GLBF travels to Washington, D.C., for AIDS quilt memorial

When Kris Bein saw the AIDS Quilt in its entirety recently in Washington, D.C., she says she walked around the quilt and remembered her friends who have died of AIDS. She said it brought tears to her eyes. "I have lost five friends to AIDS," Bein, a sophomore in social work from Chicago, said. "Seeing the quilt brought me back to the reality of how close it is in our daily life." Bein said there were thousands of people who went to Washington, D.C., to see the quilt, and pieces of the quilt will be on display around the country. Bein said it took more than three hours to walk around the quilt. She said seeing the quilt brought the issue of AIDS close to her. "The quilt gave AIDS a personal face," Bein said. "It made me realize how close it is to our own life." Marshall Nelson, a senior in communication disorders from Rockford, said the quilt forced him to see the human side of AIDS. He said it was like being in a cemetery. "Seeing the quilt put the numbers into perspective," Nelson said. "It was kind of like walking through a huge graveyard with faces." Nelson said the quilt brought pictures of the people who have died and letters written by their family, members near to the little. Chad Brazle, a senior in elementary education from Rockford, said the panels with letters from mothers really stood out. There was one in particular that really impressed me," Brazle said. "It had a photo album sewed in and letters from his mother. I must have spent at least 40 minutes looking at it, and I was able to feel in touch with a person that I did not even know," Brazle said.

An SIUC civil service worker has experienced something she describes as a dream come true. Janet Fassell, a house-keeping supervisor for SIUC from DeSoto, said she never dreamed that she and her husband, Ken, would be the winners of Saturday’s $2 million Illinois Lottery jackpot. "My husband has been playing for years, but I never gave it a thought," Fassell said. "I was just saying he had a feeling we would win." Ken Fassell, 63, who is a retired coal miner, said he has been playing the Illinois Lottery since 1974, hoping he would win someday. "I just kept the faith that it would turn out to be a good investment, and it did," Ken Fassell said. The Fassells said the money, which will be paid to them in $100,000 installments each year for 20 years, will not make much of a difference in their everyday life. Just Fassell said she will continue working for SIUC and sees no reason to stop. "I won’t quit my job for quite a while, and besides, they couldn’t get along without me," she said. Martha Fassell, Fassell’s co-worker and friend, described Janet as a great person who is a dependable, efficient and honest worker dedicated to SIUC. "It couldn’t have happened to a better family," Fassell said. Although some winners may dream of cruises, sports cars or "big things," the Fassells said they will keep their jobs and move to a larger house and "just enjoy life."

"I have lost five friends to AIDS," Bein, a sophomore in social work from Chicago, said. "Seeing the quilt reminded me of my friends. It was especially hard to see panels with people with the same names as my friends." Bein was part of a group of 13 students from GLBFS that went to Washington, D.C., Oct. 19-13 to see the AIDS Quilt on display. The quilt is a mosaic of more than 44,000 individual quilts, including three SUIC panels, that have been made as a memorial to people who have died of AIDS.

The weekend was the last time the entire quilt will be shown because of its size. Panels of the quilt will be on display around the country.

Bein said it took more than three hours to walk around the quilt. She said seeing the quilt brought the issue of AIDS closer to home. "The quilt gave AIDS a personal face," Bein said. "It made me realize how close it is to our own life."

Warrant requested for hearing in shooting deaths
A state's attorney has requested a warrant for a hearing for a teenager who is wanted in the shooting deaths of two Carbondale Community High School students, media reports say.
Mike Weispe, Jackson County State's Attorney, has requested a grand jury warrant for LaBron Neal, 17, who has been detained in a Sacramento, Calif., juvenile facility since Oct. 4 after a warrant for possession of crack cocaine.
Neal appeared in court on the drug charges two weeks ago and did not waive extradition. If the warrant is obtained, Neal will have a hearing in California to determine if he is in the U.S. in connection with the Oct. 11 shootings of Janice Samuels, Campbell, 15, and Terrance Mitchell, 16. The process could take as long as 90 days.

SIUC College Republicans greeted local, state and national Democrats with signs as they entered the Southern Illinois Airport terminal Wednesday night for a campaign rally.
Although there were no confrontations between the two parties' members, College Republican President Andy Volpert and state Democratic chairman Gary LaPaille exchanged words about an alleged Chicago boycott by two local candidates.
Volpert and 12 other College Republicans protested Democratic state Senate candidate Barbara Brown's and Democratic state representative candidate John Rendleman's campaign contributions from state party leaders in Chicago and Cook County.
The College Republicans also protested the two candidates' negative campaign ads that alleged that state Rep. Mike Bost, R-Curryville, and state Sen. Dave Luechtefeld, R-Oakville, have been bought out by Republican leaders in suburban Chicago.
"Hypocrite Rendleman takes Chicago money and Brown— Chicago's choice for our Senator— were written on some of the signs. LaPaille, along with several Democrats, approached the group and asked about the signs. LaPaille said that both local Republican incumbent candidates are getting money from Republican leaders in suburban Chicago.
"Don't you find it ironic that your candidates are getting money from up there, too?" LaPaille asked. "She (Brown) is not getting as much money as he is (Luechtefeld)."
Brown, a political science lecturer at SIUC, said her campaign has received $32,000 from the state Democratic organization, while Luechtefeld has received $200,000 according to D-2 declaration reports released this week.
Volpert acknowledged that both Bost and LaPaille are receiving money from state Republican leaders in suburban Chicago, but he said the group was tired of Brown's and Rendleman's "hypocrisy."
Volpert said both candidates are

Keg parties offer nothing for non-drinkers
By Colleen Heray

Weekend keg parties packed with college students guzzling warm beers, burning cheap cigarettes and trying out their newest pickup lines is not Jonita Jordan's idea of a good time.
Jordan, a freshman in psychology from Chicago, said she watches her hard-drinking friends stumble home after rowdy evenings from too many drinks, only to go home and eat all their food or get sick in the nearest spot.
Because these parties usually lack any beverages that are non-alcoholic, Jordan said the only thing Carbondale keg parties occasionally have to offer her is dancing.
"Every party is a keg party, even if you don't drink," Jordan said. "I wish they would have something else, but I just go anyway and dance."
Pressure from friends to drink does not convince her to drink alcohol, Jordan said.
"They say you are just being a baby, but I tell them no," Jordan said.
"Though some SIUC students have been characterized for their "wild" drinking parties, Jordan and other non-drinking students say they do not follow what they consider to be "the norm."
And though it is Alcohol Awareness Week at SIUC, some students said they already have come to terms with the effects alcohol can have on them and have opted not to drink.
Barry Sewell, a junior in radio/television from Chicago, said instead of drinking, he gets uplifted from music. On weekends, he said, he stays home being a disc jockey or goes to bars and parties where people dance.
"I see how drinking makes people act differently," Sewell said. "Someone who is extremely shy might become a violent person when they are drinking. Everyone today needs a couple of drinks to have a good time, but I know that

Night transit service defeats purpose by making women wait

THE EFFICIENCY OF THE WOMEN'S NIGHT Safety Transit has become a recent issue on campus. One of the problems is that sometimes a person will have to wait up to an hour for a car to come pick them up. The entire idea of the system revolves around getting women home safely after dark, and the idea of waiting long periods of time at night defeats the transit's purpose. Long waiting periods aside, the night transit has some bugs in the system, and something needs to be done to increase night safety. If the school is going to have a transit system, then the school should make sure it works.

One of the problems is that the transit system was reduced to one car and one van after the Saluki Express bus routes were implemented. People are now able to use the bus system, which also acts as a way of calling for a car to pick them up. However, the bus system stops running around 10 p.m. The transit system also has a policy of not taking people to on-campus locations if that person is already on campus.

TO MAKE MATTERS WORSE, ONE OF THE vehicles does not run after 10:30 p.m. As a result, people are put on a waiting list in order of their call, and a car will get there as soon as it is their turn. This creates a very unsafe situation and is one that could be avoided with a little assistance from the community.

Other colleges around the country have begun local chapters of "sororities" who give a small office by university to take calls from women after hours. Some colleges even give volunteers the use of a gym to play basketball or watch television to watch between calls.

These individuals will then walk to the location where the person called from and then walk them wherever the person needs to go.

THIS WAS OFFERED AS A SERVICE, USUALLY implemented by a local Greek chapter, for women to go safely between different campus locations at night. This type of situation could be implemented at SIUC very easily and would get around the night transit policy of not taking people to on-campus locations.

The night transit system is a very good idea, and other Greek organizations could implement this type of situation could be implemented at SIUC very easily and would get around the night transit policy of not taking people to on-campus locations. However, the system is not enough to get around the night transit policy of not taking people to on-campus locations. However, the system is not enough to get around the night transit policy of not taking people to on-campus locations.

In the past, there have been numerous opportunities to meet people as well as participate in expanded events. Being a member of the Greek system gives students an incentive to keep their grades up and maintain a high average.

Members of fraternities and sororities strive to maintain a high average and attend leadership skills by serving at chapter events. Each chapter also participates in philanthropic events that encourage the Greek system.

It's a rule paradox that much of humanity's suffering is caused by the very institutions that claim to elevate humanity.

For instance, the first crusade began when a mystical figure stood before a crowd in the French city of Clermont-Ferrand and emboldened the men with fiery speeches in the name of God. The men were instructed to do God's work and were told that they would be rewarded in the afterlife. The result was a massacre of Muslims in Turkey and by religious leaders to wage war against their enemies in the Middle East. This mystical figure was Pope Urban II, and he was the leader of the first crusade.

Similarly, political entities of the Roman Catholic church—leaders who espouse that we ought to do unto others as we would have them do unto us—will often manipulate individuals to achieve political ends. This is just one of many examples of how faith, whether religious or patriotic, can be manipulated to achieve political ends.

Christians are not alone, however, in committing acts of barbarity. Hindus and Muslims waged vicious street fighting throughout the latter part of India's independence movement, resulting in great human carnage and the creation of a separate Muslim state.

Slaughter in the name of religion is not restricted to distant history, either. As is evidenced by recent events in the Balkan Peninsula, religion is not a political agenda. It is a political philosophy. Hitler's Nazi regime would rest forever in their economic and political agendas, seemingly irresistible to politically manipulate the faithful into moral and behavioral obedience even when nobody is observing.

And when religious leaders have political aims, their aims are often so subtle that they are not even recognized as such. This is just one of the many reasons why faith, whether religious or patriotic, can be manipulated to achieve political ends.

The purpose of an all-powerful God is to compel emotionally irresistible to a devastating moral and behavioral obedience even when nobody is observing.

And when religious leaders have political aims, their aims are often so subtle that they are not even recognized as such. This is just one of the many reasons why faith, whether religious or patriotic, can be manipulated to achieve political ends.

Jackson Jr. stresses voter registration need

Less than two weeks before the election, Congressman Jesse Jackson Jr. and other Illinois Democrats are praying for a landslide and are expecting nothing less than a Democratic majority in Congress.

U.S. Rep. Jackson Jr., D-Chicago, preached party politics to a crowd of about 50 local Democrats Wednesday night at the Southern Illinois Airport terminal and urged them to campaign as much as possible before the election.

"Get out the vote like our lives depend on it," he said. "Our lives do depend on it.

Jackson, 31, the son of political activist and former candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, said he has registered hundreds of voters during the last seven months.

He said in his district in Chicago, 10,000 new voters have been registered.

"We have registered a new generation of voters in this country," he said.

Jackson, who has been a member of the House of Representatives for 10 months, said the Republican majority has been tough to work with.

"It's a mean Congress," he said. "Students, we must participate in the political process and take Congress back.

Jackson said he has been around the state and nation to register voters in a massive get-out-the-vote effort. Jackson, along with state party chairman Gary LaPaille, made stops in the area this week to campaign for local and state Democratic candidates.

At the rally, which was sponsored by the College Democrats, Democrats cheered and waved signs as state SIUC College Republicans staged a small protest outside the terminal.

College Democrat Kerri Snow said she already is counting down to Election Day. "I'm not tired yet, but I'm getting there," Snow, a sophomore in philosophy from Springfield, said.

"I started crying, and this man came up to me. And we began talking about the people we had lost to AIDS," Beiss said. "It was one of the most moving things, and I don't even know his name and probably won't ever see him again."

Nelson said he, too, experienced the kindness people had for each other.

"One of the things that amazed me was the respect given to the quilt," Nelson said.

For Beiss, one of the highlights of the weekend was the candlelight march on the evening of Oct. 12. He said the group walked from the Capitol building all the way to the Lincoln Memorial, and everywhere the eye could see, there were candles.

"People came up to the microphone and would introduce themselves and say, 'I am a face of AIDS,'" Beiss said. "One of the most memorable was when a little girl stood up and said she was a face of AIDS. It was moving to suddenly hear this thin innocent voice of a child.

"The walk is only about a 15-minute walk, but it must have taken an hour plus," Brazile said. "You were moving, moving, and moving, and behind you, there were candles and candles, and behind you, there were candles."

By shopping, Corel has picked up strong technology from Carbondale, said he is pleased to see the alumni who have done well for themselves.

In 1995, Firstborn Productions, a theater company in Chicago, was formed by SIUC alumni. The founding members found themselves drawn to Chicago to share an artistic vision, which they previously hadn't had as students.

The company currently has established a working relationship with its alma mater. Its goal is to provide the student body a chance to partake of its theatrical efforts by giving a workshop on "Theater in Chicago" from 1 to 3 p.m. Saturday from the Lab Theater.

Hootie shows rock music does have place at SIUC

By Chad Anderson
DE Entertainment Editor

If the crowd could sift through the monotonous, sound-alike tunes of "Fairweather Johnson," Hootie and the Blowfish put on a surprisingly good 2 1/2 hour show at SIU Arena Wednesday night.

The band covered all of the songs it was expected to play including "Seen A Million Faces," "Let Her Cry," "Hold My Hand" and "I Only Want To Be With You," but the gem of Hootie's performance was the number of cover songs it played during its three encores.

Hootie and the Blowfish's bar-band sound worked to its advantage on covers of Aerosmith's "Walk This Way, Talk This Way," The Georgia Satellites' "Keep Your Hands To Yourself," The Doobie Brothers' "Without Love," The Isley's "BALL OF John and Yoko" and AC/DC's "Highway To Hell."

Darius Rucker and crew did play to the audience, even if they didn't seem too excited about being in Southern Illinois.

While playing "I Only Want To Be With You," the band stopped in the middle of song, made a toast to the " Fighting" Saluki softball team, interluded with "Walk This Friday, October 25, 1996

As far as the attendance was concerned, the small crowd of 2,000 showed its support for the band and cheered for three hours — the last of which was truly demanded by the crowd. By this time, half of those in attendance had left, and the band knew it was playing to a die-hard audience.

Even though the crowd was not comparable to that of Garth Brooks, it demonstrated that rock 'n' roll music does have a place at SIU Area.

They Might Have Been Giants

It was tough to figure out just why They Might Have Giants opened for Hootie. The band is much better suited for a smaller venue such as SpaceX Auditorium, but the original sound of the group filled the Aces. Crowd members left their seats to get a closer look at the group that gathered in front of the stage even though the band's stage presence seemed illus-

Volpert said it was ironic that U.S. Rep. Jesse Jackson Jr., D-Chicago, came down and campaigned for local Democratic candidates when those same candidates are saying that Bost and Linkenholt are controlled by Republican leaders from the Chicago area.

Baskin started going to the Strip and drinking at the bars when she was 18, and said she spent her life living for the next party. Now that she does not drink, she said it is hard to go to the bars and not drink and realize what is going on.

"I wish people getting drunk at the parties could see themselves," Baskin said. "Drinking makes you powerful. It makes you think you can dance real well and say anything or talk to anyone you want.

"I have a blackout and I remember what I did the night before," Baskin said.

You have the answer to know. It is the tax payers’ money.

Cigar’s trainer lends hand to rival trainer us Angels Times

TORONTO—A few days ago, trainer Richard Mandella called Bill Mott at Belmont Park. Mandella needed a blacksmith to re-shoe Tallories, the horse he’s running Saturday at Woodbine, and he knew that Mott was one with an education in that hoof problem.

“Who’s the horse?” Mott asked Mandella.

“Tallories,” Mandella said.

“Yeah, I’ll get to it,” Mott said.

“But what we really like is a crack at Dare And Go And Atticus,” Mandella added.

Mott does have real worries about Tallories, because the trainer of Cigar doesn’t have a horse entered in the Turf.

Cigar’s defense, “Watson said.

said, “He said that he has trouble

Talloires, because the trainer of said, “You’ve just got to ride this horse and not win. We’ve shown how dangerous he can be a month ago at Turf Park, rolling us an unassisted lead and winning easily on a sloppy track in the Kentucky Cup Challenge.”

In Cigar’s two recent defeats, at Del Mar and at the Kentucky Derby, the horse was victimized by a hard to tell how fast or slow he’s going.

Cigar doesn’t have a horse entered for Saturday’s game against the Giants. Though he took him in the sixth round of the 1994 draft, Nottage left Florida A&M after his sophomore season to return home to Miami.

But he’s been able to do it, just as he’d done against the Giants.

“As good as he got, just as he was doing it,” Nottage said — to team¬

“Talley,” Mandella said.

“Yeah, I’ll get to it,” Mott said.

mended in Watson’s preseason goals of end¬

Watson said the outside linebacker that was a second-division all-star last year in seven games, he’s recorded 22 tackles and three sacks.

Allen, who is in his eighth season with UNI, said his defense has been consistent all season.

“We have been doing a real good job of keeping teams out of the end zone,” Allen said. “We play a bend, don’t break” type of defense.”

Allen has only allowed the Salukis to win one game in his eight seasons at UNI, SUIC’s last victory over the Panthers came in 1991 when SUIC resigned with a 31-20 victory.

Overall, the Panthers hold an 8-6 series advantage over the Panthers came in 1991 when SUIC resigned with a 31-20 victory.

With only two non-conference games remaining, the outcome of Saturday’s game plays a huge role in Watson’s preseason goals of ending the season with a .500 mark or better.

“We have to handle the adversity better by responding with more composure, giving him a chance next year, and playing better defense, “Allen said.

Saturday’s kickoff is at 1:30.
