SIU set to start settling with 104

By Jeff Jouett
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU is prepared to begin negotiating out-of-court settlements with terminated faculty members Wednesday morning, Acting SIU President Hiram Lesar told a group of the 104 fired faculty Tuesday.

"We have money from this year's budget to offer substantial settlements to tenured faculty and faculty on continuing appointment who were terminated," Lesar said.

Lesar told a meeting in the Student Center Auditorium of more than 50 of the 104 terminated faculty that they could begin making individual appointments for settlement negotiations with Keith Leasure, vice president for Academic Affairs, or negotiate through their attorneys.

The amount and nature of settlements will depend upon "individual cases and what their situation is," Lesar said.

Individuals accepting settlements must sign a release, Lesar added, and will forfeit any right for grievance consideration or for representation in the class action suit currently awaiting hearing in Jackson County Circuit Court.

SIU Legal Counsel John Huffman said the release that faculty will be required to sign to get a settlement is "standard and about 90 per cent uniform but it will differ slightly for each person depending upon their situation."

Conditions of the release will be adequately explained by either himself, the faculty member's attorney or both, Huffman said.

Terminated faculty who have filed grievances concerning the class action law suit filed against them by SIU, will have to abandon their complaints to be eligible for settlements.

Leasure explained that grievance hearings for such complaints will not be held until after the court has acted on the SIU lawsuit to prove financial exigency necessary to fire terminated faculty.

The SIU-104 case was remanded to Jackson County Circuit Court just last week and may not be completed for more than a year, Huffman said. However settlements must be negotiated before June 30 and a release signed that forfeits the right for a grievance hearing, Lesar explained.

"If after two years the University wins the lawsuit," Lesar said, "we will have no authority to pay any settlements even if we would have the money."

Because funds for settlements will come from this year's budget, they must be committed by June 30 and spent by September, Lesar said.

"To the extent that we can do more for people whose jobs were eliminated we should," Lesar said.

"Because we do have the money available we are prepared to make substantial settlements—which is the only legitimate thing we can do," he continued.

Lesar said once agreement on a settlement is reached, payments will be made promptly.

Leasure said he would meet with groups "such as continuing appointments faculty" but not those retaining legal counsel.

In other matters related to the terminations:

—Huffman refused to provide Robert Harrel, terminated professor of English who is named in the lawsuit, with a list of the names of the 104 terminated teachers on the grounds that the names are part of personnel records and are confidential without consent from each person.

—Lesar and Leasure said that deans or chairman of the various schools and colleges decided which faculty members were to be cut. The deans and chairmen were instructed by the administration to give programs priority over tenure in deciding where and who to cut.

—Leasure said that administrators transferred to faculty positions "could create overstaffing in that department and he or someone else in that department could be in jeopardy of dismissal."

—Lesar explained that hiring of faculty for the law and medicine schools would continue because they are considered new programs and not restricted to student-to-teacher ratios recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

—Leasure said he will discuss the question of why the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences was hit hardest by terminations with the dean of that college and the Liberal Arts Council.

Leasure said the deans have been instructed to "match up any vacancies developing with terminated faculty if at all possible" and that his office is assisting in such an effort.

Funds may be shifted due to student pay hikes

By Terry Martin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Some student work funds may have to be transferred between departments in order to offset financial problems caused by the recent 30-cent across the board raise for student workers, Frank Adams, program director of Student Work and Financial Assistance, said Tuesday.

Adams emphasized that the University has enough money in its overall budget to last until July 1 to pay student workers but said some departments do not. Therefore, funds may be transferred.

"We've asked departments to send a letter to each chairman and to us and to add up the amount not yet spent this year," Adams said.

Adams would not say which departments have anticipated financial woes because of the pay hike.

Every student worker on campus was given a 30-cent raise effective the present pay period following the April 8 enactment of the new federal minimum wage law. The new minimum wage for students is $1.90 an hour.

In the meantime, Adams urged SIU students to contact state senators and representatives and support the passing of a bill pending before the Illinois Senate to give more than $5.9 million to student work programs at state public universities.

The Student Employment Assistance Act proposal was introduced recently by State Sen. David Shapiro, (R-Ambly). If passed, it would take effect July 1 and authorize the Illinois Board of Higher Education to make grants to all state universities so additional employment opportunities for students would be provided.

"We need funding from this bill or the General Assembly if we want to retain the same number of student workers," Adams said. "It would expand work opportunities far greater than we have now."

Adams also pointed out that the bill does not include giving state monies to private institutions and that it is primarily aimed at students coming from families considered middle class.

"We need the act passed badly," he said. "If properly funded, I'm sure we'd receive our share."

Adams anticipates that if the bill passes and the $5.9 million is allocated, SIU may receive between $750,000 and $1 million, based on previous student jobs.

Ray DeJarnett, assistant to Adams, said, "This bill would open up some doors here that haven't been open for a long time."

"Unless we get more money, there is no way kids can work the same number of hours at their present jobs," Adams said.

Charles Gray, coordinator of the Student Work and Financial Assistance Office, will represent SIU at a hearing of the Senate Education Committee that will be held Wednesday morning in Springfield, Adams said. Matters surrounding the bill will be considered.

Seely vows to keep on trail of Dead

By Debby Ratermann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Newly elected Student Body Vice President Robert Seely said Tuesday he was "shocked" to hear he won the post "because the only thing I ever won before was a Phil Oakes album."

Seely, a psychology major from Rockford, got 437 votes in the vice presidential race. His running-mate and fellow Tea Party Now candidate, Dennis Sullivan, captured the presidency.

"We're really looking forward to next year," Seely said. "This summer we're going to form committees and do research on problems like entertainment, University contracts and fees."

"The key word is imagination," Seely said. "We want more concerts. We said we'd try for the Grateful Dead, and we're going to do our best to bring them here in all their splendor."

"We think Student Government has to look like it's breathing," Seely said.

Seely said he has a "heavy vinyl habit" and likes to listen to "good talent, good old English groups like the Kinks."

As vice president, Seely will chair all Student Senate meetings. "I'm sure I can chair the senate impartially," Seely said. "I've been to one senate meeting and it was pretty strange."

Seely said he has only met current Vice President Jim Kania "once, when I was a little polywog in the sea of life."

He said his forthcoming salary of $2,000 "will keep me in records, pinball games and chewing tobacco."

"We want a lot of input into the administration, and hope we'll get a lot of reaction from them," Seely said. "We want them to be totally aware there are certain things the student body won't accept. That includes firing instructors right and left rather than firing administrators. It also includes total administration control of Shryock and the Arena."

Hill House strives for self-sufficiency

By David Kornblith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

In their drive to become self-sufficient, Hill House residents are working to pull their resources together and start several spring businesses.

In addition to their grocery shopping service, which Paul Reitman, director said is having difficulties making bread, Hill House is starting painting, lawn and ironing service.

Ironing will cost 15 cents a shirt or $2.25 per hour, Reitman said. Costs for painting and landscaping are negotiable. Anyone interested in any of the services may call Hill House at 549-7391.

Reitman said because of the odd jobs and training residents have been doing, the house has hit the break-even point for the month. He added that the house is starting to clear its debts.

Money made by residents is supplemented by the state at the rate of $8.50 per person each day for up to 15 residents. Reitman said there will probably be 20 residents within the next two months.

Around the time the new services start, two of the current 15 residents will be finishing their stays at the house, Reitman said.

Wendy Wade, 19, and Jeanie Morber, 17, will "graduate" from the house in June, Reitman said.

The two women had to fulfill three requirements before graduating. Reitman said. They had to finish the seven-month program and display "behavioral continuity," not use drugs for the same length of time and be responsible for the functioning of the house.

Each graduate will either attend SIU or work in the Carbondale area, Reitman said. They will continue to attend weekly sessions at the House.

There are two new members at Hill House, Reitman said. The Hill House Board of Directors has recently seated Joe Vinovich, director at the Asklepieion Therapeutic Community, and Tom Ellison, a counselor at the House of Glass.

Currently, Hill House is staffed by a director, one part-time and two full-time therapists and a consulting psychologist, Reitman said.

The Asklepieion Foundation of Carbondale is also helping the House by providing some free services such as trainee counselors and five free slots the foundation's monthly problem-solving marathons, Reitman added.

Hill House is concerned with drug rehabilitation; there is no concern with the legalization of marijuana, Reitman said. "We condemn the use of all illegal drugs and the abuse of any drug." He added that drugs include alcohol, even though it is a different kind of drug.

Reitman said Hill House is making a bonafide attempt to "utilize the resources of the university and community" while rehabilitating residents and providing services for the Carbondale area.

High court avoids ruling on bias case

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court avoided, at least for the present, a ruling Tuesday on the constitutionality of "reverse discrimination" to ease the effects of past wrongs against racial minorities.

The court majority said the case that was to provide a basis for the ruling is now moot and therefore there would be no decision on its merits. The four dissenting justices in the 5 to 4 action said the court was doing a disservice to the public interest.

The case was being watched for its potential impact on affirmative action programs to counteract past discrimination. The issue was raised by a policy favoring minority students' admission to the University of Washington Law School.

While discrimination against minorities because of race is unconstitutional, the case asked whether it is constitutional to discriminate in favor of minorities.

"If the admission procedures of the law school remain unchanged, there is no reason to suppose that a subsequent case attacking those procedures will not come with relative speed to this court, now that the supreme court of Washington has spoken," the majority said in an unsigned opinion.

The state supreme court had approved the admissions policy, saying the state could consider the race of applicants "to achieve a reasonable representation within the student body of persons from these minority groups which have been historically suppressed."

The case on which the court acted was brought by a white student, Marco DeFunis, who was initially denied admissions to the law school while a number of minority students who did not score as high on admissions tests were admitted.

He went to state court but eventually lost. In the meantime, however, U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas issued an order which had the effect of keeping DeFunis in law school.

S-Senate to get election report

Election Commissioner Ralph Rosynek is expected to submit his report on the April 17 and 18 Student Government elections during the Student Senate meeting a 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Ballrooms.

Student Body President-elect Dennis Sullivan, Vice President-elect Robert Seely, student trustee-elect Matthew Rich and about 20 student senators must be approved by the Senate before their positions are official, Rosynek said.

The Senate is also scheduled to vote on the Joint Fee Allocation Board (JFAB) report, which has been tabled twice. Student Senate Finance Chairman Terry Mullins is expected to present the JFAB report.

Crews fail to find survivors or cause for Pan Am crash

DENPASAR, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesian soldiers worked Tuesday to clear a trail to the remote site where a Pan American 707 jetliner crashed in jungle terrain. A rescue team that reached the site found no sign of survivors.

Twenty-six Americans were among the 107 passengers and crew members aboard the flight which crashed Monday night, according to Pan Am.

Airport officials here said the pilot did not give any indication of trouble when he radioed his altitude in his last message before the crash.

But they were unable to explain why the plane made its final approach from the northwest, rather than from the west along the normal approach to Bali airport over the open sea.

The plane crashed into the side of 3,900-foot Mt. Mesehe, 36 miles northwest of the island capital of Denpasar.

Aviation officials said searchers worked Tuesday clearing a landing area near the crash site for helicopters. Soldiers were reportedly clearing a four-mile trail to the remote crash site.

Indonesia's President Suharto ordered all possible assistance be given to the search crews. Air Marshal Kardono, chief of air communications, told newsmen in Jakarta that an American rescue team would join some 60 Indonesian paratroopers who were dispatched to the crash site in helicopters and transport planes.

The flight was en route from Hong Kong to Bali and Sydney, Australia. After an 11-hour stopover in Sydney, the plane was to fly on to Honolulu and Los Angeles.

Pan American said that 17 of the 96 passengers were American, as were the pilot, Capt. Donald B. Zinke, 52, of Monte Sereno, Calif., and eight of the 10 other crew members.

Two stewardesses were natives of Denmark and Sweden, and the passengers included 29 Japanese, 18 French, 11 Australians, 4 Germans, 3 Canadians, 2 Nationalist Chinese, 2 Filipinos, 2 Indonesians, 1 Indian and 7 of unknown nationality, the airline said.

House speaker pushes aid to downstate transit

SPRINGFIELD, (AP) — Illinois House Speaker W. Robert Blair proposed Tuesday using sales tax money to finance public transportation in all parts of the state.

"I believe that recognizing and subsidizing the public transportation needs of the Chicago area, while ignoring the just as legitimate public transportation needs of downstate Illinois, is not fair or equitable," Blair told a news conference.

The new Regional Transportation Authority for the six-county Chicago metropolitan area will absorb some $80 million in state sales tax revenue, Blair said. The RTA was created by the General Assembly and approved by voters in a March 19 referendum.

However, the Speaker, who helped drive the RTA plan through the House, now backs an amendment to allow any of the counties in the RTA region to secede from it.

Republican sources said Blair would bring that proposal up for discussion in the House next Tuesday, allowing members to consider it as a "committee of the whole," rather than referring it to a smaller standing committee.

Blair said passage of his proposed Downstate Public Transportation Act would provide an alternative for counties in the RTA region that are dissatisfied with the plan.

The downstate proposal, he said, was "quite candidly . . . an attempt to woo downstate votes" in the legislature for his plan to let the suburban counties "opt out" of the RTA.

House Minority Leader Clyde Chaste immediately attacked Blair's proposal as "little more than an overnight legislative wonder — not a serious attempt to deal with downstate mass transportation problems."

Chaste said Blair's plan "appears to be blatantly designed as a sweetener to gain downstate support for the speaker's plans for dismantling the RTA."

Blair fought against letting counties choose individually whether to be a part of the RTA last year, saying that would doom the RTA from the beginning.

But he said he changed his mind because suburban counties voted overwhelmingly against the RTA in the March 19 referendum. Only a 250,000 vote bulge from Chicago enabled the RTA proposition to squeeze through by a 13,000-vote margin.

Gov. Daniel Walker called for a meeting with legislative leaders Wednesday to discuss Blair's proposals.

He said the meeting would involve the leaders who participated in setting up the RTA plan last year. That includes Blair, Chaste, Senate President William C. Harris, R-Pontiac, and Senate Minority Leader Cecil Partee, D-Chicago.

Quarterly profits soar for large oil firms

NEW YORK (AP) — Following the industry-wide pattern, the country's two biggest oil companies announced Tuesday substantial gains in profits for the first three months of 1974.

Exxon Corp., the world's largest, said its earnings were up 39 per cent to $705 million from the $508 million reported for the same period last year. Texaco Inc. reported a whopping 123 per cent profit rise to $589.4 million, compared with $264 million for the first quarter of 1973.

On Monday, Gulf Oil Corp. and Standard Oil of Indiana (Amoco) disclosed first quarter gains more than 75 per cent above the similar period in 1973.

The first-quarter gains come atop similar performances for the oil firms in the last three months of 1973. Of the four majors reporting so far, only Exxon showed a decline from the fourth-quarter profits, while Amoco's net rose 81 per cent.

Corporate profits or earnings are the equivalent of a company's net income after taxes. Previously the oil firms have said a substantial portion of their profits will go toward increased exploration and development of new energy supplies.

On Tuesday the House Commerce

Committee voted to roll back the price of 80 per cent of the domestically produced crude oil and to impose stiffer price regulations on imported oil.

The provision, an amendment to the emergency energy bill being considered, was proposed by Rep. Bob Eckhardt (D-Tex.) who indicated he was acting in part because of the higher earnings.

The amendment, if passed into law, would roll back most domestic crude prices a dollar a barrel from the currently regulated price of $5.25 a barrel. So-called "new" oil, that produced in excess of 1972 levels, would drop from around $10 a barrel to $6.17 a barrel under the provision.

Queried in New York about the latest round of earnings, John C. Sawhill, the newly appointed administrator of the Federal Energy Office, said: "The profits and increases are very large. We will be analyzing them very carefully to see if price increases have led to increased investment, especially in drilling and development rather than in marketing."

Sawhill said he wasn't prepared to discuss whether the profits were "excessive" until he had looked at the figures more carefully.

Figures released by Exxon and Texaco showed increased earnings on a decline in petroleum sales by volume. Exxon, for example, noted a 9 per cent drop in petroleum sales from the previous quarter, while refinery runs fell 7 per cent and gross production of crude oil and natural gas remained constant.

Nixon may get 5 more days on subpoena

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee said Tuesday he expects the panel to go along with President Nixon's request for an additional five days to reply to a subpoena for 42 Watergate tapes.

Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr. (D-N.J.) said he and the ranking Republican on the committee had agreed to the postponement and said "I am quite confident the members of the committee will go along."

Rodino told a news conference the matter will be taken up formally by the committee on Thursday, the day a response to the committee's subpoena is due.

The delay requested by the White House would put off the response until next Tuesday.

At the White House, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren attributed the request to "the pressure of business at the White House and the demands on the President's time."

Rodino said the delay was requested by James D. St. Clair, the President's chief Watergate attorney, in a telephone call Monday to John Doar, chief counsel to the impeachment inquiry.

The chairman said he and Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, the ranking Republican on the committee, instructed Doar to ask St. Clair why at least some of the subpoenaed material could not be furnished on Thursday.

St. Clair told Doar that the President wanted to review all the material at once.

Rodino said St. Clair gave no assurance that all the subpoenaed material would be given to the committee.

Asked about reports that the White House planned to give the panel transcripts rather than tapes, Rodino replied "transcripts would not be satisfactory."

Warren would give no clue as to the likely nature of the eventual reply to the subpoena, saying, "the President has not finally decided on the form and content of the response."

Asked if the request for a delay might not be considered inconsistent with repeated White House calls for a speedy resolution of the impeachment question, Warren said:

"It is consistent with our position and with the President's position to deal responsibly with the House Judiciary Committee and that is what we are doing."

The committee voted 33-3 on April 11 to subpoena tapes it had been seeking since February.

Nixon also faces a second subpoena, with a May 2 deadline, for additional tapes and other materials sought by special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Asked if the President might not also seek an extension of the May 2 deadline, Warren said, "I know of no such request."

Meir successor faces some skeptics as revamping of government begins

JERUSALEM (AP) — Yitzhak Rabin, the soldier-diplomat chosen to replace Premier Golda Meir, began the tricky task of forming a new government for Israel Tuesday amid forecasts that he might fail.

"There is no certainty that a Rabin government will come about," said the influential newspaper Maariv, hours after the ruling Labor party elected the former chief of staff to try to pull bickering political parties together into a coalition cabinet.

"The possibility remains ...that Golda's cabinet will continue running the state's affairs until new elections are held," the politically neutral Maariv said.

Other newspapers praised the 52-year-old retired general, who served five years as ambassador and arms negotiator in Washington. But most political commentators agreed with the independent Haaretz that "he does not have good prospects of forming a government."

The secretary-general of Rabin's Labor Party, however, said the party was resolved to form a cabinet within the three-week deadline. Rabin can get a three-week extension of the deadline from President Ephraim Katzir if he fails to rally a coalition within the allotted 21 days.

To succeed, Rabin must persuade the independent Liberals and the rabbis of the National Religious Party to stay in their present alliance with Labor. But both parties were making rebellious noises and Rabin faced tough bargaining.

Rabin has spelled out none of his policy plans, and officials were making no predictions, but the new leader is known as a dove despite his military past.

1-2-3 what're we singing 4

In recent years there has been a great deal of criticism aimed at our National Anthem. Besides its obvious antiquity many claim that its lyrics represent ideals of violence and war, rather than peace and progress.

"The bombs bursting in air, and the rocket's red glare," point this out. The time has come for America to disclaim her imperialistic attitude, the citizenry know it (public opinion on the Vietnam war proved that), the politicians know it and the world knows it. Why doesn't our National Anthem reflect this overwhelming sentiment?

True, the anthem is rich in history and tradition, but tradition can get silly and inane as this one surely has. To impose a mandatory singing of the national anthem before an athletic event seems to be the kind of thing that should be done in a fascist nation where the people are forced to believe. The audience is forced to sit through the tired singing of the propaganda that is supposed to be America. This is bad enough but the song is hardly representative—adding insult to injury.

True, American heritage is reflected in the anthem. When we were fighting for our independence we needed "the rocket's red glare" to give us "proof that our flag was still there." But we are past all that and we should place ourselves above the nationalistic egomania that plagues us and makes us look crazy to the rest of the world.

If we need a national anthem, and this writer thinks not (what real purpose does it serve?), then surely we can find a better one. We can find a song that more accurately reflects the current ideology of the American people.

Perhaps "America the Beautiful," which seems to compliment the beauty of our land, or Woody Guthrie's "This Land is Your Land" would be more appropriate.

Whatever we decide, we can certainly improve on our current national anthem.

Buy back America for $1

Persons checking the box indicating a donation to the Presidential Election Campaign Fund on their income tax forms may have made a much larger donation than the $1 price indicates. That $1 may do more than simply prevent a recurrence of a Watergate-styled nightmare, it may actually have something to do with a major change in the whole American system of government.

In a Feb. 27 speech, Sen. Edward Kennedy, one of the biggest backers of publicly financed campaigns, raised the question. "Who Really Owns America?"

He said the big contributors to campaign coffers are the actual rulers of the government, and said he saw connections between the energy crisis and the oil industry campaign contributions, between devastating medical problems in the United States and the powerful American Medical Association lobby, between the ineffectiveness of price controls and the contributions of large industrialists, between the breakdown of our foreign service system and the direct sale of ambassadorships for campaign contributions.

Figures seem to reflect Kennedy's theory of ownership. In the latest campaign funding survey taken by the Citizen's Research Committee it was found that 90 per cent of campaign contributions in the last election came from one per cent of the population.

If the Presidential Election Campaign Fund experiment works there may come a time when a candidate may run on his own platform, instead of the platform of the persons funding his campaign. There may be no more pushing of legislation in exchange for contributions.

A candidate would not be forced to make back-alley deals, or be a mouth-piece for the nation's wealthy instead of working for the good of the American public.

Backed by groups such as Common Cause and the League of Women Voters, the campaign contribution fund may equalize access to public office. It could tone down the voice of the wealthy in the making of governmental policies, and bring back the voice of the people in political decisions.

Although the measure still has a long way to go before any real change in the system will be seen—at this time there are no provisions for third-party candidates and it does not apply to congressional elections—the Presidential Election Campaign Fund is definitely a step toward giving America a government of, by and for the People.

It's been a long time coming.

Instructor offers "happiness plan" for the 104

To The Daily Egyptian:

Since the administration appears to be in a bargaining mood, involuntary though it is, how about the following suggestions as they might represent the administration's desire "to make you (the faculty) an offer which you can't afford to refuse"?

Since Cameron West, our Board of Trustees, and our administration insist that nothing less than human (faculty) sacrifices will solve SIU-C's problems, and since they are so anxious to effect these executions that they offer one year's pay as an inducement to the 104 to commit a convenient job suicide, why shouldn't we insist that this offer be opened up to include the entire faculty?

Some of the 104 are eager to accept the offer and go—as quickly as possible. Others among the 104 are tied to this job for a variety of reasons (including a love of the place, a love of the job of teaching the young people here, etc.). Why shouldn't those who want to stay or need to stay here be allowed to let "mercenaries" or "proxies" take their places?

There are many, maybe hundreds, among the non-terminated faculty who would leap at the chance to leave SIU-C with one year's pay as an added inducement.

One might argue that under "equal opportunity" and "fair labor practices" provisions it would be grossly unfair and illegal for the university administration to offer a year's pay to some of the faculty as a bonus to leave and not offer it to the rest of the faculty.

After all, our termination notices state that the university has no dissatisfaction with our teaching (that we are fired solely because of a "financial exigency"—whatever that is) so there is no reason why the 104 should get special and unique considerations not extended to the rest of the faculty.

I think that there would be, with that offer of a year's pay as added inducement, more than enough among the demoralized, frightened and disgusted faculty who would be tickled to death to substitute for those among the 104 who cannot leave conveniently. And some of the surplus of those who volunteer as mercenaries, over and above the number necessary to substitute for those among the 104 who wish to stay here, can be anticipations of Cameron West's threat to make additional cuts in the budget base (faculty) this coming fall and the following fall.

To those who might argue that the university does not have the authority to include the total faculty in its offer there is a simple solution to any technicalities in the way—it's as easy as ABC:

- Faculty not among the 104, wishing to be included in the offer, give their names to Dr. Leasure.
- Dr. Leasure sends them one of his patented "financial exigency" notices of termination, by registered-mail-with-a-return-receipt-requested.
- At the same time the university files a class action suit against the new applicants.

This makes them eligible, along with the 104, for the deal.

Because of all they have gone through the past four months, I believe that those among the 104 who wish to leave SIU-C should be given first chance at the bonus offer—anticipating that there may be hundreds among the rest of the faculty who will want to accept the proposition.

This technique of running a university, never by planning or anticipation but by reaction and quick improvisation, may establish SIU-C as the university to come to, where students and faculty will be stimulated by a I-wonder-what-in-the-hell-they're-going-to-do-next expectation, improving our present totally unacceptable 20.96 to 1 student-faculty ratio to the magic 22 to 1 ideal student-faculty ratio.

Now, wouldn't the foregoing suggestions make everyone happy? Those stay who wish to stay; those leave who wish to leave, clutching their reparations. And no one's fair employment rights or equal opportunity rights are violated!

Letter

Mrs. who?

To the Daily Egyptian:

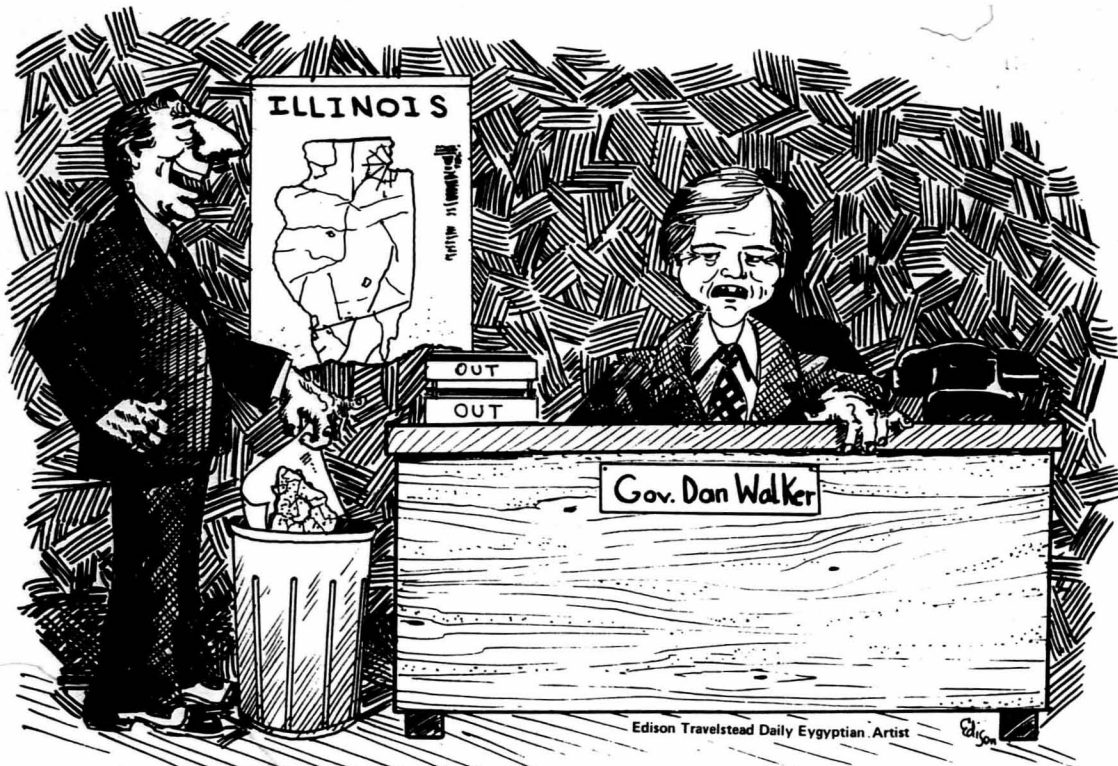

I wish that I could entertain Mr. Bateman, Mr. Crabtree, Mr. Bragg, Mr. Jones, et. al. at a "weenie, beanie and beer bust." Eating, guzzling and passing gas together all evening might lead them to realize that they all put their pants on one leg at a time. Perhaps then they would stop debating my life style in the pages of the DE.

Though I am rarely in agreement with Mr. Bateman and/or Mr. Bragg's views concerning gay life, I thank them for their attempts at defense. As for Mr. Crabtree and Mr. Jones, they are right, gay is NOT good—it's FANTASTIC!

I hope in the future they will follow the sound advice of Mr. Kilduski to "co-exist," also that of Sister Mary Elephant to "Shaddup!" Thank you and goodnight Mrs. Ashworth wherever you are.

Letters

Clearing the clouds, again

To the Daily Egyptian:

The recent debate over fee allocations to the BAC is still clouded in the minds of many. Since my letter printed April 16 may have clouded the issue even more, because of the emotions therein contained, let me once again clearly state the facts and explain the situation so that Mr. Gerald Kilduski, and anyone else concerned can completely comprehend the issues involved.

The members of the BAC, did not and does not and will not begrudge any group or organization their rightful share of Students Activities Funds. In reference to Gay Liberation, they indeed have a right to $250 and to lead their lives according to their own identity and norms. However I have a right to disagree with their life style. I have not and will not attempt to force my values, or norms on this group, or any other group.

As for your question, Mr. Kilduski, "Why is it you (I) can't cope with life?", may I suggest that I and Black People have done a remarkable job of not only coping with life, but surviving in a sick "white world," and maintaining our sanity. After three hundred years of chattel slavery and another hundred years of economic and political slavery and social degradation, we are still alive and kicking, a condition that we intend to maintain. Homosexuality is initially a white value which was, to my knowledge introduced to Africans during slavery. As for your comparison of great black leaders and artists with homosexuals, it is odious at best, and greatness has nothing to do with one's sex life. I hope you understand that.

I repeat we will fight for our share of the pie, and we will not lose our self-respect as BLACK PEOPLE, or BLACK MEN and BLACK WOMEN. And if you truly want to help bring peace and tolerance to this world, and campus, try getting your facts correct and it would behoove you to learn a little more about all Americans during your stay at SIU.

Editorial

No slur intended

Several people have voiced their complaints about an article that appeared in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian concerning crime over the past weekend. The theme that ran through the complaints was that the article threw a false light on Kappa Kappa and other blacks.

There was no intent to blemish any phase of Kappa Kappa, its participants or any other blacks. The story was written from facts gathered from police in the area, and in no way was it intended to damage any reputations or rapport with the DE.

Libertines or libertarians?

To the Daily Egyptian:

I am sometimes puzzled by the workings of the Women's Lib Movement. Questions come to mind. Most especially it is puzzling, when it becomes doubtful, from the attitudes of those involved, as to whether they are libertines or libertarians.

I do not think the Lorek letter of 16 April, aids the cause of humanity, as I think that some aspects of the Women's Lib Movement do not aid the cause of humanity. In saying "woman was more biologically necessary than man," I am led to believe that Lorek feels woman is somehow independent sexually when it comes to survival of the species. In turn, I would ask if she feels this hermaphroditic strain runs throughout The Movement? Human beings are dioecious, which for the human species to exist, female and male are dependent upon one another—it is not one or the other. This means one is no more important, biologically, than the other. And if she is going to juggle X and Y, sounding scientific, well, everyone knows that X is an unknown quantity—maybe that's why men have such problems understanding women since women have double the mystery of the unknown, which leads to their caprice in doing things. While man may be half an unknown, which many women try to capitalize on, at least we can say he has a leg to stand on. However, I do not think this concerns the issue.

Mas, femina are humus

To the Daily Egyptian:

On Barbara Lorek's comments (DE, April 16) about the sexes and humanity in the history of language: I agree, the social questions involved can probably be addressed without recourse to "philology".

Still, some of the etymologies of the speculative words are fascinating. My dictionary tells me "man" (homo sapiens) and "manual" etc. (hand) are from probably different origins (Indo-European "man-1" and "man-2")—yet today on ships and ranches workers are called "hands". Is the species named for its opposing thumb?

"Woman" is not "womb man" but "wife man (person)"; but don't despair, single readers, "wife" originally meant "woman"—that is, "Ms." not "Mrs."

"Human" is no more "man" than "American" is "can". Humans are earthlings, related to "humus". And "humile" by the way.

And "female" is not from "male", nor vice versa. The latter is Latin "masculus", from a mysterious "mas". "Female" has a long history, reaching back through Latin "femina" to an Indo-European root related to suckling young. Would you derive "rusticity" from "city"?

I did notice that signature. I find it almost incredible that from this over-classified world a person can graduate unclassified. While that bespeaks well of not wanting to be categorized, how much better it would be if the body of the Lorek letter, instead of rubbing salt on the wounds we can find, would show that desire not to categorize; show how the understanding that community, and not categories, benefits our being and struggle to be. It is our purpose, after all, to build rather than turn back to chaos the investment which humanity has already made.

WSIU congratulated

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to publicly congratulate Larry Richardson and his colleagues at WSIU Radio for programming the syndication series of the Cleveland and Boston Symphony Orchestras. Their vision and dedication to the highest aesthetic ideals is most refreshing in an area largely bereft of both. No musical experience can transcend the spontaneity and fervor of a live performance, especially that of two of the world's most esteemed orchestras. Thank you WSIU for finally reaching "the big time" and making my life in Carbondale a little more tolerable.

'Mathematical tricks' used to end conference

Noted sociological researcher Paul Lazarsfeld closed the "Mathematics in the Social Sciences" conference with a speech on 'mathematical tricks' used in survey analysis of sociological problems.

Lazarsfeld, professor of sociology at Columbia University and university professor of sociology at the University of Pittsburgh, lectured on "The Casual Analysis of Survey Data."

Speaking Tuesday morning in the Student Center Auditorium, he demonstrated ways to determine essential data from complicated sociological tables.

He showed how tables can be reduced to their essentials through the use of mathematical formulas, and how formulas can be used to eliminate a number of complicated steps in the analysis of data.

Professor of Linguistics at Princeton University, Stanley Peters, opened the Tuesday session with a lecture on the "Logical Analysis of Presupposition and Assertion."

The conference was sponsored by the SIU Graduate School and the Academic Excellence program.

Researcher slated to discuss plant reactions

Ralph Hardy, E.I. DuPont Co. associate research director, will speak at a public seminar at 4 p.m. Wednesday afternoon in the Seminar Room (209) of the Agriculture Building under sponsorship of the plant and soil science department in the School of Agriculture.

Hardy will talk on some key plant biological reactions of certain forms of nitrogen and oxygen. His work with soybeans has received national attention and was the subject of a feature in the April 17 issue of the Wall Street Journal.

A former faculty member of the University of Guelph in Canada, Hardy has been serving in various positions with the DuPont company as a researcher. He received his Ph.D. degree in 1960 from the University of Wisconsin.

A coffee hour at 3:30 p.m. will precede the lecture. The meeting is open to all interested persons.

Business group open to women

Phi Sigma Epsilon, professional business fraternity, voted at its national convention April 5 in Memphis to accept women members.

Three SIU coeds have pledged the SIU chapter so far, Jim Moore, faculty adviser said.

The fraternity is open to all students. Initial dues are $30. The SIU chapter of Phi Sigma Epsilon has 24 members.

Duo pleases with music, showmanship

By Julie Thione
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Just in case anyone who was in the audience at Monday's Celebrity Series presentation is still wondering, Arthur Ferrante is the taller one; Louis Teicher has a rounder face.

Now for all of you who weren't among the near-capacity crowd, the famous piano duo sounded just like their recordings. And that, of course, is very good. But being there was much better than being home with the stereo on since, besides being accomplished musicians, Ferrante and Teicher are good showmen.

That look-alike appearance is one of the steps they have taken to cultivate the idea that they are a "two-man show" and not just "duo-pianists" as they were billed before their rise to success in the early '60s.

"Now even we don't know which one is which," they joke, standing up there with their identical moustaches, haircuts, dark glasses and crushed velvet jackets.

They've been called the Tweedle twins of the concert stage, and they have fun with their audiences. And when they get down to the serious business of their music, nobody really seems to care which is which.

What can be said about their musical ability? They are skilled technicians who have played together for 42 years—since both were six. No sour notes here. Hands reflected in the varnish of their Steinway and Baldwin, one carries the basic tune while the other embellishes it with fancy fingerwork.

Ferrante and Teicher are audience pleasers in the fullest sense of the words. They are, after all, playing the most popular works of some of the most popular modern songwriters, from Richard Rodgers to Paul Simon. They know that when they play medleys from "The Sound of Music" and "Fiddler on the Roof" that the audience will sit back happily with the familiar words going through their minds.

The movies hits, including "Exodus" and the theme from "The Apartment" (which launched their non-classical career) were enjoyable with their quickly identifiable Ferrante-and-Teicher arrangements. They played a medley of 11 Oscar also-rans, too, ranging from "Goldfinger" to "Hello Dolly."

Particularly refreshing were their renditions of the thunderous "Ritual Firedance" and highlights from the opera "Carmen." The duo—and their audience—had fun with the prepared piano version of their original composition "African Echoes." By artfully plunking the piano strings, beating the wood and (even) playing the keyboard, they simulated drums, xylophone and harpsichord to produce throbbing jungle sounds.

Unlike their pianist counterparts John and Richard Contiguglia or Arthur Gold and Robert Fizdale, Ferrante and Teicher have opted for the dinner music scene. There's no need for them to sing along when they play "Matchmaker, matchmaker make me a match" or "If I were a rich man." And who's to slight them? They have said that they don't regret their switch from the classical sounds they still enjoy.

Neither do the audiences responsible for those 15 gold records.

Woman killed in auto collision

A Carbondale woman was killed and her husband injured Tuesday morning on Illinois 13 at the Penney's entrance when their car, a garbage truck and another auto collided, Carbondale police said.

Emma Hunt, 62, of RR 8, was killed and her husband Paul was injured when the refuse truck driven by Eldon Williams, 40, RR 3, and a car driven by Kevin Beals, 19, an SIU student, hit the Hunt car as it made a left turn in front of them, police said.

Mrs. Hunt was pronounced dead on arrival at Doctors Hospital. Her husband is listed in fair condition.

Police said the Hunt vehicle was westbound on Illinois 13 when it turned left to get into the Penney's lot. They added that the Hunt vehicle was hit simultaneously on the passenger side by the eastbound truck and the 1969 Chevrolet.

Mrs. Hunt was on the passenger side.

Two SIU offices change locations

The office of the Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections is now located in Faner Hall, Fourth floor. The office was recently moved from 506 S. Graham, College Square A.

The telephone number, 453-5701, remains the same.

The office of Institutional Research and Studies is now located in General Classrooms Building, Room 134A, it was announced by Loren Jung, director. The offices have moved from Forest Hall.

Audubon Society wades in

NEW YORK (AP)—A government program to clear river banks of trees and plants like cottonwood and mesquite is being attacked by the National Audubon Society as ill-conceived and ham-fisted.

The theory is that killing such vegetation will keep it from using up water that might be used otherwise for irrigation.

Electronic music featured Thursday night in Shryock

By Dave Stearns
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A synthesis of the media will occur at 8 p.m. Thursday in Shryock Auditorium, via EAR, which stands for the Electronic Arts Review.

The program consists of dances by Southern Repertory Dance Theater director Lonny Gordon, pieces by students Bryce Robbley and Phil Loarie—in addition to pieces by nationally known composers such as Lukas Foss and an award winning film by Frank Miller with musical score by Peter Lewis. Both Lewis and Miller are faculty members at the University of Iowa, and the film that will be shown on Tuesday's program is the award-winning "Forests."

Other films on the program will be "Focuses" by Frank Paine and "Soup" by Dave Gregory—both SIU students.

Robbley will present two of his own compositions—specifically "Jelo for Cello and Tape" (with James Stroud on cello) and "Dybbuk"—meaning "spirit" in Hebrew. "Dybbuk" is scored for, among other things, a Baldwin electric piano with contact microphones underneath the strings, three string instruments, percussion and a theramin.

"A theramin is an early electronic instrument that consists mainly of a brass rod," Robbley said. "You never touch it, you only put your hand close to it, changing the volume with your right hand and pitch with your left."

Used with the theramin will be an echoplex, a device that, according to Robbley, "reintegrates any sound input you put through it."

Although this primitive electronic instrument is not widely used, Alan Oldfield, associate professor of composition says, "It probably takes as much practice to play as a violin."

With Oldfield defining electronic music as "sounds reproduced electronically," Robbley said the main fascination this media holds for him over others is that "anything your imagination can devise can be expressed in electronic music," he said.

The performance of music in this medium means moving all of the equipment over to Shryock Auditorium, and making sure all of the circuitry is patched with all of the mixes and outputs working.

And Robbley concluded, "EAR is not kicking around ideas about giving the audience naked dolls or raw meat."

So the music speaks for itself. The concert is open to the public and free of charge.

Marketing group plans business meeting, rush

The American Marketing Association (AMA) will hold its quarterly membership rush and business meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Ohio River Room.

STC students, area legislators to attend rally

Students in the SIU School of Technical Careers will hold a rally Thursday to celebrate moving to the campus from World War II-era wooden buildings near Carverville.

The STC Student Relocation Committee is sponsoring the event to demonstrate student support of plans to move the school to Carbondale, according to dental laboratory technology student Tim Toal of St. Louis.

Acting SIU President Hiram Lesar and area legislators have indicated that they will attend the rally, scheduled for noon. It will be held on the front lawn of the VTI campus, located on old Route 13 south of Carverville.

Gov. Dan Walker has included funds in his 1975 budget for planning a new building for the school on the Carbondale campus. Several programs are scheduled to move temporary quarters there.

The school's current quarters on the VTI campus comprise the administration complex of the Illinois Ordnance Plant, constructed in 1943. The Student Relocation Committee has been pointing up the fact that many of the buildings are unsafe.

Open House set for Skill Center

An "Awareness Day" open house will be held May 23 at the Manpower Skill Center operated near Marion by the SIU School of Technical Careers.

The event is being sponsored by the General Manpower Advisory Committee to acquaint the public and area officials with the Center and its services, according to Chairman Robert O'Brien of Harrisburg.

The Skill Center, located on Route 148 south of Crab Orchard Refuge headquarters, last year provided occupational training to 453 persons from 18 Southern Illinois counties.

Topics to be discussed for spring activities include a carnival booth, a guest speaker, organizing a pontoon party, the annual spring picnic, and recruiting to help aid Miller's Beer in an advertising promotion.

Some of the events highlighting the past school year included the Holiday Ho-Down last November, which sponsored a promotion for Schlitz Beer, a talk from the VP of Personnel from Turnstyle on a revolutionary marketing concept, a trip to the Schlitz Breweries in Memphis, and a conference and seminar on marketing in St. Louis.

The AMA is a student organization open to people of all majors interested in becoming aware of the dynamic field of marketing and how it affects society.

Annual membership fee is $5, and spring members will be paid up through the next school year. For further information contact John Pietrzak at 549-2995.

Wife of HEW chief will speak here at volunteer lunch

Jane Weinberger, former U.S. Army Corps member and now active with volunteer activities, will speak at the third annual Volunteer Services, Inc. luncheon from noon to 3 p.m. Wednesday in Student Center Ballroom B.

Ms. Weinberger works in Washington, D.C. with Project Hope, senior citizens, a child health center, a hospital auxiliary, library board, Heart Association and a mental health association.

She is the wife of Caspar Weinberger, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Volunteers who have served the area in the past year will be honored at the luncheon.

Pulitzer-winning columnist to speak at journalism fete

Pulitzer prize winning columnist Ronald Powers will be guest speaker at the Southern Illinois Editorial Association (SIEA)—SIU School of Journalism Dinner scheduled for Friday at the Student Center.

Powers, television columnist for the Chicago Sun-Times, will talk on "The Television Column Comes of Age."

A highlight of the dinner will be the presentation of the "1974 Journalism Alumnus of the Year" and "Golden Em" master editor awards.

Gretchen Schmitz, editor of the Art Dealer and Framer Magazine will receive the Alumnus award. The award is presented to a graduate of the SIU School of Journalism who, in the opinion of the journalism faculty, has achieved success in his area.

Decision delayed on granting funds to Teen Center

The Carbondale City Council has postponed a decision on granting funds to the Carbondale Teen Center Board until May 13.

Mayor Neal Eckert said he was told the board would not be requesting funds for the upcoming fiscal year. He said he was surprised when the request came up.

Mrs. Lillian H. Loneragan, secretary for the board, said the money that the board is requesting is for programs and not for salaries. She said the paid staff has been replaced by volunteers.

Mrs. Loneragan said the City of Carbondale is the only source of funds that the board can approach.

The council asked Mrs. Loneragan to submit an official letter, with a complete budgetary breakdown, before the May 13 meeting.

SIU's Mack and Mate to be named at Player's Ball

A Player's Ball, with the naming of SIU's "Mack" and "Mack's Mate" of the year will be held Saturday at the Student Center, Ballroom D.

The ball, sponsored by Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, is being held in conjunction with the crowning of the fraternity's sweetheart, according to Charles Dehart, social chairman.

Dehart said the fraternity will also name the most popular sorority and social club in addition to giving an award for the best performance of the year by a fraternity, sorority or social club.

The winners in each category,

'Last Summer' drama to be performed

The Southern Players will present the Tennessee Williams drama "Suddenly Last Summer" at 8 p.m. May 3, 4 and 5 in the University Theater.

"Suddenly Last Summer" is the story of a young woman and her experience with horror. The sole witness to the murder of her cousin, she is subjected to the shocking and almost inhuman efforts of her family to prevent her from revealing the truth.

Emission Control Corp. formed

Firm will back exhaust reactor

By Gary Houy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Everett Shelton, automotive mechanics instructor at the School of Technical Careers, has found a backer for his "Mark 16 exhaust collector reactor."

Now on a one-year leave of absence from his job, Shelton said he has formed the Emission Control Corp. with the support of the president of a major Southern Illinois corporation. A representative of the corporation preferred that its name be withheld at the present time.

"I've had a lot of offers to back me," Shelton said Tuesday. "In fact, I had one just this morning."

Shelton said the corporation president bought one-half interest in the development of the device. He said he could not say how much money was involved in the deal, but said he had told the man they would need $10 million "to get off the ground."

The Mark 16 device, used as an emission control on automobile exhaust systems, easily meets 1975 emissions standards and boosts gasoline mileage, Shelton said.

Shelton said he began working on the device in 1958, experimenting in his basement on nights and weekends and "just fooling around."

The collector reactor consists of porous ceramic disks which "collect and retain" hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide and most nitrous oxides. "I found something that worked and devised a means of installing it," Shelton said. He said the temperature involved in burning the exhaust residue is "less than you might expect."

Shelton has since developed a form of the Mark 16 designed to control emissions from smoke stacks of industrial plants. He said two of these devices were tested last week and all tests proved "satisfactory." The smokestack device "was developed from the type of device used to break down ore in gold mines out West," Shelton said. Both the automobile exhaust device and the smokestack device are patented, he said.

"It will take two to three years for these to really get off the ground," Shelton said.

The representative of the corporation said tests on the smokestack device are "very inconclusive" since they were taken on "one-tenth of one per cent of the gas out of a boiler."

"But the data we have found, especially with the smokestack emission device, is very favorable," he said. "We're at the research and development stage right now. It could solve a lot of problems or it could be worth nothing."

The representative said members of the corporation had met with "people in the power industry" and they were "generally enthused about the possibilities" of the smokestack device.

He said the device works on a principle similar to that of the auto device. Porcelain ceramic disks are contained in a metal canister and a "scrubber" using water is installed in the smokestack.

"It takes all the sulphur dioxide out of the smoke," he said.

Presently, the corporation is "negotiating to find a plant" to install the device for more accurate testing. The corporation will have more major news about both devices "in two or three weeks," the representative said.

Campus Briefs

John P. Moncur, chairman of the Department of Speech Pathology and Audiology (SP and A) was a participant in a regional meeting sponsored by the State Department of Public Health on "Planning For Outreach Services," held in Hueston Woods State Park, April 8 through 10.

Moncur presented a history of the supportive personnel movement in SP and A. He served as a group leader for the work conference and edited and presented the results of work sessions under his guidance to the group as a whole. Outreach services were defined as "those services needed by the public and not currently available."

The purpose of the conference was to identify the service needed and to develop models for their delivery. The group was also charged with the development of a plan to implement these services throughout various states.

The American Personnel and Guidance Association and its eleven separate Divisions met in New Orleans, April 5 to 11. The Association is a 35,000-member Association of professionals who offer counseling and human development services in a variety of educational and social institutional settings. Approximately 9,000 persons attended this convention.

Michael K. Alterkruse serves on the governing Board of the Association and was in attendance. He reports that the major thrust of this year's conference was attention to career education and career development with a special emphasis on military careers. This convention afforded the approximately 9,000 attendees an opportunity to improve their professional practice by learning of current improvements in practice and materials available for use of counselors.

A poem edited by David M. Vieth, professor of English at SIU, has been included in the newly revised Third Edition of The Norton Anthology of English Literature, published by W. W. Norton and Company, New York, 1974. The Norton Anthology is currently the most popular text used for survey courses in English literature in American colleges and universities.

The poem is "The Disabled Debauchee" by John Wilmot, Earl of Rochester. Vieth's edition of the Complete Poems of Rochester was published by the Yale University Press in 1968.

Vieth is the author or editor of four books and numerous articles on Rochester and other English authors of the late seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries.

Valley holds secret of life

CHICAGO (AP)—Octogenarian farmers are not considered extraordinary in the Vilcabama Valley in Ecuador.

Science Year, the World Book Science Annual, reports that more than 71 per cent of the area's people are over 80. This figure compares with only one per cent who are 80 or over throughout the rest of Ecuador and less than 2 per cent achieving that age in the United States.

The adult diet in Vilcabama is extremely low in calories—about 1,700 per day.

Hillel Foundation to celebrate 26 years of Israeli freedom

By Charlotte Jones
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Hillel Foundation is planning to host an Israeli Independence Celebration beginning Friday in honor of the 26th anniversary of Israel's independence.

The celebration will begin with Friday evening services at Temple Beth Jacob followed by a presentation of slides taken in Israel where Mickey Chusiv. Chusiv recently returned from Israel where he worked as a volunteer.

A street party featuring Coal Kitchen is scheduled for Sunday evening in front of Hillel, 715 S.

Aid to mentally retarded

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Hockey League and its 16 member teams will again sponsor the International Floor Hockey Tournament to be held in conjunction with the Canadian Special Olympics for the Mentally Retarded. The event will be held in Winnipeg, Canada, June 13-15.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, says that each team in the NHL will fully equip each team and will provide all transportation, meals and lodging for the children. In addition, a National Hockey League player will serve as coach for each team.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in a headline in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian that the Southern Illinois Special Olympics will be held May 19. The correct date is May 10.

University. Filafel (fried chickpea balls) and pita bread, similar to English muffins, will be served.

A party is scheduled for Saturday, May 4 at Eaz-N Coffeehouse. Laura Brown and Sharon Fischmar will sing Israeli folk songs. Jewish soul food will be served.

Documentaries and travel films of Israel will be shown May 7 at 7 p.m. at Hillel.

A yard sale is set for May 11 and 12 at 405 W. College. Persons with merchandise for the sale should call 457-7279.

More than $100 worth of prizes donated by Illinois Avenue merchants will be raffled off during the two-week celebration. Tickets are 25 cents and will be available at all celebration events.

The celebration committee also is

Women's music featured Friday

A program of women's music will be presented from 8 to 10 p.m., Friday, at the Women's Center, 404 W. Walnut.

The program will be free and is open to both men and women. It will feature local singers, Karyne Pritikin and Laura Brown, doing songs by, for, and about women.

The songs will focus partly on feminist songs and songwriters and partly on popular music written by men and women about women and their lives.

The program is co-sponsored by the Feminist Action Coalition, a campus feminist group.

For further information, call the Center at 549-4215.

planning a weekend "Hechalutz outing" (camping trip). A date is to be announced.

The celebration, in part, is to raise money for the Israeli Emergency Fund. The fund pays expenses of immigrants to Israel—especially immigrants from the Soviet Union, said Chark Dunn of the celebration planning committee. He added: "No money goes to the war."

For information persons may call Hillel (457-7279). Volunteers are needed to help with the celebration, Ms. Dunn said.

ISU professor will be guest at music clinic

Eunice Boardman, visiting professor of music education at Illinois State University, will be a guest clinician at SIU Friday, said Catherine McHugh, professor of music education.

"The clinic, although primarily intended for music education students, is open to area music teachers interested in hearing a dynamic presentation of a practical workshop on comprehensive musicianship," Miss McHugh said.

The workshop will deal with comprehensive musicianship techniques as applied to performing groups. The morning session, 8:30 to 11 a.m., will focus on the secondary school. The afternoon session, from 1 to 3 p.m., will deal with these techniques applied to the elementary school.

Miss Boardman (in private life, Mrs. Delmar C. Meske), professor of music education at Wichita State University for 15 years, has served as clinician, lecturer, workshop director, and curriculum consultant in more than 30 states.

She is co-author of three books: "Musical Growth in the Elementary Schools," "Exploring Music," and "Individualization in the Music Classroom," the last to be published this spring.

Flying Salukis will show movie on 'Silver Skies'

The film, "Silver Skies" will be shown by the Flying Saluki Club at 7 p.m., Wednesday, at the Southern Illinois Airport.

The regular business meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. On the agenda will be a discussion of an informal air meet, final details of a carwash to be held at Penney's May 4, and final arrangements for a picnic trip.

A door prize of one hour of C-150 time will be given. There will be free donuts and coffee.

For further information, call Don Moderow at 453-2882 or Tim Wiltener at 453-4746.

IT'S TIME TO REFORM CAMPAIGN FINANCING

John W. Gardner, Chairman
Common Cause
Former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare

"Wouldn't it be great if you didn't have to take a single dime from anybody?" said Senator Philip Hart of Michigan. He had in mind the uncomfortable, sometimes degrading, experiences that political candidates have when they go hat-in-hand to potential donors for contributions.

The costs of political campaigns have gone sky-high. And monied special interests are always glad to meet those costs in behalf of the candidate. The inevitable result has been corruption, scandal and public mistrust of the political process.

Today in most districts and states, candidates can't run for public office unless they are rich, or unless they are willing to put themselves under obligation to sources of funds. That isn't the kind of country we started out to be.

There are honest contributors who give out of conviction, and there are honest politicians who don't repay gifts with political favors. But let's face it: most large political gifts are made with the intent to buy influence, buy votes, buy politicians.

The first principle of free self-government is accountability of government to the citizen. Elections are the chief means through which citizens enforce that accountability. But if the winning candidate feels that his first obligation is to his big campaign donors, public accountability is destroyed.

Here are some of the necessary ingredients of reform.

- 1) There must be low ceilings on individual or committee gifts.
- 2) There must be limits on spending — although these must not be set too low or they will handicap challengers.
- 3) There must be full public disclosure of all gifts and expenditures. One of the most powerful forces for clean government ever discovered is the light of day.
- 4) There must be an independent enforcement commission with subpoena powers and the power to go to court. It is shocking but true that no federal campaign financing law has ever been seriously enforced by the Justice Department.

Many are now beginning to see that there is one further necessary ingredient if we are to have a responsible and competitive political system — namely, an element of public financing in campaigns.

Money for campaigns need not come totally and exclusively from public funds. The bill recently debated in the Senate permits a role for money from private sources, although it places a ceiling on the size of gifts. It encourages small private contributions by providing that they will be matched up to $100 each with public funds at the primary level.

No candidate in the primaries will receive any federal matched funds unless he or she has demonstrated the ability to raise small private gifts up to a specific threshold amount. This will screen out frivolous candidates or candidates with no constituency.

There are legitimate questions as to the mechanics of public financing, but these questions can be dealt with. The real question is whether we intend to put behind us once and for all a system of campaign financing in which money can buy political outcomes.

There is much more to do. And the time to do it is now. The American people are tired of being bilked and manipulated. It's time to give this country back to its people. For additional information, write Common Cause, 2030 M St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

A's tripped by Indians

CLEVELAND (AP)—Gaylord Perry scattered eight hits and Charlie Spikes slammed a two-run double in the seventh inning, carrying the Cleveland Indians to a 2-1 victory over the A's Tuesday.

Spikes' two-out double broke up a scoreless pitching duel between Perry and Oakland's Jim "Catfish" Hunter, who went the distance for the A's and allowed just three hits.

Cleveland's Jack Brohamer walked to lead off the seventh and moved to second on Buddy Bell's sacrifice bunt. After John Ellis struck out, Chris Chambliss was intentionally walked, then Spikes foiled A's Manager Alvin Dark's strategy by lacing a long double to left center. The hit extended Spikes' consecutive game hitting streak to 13.

'Hooked...on Dreams' water ballet to light Pulliam Pool this weekend

By Kenneth Pilarski
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The Aquaettes, SIU's synchronized swimming team, will present their annual water ballet at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday at Pulliam Pool. Admission to the show will be 50 cents.

This is the 13th year for the Aquaettes water show. The theme of this year's show is those series of images and flights of fancy known as dreams. The show is entitled "Hooked...on Dreams."

The show will run the gamut from the beauty and untold mystery of the universe to the possession of one's body by the Devil.

"Hooked...on Dreams" will feature eight numbers and last about an hour. The show will open with "Soldiers on Parade," number reminiscent of "The March of the Wooden Soldiers" in "Babes in Toyland." It will be performed by five female members of the Aquaettes.

Seven male and female members of the YMCA synchronized swimming class will perform a number called "Bedtime." The highlight of the show will be a number entitled "Constellations." This routine is performed as a suite, composed of three short pieces, called "Sunset," "Evening Star" and "Sunrise."

"Sunrise" and "Sunset" will be dance numbers performed on the deck of the pool by the Southern Repertoire Company. During the "Evening Star" sequence, performed in the water, the lights in Pulliam Pool will be turned down low. The swimmers will be illuminated by strings of lights on their leotards. They will be representing the stars that abound in the heavens.

Pia Raggi will perform a solo based on the diving and swimming movements of a sea serpent. Jeri Fox and Debi Marlack will represent the frightening aspects of dreams as they perform a routine called "Possession," which depicts possession by the Devil. To help create the proper mood, the music from "The Exorcist" will accompany the routine.

Ann Darling and Ginger Snyder, both of the YMCA synchronized swimming class, will perform a duet entitled "Chimney Sweeps."

The next to the last number will be the men's and women's swim team comedy number. This routine, featuring some slapstick water high jinks, will be performed by Marie Godette, Candy Miller, Kathy Kincaid, Paul Schultz and Steve Ruddell.

The show's finale will consist of formation swimming with everyone spelling out SIU with lighted candles while in the water.

Narration will accompany the acts and between some of the performances, a lecture will be given explaining some of the intricate elements of synchronized swimming.

The Aquaettes are made up of volunteers and are open to all male and female undergraduates and graduates with intermediate swimming ability.

Salukis seek to tie record, travel to Western Kentucky

"These are two teams with a lot of respect for each other," Western Kentucky sports publicist Ed Gizen said of his school and the SIU Salukis. "We always look forward to playing them."

Western Kentucky will have a chance to halt SIU's 18-game win streak Wednesday when the Salukis travel south to face the Hilltoppers in a 1 p.m. doubleheader. SIU's record is 19 straight victories.

The last meeting between the two schools was in 1970 when the Salukis won, 11-4, in the first game of a doubleheader and lost the second game, 9-8.

The Hilltoppers, 17-8, have had their schedule disrupted by rainouts and, in a doubleheader split Saturday, were eliminated from their conference race.

Batting .300 as a team, Western Kentucky's offense is led by centerfielder Steve Keck, .408, and utility man Mike Grubb, .375. Gizen said the Hilltoppers pitching assignments would not be announced until game time.

The Salukis, 25-5, are expected to go with either Ron Hodges, Jim Bokelmann or Ray Huelmsman.

Handball meet

The Office of Recreation and Intramurals is now registering persons for the men's intramural handball tournament. Deadline for entering is 5 p.m. Friday, May 3. Tournament play is scheduled to start Monday, May 6 and run through Thursday, May 9.
