'Everyone's a winner' at Special Olympics

By Todd Eschman
Staff Writer

A light drizzle began to fall as Raymond Morber took his place at the starting line for the 400-meter dash. He flashed a "thumbs-up" sign to spectators on the sideline as he awaited the firing of the starting pistol. After one false start, the competitors began their race around the McAndrew Stadium track.

Raymond grunted a bit, contorted his face and poured on the juice. He fell behind the pack when he lost his wind, streaking around the second turn. But he didn't seem to care.

Coming down the home stretch,

Raymond waved and smiled, giving high-fives to the SIUC Saluki mascot, McGuff the Crime Dog and others who held up their hands.

His friends from the Jackson Community Workshop for the developmentally disabled in Murphysboro cheered for him as he crossed the finish line.

"I did it!" he said as he hugged everyone within arms reach. "I ran all the way!"

Like everyone who participated in Special Olympics, Raymond was a winner.

More than 500 athletes competed Thursday in the 24th annual Southern Illinois District 15 Special Olympics. Athletes represented the eight southern most counties of Illinois and various area group homes and workshops.

The day began at 6 a.m. when SIUC athletic director and former St. Louis Cardinal quarterback Jim Hart led the participants and their coaches in the Special Olympics oath—"Let me win, and if I do not win let me be brave in the attempt."

The theme of Special Olympics is "Everyone's a Winner."

Judy Womick, a coach at Rave Workshop for the developmentally disabled in Anna, said understanding this theme means learning sportsmanship and having a good time.

U.S. to secure refugee areas

Saddam warned to remove troops from northern Iraq

United Press International

The United States warned Thursday it will take "whatever steps are necessary" to secure the area of northern Iraq where refugee camps are being set up if Saddam Hussein's troops have not moved out by this weekend.

Iraqi officials at the United Nations said they would comply with the order, issued by the United States in conjunction with the British and the French, and in fact most of the troops had already left.

With allied help for the Kurdish refugees along the Turkish border ready to expand to a second camp 40 miles farther into Iraq, relief efforts for the refugees streaming to Iran picked up momentum.

The United States announced its first flight to Tehran in 12 years this weekend to carry blankets to an estimated million refugees in Iran and along its border.

A Baghdad agreement between the Iraqi government and Kurdish rebels was greeted with caution in light of past broken promises. Kurdish leaders said more talks were needed to fill in the areas agreed to verbally.

And Secretary of State James Baker got some rare good news in his quest for reaching a Middle East settlement when the Soviet Union gave approval for co-hosting a regional peace conference.

With the Soviets taking the first step by beginning the process of recognizing Israel for the first time since 1967, Baker headed off to

Town Square maintenance needed

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Business and property owners near Town Square welcome improvements to the area.

But a committee made up of 12 of the owners disagree on who should pay for maintenance once the improvements are made.

Renovation for Town Square, which is bordered by Illinois Avenue and Monroe, Washington and Jackson streets, is expected to begin in May, said Tom Redmond, downtown coordinator. J & L Robinson Development &

Construction Co. of Carbondale will build new parking lots and do landscaping for park areas.

Once construction is finished, city officials must find a way to pay for maintenance, including landscaping, snow removal and painting parking lots.

They are not sure exactly how much money it will take to maintain Town Square, but Redmond said maintaining the 225 new parking spaces on Town Square should cost between $100 and $150 each year. Cutting grass

Faculty asking SIUC to plan for pay raises

Faculty members, afraid of being passed over in budget allocations, are pushing for a raise.

Philip Davis, professor of civil engineering and mechanics, said the University Budget Advisory Committee is asking the University to make long term plans to reallocate funds for a faculty pay raise if the state budget fails to allocate appropriate funds.

The committee is waiting for the final budget decision before taking further measures, said Davis, chairman of the Faculty Senate Budget Committee.

The Illinois Board of Higher Education recommended a 7-percent salary increase for faculty and staff in the operational budget submitted to Gov. Jim Edgar at the beginning of the year. No increase was present in Edgar's $1.7 billion proposed budget.

Dawgs comeback to crush Racers

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

The SIUC baseball team's game against Murray State Thursday was as unstable as a teeter-totter, but in the end, the Salukis brought down their weight and crushed the Racers.

The Dawgs were on the brink of losing many times, but they never gave up, finally pulling through with their 20th win of the season, an 11-8 victory over the Racers.

This is their second straight win, having conquered Eastern Illinois 7-1 in the second game of a doubleheader Wednesday. They finished the game Thursday with a season high 19 hits.

This raises their record to 20-25 while Murray State's falls to 19-13.

"We had to come back a few times," SIUC coach Sam Riggleman said. "They started beating us right from the start, but we just kept plugging away to take the win.

"We hit the ball hard yesterday and it got past their outfielders because the hits were ripped. It felt really good to keep coming back to finally claim the win."

Senior hurler Tom Strabavy threw the opening pitch of the game, but after an inning and a half, he was replaced by junior Mike Van Gilder. Van Gilder finished the game to take the win.

The Racers didn't let much of the game slip by without scoring. In the first inning, three of the first four batters scored, making the opening score 3-0.

Strabavy walked the first and third batters, Bobby Schoen and Jason Haner, both of whom were brought in on a single by Jeff Brown. The fourth batter, Jon Grzanich plated on a single by Shane Witzel.

The Dawgs came back with the same force against the Racers in the second inning, scoring twice. Senior first baseman Boyd Manne doubled and freshman second baseman Jeff Cwynar brought him in with a triple. Cwynar then scored on junior catcher Derek Shelton's ground out.

In the Racer's half of the second inning they scored two more runs, upping their lead to 5-2.

Schoen doubled and Danny Alfeldt singled. A pop up sacrifice by Haner plated Schoen. Brown resulted with a double to score Alfeldt. In both the first and second innings, the Racers left the bases full on the third out.

Murray State did not keep their lead on the Dawgs for long. In the third the Salukis exploded with four runs, taking the lead for the first time.

Junior third baseman Ed Janke lead of the inning with a single and senior center fielder Jeff Nelson followed with a walk. Manne singled to plate Janke and Cwynar singled to bring home Nelson. Shelton exploded by smacking a double to score both Manne and Cwynar.

In the fourth, the Salukis scored one run and almost had another, but Nelson, attempting a steal, was tagged out at home.

To start the inning freshman third baseman Clint Smothers, who replaced Janke after a two-base error, reached on a fielder's choice and Nelson walked.

Salukis hope to continue streak in conference

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

The SIUC softball team will be pushed to its limit today and Saturday when it faces Gateway Conference foes Illinois State and Indiana State.

The Salukis will meet Illinois State at 3 p.m. today at the IAW Softball Complex on Grand Avenue. Saturday's game against Indiana State will begin at noon.

Illinois State will be the team to beat in this series of games.

The Redbirds were ranked No. 2 behind the Salukis in the preseason conference poll. They are currently ranked No. 3 behind SIUC and Wichita State. Their record is 27-15 with a 7-1 mark in conference games.

SIUC is overdue though. They have come up empty seven of the last 10 matchups and trail 20-35 in the series.

The Sycamores hold down the middle of the conference ranking securing the No. 5 position with a 12-25 record and a 6-4 mark in the conference. SIUC leads in the series 14-10.

The Salukis are on a 17-game winning streak, setting the record for straight wins in a season. They post a 29-3 record and claim an undefeated 6-0 mark in conference play. SIUC has reason to fear the Redbirds. Last year, when the Salukis were on a 16-game winning streak (setting the old school record), ISU was the team to halt it, beating them 3-2 and 7-1 in Normal.

Saluki coach Kay Bretchelsbauer said her team is going to have its hand full this weekend.

"Illinois State is a tremendous team," Bretchelsbauer said. "We are going to have a tough time trying to beat them. We are looking forward to playing them. The series has been a good one because it goes way back.

"This is a string of important games staring us in the face and we have had a number of games rained out and we need to play."

SIUC is coming off a victory, blowing past the Purple Aces in a home doubleheader Wednesday, winning two shutouts, 6-0 and 10-0.

Even with these accomplishments, the Salukis were not ranked in the latest NCAA Softball Poll which came out April 25. This is the second time they have been ignored by the poll.

SIUC also dropped one notch to the No. 5 position in the Midwest Region rankings.

Tracksters compete in Saluki Invite

By Wayne Frazer
Staff Writer

Men's and women's track teams representing more than 30 universities will descend on McAndrew Stadium Saturday to compete in the Saluki Invitational.

Both the men and the women are gearing up for the conference finals in two weeks. The men's team is coming off back-to-back second-place finishes behind

NCAA indoor champion Arkansas and the women have consistently placed in the top of their meets.

The women will run against sprint specialist Tennessee State and Gateway Conference foes Western Illinois and Illinois State, strong in the distance runs. Saluki women's head coach Don DeNoon said the Salukis have their own front-runners, however.

"Our throwers have been simply outstanding," DeNoon said. "They keep pushing themselves and the level of the competition coming in (to the Saluki Invitational) will only cause them to excel even more."

Olson sues Patriots in harassment case

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Herald sports writer Lisa Olson filed a sexual harassment suit Thursday against the New England Patriots for last September's locker room incident in which she was confronted by naked players.

The newspaper said it is not a part of the suit, but supports Olson's decision to sue team owner Victor Kiam, former General Manager Patrick Sullivan, former media services director James Oldham and three players—Zeke Mowatt, Robert Perryman and Michael Timpson.

Olson, 27, who claims she has suffered "severe emotional distress" since the Sept. 17 incident, filed the suit Thursday in Suffolk County Superior Court, her attorney, Norman Zalkind, said.

The suit charges she was sexually harassed, her civil rights were violated, she suffered intentional infliction of emotional stress, and suffered intentional damage to her professional reputation.

The 11-page suit does not specify a monetary amount of damages.

According to documents, Olson was on assignment covering the Patriots and was interviewing a Patriots player in the team's locker room on Sept. 17 when she was approached by a nude Mowatt, who allegedly displayed his genitals and made sexual remarks. Timpson and Perryman allegedly egged him on.

The players were fined by the National Football League after an investigation headed by Harvard Law School professor Philip Heymann. Mowatt was fined $12,500 and the other two $5,000 each. Mowatt and Perryman, who now plays for the Denver Broncos, are awaiting a ruling on their appeal to NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue. Timpson paid the fine last week, but maintained his innocence.

Olson said in Thursday's Herald she had intended to drop the issue after the players and team were fined, but decided to file the suit after Kiam joked about the incident publicly on Feb. 4, and because Mowatt and Perryman have failed to pay the fines.

Clemens to learn fate on appeal to Vincent

NEW YORK (UPI) — Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent will rule today on the appeal lodged by Boston Red Sox pitcher Roger Clemens over a five-game suspension and $10,000 fine resulting from his actions in last year's American League playoffs.

A spokesman for the commissioner's office confirmed Thursday that Vincent will issue his ruling Friday, one week after an appeals hearing attended by Clemens and a professional lip-reader.

Clemens was given the suspension and fine by AL President Dr. Bobby Brown for his actions in Game 4 of last year's League Championship Series against the Oakland Athletics.

The two-time Cy Young Award winner was ejected by umpire Terry Cooney, who claimed Clemens used excessive profanity in arguing balls and strikes.

Clemens was restrained from physically confronting Cooney, but made numerous gestures and continued to shout at the umpire before leaving the field.

Brown announced the suspension for the first five games of this season and the fine last fall, but Clemens appealed the ruling through the Major League Baseball Players Association. Brown later upheld the penalty, leading Clemens to appeal to Vincent.

Soviets seize more buildings in Lithuania; no one injured

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet troops took over nine more buildings in Lithuania Thursday, seizing sports facilities that belonged to an armed forces support group before the republic's drive for independence from Moscow. A Lithuanian government statement said the troops took over the buildings in raids when the facilities were unoccupied. There were no injuries. The buildings, seized as part of the Soviet effort to reclaim what Moscow says is Soviet property, had been controlled by the Lithuanian sports society Vytis since the republic's declaration of independence.

Economy slow in recovering from earthquake

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — The local economy is being severely tested by damage from Monday's earthquake that killed at least 80 people in Costa Rica and Panama, injured 1,200 and left nearly 70,000 homeless. Damage at Puerto de Limon, near the epicenter of the temblor, and lower sea levels caused by the quake have made it impossible to export bananas, coffee and other products from the port. Officials said the banana industry alone has lost $2 million daily since Monday. Construction workers began rebuilding bridges and roads leading to the Pacific port of Caldera.

Cheney: Pentagon to cut 94,000 jobs by 1995

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said Thursday the Pentagon plans to eliminate 50,000 civilian jobs and 44,000 military jobs by 1995 as part of a fundamental reorganization of Pentagon operations that is expected to save taxpayers more than $70 billion over the next six years. Cheney said increased efficiency from the Pentagon's continuing effort to streamline, centralize and coordinate its operations, spurred by the July 1989 Defense Management Report, will result in the job cuts and other budget savings.

New shuttle rolls off Rockwell assembly line

PALMDALE, Calif. (UPI) — The shuttle Endeavour, the new "jewel of the fleet," rolled off the assembly line Thursday to the cheers of a flag-waving throng of well-wishers, replacing the lost shuttle Challenger and boosting NASA's fleet of spaceships back to four. Still one year away from its maiden flight, the $1.8 billion Endeavour — equipped with a braking parachute, a beefed up hydraulic system and other improvements ordered in the wake of the Challenger disaster — was towed into view at Rockwell International's shuttle factory about 9:25 a.m.

Lawyers agree to quarantine prostitute infected with AIDS

EDWARDSVILLE (UPI) — An Alton woman accused of trying to transmit the AIDS virus through prostitution will be quarantined in a state-approved facility and arrested if she tries to leave, authorities said Thursday. The agreement was reached late Wednesday by lawyers for the woman and Madison County State's Attorney William Haine, who said he believed it marked the first time the state's quarantine statute has been used in an AIDS case. Felicia Ann Horton, 21, was charged Tuesday with the Class 3 felony of attempted criminal transmission of the HIV virus.

Weather, shutdowns increase unemployment

CHICAGO (UPI) — Inclement weather and manufacturing shutdowns were a major factor in increases in the jobless rates in all 13 major metropolitan areas of Illinois during March, a state agency said Thursday. The Illinois Department of Employment Security said the increases ranged from 0.2 percent in Springfield to 1.6 percent in Rockford. The increases in unemployment in the major metropolitan areas reflected a 0.7 percent increase statewide, bringing the Illinois jobless rate in March to 7.1 percent. The agency said inclement weather in early March slowed construction throughout much of Illinois.

President of GPSC reminds officers of right to reject pay said. Ramsey said he wished he could have started a newsletter for graduate students about University policies and an orientation program for all new graduate students, but was happy with the revision to the student conduct code and graduate program reviews GPSC has done.

"We won some and we lost some, but we always tried," he said.

He said Susan Hall, his successor, will bring a wealth of experience to the position, as well as a sense of class and dignity.

Ramsey said he would miss the position, but "now I feel free to have my own obstinate views on things again."

In GPSC business, the council passed a resolution reaffirming a

GPSC officer's option to reject pay for the office

The GPSC president and vice presidents for administrative and graduate school affairs receive tuition waivers and partial graduate assistantships as compensation for their positions.

Dan Zipperer, curriculum and instruction representative, said he presented the resolution in response to an earlier request that officers receive $1 for compensation.

The resolution was not received well by the council, but officers should be reminded they can reject compensation, Zipperer said.

The council also passed a resolution calling the support and defense of refugees in northern Iraq, Turkey and Iran a moral necessity.

Charles Ramsey presided over his final meeting as Graduate and Professional Student Council president Wednesday night, when the council reminded GPSC officers they can reject compensation and passed resolutions supporting the Kurdish and Shiite refugees in Iraq.

Ramsey, who has been GPSC president for a year and a half, decided not to run for office for the summer 1991 to spring 1992 term.

He thanked the representatives, constituents and faculty and staff members who worked for graduate students' concerns.

(predominantly African-American Greeks).

She said the unity has come by pairing Pan Hellenic sororities with Pan-Hellenic fraternities, making them team members to compete in various Greek Week events.

Colella said she thinks intermingling of members of the two councils is good for both councils and the SIUC Greek community as a whole.

"In previous years, Pan-Hellenic was never really that involved with Greek Week," Colella said. "They usually only participated in the step show. This year we have had good participation by both the black and the white Greek organizations."

Xenia Johnson, Greek Affairs graduate assistant, said she also sees an increase in the participation of Pan-Hellenic Greek groups.

"I think there is a pick-up in the participation among the groups," Johnson said. "In the past, I think that the participation (of the African-American groups) was lacking because there wasn't a move to incorporate the black Greeks into the Greek Week."

Colella said everyone seems

Greek Week activities in 1991 have brought predominantly white and predominantly African-American fraternities and sororities together like never before, Greek Week Chairman Kerry Colella said. In addition to being designed to celebrate Greek life on campus, Colella said this year's Greek Week celebrations were designed to bring Pan Hellenic Council organizations (predominantly white Greeks) in closer contact with Pan-Hellenic organizations

University child care offers quality service

FEARS OF RISING TUITION, a narrowing job market and reduced financial aid are common to most students. But for many, there is another area of interest that hits closer to home.

While parents work hard in school to get a quality education and faculty and staff members work hard to provide quality education, they want their children to get high quality care.

The parents of more than 400 children have found what they are looking for in programs offered by SIUC.

Rainbow's End, Head Start, Child Development Lab and the Child Study Cooperative Nursery in the psychology department are brimming with bright-eyed toddlers and have long waiting lists.

RAINBOW'S END IS a program supported by a $1 student activity fee and is geared toward students with children. At the end of this month, Rainbow's End and its affiliate Head Start Program will be looking for new space to play.

But program officials aren't worried about finding a place to continue business as usual. They say the University and concerned parents are too aware of the need for quality child care to let such successful programs fade away.

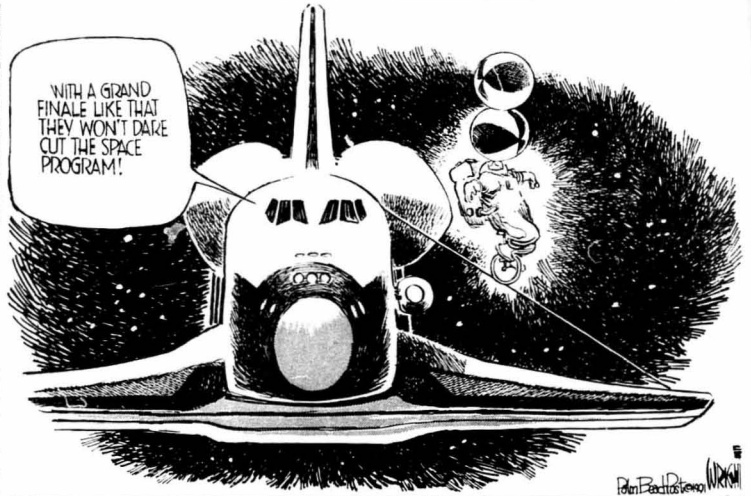

In 1989, a study on what University parents wanted in terms of child care found a need for nighttime services.

PLANS FOR NIGHT SERVICES at the Child Development Lab were already in the works and became a reality last year.

This demonstrates a successful communication effort between University officials and students, faculty and staff.

The success of these four programs can be attributed to the University, state Department of Children and Family Services and the people who want the service working together for something widely needed.

By strictly following state guidelines and working closely with state agencies, University officials and concerned parents, SIUC is offering students the quality child care they want at rates they can afford.

Photogenesis events still overlooked by DE

During college, students are involved in many activities and get involved with various projects in which recognition can be attributed.

This can happen within organizations, clubs, internships, personal achievements, competitions and exhibitions. Photogenesis is a student organization of Cinema & Photography. We generate funds to support the department and initiate events to involve students in photography and the arts.

Recently, Photogenesis sponsored a national competition and exhibition for students. We received entries from Texas, Hawaii, New York and many SIU students.

The show was judged by Mark Alice Durant, a visiting artist at the School of the Art Institute in Chicago.

The show had an opening reception and is now displayed in the Student Center Art Alley.

The DE was asked to cover the opening. When no story appeared, they were still asked to run a story for the event.

The show has now been hanging for over a week and the DE has seemingly made no effort to contact anyone about the event.

The DE is always looking for stories and being a campus-based newspaper should also promote student events.

Photogenesis is very proud of the work we put into this show, as it is our first national competition. The individuals who were selected for exhibition are very proud of the work they do.

The area of the arts seems to be overlooked often. There are many other areas which receive repeated coverage.

We would like to be recognized for our achievements like the others.—Deana M. Borla, senior, photography.

Article on play irresponsible

I am writing in response to your article about "The Abduction from the Seraglio." I feel you did the production a grave injustice by printing information about a dress rehearsal that took place April 17.

I think it was unprofessional of you to write a critique of that particular rehearsal when you were specifically requested not to because of the planned absence of cast and orchestra members.

Your remarks made the production sound disorganized, inept, boring and unentertaining.

That rehearsal may not have been up to standard performance level, but that's no reason to print an article that may discourage attendance of the performance which you have yet to see.

The article seemed to be a definite slam toward both the music and theatre departments, and I felt it was in very poor taste to write, let alone print.

I hope that anyone who was interested in the opera will not take your article seriously and still attend despite your irresponsible article.—Sarah Bowman, senior, theatre.

Quotable Quotes

"It's not a question of resources. It's a question of will."—U.S. Senator Paul Simon in reference to reducing the federal budget.

"My job was to be on time and know my lines."—Actress Audrey Hepburn in reference to being honored for her acting career.

"I like Julia...I'd rather be losing parts to her than some idiot."—Actress Winona Ryder in reference to the assumption she hates actress Julia Roberts because of her success.

"We didn't expect this to happen."—Ladies Home Journal in reference to a male entry in its Oprah Winfrey look-a-like contest.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open, civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letters that the editors deem objectionable because of potentially libelous material or because of extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication. Every letter must be signed and submitted in person by its author or authors. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

Math's role in psychology questioned

According to the psychology department, there are three types of psychology students: those who have passed math and thus can understand psychology, those who can't understand math and therefore can't understand psychology anyway and those who supposedly do understand math and therefore will not understand psychology until they pass math.

Also the cognitive functions used in lower math are exactly the same functions used in higher math (even though higher math requires the use of a calculator).

Therefore, students who can understand lower math but can't understand higher math are simply lazy students with bad attitudes who don't deserve a college degree.

Evidence that a student is incapable of passing a higher math class includes not being able to solve third-grade math problems during psychoeducational evaluation (diagnosis that would take several months or even years to receive at SIU because of the long waiting list for intelligence testing).

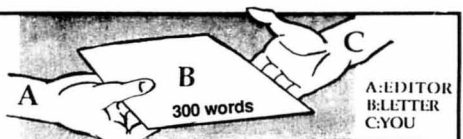

It also includes failing a higher math class two or three times (failing Math 107 or an equivalent repeatedly is not considered adequate evidence), and hiring a tutor at an over-priced hourly rate that is likely to be paid for out of the grocery money of the average student who would be willing to starve for a semester in an insane attempt to pass a useless course (seeking the help of fellow students and university tutors and attending class every day is not a great enough effort).

Surely it is just a matter of time before studies are devised that support the claims of the psychology department.

When that day comes, students will no longer be subjected to the line, "Well maybe it isn't fair, but those are the rules." But by that time, those may no longer be the rules.—Diane Dove, senior, psychology.

Local market remains timeless

Jim Temple cuts up some round steaks Thursday afternoon at the market. Above him, newspapers from World War II are displayed. The market is located on West Hickory Street.

Greg Hedlin, a junior in computer science from Kankakee, purchases groceries Wednesday afternoon. Jim Temple bought the store in the 1950s.

Kevin Hoop, a freshman in administration of justice from Des Moines, Iowa, reads the paper in front of the market Thursday afternoon.

When the four-door sedan was replaced by the compact car, and the Charleston was replaced by the Monster Mash, a cultural modernization was in full swing. However, certain things seem to evade the grips of change.

Nestled in the heart of a neighborhood on the north side of Carbondale sits Jim and Ruth's Market, a small neighborhood store which has been around since the beginning of the Cold War. The market rests along cobble stoned West Hickory Street.

Jim Temple, store owner, butcher, checkout clerk and friend to all bought the store in 1950 or 1951.

"I can't remember which year it was actually," said Temple.

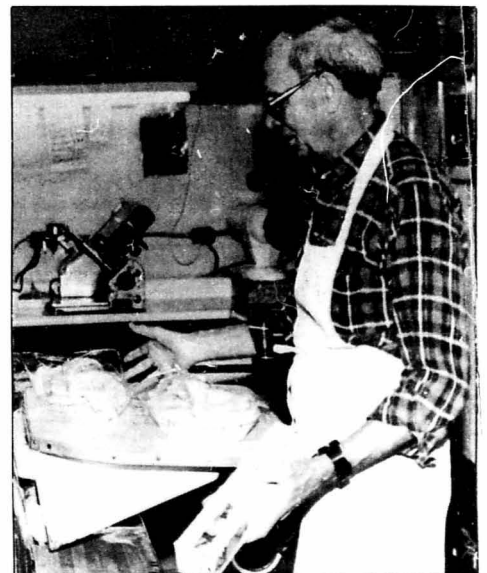

What sets this store apart from your average grocery stores is its authentic nature. As soon as you walk into the store, it is like walking into the past.

In the front of the store, Temple has a collection of soda bottles. Old newspapers and pictures of baseball players hang along the walls of the store. In the rear of the store is a Japanese flag which Temple brought back with him from World War II. Throughout the store there are remnants of the times Temple has lived through.

"The store reminds me of a small market from my hometown. We used to go there as kids to buy candy," said Jenifer Yucis, a Carbondale resident.

Although the store has only three aisles, compared to a fifteen aisle super market, the store manages quite well. It has been able to endure the test of time for more than half a century.

Behind the counter in the rear of the store, Jim Temple prepares some poultry to be displayed.

Saddam-Talabani deal only verbal; further negotiations to take place

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — A deal between Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and a Kurdish delegation led by Jalal Talabani was only verbal and marked the end of a first phase of negotiations, rebel sources said Thursday.

In southern Iraq, clashes continued between pro-Iranian Shiite insurgents and troops loyal to Saddam. Tehran radio said. The insurgents regrouped in the marshes reportedly killed 30 troops in a clash at al Mashrah, near the Iranian border.

Sources in the Kurdistan Democratic Party said Wednesday's deal between Saddam and a Kurdistan Front delegation led by Talabani, was only verbal and that a second phase of negotiations will begin after Talabani returns to rebel-held areas in northern Iraq to inform Kurdistan Democratic Party leader Massoud Barazani about details of the Baghdad talks.

Talabani, who heads the Patriotic

Union of Kurdistan, said in Baghdad after meeting Saddam Wednesday after four days of discussions the two sides had agreed on autonomy for the 3.5 million Kurdish ethnic minority in Iraq.

Talabani's PUK and Barzani's KDP are the two main groups in the Kurdistan Front, whose Peshmerga guerrillas battled Saddam's troops before Baghdad invited the rebels to the capital for negotiations.

Task force moves to fight against cholera epidemic

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The World Health Organization formed an emergency task force Thursday to combat the "unfolding tragedy" of the cholera epidemic sweeping through South America and starting to surface in Africa.

More than 177,000 cases of cholera from 12 nations were reported to WHO in the first three-and-a-half months of 1991 — nearly as many as were reported in all of 1971, the peak year of the last outbreak in Africa and Asia.

"Today, an emergency situation exists. A cholera epidemic is raging in Peru, and spreading rapidly to Ecuador, Colombia and now Brazil and Chile. At the same time reports are being received of an increasing number of cases in Africa, especially Benin and Zambia," WHO Director General Hiroshi Nakajima said.

Jerusalem to see if any progress had been made since his last stop there a week ago.

While the several hundred Iraq forces who describe themselves as "policemen" have not caused problems around the northern Iraqi town of Zakhko, allied officials had worried they could be an intimidating force to keep refugees from coming down from the mountains to the camps and eventually to their homes.

An administration official said the order, covering an area within 20 miles of Zakhko, was delivered by Ambassador Thomas Pickering at the United Nations Wednesday night to Iraqi Ambassador Abdul Amir al-Anbari. The two ambassadors met again Thursday and al-Anbari announced the Iraqis would comply.

"Iraq is more than willing to cooperate, or pacify in the proper sense of the word, and accelerate the humanitarian assistance being given to the Kurds over there," he said. "The (Iraqi) soldiers have already left, the bulk of the police has left, only 50 policemen remain in town."

President Bush said Iraq's agreement was "a very good development... It was encouraging."

"We told them that we expected them to leave and that we would take whatever steps are necessary to see that the area is safe," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

There are about 7,300 U.S. Marines in the area, along with British and Dutch forces. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said U.S. forces could allow legitimate Iraqi policemen to remain to maintain law and order, but would leave it up to U.S. forces on the scene to determine who's who.

On the restrictions north of the 36th parallel, the United States announced it would tolerate helicopter flights north of the line strictly for agricultural spraying purposes as long as they were flown by "third parties" in compliance with U.N. regulations.

Fitzwater said the United States derived full authority for its actions from existing U.N. Security Council resolutions, but acknowledged additional approval might be needed in the event the United Nations assumed greater responsibility for the refugees.

The warning came as 2,200 health workers and U.S. military personnel nearly completed the Zakhko camp and announced the allies were about to open a second refugee camp in Dahuk, Kraq, about 40 miles south of the Zakhko site nearly 50 miles in Iraq from the Turkish border.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said the Zakhko camp will contain 600 tents and a hospital with generators to power electricity. "We expect refugees to start moving to the village in the next few days," he said.

and other landscaping could cost between $4,000 and $5,000.

Dr. Marsha Ryan, a general and vascular surgeon on West Main Street, said she is open to almost any suggestion for financing the maintenance for the Town Square, including taxing property owners near the area and selling parking permits.

"It makes no difference to me how this happens," she said. "But I would like to see parking meters out of the picture."

Bill Haupt, owner of T-Birds on North Washington Street, said he thinks parking meters are the best way to finance the maintenance.

"I want to see it happen," he said. "I want to see improvements, but I have a problem with more taxation."

Haupt said he already is paying 1 percent of his sales to the city and wants to give the meters a try.

"If enough money doesn't come from meters, we can try something else," he said. "The meters would be a simpler way of doing things."

Although Marilyn Martin of Mary Lou's Grill on South Illinois Avenue did not say she wanted parking meters, she said if parking were free, all parking spaces would be taken away from her customers.

The committee will meet again May 16. When a decision is reached, it will make a recommendation to the City Council.

"The first thing that we teach the athletes is that they all are winners," she said. "The second thing is that we are out here to have fun and this is a great day for them. Everyone gets a ribbon and that is what it is all about. Medals are secondary."

Mary Rowe, superintendent of the Carbondale Park District and track and field organizer, said for many of the developmentally disabled participants just being able to compete makes them winners.

"For some of them just to be here, they are winners," she said.

"They have worked hard to even be able to throw a softball, much less worry about how far they can throw it. Just learning how to do it is part of being a winner."

Rowe said athletics and competition is only one part of Special Olympics. In addition to track and field, participants and their friends were entertained between events by a carnival, petting zoo and demonstrations by area groups.

"Track and field is only one part of the fun," Rowe said. "We want this to be a special and fun day for everyone. We measure our success in terms of the smiles on the faces of everyone who participated."

SIUC students donated their time to making the games a success. Volunteers represented the football team and several fraternities and sororities. Rowe estimated more than 800 volunteers were students and staff at the University.

"We couldn't have pulled it off in this fashion without the help and support of the University," she said. "Everyone here has been very helpful and we really appreciate it."

"The budget the governor has recommended is the same as last year — there's nothing in it for faculty raises," Davis said.

Don Paige, Faculty Senate president, said out of the past four years three of the faculty pay increases were less than the cost of living increase.

SIUC faculty received less than a two-percent raise July 1, 1990, Paige said.

The Illinois Federation of Teachers and the Illinois Student

Advisory Committee also opposed IBHE's allocation of the governor's budget because of the lack of salary increases.

Currently state legislators are working toward a June 30 deadline for the final state budget.

"The hope that the legislators would allocate money for a raise is nonexistent," Davis said.

SIU Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said with the state's fiscal condition, the hope for extra money is bleak.

"The only way to get a salary increase is to reallocate and I don't know what we would reallocate from," he said.

Davis said the advisory committee is discussing with SIUC President John C. Guyon a 1- or 2-percent increase option for faculty salary from reallocations within University's budget.

Guyon, who could not be reached for comment, has been receptive to the committee's request, Davis said.

enthusiated about participating in the Greek Week events.

She said one of the most popular events of the week was the serenading of SIUC President John C. Guyon on Wednesday night at the Student Center.

"We made up the words to a song we called, Southern Lovin," Colella said. "Actually, we used the tune of a song called 'Summer Lovin' in Grease.' The audience seemed to really enjoy the entertainment."

Events today for Greek Week begin at 4 p.m. at the Law Library and include a giant game of Twister, tug-o-war, a chariot race, car stuffing and an obstacle course.

Study says people eat more than thought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans may be eating far more food than commonly thought, a scientist reported Thursday in a finding that could carry implications for many estimates of U.S. nutrition and health.

William Mertz, director of the Human Nutrition Research Center, said 12 long-term studies at the center found that participants commonly under-reported their caloric consumption. On average, the 266 volunteers reported consuming 18 percent fewer calories than needed to maintain their weight.

If substantiated in larger studies, the findings could have far-reaching consequences, he said, because "the vast majority of food consumption and nutrient intake data comes from individuals' recalling or recording what they ate."

"We use this data to conclude that Americans get too little of certain nutrients," Mertz said, such as vitamin B6, zinc, magnesium and iron for women.

NOTICE TO CUT GRASS AND WEEDS

It is a violation of the Revised Code of the City of Carbondale for any person to permit grass or weeds to grow in excess of six (6) inches in height on property. The property owner, person in control or agents of such owner or person in control have the responsibility to see that grass and weeds are kept cut on such properties owned or controlled by them.

THE BASIC PROVISIONS ARE:

- (1) Weeds and grass are to be kept cut to less than 6-inch height.
- (2) Property owners and/or persons in control of land are responsible for keeping grass and weeds cut up to the curb or edge of pavement or ditchline of adjoining streets and alleys.
- (3) If a person fails to keep weeds and grass properly mowed, the City can issue a court citation and post the property. Failure to mow the premises results in the City having a contractor mow the property and bill the owner. If the bill is not paid within 60 days of mowing, a Notice of Lien is placed on the property as shown by the Office of the Recorder of Deeds of Jackson County, Illinois.

THE MINIMUM MOWING FEE CHARGED BY THE CITY OF CARBONDALE IS $57.75 PER LOT.

The complete requirements and limited exceptions that apply in some cases to lands zoned "Forestry" and zoned and used for agricultural purposes are found in Chapter 11 of the Revised City Code. Any complaints concerning high grass or weeds and/or obnoxious plant growth may be phoned in to the Code Enforcement Division at 549-5302, between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

U.N. official: Education key to improving African nation

By Sherri L. Wilcox and Chyrese Wolf Staff Writers

If Africans want to be successful in their fight for independence, they must be wholly committed to democracy, said a United Nations official and SIUC alumnus.

F. Lwanyantika Masha, director of public information for the United Nations, gave a presentation on the future of democracy in Africa Wednesday night to a Student Center Auditorium audience of about 75. Masha's lecture was part of Africa Week activities.

"Democracy is not given out on a silver platter. It is earned," he said. "A broad level of education is needed to make the commitment work."

Masha put the responsibility of education on the African students in the audience.

"This is the challenge of your generation," he said. "The answer to Africa's problems is not in London. It is not in Washington. It is within the hearts, souls and minds of Africans."

It has been 35 years since independence and democracy was introduced in Africa, he said.

Previously, leaders either were "born or appointed."

He added that although elections are necessary for a democratic society, they do not provide for such a society.

Independence brought on the concept of multi-party systems, he said. This quickly changed to community or one-party system government because candidates declared that democracy had failed after losing multi-party elections, Masha said.

The movement toward democracy depends on the way leaders are elected, he said.

"In a democracy, the leaders are elected by the elite," Masha said. "If one ethnic group is not prepared to accept a leader from another, democracy will fail."

Masha said another reason Africa is not being taken seriously throughout the world is because it has gained the image of being a continent of poor countries.

"We are poor up here," he said, pointing to his head. "We have all the resources in our countries, yet we beg for help from others."

Masha also focused on the spread of Pan-Africanism throughout the continent. The theory behind Pan-Africanism is to unify the continent, reject violence, hold a strong belief in democracy and African nationalism and promote the solidarity of black people.

"Pan-Africanism, with the help of technological advances, will shape the future of Africa," Masha said, adding that advances will continue until Africa is equal with other nations.

"Change is there and it is inevitable," he said.

Masha is a native of the east-African country of Tanzania. He came to the United States in 1962 and graduated from SIUC in 1965 with a bachelor's degree in journalism. After a brief visit to his homeland, Masha returned to SIUC and finished his master's and doctoral degrees.

While at SIUC, he co-founded the African Student Association. He went on to work for the United Nations, and in 1990 he became U.N. director of public information.

Africa Week is an event to educate people about current African events.

Committee stalls tougher bill on drunken driving standards

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Secretary of State George Ryan's effort to continue Illinois' crusade against drunk driving suffered a detour Thursday when a House committee stalled a bill that would have toughened the state's standards for legal intoxication.

The measure (H485) sponsored by Rep. Al Ronan, D-Chicago, would have lowered the maximum legal blood alcohol level for motorists from the current 0.10 percent to 0.08 percent. It was Ryan's first major legislative initiative since he won a bitter election contest against Jerry Cosentino.

In testimony Thursday, Ryan touted the measure as a means to reduce traffic deaths and win more drunk driving convictions from judges who are reluctant to convict motorists whose breathalyzer readings hover at or slightly above the 0.10 mark.

But he hinted political maneuvering may have stalled the measure in the House Judiciary II Committee, where Democrat and Republican leaders substituted three committee members with different lawmakers just before the bill was called.

"We had the votes last night and this morning we didn't," Ryan said.

Teacher combines singing talent with acting skills for starring role

By Tracy Sargeant Entertainment Editor

At 2 years of age, most youngsters are struggling to expand their vocabulary. Jeanine Wagner was singing a solo on stage.

Wagner, director of SIUC's Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater and one of 14 children, remembers traveling with her family, singing in various clubs and shows.

From that musical background, she now has come to teach at SIUC and is playing a lead character in McLeod Theater's "The Abduction From The Seraglio."

Wagner was interested in studying voice, theater and violin. She said she chose opera because it combined two of the three things.

In addition, she has played in orchestras before so she has experienced an opera from the "pit" side of things.

Wagner currently is double-casted for the lead role of Constanza in "The Abduction From The Seraglio." She shares the part with Mara Rice and they alternate playing the role on different nights.

"(Playing one part half of the time) allows you to pull yourself out and see what is going on," she said. "So many times actors don't see the whole play because they have to concentrate on playing their parts."

"It also poses problems, but the benefits outweigh those," Wagner said.

In 1990, Wagner won the district level of the Metropolitan Opera contest in Memphis, Tenn., and placed in the top three at the regional level.

Although she didn't advance to New York for the final round, she did receive a phone call from officials at the Metropolitan.

"Because of the thing with Met... they called and asked me to audition for the part of the Queen of the Night in 'The Magic Flute,'" she said.

Wagner said the part required her to hit a high F above high C. She admitted she can reach notes higher than this, but "no one would ever want to hear them," she joked.

"I have never (sung high F) in public before so I went into the living room and made sure (the note) would come out," Wagner said.

Even though they didn't chose her for the part, she said she was flattered she was considered.

Because sopranos normally sing in the upper ranges, Wagner said singing low is the most difficult.

Wagner said opera is not just singing. Theater plays an important part in a balanced education.

"It's been a real co-effort between the Theater Department and the School of Music (to organize the program)," she said.

"We are trying to work hard at working well, the students are the ones who gain."

One thing that all students learning opera must overcome is coordinating stage movements and singing at the same time.

"Learning a part for the stage is like learning how to walk, after a while, it becomes second nature after the technique is built up," Wagner said.

Wagner has taught at SIUC for seven years and she has seen the program grow during this time.

The Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater, located in the Old Baptist Foundation, was named for the woman who started the opera program at SIUC.

"Marjorie Lawrence taught here for a number of years," Wagner said. "I met her only once, a year before she passed away. She was an incredible woman."

Wagner said she is interested in languages and has sung operas in French, Spanish, German, Russia and Italian.

Wagner said she knows some of the original German arias from the "The Abduction From The Seraglio."

The opera has been translated into English for the McLeod Theater presentation.

"The music is written to stress particular words (in the original language)," Wagner said.

When operas are translated, the words often don't have the same impact, she said.

"Like the phrase 'Martem Aller Arten,' which means, 'torture is futile.' It's just not the same. It doesn't carry the same weight (in English)," she said.

New York ballet opens $3 million production

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York City Ballet has a winner in its streamlined, $3 million production of "The Sleeping Beauty," a full-length classical ballet that marks a departure from the company's regular repertory of plotless, one-act works.

Reportedly the most expensive ballet ever mounted in the United States, the production brilliantly conceived by NYCB ballet master Peter Martins and designer David Mitchell received a gala opening Wednesday at the New York State Theater as an 84th birthday gift to the company.

There will be 15 more performances of the work through May 5, followed by performances of 40 other ballets that comprise NYCB's spring season ending June 30.

Martins and Kerstein appeared on stage before the curtain opened to drink a toast and recall that the late choreographer George Balanchine, the other company co-founder, had wanted to stage "The Sleeping Beauty" with the original Marius Petipa choreography ever since he first danced in it as a child in Russia prior to the 1917 Revolution.

Balanchine never succeeded, although he choreographed several excerpts as showpieces during his long career including a garland dance that Martins has used in the production. Thus this new "Beauty," incorporating the essence of the Petipas choreography passed down from the original 1890 St. Petersburg production, is actually a Balanchine dream come true.

Martins, who worked for four years on the project, cut more than a half-hour from the overblown but brilliant Tchaikovsky score, mostly symphonic material.

Mock plane disaster tests local emergency crews

Simulated catastrophe helps teams prepare for real-life traumas

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

A COMMUTER PLANE crash at Southern Illinois Airport west of Carbondale resulted in several casualties.

Thirty-two bleeding "victims" lay scattered on the runway as rescue workers searched for survivors in the fields surrounding the airport.

Although not real, the disaster was staged Wednesday evening to test the preparedness of local emergency and rescue crews in the event of such a problem.

At 7 p.m., a call went out on police radio that a commuter plane had crash landed at Southern Illinois Airport and all available emergency crews should respond.

The "victims" were part of the SIUC Emergency Medical Technical program and a Murphysboro health class and sported a variety of injuries.

"WE'VE GOT A COMPLETE scenario of victim traumas," said Roger Smith, disaster coordinator for St. Joseph Memorial Hospital. "From orthopedic injuries to a pregnant woman whose water will break. Everything from first aid to those who probably aren't going to make it."

More than 25 representatives from Southern Illinois Airport, Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, St. Joseph Memorial Hospital, University Health Service, Murphysboro Fire Department, Carbondale Fire and Police Departments, DeSoto Fire Department, Jackson County Emergency Service and Disaster Agency, Jackson County Sheriffs Department, Jackson County Ambulance Service and the Illinois Department of Transportation's emergency helicopter were involved in the event.

Smith said the event had been planned for about four years and was the first time it was countywide.

"It's hard to get all the agencies to work together," Smith said.

Being in the emergency response business also makes it hard to plan events, he said.

SMITH SAID THERE WERE A few minor problems mainly with communications and logistics, but overall the response of the groups was fantastic.

Kathy Odum, day shift nursing supervisor at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, served as a critiquer and said she thought the event went very well.

The hospital is required to practice emergency scenarios at least twice a year to retain its accreditation, but usually the scenarios don't involve as many organizations, Odum said.

Joe Baker, SIUC student health programs coordinator, said University Health Service was involved to get a better idea of what role it would play during a large-scale disaster.

HEALTH SERVICE IS SET up to be at the discretion of Carbondale Memorial Hospital in the event of an emergency, and would be used as a satellite organization.

Or more likely, Health Service personnel would be called to work at the hospital, Baker said.

The disaster was timed and critiqued in order to show how the organizations can better their response, he said.

Baker and Smith said they hope to do more disaster drills in the future, and Smith said he hopes to make the countywide event an annual one.

Memorial Hospital of Carbondale and St. Joseph Memorial Hospital in Murphysboro planned the mock disaster.

By Jefferson Robbins
Staff Writer

A Carbondale artist's work has found a home at the Newman Catholic Student Center.

"Geese in Flight," a 1981 watercolor by the late Celine Chu of Carbondale, was donated to Newman's art collection by Rose Padgett, retired chairwoman of SIUC's Clothing, Textiles and Interior Design Department.

This is the second Chu painting the Center has obtained. Padgett called the donation "a gift of love" for Chu, a former student who died of cancer in August 1990.

"I thought, 'Well, I'll be sure Celine will be remembered,'" Padgett said. "And I thought the piece was so typical of this area — 'Geese in Flight.'"

Chu was an excellent student who enjoyed painting natural objects, Padgett said.

"Originally she was painting animals," Padgett said. "Her love always was watercolor. Later she went into painting still lifes."

A native of Kansas, Chu settled in Carbondale in 1970 and married Joseph Chu in 1973. She was known for her love of travel and made several visits to Europe and Asia, even while studying for her master's degree under Padgett.

The donation comes at a time when Newman already is filled with examples of Chu's work. A gallery in the center, conceived by Newman minister Steve Edfors, has 28 of her paintings on display.

The paintings are on loan to the center from the collection of Joseph Chu, Edfors said.

The Chu exhibit, on display since March, is dedicated almost completely to nature — Chu's favorite subject. About 20 paintings are studies of living flowers, with several still lifes rounding out the exhibit.

Edfors, who knew Chu as a Newman parishioner, praised her for her personality and artistic vision. "Celine was one of the most gracious, aesthetically sensitive people I've ever met in my life," he said. "She had a tremendous sense of beauty. I'd like to encourage people to come and see her work."

The Chu exhibit is only a limited engagement at the center, but a date for its withdrawal has not been set. Edfors said the Newman gallery probably will continue as a forum for other student and local artists.

"We haven't got any clear plans, but we hope to keep it open to exhibit other works," Edfors said.

The Newman gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sundays.

Soviets agree to co-sponsor Mid-East peace conference

KISLOVODSK, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh said Thursday the Soviet Union has agreed to sponsor a Middle East peace conference with the United States in an effort to resolve the Arab-Israeli dispute.

Bessmertnykh made the announcement at a joint news conference with Secretary of State James Baker. Bush administration officials said they expected restoration of Soviet-Israeli ties before the actual convening of a peace conference, details of which have yet to be worked out.

Moscow cut ties with Israel during the 1967 Middle East War.

"I wish to emphasize that the Soviet Union and the United States intend to assist in the convening and holding of a peace conference about which we held a discussion, and we intend to act as sponsors of that conference," Bessmertnykh said.

The Soviet news agency Tass said that Bessmertnykh was expected to visit Israel next month, but the Soviet foreign minister told reporters he had not yet finalized the itinerary of his Middle East visit. Bessmertnykh would be the highest Soviet official to come to the Jewish state.

"Our relations with Israel are developing and if this tendency was continued in the future, there will be no difficulties in establishing full diplomatic relations," Bessmertnykh said.

Baker told the news conference there are "still some questions that have to be resolved" regarding the form of the proposed peace conference along with the issue of the Palestinian representation at the peace table.

Gorbachev offers resignation as party leader

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Mikhail Gorbachev angrily challenged the Communist Party Central Committee to accept his resignation as party leader Thursday, but the committee backed down and voted overwhelmingly to keep him in the post.

After mounting criticism during the second day of the closed party plenum, a fuming Gorbachev stormed to the podium and announced he would resign as party general secretary, the independent news agency Interfax reported.

But his deputy, Vladimir Ivashko, told the Central Committee that the party leadership in the Politburo had recommended that Gorbachev remain as general secretary for the sake of the party, and "the plenum adopted the Politburo's proposal by an overwhelming majority," Interfax said.

In his speech, Gorbachev attacked both radical reformers and hard-line Communists who have called for his resignation, saying his opponents on both sides were intent on destroying the country, according to Interfax.

In a long speech Wednesday, the first day of the meeting, he warned of dire consequences if he was forced out.

On Wednesday Gorbachev also defeated an early effort to put on the agenda the issue of dividing his dual posts as party leader and head of government, telling the plenum that it was still essential the same person hold both jobs.

But the 40-minute speech Wednesday did not stop members of the Central Committee from repeating the calls for his resignation Thursday in a constant stream of criticism that prompted him to dare the meeting to accept his resignation in what seemed a classic brinkmanship play.

The drama at the Central Committee came as thousands of striking workers demanding the government's resignation blocked a key railroad junction in the western republic of Byelorussia and walkouts continued around the country despite a joint call by Gorbachev, Boris Yeltsin and other leaders for labor peace.

Interfax said 15,000 strikers blocking the main east-west rail lines at the Byelorussian town of Orsha were bracing for a possible confrontation with militia reinforcements, including 200 members of the special forces known as "black bears."

Gorbachev persuaded his rival Yeltsin to join in a statement with leaders of eight other republics.

Regulators crack down on gulf phone scams

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — More than 30 "boiler room" telephone sales companies have been raided in an unprecedented crackdown on con artists who exploited the Persian Gulf war to bilk millions of dollars from victims across the nation, authorities announced Thursday.

The high-pressure phone scam, orchestrated by companies in Los Angeles, Dallas and Salt Lake City, lured more than 3,500 investors to sink up to $50 million into bogus oil and gas ventures.

"These telemarketing con artists have no conscience," said G.W. McDonald, chief of enforcement of the California Department of Corporations. "They think the world is divided into wolves and sheep and believe that sheep are meant to be sheared."

The raids, carried out over the past two weeks, targeted 32 boiler room operations and resulted in the arrests of 10 con artists who allegedly promised investors sky-high profits as a result of expected increases in the price of oil.

Seven of the arrests were made in California, one in Dallas and two in Salt Lake City.

As many as 30 criminal prosecutions were expected to result from the eight-month investigation, which spanned 16 states and was described by authorities as the largest assault in U.S. history on phone fraud.

The companies were able to perpetuate their fraud by sending investors monthly payments for a short time to establish their legitimacy before stopping the payments.

"They began phoning people two days after Iraq invaded Kuwait," McDonald said. "They use whatever is current in the news to make themselves sound legitimate."

The typical phone pitch would stress that the Persian Gulf crisis could drive the price of oil to $60 a barrel and that investors could earn as much as an 85 percent gain on their investment, he said.

"This is a crime that can be prevented by just saying 'no,'" said John R. Perkins, president of the North American Securities Administrators Association, which coordinated the investigation.

"Many of the con artists who perpetrate these scams will pop up somewhere else," Perkins said. "It's like the problem with cockroaches: you flip on the light in the kitchen and they scramble out of sight, but they're still around somewhere."

Investigators went undercover in their "sting" to ferret out the boiler rooms by offering to provide them with telemarketing services.

Authorities said those arrested in California were also conducting an alleged scam offering the opportunity to invest in a board game involving pop star Michael Jackson.

However, the arrestees were also suspected of offering the bogus oil and gas ventures, said Kathryn Holguin, supervising investigator at the state's Department of Corporations.

The suspects were charged with securities registration and licensing violations, securities fraud, commodity fraud, grand theft and registration violations.

Regulators said their efforts to uncover similar operations in the past few years have forced many of the con artists out of Southern California.

Man finds harmless test missile

By United Press International

A third missile has been turned over to authorities in Sheboygan, Wis., but the latest device was only a harmless test rocket, authorities said Thursday.

The 4-foot unarmed training rocket was turned over to police late Wednesday by a man who found it on the grounds of the shuttered Camp Haven Army base, which has been closed for more than 25 years, said Sheboygan police Lt. Michael Ackley.

The unidentified man had kept the rocket in his home for some time, Ackley said.

The U.S. Army and Navy have in the past used the water and land around the Wisconsin location for training purposes, Ackley said.

A team of explosive experts at Fort Sheridan, Ill., earlier Wednesday disarmed a live warhead of a Sidewinder missile found lying on a public dock at Sheboygan.

"It was a live warhead, a very real danger," said Lt. Alan Leap, Fort Sheridan spokesman. "It carried 1 to 2 pounds of explosives. Set this missile under a car and activate it by a remote control and it would destroy the car and lift it off the ground."

West Bank Jews to name street in honor of Bush

JERUSALEM (UPI) — As if George Bush didn't have enough problems, Jewish settlers in the occupied West Bank announced plans Thursday to name their new main street after him.

"It's to show our appreciation to the Americans for President Bush's determined stand in the Persian Gulf War and his actions in aid of Israel," said Dina Shalit, a spokeswoman for the town of Ariel, about 15 miles east of Tel Aviv.

Residents of Ariel, a hillside community of 10,000 founded in 1978, even invited Secretary of State James Baker to the ceremony to help dedicate the new street sign.

Having the main road leading into a Jewish settlement on the West Bank is just about the last thing that a U.S. president would want to have done while entangled in delicate peacemaking efforts with the Arabs.

Just the other day, Baker publicly denounced Jewish settlement of the territories Israel captured in the 1967 Middle East war as an "obstruction" to the peace process.

Woman in Kennedy scandal leaves TV show, starts fight

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — After storming off the set of Fox TV's "A Current Affair," a woman who was at the Kennedy compound the night of an alleged rape flew home and got into a drunken fight with her roommate, police said Thursday. Michele Cassone, 27, was abusive and drunk during the argument, but no charges were filed, police spokesman Craig Gunkel said.

Cassone was in New York Tuesday to tape a segment of the television show that was broadcast Wednesday.

The show had obtained four nude photos of her, including one of her engaged in a sex act. When interviewer Steve Dunleavy showed her the pictures, Cassone screamed, "Where did you get that? Turn off that camera."

Dunleavy said Cassone attacked him, bit his finger, kneed him in the groin and tried to strangle him with the microphone cord.

Cassone walked out of the studio and telephoned a Seattle TV station to cancel a talk show interview.

"She said she was going back to Palm Beach," said producer Liz Rocca of KOMO-TV. "She said, 'My life is a mess now. My ex-fiance sold me down the river and I'm going to go home and make him pay for it.'"

For three weeks, Cassone has given a series of interviews about her adventure at the Kennedys' Palm Beach estate the night of March 29. She was the source for a New York Post article that said Sen. Edward Kennedy greeted her wearing only a shirt.

William Kennedy Smith, nephew of the Massachusetts Democrat, is a suspect in the alleged rape of another woman at the Palm Beach estate that night.

He has not been charged, and has denied any wrongdoing.

Clowning around

Students have fun making people laugh in non-credit class

University News Service

The thing hunkered down on the classroom floor sounded like a reluctant lawn mower — but it looked like a small boy in a clown outfit.

One by one, a stream of helpers came up and tried to start that lawn mower. There was the hobo with the tulips in her pocket, the sweet-faced lady with hearts on her cheeks, the Groucho-nose grinner with the bowler hat ... They tried to jumpstart it, they tried to take apart its innards, a couple gave a disgusted kick in its general direction, and one even pried apart the engine — or was it a mouth? — and peered inside.

But then a boy with orange yarn hair and a big painted smile strode purposefully past the big people, picked up an invisible plug and stuck it in the wall socket. And the lawn mower burst into action and crawled away, roaring happily.

That totally impromptu shtick was no vaudeville act, but part of a continuing education class at SIUC. The class, "Clowning", is open to third-graders through adults. Classes are finished for this spring, but a new series will start at the end of August.

Self-taught clown Betty Morefield teaches students clown movements, expressions and mime techniques, how to apply makeup and how to assemble their own unique costume.

She also teaches them how to have fun.

"A regular teacher would probably be envious of having this much enthusiasm in a class," Morefield said. "They're all so interested, so excited about it." Students learn to give joy to others as well.

"One of the most impressive things about clowning is the smile it brings people's faces just because you're there," Morefield said.

The two-hour, once-a-week class runs four weeks. By week three, the classroom looks like the backstage of a circus: students in motley array, tables littered with pots and tubes of greasepaint.

"Everyone decides what kind of clown they want to be, and they learn to do it by themselves," Morefield said.

Pat Elsaid of Carbondale paid "about seven dollars for her whole outfit at a thrift store," even though her psychedellic tie and nightmare jacket sport designer labels.

Laura D. Buckley of Jonesboro, a nurse at the SIUC Health Center, has adopted a costume that "evolves over time," and currently comprising a bridal hat and shoes from second-hand stores, a mop wig and brand new suspenders.

The clowns are "on" much of the time.

"Want a peanut?" asks 8-year-old Mark Beyer of Carbondale, grinning wickedly. He proffers a peanut jar containing only a spring-loaded fake snake.

"He's a natural clown," says his mother, who took the class herself. "This class has been good for him."

The fledgling clowns have varying aspirations. Elsaid would "do anything for children or hospitals," Buckley will appear at the Special Olympics, and Charlene Kozara of Carbondale has already appeared as a clown as part of her job — at a mall opening and a child's birthday.

Morefield, the teacher, works as an income tax consultant by day. But she can metamorphose quickly. All she has to do is slip into her baggy costume, put on her son's striped socks, her fat polka-dotted tie, her rainbow-colored wig, and her makeup and voila! B.J. the silly clown.

Morefield has performed in parades, at parties, at the Special Olympics, with Scouts, at her granddaughter's school and at hospitals.

She tries to encourage her students to learn by doing, just as she did.

"I'm just there to give them suggestions, history, pointers. The only way you can learn what it's like being a clown is just to do it."

Empire repairs spark interest of onlookers

NEW YORK (UPI) — When a half dozen repairmen scaled the Empire State Building's TV antenna mast Thursday, they touched off an epidemic of skywatching.

Within a half hour, thousands of pedestrians in the streets below were looking up to the mast above the 102nd top floor of the skyscraper — and many baffled onlookers were pointing skyward.

"Steeplejacks? Or someone who's going to jump?" asked John Bailey, a tourist from Dublin. Asked if he'd ever seen anything like it before, he replied, "No but I've certainly read about it."

The sight recalled old stories about spidermen, the man who climbed the exterior of one of the World Trade Center towers, and even King Kong.

Eric Henderson, 33, of the Bronx, who described himself as a messenger "off and on" for 17 years, said he had seen both the spiderman and the Trade Center climber.

"Maybe they're changing light bulbs or cutting off your pirate cable TV box," he offered. "It's New York. Maybe he's going to jump. Check it out. There's a lot of pressure here in the city. Maybe he's fed up."

David King, 26, of Manhattan, watched with a girlfriend.

"Is he killing himself, or making a political statement or is it a King Kong fascination?" King ruminated.

Trump to break up financial holdings

NEW YORK (UPI) — Donald Trump said Thursday much of his financial empire will be broken up and many assets, including his personal yacht, will go to a syndicate of banks that lent the embattled financier $2 billion last year.

Nevertheless, Trump said he will keep many key assets. "This is a positive story," he insisted in a telephone interview. "This shows Trump will be around forever."

Trump said he will keep the Plaza Hotel in Manhattan and turn some rooms into condominiums, "but not that many."

He also will retain the Penn Central railroad yards property on the West Side of Manhattan and turn that into a mixed development of commercial and residential space within the next 18 months. Trump said he planned "quite a few more developments" but declined to elaborate.

"We have reduced debt substantially," he said. "When you reduce debt, you have to sell assets," he said.

He contended his casinos in Atlantic City, N.J., including the Taj Mahal, have done record business. "We've done well," Trump said.

This will leave Trump with ownership in three Atlantic City casinos, the rail yards, the Plaza and commercial and residential space in the glitzy Trump Tower in Manhattan.

Trump still is selling a substantial number of his assets, and many of the banks in the Citicorp-led loan syndicate are close to signing tentative agreements that would give them some of Trump's assets. The banks declined to discuss any financial arrangements, but Trump confirmed them.

The $2 billion agreement entered with the banks nine months ago was created to keep Trump's empire afloat, but key lenders decided to back out in the face of the New York real estate tycoon's continuing financial struggles.

Trump's assets were put up as collateral for his outstanding loans, and he had three to five years to sell or refinance the properties to pay off the debts. But the current recession and rise in oil prices that cut down leisure activities hurt the performance of some Trump assets like the shuttle, hotels and casino properties.

Under the tentative pacts, the banks would release Trump from some of the millions in loans that he personally guaranteed.

The new agreements would hand over Trump's 27 percent stake in Alexander's department stores to Citicorp, while his 50 percent share in the New York Grand Hyatt Hotel, which is near Grand Central Station, would go to Bankers Trust New York Corp.

Another pact would give the famous 282-foot Trump yacht to the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Co., an American Express Co. subsidiary.

The flamboyant real estate mogul's Regency Hotel in Atlantic City would be sold, and most of the proceeds from that sale would go to Manufacturers Hanover Trust.

The Trump Shuttle Airline would be taken over by NWA Inc., parent of Northwest Airlines, and several banks would get an equity interest in the shuttle. Trump said the deal would be completed in 90 days.

Game helps students talk about sex

By Stephanie Pickett
Student Writer

A trivia game developed by the Health Advocate staff is being used at SIUC to get students more involved in discussions about sexuality.

The board game, Sexual Positions — Perspectives on College Sexuality, has four subject areas: sexually transmitted diseases, decision making, communication and birth control.

The answers are not printed on the back of the questions because the purpose of the game is to facilitate discussion about sexuality issues. Carren Summerfield, coordinator of sexuality education, held a recent seminar at the Student Center. During the game, Summerfield gave players additional information after they had answered the question.

One of the questions in the birth control category was, "When should a woman get her diaphragm checked?" Players agreed that a diaphragm should be checked yearly. However, women should also get their diaphragms checked when they experience weight loss or gain or if the diaphragm moves around during sex, Summerfield explained.

A card in the communication category asked, "Why do men find it hard to show emotions?" One player pointed out that men are afraid of saying the wrong thing and men have to live up to a macho image — The Marlboro Man.

"The macho thing also comes from being around my father for 20 years," he said.

The consequences of having sex was a topic covered in the decision-making category. Some of the obvious consequences of sex include pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases. A person may also regret having sex or be confused after sex.

"A lot of times what happens, people have sex too early in a relationship, and then they try to justify having sex by kind of committing themselves to this relationship, but they are not really sure they want to be with this person," Summerfield said.

Although the game players knew genital warts were a sexually transmitted disease, they did not know that genital warts very often go undetected, especially in females. Also, genital warts have been linked to cancer, Summerfield said.

The game began as an idea of Dianne Steinhoff, former graduate assistant at the Wellness Center. Dennis Aizenza, graduate assistant at Health Advocates, and Paula Hendrix, graduate assistant at the Wellness Center, developed the idea into a board game and began using it in Health Advocate seminars early last fall.

The Health Advocates are working on getting the game marketed and copyrighted. In May, they will present the game at the American Health Association Convention in Boston.

Each category is color coded, and players begin in the colored category that matches their game pieces — a colored condom. Players roll dice to move and take cards in the subject area they are in.

When players land on a sexual position spot, a card is drawn from any of the four categories. Sexual position cards have true-false, multiple choice and fill-in questions.

Players can also land on take-a-chance spots that lose or gain points for players. The card may read, "You had sex before you were ready — lose three points," or "You know your sexual partner's past — gain three points."

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

Please Be Sure To Check Your Classified Advertisement For Errors On The First Day Of Publication

The Daily Egyptian cannot be responsible for more than one day's incorrect insertion. Advertisers are responsible for checking their advertisements for errors on the first day they appear. Errors not the fault of the advertiser which lessen the value of the advertisement will be adjusted.

All classified advertising must be processed before 12:00 Noon to appear in the next day's publication. Anything processed after 12:00 Noon will go in the following day's publication. Classified advertising must be paid in advance except for those accounts with established credit. A 25¢ charge will be added to billed classified advertising. A service charge of $7.50 will be added to the advertiser's account for every check returned to the Daily Egyptian unpaid by the advertiser's bank. Early cancellation of a classified advertisement will be charged a $2.00 service fee. Any refund under $2.00 will be forfeited due to the cost of processing.

All advertising submitted to the Daily Egyptian is subject to approval and may be revised, rejected, or cancelled at any time.

The Daily Egyptian assumes no liability if for any reason it becomes necessary to omit an advertisement.

A sample of all mail-order items must be submitted and approved prior to deadline for publication.

No ads will be mis-classified.

Mulholland hurt by mistake

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Terry Mulholland, the best of a sorry Philadelphia Phillies' starting staff, made a mistake, and the result was his shortest outing of the season.

With the Phillies leading the New York Mets 3-0, Mulholland passed up the sure out at first base on a sacrifice bunt and tried to get the runner at second.

But his throw sailed into center field, putting runners on second and third, and the Mets scored a pair of runs on their way to a 7-3 victory Tuesday night.

"It was a stupid play," Mulholland said. "I didn't need to make the play at second. All I needed to do was throw to first and get the second out with a runner on second. Then all I need is one more out. So what if they score one run. It's still a 3-1 ballgame."

Instead it was 3-2 and, in the next inning, it became 3-3 and Mulholland was knocked out after 5 2-3 innings, his shortest outing of the young season.

"I tried to make up for it," he said. "I realized how stupid it was and I began to overthrow. When you do that, the ball rises in the strike zone and you either get hit or fall behind the hitters and I did both. I'm upset about squandering a three-run lead. That's not the way I'm supposed to play."

And it's not the kind of performance the Phillies can receive from Mulholland, the team's only proven starting pitcher.

Mulholland became the staff ace by default when Ken Howell was lost to a shoulder injury in spring training. He pitched well in his first three starts, losing a 2-1 decision to New York's Dwight Gooden on opening day, winning 4-2 against St. Louis and losing 3-1 to the Cardinals.

With Pat Combs, Jose DeJesus and Jason Grimsley all struggling, the Phillies need a good performance from Mulholland just about every time out.

Despite that pressure, Mulholland insisted he can only focus on his task at hand.

"What was done in the past is in the past and you can't look to the future," he said. "You just have to take care of the present and I didn't do a good job of that."

"I'm 1-2 and by all rights I should have gotten the loss. Now I just have to get ready for the next one. This one is done."

Before his mistake, Mulholland had his way with the Mets, giving up only two hits and one walk in the first four innings.

Freshman left fielder Dan Esplin singled to plate Smothers. Esplin and Nelson then attempted a double steal.

Esplin slid in safe at second, but Nelson, after bowling over the catcher who was blocking the plate, was called out. This resulted in Nelson getting kicked out of the remainder of the game.

The only other time the Racers pulled ahead was during the fifth. The Dawgs had seven runs and Murray State scored two to take the lead with eight.

Dax Myhand reached on Manne's error and then Schoen smacked a double. Alfeld singled and plated both runners.

The Racers did not stay ahead for long. The Salukis scored two runs in the sixth and their winning two in the eighth while keeping Murray State runless for the rest of the contest.

SIUC finished the game neatly and cleanly. Three Racers came up to bat and those three were the final outs. This was the first time of the game to bring up and then out three in a row.

Van Gilder capped off the victory, striking out the final batter, making it his sixth of the game.

"Mike pitched great," Riggelman said. "He never let them get ahead for too long. All of our players did great. They never gave up."

"This has not been an easy season for them, but they are continuing to improve. No one can count us out of the running yet because we keep rebounding. I think it reflects off our players and how they continue to improve while never giving up."

The Salukis next play two doubleheaders this weekend at home with the Illinois State Redbirds.

Riggelman said these victories will give the team hope in the upcoming games this weekend at home.

"We wanted to go into the games on a positive note," Riggelman said, "and now we can do that."

Illinois State is 19-21 overall, but only 1-11 in Missouri Valley Conference play. The Redbirds are in the last position in the conference tournament.

Play begins at noon Saturday and Sunday at Abe Martin Field.

hammer and discus.

The Salukis will counter with freshmen Torry King and Brian Miller. King leads the Missouri Valley Conference in the discus and Miller is third in the shot put.

Saluki men's head coach Bill Cornell said there are many class athletes coming to the Saluki Invite.

"There is good competition in every event," Cornell said. "Several events feature two or three athletes who could qualify for the NCAA outdoor championships."

Both teams will be looking to qualify individuals for the NCAA Outdoor Championships. All-American sophomore Darrin Plab has already made the cut by virtue of his 7-6 1/2 leap during the indoor season.

Junior Ed Williams will be trying to lower his time of 13.82 seconds in the 110-meter high hurdles. Williams is already a provisional qualifier.

Others attempting to qualify from the men's team are sophomores Bernard Henry in the 800-meters and Gerald Owen in the 1500-meters. Juniors Garrett Hines in the 200-meter dash, Nick Schwartz in the 1500-meters and Mark Stuart in the steeplechase will also try to top the qualifying standard.

Bill Cornell said the 4x100-meter relay team is also very close to qualifying.

"Every week we're looking for the 4x100 relay team to get closer to 40 seconds flat," Cornell said. "But if the level of competition is there and the weather cooperates, all those individuals have a chance at qualifying."

The women's team is led by junior Jamie Dashner, who won the javelin competition at the Saluki Invite last year. Dashner shattered the school record in the javelin last week and became a NCAA provisional qualifier.

Three other previous Saluki Invitational winners are returning for the Salukis. Sophomore Nacolia Moore won the triple jump last year.

Sophomores Brandi Mock and Shaurae Winfield were on the winning 4x400-meter relay last year. Mock has been red-shirted because of a knee injury.

Bretchelsbauer said the team is not concerned with rankings and playing good softball is all that matters at this point in the season.

"Our national statistics are impressive," Bretchelsbauer said. "That shows the amount of hard work our team has put in. The most important part of our season is still ahead, but I'm proud of what we have done so far."

"All we are concerned about now is taking every game pitch by pitch. I feel we are ready to take on Illinois State and Indiana State this weekend."

Illinois State coach Melinda Fischer agrees the Salukis should be ranked in the Top 20.

"Southern has been toying with being in the Top 20 all season and record-wise, they deserve to be in there," Fischer said. "They return a nucleus of players and their entire pitching staff."

Bretchelsbauer said maturity and balance are the Salukis' key to success this season. With these two assets, the Salukis could win the Gateway Champions

"Offensive balance has been our strong suit," Bretchelsbauer said. "You can look up and down our lineup and there is no easy out. Everyone on the team is contributing in one way or another."

"This team also has more speed than any other I have ever coached. That helps you on the field and on the bases. As a coach, it increases your options. The bottom line is we have the players to make things happen."

Blazers eye championship

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Portland Trail Blazers and Seattle SuperSonics, who open their best-of-five playoff series Friday in Portland, are two teams with different agendas going into post-season action.

The Trail Blazers, owners of an NBA-best 63-19 record this season after losing to Detroit in last year's NBA finals, won't be satisfied unless they win their second NBA championship.

The Sonics, 41-41, are just happy to make the playoffs after finishing a season that saw them start basically two rookies (Gary Payton and Shawn Kemp), make three major trades and start five guys who didn't start a year ago.

On paper, the Blazers, who had a 16-game winning streak snapped by Phoenix on the last day of the regular season, figure to sweep the Sonics, who were 0-4 against Portland this season. Or maybe the Sonics will win once in Portland in a game that serves as a wake-up call for the talented Blazers.

Celtics need Bird for playoffs

BOSTON (UPI) — The numbers tell how much the Boston Celtics need Larry Bird.

Since the star forward joined the Celtics 12 seasons ago, the team has played five post-season games without him—and they've lost all five.

This year, Boston compiled the NBA's fourth-best record, 56-26. With Bird in the lineup, the team was an exceptional 46-14. But his continued back problems have sidelined him for 22 games and without Bird the Celtics were not even a .500 team, managing only a 10-12 mark.

On Friday, the Celtics will open the playoffs by hosting the Indiana Pacers in Game One of their best-of-seven series. But Bird has not practiced in the four days since the regular season ended and his status officially is given out as "day-to-day."

Boston coach Chris Ford sounded like a coach as he acknowledged reality, then applied a coat of optimism.

"We haven't been successful without Larry but I think we have the ability to be successful without him," said Ford.

Reggie Lewis, Boston's shooting guard, said, "We still feel we can win, even though we don't have Larry. He is very important to us but we have to move on."

Bird has an inflamed disc in his lower back and surgery this summer is a strong possibility. If he does play in the post-season, the pain is expected to hamper him.

Indiana's Chuck Person commented, "The fact that he can't compete at 100 percent is good for us—but he can still do a lot of things."

Whether or not Bird plays, Indiana is expected to be a tough opponent. The Pacers were just 41-41 during the regular season but split their four games with Boston.

An extra incentive is that the franchise has not won a playoff series since moving from the ABA to the NBA in 1976.

The Pacers are a young team with an effective three-guard rotation and fast big men who cause matchup problems for the Celtics' slower frontcourt.

In the final four games of the regular season, Indiana guards Reggie Miller, Vern Fleming and Michael Williams combined to average 52 points.

Miller said the rotation "is working real well. It adds a little more stability because guys know when they're coming in and coming out."

Boris Becker advances in Monte Carlo

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — Boris Becker, forced to rally for the second day in a row after dropping the first set, progressed to the quarterfinals of the $1 million Monte Carlo Open Thursday while more seeds tumbled out of the action.

Becker, ranked No. 2 in the world, disposed of No. 16 Alexander Volkov of the Soviet Union 3-6, 6-1, 6-1, and is the only one of the top five seeds to reach the quarterfinals.

Frenchman Guy Forget, seeded third, and No. 5 Goran Ivanisevic of Yugoslavia both were ousted Thursday, joining No. 1 Stefan Edberg and No. 4 Andre Agassi on the sidelines.

Forget, who shot to a world No. 4 ranking this season after a string of good results in Australia and indoors, was hammered 6-2, 6-0 by Yugoslav Goran Prpic.

In the quarterfinals Prpic meets German Carl-Uwe Steeb, who beat Ivanisevic, 2-6, 6-0, 6-2.

Becker also had his problems in only his second clay court tournament this season. He lost the opening three games against Volkov and never put up a challenge in the opening set.

Falcons won't pursue draft choice Sutton

SUWANEE, Ga. (UPI) — The Atlanta Falcons did an about face Thursday and said they would make no effort to sign their 10th-round draft choice Walter Sutton who is scheduled to go to jail because of a drug conviction.

Wednesday, Ken Herock, vice president of player personnel for the Falcons, denied that Sutton, a wide receiver from Southwest (Minn.) State, would be unable to play professional football because of the pending jail sentence.

Sutton, of Ft. Myers, Fla., pleaded guilty last September in U.S. District Court in Florida to two counts of conspiracy to possess and distribute crack cocaine between 1986 and 1988. Judge Elizabeth Kovachevich sentenced him in February to a nine-year prison term but delayed imprisonment until Jan. 28, 1992 to allow him to complete work on a degree in sociology.

On Wednesday, Herock said,

"Our understanding and feeling is that there is not going to be a jail term. It's our understanding that he's been under supervision with a probation person."

But Thursday, Herock took a different stance, saying, "Obviously, the information provided to us before the draft was, indeed, inaccurate and misleading."

"The statement is correct about NFL teams having been given the wrong impression," Herock continued. "Had we known all these facts that we now know, we would not have made a decision to select Walter Sutton in this draft and we will not pursue any efforts to sign him to an NFL contract."

Sutton's attorney attorney, Roy Henline, of St. Paul, Minn., said Wednesday that Sutton has been cooperating with federal authorities, but that there is no agreement at present that would keep him out of prison.

Illini forward Thomas breaks hand in workout

CHAMPAIGN (UPI) — Illinois forward Deon Thomas fractured his left wrist during an informal workout and will be in a cast for about three months.

Thomas averaged 15.1 points and 6.8 rebounds in his first season with the Illini last year after sitting out 1989 as a redshirt.

He fractured the navicular bone in the same wrist he injured during the 1990 season and had taped his wrist throughout the year.

Illinois trainer Rod Cardinals said Thomas probably will undergo a bone graft from his hip in mid-May.

Thomas was playing at the sports complex for Illinois students and staff on Monday when the injury occurred.

Pistons begin quest for third straight title

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (UPI) — Isiah Thomas isn't ready to compare this year's Detroit Pistons team to the ones that won the last two NBA championships.

"I can't compare this team to the other two because haven't proven anything yet," Thomas said as the Pistons prepared for their first-round playoff series with the Atlanta Hawks.

Game 1 of the best-of-five Eastern Conference quarterfinal series will be played Friday at The Palace.

"This team hasn't won two championships," Thomas continued, referring to the current edition of the team. "You can't compare something that doesn't exist. When it's over, then we can start making analyses."

Thomas, who returned to action sooner than expected after wrist surgery, isn't discounting the Pistons' chances of a third straight championship although the team is not favored to repeat.

"We're underdogs. We finished third in our conference, but I think we're capable of winning again," Thomas said. "If we execute well, if we play well, we can win it again."

The Pistons swept the Hawks in the five-game regular season series, but that doesn't mean Detroit's players are looking at Atlanta as a soft touch.

"It's the best first-round team we've played since the last time we met Atlanta (in 1985-86 when the Hawks took the series 3-1)," Thomas said.

Veteran guard Vinnie Johnson, who sank the winning basket with less than a second left to beat Portland in last year's NBA Finals, agreed with Thomas.

"They're scary because they can play awesome or just go through us motions," Johnson said. "We expect their level of intensity to be high because it's the playoffs."

Johnson said the key to the Pistons' success is the team's defense. Detroit held its opponents under 100 points in a club-record 51 games this season. The Pistons had a 43-8 record in those contests.

Bears quiet about stadium move

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS (UPI) — The Chicago Bears were off to the races Thursday with the start of their minicamp but the team is not preparing—at least yet—to move its operations to Arlington International Racecourse, team and track officials said.

Arlington owner Richard Duchossois denied published reports he and Bears owner Michael McCaskey met Wednesday to talk about building a new stadium on land adjacent to the northwest suburban racetrack.

The talk was fueled by a decision earlier this week in Chicago not to pursue funding for a new domed stadium to replace aging Soldier Field as the home of the NFL franchise.

"The report that ... McCaskey and I have been discussing moving the team to Arlington Heights is completely untrue and with no basis in fact," Duchossois said in a statement.

The meetings were reported in the Wednesday edition of the Arlington Heights Daily Herald, which quoted "a source close to both sides."

"I don't know who concocted this story or why they would make this up," Duchossois said in a statement. "But, again, I have not discussed this matter with any member of the Bears' management for years."

Duchossois said he promised Chicago Mayor Richard Daley when Daley was sworn into office two years ago that he would not discuss a Bears' move to Arlington Heights without first consulting Daley.

Bears' spokesman Bryan Harlan said the decision by the Metropolitan Pier and Exposition Authority to put a dome on the back burner was not a surprise to the Bears and will not be the impetus for an immediate move.

"That was not a new development to us," he said. "We had accepted that we were going to have to go at a new stadium ourselves."

The Bears have talked in the past about moving to the suburbs unless a city alternative to Soldier Field is made available. With both the city and the state of Illinois facing financial hard times, however, Daley has declined to push for a dome and Gov. Jim Edgar has turned thumbs down.
