VP calls school unsuitable for storage

By Ginny Lee
Staff Writer

The Springmore School in Carbondale, vacated this fall, is not suitable for library storage use by the University, according to Clarence Dougherty, vice president of campus services.

Carbondale Elementary School District 95 has offered the 24,000-square-foot building, located at 409 N. Springer, to any public institution in the area for a low price, possibly as low as $1.

"A taxing body can deed it to another taxing body for a small fee," said Anita Lenzi, chairwoman of the District 95 Board of Education. "We would like to make some arrangements in the community."

Lenzi said that the board first offered the building, which is about 1 1/2 miles from the SIUC campus, for sale to local public agencies at a community meeting in late July. Charles Hendersman, vice president of University relations, was at the meeting representing SIUC, she said.

The University has not made a formal response about Springmore, Lenzi added.

Dougherty said recently that the building is not what the University was looking for because it is multi-level, has no air-conditioning or humidity control and the heating system needs repair.

He said that although he has not examined the school for the purpose of library storage, he has been inside it several times in the past and is familiar with its condition.

Dougherty said that the size of the building "is such that it would not suffice very long" and the "load limit on the floors is not adequate."

"In my opinion," Springmore School is not adequate for library storage needs," he said. "The University was interested in a large warehouse with humidity control."

The University is currently waiting for the state Capital

Development Board to approve the purchase of the Bracy Building in Marion, and release $1.6 million for the purchase. It would be used to store infrequently used material from the overcrowded Morris Library.

Kenneth Peterson, dean of library affairs, said that although the building was closer to campus, it would need work on the heating system and installation of an air conditioning system.

However, the difference between the price of Springmore School and the cost of renovating it, Peterson said, led him to believe that the school "would be a considerably cheaper cost."

Larry Havens, of Havens Realtors in Carbondale, confirmed Tuesday that he contacted Dougherty last week about another building that is for sale in Carbondale, just east of the Garden Park Apartments on East Park Street.

The University had rented the building for office space about seven years ago, Havens said, and it has been vacant since that time.

Havens said the 26,500-square-foot building could be purchased for between $250,000 and $265,000, but would need up to about $300,000 to "bring it

Council kills Cook's proposal; fears unruly crowds, lawsuit

By Mike Nelson
Staff Writer

Undergraduate Student Organization President Jerry Cook believes that placing portable chemical toilets on the Strip during Halloween would solve a lot of sanitation problems.

However, Cook's proposal met with a cool response from the City Council Monday night. The council agreed that portable toilets would help control sanitation problems, but felt that issues of liability and safety outweighed any sanitation advantage.

In his monthly address to the council, Cook proposed that the City of Carbondale re-evaluate its policy in regards to the use of "porta-potties." Cook said that providing the toilets during Halloween weekend might stop people from urinating in alleys and behind buildings.

The feasibility of Cook's proposal was questioned by Assistant City Manager Scott Ratter. Ratter said that lack of ways to secure the toilets is a major reason the city opposes the proposal.

"We can expect they will be knocked down, damaged and even passed up and down the crowd like people at football games," Ratter said. "Something similar was done three years ago on Halloween, when a Volkswagen was passed up and down the crowd on South Illinois Avenue."

Ratter said that placing the toilets downtown would pose a safety hazard to people using them. "Imagine what might happen to a person using one of those toilets if it were picked up or knocked over by the crowd," he said.

Ratter also said liability — to the city, to the University and to the USO — is a major concern of the council.

"If someone is injured, then the city and possibly the University might be sued," he said. "And I wouldn't rule out the individual heads of the city and the University being sued either."

Ratter said placing toilets on South Illinois Avenue during Halloween weekend would violate both city and SIUC policies of not condoning any aspect of the Halloween festivities.

He said that with an average of 15,000 partiers packing the Strip each Halloween, "we

Preacher finds 'satanic' messages

He denounces rock 'n' roll

By Andrew Herrmann
Staff Writer

Rock 'n' roll is not good-time music, according to Bob Duvall, and he wants the young people of this country to stop listening to it. Or at least most of it.

Duvall, a 34-year-old former insurance manager and now a traveling minister, says the world's youth is being inundated with satanic ideas and influences through rock 'n' roll music. And, he says, they're "swallowing it hook, line and sinker."

Duvall is a born-again preacher, whose calling is to speak at universities across the United States for the fundamentalist church of the Maranatha International Ministries. He preaches on a variety of issues but, he says, the rock seminar always "seems to be the one that packs them in."

He is a modern, air-fare preacher whose approach is not necessarily fire and brimstone, but a rational, biblical approach to the evils he sees living in most of today's rock music. Affable, handsome, a firm handshake and the manners of a southern gentleman are all part of the Bob Duvall package.

And he seems to speak with sincerity. When he says in his Memphis-bred accent, "I worry about what's happening to the young people in this country," one is inclined to believe him.

Duvall will be speaking on the rock 'n' roll issue Thursday in Ballroom A of the Student Center at 7 p.m. and will be in Carbondale until Oct. 7th at the Maranatha Christian Center, 715 S. University Avenue.

"I can't help but see what rock music has become since the late '60s," he says. "The rebellion, the sex, the alcohol, the drugs, the violence. And in the seminar I don't even deal with those. I wouldn't have time to discuss all this. Young people can see this side of the music, they don't need my help. But I'm afraid they're missing the spiritual side, the dark side, the underlying influence of Satan."

He is concerned mostly with what he calls "the anti-religious connotations that keep coming across in rock music and on album covers." Connotations that people who aren't Bible readers don't see nor understand, he says. For example, he questions the presence of inverted crosses, snakes, dragons and other satanic symbols on album jackets which he sees as an "continual

Unusual animal acts part of Ringling circus

By Cynthia Rector
Staff Writer

Have you ever seen 20 elephants complete a circle by standing on top of each other, front legs to backs?

If not, you probably don't realize the thrill. My favorite part of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus Tuesday afternoon were the elephants.

And when I asked an 8-year-old boy named Andy what he liked best about the circus, he, too, said "Elephant."

Amy Hall, 2, disagreed. What pleased her most was the monkey act. Amy shyly mumbled, with a little help from her father,

"That's what's so great about 'The Greatest Show on Earth.' It has something to please kids of all ages."

Gunther Gebel-Williams' work with animals was featured throughout the three-hour show. The circus program claims the blond, sequined star had worked with "almost every performing animal by the time he was 20." His oldest child, a daughter, is now 18. She, his wife, and son accompany him and his animal menagerie on tour.

Just about every kind of animal that walks was found personifying a human activity, from three chimps crammed onto a motorcycle to a horse taking a nap. The crowd saw every dog from a poodle to a setter slink down a sliding board, and an elephant standing on its "hands."

Except for a bear who rode a cycle as well as a hippo, the traditionally less-tame members of the animal kingdom performed more animalistic things, like sitting on chairs at the crack of a whip. The tigers and leopards were the most exciting, because of their friskiness and the closeness Gebel-Williams achieves with them — he even gave an intimate hug to one of his leopards at the end of his act, and is alive to do it again.

The high wire acts, the balancing acts, and the acrobatic daredevil acts were all there, too. The second half of the show was much more exciting in terms of human terror and suspense.

Hoye, local minister square off at forum on Sunday wine sales

By Mike Nelson
Staff Writer

Both contestants stepped into the ring, anticipating a fight. But when the bell rang, no one appeared to be the winner.

Only two people showed up to express their viewpoints at a public hearing Monday concerning Holiday Inn owner Stan Hoye's request to serve wine early Sundays.

And one of them was Stan Hoye.

Under present city liquor laws, no alcohol may be sold or consumed in licensed premises between the hours of 2 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Sundays. Hoye has asked the City Council to permit the Holiday Inn to serve wine or champagne with food beginning at 10 a.m. Sundays.

Hoye delivered a brief address to the council, giving the reasons behind his request. Hoye was preceeded by the Rev. Leslie Pappas, who voiced his opposition to the request.

Pappas said he was opposed to Hoye's request in principle, saying that he is against anything which weakens the institutions of religion, home and family. Pappas also said that granting Hoye's request might allow others to make similar requests.

"If the City Council approves this request, then the barn doors would be open," he said.

Hoye disagreed with Pappas' line of reasoning. "I do not believe this is a religious issue," he said. "Religious beliefs are a personal matter."

Hoye said he has no desire to sell wine or champagne before 1 p.m. Sundays, but he intended by making the request to show his appreciation for his customers.

"By giving away a complimentary glass of wine or champagne, we only want to express our appreciation to those people who stay in Carbondale to have their Sunday brunch," he said.

Hoye appeared surprised that the request was seen by so many as controversial, adding that "this is only a request, not a demand."

Immediately after the hearing, members of the Liquor Advisory Board met at City Hall to consider Hoye's request. According to City Clerk Janet Vaught, the consensus of the board was to recommend denial of the request.

Vaught said that because only two members of the board were present, a formal recommendation could not be made. However, she indicated that the board would make an informal recommendation to deny Hoye's request at its formal meeting Oct. 4.

$20 million rain damage in Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Rain pelted Utah for the fourth straight day Tuesday, hampering efforts to curb flooding which has closed roads and canyons, forced evacuations and caused up to $20 million damage.

Thousands of volunteers worked to sandbag canals and rivers, and Salt Lake County appealed for more workers. City residents were asked to conserve water.

The National Weather Service said a stronger storm system would move into Utah on Wednesday, bringing up to an inch of rain and possibly snow to Salt Lake County.

The storms, which began Saturday and increased in intensity Sunday and Monday, flooded about 2,000 homes in the state's most populous county, forcing evacuation of about 400 residents, officials said.

Shultz, Gromyko discuss summit

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko met on Tuesday to discuss relations between their two countries, but U.S. officials predicted little progress toward easing tensions. The Soviets have indicated on four recent occasions their interest in a possible summit conference between Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev and President Reagan.

A senior State Department official told reporters in Washington last week that "it was certain to be raised in the Shultz-Gromyko meeting. 'It's a subject they will discuss,' said the official, who did not want to be identified.

Wallace battles to win black voters

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Former Gov. George C. Wallace, battling hard for the black votes he once scorned, put his stormy political career on the line Tuesday in a Democratic primary runoff against Lt. Gov. George McMillan.

McMillan, a 38-year-old moderate who drew the backing of such black leaders as Coretta Scott King and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, predicted an upset victory over Wallace as clear skies and mild temperatures inspired a medium-to-heavy turnout.

Wallace, now 65 and confined to a wheelchair since he was shot in an assassination attempt 10 years ago, already has been governor a record three times. But recanting his segregationist stands of old, he resurfaced after a four-year layoff from politics, saying he now represents "the average man and woman, black and white."

Lake Zurich school strike ends

By The Associated Press

Students in Lake Zurich School District 95 returned to classrooms Tuesday after striking teachers and the district's board of education reached a tentative agreement in all-night talks.

Terms of the settlement were withheld until the new contract is put to a vote.

U.S. does not share liability for massacre, Reagan says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Tuesday night that the United States does not share responsibility for the massacre of Palestinians in Beirut because American Marines were withdrawn only after accomplishing their sole mission of evacuating PLO fighters.

The Marines are poised now to re-enter Lebanon, ordered there because of the wave of killings in Palestinian refugee camps.

"... I believe that we are going to be successful in seeing the other foreign forces leave Lebanon," Reagan said. He said when the situation is well in hand, the Marines will once again depart.

Reagan was asked at a White House news conference what he would do if new fighting should erupt, and embroil American forces. He said he does not expect that, then declined to discuss further a question he called hypothetical.

In what has become a news conference pattern, Reagan began with a prepared statement defending his economic program and blaming the Democrats for recession and unemployment. He said inflation has been, cut in half, interest rates are declining, and "there are other signs that we're heading toward a good recovery."

The president acknowledged that there is a long way to go, with economic indicators pointing to a continuing slump and with unemployment at 9.8 percent. But he said "we're better off than we were."

He urged Congress to act before its campaign recess on economic bills including appropriations to fit his budget, a constitutional amendment to require balanced budgets in the long-term future, and the administration job training bill.

Earlier, Reagan accused some members of Congress of trying to exploit the nation's economic problems instead of passing "the legislation needed to set things right."

The Carrillo Brothers were the first act which brought shrieks from the crowd. I became a little uncomfortable when someone strutting around 30 feet up on a high wire decided to bring out a chair to sit on.

The horrified sound intensified when one Carrillo brother stood atop the chair, and continued until he had sat down, safely, his balancing wand at last steady.

Most of the circus was this way. I was awed by what a human body could do and by what an animal trainer and his following could do together.

I hope it isn't only those who watch Saturday morning cartoons who come to see "The Greatest Show on Earth." After much debate, I gave up watching cartoons regularly. College will do that. But I still appreciate elephants who can do head s t a n d s .

mockery of Christianity and Jesus Christ."

A symbol which Duvall believes is one of the most preferred in the rock industry is that of the pentagram, or five-sided star, which appears on various albums including AC-DC and Rush albums. The pentagram, he states, is a symbol used to call demons. The thunderbolt which appears between the letters of the AC-DC logo and on many Black Sabbath albums is also a symbol of Satan, Duvall says.

The goat is another Satanical symbol he says. The goat has appeared on various album jackets — in the form of a leg in a woman's shoe on the Rolling Stones album, "Tattoo You," and it was also the name of another Stones record, "Goat's Head Soup," he says.

But what convinces most students, Duvall says, is the presence of high speed subliminal messages and "backward masking" or phrases which are only audible when played in reverse.

Duvall carries with him tapes of various backward masked songs in which he believes satanic messages appear. On the song, "Another One Bites the Dust" by the group Queen, the message "Start to smoke marijuana" can be heard when the song is played backwards, he says.

In "Stairway to Heaven" by Led Zeppelin, one phrase, when played forward, is heard as "...yes, there are two paths you can go by, but in the long run, there's still time to change the road you're on." However, Duvall says, when played in reverse, the same phrase states, "My sweet Satan, no other made a path, for it makes me sad, whose power is Satan."

He concedes that some groups do this as a gimmick, "but I question where the idea for the gimmick comes from. If they wanted to have a backwards gimmick, why didn't they say 'buy 10 more albums.' Why this continous mocking of Christ?"

He says he is also aware that there is no scientific proof substantiating that backwards messages can be heard when played forward, but still he believes that they do influence people's minds and morals.

Traveling around the country as he does, speaking on such a controversial topic occasionally results in hostility. "Sometimes the audiences get wild. But then, I talk about something that is very important and close to college students — rock music. I've had some problems where some students interrupted me as I'm speaking and they're asked to leave. But I'm always willing to answer any questions afterwards," Duvall says.

Duvall doesn't "necessarily" advocate the destroying of rock albums but he does believe that true Christians should not listen to this "satanic-influenced music."

"Once you accept the Lord, you won't need to listen to this stuff anyway," he said.

GSC to consider stand against Bracy purchase

By Robert Green
Staff Writer

A resolution reaffirming opposition to the University's plan to purchase the Bracy Building in Marion will be discussed at the Graduate Student Council meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

The building, which will cost $1.6 million, would be used as a library storage facility.

Paul Matalonis, GSC president, said the council has supported administration proposals to purchase a facility for storing library books — but not the Bracy Building.

"The issue is in the forefront again, and we want them to know how we stand," Matalonis said. "We have been opposed to the building purchase because it is too far away and inaccessible to graduate students."

In other business the council will discuss the University's consideration of a $6.60 increase in the revenue bond fee. The fee is used to pay off bonds used to fund the building of the Student Center and residence halls.

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said the administration is considering two alternatives: a $6.60 increase in the revenue bond fee, or a $30 increase in student housing fees combined with a $3 increase in the Student Center fee.

The revenue bond fee is now $46.20 and the Student Center fee is $29.

The GSC executive board discussed the fee increase last week, Matalonis said, but was unable to decide which alternative to support. He said the council may wait for student body input before taking a stand on the matter.

In other business the council will discuss a resolution regarding the University's recent decision to more stringently enforce the ban on alcoholic beverages at McAndrew Stadium.

Matalonis said the resolution will "convey disappointment for the lack of constituency input into the decision."

"The decision itself doesn't concern us, but the fact that it was made without student input," he said

Havens said Dougherty indicated to him that the building was not adequate for library storage. Dougherty was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

"I was calling (the University) as a real estate salesman, doing my best to sell a customer real estate that I had hoped would fulfill their needs," Havens said. "In talking to Mr. Dougherty, he informed me that the building in Marion has humidity controls in it, is air-conditioned and is all on one level."

Cook said he plans to present a more comprehensive sanitation plan to City Manager Carroll Fry soon.

Dear Colleagues in the University Community:

This is an appeal for help with Senator Ken Buzbee's campaign. This appeal is being made on behalf of Senator Buzbee by several of his friends in the SIUC community. Ken Buzbee holds bachelor's and master's degrees from SIUC, and he has been a friend and supporter of the university during his entire 10 years in the State Senate. As Chairman of the crucial Appropriations II Committee, Ken is in a pivotal position to help the university in particular, and education in general, and he has used that position well on our behalf. It is now time for us to help Ken Buzbee. Ken faces a tough re-election challenge. His opponent is well-financed and aggressive. These are several specific ways you can help:

- (1) Volunteer your time
- (2) Talk to others
- (3) Give money

Ken is having a fund-raiser in DuQuoin at the First Heat Restaurant on the Fairgrounds on October 14th from 6:00pm-9:00pm. Please plan to attend. Also, there is a form attached to this ad on which you can indicate the ways you can support Ken Buzbee. Please do the university, the region, and yourself a favor by doing Ken a favor.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Eames

Opinion & Commentary

Marines in Lebanon are necessary for peace

PRESIDENT REAGAN'S order sending the Marines to Lebanon for the second time in a month evokes unwelcome memories of Vietnam. Phrases in official statements like "as long as necessary," "a limited period," and "open ended commitment" to describe the length of stay of the Marines do not help to still those memories.

THOSE ADVOCATING an active role for the Marines, and by extension the United States, in Lebanon, have their confidence bolstered by the success of the first mission. But this second mission is different. The length of time for the second mission has not been fixed, the area and nature of the operation has not been as clearly defined and the active peacekeeping role envisioned this time, as opposed to the former essentially supervisory role, raises the chances of casualties.

THE ALTERNATIVES to this risk however, are either continued occupation of Lebanon by her neighbors or renewal of sectarian civil war.

The United States is under no obligation to take this risk, except perhaps the moral duty of doing her share for peace in the world. Refusing to get involved, however, will be counterproductive for both the Middle East and the United States. The prestige and trust built up by the work of Philip Habib, the success of the earlier mission by the Marines and the daring new peace proposals by Reagan can be lost. The opportunity to take a lead in the peacemaking process both in Lebanon and the whole of the Middle East will be wasted.

HOWEVER REAL THE danger of Marine casualties is, it is definitely preferable to what could happen if this risk is not taken. Care should be taken, though, that the lessons learned in Vietnam be heeded and President Reagan be aware of the danger of being sucked into a quagmire.

Letters

Prejudice, innuendo are bad tactics to use

Prejudice and innuendo have no place in respectable journalism. A newspaper has a duty to be objective and factual. Hopefully, our journalism department stresses this, but it seems to have failed in the case of Khalid M. Suleiman.

Mr. Suleiman's letter on our "Zionist" controlled media (DE, Sept. 17) was an appalling example of how easy it is to pass prejudice and paranoia for truth to twist fact and taint reputations.

Among the letter's glaring misconceptions are many examples of inattentiveness to major details. One such specimen was Suleiman's placement of Abu Zuneima in the Israeli Negev. In actuality Abu Zuneima is located on the West Bank of the Sinai, some 150 miles from the Negev.

He also mentions a concentration camp, something that does not exist in Israel. There was not even a prison at the site which is now, and was at the time of the purported incident, in Egyptian hands.

Suleiman also describes his protagonist, James Taylor, as a "prominent" editor at T.V. Guide. In reality he held the lowest editorial position at that periodical, a job he never aspired beyond in 24 years. This leads one to question Suleiman's liberal use of superlatives.

Beyond such obvious inaccuracies, however, is a much more worrisome quality. The letter incorporates stereotypes in their broadest context to paint an image of a Zionist oligarchy controlling our media like a puppeteer with a marionette. He states that this control has made it a dangerous, even fatal, practice to speak out against Israel, even in our own country.

He would also have us assume that whoever is Jewish is also Zionist, ignoring the fact that Judaism is a religious belief, and Zionism secular, making them frequently mutually exclusive.

He also ignores American official protests against the Iraqi raid, the invasion of West Beirut and the tragic Palestinian slaughter. Also conveniently overlooked are the protests to these events by many Israelis and foreign Jews.

The tactics of Suleiman bear a disturbing resemblance to those of Joseph McCarthy and Nazi Germany. The letter is an embarrassment for our journalism department, coming from one of its graduate students. The work was more befitting of such "journalism" as Pravda or The National Enquirer.

I hope we as a people have become insusceptible to such deception. It is much too easy to believe the half-truths that appeal to our emotions and feed our fears and prejudices. In faith I believe history has taught us better. — Michael C. Majchrowski, Junior, Journalism.

More speak out against Bracy

Ask again for money to build storage

Recently, I have been following the library storage issue, and after making initial inquiries about the matter, I have come to the conclusion that the Bracy Building plan may not be the best option for book storage.

First, the building will cost $1.6 million. Gov. Thompson has appropriated the total amount. Fine. Other than the fact that $1.6 million seems overpriced for a building that has remained unused for four years, that money does not cover the costs of general reconstruction needed to change the warehouse into a library storage building. How much will that cost and from where is that money coming?

Second, Williamson County will lose thousands of dollars annually since SIU-C will not have to pay taxes on the building.

Third, the building is 15 miles away and will be inconvenient for students needing access to the books. A building closer to campus, with browsing privileges, would be more accessible to students' needs.

Perhaps a better option would be to build a new building along McLafferty Drive (just west of the Communications Building). Other universities have built library storage buildings for between $370,000 and $500,000. I realize that a state law prohibits the allocation of funds for new buildings on this campus for 1982.

But 1983 is only three months away. Is it not possible to wait a few more months, ask our representatives to propose a bill to allocate funds for a new building, offer a contract to a building company in Jackson County, save Williamson County taxpayers thousands of dollars, meet student needs and save the state more than $1 million? — Melanie Zermer, Graduate Student, Center for Crime Study.

Morris's dream died with him

How can buying an old grocery warehouse 13 miles from campus be considered a viable alternative to the Morris Library storage problem? In an area where fuel cost can only go up, why does the University want to shuttle between Marion and Carbondale?

How can the learning process be expected to improve when students, in order to find an "item of little use", must look through the catalog, select the item they think will apply, wait until the item can be brought back to campus, and then see it is what they need?

If Cornell University built an on-campus facility designed to store 500,000 books for about $790,000, why can't SIU? Instead SIU wants to spend 1.6 million for a grocery warehouse, worth about $300,000, for temporary storage. Something is dreadfully wrong somewhere in the SIU system: the state government, or both.

The library is the center of learning on campus. Instead of cutting back on other items SIU cuts library hours and staff, cuts down the amount of periodicals the library receives, and then wants to secure storage space 13 miles from campus! It is indeed a shame that President Morris' dreams for SIU died with him. — Kevin E. Perkins, Senior, Agricultural Education

No, Mr. Mace, I am not convinced

Well, Mr. Mace, I was one of those who complained about your receiving a $50,000 salary while on leave. To this day I maintain that it was unjustified. I found nothing in your statements to the DE to change my mind either. The fact that you taught at no extra pay, or without sabbatical is irrelevant. "You snooze, you lose" I always say.

Nor am I impressed by the fact that you have "used 7 or 8 major examples in class already," or that you plan to hold a seminar in a "year or so." Great, 7 or 8 examples, even major ones (what's a minor one?), at $50,000 means it cost the taxpayers anywhere from $6250 to $7142 per example. I've got lots of examples for sale, and I doubt we'll ever see that seminar.

With respect to what the learned council found on the lack of training of, or respect of, grade school and high school teachers, any first-year teacher just out of college could tell you that.

No, Mr. Mace, I am totally unconvinced. Please do not perceive this letter as an attack on you, but of all the examples of waste that I have seen in the 11 years that I have been associated with this University, this has to be one of the worst. — Timothy J. Forman, Senior, Law.

Student auditions as clown

Clown college competition tight

By Juliana Anastasoff
Staff Writer

So ya wanna join the circus? Try becoming one of the greatest clowns on earth for the greatest show on earth.

That's what Dana Nelson, senior in Cinema and Photography, did when he auditioned for the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus' Clown College Tuesday at the SIU-C Arena. The circus arrived in Carbondale Monday and will hold performances at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Chuck Sidlow, who has been with the circus for five seasons, is "boss clown" for the show and college. "We can teach you circus skills, but we can't teach you to be a clown. That is something that has to come from inside you," he said to Nelson before the audition.

In the audition, Nelson was asked to display some of his self-taught talents such as juggling, comedy and balance tricks. He had to portray several characters Sidlow spontaneously demanded of him, such as a photographer, an astronaut and a variety of animals, wild and trained.

At the audition Nelson met with a Clown College representative so that the college may be more familiar with him when it selects next year's students.

The college, held in the Winter Quarters Arena of Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus in Venice, Florida, consists of an annual eight-week session, beginning in late September. Tuition for the college is free but students pay their own room and board.

Sidlow said the college selects 60 students from the more than 5,000 applications received per year. He said out of those 60, only the upper crust of the class are offered contracts with the circus, which tours 11 and a half months out of the year.

The college was established in 1968 by Irvin Feld, president and producer of the circus. It is the only professional training school in the world devoted exclusively to training and instructing in the art, crafts and skills of circus clowning, with a faculty of more than 20 professional clowns and other circus performers.

In addition to classes in clown-related arts, crafts and skills, the college offers lectures on subjects such as the origins of clowning, famous clowns of the past, the mechanics of visual comedy and the understanding of circus animals.

"This is something that I love, that I really want to do," said Nelson. "I'm pretty thick-skinned and bull-headed, so I'll just keep on trying until I make it."

Good seats are still available for the circus' 11 a.m. performance Wednesday. For the 7 p.m. performance, some $7 bleacher tickets are available.

Kidnapped man escapes unharmed

GEORGE WEST, Texas (AP) — A kidnapped firefighter escaped from the trunk of his moving car Tuesday after being held for 38 hours by a man who allegedly buried another kidnap victim underground for four days.

Coby Garland Hamilton, the 27-year-old firefighter, was hungry but unharmed. State, federal and local officers immediately began searching the mesquite-choked South Texas rangeland for his alleged abductor, identified as Ronald Floyd White.

Authorities said Hamilton, who also worked as a newspaper carrier, escaped at about 3 a.m. as his car was being towed near George West, a town 200 miles southwest of Houston.

Montgomery County sheriff's spokesman Ed deForest quoted Hamilton as saying he was delivering the Houston Chronicle at around 2 a.m. Sunday when he was confronted by a man with a gun outside a grocery store in New Caney, a Houston suburb.

The man, who Hamilton identified as White, forced him to drive aimlessly, passing through several small towns, before starting down U.S. 59 toward Mexico, deForest said.

Hamilton told officials his abductor bought only snacks at service stations during the drive.

Legislators may forego pay

Some Illinois legislators are ready to forego five days of pay to prevent state employees from being laid off, though some with hesitation.

Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-58th District, and Sen. Ken Buzbee, D-58th district, are skeptical of Gov. James Thompson's furlough plan. They said it was a "phony" issue.

House Speaker George Ryan, Thompson's running mate, asked legislators last week to go along with the governor's plan. $336 per legislator would be saved.

House Clerk Tony Leone said Monday that phones were "flooded" with calls from legislators. He said 236 legislators had agreed to the plan. Legislators have until Oct. 15 to let the clerk know if they will skip five days.

Reps. Wayne Alstat and Ralph Dunn, R-58th district, said Monday they had already agreed to the plan. Dunn said employees could not be asked to take days off unless elected officials did the same.

David Fields, a Thompson aide, said if all state employees agree to the plan, Illinois would save between $25 million and $30 million. He said that eventually a combination of furloughs and lay-offs will be necessary.

Richmond and Buzbee said they would agree to the plan if all state employees would agree. Buzbee said he would work on the payless days.

Buzbee said not all state employees could take five days off. Mental health facilities and prisons require a certain level of staffing, he said.

Second chance at life given to drug users

Second of two articles

By Jeanna Hunter
Staff Writer

Lex attempted burglary because he wanted attention. Craig attempted burglary because he wanted to prove he was tough.

Both Lex, 28, and Craig, 20, were addicted to drugs and under the influence of alcohol when they committed the crimes. Their arrests led them to Treatment Alternative to Street Crime, a chance at becoming drug free and a second chance at life.

"I was out on bond the first of March last year," Lex said. "But, before I went to trial, I was arrested for attempted burglary the second time. Both times I had been really drinking and I was depressed."

"The first time I broke in somewhere, I went home and reported it to the police and then went back to watch them investigate. I wanted to sit back and laugh because I got by with it but it backfired."

"I just wanted to prove that I could get in and out," Lex continued. "I thought it would bring attention to me and people would pay more attention to me and care more."

"In court I was investigated. They decided that I needed to be locked up because I was crazy. I spent two and one-half months in Anna. After I had been released from Anna, and after two different suicide attempts, I overdosed in February of this year. I was transferred to Hill House."

Lex is just one of seven individuals housed at Hill House, the Carbondale Rehabilitation Center for Troubled Young People, through the statewide TASC program to help addicted offenders in their efforts at drug rehabilitation.

Craig is another addicted offender. "I don't remember leaving the van. All I remember was that I had the safe door open and I was reaching for the money when a cop yelled freeze, and I turned around and was staring at a gun. I got scared and then I got mad, he related.

'The people around me give me a lot of support.'

"They took me to jail and I went to court a couple of days later. A lawyer recommended TASC. I didn't want to talk to them but it was a way into or out of jail. I waited in jail three more weeks and chances were that I'd be going to Menard. But, I ended up at Hill House instead."

Hill House is one of about 60 drug treatment institutions being used in the state to house individuals, usually between the ages of 17 and 35, found to be eligible and acceptable under the investigations of the TASC agency. Michael Damian, Murphysboro TASC coordinator said.

"When I first started taking drugs, pot mainly, it was for recreation. That was seven years ago. I was 21. Now, I'm dependent mainly on downers. The only way I can describe it is when I look them, I could feel or imagine a glow coming out of me," Lex said. "I don't take any drugs here."

Craig began smoking pot at an earlier age. "I started smoking pot when I was 14 years old, and then I slowly progressed to speed." Here, he said, "I don't have to pop a bunch of speed to keep going."

A successful termination is the goal of the TASC agency, Damian said. This means that the individual has completed the program's residency requirements and is declared to be drug free. But, the addicted offenders' attitudes change much faster than their successful terminations can occur.

"At first I thought I was the only one but now there are people besides me that have been through it too. The people around me give me a lot of support. I don't have to be macho man. I don't have to survive off a bad reputation. People accept and respect me for being human and not for being tough. Basically I've found out that I don't have to be perfect. I guess I feel safe," Craig said.

With the attitude change comes new or renewed goals for the future. Both Craig and Lex want to continue their educations during and after their treatment through TASC at Hill House.

"Hopefully, I'll further my education while I'm here. Hopefully in Administration of Justice because of my experiences with the justice system. I want to work with a law enforcement agency, but I don't want to go around arresting people. I wouldn't qualify to be a cop, not with my record. I want to work in the police science end of it," Craig said.

Lex is already a practical nurse, so one of his goals, he said, is to become a registered nurse. "After two years, hopefully, I will have furthered my education." And, he said, that if that goal wasn't attainable he would like to be gainfully employed.

The key to TASC's programs in cooperation with residential drug treatment programs according to Lex is responsibility. "First thing, when you come in here, you have to take responsibility for yourself. I want to help myself. I want to get my act together and this is the place that I believe will help me do it."

Most men dream their fantasies. Philip decided to live his.

USO may abolish fee waiver

The Undergraduate Student Organization senate is scheduled to vote on a bill to the Undergraduate Student Fee waiver Wednesday.

The fee waiver, established in February 1981, would have paid the fees of two students per semester for the next four semesters, according to Lisa Muenzer, public relation commissioner.

"It was created last spring as a result of cuts in federal student grant and loan programs," Muenzer said.

"The USO decided to abolish the bill because it is contrary to USO policies to provide financial assistance to students," she said. "The sole purpose of the student organizational fee is to allocate funds for student organizations for their respective activities and not to provide tuition waivers."

No waivers have been issued, she said.

"Awarding fee waivers or any form of financial assistance in this respect is outside of USO's responsibilities," she said.

Osama Al-Ghussain tries for a strike on the newly remodeled Student Center lanes.

New bowling alley equipment facilitates student use of lanes

By Teresa Mullen
Student Writer

If you haven't been to the Student Center bowling alley in awhile, you may find it looking a little different.

The facility has undergone a $125,000 facelift, according to Chuck Shiplett, assistant manager. A major change is the new underground ball return. Shiplett said the underground returns — as opposed to the old, above-ground returns — provide added safety and less distraction for a concentrating bowler. Underground returns are also faster, he said.

Another new feature is the "jet back conversion" system that enables the pinsetter machines to run more efficiently and aids in faster ball return. Shiplett said.

Bowlers also have the benefit of "telescope" overhead screens that project and enlarge scores to make them visible to anyone in the alley.

Shiplett said the renovation was sorely needed. "The facilities in the alley before the renovation were obsolete when they were put in 20 years ago," he said. "If anything needed to be fixed, we had to make the parts ourselves."

The money for the renovations came from the Student Center budget and took about a year to get. Shiplett said. He said the alley is now the most modern bowling facility in Southern Illinois.

Shiplett said there has been no major increase in play at the facility, partly because it's the off-season and partly because not many people know about the renovation. He said he has received comments from students who have used the renovated center.

"They say they really like the change, comparing this alley to others like the SI Bowl."

Is bowling big at SIUC?

"Yes, it is a recreational alternative for all students," Shiplett said. "There is always a waiting list on Friday and Saturday nights."

The bowling alley is open from 8 a.m. to 11:15 p.m. Monday through Thursday, from 8:30 to 12:45 a.m. on Friday, from 10 a.m. to 12:45 a.m. on Saturday and from noon to 11:15 p.m. on Sunday.

Top photographers to give lectures

Seven of the nation's top commercial photographers and a wide known photography critic will participate in a special lecture series on color photography beginning in October at SIU-C.

The series, "Contemporary Color Photography" will feature a speaker each month until April, sponsored by the SIU-C Department of Cinema and Photography and supported by a $5,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Todd Walker, whose career in photography spans more than 40 years, will begin the series with a slide-lecture at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 6 in Morris Library Auditorium.

Walker, who teaches at the University of Arizona, is a graduate of the Art Center School of Los Angeles. He has been one of the most successful and innovative commercial photographers in the United States, according to Gary P. Kolb, assistant professor in the SIU-C Department of Cinema and Photography and coordinator of the series.

Walker will be followed by William Eggleston, a commercial photographer from Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 3; Eve Sonneman, a Chicago native who teaches at the School of Visual Arts in New York and has done work for Esquire and Life magazines, Dec. 1; Sam Abel, a Virginia-based photojournalist whose work appears regularly in National Geographic, Jan. 28.

Also scheduled are William Larson, chairman of the Temple University Photography Department, Feb. 16; William Jenkins, critic and associate professor in the Arizona State University School of Art, March 23; John Pfahl, longtime member of the Rochester Institute of Technology School of Photographic Arts and Science faculty, April 6; and Kenda North, who teaches at the University of California-Riverside, April 27.

Speakers also will contribute works to an exhibit of 70 photographs scheduled for March 23-April 10 in the University Museum.

"Our aim is to show students, faculty and members of the community what's currently happening in the field of color photography," said Kolb.

"We'll be bringing in professionals who represent a broad range of concerns in the medium — from people who deal with the photograph as a document to people who deal with it as an expressive or conceptual tool."

SPC schedules ski and sun trips

The Student Programming Council Travel and Recreation Committee has scheduled two winter break trips for students in January.

For interested skiers, SPC Travel and Recreation has a seven-night tour package to Steamboat Springs, Colo. Jan. 8-15. The trip consists of seven nights' lodging at the Sheraton Thunderhead Condominium, five day lift tickets, ski-in, ski-out accommodations and a party.

Those who register on or before Friday need pay only $219 per person. A deposit of $75 will reserve the tour package at the special price. After Friday, the price will be $229, and after Nov. 1, the trip will cost $239.

For those more interested in sun than snow, SPC has a sevennight tour package to Freeport, Bahamas, Jan. 9-16. The package includes seven nights' lodging at the Lucayan Harbour and round trip airfare from Chicago's O'Hare Airport.

For those who sign up on or before Oct. 29, the cost is only $359 per person. A deposit of $100 will reserve the tour package at this price. After Oct. 29, the price is $369.

Registration is now taking place in the SPC office, Third Floor, Student Center.

Major wants ROTC 'awareness'

By Art Herron
Staff Writer

Larry Fleener went to college at Murray State University in 1962 hoping to become a teacher someday. Today, Maj. Larry Fleener is the new commanding officer of SIU-C's Army ROTC detachment.

At Murray State, Army ROTC was mandatory for college freshmen. At first Fleener wasn't impressed with the program, but a friend thought he had potential for the military. He decided to give the program a chance to see if it could work for him and ended up liking it.

Fleener, 38, a 15-year veteran of the Army, came to SIU-C last June. He was previously assigned as a faculty member of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross during a tour in Vietnam, where he spent 13 months in 1968-69.

Fleener doesn't plan to make many changes in the ROTC program here.

"Our emphasis is on making people aware and letting them know that we are available to them," Fleener said. "I have confidence in the program and pride in my profession."

Those who join ROTC, Fleener said, do it because of good job opportunities after graduation and the good pay, but "There are a few patriots left in the world."

Requirements for the ROTC graduate after college once meant three years of active service, Fleener said.

"Now, about an equal number split between active duty and serving in the National Guard or a reserve unit," he said, due to the few active duty slots available in the regular army.

About 100 students are in the SIU-C Army ROTC program. Fleener thinks that once people are fully aware of all the program opportunities, the program will grow even larger.

Maj. Larry Fleener

"ROTC candidates are eligible for full scholarships," Fleener said. "And all advanced candidates receive $100 a month as an assistance allowance. A lot of cadets also join guard units in Marion or Carbondale. This can mean an additional $100 a month."

The ROTC program at SIU-C was begun in 1980, an extension of the unit at Murray State, Ky., after SIU and the Army agreed that a program could be useful in this area.

An extension center usually works for the host institution until it can prove itself successful. SIU-C did this after just two years. Normally, a three year period is required.

Because it was an extension center for such a small time, SIU-C is considered one of the most successful extension centers in the country, Fleener said.

Fleener said the ROTC program is available to all students, male or female, at the university. A candidate must have at least two years of school remaining to be eligible, however.

"We can't offer the program for less than two years," Fleener said. "A person also has to be a full-time student."

Graduate and doctoral students are also eligible provided they have two years of school remaining.

The ROTC program leads to a regular army commission after four years. The first two years are devoted to the basic course and emphasize skills such as map reading and navigation.

The advanced course, during the student's second two years, is leadership and management training and an eight-week basic training camp at an Army base.

Teachers say jail-school kids less trouble than 'normal' ones

CHICAGO (AP) — Classrooms are filled with teenagers charged with the most serious crimes — robbery, burglary, rape or murder — but teachers say discipline problems are much less troublesome than in normal city high schools.

The school, which never closes for the summer, is in the Cook County Juvenile Temporary Detention Center and all of its 300 students are juveniles being held for crimes that were committed before they turned 17.

"Ninety-five percent of the kids in here are here for a felony," says Reuben Crawford, a teacher at the school for the past 12 years. "But prior to my telling them, 65 percent couldn't tell you what that meant."

The 26 classrooms on the center's second floor are run by the Department of Education. On a typical day, youths may be seen sitting around tables, intent on their work, giving no one trouble.

In art class, students use watercolors to paint scenes that have been molded in plaster of Paris by their teacher, Brad Kaste. One of the most popular scenes shows Christ on the left and an open Bible on the right.

"This is art," one youth says. "It gives you something to take home to your mother," says another.

Ten years ago, abandoned children, runaways and those arrested on minor charges were sent to the center, then called the Audy Home. But special programs were set up for those youngsters during the intervening years.

"We're getting more kids being tried as adults," says Crawford. "They have no idea how serious that is. Suddenly, the kid is going to the penitentiary and he thought he was going to get off and be sent home."

Roy Mould, a reading teacher, adds: "You look at the school from the outside, and it's quite depressing, but inside the tone is that of a school. A majority of us look at the kids as students, not criminals, although you know why they're here."

The year-round schedule is attractive to any teacher tired of looking for summer jobs. For students, 30 to 40 of whom are girls, attendance is compulsory.

"Some could care less and tell you right off to forget it, but some respond," Mould says. "Some want to come down because the girls are down here."

Some come down because there's nothing for them to do upstairs (in their rooms). Others really like school.

"We have fewer discipline problems than at a normal city high school," he adds.

And Crawford says classes that keep students busy working at typewriters and adding machines are more than exercises at trying to keep youths out of trouble while they are at the center.

"I try to instill in them the value system that will keep them out of here," he says. He adds, though, that "it's not easy to stay out of here."

Cancer victims regain control as part of 'I Can Cope' effort

By Michele Inman
Staff Writer

I can cope. These three words may mean nothing said by an average person, but to a cancer patient or victim, it may take hard work, perseverance, mutual understanding and most of all, accomplishment, before they can be said.

"I Can Cope," is a program sponsored by the American Cancer Society to help people regain control over their lives through better knowledge of the disease, said Marlene Matten, director of education, Memorial Hospital, Carbondale.

The course, six sessions spread over three weeks in October, is offered by Memorial Hospital and the Carbondale Clinic.

"I Can Cope" is offered because, "of the prevalence of cancer in America," Matten said. An American Cancer Society booklet says that more than three million Americans alive today have a history of cancer. This year, about 430,000 will die of the disease. Of every five deaths in the United States, one is from cancer, the booklet says.

"The incidence of cancer is definitely on the increase. We see a lot of cancer patients in the hospital," Matten said.

"As soon as you say the word 'cancer,' it becomes synonymous with the word 'death,' but there are many more treatments available for cancer. And we are more aggressive in treating cancer, so we can be more hopeful," Matten said.

"The real reason for offering the program is that a diagnosis of cancer is such a startling diagnosis and it requires an emotional readjustment on the part of the patient," Matten said. "People with cancer need to talk about it and share their feelings with others and this class allows for that."

The program's main focus is information and sharing, she said. The program is for out-patients and their families. Participants do not have to be under treatment, but must have had a cancer diagnosis at sometime in their lives.

"We try to promote discussion among persons with cancer and family members," Matten said. "We try to help them understand each other and what they are going through."

Many people with cancer, Matten said, feel isolated. "The program makes them feel that they aren't the only ones in the world dealing with cancer."

Matten said the course started in Minneapolis, Minn. in 1977 as a pilot program to help people with cancer and their families to live with the disease. The pilot program was so successful that the society adopted the program.

The program begins with a session from 7 to 9 p.m. Oct. 5 in conference rooms 1 and 2 at Memorial Hospital.

She said former Sen. Hubert Humphrey died of cancer and was one of the first people to go through an "I Can Cope" program.

"In order for us to teach it, we have to go through a training period," Matten said.

"We had to actually participate as though we were patients with cancer," she said. They invited past 'I Can Copers' to come in and tell us how the class was valuable to them."

The first session, Matten said, is an explanation to participants what the course covers and lets members meet each other. In the second session, "Learning About Your Disease," Dr. Donald Darling, a specialist in dealing with cancer patients, and a nurse, Thelma Wynn, will discuss how cancer affects different parts of the body.

"Dr. Darling actually takes apart an anatomical model," Matten said. "He encourages them (participants) to take control over their lives to learn more about the disease and to get over the fear of asking doctors questions."

In the third session, "Learning to Cope with Daily Health Programs," Mary Guetersloh, head nurse on the medical floor, and Wynn will explain how cancer treatments affect the body and what can be done to minimize vomiting, nausea and sores in the mouth.

Donna Lynch, head of social services department, and Carol White, Registered Nurse at Carbondale Clinic, will encourage group members to discuss their feelings with one another in the fourth session. "Learning to Express Your Feelings and Learning to Like Yourself and Learning to Live Within Your Limits."

In the fifth session, "Learning About Resources That Can Help," Lynch said, "We bring in what we call a resource panel which consists of agencies that have resources available to the cancer patient and family as well as representatives of self-help groups."

"It's a brief overview of their own experiences with cancer and they let participants know what they have available," Lynch said.

The sixth session is graduation.

"It's a sensitive and touching night. It's kind of a celebration," Matten said. "Each participant is awarded an 'I Can Cope' certificate." Participants also evaluate the program.

"It's hard for people to come to a class like this. First of all, they have to admit that they have cancer. Most of participants have never been with a group before." A group usually consists of 15 to 20 people, Matten said.

"Everyone who has come has found it valuable," she said. On the evaluation sheet last spring, a participant related what the title "I Can Cope" really meant: "That you are not the only person with cancer and that other people care about you and want to give you help, if you will ask for it."

Soviet caviar trade is fishy matter

MOSCOW (AP) — In the Soviet Union, source of most of the world's caviar, the once-abundant delicacy has all but vanished.

It is available only to tourists, the nation's elite and people able to pay exorbitant black market prices. It's a far cry from the 1950s, when caviar was so plentiful and cheap that Soviets ate it for breakfast. Now, good connections or Western currency are essential for getting the prized appetizer — eggs of the Caspian Sea sturgeon.

Officials say the catch is good and only 3 percent is exported.

One store sometimes sells artificial caviar, made from curdled milk and other additives.

But for genuine caviar, most Soviets must turn to the black market.

The official state price is the equivalent of $32 for a 1.1 pound tin, but black marketers may charge $90 or more for the same amount.

Officials apparently have no trouble getting caviar, judging by its abundance at Kremlin receptions.

But the average citizen isn't so lucky.

Hinton is top target

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

A wingback in high school, Marvin Hinton came to SIU-C as a defensive back and quickly got lost in the shuffle. He was on the way to a misplaced and overlooked career until Rey Dempsey plucked him from obscurity and turned him into a wide receiver.

Two years later, Hinton has been transformed from a spear carrying defensive back to the Salukis' most feared receiver.

After four games, the senior flanker has caught 23 passes for 351 yards and two touchdowns, and is halfway to last year's catch total of 33. To no one's great surprise, he has become quarterback Rick Johnson's favorite target.

He had nine catches for 157 yards in the 35-30 loss to Arkansas State Saturday, including a spectacular eighty-yard touchdown pass that catapulted the Salukis to a 30-28 lead with little more than a minute left.

It was the third time in a row Johnson and the SIU-C coaching staff had gone to Hinton. On first down he ran a square out in the end zone that Johnson, playing cautiously, overthrew. Next was a quick throw over the middle that was batted down before it got to him. Then the Salukis went to a play that had been on the drawing board but

The finals, should the squad get past Western, will be against the winner of the Eastern Illinois-Decatur match.

Campbell, player-coach John Grotzbach, co-captains Mike Nolan and Ian Maher and the rest of the club will have their work cut out for them if they are entertaining any thoughts of equalling last spring's 14-2 mark. That squad made it past the University of Wisconsin in the first round of the National Collegiate Regional Tournament before being knocked out by Ohio State.

Playing the match, Campbell noted, is only half of what rugby is all about. The other half occurs when the dust is settled and the wounds are bandaged.

"That's the great thing about rugby," said Campbell. "You can beat the hell out of each other on the field, then sit around and party together afterwards. That's one advantage of being a club."

The club, like those at many schools, is supported mainly through the Intramural Department, but is also financed through individual members' dues as well as outside interest groups.

never executed in a game. Johnson took a few quick steps back and lobbed the ball to a pre-designed spot in the end-zone, while Hinton jetted out there, picking up the ball almost as it came almost directly over his head.

"We've been working on that for two years," said Johnson. In those two years, Hinton has polished his natural speed and quickness, learned the Saluki pass routes, and learned how to catch the ball.

He welcomed the conversion to wide receiver.

"I kind of liked the idea," he said after practice Monday. He said the coaches made the switch "because of my speed and we were stacked on defensive backs and didn't have so many wide receivers."

Hinton's progress hasn't surprised Dempsey, who said that Johnson goes to Hinton so often because the coaches are calling it that way.

"He's not doing any different than I thought he could do," said Dempsey. "He's getting better at running his routes. He's a tough kid too, and he can block."

Naturally Hinton agrees with the Salukis' emergence as a passing team. Johnson has thrown more than 40 times in three games, and with 84 completions seems a cinch to break his own record of 119, set just last year.

Strikers plan exhibition game

WASHINGTON (AP) — The striking National Football League Players Association on Tuesday formally announced plans for a potential 19-game series of all-star games — but said it had a stadium lease only for the first one, here on Oct. 10.

Although union officials say they have "locked up" 19 stadiums, they admit they have only signed a contract for the one at RFK Stadium. A contract for the second game, tentatively set for Monday night, Oct. 11, at Franklin Field in Philadelphia, is expected to be signed on Wednesday.

The games will be broadcast nationally by the Turner Broadcasting System and a network of 73 television stations

"I think we knew it was coming on last year," Hinton said. "We got a good group of receivers and a good quarterback."

Hinton usually lines up to the wide side of the field, and usually located the defensive back about 10 yards away. With 4.5 speed, and a prominent place on the SIU-C track team, Hinton keeps cornerbacks on their heels.

"They just back up on me most of the time," he said.

Because of that, Hinton has made a living catching short turnaround passes and turning them into 10 to 15-yard gains by calling upon his old tailback moves.

At 5-11 and 168 pounds though, he takes his shots making catches over the middle.

"I have to work on my strength," he says, while eyeing a possible professional career. Hinton is one of a handful of Salukis with hopes, albeit dim ones, of playing pro ball.

The emergence of tight end Pierre Pugh has left Hinton on his own more often. Pugh is the Salukis' second leading receiver with 16 catches.

"I'm glad he came along," said Hinton. "He takes some of the pressure off me. I don't get double teamed so much. Tony Adams (the Saluki split end) is coming along too."

covering more than 60 percent of the nation's homes. The games will be blacked out for a 35-mile radius unless sold out.

"We regret very much that the regular NFL season is in jeopardy," Ted Turner, the Turner Broadcasting System board chairman, said in a prepared statement. "However, we remain committed to providing fans across the country with top-quality professional competition through these NFLPA all-star games."

The players association, which represents the NFL's 1,500 players, went on strike on Sept. 21 following the breakdown of negotiations on a new collective bargaining agreement with the league.

Athletics are part of education, says Swinburne

By Jackie Rodgers
Sports Editor

Six representatives from SIU-C gave testimony Tuesday to a house subcommittee investigating intercollegiate athletics in Illinois.

The subcommittee, which met in Champaign, is headed by Rep. Dennis Hastert, R-Oswego. It is looking into the usage of state-funded dollars for athletics programs.

Hastert said too much emphasis is put on winning in college sports, and not enough on education in the university system in Illinois.

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, delivered the introductory remarks for SIU-C. He said, "Athletics is one part of a plan to provide educational opportunities outside as well as inside the traditional classroom."

Swinburne also said, "It is my belief that, with the exception of those harsh lessons which are taught through the harshness or the generosity of life itself, there are no more powerful educational experiences than those taught through intercollegiate athletics."

Swinburne said that SIU-C was the first university interviewed at the hearing, and that the six SIU-C representatives — Athletics Directors Lew Hartzog and Charlotte West, women's tennis Coach Judy Ald, men's basketball Coach Allen Van Winkle and administrative assistant Reggie Shand — testified for about an hour and 20 minutes.

Swinburne said that after the opening remarks were presented, the subcommittee questioned the SIU-C contingent on areas of scholarship, graduation ratio of scholarship athletes, sports dropped at SIU-C and the football program's change to Division I-AA status.

Swinburne said he felt very comfortable with the atmosphere at the hearings. The controversial topic of state-funded universities being allowed to recruit only athletes from Illinois and limiting competition of state schools against other state schools never came up. Swinburne said, despite the fact that these are philosophies Hastert has said he supports.

"I guess I could call myself a bit of an historian," Swinburne said. "Dollars are tight — a very similar situation happened to higher education in the 1930s. But those universities that were under attack in the 30s emerged as the great institutions in the '40s because of their diversity. And that is what athletics offers."

University of Illinois, Western Illinois, Eastern Illinois and Illinois-Chicago also gave testimony to the five-man subcommittee.

West said that if fact-finding was the intent of the hearings, then she applauds the investigation. She said that if there was another purpose, then its intent evades her.

"Basically, they are concerned with the amount of educational dollars poured into athletics," Swinburne said. "I tried to stress that intercollegiate athletics is important because of its educational benefits."

The findings of the subcommittee report, for which investigations began last summer, should be available in two to three weeks.

Ruggers play hard on, off field

By Brian Higgins
Staff Writer

It went the Illini's way, however, after SIU-C broke on top 3-0 on a penalty kick after a scoreless first half. Illinois came back with a penalty kick to knot the score, but went ahead 9-3 after a successful try and an extra point. The teams traded penalty kicks to conclude the scoring in the first round match of the Union Tournament.

And whether they're beating up their opponents during a match or socializing with them afterwards, the ruggers always strive to do their opposition one better.

Following a season opening 4-3 win against St. Louis University, the ruggers were clipped 12-6 by a persistent University of Illinois squad this past weekend to even their record at 1-1.

"The Illinois game was real close," said club President Rob Campbell. "We've always had a real strong rivalry. The game was played evenly, and could've gone either way."

The ruggers will travel to Springfield this weekend to compete in the tournament's second round. Their first match in the losers' bracket will pit them against Western Illinois.

"I don't see too much problem with beating Western," Campbell said. "We may have some competition in the finals of the losers' bracket, though."

Cross country team members Kevin Sturman, Kingdom, have adapted to life in Southern Illinois. left, and Tom Breen, both from the United Kingdom.

Harriers run far from home, but through the barriers

By Dean Kirk
Staff Writer

Not only does the SIU-C cross country team have seven runners from Illinois and one from Missouri, but it also has a couple from the United Kingdom as well.

Tom Breen is a junior from Downpatrick, County Down, Northern Ireland majoring in commercial recreation and park and community recreation.

Kevin Sturman is a native of Cheam, Surrey, England. As a freshman, he has recently experienced much of what Breen went through two years ago.

Breen discovered SIU-C through Paul and Jerry Craig, two former Saluki cross country and track members from Derry, Ireland, who ran for SIU-C in the 70s. Through them Lew Hartzog, then SIU-C's cross country coach, found out about Breen and, as Breen said, "took a gamble on me."

Breen, who began running when he was 14, was working as an electrical engineering apprentice when he decided to attend SIU-C. "If I didn't take the opportunity, I'd regret it in later years," he said.

Cross country and the 3,000-meter race were the main events he competed in at De LaSalle High School in Ireland. At SIU-C he competes in the steeplechase and 5,000 and 10,000-meters.

Breen came to the United States in August, 1980. Before then the farthest he had traveled was to the West German state of Bavaria.

Italy was the farthest Sturman had ever gone from Cheam before he arrived in the United States on Aug. 23.

Sturman began running competitively when he was 15. His fleet-footedness was recognized by John Vernon, the chairman of the running club Sturman belongs to in Cheam and a former Saluki All-American in the long vault and triple jump. Vernon wrote to Athletics Director Lew Hartzog and put Sturman's name forward. Originally David Swain, a friend of Sturman's from Wallington was to have gone to SIU-C but, but he changed his mind decided to attend Arkansas instead. In his place Sturman went.

In England he competed in the 1,500, 3,000 and 5,000-meter events which, with the exception of the 3,000, he also plans to compete in for SIU-C during track season.

Like Breen, Sturman was also an electrical engineering apprentice. But after two and a half years, "I lost interest in it," he said. "I realized I didn't want to do it professionally." It was at this time he decided he wanted to make some contribution to sports.

When he first arrived in Carbondale, Sturman suffered jet lag and had to adjust to the time difference between Carbondale and Cheam. He also had to get used to the size of campus. And he had to adjust to the heat and humidity of Southern Illinois, just as Breen did when he first arrived.

"It was a killer," Breen said, referring to the Southern Illinois climate. Ireland, he said, doesn't get such extreme heat and cold.

Besides climate Breen also had to get used to the campus environment, and, like Sturman, the time change as well.

But during the two years he's been in the United States, Breen has become accustomed to life at SIU-C. He said he received a lot of help from teammates who showed him everything from building locations to how to register. They also provided him with some social life.

Sturman also has become accustomed thanks to Breen, his suite-mates in Schneider Hall and roommate David Behn, also a freshman and member of the cross country team. "He's helped me a lot," Sturman said.

Both Sturman and Breen have praise for cross country coach Bill Cornell who came to SIU-C 21 years ago from England, received his bachelors' and masters' degrees and was a three-time All-American in track and cross country.

"He's been a great help," Sturman said. He also said Cornell gives a runner confidence when beset by physical, academic or emotional problems. "He gets you to appreciate the fact that studying comes first, then athletics, then social life."

Sturman said he misses his girlfriend and his parents. Breen, a married man, also misses his parents along with the mountains and sea breezes of the coast near his home.

But for now, the only breezes they hear is the wind blowing in their ears as they run the long, lonely miles a distance runner encounters.

NL East title belongs to the Cardinals

By Paul LeBar
AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Much like putting together the pieces of a jigsaw puzzle, Whitey Herzog has assembled a winning combination for the St. Louis Cardinals.

The club he steered Monday night to the title in the National League East bears little resemblance to the one he inherited in June 1980.

Herzog, displeased by the club he saw finish 14 games under .500 his first year, embarked immediately on a major overhaul.

At baseball's winter meetings in December 1980 he traded off 13 players and received 10 in return. The deals, including one which landed him relief star Bruce Sutter, helped but not enough.

Herzog's response to last year's second-place finish during a strike-imposed split season was to continue to stir the pot.

He acquired speedy Lonnie Smith from the Cleveland Indians only hours after the young outfielder had been dealt there by the Philadelphia Phillies. He also obtained shortstop Ozzie Smith from the San Diego Padres.

The transactions for the Smiths were not the only moves Herzog made in his dual capacity as the Cards' general manager.

Just before the 1981 strike he picked up right-hander Joaquin Andujar. He already had catchers Gene Tenace and Darrell Porter, the latter whom he signed as a free agent. Other deals were for lesser knowns, including outfielder Willie McGee, a New York Yankees farmhand.

Once Herzog had assembled the parts he desired, he found it necessary to temper very little with St. Louis' first winning product since 1968.

During a campaign marked most of all by consistency, St. Louis has put together winning streaks of eight and six games and yet never lost more than three times in a row.

A major reason is Herzog's use of his personnel. By constantly shuffling his lineup, he minimized the impact of inevitable player injuries. The club's overall speed helped — 193 stolen bases — but the real surprise has been pitching.

As Andujar and Bob Forsch, whose longevity on the club makes him the senior member, were winning 15 games apiece, a trio of rookies did more than anticipated.

One was left-hander Dave LaPoint, the winner Monday night with relief help from Doug Bair and Sutter. He won nine, as did rookie right-hander John Stuper. In addition, relief newcomer Jeff Lahti won five.

Probably not since the Chicago White Sox won the American League flag in 1959 has a winning club lacked power as the Cards, who have hit only 64 home runs.
