:17.41 while Harry finished fourth with a 25:22.25.

"Any one of the top four runners could be our No. 1 man," Cornell said. "I think they can run with anybody."

Cornell said senior team captain David Beauchem could be a spark Saturday.

"I would say David is the No. 5 runner," Cornell said. "He has made some big strides the last couple of weeks. I think he could be up there with our top four. He always rises to the occasion for conference meets. David is very competitive."

Beauchem finished eighth in the

The Saluki women's cross country squad never has won a Gateway Conference championship, but are favored to win their first in Peoria Saturday.

In the Gateway coaches' poll, six of the nine opposing coaches picked the Salukis to win the conference meet Saturday. The other three coaches picked the Salukis to finish second.

Saluki coach Don DeNoon said the team doesn't feel any pressure being favored.

"I put pressure on myself," DeNoon said. "I always strive for my team to come out on top."

DeNoon's runners racked up 78 total points in the poll. Illinois State received two first places votes, Indiana State and Western Illinois each picked up a first place vote.

The coaches could not vote for their own team. DeNoon said he chose Indiana State.

"Indiana State has only two runners in the Gateway top 15 list, but all five of their runners are in the top 30," DeNoon said.

The Salukis have five runners listed in the top 15. Rosanne Vincent (18:08, third), Lecann Conway (18:10, fourth), Amie Padgett (18:29, 10th), Dona Griffin (18:39, 12th) and Dawn Barefoot (18:44, 13th) have all recorded top times in the conference this season.

Spikers take on Indiana State

The Saluki volleyball team, 12-7 overall and 3-1 in the Gateway Conference, will play the Indiana State Sycamores, 14-12 overall and 1-2 conference, at 4:30 p.m. Saturday in Davies Gymnasium. It will be the second of two conference games this weekend.

This season the Sycamores, with help from new coach Rhonda Woodward, have doubled the number of wins they recorded in 1988.

Indiana State finished with a disappointing 6-23 overall record and 0-9 in the Gateway Conference.

The Sycamores finished strong in the spring and placed second at

"We can't rest on what we've done this season," DeNoon said. "We have to duplicate our performances. Our inexperience may cause some problems, but we've risen to the occasion against some tougher this season."

Illinois State, the preseason conference favorite, has won four championships and Wichita State has won the last two meets.

Western Illinois has one conference title to their credit.

Last year Wichita State won the meet with 42 points. Drake finished second with 59, Illinois State finished third with 92, Indiana State fourth with 93, Northern Illinois finished fifth with 121 and the Salukis sixth with 135 points.

Western Illinois, Southwest Missouri State, Eastern Illinois and Bradley took the next four positions in last year's race.

Drake's Karla Burds was the top finisher last season and is ranked second in the Gateway this season with a time of 18:06. Fifth-place finisher Anna Dutton from Illinois State also returns. Dutton is ranked fifth with a time of 18:12.

Kathy Campbell of Western Illinois has recorded the best time (17:56) of any Gateway runner this season.

the Illinois State tournament. Woodward said at times it was very difficult for her and her team.

"At the last tournament, we showed what hard work, a positive mental attitude and the desire to win can do," Woodward said. "We knew after that we were winners."

"By the end of spring, I felt good," Woodward said. "It was very trying at times on both the team and I."

Saluki volleyball coach Patri Hagemeyer said the Sycamores are in the process of building a team from scratch.

"They are a young team with a new coach," Hagemeyer said. "They are playing better than they
