Springfest should end—USG leader

By Jeremy Finley
General Assignment Writer

Undergraduate Student Government President Jack Sullivan said Monday he will endorse a call to end Springfest after 2,000 students wrecked havoc throughout the city's streets this weekend.

Crowds of students Saturday night spilled into the streets in the early hours of Saturday and Sunday mornings, resulting in 187 arrests and the demolition of a 1989 Ford Festiva.

Police used Mace to disperse the crowds about 3 a.m. Sunday when fights erupted and a mass of students tried to cross a police line.

Sullivan said he sees no justification for continuing Springfest.

"No party or good time is worth what happened," he said.

A group of students who demolished a car on Beveridge Street late Saturday solidifies Sullivan's beliefs that Springfest should not continue, he said.

"The car incident was on my street, and whoever did it could have continued to ignite the car (and) everyone within 20 feet would have been killed," he said. "One life of a student is not worth the good time of 100."

But Jason Beverlin, Springfest chairman, said the news that USG officials may endorse the cancellation of the annual Spring festival saddens him.

"All I can say is that the day's events were successful," Beverlin said. "I am embarrassed to be an SIUC student after what happened."

"It depresses me to know that something we planned for the day was so successful and something that happened at night may cancel everything," he said.

Fewer arrested on campus during annual spring party

By John McCadd
Police Writer

SIUC Police arrested 32 festival-goers on campus this year during Springfest, down from 39 arrests in 1991.

Only five of the 32 arrests were students. Last year 23 of 39 arrests were of non-SIUC students.

SIUC Police Sgt. Nelson Perry said a number of alcohol related arrests are anticipated during events such as Springfest.

But off campus, police arrested 187 people during Springfest weekend. Of those arrested, 96 were in connection with public possession/consumption of alcohol.

Carbondale Police Chief Donald Strom said the number of public consumption arrests concerns him.

"I don't know if they're naive or just ignorant of the law," Strom said. "If you've lived in

Calm returns to quake area in California

FERNDALE, Calif. (UPI) — Children went fishing, the garbage men made their regular pickups and lawns were being mowed Monday as an eerie sense of normalcy returned to parts of northern California devastated by a series of weekend earthquakes that destroyed at least 108 homes and inflicted $51 million in damages.

Gov. Pete Wilson, who on Saturday issued a state disaster proclamation, said he was considering whether to ask for federal disaster aid for Humboldt County. News of the governor's considerations calmed the anxieties of many residents who feared that the ruralness of the area would limit the amount from state and federal agencies.

"I think the speed with which this area will recover will be a factor of how much the state and federal governments get financially involved," said Michael Welch, a resident of Arcata. "We live behind the redwood curtain up here and see this kind of thing (lack of funds) all the time. The larger cities get all the attention while rural areas often get ignored."

Wilson also announced he would tour the northern California coast on Tuesday to survey the damage.

Victims of the quake received some good news Monday from the office of Insurance Commissioner John Garamendi. They were told the state's financially troubled earthquake fund contains enough money to cover the damage claims from this weekend's tremors.

"We believe there is enough money in the fund and in the pipeline to pay all claims given the rough estimates we have received so far," said Bill Schultz, a Garamendi spokesman.

Welcome aboard

Members of the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity introduce its new members, (left to right) Richard Melvin, Omar Moore, Steve Skinner and Amadou M. Bah, to students at Neely Hall. The fraternity walked its newest members from Anthony Hall over the bridge to Neely Hall about 9:30 p.m. Sunday, when the new members became public. This is known as The Walk of Death and is performed every semester. Sunday afternoon, all of the fraternities and sororities at SIUC introduced their newest members to each other during a meeting of Pan-Hellenic Council at Carbondale Community High School, right.

Salukis take two against Southeast

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

The SIUC softball team showed signs of recovering from its offensive slump in a doubleheader against Southeast Missouri Monday.

The Salukis won the first game 4-3 and the second 5-0 to avenge a doubleheader sweep by SEMO earlier in the season. SIUC improved to 26-19-1.

SIUC came out hitting strong and played better than it did April 7 when Southeast took two close games, Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said.

"We lost two one-run ball games that we thought we could have won," Brechtelsbauer said. "I like the way our team came out today hitting, doing some really good things."

Three tough twinbills ahead for softball team

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

THE SIUC SOFTBALL team will play three important Gateway Conference doubleheaders this week before the conference tournament.

The Salukis, 4-5 in the Gateway, are currently in eighth place but have a chance to move up before the Gateway Conference Championship May 7.

The Salukis were led by a strong performance from junior right fielder Colleen Holloway. She led off the fifth inning in game two with a home run and was five-for-

Softball Notes

The Salukis play Eastern Illinois, 4-4 in the Gateway, today at EIU, and Wichita State, 11-3, Friday. Southwest Missouri State, 10-4, will visit Saturday.

EIU is fifth in the conference, WSU is first and SMSU is second.

The Salukis have had a tough time against conference foes in close games. SIUC is 10-2 in non-conference one-run games, but the Salukis have an 0-6 record against Gateway foes. Similarly SIUC is 5-0 in extra-inning games against non-conference teams and is 0-1-1 against conference rivals.

Pitching coach Gary Buckles said the week will be important.

put it together really well in these two games."

In game one right fielder Robyn Sitzes led off the third inning with a triple for Southeast. First sacker Shelly Trieb followed with a single to bring her home.

In the bottom of the third, senior shortstop Cheryl Venovsky reached second on a single and error and came home on a single by Holloway. Junior left fielder Karrie Irvin followed Holloway with a single, and both runners came home on a triple by senior center fielder Kim Johannsen.

SEMO scored two more runs in the fourth inning. Designated hitter Traci Wren led off the inning with a triple. Freshman pitcher Shelly Lane, 8-7, overthrew the ball to third. The Salukis had a chance to

Women's track gets preparation for conference

By Karyn Viverito

The SIUC women's track team went its separate ways and still managed to perform well both in and out of the spotlight.

The Salukis sent 16 athletes to the nationally renowned Drake relays, while the rest of the team ventured off to compete in the Murray State Invitational.

Overall, solid performances were given at both Drake and MSU, coach Don DeNoon said.

"I think we had some outstanding performances combined with good effort," he said. "We are getting great preparation for our final goal, which is the conference championships."

Junior Becky Coyne led the Salukis at Drake where the team found itself plighted against a field of over 150 teams.

Dawgs' wins improve chance for tournament

By Scott Wuerz
Sports Writer

THE BASEBALL SALUKIS kept their hopes alive for a berth in the Missouri Valley Conference tournament, winning two of three weekend games at Illinois State.

With five tough conference games to go, however, head coach Sam Riggelman said the Dawgs still have a tough road to follow to reach the post-season.

"We're absolutely not guaranteed we'll make the play-offs at this point," he said. "We're going to have to win two or three more ball games to assure ourselves a spot, and that won't be easy against (remaining MVC opponents No. 4) Wichita State and (No. 17) Indiana State."

Riggelman said the Salukis were successful in the Saturday and Sunday victories because several players adapted quickly to new roles.

Closer Ryan McWilliams shut down the Redbirds in his first start of the season, going the distance in the Dawgs' 8-2 victory

Baseball Notebook

Saturday, Ed Janke sparked the SIUC offense with a move from fourth in the batting order to the leadoff spot, and Henry Lemieux nailed down the Salukis' 6-3 victory on Sunday filling in for McWilliams as tie closer.

"McWilliams and Lemieux responded in clutch situations in the series and it was a big lift for us," he said. "It's really a credit to McWilliams to step in and go nine innings for us in his first start and Lemieux did a great job closing it out for us."

"Janke moved to the leadoff spot because we felt like we weren't getting the production we wanted from the top of the order. (First baseman Darin) Barton and (third baseman Brian) Heather have been swinging hot bats so we wanted to get someone on base in front of them," he said.

Golf team adds 3 new players for next season

By Karyn Viverito
Sports Writer

SIUC's women's golf team signed three new recruits to strengthen the squad for next season.

The new Salukis who accepted scholarship offers are Jennifer Prasse of Noblesville, Ind., Kristen Oglesby of Decatur and Molly Hudgins of Murphysboro.

Coach Diane Daugherty said she feels the Salukis obtained a good recruiting class for the future.

"We're only losing one senior who has competed on a regular basis, and we've already added two transfers," she said. "That means this group will be challenged to make an impact next year."

Prasse comes out of Noblesville High School following in the steps of senior Anne Childress.

She is a three time all-conference pick and was a quarterfinalist in the state junior championships.

REPUBLICS PROCLAIM 'NEW' YUGOSLAVIA — Communist-ruled Serbia cemented its grip Monday on the wreckage of former Yugoslavia by proclaiming with allied Montenegro a new, smaller federation from which the major Western powers withheld recognition as the legitimate successor of its defunct namesake. The United States and 11 of the 12 European Community nations were joined by Canada, Australia, Japan and other countries in boycotting the proclamation.

BATTLE RAGES OVER AFGHAN CAPITAL — Rival guerrilla groups pounded each other with tank and cannon fire and Mig jets screeched over the city on strafing runs Monday after a cease-fire between the leaders of the feuding rebel factions failed to end the struggle for control of the Afghan capital. The forces of the newly formed rebel council drove the troops of rival hard-line guerrilla leader Gulbuddin Hekmatyar out of the center of the capital.

CHERNOBYL REACTORS MAY BE ACTIVATED — Ukrainian authorities may have to reactivate two Chernobyl nuclear reactors if they fail to get the necessary funds to build a new independent heating system, the European Community environment commissioner said Monday. Carlo Ripa di Meana said he was told during a recent visit to Kiev the absence of heating, previously provided by two of the Chernobyl reactors, could become dramatic during the winter.

JAPANESE PEACE BOAT ARRIVES IN CAMBODIA — A Japanese humanitarian organization arrived in Phnom Penh Monday with a shipload of relief goods, saying Japanese soldiers should not join the United Nations peacekeeping force in Cambodia. "We oppose the idea of sending Japanese troops to Cambodia because it is against the Japanese constitution," said Yoshioka Tatsuya, a representative of the Peace Boat organization.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH RATE HITS 68-YEAR LOW — The National Safety Council said Monday the nation's accidental death rate in 1991 jumped to a 68-year low and said three-quarters of the reduction came from the lowest motor-vehicle death toll since 1962. The council said its preliminary figures put 1991 accidental deaths in the United States at approximately 88,500, a 5-percent decline from 93,500 in 1990. The 1991 total is the lowest since 1924.

SYRIA LIFTS TRAVEL RESTRICTIONS ON JEWS — The process of normalization between Syria and the United States took a giant step forward Monday when Damascus lifted travel and property-ownership restrictions on the 3,800 Jews that live there, a State Department spokeswoman said Monday. The easing of restrictions on Syrian Jews is an issue Secretary of State James Baker has discussed on at least 10 occasions with President Hafez Assad.

TERM-LIMIT AMENDMENT NEARS DEADLINE — Supporters of a proposed constitutional amendment that would limit state lawmakers' terms said Monday they are confident the question will go before voters during the November general election. Robert Redfern of Fairfield, chairman of the conservative group Illinois Forum, said term-limit proponents should have almost twice as many petition signatures as they need to put the issue before the voters.

BURRIS FILES SUIT IN TEXAS SCAM — Illinois Attorney General Roland Burris Monday sued a Texas company on charges it used a mail and telephone scam to defraud Illinois consumers. The attorney general filed suit against Allied Marketing Group Inc. and two of its subsidiaries, Sweepstakes Clearinghouse and Audio Telecom. Burris accused Allied Marketing of fraudulent practices, including one where consumers were notified they won prizes when had not.

salaries." The handbook touches on various aspects of academic publishing such as agents and book proposals to royalties and subsidiary contracts.

The pressure for faculty to publish their work could be lessened using a new National Education Association publication.

"Publish Without Perishing: A Practical Handbook for Academic Authors," a book written by a former newspaper reporter and college professor in a joint project between NEA and the National Writers Union, was released last week.

Author Peter Benjaminson said in a statement that some educators fear their professional careers will be destroyed if they do not publish at least once every several years, so many of them search out any publisher who will get their work to the public.

"Academics produce a significant portion of the books published in the United States, especially important nonfiction," Benjaminson said. "But, faculty accept substandard contracts, masking such acceptance with the rationale that their main source of income is from college

"A book contract should be an academic author's bill of rights, not a list of shame," meaning the contract should list the author's rights and not a list of things which the author is not entitled, according to the book.

The book includes specific examples of original ideas that would score with publishers and urges authors to find a niche in their field about which to write.

Carolyn McRoy, a teaching assistant for educational psychology, said she currently is writing her dissertation and such a book will help her because she hopes to publish at least part of her work.

The book also includes an index that lists various university press publishers and what type of work they usually print. SIU University ing academics, athletics and registered student organizations.

Each received a certificate and membership in the SIUC Alumni Association.

Four juniors received $200 for the Super Student Scholarships. Winners have a cumulative 3.2 grade point average, are active in at least two registered student organizations and are employed.

The junior recipients include: J. LaShon Yates of Peoria, Margaret O'Boyle of Murphysboro, Susan Curvey from Taylorville and Katherine Marie Piper from Elkhart.

The 25 most distinguished seniors received a certificate and free membership for one year to the Alumni Association.

Deborah Gutteridge, a senior from Carbondale and a student athlete, said she also is involved in the Student Athletic Advisory Board.

Gutteridge said the honor made her realize her hard work had been recognized by the University.

"There are so many super students here," Gutteridge said. "It's an honor to be recognized."

Jan Movre, super student chairwomen for the council, said those students honored are future leaders.

"They have generously shared their many talents and skills in order to lift up the name of their, soon to be, alma mater," she said.

Jean Paratore, associate vice president for student affairs and the speaker at the awards reception, challenged those honored to excel throughout their futures by continuing to be a leader, to explore and nurture their ambitions and to accept that they have much more to learn.

"Education is a process of development," she said. "It is an active,

Cole, Hill leadership needs Reform ideals

AS ALWAYS IN UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT Government elections, one party takes the left fork in the road and another the right. As always, the happiest medium is someplace in between. This year, the Student Party's route on the right fork of experience and involvement wins it the endorsement in the presidential/vice presidential election. But the endorsement is given with some reservations, and there is much the Student Party might learn from the wet-behind-the-ears Reform Party on the left.

Student Party presidential candidate Brad Cole and running mate Joe Hill offer SIUC students a strong track record to consider at the polls. The Student Party's inside line with the University administration and the city makes it an effective bargaining organization for student concerns, whether the issue is tuition hikes or Springfest alcohol regulations. By setting up the internal affairs-oriented USG Innovation Team, it has flexed and adjusted to answer public criticism; something that cannot be said of many political parties.

COLE'S TWO YEARS AS USG CHIEF OF STAFF put him in a position to know the right people and the proper channels to get USG's recommendations on the table. If the Student Party retains the Innovation Team and goes ahead with plans for a standing election date, it may avoid the internal disputes and fumbling of bylaws that left USG with such a major image problem this year.

BUT THERE IS MUCH COLE AND HILL MIGHT learn from Reform, and from Mark Shelton, the party's brash vice presidential candidate with Denise Young. The Reformers make lofty promises—accountability of RSOs and the University on their use of student tuition and fees, a boost to the SIUC recycling program and a coalition of student government members from Illinois colleges to lobby in Springfield—but lack the experience and relations with the administration critical to backing up their rhetoric. In the Student Party's hands, the rhetoric has a better chance of becoming a reality.

SHELTON HAS THE VISION AND ENERGY USG needs to stay hungry and on its toes in its dealings with the University, the city and the state. Cole has the inside know-how, the experience and the sense of compromise vital to politics at any level. The two men on one ticket would be a dream combination, but elections never work out so well.

Reform presidential candidate Young is experienced in USG politics, but her leadership skills need more development. Shelton has never served with USG in any capacity. If Shelton is serious about reforming USG, he should run for a senatorial seat and voice his ideas from within. If Cole is serious about serving the student body well, he should apply the idealism of his opposition to his dealings on USG's behalf.

Letters to the Editor

Dear students: Freedom offset by responsibility

All Americans have freedom. With our freedom comes a word that I know is not new to you, my dear students. This word is "responsibility." It is defined as "the state or act of being answerable or accountable, as for something within one's power or control." You and I are not responsible for fire that is started by lightning. We can, however, put the fire out once it has started.

"Thank you for this very useful information," you say, "but why bring this up?"

Good question. Late Saturday night I was driving with a friend down Grant Avenue. Monday morning I did the same. Both trips made me sick. There was garbage everywhere. Plastic cups and beer cans littered the ground. It was a truly depressing sight. The people who did this had every right to party, but they need to be responsible for their actions.

There were a number of arrests Saturday night also. Thank you, fellow students, for giving SIUC such a fantastic reputation. But hey, next time, burn some buildings down. We need some national coverage here. (New word Number Two: "sarcasm.")

As I am sure all of you are aware, there have been a number of letters to the editor lately regarding pornography and its link to rape. To me, it does not matter if it causes rapes. It does not matter to me what the Bible says about pornography. They have a right to print anything they want, but if the consumers show a little taste and respect for other people, those magazines would go out of business because nobody would buy them. I should hope that we show a little more decency and taste. —Ken Beck, junior, mathematics education.

Columbus clash Famous finder far from heroic

Brian Kossett, in his April 21 letter, continues to complain against a flier about Columbus which the Friends of Native Americans organization handed out.

Mr. Kossett has a problem with a reference to the "paradise" Columbus encountered compared to Europe. The author used the word "paradise" to refer to how Columbus saw the place he had sailed to.

In his journal, Columbus described the Taino people and the land he encountered: "They are a people so full of love and without greed...I believe there is no better people or no better land in the world."

Although Columbus praised the Tainos' gentleness, he ordered the hands chopped off any Native who did not bring him a sufficient quantity of gold. Yet we celebrate this man as a hero.

How can we go beyond issues of race, Mr. Kossett, before we rid ourselves of racially biased accounts of history? To Native Americans, Columbus Day is a day of mourning.

The U.S. was not a "brave experiment in multi-racial democracy." Jefferson's first draft of the Declaration of Independence was not accepted because it cited the practice of slavery as one reason the colonies wanted independence from England. Instead, Jefferson was forced to draft a Declaration in which only white males would become "the people."

Native Americans did become involved in wars over their homelands, but were defeated and forced into concentration camps, euphemistically called "reservations." In its relations with Native Americans, the U.S. has committed acts that would shame the sensibility of anyone.

To go beyond issues of race and gender we must first understand historic injustices based on race and gender.

When our words and actions display this understanding; when our history books examine the perspectives of all races involved, and when our government policies display respect for all races, we will be nearer a world with "justice for all." —Robert W. Johnston, alumus.

Sex disputes, apathetic mood fruits of human self-frustration

It is my non-expert opinion that, as a result of the fast-paced, large-scale information, global viewpoint that mankind presently faces, men are apathetic toward their ability to meet the needs of society.

As a result, men have an underdeveloped ability to meet the emotional needs of women.

It is not as though men do not want to meet women's needs, or that we don't try to. As most men refuse to make a commitment to the ones they love, we feel as though we can't be happy with women that are not a perfect match. This is a direct result of our frustration with ourselves.

Men at one time ran the world. Now, most men are more than willing to let women take on the burdens of society, because we are overwhelmed by the responsibility. Not only do we allow our women to kill our unborn children, we convince them that they should. We would rather destroy ourselves than allow ourselves to hurt Mother Earth any more.

This letter is a call to everyone to take responsibility for mankind, not by destroying ourselves, but by changing our behavior.

If men and women would control their sexual desires, we would not have to feel the guilt of destroying life. If we cannot control ourselves, than inevitably we will face the consequences of our actions. —Thomas J. Garfunkel, graduate student, geophysics.

Trustee hopeful: BOT must hear students' voice

By Casey Hampton
General Assignment Writer

The key role of a decisive student trustee is listening to student concerns, said Tony Svach, Student Party candidate for student trustee.

Svach will be the sole student trustee candidate Wednesday on the ballot in the student elections.

Svach said the trustee should be a direct liaison between students and the Board of Trustees.

"I went to those Board of Trustee meetings and there's a voice that needs to be heard, and that's the students' voice," he said.

The trustee should work together with the students and student governments toward a common cause, especially with increasingly pressing issues coming before the board, Svach said.

Svach, a junior in foreign language and international trade from Wheaton, said he has learned the discipline necessary for a student trustee while serving in the Army reserves since December 1987.

"Through the military I learned to respect authority, yet not cover to it," he said.

Svach has become familiar with the circle of student government and political process by serving as a senator and vice president for the

Tony Svach
Undergraduate Student Government and by leading his fraternity and interfraternity council, he said. "I have learned through experience that you have to listen more than you speak—and that's hard to do," Svach said.

"The key is to listen to the students, then take the different opinions and put them together to present to the board," he said.

The trustee only has an advisory vote in the board, but Svach said he would work toward getting board members to do more than just passively listen to the student concerns.

"My vote will be officially heard," Svach said. "(Board members) won't just say, 'Oh, we'll listen,' they'll actually hear what we say."

If elected, Svach would build upon his predecessor, three-year student trustee Bill Hall. But Svach would go another step further, he said.

"With any position in government, the next guy has always got to be better," Svach said, "and if he's not, he's doing something wrong."

Hall said Svach proved his abilities to work with the Board of Trustees when he and other student representatives opposed a housing fee increase.

"Tony's experience in student government has taught him the ability necessary to advocate all student concerns assertively and aggressively," he said.

Independent candidates say USG needs change

By Casey Hampton
General Assignment Writer

The need for change in USG tops the platform of Independent USG presidential candidate William White.

USG has been too soft-spoken in many of the major issues facing students, and the time has come to escape the shadow of the University administration, he said.

"All we've seen from our student government is going along with the administration," White said. "We as students feel it's time to stop and make a change."

Inspiring students to unite together to decide the future of their education at SIUC is a primary goal for the Independent candidates, he said.

"Basically, we want the students to determine the destiny of our tuition and our education," White said.

Students will have to pull together to fight for an increase in the amount of funding for financial aid if tuition continues to climb, he said.

"I feel I can get the students together and rally the students, in which we will go out and make these changes," White said.

"We don't have to be controlled because it's our dollars paying for this education—it is our campus and we need to act like it's our campus and not be the administration's puppet," he said.

White wants USG to cut its spending in half to help appease the financial plight of the University.

He would ask the administration to follow suit and take a voluntary pay cut until the University can better afford the salaries.

"We want to decrease spending by 50 percent for Undergraduate Student Government for erroneous expenditures," he said. "I think by USG taking a 50-percent pay cut, this would send a signal that we're really serious about our institution."

But White is calling for an increase in teacher and student worker salaries.

If elected, White would provide mature leadership to USG and offer a refreshing change to the student body, he said.

White, a senior in special education from St. Louis, is dissatisfied with USG's current status and wants it to undergo a transformation to serve students better.

"In the past, we've had many campaign violations and I feel we need mature leadership," he said.

"It's good to be in office for a long time, but maturity is what we're looking for because after all, the president does represent all students," White said.

White wants to clean up USG, starting with a standard election date written into the USG constitution to avoid any confusion of campaign violations similar to that which arose at the onset of elections this year.

Other goals of the Independent candidates include extending the closing of University facilities by two to three hours to meet students needs and prohibiting student patrollers from carrying nightsticks because they are not officially trained police officers, White said.

Jacquelyn Thames, a senior in elementary education from Joliet, is the Independent candidate for USG vice president.

Another plank for the Independent platform includes increasing services for non-traditional and disabled students.

The Independent candidates also want to increase the number of red decal parking spaces and create a mass transit service for SIUC students.

Reform Party envisions diverse representation

By Casey Hampton
General Assignment Writer

The Reform Party seeks a fresh outlook in student government and wants to restructure USG.

Denise Young, the USG presidential candidate for the Reform Party, said USG has been left in the dark with many pressing issues facing students.

"The Reform Party has a vision and we see an active-working student government—one that's pro-active rather than reactive, one that will do more than write resolutions to tuition increases," she said.

The main plank on the Reform Party platform is serving "the interests of a diverse student population."

Young, a junior in administration of justice from Schaumburg, said there is a need for representation for the students who traditionally have been left unrepresented by USG, such as black, international and handicapped students.

"We try to put together a group of people who are diverse and would better represent the students on this campus," she said.

The battle against increasing tuition and decreasing financial aid needs to be fought on a higher level than just on the SIUC campus, Young said. This could be done by establishing a coalition with other student governments in Illinois and by sending student delegations to visit legislators and education officials in Springfield.

Another concern of the Reform Party is improving governmental relations with the city of Carbondale on a continuing basis. Student opinions will carry more weight if students are active citizens of the community, Young said.

"We only go to (city officials) when we have a problem," she said. "We need to have a continuing relationship with the city."

Young, a USG senator who has served on the USG Committee on Internal Affairs and Governmental Relations Commission, said housing needs to be improved on campus. USG should work with the residence halls and administration to get better appliances for the halls and to reopen the service desks in the area dining halls that were closed because of budgetary problems.

The Reform Party also wants to establish a campuswide recycling program, making recycling bins accessible on all floors in the residence halls and near every soda machine on campus.

Mark Shelton, the Reform Party candidate for vice president, said the key to being successful in USG is opening the communication lines between USG and the students.

"We believe what we have to do is connect with the students, and secondly we have to represent the students," he said. "Basically, we're trying to make a family type of unit on campus."

But working with other colleges also is crucial in accomplishing critical goals, said the freshman in philosophy from Chicago.

"If we worked not only on the SIUC scale but work with schools around the state and deal with Springfield, we'll have power there," he said.

Student Party declares edge with experience

By Casey Hampton
General Assignment Writer

Student Party candidates consider their student government experience and knowledge an advantage over their opponents in the USG election.

A prime concern of the Student Party is campus safety.

Brad Cole, USG chief of staff for two years and Student Party USG presidential candidate, said if elected, he would pursue the expansion of the emergency response telephone network and rape education programs to promote the safety of students at SIUC.

"Campus safety we feel is a vital part of student life on this campus," he said. "Students need to feel safe."

But students also need to be safeguarded from an increasingly heavy financial burden.

The decrease in financial aid, coupled with an increase in tuition, has placed a financial strain on students, and USG would lobby both the state legislature and University administration to get some of the funds returned to students, Cole said.

"We need to find ways that we can cut back on some of the services that we receive now but maybe aren't priorities so we may lessen the cost to students, or at least keep it the same," he said.

To do this, USG would coordinate a committee to research all student fees and determine if there are any areas where cutbacks could be made. The savings could be handed back to the students, Cole said.

Decreasing the initial number of red decal parking spaces that were to be changed to blue, the Student Party has been particularly successful with the campus parking issue, he said.

"We are the people who make this University go," Cole said. "We should have priority."

Cole, a junior in political science and biology from Macon, also is pushing for student-run teacher evaluations for open access to the students, who could use the evaluations to decide what instructors are best suited to their needs and choose classes accordingly.

Joe Hill, the Student Party candidate for USG vice president, said some problems with USG have resulted from setting lofty goals. The Student Party has established important goals that are within reach, he said.

"I think we've set achievable guidelines, and that's a strength coming into USG," Hill said. "In the past there have been people involved with USG who didn't have obtainable goals pertaining to SIU—the senate has to represent SIU."

Hill, a junior in marketing from Rochester, has served as a USG senator for the past two years.

Cole said the Student Party has experience and success in USG behind it.

"We've achieved the platform goals we've had in the past and we would remind everyone that our party is based on experience, knowledge of the issues, dedication and concern for the students," he said. "We have the dedication to get the job done that needs to be done and advocate student rights."

Ultraviolet rays may cause burns, skin cancer if protection lacking in cancer is growing faster any other cancer in the United States.

According to the Skin Cancer Foundation, one in three cancers diagnosed in 1992 will be skin cancer.

Although most people enjoy basking in the sun's rays, tanned skin is really unhealthy. Exposure to the sun's ultraviolet rays can cause painful sunburns and speed up the aging process.

Approximately 90 percent of the 3,000 skin cancers that will be diagnosed this year could be prevented by blocking out the sun's rays.

The typical adult requires about one ounce of sunscreen per application. It should be reapplied every two hours and even more often when swimming.

If your bottle of sunscreen lotion is older than two years, it should be discarded as it loses its effectiveness.

Persons with fair complexions, particularly blondes and redheads, are at a higher risk of developing skin cancer.

It is important to look for sunscreens with a "sun protection factor" (SPF) of 15 or higher.

The SPF number indicates the factor by which the ultraviolet rays are lessened by the sunscreen.

A person who uses a sunscreen with an SPF number of 15 can stay in the sun 15 times longer than without the sunscreen before obtaining the same degree of sunburn.

The following tips will help protect individuals from skin cancer:

- Wear wide-brimmed hats and long-sleeved shirts.
- Wear sunscreen even on cloudy days.

Ultraviolet rays bounce in all directions so you are not even fully protected in the shade.

- Birth control pills, some antibiotics, and antibacterial agents found in medicated soaps and creams can make the skin more susceptible to sunburns.

Be aware of the early warning signs of skin cancer: a change in size or color of a mole, a sore on the skin that does not heal, the development of any unusual pigmented area.

- Request skin examination as part of a routine physical examination.

- Avoid tanning booths, sun reflectors and sun lamps.

he sodium flare, Curtis said.

"The sodium flare creates a barrier to clear vision, and the glasses filter it out so you can see what you are doing," he said.

The larger of Curtis' projects are vacuum systems researchers use with ether, or methadane, toluene or ethanol, and may take him a week to complete.

Other projects, like reactor shells researchers use in their catalyst studies, take a shorter amount of time for Curtis to finish.

He has a stock of parts he uses in his work.

He also makes parts he uses.

Most of his projects are made out of clear glass, though glass that is pretreated to a certain color also can be purchased.

"I do virtually anything you need—that's what I'm here for," he said.

The hardest part of his job is satisfying customers, Curtis said.

"When people give me an order, they have sort of a picture in their mind, but when they don't draw it to scale, sometimes they are surprised with the final project," he said. "But I'm here as a service utility and my main job is to keep customers happy."

Curtis also hires a freshman or sophomore student worker through Financial Aid to work under him until they graduate.

"Since I've been here, I've had two really good student workers," he said. "They were excellent for different reasons—one was good at glass blowing and the other was good at maintaining equipment and cleaning up."

Learning how to blow glass takes a good amount of time and he usually starts his student workers off slow, Curtis said.

"One of the first things I teach students is how to make glass ducks," he said. "And I've had students produce steering rods the first day of class—so it just depends on the job that comes in and the complexity."

regional May 25.

Laatsch remembers his first day on the job as being full of anxiety, he said.

"I didn't know what I was in for, but it was pretty much mindless labor—filling bottles with soil," he said. "My job responsibilities have expanded a lot since then."

Laatsch said he helps Varsa with various research tasks, including soil nitrogen analysis, computer statistical graphics and raking fields.

"I work about 28 hours a week and it's hard work, but I have to work to make ends meet," he said. "But I don't think my job is overly difficult."

Laatsch said he likes his job because of what it offers to him.

"Even the physical labor isn't so bad because I work for a great guy and with a super group of people," he said. "It's also nice working on campus in my chosen field because it provides flexibility with school."

The thing he enjoys most about his job is working with computer graphics, while raking fields and taking soil samples, "the back-breaking duties" as he calls them, are his least favorite duties, he said with a smile.

"But I believe my work has given me a perspective of what I might be facing in a career in this field—it's broadened my knowledge and has been very influential on my decision to pursue graduate studies."

Laatsch plans to enter the graduate studies program at Michigan State University in June. He said he chose Michigan because of its reputation.

"Even though I haven't had much teaching experience, I'd like to work in academia," he said.

Council honors volunteers for service to internationals

By Fatima Janvekar

The International Student Council honored its student volunteer workers and council members Sunday at International Honors Night.

ISC president Nabarun Ghose announced he is stepping down from his post, and transferred power to president-elect Nicholas Agrotis from Cyprus.

Agrotis, a sophomore in business, is an ISC staff member.

The ISC also presented awards and certificates of recognition to its staff members. Twenty-two students from Mexico, Malaysia, Japan, Cyprus, Nepal, Pakistan, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Singapore, and a doctor from Ireland were honored for their support and efforts in helping achieve ISC's goals.

"It's good to be appreciated after a lot of hard work," said Vincente Saric, president of the Latin American Student Association and one of 25 student association presidents honored for their work with their international students. "The ISC has done some great work this year with the soccer tournament and the International Festival, which is what I liked the most."

"Ghose has done a lot of work for the ISC, and the new president is going to have a tough time, at least initially, competing with what Ghose has done. Agrotis is going to have to work a lot to come up with high standards for the ISC."

James D. Quisenberry, ISC faculty adviser, said he had seen the council grow and improve through the years.

"There have been major strides forward. To branch out from Southern Illinois and get recognition from the governor of Illinois is not a small task," Quisenberry said. "The ISC has also got recognition for the community it serves by having the state declare a whole week in honor of international people in the United States."

Pakistan Student Association president Mohammed A. Khan was awarded the President of the Year plaque for his involvement in council events. Khan, a junior in marketing, will succeed Sisseel Olsen of Norway as ISC vice president for financial affairs for the next academic year.

Azher S. Bandukwala, vice president of internal affairs, stepped down in favor of Wan Ahmad Kamal of Malaysia.

Both Bandukwala and Olsen were presented recognition plaques for their work.

In his farewell address, Ghose said he had been fortunate to have had "vice presidents I could count on to get the work done well."

Other awards presented were to outstanding staff members Saira Omar from Malaysia, Kalpesh Vyas from India, Shaikat Khan and Adel Khan, both from Pakistan. Outstanding staff must have been ISC members for one year and have contributed considerably to its activities.

Omar also received recognition plaques for her work at International Festival 1992 and for being the coordinator for International Outreach Day.

Tim Laatsch, 1992 SIUC Student Employee of the Year

SIUC student employee says parents influence work ethics

By Teri Lynn Carlock
Special Assignment Writer

SIUC student Tim Laatsch remembers growing up on his family's farm in central Illinois and watching his father, day after day, working hard on the land.

Today, Laatsch uses the work ethics handed down by his family to guide him in his duties as a student worker at SIUC.

"I always saw my dad working as hard as he could, hours on end—to keep the farm afloat," he said. "My parents have a lot to do with the formation of my work ethics."

Laatsch, a senior in plant and soil science, is the 1992 SIUC Student Employee of the Year. He was chosen from a field of more than 30 students nominated for the award.

Laatsch is the son of William and Carol Laatsch of Altamont.

He has worked for three years in the plant and soil science department for associate professor and researcher Edward C. Varsa, who nominated Laatsch for the award.

"Tim is extremely competent and doesn't mind doing menial tasks if asked to do them," Varsa said.

"He's a special individual who in my mind deserves to be recognized—that's why I took pen in hand and wrote the letter."

Laatsch's personality and study habits also make him a perfect example of a student employee, Varsa said.

"He's a bright student who has won various scholarships and awards, but despite all of that he has remained down to earth," he said. "He's got a pleasant personality and is well-liked by all the people he works with."

Laatsch will complete May 5 for the state title, and the state winner will advance to the midwest

Glass blower works at craft for 20 years

By Teri Lynn Carlock
Special Assignment Writer

Bill Curtis sits at his work bench and lights a blow torch. He slides his protective glasses over his eyes and reaches for a rod of glass. Within minutes he transforms the lifeless piece into a work of art.

Almost 20 years ago he received a student work position in the SIUC chemistry department as a stock boy. One day the department sponsored a chemistry conference, and a man gave a demonstration of how to blow glass.

It was the first time Curtis had seen anything like it, and to say the least, he was interested, he said.

"I asked the man if he had an opening for a student worker, but he didn't," he said. "But once the student worker graduated, I got the job."

Curtis is serving his 16th year as a civil service employee at SIUC. He produces glass work for researchers on campus for various scientific purposes.

"People come in, give me a drawing or tell me what they need and I make it," he said. "My work isn't glamorous, but it's necessary."

Curtis does lamp working, named as such because a torch is used. The other type of glass work is called off-hand glass blowing, when a blow pipe is used.

Off-hand glass blowing classes are offered on campus, but no lamp working classes exist because of a lack of interest, Curtis said.

"There are only a couple of places in the country that give glass blowing degrees," he said. "It's not a big craft of discipline."

Curtis has given demonstrations on glass blowing in the past, but not very often, he said.

"It's a little bit dangerous because people get burned because they're not careful enough," he said. "Plus I don't have the facilities to teach interested students in my lab."

campus and arrests were down after organizers imposed restrictions on the festival-goers to reduce the potential for problems that developed last year.

Revelers threw beer cans at each other and band members during concerts at the 1991 festival.

Brad Cole, USG chief of staff, said Carbondale officials, student leaders and businesses will meet this week to consider the future of Springfest.

Scheduling for the meeting began soon after the events on Springfest night, Cole said.

Sullivan said if asked at a meeting what he thinks should be done, he will not condone the continuation of events that transpired during Springfest weekend this year.

In the end, though, Cole said everyone in Carbondale will be hurt by the discontinuation of Springfest.

Students need it as a last sign of relief before finals, businesses rely on it for profits and the city is always concerned with the safety of the people, Cole said. Everyone in the city will be affected by the future of Springfest.

Sullivan said canceling Springfest may not stop all parties and problems, but it will stop them from occurring at one time.

"Springfest will not become another Halloween if it is canceled because there is not a set day for Springfest," Sullivan said. "People will party when the weather is nice and outsiders will come anyway, but not all at one time."

"Springfest went from a good time to a bad time in two years."

—Jack Sullivan

"Halloween was an evolving process from good years to gradually bad," he said. "Springfest went from a good time to a bad time within two years."

Carbondale City Manager Jeff Doherty, who called Springfest 1992 the worst in University history, said the problems will not affect the relationship between SIUC and the city.

The city will continue to enjoy relations with SIUC students and faculty, Doherty said.

Sullivan said the student leaders will continue to work with city officials.

"We worked together well," Sullivan said. "A lot of positive things came out of it. I do not think any damage was done between the city and the student government."

Cole said the city officials and student leaders, after all, were optimistic about Springfest this year.

"We all went into Springfest with high hopes and came out with frustrations," Cole said. "We hope to continue open communications with the city and the businesses. I do not think they are upset with USG."

Carbondale and you're under the impression that public consumption isn't against the law, you haven't been reading the DE or watching television very much."

"We haven't kept it a secret from anyone," he said.

The Carbondale City Council voted after the 1988 Halloween party to end a fair days ordinance for the last weekend in October that allowed public consumption of alcohol on a section of South

Illinois and Grand avenues. No such ordinance has been passed to allow public consumption during Springfest weekend.

Strom said most of the overall arrests occurred in the downtown area.

"Our attitude was zero tolerance of any illegal possession or consumption," Strom said.

"Most of them were running the risk of being arrested from the beginning," he said.

Strom said the police did their best in trying to set standards on the level of drinking, as is necessary with activities such as Springfest, but a surprising number of students assumed if they were drinking, police would not do anything about it.

"I don't think it was ignorance that resulted in all these arrests," Strom said.

"The people we arrested weren't saying 'I didn't know.' The attitude was more like 'ah, you caught me,'" he said.

vides up to $15,000 in benefits with a deductible of $1,000 to $3,000 depending on the insured value of the house.

While nerves remained frayed from the 6.9 earthquake Saturday and aftershocks of 6.5 and 6.0 early Sunday morning, residents of Ferndale busied themselves as much as they could with their normal Monday routine.

"This morning there seems to be a false sense of security," said Caroline Titus, a resident of Ferndale. "It's daylight. The sun is out. The garbage men came this morning like they do every Monday and I can hear someone cutting their lawn. I even saw two kids heading off with their fishing poles this morning. It's a picture of a typical small town."

However, the signs of the violence with which the earth moved surrounded the city. Work crews were busy removing chimney bricks, piled precariously on roof tops. Elsewhere, residents were carrying boxes of belongings out of Victorian style homes ravaged by the quake.

The Red Cross reported that 108 homes had been destroyed by the quake and aftershocks and another 139 suffered major damage. The Humboldt County Board of Supervisors, meanwhile, upgraded the damage estimate from $45 million to $51 million.

Officials also said 12 people remained hospitalized from injuries or trauma suffered during the quake and aftershocks.

While residents tried to recover, seismologists continued their efforts to unravel the complex nature of the quake and aftershocks.

Humboldt County is home to one of the most complex and active geological regions in the world called the Mendocino Triple Junction. The San Andreas and Mendocino faults terminate in the region as does the Gorda Plate.

Journalists need to question news values, says 1969 grad

By Christy Gutowski
General Assignment Writer

Communicators have a responsibility to question an issue's significance and not to prioritize sensationalistic news as they release it to the public, a 1969 SIUC graduate said.

Jim Bitterman, an ABC News foreign correspondent with the Paris bureau, said communicators should question the significance of sensationalistic news before offering coverage because it prioritizes the issue to the American public.

"In my opinion, the least courageous thing (a journalist) could do is to send out unfiltered information," he said.

"(Sensationalism) may be interesting but it is not journalism. It is not significant and people do not necessarily need to know it unless it affects their lives," he said.

Bitterman returned to campus last Friday to speak at the Virginia Marmaduke lecture.

The story involving Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton and Gennifer Flowers was important, Bitterman said, but the constant coverage and echoing of the issue was not necessary.

"The story was something that the producers and publishers found interesting, not in realistic terms but in subscription and viewership terms," Bitterman said.

A communicator's job is to get out there and decide what the public needs to know and the issue's significance, he said.

Bitterman has covered the fall of Eastern Europe, the Gulf War crisis and the coup in the Soviet Union.

He visited Carbondale as a speaker for the Virginia Marmaduke annual broadcasting lecture, an established fund that makes it possible for the broadcasting school to bring professionals in the field to SIUC.

Marmaduke, a veteran in Chicago journal and broadcasting from Pinckneyville, said she was proud to have Bitterman as a speaker for the four-year-old fund.

"He gave to his audience a wide picture of today's media actions," she said.

"He said all forms of communicators are sometimes guilty in these days of too intense competition amongst themselves," Marmaduke said.

Joe Foote, chairman of the radio and television department, said the journalistic curiosity that students learn about in journalism school is what has taken Bitterman across the world.

"He has been a lot of events unfold before him," Foote said. "Every major story in the last decade, he has covered and has done it exceptionally well."

Bitterman's career began at a small Northern Illinois newspaper in Waukegan when a friend asked him to cover a school board meeting.

"My ego and ambition seized control of all bodily functions," Bitterman said after his name appeared in print.

He worked for WCIL in Carbondale and WJPF, which reaches Williamson, Jackson, Perry and Franklin counties and later, for NBC News, while based in Rome.

Bitterman said a reporter should remember people are more alike than different when covering an issue.

"Human beings around the world want the same things you and I want," he said.

"They want an education, an occupation, a better health care plan and a better life for their children than what they had," Bitterman said.

In 1988 he covered the Sudan famine in which he witnessed a father at a refugee camp bury his child because of the scarcity of food throughout the various tribes.

"He watched his child's body get placed into the ground," he said.

"That father cared as much about his 2-year-old daughter as I do about my 8-year-old (daughter). It doesn't matter if he was in Africa or in the United States. Our emotions were exactly the same."

Simon: Fight for freedoms; rights must be for everyone

By Todd Welvaert
Politics Writer

U.S. Sen. Paul Simon is calling on the nation to continue the fight for civil liberties, charging the fight is more important now as a result of the high court's diminished role in protecting citizens of the nation.

"The fight for freedom must be a continuing fight," said Simon, D-Makanda. "It cannot be a fight for people who are short of breath. I can't tell you when and where the battles will be fought, but there will be battles fought right in Carbondale, where someone is going to express a very unpopular point of view."

Simon addressed an audience Saturday at the SIU School of Law.

Protecting everyone's right, even the most unpopular, means everyone's rights will be protected, he said.

"I think we are in for some fights," Simon said. "People have to keep in mind that it means standing up for people with whom we differ very strongly. I don't for a moment condone what drug dealers do, but I don't believe we should use methods to get them that violate the Constitution."

His lecture was sponsored by

"The fight for freedom must be a continuing fight. It cannot be a fight for people who are short of breath."

—Sen. Paul Simon

the Southern Illinois Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Simon briefly discussed the possibility of being named Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton's running mate in the election.

"There are so many people out there who could be possibilities, so I just think the odds are against me," he said. "I might be interested if the circumstances are right."

Simon also defended his vote against Clarence Thomas last fall.

"Thurgood Marshall was a giant in the United States legal profession in terms of his qualifications," he said. "If you were to ask 100 lawyers all over this country who are the top 20 for the United States Supreme Court, Clarence Thomas wouldn't have been on anyone's list. That's a simple reality."

living, breathing and never ending experience."

"Genuine education is not the static end of a process," Paratore said. "It is a result of all of our experiences. It is not fixed but rather forever developing and changing as we experience new things."

Nancy Quane, a senior from Chicago, said the recognition made her realize her contributions have left a mark.

"I hope that after graduation, I can leave knowing that I left a mark representing my four years here," Quane said.

The 25 most distinguished seniors at SIUC include:

- Derrick Faulkner from Chicago,
- Kristen Morgan from Herrin,
- Ann Marie Blass from Belleville,
- Teresa Cerny from Cobden,
- Michelle Harry from Springfield,

Press, for instance, was listed as accepting anything ranging from American literature to philosophy to science, and other topics.

Richard DeBacher, editorial editor for SIU University Press, said a book that helps academic writers know what to expect will make both sides of the process easier.

"Often people come to the Press with proposals for books that really don't belong here," he said. "For instance, a person wanting to publish a text book would be better off approaching a commercial text book publisher. Likewise, a scholarly monograph would be better published by a Univer-sity Press."

English graduate assistant to receive department award

The Department of English at SIUC will present its first annual Outstanding Graduate Teaching Assistant Award to Rebecca Flannagan.

Flannagan, who has been a graduate assistant in the department for six years, was selected by the General Education in English Committee, the group responsible for all general education classes in the department.

A press release issued by the English department stated Flannagan has been a graduate assistant in the program for six years.

The release stated she has not only taught every course assigned to graduate assistants, but also has served as an administrative assistant in instruction and in computers.

Flannagan was one of 7 graduate assistants nominated for the awards by peers, from among the 98 graduate assistants in the department.

The release stated Flannagan is recognized as an outstanding teacher by fellow graduate students, professors and students alike.

"I like to think of the classroom as a group of individuals who may be alike in many ways," Flannagan told members of the department. "Knowing how each student differs, however, seems the key to making an individual class work, as well as having successes within that class."

Success, of course, is the up side of getting personal. Seeing a student go to an upper level English class and impress one of your own professors is a success," she said.

LeBlanc back in Europe for world championship

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (UPI) — Ray LeBlanc, the surprise star of the U.S. Olympic hockey team at the Albertville Games, is back in the Europe for Tuesday's start of the World Championships.

LeBlanc or Mike Dunham of the University of Maine will be in goal, facing many of the same sharpshooters from the Olympics. But this time LeBlanc will have to rely on new teammates.

Joe Sacco of the Toronto Maple Leafs and Jim Johansson of the minor-league Indianapolis Ice are the only other returning players from the U.S. Olympic team.

Twelve others have some NHL experience, but only defenseman Gary Suter and winger Paul Ranheim, both from the Calgary Flames, have held down regular places. Defensemen Mark Oseick, David Williams and Dennis Vaske have just completed their rookie seasons, while the rest come from the minor leagues, college teams and even Sweden.

Tom Bissett was the second leading scorer in the Swedish elite division, and the 19-year-old Ferraro twins, Chris and Peter, ran up big numbers in the U.S. Junior Hockey League and the World Junior Championship, where Peter was voted the All-Star center.

"It's a matter of getting the team to gel in a short time," said Coach Tim Taylor, whose team lost both its warmup games to Switzerland, 2-0 and 4-3.

The games will be played in Prague and Bratislava, with the format the same as in the Olympics. The United States, fourth in both the last championships and in the Olympics, will face Italy, Germany, Finland, Poland and Sweden in preliminary group games. The top four teams from each of two groups progress to the quarterfinals.

"Let's face it," said Bill Gilligan, an American who will coach the Swiss team. "Everyone who knows hockey, knows that this is only a second or third rate (U.S.) national team. Also, the Americans are never at their best in exhibition games. They will be vastly better once something is at stake."

Sweden defends the title it won last year without a host of famous names. Missing are Hakan Loob, Bengt-Ake Gustafsson, Mats Naslund and Per Rundqvist. Coach Conny Evensson is trying a new cast after a poor Olympic showing.

Canada, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland, Norway and France make up the other preliminary group.

Canada Coach Dave King dipped heavily into the NHL player pool, but received many refusals. He left seven of the 23 roster spots open for players whose teams were eliminated from the Stanley Cup playoffs. Unlike earlier years, he did not schedule any exhibition games.

The team includes Philadelphia Flyers goaltender Ron Hextall, who will make his debut in international hockey.

Canada's main group opponents will be Russia and Czechoslovakia, who will be relying on its Olympic roster, with a sprinkling of NHL pickups.

"Our team did so well at the Olympics that the players deserved another chance," said Czechoslovakia Coach Ivan Hlinka, who called up Frantisek Musil and Robert Reichel from the Calgary Flames.

The Russians will be without Vyacheslav Bykov and Andrei Khomutov, two key forwards in recent years. But they summoned Dimitri Mironov from the Maple Leafs and winger Valeri Kamenky from the Quebec Nordiques.

As a good luck charm, Assistant Coach Igor Dimitriev carries in his pocket cassettes of the new national anthem. It is from Mikhail Glinka's opera "A Life for the Tsar" and praises Ivan Susinin, an 18th century Russian hero who led a Polish army astray in the forest, assuring the Tsarist army of a famous victory.

provisional qualifying time of 13.6 that increased her hold of the No. 2 position on the SIUC all-time best list.

Career-best times were also achieved in the 10,000-meter run by Karen Gardner who finished 16th with time of 36:49.44 and Amie Padgett who finished 20th with a time of 37:10.44.

Gardner and Padgett both secured the No. 3 and No. 5 spots respectively on the all-time best list.

The 4x800 relay team led by junior Dawn Barefoot, sophomore Kelly Elliott, sophomore Christina Gabler and junior Shaure Winfield achieved a time of 9:26.33 that earned a 10th place finish and secured the No. 5 spot on the all-time best list.

The distance medley team earned a No. 7 position on the all-time best list with Winfield, Barefoot, junior Laura Batsic and freshman Jennifer Horner combining for a time of 12:25.08 that finished 19th.

Crystallo Constantinou vanished from the Saluki line-up as a muscle strain prevented her from competing.

She did run the preliminaries with a hobbling finish of 11.98 in the 100-meter dash that forced her to pull out of all remaining competition.

Even with some low finishes by the Salukis they should not feel down, DeNoon said.

"The cold weather put a lot of our athletes at a disadvantage and if the conditions were ideal we would have come out with a lot of good performances," he said. "No one is down and everyone will continue to work hard for the conference championships."

In Murray, Kan., the Salukis achieved five career-best performances at the MSU Invite.

Senior Julie Tottleben ran away with a first place finish in the 100-meter hurdles with a career-best time of 14.62 that secured her a No. 5 standing on the all-time best list.

Tottleben also ran a career-best in the 200-meter run with a time of 26.9.

Freshman Debbie Daehler and sophomore Karri Gardner had career-best times of 10:41.3 and 11:00.1 respectively in the 3,000-meter that earned them the third and sixth place slots.

Daehler and Gardner also competed in the 5,000-meter and finished with times of 18:51.1 and 19:10.07 that earned them the third and fifth slots.

Leading off the field events junior Cindy Grammer and freshman Amy Personette finished back-to-back in the shot-put hurling throws of 37-11 and 36-10 to place them third and fourth.

Grammer also came out in front to throw a 138' in the discus that finished first. Cokley followed in fifth place with a career-best throw of 115-10.

Senior Beth Johnson jumped into a three-way tie in the long jump with a distance of 5-2.

DeNoon said the competition was good in some events and lacking in others.

"We performed well in each event, as the competition wasn't as strong as the Drake relay," he said. "Still we were allowed to get some quality competition that will have all our athletes, whether they competed at Drake or MSU, they will be fresh for our next competition."

The Salukis will compete in the Tiger-Rebel Invitational hosted by Memphis State and the University of Missouri Sunday.

Ashe wants to use caution in sending AIDS message

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arthur Ashe, the former tennis star afflicted with AIDS, said Monday he wants to enlighten the public about the disease, but he warned militant AIDS activists not to pressure him.

Ashe, who announced April 8 he contracted AIDS from a transfusion during heart surgery, said he "always planned to go public at some point" about his condition but wanted to do so on his own terms.

"I feel a responsibility to do something, but in this case the process was not as important as me being able to do with my time what I wanted to do," he told a news conference at Banneker Senior High School.

Ashe spoke after spending two hours with students and explaining how science and technology have improved sports. The appearance was on behalf of the National Science Foundation.

Ashe, who disclosed he has AIDS after a newspaper reporter confronted him about it, said he considers himself a "lucky" patient.

"I have access to the best doctors, all the medications, family support and personal motivation to do as well as I can," he said. "Most AIDS patients—10 million people—are not nearly as lucky."

However, Ashe said before he spells out his AIDS message he wants to confer with Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan and AIDS experts. He said part of his message to youngsters will be to tell them many others have the infection.

"The odds are pretty low that Magic Johnson is the only professional athlete who is HIV-positive," Ashe said.

U.S. soccer now tops in region with title win

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (UPI) — Not only did the United States clinch an Olympic soccer berth with Sunday's victory over Mexico, but it also may have ushered in a new guard among the region's soccer powers.

"It's a message that soccer has gotten better in the United States," said Lothar Osiander, coach of the team of the U.S. will send to Barcelona. "We can compete in our region now."

In blanking Mexico 3-0, the United States secured first place in its qualifying group from North and Central America and the Caribbean. It marked the third major regional title by the United States in the past year.

In June, the United States won the inaugural Gold Cup, beating favorite Mexico in the semifinals and Costa Rica in the final. Two months later, the U.S. under-23 squad, the nucleus of the Olympic team, defeated Mexico for the Pan American Games gold medal.

In addition, the U.S. women's team won the first Women's World Cup in China and the under-17 team reached the quarterfinals of Youth World Cup in Italy, the best finish by a team from CONCACAF.

"There's no doubt we're the top team now," said Steve Snow, who has six of the 13 U.S. goals in the final round of Olympic qualifying. "We won the Gold Cup, we won the Pan American Games and now this."

The United States steamrolled through the final round of Olympic qualifying, requiring the minimum four games to clinch. By sweeping Mexico and Honduras in the double round-robin tournament, the United States rendered meaningless its upcoming series against Canada.

"It's nice to get it done early," said midfielder Chris Henderson, captain of the Olympic team and a member of the 1990 U.S. World Cup squad. "We don't have to wait until the last game."

The Olympic team rallied from two goals down in both victories against Honduras. On Sunday, it showed it could protect a lead after jumping ahead 2-0.

Earlier, the United States beat Mexico 2-1 in Mexico City. No U.S. team had ever swept Mexico in a home-and-home series.

"It's different than before," Mexican midfielder Jorge Castaneda said. "The United States didn't give us much importance to soccer. Now it's more important to the country. From now on it's going to be much more difficult to play against the United States."

Mexico Coach Cayetano Rodriguez acknowledged the United States has "put together a great (Olympic) team. It's a great group of individuals, and that's hard to put together in any part of the world."

Mexico's losses to the United States have prompted an outcry at home. National coach Manuel Lapuente resigned in disgrace after the loss in the Gold Cup.

Redskins choose Michigan center as 336th draftee

NEW YORK (UPI) — The hoopla and most of the excitement was long gone when the NFL draft Monday when college stars like Ty Detmer, Ken Swilling and Mario Bailey were finally selected.

Bailey, who led Washington to a national championship, lasted until the 162nd pick before the Houston Oilers took him on the 22nd pick of the sixth round. Detmer, the 1990 Heisman Trophy winner from Brigham Young, was selected on the 230th pick (ninth round) by the Green Bay Packers. Swilling, a defensive back by Georgia Tech who might have been a first-round pick if he entered the draft last year, was taken in the seventh round by Tampa Bay on the 184th pick.

The draft, which lasted 17 hours and 34 minutes over two days and included a record-22 trades, ended with the Washington Redskins' selection of Michigan center Matt Elliott on the 336th choice.

Others college stars taken Monday included Butkus Award-winning linebackers Erick Anderson of Michigan and Colorado quarterback Darian Hagan. Kansas City took Anderson in the seventh round, with the 186th pick, and Hagan was a ninth-round choice by San Francisco (241 overall).

get her at home, but Holloway, who caught the first game, dropped the ball.

SEMO second sacker Julie Lehnick came home on a double by catcher Kim Staffey to score one more run and tie the game.

Holloway tripled in the fifth inning and came home to score the game-winning run on a sacrifice fly by Irvin.

In game two the Salukis scored one run in the third inning on an error by shortstop Julie Davis. Venorsky came home when Davis failed to throw the ball to third.

The Salukis scored one run in the fourth on a single by sophomore third sacker Maura Hasenstab.

SIUC scored two more in the fifth, one on the home run by Holloway and the other on a double by sophomore catcher Laurie Wilson.

SIUC scored a final run in the sixth inning.

Holloway came home when

Wren dropped a pop fly by Irvin in right field.

Senior hurler Dede Damell, 7-5, pitched her third one-hitter of the season.

Brechtelsbauer said Darnell pitched very well with good defense behind her.

"It takes good defense as well as good pitching," Brechtelsbauer said. "She made some really fine pitches today. I thought we stroked the ball a little more consistently up and down the lineup, which we haven't been doing, getting back-to-back hits. I felt good about the whole day. We were on top of things from start to finish."

"It's important at this time of year to win in order to get a good seed in the tournament," Buckles said. "The games are very crucial. It's important that we show the rest of the conference that our preseason ratings weren't just a fluke, and we can play with the best of them."

AFTER THE SOUTHEAST Missouri victories Monday, coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said the team has to move up another notch against its next opponent.

The Salukis' next target is Eastern Illinois. EIU ranks No. 2 in the Gateway with a 1.60 ERA, but the team is last in hitting with a team batting average of .224.

Coli Turley, 4-7, and Chris Koehl, 8-8, combine as the Panther pitching force. Turley has a 1.16 ERA, and Koehl has a 1.83 ERA with 75 strikeouts.

Shortstop Tammy Stice has been the leader at the plate with a .342 batting average, five doubles, seven triples, two home runs and 14 RBI. SIUC has won six of their last eight meetings with the Panthers.

Brechtelsbauer said she wished the team had a better record at this point, but it has to focus on winning the games it has left.

"We need to get ourselves as up as possible before the tournament," Brechtelsbauer said. "The focus is trying to get as good as we can and be peaking going into the conference tournament. We need to keep moving in the right direction."

COMPARED TO LAST season's statistics, the Salukis have not done as well.

After 44 games, SIUC is batting .252, sixth best in the Gateway. The team is averaging 2.9 runs and 6.6 hits a game.

Last year, the Salukis were batting .312 and averaging 5.8 runs a game and 8.0 hits.

SIUC has been shutout nine times this season compared to only once in the regular season last year.

On the mound, SIUC has a Gateway leading 1.43 ERA with opponents batting .239. In 1991, the Salukis had a league best 1.05 ERA with foes batting .207.

The Saluki pitchers have eight shutouts compared to 14 last season. Junior Angie Mick, 11-7, leads the staff with a 1.32 ERA and 80 strikeouts. As a sophomore, she was 17-3 with a 0.63 ERA and 78 strikeouts.

In the field, SIUC has a .954 fielding percentage—third best in the Gateway—with 66 errors and 11 double plays. The Salukis fielded a league-best .963 last season with 46 errors and 12 double plays.

INDIVIDUALLY, MICK and junior right fielder Colleen Holloway are listed in five Gateway stat categories.

Mick is No. 2 in wins and strikeouts, No. 4 in innings pitched, No. 6 in ERA and No. 8 in complete games. Holloway is No. 2 in triples, No. 3 in homers, No. 4 in stolen bases, No. 5 in RBI and No. 7 in runs.

Senior shortstop Cheryl Venorsky leads the conference in steals with 20 and is No. 4 in hits with 42. Freshman Shelly Lane is in the Gateway's top 10 in FRA, wins and innings pitched.

LOOKING AHEAD TO the conference tournament, Buckles said he hopes for the team to be seeded in the upper half. If SIUC is seeded low, they will face a tough opponent in each matchup.

"The Gateway tournament has always been a wide open race," Buckles said. "They have to beat us, not our record. The Gateway has always been wide open. I'm not concerned with our record as much as I am concerned with our seed in the tournament."

"I think its necessary to win four of our next six games to show everyone we can play with them."

Daugherty said she has never seen Prasse perform but is very pleased with all she has heard about her.

"Anne first brought Jennifer to my attention, and I will be delighted if she turns out to be of her caliber," she said. "She has a lot of competitive experience and has a great deal of potential."

In the 1991 season, Prasse led NHS to a third-place finish in the Illinois High School Association state tourney and earned all-state honors as well as being her team's most valuable player.

Oglesby turned down offers from Gateway Conference rivals Illinois State and Bradley to come play for the Salukis after being a three-time regional champion for MacArthur High School.

Daugherty said she likes the spirit Oglesby will bring to the squad.

"I have watched Kristen compete, and she is a fierce competitor," she said. "She is a very focused on her game for a young athlete."

Hudgins was a local standout in golf, basketball, and softball for Carbondale Community High School who chose to bring her clubs to SIUC.

She was an IHSA state and sectional qualifier in golf during the 1990 and 1991 seasons and is a two-time all-south honoree and Signe Solverson Award winner.

Daugherty has worked with Hudgins in the past and said she has seen her game improve tremendously.

"In the past year Molly has improved her game 100 percent," she said.

stay for the Salukis' upcoming contest at the University of Evansville.

"Evansville is a tough opponent so we need to shake things up a little bit," he said. "But we have a two-game winning streak going, so we just want to keep the momentum going our way before we face Wichita State."

SIUC plays Wichita State Friday.

THE SALUKIS HAVE struggled against non-conference opposition this season, compiling a 16-23 overall record, but have been a much more formidable opponent to Valley teams.

Right-handed hurler Mike Van Gilder holds a 5-6 record with a 4.48 earned run average on the season, but has a 4-1 worksheet against MVC teams with a 2.41 ERA. Senior catcher Derek Shelton has a .246 average for the season with a .304 mark in the Valley and Scott Foster hits 68 points higher against MVC teams for a .333 clip. As a whole the Dawgs' pitching staff allows almost a run less a game against the MVC. The Salukis give up 5.77 runs overall, but only 4.78 against Valley hitters.

IN ADDITION TO A strong core of returning players, the Salukis have added a pair of pitchers to their arsenal for 1993.

Riggleman said the Dawgs signed left-hander Zac Adams, of Libertyville High School and righty Dave Farrow of Gumee to national letters of intent on Wednesday.

"We're excited about adding two young men of this caliber to our staff," he said. "Adams is an extremely competitive player and Farrow has great velocity. It's hard to say what role they'll fill at this point, though, because we have strong returnees in (sophomore Bob) Richardson, (freshman Mike) McCardle and (Senior) Mike VanGilder."

VanGilder has another year of eligibility remaining.

SOPHOMORE outfielders Jason Smith and Dan Esplin, who were lost for the season with injuries suffered in a collision on March seventh continue to recover in hopes of returning next season.

Smith is rehabilitating a separated shoulder and a broken left arm while Esplin had a CAT scan to determine if his lacerated kidney had healed to the extent that he could resume physical activity, Riggleman said.

English avert soccer strike

LONDON (UPI) — The prospect of England's first soccer strike ended Monday when the players' union and management agreed on a way to divide television revenue from a new league.

The deal between the Professional Footballers' Association and the Premier League removes any possibility of a walkout, which seemed likely earlier this month when players voted overwhelmingly to strike if their demands were not met. The settlement provides for the players' union to receive a minimum $2.7 million a year in television money from the Premier League, scheduled to start Aug. 15.

In effect, the Premier League is little more than a name change for the current first division. The number of teams will remain at 22 and the system of promotion and relegation will still apply.

But the Football Association will take over the running of the top division, ensuring the leading clubs a larger slice of television payments. Previously, money was shared among all four divisions.
