Carter taps Muskie as Secretary of State

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter bypassed the diplomatic establishment Tuesday and in a surprise choice said he will nominate Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine to head a State Department torn by the resignation of Cyrus R. Vance.

Carter made the nationally broadcast announcement at the White House flanked by Vance, Acting Secretary Warren Christopher, national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and Vice President Walter F. Mondale. Muskie's wife, Jane, stood beside her husband as the president presented him.

In response to questions, Muskie declined to endorse the presidential decision that led to Vance's protest resignation on Monday, saying discussion of the failed attempt to rescue the American hostages held in Tehran would have to await lengthy briefings.

"I don't think it's appropriate to undertake a review of the past," the one-time Democratic presidential candidate said.

Reaction from Capitol Hill to the surprising announcement was generally favorable.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill called his fellow New Englander "an able public servant capable of doing any job that comes along in the government."

"Foreign affairs has been a lifelong avocation of his; he has served on the Foreign Relations Committee and contributed greatly in that field when he ran on the Democratic ticket in 1968," O'Neill said.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., praised Muskie for his "courage, ability and keen foresight" and said Muskie

"proved himself to be statesmanlike in more than two decades in this body."

The choice came as a surprise. The man who had been widely considered the frontrunner for the job was Warren Christopher, deputy secretary of state who was named acting secretary when Vance resigned after an unsuccessful fight to dissuade Carter from launching a commando raid to free the American hostages in Tehran.

Carter held the secretary's handwritten letter of resignation on his desk until after the military rescue attempt failed last week.

In response to questions about the aborted rescue attempt which led to Vance's resignation, Muskie issued a statement saying, "I believe the president had the authority and the responsibility to explore the feasibility of a rescue mission, to develop it as an option and to carry it out at such time as his best judgment dictated."

"Secretary Vance apparently disagreed. I respect his view, as do all Americans," Muskie said. "But I believe most Americans also understand and support the president's decision."

"We share the grief of the families of the soldiers who died in Iran. And we regret that the rescue failed. We do not regret the attempt," he said.

"After all, it was a response to kidnapping and blackmail. We cannot rule out the use of any appropriate means which might end the confrontation and to bring sanity back to Iran."

Muskie, 68, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee and a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, was catapulted to national attention in 1968 when he was picked as Hubert H. Humphrey's vice presidential running mate. Muskie quickly won the respect of his party as a voice of reason in a politically turbulent year that saw the assassination of Sen. Robert Kennedy and disintegration of the Democratic party over the Vietnam war.

While the Humphrey-Muskie ticket lost, Muskie became his party's standard bearer out of power and was considered a shoo-in for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972. However, his campaign collapsed after the early primaries and a tearful speech in which he denounced attacks on him and his wife by the Manchester Union Leader newspaper.

While Muskie long has had a reputation for seeking the middle road on controversial issues, he is reputed to have a temper, which would contrast with Vance's quiet, even-handed approach to foreign policy.

His confirmation, virtually assured by his 22 years as a member of the Senate, would mean both of Carter's top foreign policy advisers are of Polish origin.

The other, national security aide Zbigniew Brzezinski, was widely regarded as Vance's chief competitor for the president's ear on foreign affairs issues.

Administration sources said Tuesday that Brzezinski was never in serious contention for Vance's job.

Brzezinski is considered more strident and anti-Soviet than Vance, who was often known to argue for moderation and conciliation.

Director of code enforcement supports student tenant union

By Karen Gullo
Staff Writer

The director of the city code enforcement office threw his support behind the formation of a student tenant union Tuesday and said such an organization may help solve more student housing problems.

"There is a need for a student tenant union," John Yow, director of the city agency which monitors compliance with Carbondale's housing standards, said.

"A few years ago there was a tenant union on campus, and we worked closely with them clearing up many student housing matters," he said.

Yow said he hopes students will support the referendum to establish a student tenant union that will be on student election ballots Wednesday. The union, as outlined by the Student Health Policy Board, would work with tenants and the Carbondale Code Enforcement office to enforce housing health and safety standards.

Although students filed two-thirds of the 113 housing complaints made at the city's code enforcement office since last Aug., Yow said many students say they won't file complaints about inadequate housing to a student tenant union," he said.

"Students may feel easier making complaints about inadequate housing to a student tenant union," he said.

The number of housing complaints has decreased during the past few years, and Yow said that may be because violations are not being reported. However, he said the decrease could also be attributed to the "Systematic Housing Inspection Program." Under the program, 1,280 houses and trailers, 700 of them rental units, were inspected for compliance with housing code standards. Yow said health and safety violations can be detected before complaints are made.

But he stressed that "it's important for students to report housing problems."

"We can't help if students don't let us know about a problem," he said. "They pay good money and are entitled to a good place to live."

Yow said he knows students' have complained about the amount of time it takes to correct a housing violation. Since the office must notify the owner of the problem before anything can be done, Yow said the enforcement process "takes time."

"We have more trouble contacting landlords than students do," said Yow. "Landlords know when we are trying to contact them, it's about a violation."

2 referenda on ballot, polls to open at 8 a.m.

By Charity Gould
Staff Writer

Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Wednesday for the Undergraduate Student Organization elections and the student trustee election.

Students will also have the chance to vote on a referendum dealing with the establishment of a student tenant union and a referendum dealing with SIU-C's Illinois Public Interest Research Group.

The student tenant union referendum, sponsored by the Student Health Policy Board, asks students if they would support a $1 refundable fee to form a student-directed tenant union which would work with students, the Carbondale Housing Code Commission and the student's attorney to enforce health and safety codes in non-university off-campus housing.

The IPIRG referendum asks students if they would support a $2 voluntary fee to support the student-directed research and advocacy organization.

Only undergraduate students can vote for USO president, vice president and senators. The whole student body including undergraduates, graduates, and professional students can vote for student trustee and on the referendums.

USO presidential candidates are Paul Matalonis, Kurt Boyle, Phil Eberlin, Tom O'Malley, Glen Ritter and Greg Materna.

Chris Blankenship and Mark Michalic are the two student trustee candidates.

There are two senate seats open for Thompson Point, three seats open for East Campus, and six seats each for East and West Sides.

Polling places include Trueblood, Grinnell and Lentz Halls, the Student Center, Woody Hall, Morris Library, Communications Building, Health Service, Lawson and Technology I.

Students must have their student identification cards and fee statements to vote.

Illinois legislature seeks replacement for Hambletonian

By Diana Penner
Staff Writer

The Du Quoin State Fair may get a financial boost from the Illinois legislature as part of a drive to replace the famed Hambletonian with an equally attractive harness race. But it could be a close race.

Although the proposal to create a replacement race and allocate state funds to help support the race, submitted by Sen. Kenneth Buzbee, D-Carbondale, has been approved by two senate committees, there are indications the bill may meet opposition when presented to the full Senate.

The bill has been approved by the Senate Rules Committee and the Senate Agriculture, Conservation and Energy Committee. A spokesman at Buzbee's Springfield office said Monday the bill will probably be supported by Southern Illinois and Chicago-area legislators when it is presented to the full Senate, but backing for the bill by legislators from other areas in the state will probably be scant.

The Du Quoin State Fair has been the home of the Hambletonian for 23 years. Last fall, the Hambletonian Society decided to move the race to Meadowlands in New Jersey as of 1981, despite efforts by the state and the fair to keep the race in Du Quoin by increasing the purse. The fair was purchased in March 1979 by Saad Jabr, an Iraqi businessman who lives in Southern Illinois.

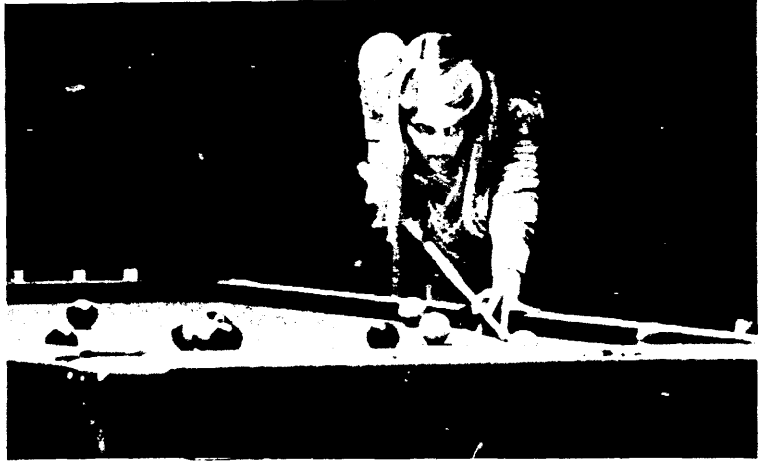

Kurt Green, director of public relations for the fair, said that because the new race would be owned by the Du Quoin State Fair, there would be no possibility of the race being moved in the future.

"Although replacing the Hambletonian is like trying to replace the Kentucky Derby or the Indy 500, we hope to attract the same kind of crowd and give the new race the same kind of identity," Green said.

The state funds called for in Buzbee's bill would come from para-mutual receipts generated from bets placed at race tracks in the state. The purse for the replacement race for three-year-old trotters is to be $500,000, making it the second largest harness racing purse in the country.

About $300,000 of the purse would come from state funds, Green said. The remainder of the purse would come from nominal and sustaining payments made by owners of horses entered in the race, Green said.

Other state funds called for in the bill would be distributed among races on the Du Quoin Grand Circuit and the Springfield Grand Circuit. As the replacement race at the Du Quoin Fair becomes more established, the percentage of funds earmarked for the main race from the total state monies available would decrease and greater percentages allocated for the other races, Green said.

City Council informally approves $1.3 million block grant request

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

City officials say they don't expect any problems in obtaining funds to complete the planned revitalization projects in neighborhoods in the northeast and parts of northwest Carbondale during the next year. However, Assistant City Manager for Community Development Don Monty told council members that competition for the funds in future years will be stiff.

Council members approved a $1.3 million request Monday night for the Third Year Small Cities Community Development Block Grant. The application will be sent to the Department of Housing and Urban Development after a second public hearing is held and the council formally approves the application. The second public hearing is scheduled at 7 p.m. May 5 in the Council Chambers.

607 E. College St.

The funds will be used to construct new water and sewer lines on West Chestnut Street; insulate, rehabilitate, inspect or demolish houses; and provide health and child care services.

HUD invited Carbondale to send in three, one-year grant applications in 1977, after a pre-application form was approved. The pre-application form outlined the programs Carbondale planned for the three years.

During the first year of funding, the city received $500,000 and last year Carbondale was allocated $850,000, according to Monty. The money was used on the North Central Neighborhood Strategy project to "maintain viable residential areas in an older part of the city."

Although Congress already appropriated funds for this year's grants, Monty told council members that competition for the grants would be stiff in the next year.

Carbondale must submit another pre-application to HUD in October in order to be considered for grants in the next three years. Monty explained that many other large cities in the state will be applying at this time, since their current funding will run out the same time as Carbondale's. Smaller cities have also gained experience in writing grants in the last few years, Monty said.

"Competition will be stiff, but I think we can get funded if there is money there to be had," Monty said about the federal funding program for non-metropolitan cities.

ERA demonstrators rally as vote nears

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The ragtag fleet of the "Freedom Flotilla" found smooth seas Tuesday and immigration officials braced for new waves of refugees reaching the Florida shores with at least 1,250 boats loading in Cuba.

"We are preparing for what we expect to be a flood of refugee-laden vessels headed for Key West," Coast Guard Cmdr. Samuel Dennis said.

The first boat to arrive since a weekend storm tied up at Key West shortly after noon Tuesday with 58 refugees aboard.

Weeping refugees streamed off the 39-foot commercial fishing boat "Roadrunner," telling of how a Cuban soldier who tried to swim out to their ship to join them was caught by other soldiers and viciously beaten.

Officials await new flood of refugees

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — About 250 singing, clapping supporters of the federal Equal Rights Amendment demonstrated in the capital Tuesday, as legislators prepared for a committee vote on the proposed amendment on Wednesday.

The demonstrators gathered in an assembly room to hear Sonia Johnson, of Sterling, W.Va., a Mormon who says she was excommunicated from her church because of her outspoken support of ERA.

Mrs. Johnson told the demonstrators that "God is not sexist." She said she reached that conclusion after her so-called "housewife to heretic" journey when she said she came to terms with God on the question of equality for women.

Meanwhile, a group of clerics calling itself the Inter-Religious Committee to Stop ERA, said at a news conference that despite the rally by ERA supporters, the religious community was not totally in favor of the proposed amendment's ratification.

Selection process reveals apathy

By Paula Donner Walter
Staff Writer

Apathy is a word often used to describe the impassiveness of people, or their general lack of involvement in current events and issues. While the word is often misused, there is not better word than apathetic to describe the majority of faculty, staff and students of this University toward the selection of the next SIU-C president.

Before, during and after past search processes, the campus has echoed with cries of disgust with candidate credentials and of secret deals within the Board of Trustees.

Yet, given the chance for some input—however minimal it may be—faculty, staff and students remain apathetic toward the future of this campus and its future leader.

This particular presidential search has been impressively clean, thus far. Given a total of 80 applicants, including at least three from within our own campus community, the committee narrowed the list to five outstanding, diversified, external candidates. That list has now been narrowed to four, after last week's withdrawal of candidate Gene M. Nordby, vice president for business and finance at Georgia Institute of Technology.

The committee has scheduled on-campus visits with each candidate, including two public question-answer sessions. These sessions, which are scheduled in two-hour blocks one beginning at 9:30 a.m., another at 2 p.m., are held in the Student Center Auditorium.

The sessions are designed to allow the campus and community to meet the candidates and bombard them with challenging and pointed questions. Although one might argue that a faculty, staff or student viewpoint doesn't matter at this stage of the game, one might also remember that the search committee, which will recommend three finalists to the chancellor, is composed of students, faculty and staff.

Two candidates—Robert G. Quinn, dean of Pennsylvania State University's Commonwealth Campuses, and T. Alexander Pond, executive vice president of the State University of New York-Stony Brook have already visited campus. Out of almost 22,000 students, 3,500 faculty and 2,400 Civil Service employees, not to mention alumni and community members, fewer than 100 people attended the public-question answer sessions held by each candidate.

Those who did attend benefitted in some way after watching and hearing these men respond to the questions. Some might have discovered that the men were qualified for the position, while others might have been disappointed. Either way, those who attended are one step ahead of those who didn't.

Many campuses don't even allow the campus community this type of opportunity during administrative search processes, and the entire process is carried on "behind closed doors."

Two more candidates are scheduled to visit the campus. Albert Somit, executive vice president of SUNY-Buffalo, who was offered the SIU-C presidency in 1974, will be on campus Wednesday. Public question-answer sessions will be held in the Student Center Auditorium at 9:30 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Be there

Cut out the griping!

"No harm, no foul."

Several graduate students should heed that National Basketball Association philosophy and withdraw their request to disallow Wednesday's student trustee vote.

About 20 graduate students, headed by Jim Dodd, are going to the administration to ask that the vote be disallowed on the grounds that new regulations for the trustee election were implemented without the official consent of the Graduate Student Council.

Undergraduate Student President Pete Alexander wrote the new guidelines and presented them to both the Student Senate and the GSC on April 2. The senate passed the guidelines, but the GSC did not.

At that time, the GSC objected to the number of signatures needed, the "no write-in" clause, the advertising expenditure limit and the poster display limit.

GSC President Gary Brown then amended the rules, clearing up some of the rough spots, and all the trustee candidates agreed to campaign under the amended guidelines.

So the GSC, USO and the trustee candidates have all acted in good faith, agreeing to run the election under the amended guidelines. It appeared that all would turn out well...

Until Dodd and his followers came in.

Complaining about the election rules and pushing for changes cannot be criticized. But voicing an election because of mere procedural difficulties is silly.

It sounds like the graduate students are trying to void the election merely to buy time to get a graduate student to run this year.

It's a shame they're trying to pull such a stunt.

Fortunately Brown seems determined to keep the GSC out of the matter, instead letting the graduate students protest under their own names. Thus, the credibility of the GSC is not at stake, unless the group of students can convince the rest of the GSC to go along with its proposal at the council meeting Wednesday.

The sad part about the whole deal is that the rules under which the election is being run give the graduate students more power than they had previously had. Graduate students have more control over the Trustee Election Board than they used to. Only one semester of attendance at SIU-C is now required, instead of a full year. This helps grad students, who often start graduate work here after attending another school.

Dodd's group should stop belly-aching about the fact that it didn't get a graduate student to file for this year's election in time.

Entering college a privilege

I read, with interest, the April 15 article by Mr. Allen, and must comment.

Handy, you have observed that a degree of today is not worth a degree of the 1960s. You are correct, but then neither are many of the degree holders. You have not, however hit the real reasons for this situation.

In the 60s people in high school worked very hard to qualify for the "privilege" of entering college. A high school student had to take what was known as a college prep program of courses in order to qualify for entrance into college. Suddenly it became everyone's "right" to go, instead of an honor to be chosen. You take anything of value and mass produce it and your are bound to devalue and cheapen it.

College could no longer be selective in hiring either, so to fill the need they had to grab anything they could to use as teachers, and the whole scene went right downhill. A third of the people in college today have no business being there, but it is "the place to be" for whatever reason so they go and take up time and space.

You are correct, there are many professions that do not require a degree, only knowledge and brains. These jobs, however, have no snob appeal so who wants them.

I spoke with a grad about three years ago at a bank where I worked. He had just been offered a good starting position and he was furious. "Why should I start at the bottom? That's what I went to college for, to skip all that jazz. My degree rates me better than that." When I asked him what practical experience he had, he said, "None. I have a degree." His degree had no practical experience on the job either.

If schools do not tighten their entry requirements soon, and make it tougher to "earn" a place in college, your degree will not be worth as much as a piece of bathroom tissue the same size. — H.R. Schmidt, Murphysboro

Christianity turned into a clown show

I grew up in a Christian environment within a community of strong, honestly-committed Christians. Many of the important people I have known, people who have helped me the most, are from that community. The ethical values I use today are derived from those experiences.

That's why I hate to see people like Jed Smock turn Christianity into a clown show. I feel sorry for the many people in this community who honestly live by Christian ethics who will be compared to this man. — Scott Standley, Graduate, Cinema and Photography

J-Board shows lack of gratitude

On April 25 the Campus Judicial Board of Governance concluded that Tim Adams, USO Election Commissioner, conducted his administration with incompetency and recommended that he resign.

My educated opinion—and I say educated because I have been working very closely with Tim—is that, although he did make some errors in running his office, his administration was conducted in a fashion superior to incompetent.

If the label of incompetent is to be given, it should be given to the J-Board for expecting the election commissioner to resign two working days before the election. If the J-Board felt it necessary to act against Tim, it should have been in the form of a reprimand. Asking Tim to resign, more or less nullifies all of the good and hard work he put into this election.

I see a definite lack of gratitude on the behalf of the J-Board and on the behalf of the candidates who requested Tim's work be investigated.

Thank you Tim. — Richard Allen Kempick, Student Senator

Reviewers lack perspective

The end of the term is coming, and none too soon for poor Kenny MacGarrigle—the man definitely needs a rest. It must be taxing to keep up his student workload. So taxing that he's had to stop writing record reviews for the Daily Egyptian. What the readers have been "treated" to in recent weeks, instead of record reviews, are attempts at humor that would barely qualify for a rejection letter from National Lampoon.

Granted most of the music these days isn't worth hearing, especially at the current inflated prices. But this doesn't give MacGarrigle the right to abdicate his responsibility. MacGarrigle, on the other hand, seems content to blow off steam about aspects of the University that displease him. This is acceptable for a political columnist, but not a music reviewer.

The recent MacGarrigle masterpieces only perpetuate the reputation in the University that the Daily Egyptian reviewers utterly lack the perspective and breadth of knowledge to discuss the arts competently. It's sad that dirty jokes are endurable if they're funny as well as dirty—satire only works when it's funny as well as biting. The recent MacGarrigle columns are neither funny nor insightful. Go back to record reviews, Kenny.

Dickey scheduled to give lecture, reading performance at Shryock

By Paula Walker
Features Editor

A 6-foot-3-inch football player. A wartime fighter pilot. An advertising executive who wrote Coca-Cola campaigns. A guitarist. A novelist. A poet.

James Dickey, author of the novel and screenplay "Deliverance," has been all those things and more.

"He is a performer," Larry Taylor, professor of English, said. "He proved that in his performance as the sheriff in 'Deliverance.' He is also a musician and a powerful, sensitive, mystical poet."

Dickey is scheduled to lecture and give a reading performance in Shryock Auditorium at 8 p.m. Thursday. Admission is free.

Taylor said the presentation is called a reading performance because "it's not like having someone else read his poetry; he's going to put on a show for us."

The university atmosphere is not alien to Dickey, who received his bachelor's and master's degree from Vanderbilt University. He has taught at several colleges and universities, including the University of South Carolina, where he is presently poet-in-residence.

He has several literary awards to his credit. In 1966 he received the National Book Award for poetry. From 1966 to 1968 he served as consultant in poetry at the Library of Congress.

The 37-year-old poet's works often explore the brutality of life, and many deal harshly with sexual encounters.

An example is "Adultery."

James Dickey

which contains the lines:
...There is always some weeping
Between us. And someone is always checking
A wrist watch by the bed to see how much Longer we have left. Nothing can come
Of this: nothing can come of us: of me with my grim techniques
Or you who have sealed your womb
With a ring of convulsive rubber....

"There is also a strong celebration of life in his poetry," Taylor said, "but it is connected with violence and pain."

"He is a spinner of yarns, a master storyteller."

"The Norton Anthology of Modern Poetry" states that "once his imagination takes hold of some strange, often monstrous event, like 'The Fiend'—a voyeur contemplating the thought of rape—or 'Falling'—the fall from a plane of a young airline stewardess—he pursues it relentlessly until it subsides in darkness."

"Dickey is a gothic poet, as Flannery O'Connor was a gothic story writer, whether he domesticates the monstrous or keeps it monstrous still," the anthology continues.

In "Self-Interviews," a collection of Dickey's poetry, he True to its rock-n-roll reputation, The Who night at the Checkerdome in St. Louis, put on an exciting performance Monday igniting the crowd with hard driving music.

The Who performs with zeal

By Bill Crowe
Entertainment Editor

The Who proved Monday night that the great rock 'n' rollers never die. They just become immortal with age.

Breaching through a two-and-a-quarter hour set at the St. Louis Checkerdome, Pete Townshend and company presented a fluent blend of old and new Who music with undeniable energy and a true zeal for performing which the group had lost during the mid-'70s.

Opening the show with two classic oldies, "Substitute" and "I Can't Explain," The Who took the stage as its own and never relinquished it. Roger Daltrey's husky vocals were at their majestic mike-swinging best and a clean-shaven Townshend kicked out his muscular power-chording, leaps and windmilling of the guitar strings at a frenetic pace. Bassist John Entwistle and drummer Kenney Jones (formerly of Faces) kept the pace magnificently and often took the lead themselves. A truly magical moment took place when the usually stoic Entwistle stole the limelight from Daltrey and Townshend to sing the lead on "My Wife."

As a roadie moved Entwistle's mike stand into the spotlights, Daltrey jokingly exclaimed "He moves!" in reference to the bassist's usual style of standing flatfooted at the side of the stage while playing the most powerful bass rock music has ever heard.

However, the most startling surprise of the show was the way the music flowed so naturally, drawing upon every era of the group's existence. The Who has finally realized that chunks of its show should not be devoted to "Quadrophenia" and "Tommy." The songs are great and can stand by themselves without the rock opera pretensions.

"Substitute" and "I Can't Explain" flowed magically into the opening synthesizer of "Baba O'Riley." "My Wife," "Sister Disco" and "Behind Blue Eyes" rolled along with precision and grace. And "Who Are You," "5.15" and "Pinball Wizard" were played back-to-back in classic form. There was not a single dull moment in this show.

This may sound morbid, but the death of Keith Moon in the fall of 1978 may have rejuvenated The Who. Since his passing the band has increased its productivity (three albums and two films in the past two years) immensely and improved its sound by adding a keyboardist (John "Rabbit" Bundrick, who also was onstage Monday) and a three-man horn section which brought "5.15" to life like it never has been before.

After blistering through the first two-thirds of the show, The Who then shifted into high gear for explosive versions of "Won't Get Fooled Again," "See Me, Feel Me—Listening To You" and "Long Live Rock."

"Won't Get Fooled Again" was highlighted by a single smoke bomb explosion (which enveloped the crowd in a white cloud) ignited perfectly in time to Townshend's opening chord. The crowd was both shocked and overjoyed at the magnificent opening to this classic.

"See Me..." brought the chanting crowd racing down the aisles to the stage as the arena was illuminated by several spotlights. And "Long Live Rock" served as a reaffirmation of The Who's diligence to forge on in the music world as they all approach middle-age.

To say the least, The Who again claimed its position as one of the greats of all time with this exciting performance, as if anyone had to be reminded.

Dickey scheduled to lecture

states that "...there's a razor's edge between sublimity and absurdity. And that's the edge I try to walk. Sometimes both sides are ludicrous..."

As a boy, Dickey read Byron, and his other poetic influences, according to "Self-Interviews," are Dylan Thomas, George Barker and Kenneth Patchen.

To celebrate the poet's arrival in Carbondale, and also because of a state convention of speech teachers, a special performance of "The Passionate Myth: Poetic Tales by James Dickey" will be presented in Calipre Stage.

The performance of 10 of Dickey's poems and an excerpt from "Deliverance" was open to the general public April 16, 17, 18 and 19. The show, directed by Janet Larsen McHughes, associate professor of speech communication, was presented by the Department of Speech Communication.

It featured slides, masked dancers and live bluegrass music. The use of simplistic, symbolic sets and costumes and the superb acting and direction brought the poet's works to life.

There are a limited number of tickets available for the repeat performance.

Bill may raise CIPS charges

By Dean Athans
Staff Writer

A bill that will soon be considered by the Illinois Senate may allow the Central Illinois Public Service Co. to pass on the cost of $120 million in coal scrubbers to Southern Illinois utility customers, according to Southern Counties Action Movement, a utility reform group.

SCAM organizer Steve Banker said the Senate bill, proposed by Sen. Kenneth Buzbee, D-Carbondale, and supported with powerful lobby efforts from coal mining companies, is a good bill for areas in the state that import western coal, but it is not good for Southern Illinois, which already uses high-sulphur Illinois coal to produce electricity.

The bill proposes to stop the "fuel adjustment" that utility companies use on electric bills to pass changing energy costs on to the consumer. Some power companies import vast amounts of cleaner-burning coal from western states and pass the extra transportation costs to customers through the fuel adjustment. Buzbee's bill will stop power companies from charging customers for transportation costs and instead, allow the companies to include in the fuel adjustment the cost of scrubbers that clean the sulphur from Illinois coal.

"With mines closing in Illinois and with miners laid off, this would give (power) companies added incentive to consider burning Illinois coal," Buzbee said.

"We (SCAM) have problems with this bill," Banker said,

"because it is directed more toward other utility companies" and not CIPS. "And if it passes it will just allow CIPS to pass the cost of scrubbers on to customers instead of its stockholders."

Dennis Vann of the Illinois Association of Community Action Agencies said, "Anti-utility bills are hard to pass.

The utilities have strong, powerful and influential lobbyists in Springfield. I wouldn't give it better than a 50-50 chance," he said.

Alcohol abuse, use program 1 of 5 in U.S.

By Colleen Moore
Student Writer

SIU-C is one of only five universities in the United States that has a prevention program for alcohol use and abuse, a plan which is initiated by the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

The Alcohol Education Project is designed to promote responsible drinking and to distribute alcohol information, said Brenda Coble, a peer educator for the project.

The AED, a division of the Student Wellness Resource Center, is funded through the Illinois Department of Mental Health and SIU.

Educational programs called "raps" are used to have direct contact with students. Raps involve group exercises in which people share their feelings about a specific subject or situation that involves alcohol.

Raps are conducted mostly in dorms and classrooms, but also are available to interest groups and the community; though little community response has been received, Coble said.

The peer educators, who conduct most of the raps, do research, such as reading journals and books, and prepare exercises for the raps. One or two raps are conducted daily, Coble said.

At the end of every rap, the participants fill out evaluations. The peer educators calculate the data from each rap and pass it on to the two AEP evaluators, who compile data from all raps.

The evaluators, an SIU psychology professor and a graduate assistant, also conduct a consumer survey annually to a random sampling of over 1,000 graduate and undergraduate students, which focuses on their alcohol use and attitudes.

A referral service is available to problem drinkers or to anyone who knows of a problem drinker. Coble said most referrals come from resident assistants, the Student Life Office and self-referrals. The two alcohol educators advise the clients and if necessary, refer them to the Alcoholism Resource Center on College Street.

Students and faculty can check out books at the project's resource library, located at the College View Dorm on Mill Street.

Sir Alfred Hitchcock dies at 80; mastered suspense for 50 years

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sir Alfred Hitchcock, the master of suspense whose spine-chilling movies entertained audiences for more than half a century, died Tuesday at the age of 80, a source at Universal Pictures said.

Hitchcock died of natural causes at 9:17 a.m. PDT, the source said. His wife of many years, Alma, and daughter, Patricia O'Connell, and three grandchildren, were with him at the time.

The director had been in failing health for the past year, plagued with arthritis and kidney failures. His condition deteriorated over the weekend.

Hitchcock, a native of England, recently spent several days in Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Hollywood for diagnostic tests, but a hospital spokesman said at that time the problem was not serious.

The director of such classics as "Spellbound," "Lifeboat," "Shadow of a Doubt" and "Psycho" was knighted by Queen Elizabeth last Dec. 31.

As he celebrated his 80th birthday Aug. 13, he said he was at work on the script of his 54th feature-length movie—based on the case of a famous British spy.

Hitchcock loved to frighten movie goers and exercise his talent to the limit in creating chilling situations for the screen. Violence, suspicion, guilt and confession were the themes of this most successful work. He was known for the photographic techniques he used to create terror and suspense.

"The one subject of most fascination to the general public appears to be murder," he once explained. "They get a vicarious thrill out of such things. Always there is that little smug feeling. It isn't happening to me."

Because of his professional and personal individuality, "a Hitchcock film" — and there were more than 50 of them — became a household phrase. Yet he never won an Oscar, although nominated four times.

However, in April 1968, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences presented him the Irving G. Thalberg award "for consistent high level of productions." And on March 7, 1979, Hitchcock was given the Lifetime Achievement Award of the American Film Institute in a nationally televised ceremony.

The son of a London poultry dealer, Hitchcock studied art and engineering at the University of London. He began his career in film there in 1925 and came to the United States 15 years later.

His bland manner, egg shape and baby face with lower-lip pout made him one of the film world's most identifiable celebrities. The caricature of Hitchcock that appeared on his television show, which began in 1955, was instantly recognizable.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete Tuesday.

Court concludes that 'Future Cop' violated copyright

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jury has awarded science fiction writer Harlan Ellison and writer-editor Ben Bova $250,000 in damages in a copyright infringement case sparked by the television series "Future Cop." The six-member U.S. District Court jury ordered the American Broadcasting Co., Paramount Pictures Corp. and former Paramount executive Terry Keegan to pay $182,500 in compensatory damages and $154,500 in punitive damages.

The jury ruled that the series, about a robot in human form who worked as a policeman, did not infringe on the statutory copyright of the authors' 1970 short story, "Brillo." But the jury said the series did violate the common law copyright.

Minimum wage workers could get raise

By Dean Athans

Staff Writer

The half-million people throughout Illinois affected by the state minimum wage law may get their first raise in more than three years if a bill introduced by Rep. Glen Dawson, D-Chicago, passes the General Assembly.

A bill to increase the wage, introduced last year by Sen. Leroy Lemke, D-Chicago, was killed by strong lobby efforts by the Illinois Retail Merchants Association and the Illinois Hotel-Motel Association. And Dawson's bill may face a similar fate, according to legislative staff members in Springfield.

The lobbyists contend that raising the state wage would contribute to the inflationary spiral and force owners of small businesses to fire employees or use family members because they couldn't afford to pay the higher wage. However, the United Auto Workers and the AFL-CIO disagree. They say the three-year-old minimum wage has been outdated by inflation.

The state minimum wage was set at $2.30 an hour on Jan. 1, 1977 and has no provisions for automatic increases like the federal wage guidelines have. After calculating the rate of inflation from 1977 to the earliest possible time an increase in the state wage could be instituted (early 1981), the $2.30 per hour wage will have its buying power cut in half, making it equivalent to earning about $1.20 an hour.

Catheline Dunn, legislative liaison at the Illinois Department of Labor, said the inflationary effects of a minimum wage increase "have been discounted."

"So much else in our economy causes (inflation) that a 10 or 20 cent raise is not going to cause any ripple effect of pay increases," she said. "The unions negotiate their contracts so frequently that they are far ahead already and won't be affected by (a state wage increase)."

Nick Cetwinski, a member of the Democratic staff in Springfield, said that 21 states have a higher minimum wage than Illinois, with an average rate of $2.90 an hour.

"And all the other industrial states are well above us," he said.

But Roger Mills, a Springfield lobbyist for the Illinois Retail Merchants Association, said local merchants will pay employees the higher "market price" anyway.

"In certain areas a businessman just can't find people to work for $2.30 an hour."

He will pay what the market accepts, and that's usually the federal minimum wage ($2.10 hour)," Mills said.

"The labor stand is that we should change the state wage to what the federal level is. But that's unrealistic because a state wage increase hurts small businessmen so much that they must cut back on employees. It's a choice between having three employees or two well-paid employees. We feel employment is more valuable."

A business must pay federal minimum wage if it takes in more than $325,000 a year. But if it makes less, and has more than four employees, it is allowed to pay the lower state wage. If a business employs less than four people and makes under $325,000 it is not covered by any wage law and can pay whatever its employees are willing to accept.

Presidential hopeful Somit set for on-campus interview

By Paula Donner Walter Staff Writer

The man who turned down the SIUC-C presidency in 1974, paving the way for the appointment of Warren Brandt, will be on campus Wednesday to interview as Brandt's successor.

Albert Somit, executive vice president of the State University of New York at Buffalo, will visit the campus Wednesday for public and private interviews. He will conduct two public question-answer sessions, at 9:30 a.m. and 2 p.m., in the Student Center Auditorium.

Somit was offered the position in 1974, after the resignation of David Derge. However, he turned down the offer at the last minute after failing to agree on salary interpretations with the Board of Trustees. The second man in line for the job, Warren Brandt, was hired. He resigned last June.

Somit said he was "surprised" to receive a phone call from someone wanting to nominate him for the position a second time.

"I was rather surprised and agreed to be nominated. I was definitely interested in 1974, but things just didn't work out. I am still interested in the position," he said.

Somit, 60, is the third candidate to interview on campus for the position. Robert Rutford, vice chancellor for research and graduate studies at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln, will visit May 4-6 and will hold two public question-answer sessions on May 5. A fifth candidate, Gene M. Nordby, withdrew from consideration last week.

Late callers discover 'early bird' gets room

By Linda Albert Student Writer

When planning for graduation, it's the early bird that gets the room. At least that's what many late callers are discovering when they try to reserve a Carbondale motel room for May 16 and 17, SIUC graduation weekend.

Along with the DuQuoin State Fair in August and the Kappa Kappa Gamma in April, graduation weekend is one of the busiest times of the year for Carbondale motels.

"The best advice I can give next year's graduates who expect to find motel rooms for visiting family and friends is don't wait until the last minute. Be sure and place your call early for reservations," Kevin Hostetler, desk clerk for the Ramada Inn of Carbondale, said.

Hostetler said Ramada Inn began accepting reservations for graduation weekend in December and were booked up by the second week of January. He added that they still receive about a dozen telephone calls a day from individuals looking for a vacant room.

"This year, fewer graduation callers were as prompt in reserving rooms as they had been in the past few years," Hostetler said.

He said that perhaps some individuals don't realize how few motel rooms are available in Carbondale for such busy events as graduation.

Some establishments accept room reservations as far as a year in advance, while others, such as the Heritage Motel of Carbondale, prefer to wait until later in the year to take reservations for graduation weekend.

According to Jean Jones, manager of the Heritage Motel, these rooms were filled within an hour on the first day she accepted reservations.

Jones said she decided to wait until March 1 to eliminate the uncertainties that often occur around graduation, such as students who may not graduate as planned, and parents who may be unable to attend the ceremony.

The Holiday Inn of Carbondale, which accepts reservations a year in advance, has been completely filled for graduation weekend since last October. Jeff Mondlock, desk clerk manager for the Holiday Inn, said motels in the surrounding communities are also experiencing a demand for rooms during that weekend.

Mondlock said the Holiday Inn of Marion has been filled with reservations for graduation travelers since February.

Arkansas netters wreck Salukis

By Rick Seymour
Staff Writer

A powerful University of Arkansas-Little Rock squad gave the Saluki men's tennis team a decisive 7-2 loss Monday afternoon at the University tennis courts.

Very strong doubles teams paced the visitors. After trailing 4-2 at the end of singles play, the Salukis knew they had to win every doubles match to walk away with a victory.

Leif Karlsson and Chuck Cavin put away Salukis Lito Ampon and Eric Eberhardt, 6-4, 7-5, to claim a victory at No. 3 doubles. The No. 2 doubles match was won by Jim Rasch and Lars Roos with a 6-2, 6-3 decision over Dave Filer and John Grief, giving Arkansas a firm hold on the victory.

The saying "we saved the best for last" was very appropriate for the No. 1 doubles match. In an electrifying match, Arkansas managed to come out on top, but not before Brian Stanley and Steve Smith gave Bjorn Wahlstrom and Lars Hamburg the scare of their lives.

Arkansas took the first set, 6-3, but SIU came right back and won the second set, 6-4. Finally, Wahlstrom and Hamburg disposed of the two Salukis, 6-2 to wrap up the victory.

The two Saluki victories came when Grief defeated Pasch, 6-3, 6-4, at No. 5 singles. Eberhardt won the No. 6 singles with a hard-fought victory over Cavin.

3-6, 7-6, 7-5. Eberhardt's win gave the Salukis their only hope of claiming a victory.

The Salukis needed a clean sweep of the doubles in order to chalk up a win, but Arkansas kept the hold it had built on its lead during the singles matches.

McGirr happy with 5 golf recruits

By Ed Dougherty
Staff Writer

SIU women's golf Coach Mary Beth McGirr is one of the happiest coaches on campus now that she has signed one of the best high school golfers in the state.

Barb Anderson of Edwardsville heads a list of five recruits the first-year coach has signed. Anderson is the top senior in the state, according to McGirr, and is expected to fill the shoes of No. 1 player Sandy Lemon, who is graduating.

Anderson was runner-up in the 1979 Illinois High School Association girls' state championship. McGirr said.

"Barb is good enough to win our state and qualify for nationals as a freshman," McGirr said. "She's a long hitter who draws the ball and a good competitor with the right kind of temperament for college play."

Other signees are Sue Arbogast, Streator; Tracy Keller, Mount Vernon; Dania Meador, Crawfordville, Ind.; and Lisa Rottman, Metropolis.

Arbogast has the best amateur credentials of any of the recruits, McGirr said, and has played in several top-notch amateur tournaments. Keller is her high school's top player and is "a real scrappy type of player that hasn't reached her potential yet," according to the coach.

Meador is one of the top players in Indiana and a good strategist on the course. McGirr said. Rottman has qualified for the IHSA state tournament three times and led her high school team to a fourth-place finish in the 1979 state tournament.

In addition to the five recruits, McGirr may possibly sign a junior college transfer. The coach also said she hopes to add two or three walk-ons to the team.

The recruits will join a Saluki team that will be hard-hit by graduation. Seven seniors will be giving up their spots on SIU's roster, and the only returning golfer will be freshman Jean Sackman.

All five recruits received some type of scholarships, but none received a "full-ride."

"If they play well, there is a good chance they can increase the amount of their scholarship," McGirr said.

Former Saluki wins AL honor

By The Associated Press

Former SIU-C baseball standout Dave Stieb, who now plays for the Toronto Blue Jays, was named last week the American League Player of the Week for the last week.

Stieb pitched two complete games to raise his record to 3-0. He beat the Kansas City Royals 7-1 and the Milwaukee Brewers 4-0. Stieb led the Blue Jays into first place in the American League East and lowered his earned-run average to 1.09.

Although Stieb pitches for the Blue Jays, he was primarily an outfielder when he played at SIU, earning All-America honors in 1978.

The Ladies Are Leading The Headache League

By Dr. Roy S. White Doctor of Chiropractic

Recently the magazine section of a Sunday paper included an item stating that women are more frequent victims of headache than men.

Quite frankly I agree. It's certainly our experience that feminine headaches are more common than their male counterparts. And, when you examine the causes of headache, one can readily understand why.

First of all, 70% of all headaches involve irritation of the nerves in the neck or muscles in the neck.

Take the typical housewife in her daily chores. In her housework—cooking, washing dishes, sewing, cleaning, scrubbing—she is constantly bending forward, stooping, stretching etc., thus straining the neck and developing a neck posture that irritates nerves. These numerous daily chores actually cause displacement of vertebrae in the neck. And our clinical history shows that such displacements are the outstanding cause of headaches.

Incidentally, many women sleep on their abdomen and this, too, as surprising as it sounds, can contribute to frequent headaches. In this position the head must be turned to one side to breathe changing the contour of the neck several hours a day and eventually causing a misalignment of vertebrae.

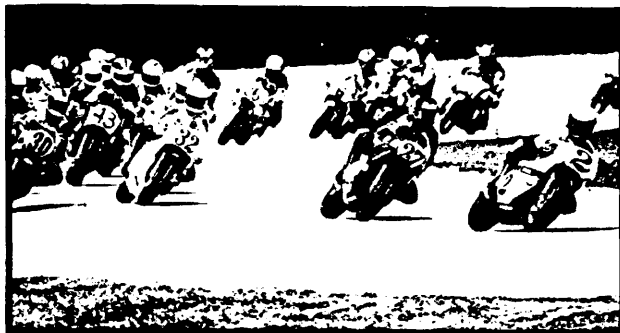

We strongly believe that the Doctor of Chiropractic is thought to be best equipped to deal with vertebral displacement and its corresponding nerve irritation and muscle tension.

This is a competitive world. However, I'm sure headache is not something in which the ladies wish to excel. As a matter of fact, I would think they would try to reduce their advantage by immediate and effective treatment.

Bucs select House in second round

Kevin House

By Rick Klatt
Staff Writer

Senior split end Kevin House, a four-year letterman for the SIU football team, was the 49th person chosen Tuesday in this year's National Football League college draft held at New York.

The 23-year-old University City, Mo., native was the second-round choice of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

"It's just beginning to sink in," House said outside the SIU dugout at Abe Martin Field at the SIU-Illinois double-header about an hour after hearing of the choice. "I love it. Tampa Bay is a good team, a contender, and I should be able to play there in my first year. Maybe not as a starter, but I know I can play there and help the team."

House said that the Buccaneers scouts have been in Carbondale "pretty much" recently, expressing "very much interest in me, if I was available in the second round. "I was hoping to be a first-round choice," House, who also is a centerfielder on the baseball Salukis, said. "Nevertheless, I'm very happy."

Jack Bushofsky, a scout for the Bucs, recently has been quoted as saying that Tampa Bay was interested in House because of his ability to catch the deep pass and return kicks.

The only negative mark consistently held against the speedster (House has been timed in the 40-yard dash at 4.3 seconds) has been his size—a thin, by NFL standards, 6-1, 170 pounds. But House disagrees.

"I think I could play the way I am now," House insisted. "More size will come eventually, but I never lifted weights because of baseball."

House enjoyed his finest Saluki season ever last fall, when he had 27 receptions for a school-record 663 yards. His average-per-reception, 24.2, was also a school record.

For his efforts, House was awarded All-Missouri Valley Conference honors and received honorable mention on the Associated Press All-America team.

House also holds the Saluki record for most career receiving yards (1,524) and career average per reception (21.5). He is tied for four other school records: Most receiving yards in one game (189 against Tennessee State last year), most touchdowns in one game (two), most touchdowns in one season (five—twice) and most career touchdowns (11).

House's final SIU statistics are 71 receptions for 1,524 yards for a 21.5 yard reception average. His longest touchdown reception was 76 yards. He has also received touchdown passes of 72, 68 (twice), 66 and 62 yards in his collegiate career.

"I've had a very enjoyable four years at Southern," House said.

House has chosen St. Louis lawyer Richman Bry to be his agent in contract negotiations with Tampa Bay. Bry has served as Lou Brock's agent, and recently negotiated on behalf of Cardini, shortstop Garry Templeton.

"I have no idea what kind of contract I'll have—that's what I have him for," House said. "He'll take care of all of that. He knows how to."

As expected, Oklahoma halfback Billy Sims was the first player chosen in the draft. Last season's worst team record-wise, the Detroit Lions, took Sims despite anticipated contract problems.

The San Francisco 49ers then traded their selection to the New York Jets for the Jets' two first-round choices, Nos. 13 and 20. The Jets chose wide receiver Johnny "Lam" Jones from Texas.

In a season where home meets are absent from the schedule, the Saluki men's golf team has found itself in unfamiliar surroundings in almost every meet. That is, until this weekend.

With the Missouri Valley Conference tournament beginning Thursday in Terre Haute, Ind., SIU Coach Walt Siemsglusz feels his team will have the upper hand in at least one category—familiarity with the course. In this case, the course is Hulman Links, which Indiana State calls home.

"One advantage we have over several of the other teams is that we've seen this course a couple of times already this year," Siemsglusz said. "It's the kind of course that you have to play on a few times to really know it, and we played there earlier this season."

SIU played in and won the Indiana State Invitational last fall, with Saluki Doug Clemens taking the individual crown. This spring, the Salukis played in the Sycamore Golf Invitational.

Siemsglusz said seven of the eight Missouri Valley schools would be represented, with the exception of Creighton, which dropped its program. He expects Tulsa, New Mexico State and defending conference champ Wichita State to be front-runners, but added that those teams' lack of playing time at Hulman Links could be a factor.

"This course is considered one of the meanest in the country," Siemsglusz said. "It was carved out of the Hulman Estate, and there are still a lot of woods. The fairways are only 30 or 40 yards wide, so if your drive ends up very far on either side of the fairway, you've lost it in those woods."

"I'd think that it's gotta be between Tulsa, New Mexico State and Wichita State, but they've all beaten each other at one time or another during the season. It could wind up a real dogfight. But with our familiarity with the course, we're capable of winning," the coach added.

The 72-hole tourney will feature a 36-hole round on Thursday and 18-hole rounds on Friday and Saturday. The Salukis will again be sending Clemens, Butch Poshard, Rich Jarrett, Jim Reburn and Todd O'Reilly, all of whom have seen the Hulman course at one time or another.

"We've been able to get a little more practice in the past week or so thanks to the better weather," Siemsglusz said. "Each player has been able to work on individual problems. We should be peaking around now."

It will be a time for peaking for all seven teams at Terre Haute. The conference champion is almost a shoe-in for a bid to the NCAA championships.

RANGERS CLUB TIGERS

DETROIT (AP)—Richie Zisk belted a two-run homer and Mickey Rivers went 4-for-5 Tuesday as the Texas Rangers bombed the Detroit Tigers 10-5 in a game shortened to seven innings by rain.

The Rangers jumped on Detroit starter Jack Morris, 3-2, for a run in the first inning and four more in the second.

The Rangers got another run in the sixth when Rivers scored on a single. Texas added two more in the seventh off Jack Billingham, the third Detroit pitcher.

Itchy wins 400th, SIU sweeps Illini

By Mark Pabich
Staff Writer

The Saluki baseball team and Coach Itchy Jones hosted a victory party at Abe Martin field Tuesday after defeating the University of Illinois 10-1 and 10-2. The party was complete with cake, soda, presents, friends and fans, all there to oast Jones' 400th and 401st career victories as SIU head coach.

Jones, who was busy cutting cake for everyone at the park, said the wins felt good, especially since they all came at SIU.

"One of the best things about winning 400 is they all are for the Salukis," he said. "I've lived in Herrin all my life and played ball here at SIU and I'm just grateful all the fans here in southern Illinois have been behind us for that many wins." Carterville native Jerry Halstead, who picked up the complete-game win in the first game, was pleased with his performance and the fact "two local kids from Southern Illinois combined for the win."

Halstead struck out three, walked two and gave up just our hits. The Saluki offense ranked out 12 hits in game one, including three by Bob Doerr, tick Fiala and Gerry Miller.

Things started rolling right away in the first inning with a leadoff triple by Doerr, a Fiala walk and Miller's 10th one run of the season. P.J. Ehranz later scored on a wild pitch, giving the Salukis four runs in the inning.

Doerr led off the second inning with another triple, scoring on a Fiala single. Jim Adduci walked next, and Miller nailed his second hit of the day, a double, giving SIU three runs in inning number two.

Saluki Assistant Coach Mark Newman said Miller's hitting is no surprise.

"Every time Gerry comes up to bat, we know something good is going to happen," Newman said.

Good things happened for Miller and the Salukis in game two, also. The Salukis managed only five hits, mostly because Illini pitchers walked 12 SIU players. The Salukis scored six runs in the first inning on seven walks, a fielder's choice and no hits.

The hits came in the second inning, however, with Adduci hitting his eighth homer of the season. Senior Paul Ondo, who had two hits in game one, tagged his second home run of the season in the sixth inning, capping SIU's 10-run scoring barrage.

Hitting wasn't the whole story, however. Junior Harold Brown won his fourth game of the year with a complete-game performance, striking out four, putting in what Newman called his "best all-round performance so far."

The Salukis host Eastern Illinois Wednesday for a double-header at Abe Martin at 1:30 p.m.

The throw to Illinois' Dennis Warford beats SIU's Gary Kempton to first base during the fourth inning of the first game of Tuesday's doubleheader. The Salukis' 10-2 win over the Illini in the first game of the twinbill was Coach Itchy Jones' 400th career win.

Carbondale's northeast residents begin 'cohesive community' plans

By Erick Howenstine
Staff Writer

Community members of the northeast quadrant of Carbondale, who claim their area has long been forsaken by the city government, now have focus for long-term plans for community development.

In a meeting of about a dozen community members Sunday, management of the Eurma Hayes Center was chosen as a place to start improvements in organization and development of a cohesive community that might eventually involve better housing, mass transportation, an art center and a better rapport with the city government.

Jim Woods, who was largely responsible for the redevelopment of the Watts section of Los Angeles after it was destroyed by riots in 1965, advised concerned community members to "pinpoint one area of particular concern and build on it."

Management of the Eurma Hayes Center is a good place to begin, they decided.

Woods, president of the Watts Community Housing Corp., told of his redevelopment project in Watts, and listened to northeastern Carbondale community members air their frustrations with the city government's apparent lack of concern for their community.

That area of Carbondale, which consists predominantly of poor black families, has not been given its fair shake in funding, development or support by the city, said Norvell Haynes, long-time community activist.

"Being a university town you would think it would be progressive and aggressive," he said. "But in fact it's very backward, and very conservative."

Another community member said "There are elements (such as the high crime rate) that we can just do without!"

Woods said that in Watts, the primary focal point chosen was the development of a 150-unit, low-rent housing project. But the Watts community was also concerned with the greater cultural network of the area, he said.

Funding for the project was provided by the department of Housing and Urban Development. Since Watts community members managed the budget, they were able to include a cultural art center in the development plan.

Once the competency and credibility of an organization has been established, he said, it can get federal and state funding, while at the same time branching out into other areas of concern.

Such a program could be easily executed in Carbondale, he said.

"There is money everywhere" in government grants to support it, he said. Once a community has a viable foundation, he added, "it's just a matter of filling out the grant applications."

Jackie Armstrong, director of the Eurma Hayes Center, was given final authority on the formulation of a two- to five-year managing plan for the center.

"After the plan is written, it should be endorsed by the groups and organizations scheduled to use the center before it is presented to the city," Woods said.

Woods said closer ties with the University should also be sought and encouraged.

'Vacation' forced on many teachers

By Jacqui Kossarak
Staff Writer

Some faculty members will have the opportunity to take long, leisurely vacations this summer—whether they like it or not.

With enrollment typically dropping to about half of that during the fall and spring terms, academic budgets will be cut for the summer, leaving some faculty members with only half-time teaching assignments and others without work altogether.

Teaching spots will be tight in science and in communication and fine arts, according to the deans of those colleges and also in liberal arts, Faculty Senate President Lawrence Dennis said.

Dennis said the summer term dilemma is "tied up with the overall faculty salary problem."

In a letter written to the Academic Affairs office, Linguistics Professor James Redden complained that summer pay scales do not match the summer workload, according to Redden. He explained that many students prefer to work on theses and dissertations during the summer, even though they are not actually enrolled for the work.

Redden also apologetically informed his graduate students working on research papers that he would not assist them on his own time, as he claims he has done during past summer terms.

Dennis said while he understands Redden's position and others similarly situated, not much could be done except to continue the push for a strong faculty voice in the General Assembly.

Redden's case is a "concrete example of how the quality of education is affected by inadequate salaries," said Dennis, who represents SIU-C in the newly-formed Association of State Universities Governance Bodies, a lobby group fighting for better state university employee salaries.

Dean James Light denied that Redden's complaint was typical of the College of Liberal Arts, saying, "There is some unhappiness on the part of some faculty who would like to have full teaching schedules."

The lower summer enrollment makes it impossible to give full-time schedules to all the teachers who want them," Light said.

In contrast, Dean Norman Doorenbos said of the College of Science, "We would have to get three times as many dollars as we now receive for the summer session" in order to accommodate all the teachers who want to work full time.
