Kelley, Poshard make stances clear

By Scott Perry
Staff Writer

INA — Leadership was the "message of the day" during the second debate between Congressional candidates Patrick Kelley and Glenn Poshard.

Both men began the evening outlining the problems facing the 22nd Congressional District, giving reasons why they are best suited to take the long-held position of Rep. Ken Gray, D-West Frankfort, in U.S. House of Representatives.

"Who can best lead this district is the question of this election," Poshard said.

Poshard, D-Carterville, made reference to his past two years as a state senator representing the 59th District.

Kelley, a faculty member of the SIUC law school, believes his background will allow him to create common-sense solutions to the district's problems. He said his work as an educator, city councilman and member of an anti-drug group will aid him if elected.

Kelley, who has been condemned for his stance on gay rights legislation, insists "the power should not be put in the hands of the government, but in the hands of the individual."

"The government should help protect the rights of those who have characteristics they can't help — sex, race — but not those that are determined by conduct," Kelley said.

Poshard agreed with Kelley despite the Democratic platform's stance on the rights of gays.

Kelley used Poshard's stance on the issue to again attack him for straying from the party's platform. He said Poshard would be obligated to vote with the Democrats in Washington.

"Sending someone to congress that will vote for (Speaker of the House) Jim Wright is like pouring gasoline on a fire," Kelley said.

Poshard said he votes based on "the best facts brought to bear and the dictates of my conscience."

"If you want to send a 'yes man' to Washington, don't send me," Poshard said.

On the issue of minimum wage, Kelley and Poshard took opposing stances.

Kelley said raising the minimum wage would "throw people out of work and not help those who need it."

Poshard disagreed, saying because of minimum wage people are becoming dependent on welfare.

Halloween safety strategy planned

By Wayne Wallace
Staff Writer

"Join Our Team" is the safety-conscious theme for this year's Halloween celebration in Carbondale.

The Halloween Core Committee met Wednesday to finalize strategies for the upcoming holiday weekend, just four weeks away.

Core officer Trish Richey, who handles publicity, reported on the progress of their campaign against drunk driving. As part of the campaign, Southern Illinois high school students will view anti-drinking films the week before the festivities.

She also reported that more than 500 Halloween safety posters are to be displayed around the city and campus. The posters will depict the Addams Family dancing under the logo "Join Our Team."

Richey has also secured radio and television coverage to be more effective in combating underage drinking this year. Public service announcements, to be broadcast next month, will feature the "Halloween Safety Rap," performed by Slick Rick Johnson.

El Greco Restaurant is looking into setting up a 10-kilometer run as a substitute for a Halloween parade.

The Inter-Greek Council has volunteered pledge classes to solicit reflector buttons and Halloween safety flyers to Carbondale grade schoolers.

Other discussion at the Core Committee meeting addressed closing times for businesses on the strip. Bars and other establishments selling alcoholic beverages must close at 1 a.m. Businesses that don't sell liquor have a 1:45 a.m. curfew, but can reopen at 4 a.m.

The committee meets again on Oct. 12.

Student sentenced in accident death

By Mark Barnett
Staff Writer

A University student was sentenced to 90 days and 300 hours of community service for obstruction of justice in connection with an auto accident-related death of another University student.

Robert H. Mitchell was sentenced Monday by Judge Paul Komada of the Fifth Judicial Circuit for one count of obstruction of justice in the investigation of the death of Patrick Wixom. Both were seniors in mid-October 1987 when the accident occurred.

Mitchell, a Rockford resident, will serve 90 days in the Coles County Detention Center.

According to police reports, at approximately 1:35 a.m. Oct. 16, 1987, the vehicle Mitchell and Wixom were riding in rolled over and skidded on both northbound lanes of Interstate 57, four miles south of Arcola. The 23-year-old Rockford resident died from massive head injuries.

Mitchell, 22, initially told police that he and Wixom had stopped at a bar in Charleston

Students with anxiety of math can be helped

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

If adding two and two or finding the square root of a monomial term divided by the product of a trinomial times pi makes you sweat, then you may be suffering from math anxiety.

Math anxiety is a condition in which the thought of calculating numbers causes severe nervousness and anxiety.

Scipps Howard News Service reported on a survey conducted by psychologist Richard Suinn which showed 53 percent of students taking advanced math classes were anxious.

Using that basis, of the 122 undergraduate math majors at SIU, 65 students would suffer from some form of math anxiety. Of the 28 graduate students majoring in math, 15 students would fall victim.

Math anxiety is a real problem when students must

Third World criticizes industrial nations

BERLIN (UPI) — The Third World, suffocating under a $1.2 trillion debt, attacked trade and lending policies of industrial nations Wednesday at the joint annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank.

The broadsides by Latin America, where most of the middle-income debtor nations are, and Africa, home to the poorest countries, came on the second day of the three-day summit gathering 15,000 bankers and government officials from 151 nations.

Third World speakers said industrial-nation protectionism, high interest rates, inflation, shortcomings in IMF/World Bank reform programs and the U.S. trade deficit stop developing nations from growing out of their debt crisis.

The critical speeches followed the fourth night of street protests in West Berlin by leftist activists, who claim the multilateral lending organizations plunder developing nations. Riot police with clubs and shields briefly detained more than 200 demonstrators in quelling disturbances late Tuesday.

A business and shopping center near the Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church on downtown Kurfurstendamm Avenue was evacuated Wednesday by police after a bomb threat was received. There was no report of a bomb being found.

Colombian Finance Minister Luis Fernando Alarcon-Mantilla, speaking for Latin American bank governors, said growth in most Latin American and Caribbean countries had slowed or declined since the debt crisis

Red Cross probes Iraq's use of chemical weapons

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — Red Cross officials are investigating charges that Iraq used chemical weapons against members of the Kurdish minority who have fled to Turkey, but has so far found no evidence to substantiate the claims. Unal Somuncu, director of the Red Crescent, Turkey's equivalent of the Red Cross, told United Press International that a team from the International Committee of the Red Cross was examining and talking to the Kurds now settled in five refugee camps in southeastern Turkey near the Iraqi border.

Chinese diplomat plans visit to Soviet Union

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen will travel to the Soviet Union later this year in the first such visit since the ideological split of the two Communist giants two decades ago, a Soviet spokesman said Wednesday. Soviet spokesman Gennady Gerasimov told reporters that Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze met with Qian at the United Nations Wednesday to discuss the planned visit to Moscow for talks on improving diplomatic relations between the two countries.

Limited fighting predicted between Iran, Iraq

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Western diplomats and Arab officials in the Persian Gulf predicted Wednesday a limited outbreak of hostilities between Iran and Iraq before a comprehensive settlement is reached in their 8-year-old war. The prediction coincided with a report in The Washington Post quoting a senior Kuwaiti official as saying Kuwait sent a diplomatic mission to Tehran to reestablish its embassy "in one of the first diplomatic openings to Iran by an Arab country in the wake of the cease-fire in the Persian Gulf war."

Two killed in collapse of Monterrey building

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A six-story building built on ground still soggy from Hurricane Gilbert collapsed Tuesday, killing at least two people, injuring three others and leaving another five buried under debris, officials said. The building, located on the steep slopes of the Sierra Madre mountains in western Monterrey, collapsed at 8:50 a.m., police and Red Cross officials said.

Reagan signs U.S.-Canada free trade pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan signed the U.S.-Canada free trade agreement Wednesday, hoping to impress Canadians that the pact is critical to more trade between the two neighbors, his spokesman said. Reagan said the implementing legislation "brings down the tariff walls between our two nations and, in so doing, creates the world's largest free trade area."

Inquiry: Crew's error caused plane crash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal investigators said Tuesday that errors by an inexperienced flight crew caused a Continental Airlines DC-9 to crash on take off in a snowstorm at Denver last November, killing 28 people. The National Transportation Safety Board determined that the pilot failed to have the wings de-iced a second time, although the plane had sat on the ground for 27 minutes awaiting clearance for take-off.

Researchers: 'Abortion pill' looks promising

BOSTON (UPI) — An experimental drug being tested as an abortion pill appears to offer a safe and effective alternative to surgically terminating early pregnancies, Dutch researchers reported Wednesday. The drug, epostane, was found to be 84 percent effective for ending the pregnancies of 50 women who took it five to eight weeks into their pregnancies in a new study, the researchers said.

Radical change proposed in paying doctors

BOSTON (UPI) — After conducting the most exhaustive study of how doctors are paid in the United States, Harvard researchers Wednesday proposed slashing the fees for some physicians in a radical plan to correct "distorted" prices. The new system, if adopted, could trigger fundamental changes in how doctors do their jobs by encouraging them to give patients more personal attention and discouraging them from doing costly, unnecessary tests and surgery, the researchers said.

Laser lab to shine light for students

By Miguel Alba
Staff Writer

Students in electrical engineering soon will have a new laboratory to conduct light experiments.

The lab, which will be ready by spring, will consist of a fiber optics station and a hologram station. Students also will be able to create lasers in the lab.

"A laser (beam) is nothing more than a pure beam of light," Mohammad Sayeh, assistant professor in electronics, said.

Light most people think of, such as from the sun or a light bulb, is actually composed of several different colors.

"When light is put through a prism, the light will break up into its different parts. You will be able to see the light spectrum just like the rainbow colors," Sayeh said, adding that each color in the light spectrum has a unique wavelength that is responsible for the color we see.

Light traveling through space is measured by the number of waves that go past a certain point in a certain amount of time. This measurement is known as frequency.

Laser beams will be created with a device known as an optical resonator.

Optical resonators reflect light waves back and forth between two mirrors, while an amplifier, placed in the middle, singles out and increases the frequency of one wave until it can't be increased any more. The result is a laser beam.

Lasers are in widespread use today, especially in the medical field. Applications can be found in eye surgery, where the surgeon uses a laser to make incisions on the eye.

"Anytime there is a need for work on something small, precision work, lasers can be used because they can be pointed to a very small area," Sayeh said.

The hologram station will be used to study a theory in which light is considered to be a wave instead of particles.

A hologram records both phase and magnitude information about light, Sayeh said. Pictures only capture the magnitude of a light wave. The magnitude of a light wave controls the brightness, or intensity of the colors.

The phase of a light wave is basically responsible for the three-dimensional effect of a hologram. It is the phase that gives information about distance.

"A black and white photo shows magnitude at work," he said. "Everything in the picture is black, but the intensity controls how dark, or light, the black is."

Holograms are often used to detect faults in aircraft tires, auto clutch plates and brake drums by displaying the vibrating patterns of the mechanical components in a structure, Sayeh said.

The lab was needed to give students hands-on training. "There has been an increase in the use of fiber optics in electronics. Our students need the experience working with this equipment," Sayeh said.

Fiber optics communications work with light pulses carried through a fiber thinner than a human hair. Since it uses light, instead of the standard electrical charge, there is no interference or external noise.

In addition, more channels are available per wire because light can be amplified to a much higher frequency than electricity, reducing the required space needed to avoid distortion between channels.

This method is cheaper than satellite communications.

Fiber optics may someday replace satellite communications, Sayeh said.

A trans-Pacific optical fiber already has connected California to Hawaii and Guam. A fiber from New York to Britain and France is in the works and is estimated to be ready by the end of this year.

Sayeh said the equipment cost $40,000 to $50,000.

$250,000 to be added to Railroad relocation

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

The House of Representatives has approved a Department of Transportation bill that directs $450,000 for a Carbondale railroad relocation project, according to a press release from Congressman Ken Gray.

The House passed the bill Tuesday and Gray said it should circulate from the Senate to the president's desk by Oct. 1, which would make the money available for Carbondale.

"That's good news for the city of Carbondale," Mayor Neil Dillard said of the appropriations bill.

Jeff Doherty, who will take over as interim city manager in mid-October, said city staff will conduct a feasibility study to determine what to do with approximately $6 million that has been accumulated for railroad relocation.

Originally federal money for railroad relocation was to be used for a 30 foot rail depression (the "Big Ditch").

The "Big Ditch" project would have sunk Illinois Central Gulf Railroad tracks 30 feet below street level through two miles of Carbondale.

Since this plan was abandoned underpasses or overpasses across the tracks at Walnut Street and Main Street have been the solutions most often mentioned for the traffic delays at these points.

Another possibility would be relocating the tracks to the east or west side of town, but

City staff will conduct a feasibility study to determine what to do with approximately $6 million that has been accumulated for railroad relocation.

Doherty said the cost for this is "prohibitive."

Citizen groups against the east-west couple, which was approved Tuesday night, have said completion of the couple would force the city to erect overpasses or underpasses to rectify worsening traffic congestion at the tracks and that this action would turn the downtown area into a "no man's land."

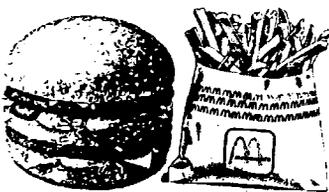

Councilman Keith Tuxhorn, the only council member to vote against the couple, said it is yet to be determined where this money will go.

"With a little work," he said, the money could be redirected to a northern connector that would take truck and other traffic with no business in Carbondale around the city.

Tuxhorn unsuccessfully proposed delaying a vote on the couple until an attempt to find money for this route was made.

A northern bypass or connector has widespread support both from the council and the community but the state has said money is not available for the project which IDOT has estimated at $14 million.

Silent city leaders can't ask for trust

MAYOR NEIL DILLARD may not have owed Councilman Keith Tuxhorn an explanation for casting one of four votes in favor of the east-west couple, but he owed it to the people gathered in the City Council chambers. Dillard, and three other council members, gave vague reasons for supporting the $1 million project.

Dillard told a packed City Council chamber that he is not obligated to explain his vote. He said he was considering the effects the vote had on all 26,000 Carbondale residents. Dillard, through that comment, ignores the University students that will be affected. He also asks the people to blindly trust their leaders.

Dillard ruled Council member Keith Tuxhorn out of order when Tuxhorn attempted to learn the number and names of Carbondale residents who urged the mayor to vote for the couple.

Dillard declined to elaborate further on the vote.

THE CITY'S image suffers from such arrogance on the part of its leaders. Dillard technically may not be required to explain his vote, but he should.

The city has attempted to smooth over concerns that the couple will violate the integrity of the Walnut Street historic district, an area that includes the home of the first president of Southern Illinois-Normal. The city has told residents of that area to trust it.

The city says it won't allow the area to become a strip of gas stations and fast food restaurants, as is the case on the eastern end of the couple.

HAD DILLARD and the other couple supporters been more forthcoming, we would find it easier to believe that the city will ensure the safety and quality of life of residents in the area affected by the couple. The reasons given by some of the other council members give us insight into the reason Dillard was so tight-lipped.

John Yow, for instance, considers the east-bound lane of West Main Street the suicide lane. Of course, that's not an accurate description, although some drivers may claim they have contemplated suicide while slowed by traffic in the single east-bound lane on West Main Street during Carbondale's mini-rush hour.

IF THE CITY plans to expand that stretch of highway to six lanes (there are now only three) as part of the couple project, wouldn't that be a simpler solution to the "suicide lane?" Of course, this could jeopardize the $5.5 million the state Department of Transportation will pay over five years to build the couple.

John Mills said he has been "eating and sleeping" the couple controversy for months. That statement does little to allay the fears of opponents. Opponents have been vocal, but believe they have not been heard during the debate.

In the face of such reasoning, we urge the residents of the area to remain vocal. Carbondale can survive without a historic district, but it will be less of a community.

WE URGE the concerned citizens on West Walnut Street to continue to look this $1 million gift horse in the mouth. The city, if it is truly interested in preserving this neighborhood, should permanently ban commercial ventures in this area.

Allowing dozens of businesses, with dozens of driveways feeding into the west leg of the couple, certainly will not ease traffic problems.

The city wants the historic district residents to trust it when it says that the area will be preserved and not suffer unduly because of the couple. If those in favor of the couple had been more responsive when pressed for hard facts on their reasons for voting yes, that trust would have come more easily.

Open your eyes, Gus

I was surprised to see the ignorance of my good friend Gus Bode about U.S. cultural geography in Wednesday's issue of the DE. Gus commented that a candidate's knowledge of Spanish would be more useful if he were campaigning in Latin America. Has Gus forgotten that the United States, with a Hispanic population of some 20 million, is the fifth-largest Spanish-speaking country? Doesn't he remember that the largest Puerto Rican city (New York), the second-largest Mexican city (Los Angeles), and the third-largest Cuban city (Miami) are all in the United States?

C'mon, Gus, ¡abre los ojos! — Lee Hartman, associate professor, Spanish.

The Pledge of Allegiance written by socialist making money off U.S. flag

AS A NEWBORN Republican, I recently attended my first meeting at the local chapter of the Bush-Quayle, Hot Dogs, Apple Pie, Motherhood and God Society.

The meeting began with our chairman, my conservative friend Grump, asking everyone to rise and recite the Pledge of Allegiance.

I remained seated with my arms folded across my chest.

"Didn't you hear me?" Grump asked.

"Then why aren't you standing so we can begin?"

"Because I am not, never have been, and never will be a socialist."

"What are you talking about?" Grump said. "We are loyal Republicans, not socialists."

THEN WHY do you want to recite words written by an avowed socialist, a man who urged the downfall of capitalism?

"You're insane!" Grump shouted.

No, I have done some research. So let me ask you this: Who wrote the Pledge of Allegiance?

His brow furrowing, Grump said: "George Washington?"

Wrong.

"Jefferson?"

Wrong again.

"Uh, Lincoln?"

NOT EVEN close. It was written in 1892 by a young man named Francis Bellamy who was a devout socialist and considered capitalism an evil system.

"I don't believe it," Grump said. "You are trying to spread liberal, pinko propaganda."

Wait, there is more. He was a member of an organization that wanted the federal government to nationalize our entire economy. How do you like that, McDonald's being run by bureaucrats?

"Lies!" Grump shouted, his eyes bulging.

Mike Royko
 Tribune Media Services

"And there's even more. This Bellamy was a preacher. And do you want to know what he used to preach?"

"I'd rather not."

IGNORANCE is not bliss, so I'll enlighten you. One of his sermons was called "Jesus the Socialist."

"Careful," Grump said, "or you'll be struck by lightning."

But it's true. He considered Jesus a socialist. And when you think about it, Jesus wasn't all that fond of the fat cats of his day.

I refuse to believe that our sacred Pledge of Allegiance could have such unsavory roots.

Well, that's history for you. Full of surprises. And do you know how the socialist happened to write it?

"He must have reformed, mended his ways, become a decent Republican."

NOT AT ALL. See, there was this family magazine. And in those days, magazines didn't depend on advertising to make money. One of the things they did was peddle products, like today's mail-order houses.

"Free enterprise. Good show."

Right. Anyway, this magazine came up with the idea of selling flags to schools. In those days, most schools didn't have flags. So when Bellamy was booted out of his church for his socialist ideas, the magazine hired him to write the pledge. They printed it in their magazine as a gimmick to help them sell their flags. And the flag business boomed. They sold thousands. And that's when the tradition started of having flags in classrooms and kids saying the pledge.

GRUMP SHOOK his head. "The story doesn't hold up. Why would a no-good socialist write such patriotic prose? He had to have become a Republican."

Not at all. He considered his pledge a statement of socialist values. In his original version, he wanted to use the words "fraternity" and "equality." But they were left out. Too radical. In those days, a lot of people didn't believe in equality. Not like today, when maybe 50 percent believe in it, unless they're worried about real estate values or who their daughters will marry.

"Don't be a smart aleck. And are you done with your vile story so we can get on with our meeting?"

"WAIT. THERE'S one more interesting tidbit. The guy who came up with the idea of selling all those flags. I hate to break the news, but he was a liberal."

"Liar, scoundrel."

No, it's true. Even worse, he was from Boston. Just like that little liberal Greek.

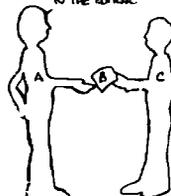

"I refuse to listen to any more of this subversive nonsense."

OK, but I have to wonder why George Bush is going around telling everybody that they should recite a pledge written by an anti-capitalist socialist who was an employee of a liberal publisher. Seems mighty suspicious to me.

"Enough, I say. Now, everyone rise and recite the pledge."

I got up and left. And at the first phone booth, I phoned in a tip to the FBI. My friend Grump, a socialist mouth-piece. Who would have believed it?

Judge applications solicited

Applications for an unfilled associate judgeship in the First Judicial Circuit will be accepted until Oct. 28.

Judge William A. Lewis, chief judge of the First Judicial Circuit, said the Illinois Supreme Court has authorized the election of a licensed attorney for the circuit covering Alexander, Jackson, Johnson, Massac, Pope, Pulaski, Saline, Union, and Williamson counties.

The elected judge will not be required to live in any particular county of the circuit and will be assigned to a county by the chief judge or also may be assigned to any Illinois county by the Supreme Court.

The election will be conducted by the Director of the Administrative Office of the Illinois Courts, and the judge will be elected by the 13 judges of the First Circuit. Lewis anticipates the judge will assume his or her duties by Dec. 5.

The judge's term will last until June 30, 1991, at which time the judge can request to serve a four-year term, an administrative assistant for Lewis said.

drop a math class or fail because they are too anxious, psychologist Elwin Zimmerman said.

Students taking general math courses in fall 1987 flunked 26 percent of the credit hours in beginning algebra and 19 percent of the total credit hours in intermediate algebra. In the upper level math courses, 15 percent of the credit hours were failures.

Several math anxiety groups were started at the beginning of the fall semester to help students learn math and become less anxious about it, but they were canceled, Zimmerman said.

"It just didn't fly," the senior counselor at the Counseling Center said. "There wasn't enough interest, but that doesn't mean students don't have math anxiety."

The Counseling Center promoted the groups with the math department, but there was no way of telling if the instructors told their students of the groups, he explained.

Mathematics professor Katherine Pedersen said, "The math department recognizes math anxiety, but there is very little it can do."

Math anxiety starts in elementary school and a university is not equipped to handle problems that have started at the fourth- and fifth-grade levels, she said.

"I really don't think teachers recognize the negative behavior of children trying to learn math," she said. "Children have to be put into situations where they are going to have successes and be taught that it is not a personal failure to be wrong."

Zimmerman said the Counseling Center will still provide math anxiety groups if even five or six students want help.

erupted six years ago.

Meanwhile, the industrial nations' economies have grown rapidly, he said, describing the 1980s as a "lost decade" for Latin America and the Caribbean.

He said the strategy worked out by the IMF, governments and banks over the past six years to provide financial relief to debtor nations that implement economic reforms had "serious limitations."

"The programs are floundering in an intolerable vicious circle," Alarcon-Mantilla said.

Botswana Finance Minister P.S. Mmusa, speaking for Africa, said: "Despite strong declarations of commitment to free trade ... protectionism in industrial countries is on the rise."

A World Bank study presented at the annual meeting showed industrial world protectionism cost the developing nations twice as much as they receive in official foreign aid.

Mmusa said IMF World Bank reform programs for debtor nations need to be changed to fit the particular needs of individual countries.

He welcomed as a "step in the right direction" the decision by major industrial nations at the summit to go ahead with a new package of debt-relief measures for the poorest countries, mainly in sub-Saharan Africa.

But he said a variety of initiatives now undertaken to alleviate the debt burden "are far below our immediate requirements."

Alarcon-Mantilla said: "There has been a lot of talk of debt forgiveness and partial remission and reduction of capitalization of interest... It is urgent that this objective be turned into reality

Reporter: Experience is key

Reporter says inequities are prevalent in her profession

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

Experience and schooling are keys for minority student success in journalism, a suburban reporter for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch said.

"Black women or minorities in general should get as much coaching as possible and experience working on a newspaper," Yvonne Samuel, a journalist for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, said. "Tryouts and summer internships are very important."

A four-year summer internship with the Post-Dispatch and a minority scholarship to the University of Missouri at Columbia were keys to her career success, Samuel said.

Samuel was on campus Tuesday and Wednesday as part of the School of Journalism's residence program that allows students to talk with practicing journalists.

"With or without the scholarship I would be working as a journalist," Samuel said. "But the scholarship allowed me to get a degree without the hassles of getting a job to fund my schooling."

In her high school junior year, Samuel won her first scholarship, which was for minority broadcasting, she said. Early experiences as a journalist for Samuel included positions at five newspapers. Before attending college, she worked in the Post-Dispatch's reference department.

During Samuel's internship she was a clerk on the city desk and a news reporter.

After graduating in December 1977, Samuel was unable to get a job with the Post-Dispatch because it had no job openings, she said.

"I really wanted to work in the St. Louis area," Samuel said. "I made 500 copies of my resume and only sent out three."

A semester of scholarship funds still were available to Samuel, she said.

"I decided to stay in school and in June 1978 I was hired at the Post-Dispatch," Samuel said.

The Post-Dispatch has been offering minority scholarships to people in the St. Louis area since the mid 1960s, Samuel said. She was the last person who won a scholarship hired by the Post-Dispatch, she said.

"There weren't a lot of opportunities for black women in the past," Samuel said. "When I started at the Post-Dispatch there were only two other black women and in the early 1980s I was the only black woman they had."

Not until Affirmative Action

did the Post-Dispatch take a more critical look at its hiring process, Samuel said. Affirmative Action is a national policy aimed at stopping discrimination in the education and employment of groups of people including women and blacks.

"The paper never sought aggressively to hire any blacks," Samuel said. "It's a sad case of affairs when the Post-Dispatch has to be forced to hire competent black women and men."

Today the paper employs only seven black women on a staff of 130 reporters, Samuel said.

"There are no other minorities."

Without the internship, Samuel said she would not have been hired by the Post-Dispatch.

"Not if I was right out of college and no experience," Samuel said. "The Post-Dispatch prefers people with two to three years experience."

While she is successful working at the North County Bureau in Florissant, Mo., she said there are some walls she has run into at the paper.

"One problem is that black women are less flexible to move into other departments."

"It could be because of racism and a whole lot of other factors," Samuel said. "But I can't answer all the whys."

Granite City teachers return

United Press International

The 445 striking teachers in Granite City, Ill., returned to classes Wednesday, ending a 22-day strike, while 162 others in Hanover, Mass., defied a back-to-work order to take their walkout into its eighth day.

The Granite City teachers voted Tuesday night to end the strike that kept 8,200 students away from school since Sept. 6.

District Superintendent Gilbert Walmsley said Wednesday he was optimistic that the contract would be ratified. A vote is expected within two weeks.

"We each gave in a little bit and arrived at what I think is a fair agreement," Walmsley said.

The agreement gives teachers a 4 percent raise this semester and a 2 percent raise next semester. Increases in the second year will be negotiated before the 1989-90 school year.

The teachers had demanded a 10 percent raise in both years.

The Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission issued its order Tuesday afternoon against the Hanover Teachers association, which represents the 162 teachers on strike over wages and other contract issues.

At the peak of the labor turmoil earlier this month, more than 10,000 teachers were on strike in six states, affecting more than 100,000 students.

900-year-old skull has no cavities

FAIRVIEW HEIGHTS, Ill. (UPI) — A 900-year-old skull accidentally unearthed over the weekend shows native Americans suffered little from tooth decay before Europeans brought sugar to the New World, a forensic archaeologist said Wednesday.

The skull belonged to an American Indian who lived about 900 years ago, said Mark Johnsey, a forensic archaeologist with the Illinois State Police laboratory in Fairview Heights.

The skull, bones and pottery fragments were found Sunday by Dennis Sale of Millstadt, Ill., and his granddaughter, Mindy Beterman, while they were landscaping the property around Sale's new house, authorities said.

"I wish I had this guy's teeth," Johnsey said after examining the skull. "He had every tooth without a cavity. Indians didn't have access to sugar, so you don't find them with cavities."

The skull belonged to a man 25 to 30 years old.

New nuclear fuel inspected

DECATUR, Ill. (UPI) — Illinois Power on Wednesday began inspecting the first of six shipments of nuclear fuel that will be used in January to replenish about 27 percent of the fuel now being used at the utility's Clinton Power Station.

The fuel is in the form of 168 square fuel bundles, each weighing 660 pounds, and will replace the same number of bundles in the station's reactor core during a 10-week, planned refueling outage beginning Jan. 3.

"The primary reason for the outage," said IP spokeswoman

Robin Hamel, "is that the energy of the fuel in the reactor core now will become so low by the end of the year that we won't be operating at 100 percent power."

The power outage, required every 18 months, is the first since Clinton went into service in April 1987. During the 10-week period, Hamel said the utility will rely on its five fossil-burning plants around the state or purchase electricity from another utility.

"The demand on the electricity will be lower than in the summer," she said.

Illinois Education Association-NEA 805A South University Carbondale, Illinois 62901 618/457-2141

WHAT WILL HAPPEN TO MERIT UNDER COLLECTIVE BARGAINING?

As we have said before (see our Platform on Faculty Salaries), IEA/NEA is committed to the principle of merit recognition—as are all of NEA's university affiliates from the University of Maine to the University of Hawaii. There are few, if any, collective bargaining agreements at the university level that do not include provisions for merit pay. The IEA/NEA SIUC will negotiate for merit money as an essential component of any negotiated salary increase.

WILL SALARIES BE LEVELED BY COLLECTIVE BARGAINING?

Opponents of collective bargaining frequently argue that salaries will be "leveled" by collective bargaining. But twenty years of bargaining in higher education (a subject that has been thoroughly studied by objective scholars) has produced no evidence that supports this contention. In all of the research there is no evidence of a significant leveling of salaries among four year universities that bargain.

On the contrary, salary differentials based on merit and market factors, (which are generally built into the collective bargaining agreement) continue to exist at bargaining institutions just as they do at non-bargaining institutions.

Fish fry to help disabled

A fish-fry fund raiser to help needy children with disabilities attend summer camp at the Touch of Nature Environmental Center is scheduled for tonight.

Funds from the event will go toward the William H. Freeberg Memorial Scholarship Fund, which was established by the SIU Foundation and the Friends of Touch of Nature. Ted Wichmann, associate director of Touch of Nature, said.

Wichmann said the fund was established after Freeberg's death last year, commemorating his work with children with disabilities and his involvement with Touch of Nature.

William Freeberg was a professor in the Department of Recreation and the chairman of the department. Freeberg started the Touch of Nature Environmental Center in the 1960s, Wichmann said.

Wichmann said they will start using the scholarship next summer to help children with disabilities from low-income families attend the Touch of Nature camps.

John Allen, of the Friends of Touch of Nature, said the proceeds will go directly into the fund. The interest earned on the fund will be used to help children who otherwise could not afford to go to Camp Olympia at the Touch of Nature Environmental Center.

The all-you-can-eat-and-drink event is scheduled for 6 p.m. at the Brown Bag, 622 E. Main, Carbondale. Tickets may be purchased from Ted Wichmann at Touch of Nature.

McLeod's fall season begins

Two one-act plays written by students kick off semester

By Beth Clavin
Entertainment Editor

McLeod Theater kicks off its season today through Saturday with two one-act plays.

"Reports of My Death," written by Sylvia Baeza and directed by Arthur Myles, is the story of a South American writer, Ariel Hoffman, who returns home after being in exile for 20 years in the United States.

Hoffman, played by Mark K. Kipolash, soapmore in speech communications, feels you can't find the world when you're outside of it, and returns to his home country only to find shocking news waiting for him.

Baeza, who is working on her doctorate in speech and theater, got the idea for the play from the true story of a Chilean novelist who now teaches at Duke University.

The novelist also was exiled in the United States and later returned home.

Baeza, who is also from Chile, began writing the play last fall and has since made a number of revisions. It is her first play produced here, although she is working on a political-musical play for her dissertation.

"Tracks," written by Fred Norberg, deals with a man confronting his memories. Norberg, publicity director for McLeod Theater, said he believes if we don't allow ourselves to let go of memories, they keep us from progressing forward.

"It's sort of a quasi-autobiography of my memories of my father," Norberg said.

The story takes place in the mind of one of the main characters, Frank, played by Mark Mendelsohn, a senior in theater. Frank confronts his memories for the first time in years and moves forward with his life.

Norberg, who also will be directing the production, began writing the play last year, when he joined the Playwrights' Workshop. He said he has done most of his rewriting this fall, when the production went to the stage.

His play, "The Gamesters," was performed last spring and "Thirty" will be performed this spring in the Lab Theater.

"These two plays are representative of the quality and strength we have in the playwriting workshop right now," he said.

The plays begin at 8 p.m. and will be followed by a critique session, where members of the audience are given a chance to make comments on the productions.

Poetry review seeks writings from all ages

The first "Frog Gone Poetry Review" is accepting manuscripts and subscription orders.

The Spring 1989 edition of the magazine will present the work of 10 poets. Five writers will have up to five poems printed, and five others will have one poem printed.

To encourage poets of all ages, at least one teen-age poet and another over 59 years old will be among those selected.

Poets must send up to five poems, 120 lines total maximum, postmarked no later than Jan. 15.

For more information, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Box 46308, Mt. Clemens, Miss., 48046.

Court says no to Lorimar's merger plans

CULVER CITY, Calif. (UPI) - Lorimar Telepictures, disagreeing with a New York justice's ruling to block the company's acquisition by Warner Communications, said in a terse statement Wednesday it is going ahead with the merger anyway.

"Lorimar Telepictures plans to move ahead with the merger with Warner Communications as quickly as it is able to," Lorimar spokeswoman Barbara S. Brogiatti said.

A judge in Manhattan state Supreme Court on Tuesday ruled in favor of Chris-Craft Industries Inc. and BHC Inc., blocking Warner "from acquiring the stock of Lorimar unless the television stations owned by (Lorimar) are disposed of prior to or simultaneously with the purchase, or Warner disposes of sufficient BHC stock.

Scientist wants disarmament

Woman works with weapons, forms arms control group

Editor's note: The St. Louis Post-Dispatch recently sent its reporters around the country to gather interviews with ordinary voters who will help choose the next president. This one story in a series.

By William F. Woo
St. Louis Post-Dispatch

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. — In the lobby of EG&G Energy Measurements Inc. are posted blunt prohibitions for visitors: No cameras. No tape recorders. No two-way radios. Briefcases and parcels to be inspected. This is nuclear weapons country.

EG&G is the prime contractor for the instrumentation of underground nuclear testing in Nevada. Among its 200 employees there is Clarice W. Cox, 58, a mathematician. Like those of many of her colleagues, her work site is so sensitive that she cannot even take a visitor to her office.

COX IS a specialist in digital image processing and computer graphics. Reserved to the point of shyness, she brings a scientist's precision to her conversation. Every word is weighed and measured before it is delivered. Her close-cropped hair is snow white, her handshake firm and her dress conservative, accented by Indian turquoise jewelry.

In politics, Cox considers herself a moderate, a middle-of-the-roader. Until 1986, her most unorthodox political act had been to cast a ballot in 1980 for John Anderson, the independent candidate, for president. But since then she has become involved in a cause that is likely to influence her vote in November.

In 1986, in this town where the world's first atomic bomb was produced, Clare Cox helped found an organization of scientists dedicated to arms control.

"I GOT to thinking that this town really needed an organization like this," she said. "Our purpose is to focus the unique capabilities of this community on the problems of weapons of mass destruction."

Los Alamos County (population 18,000) is unique among New Mexico's counties, not only because it is the newest and smallest in the state but also because of its demographics. Its work force, with 1,428 doctrates at the national laboratory alone, may well be the most highly educated in the United States.

Its per-capita income of $20,000 is twice that of the state, and four out of five residents are non-Hispanic, a proportion far above that for the rest of New Mexico.

COX CAME to Los Alamos in 1955 after earning a master's degree in mathematics from the University of Wisconsin. Her political outlook was formed when she was a college student witnessing the anti-communist crusade of Joseph McCarthy, then a senator from Wisconsin.

Cox's first love was physics, and she was drawn to the Los Alamos National Laboratory and its constellation of physical scientists. Divorced from an astronomer at the laboratory, Cox is the mother of two sons. In 1982, after the laboratory de-emphasized image processing, Cox took a job with EG&G.

"Our most pressing problem?" she responds to a visitor. "I'm really worried about the debt. I'm concerned that we are not doing as much as we can to change ourselves back into a creditor nation again. I don't know what it takes, but I have a feeling that things are out of control."

"SAYING PEACE is my hope for the country is way too broad. If we could set ourselves on a more methodical way to reduce the armaments and reduce the tensions that lead to putting our faith in huge stockpiles of weapons, that would be good."

REGARDLESS OF who is elected president, Cox believes America will be spending less on its armed forces.

"The Soviets are perceived as warming up," she said, "so there's less of a threat and less reason to fuel a build-up. I think the SDI (the Strategic Defense Initiative) will fade away as a proposal when Reagan leaves."

"I'm not sure that spending the money saved on social services is the conclusion to be drawn. If there's any diversion, I would like to see the money going to education."

"I think the outcome for the country will be good if it leads in the direction of a little more fiscal responsibility."

Nigeria's freedom observed

By Diana Mivell
Staff Writer

Nigerian students want others to understand what independence means to them on their 28th independence anniversary, Justin Odulana, president of the Nigerian Student Association, said.

A Nigerian arts and crafts display will be in the Student Center Showcase until Saturday.

"The arts and artifacts are made by village women. They display our culture," Odulana said.

Various issues will be discussed at a symposium Thursday night at the Student Center, including the role of U.S. universities in the battle against AIDS and the agricultural development of Africa.

A buffet featuring Nigerian cuisine will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday at Quigley.

"We are catering to a multinational audience so our friends from the United States and other places may enjoy the dishes," Kingsley Harbor, chairman of the food committee, said.

Harbor said most of the dishes will be Nigerian to give others a taste of the country's cuisine.

A dance party at King's Wok will follow and conclude the week of events. For details, contact Justin Odulana, 529-2398 or Sanjo Omoniyi, 529-5581.

Rowan seeks defense in trial on handguns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A police official testified Tuesday in the gun possession trial of columnist Carl Rowan that firearms of former FBI agents — like Rowan's son — are generally considered exempt from the District of Columbia's strict gun control law.

Police Inspector James R. Lee, who administers the city's gun control act, testified as the first defense witness at the trial of Rowan, who is accused of illegally possessing the handgun he used to shoot a teenage intruder at his home in June.

The columnist's son, Carl Rowan Jr., said he persuaded his father, a long-time gun control advocate, to keep the pistol at his home after repeated death threats.

Rowan, 63, is expected to testify that District of Columbia police repeatedly told his son, a former FBI agent, that the weapon did not have to be registered.

At the trial Tuesday, defense lawyer Raoul Carroll asked Lee whether an FBI agent who left the agency would be required to then register his gun in the city.

"We have generally regarded those type of weapons as exempt" from registration, Lee replied.

The city's gun control law, written in 1975, makes it virtually impossible for a private citizen to register and legally own a handgun.

Rowan shot Ben Smith, 18, of Chevy Chase, Md., in the wrist, slightly wounding him, in the early morning hours of June 14. Smith was among a group of young people who climbed the fence to Rowan's Northwest Washington home and were using his swimming pool and jacuzzi.

Threats escalate at Olympics

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Police further tightened security at the Summer Olympics Wednesday as smoldering anti-American sentiment and warnings of a possible attack on the men's marathon threatened to disrupt the Games' final days.

Radical students demanding the release from police custody of South Korea's most powerful student leader warned that unless he is freed they would launch a protest blitz, including attacks on Olympics events. One intended target was the men's marathon on the closing day.

The threat came after hundreds of students battled police Wednesday at two Seoul colleges, hurling rock and gasoline bottle bombs. Police responded with tear gas, and at least two students were reported injured.

The National Police said security was being tightened in Seoul to ensure a smooth finish to the Games. Authorities intensified the checking of cars and visitors entering sporting events, a spokesman for the Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee said.

Worsening matters, anti-American sentiment was on the rise in Seoul, fueled by recurrent misbehavior by U.S. athletes and controversy surrounding the NBC television network's coverage of the Games. At a Wednesday night boxing match, Korean spectators drowned out chants of "USA" with boos when an American boxer won.

Thousands of Israelis rally in West Bank tour

NABLUS, Israeli-occupied West Bank (UPI) — Thousands of Israeli sightseers and right-wing political activists toured the West Bank in a massive motorcade Wednesday sponsored by the Likud Party to demonstrate the strategic importance of the captured territory.

More than 100 bright red buses, traveling in caravans of up to a dozen, sped from Jewish settlement to Jewish settlement, where the tourists met with Likud Party dignitaries who preached the political message that control of the West Bank is vital to Israeli security.

Palestinian youths stoned two buses, Palestinian sources said. At least two vehicles that pulled into Nablus had smashed windows, apparently from stone-throwing incidents.

The tour was part of the Likud's efforts to sway undecided voters before the bitterly contested Nov. 1 election.

Burmese communist rebels kill 44 soldiers, seize 3 posts

RANGOON, Burma (UPI) — Communist rebels killed at least 44 soldiers and captured three outposts in northern Burma in attacks that capitalized on army weaknesses caused by months of political turmoil, official radio and guerrilla sources said Wednesday.

A fourth army outpost was seized by militant members of the Karen ethnic group in fighting that left five government soldiers missing, Rangoon radio said.

The radio also announced the formation of a second opposition party to challenge the government in future elections promised by the military regime.

Small bands of communists and other, mostly ethnic-based insurgency groups have been fighting the central government for more than 30 years without making much progress, but the current political unrest in Burma has given them a new opportunity.

Widespread dissatisfaction with Burma's military leadership triggered months of strikes and anti-government demonstrations and toppled three presidents in the last two months. A military coup Sept. 18 ousted President Maung Maung after less than a month in office.

Flooding kills 400 in India

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — The worst flooding in a decade in northern India eased Wednesday after reportedly killing at least 400 people, but officials warned of outbreaks of disease as a result of contaminated drinking water.

Officials said the water levels of the region's main rivers — the Ravi, Sutlej, Beas and Yamuna — were falling because there was no rain since Tuesday morning.

"The water level in the Yamuna River has fallen by 1 meter during the past 12 hours," said a flood control official in New Delhi.

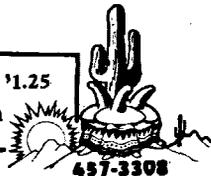

He and officials in the Punjab state capital of Chandigarh, 155 miles northwest of New Delhi, said they were concerned about possible outbreaks of water-borne diseases.

Opinions about Americans loss are dime a dozen

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — The second-guessing started only moments after the last second ticked off the clock. It isn't likely to stop for some time.

When the United States loses in the sport it invented, opinions are like junk mail — everyone gets too much.

Here are some to add to the discussion in the wake of the Soviet Union's 82-76 triumph that relegated the United States to trying for a bronze medal in men's basketball for the first time in Olympic

Sports Analysis

Unlike last year's loss to Brazil in the Pan American Games, the defeat by the Soviets can't be labeled a fluke. A year ago, Brazil was all but out of the game before Oscar Schmidt went on a 3-point rampage that salvaged a stunning victory.

The Soviets controlled play. They led the last 27:47 of the game. They dictated the tempo. They were clearly the better team. In fact, if star guard Scharunas Marchulionis had not sat out 14 minutes in the middle of the game with four fouls, the Soviets might have won going away. Marchulionis' ability to penetrate and negate U.S. pressure was critical to the Soviets' success.

The Soviets nullified the sheer foundation of U.S. Coach John Thompson's team. Thompson repeatedly said in the week's leading to the Olympics that he was convinced his defensive philosophy was the way to beat international teams.

It didn't work. The Soviets handled the pressure, and at times used it to their advantage by drawing defenders away from shooters, notably Rimas Kurtinaitis, who finished with a game-high 28 points. When the Americans tried full-court pressure near the end of the game, the Soviets passed over the defense for layups.

Thompson also emphasized the importance of defending the 3-pointer. But the Americans did a so-so job, mostly because the man-on-man defense couldn't stop Marchulionis and others from penetrating and drawing help.

Was Thompson wrong? Perhaps, if only in the extreme of his emphasis. Pressure defense overpowers inferior talent — Egypt, China — and frustrates unorganized talent — the NBA all-stars. But against equal and organized talent, pressure defense sometimes becomes a liability.

The Salukis' performance this season has been hampered by injuries and illnesses. One of the injured is the team's No. 1 runner Lisa Judisack, who remains sidelined with severe lower back problems.

"There is still a slight possibility we will run Lisa this weekend," DeNoon said. "She's done intervals with us this week and if she's competitive in workouts the rest of the week, we'll run her this weekend."

DeNoon said if she doesn't run, then she will be red-shirted for the remainder of the cross country season.

In a telephone conversation with Judisack, she said she doesn't feel she will run and the decision to redshirt her will probably come after this weekend.

The Salukis will then face another meet without their top runner, but coach DeNoon is still optimistic.

"It will be very difficult for us to stay with Kentucky, but I think we can finish somewhere in the middle with a good performance," DeNoon said.

DeNoon will be looking to senior Jane Schumaker, who has ran well in the first three meets of the season. She finished fourth in the first two meets of the season, and 37th out of a field of 260 two weeks ago.

"I'll be looking to Jane and Michelle (Sciano), along with Cathy (Brown)," DeNoon said.

Sciano is back at full strength after fighting an illness which severely hampered her last couple of performances.

DeNoon said he also feels good about the chances freshmen Amie Padgett and Traci Guerri will have in the meet. Rosanne Vincent and Pam Quarengli will also be competing.

"I have a good friend on the Illinois State team from Norway, and I will be aiming to beat him," Dennis said. "I feel that (ISU) is where my stiffest competition will come from."

Dennis finished ahead of Big Ten champion Bob Kennedy in the Lexington Invitational, and also beat out the favored Kentucky runners. It appears his stiffest competition will come from Illinois State's Tony Daniel and Dan Schafer, who placed fifth and eighth respectively at last year's Missouri Valley Conference Championships. ISU's Dave Wilson did not compete in last year's MVC championships.

SIU-C will counter with Freshman Vaughn Harry and junior Paul Burkinshaw, both of whom have run well so far this season. Harry finished 20th last week and Burkinshaw 31st.

Hartzog pleased with team's play; credits freshmen performances

By John Walby
Staff Writer

The men's golf team began to show some of its true talent with a fifth-place tie with Northern Alabama in the Goodyear Collegiate Tournament at Union City, Tenn.

Both teams had team scores of 605 strokes, only one stroke behind fourth-place Mobile College (Ala.).

Western Kentucky was first with 580 strokes at the two-day tournament that concluded Tuesday. Second went to Delta State with a 589 and Tennessee Martin placed third with 596 strokes.

"Once again, we came awfully close to playing some outstanding golf," Coach Lew Hartzog said.

Hartzog gives a large amount of the credit to the freshmen players. Earlier in the season Hartzog emphasized the fact that the team was very young, but now it seems that age counts for little after the scores are tallied.

"I was really quite pleased with the play of the freshmen," Hartzog said.

Freshman Dirk Klapprott was the team's low-scorer with a two-round total of 148 strokes. Klapprott, the team's most highly-recruited high school player this year, was the team's fourth-lowest scorer last week at the Northern Iowa Golf Classic.

"He was the most heavily-recruited freshman. I'm not surprised. I expect a great deal from him, Hartzog said.

Hartzog also mentioned being pleased with the play of another freshman, Sean English, who was the second-lowest scorer for the team with a two-round total of 151.

Britt Pavelonis was third with a 153, Sean Leckrone at 155, Mike Cowen at 156 and Mark Bellas had a 162.

The Salukis also finished fifth at last year's tournament with 611 strokes, though Hartzog noted a difference. "We have a better team than last year."

"We were only one point out of fourth. Any little thing could change that."

The team's next match is Oct. 7 and 8 at its own Saluki Invitational at Bend Lake.

"We do some things really well right now, we just need to develop consistency. Our non-conference games are killers."

Arkansas State coach Larry Lacey said, "I'm not surprised. I expect a great expecting a battle.

"This is the best looking physical team they have had since we started coaching against them," Lacey said.

"Why, the difference in Southern Illinois this year, compared to last year, is daylight and darkness. This is undoubtedly the best Saluki team since that national championship year, and their new coaching staff is not accustomed to losing."

Field hockey on the road again

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The field hockey team, which has yet to play a home game as the season approaches its mid-point, hits the road again.

This weekend's destination is Muncie, Ind. The Salukis play the host Ball State Cardinals on Friday and then Miami of Ohio on Saturday.

The main concern for coach Jules Illner is not the prowess of either opponent — Ball State is 4-2-1 and Miami is 2-2-1 — but the condition of the grass playing field.

"The biggest thing right now is getting used to grass again," Illner said.

Though the Salukis' own home facility at Stehr Field is grass, they usually practice on the artificial surface at McAndrew Stadium. The team has a 3-6 record after having played all its games on synthetic turfs.

"It might give the other teams an advantage," Illner said. "The shorter the grass, the better. We want a faster game."

Even grass fields don't share the same characteristics, Illner said. The taller the grass, the slower the play. "You can develop a flaw in your swing if the grass is too long," Illner said. "You try to over-compensate on longer grass."

The ball also travels shorter distances on grass than artificial turf.

"The ball's not coming to us as fast," Illner said. "We're really going to have to make a concentrated effort to go after it."

The team's offensive leader after nine games is Cindy Opperman, who leads with five goals.

Sports Briefs

Coach reaches milestone

Southwest Missouri State women's volleyball coach Linda Dollar picked up her 600th career victory just two games into her 17th season, Lady Bears Sports Information Director Jon Ripberger reported.

Former Saluki fails to qualify

Former Saluki Carrie Price's discus throw of 187-1 1-2 did not qualify her for the finals in Olympic competition. Carol Cady was the only American listed among the 12 competitors for the finals.

Volleyball match cancelled

The women's volleyball match against the University of Colorado has been cancelled because of a scheduling conflict. Colorado had the match scheduled for Wednesday and SIU-C had it scheduled for tonight.

Water Ski Club sets record

The SIU-C Water Ski Club finished sixth out of 13 schools, the best finish in the school's history, at the Midwest College Regional Championship Saturday and Sunday at Decatur.

The club finished third overall in men's slalom and fourth in men's jump. Jeff Myers said the club could have finished much higher, but had to scratch nine positions because they did not have enough female skiers.

Individually, Myers finished second in men's slalom, Mike Sheedy finished 11th, Brian Bellings finished 18th, Corey Gellerstedt finished 20th and Jeff Estes finished 25th.

Matt Duntanen, Tony Krause, Nicole Cress, Sue Stube and Audrey Duntanen round out the club's members.

Rhoades sees Arkansas State as legitimate test

By David Gallanetti
Staff Writer

Perennial I-AA powerhouse Arkansas State will pose the next test for the Salukis at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at McAndrew Stadium. Head coach Rick Rhoades said it is a test the Salukis have to start passing.

"If we want to build up a respected program, then we have to learn how to beat teams like this," Rhoades said. "We are looking forward to the game. They are the best we will play yet. There is no question."

Rhoades said once again, all-around consistency will be a big factor in beating the Indians.

consistent if we want to have a chance to win," he said. "Right now, this is the most important game on the schedule, because it is this week."

Despite the fact that Arkansas State also runs a wishbone offense, Rhoades sees the game as being more than a clash between offenses.

"This is not really a wish-bone versus wishbone game. It is our offense versus their defense and vice versa. The difference is both teams have some experience with the wishbone to draw from.

"Wishbone teams have as much of a problem stopping it as anyone else. We spend all fall playing against everything else."

Rhoades said the Salukis need to continue working on spots that have been bothering them all season.

"We need to have more consistency in the offense. We have made some major strides this week in our kicking game and it looks a lot better."

Saluki Invite boasts competitive field

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

The most competitive lineup in the five-year history of the men's cross country Saluki Invitational will take the field Saturday to compete in an eight team meet.

The men's 8K race for the Country Fair-Saluki Invitational starts at 11 a.m.

"This is the best field we've ever had for this meet," Coach Bill Cornell said. "It will be interesting competing against the MVC schools, especially since we'll host them for the league title on Oct. 29."

Cornell said this week his team will have to get out front early. Cornell wants the younger players to key on senior captain David Beauchem, who, after an illness in last week's meet, now appears to be on the right track.

"Last week we got off to a slow start," Cornell said. "So this week it is a necessity we get out early in the first two miles of the race. I'm going to have the younger, inexperienced runners key on Beauchem."

Cornell said the best overall team at the meet will be Kentucky, who finished second in the Lexington Invitational last week.

"Kentucky will be the favorite, but we can't rule out Illinois State who is favored to win the Gateway title this year," Cornell said.

will represent the MVC in the meet. Defending invitational winner Southeast Missouri will also be returning. SIU-C won the invitational from 1984-86.

Kentucky, Murray State and Memphis State will round out the competition.

Cornell said the meet should be exciting, not only because of the fine competition at the meet, but also because the home crowd we'll be able to see the Salukis' No. 1 runner, freshman Jon Dennis, in action for the first time.

"Once, I do think he has a chance of winning the meet. His stiffest competition should come from Illinois State's Dave Wilson," Cornell said.

Dennis placed first in the opening meet of the season against Kansas, and he was second last week in the Saluki Invitational. First place went to an East Tennessee runner who set a new course record.

Dennis said he is going into the meet with every intention of winning it.

The home-field advantage will be back in favor of the women's cross country team this weekend, when they compete in the 14th annual Saluki Invitational.

The women's field for the Country Fair-Saluki Invitational will consist of six teams including SIU-C, Gateway conference rival Indiana State, Southeast Missouri, Murray State, Memphis State and powerhouse Kentucky, who finished second in the southeastern conference last year.

After a dismal performance in the Midwest Collegiates two weeks ago, Coach Don DeNoon said he is looking forward to a return to the form his runners displayed in their first meet of the season.

"I'll be happy with our performance if we can run with the same competitiveness that we did in our opening meet," DeNoon said.

"We'll have a high level of competition there, including perennially ranked Kentucky," DeNoon said. "It should be exciting."

LeFevre prepared for double duty

Directing the men's tennis team is going to be second on Coach Dick LeFevre's list of things to do this weekend. He also will be directing the Illinois Intercollegiate to be held Friday through Sunday at the University Courts.

SIU-C will play host to Illinois, Illinois State, SIU-E, Eastern Illinois and Bradley in the three-day event that Illinois State held last year. The tournament will count as only one playing date with the NCAA because no official winner will be named.

"Each coach will figure out some kind of point system, though," LeFevre said. "He'll fix it so he can bring it back and make him look good."

If scores were kept and a winner named, SIU-C would have placed first in last year's Intercollegiate. Jairo Aldana beat Marco Winter of SIU-E, 6-2, 6-1, in the finals of the A group, a draw consisting of players ranked on their team as one through four. Mickey Maule made it to the

The women's tennis team will be at Edwardsville in a dual meet against SIU-E and Southwest Missouri this weekend.

SIU-E, the defending national champion in Division II, will be tough to overcome, Coach Judy Auld said. But she is looking at the match against Southwest Missouri for her 206th victory.

"They're a real scrappy team, but you can never count them out," Auld said.

The Salukis had last weekend off after the University of Mississippi cancelled because of a scheduling conflict.

"I hope that having last weekend off didn't hurt us," Auld said. "We've played quite a few matches in practice since then, so we should be O.K. It ought to be a good weekend for us."

Dana Cherebetiu will be the only question mark for the Salukis this weekend. On and off the injured list since preseason, Cherebetiu is still having back problems that could be a result from a bicycle accident earlier this season.

he will try for byes for his players who have classes Friday morning.

"Last spring season our guys had a 3.41 accumulated GPA," LeFevre said. "We'd like to keep that going."
