NCAA Says SIU Will Be '67 Host For Tennis Meet

The 1967 National Collegiate championships will be held at the SIU courts June 12-17.

The announcement was made Saturday from the NCAA executive office in Kansas City, Mo.

SIU head tennis Coach Dick LeFevre, who expressed confidence in an interview several months ago that the event would be given to Southern, has plans for a face-lifting of the courts, which now give the University one of the finest facilities in the country for college action.

The NCAA tournament, held in Miami this year where the University of Southern California took the title will be the second university-level national championship for which Southern has been host.

The Salukis, despite the loss of No. 1 player Joe Brandi midway through the 1966 spring campaign, ended up in a 16th place tie with Notre Dame at Miami.

LeFevre's 1967 squad, which will be made up of a rare combination of youth plus experience, could well become the finest in the history of SIU tennis.

Alexander, Griffin Will Direct SIU's 1967 Oxford Program

LOST HIS HEAD?—No, just relaxing it during the hectic pace of summer quarter finals week. This young man was caught napping in the grass with his shoes off as SIU was thrown

4-Week Study, Tour Scheduled

Orville E. Alexander, chairman of the Department of Government, has been named codirector of the English Oxford summer seminar for the summer of 1967.

Robert P. Griffin, assistant professor of English is the other codirector. Alexander is replacing Lon R. Shelby, assistant professor of history, who has withdrawn from the project to devote full time to research and publication during the coming year.

Plans for the summer seminar and travel program are being completed. The travel itinerary is finished except for final details and the preparation of a brochure.

It will contain an application blank and full details on when, where, and at what cost students may take the trip. It should be ready for mailing in a few weeks.

The 65-member seminar group will leave for Britain about June 20 and tour Scotland and Britain before aheading Oxford for a month of seminar, and study, beginning July 1.

Students may earn from six to nine credits, graduate or undergraduate, in such areas as social studies, literature and education. The seminars are specifically geared to individual students, and have been worked out between SIU and Oxford officials.

Tours to Stratford-on-Avon, Windsor, Stonehenge and Bath will be offered during the four weeks of study at Oxford. Most of the required reading may be completed in the months prior to departure.

Following the seminar the group will tour France, Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Belgium and Holland before flying back to the United States on Aug. 26.

Free time has been made available at major tour stops.

Students interested in receiving the brochure should write to Oxford Summer Seminar, SIU Division of University Extension, or to either codirector.

SIU Student in Irish Restaurant Encounters European Stereotype of American Tourist

By Tim Ayers
Special to The Daily Egyptian

DUBLIN, Ireland—I suppose if you live in a foreign country long enough you have to run into them sooner or later. After all, the natives say that they are not uncommon.

We had been living in a Irish town for about two months before we met our first.

It is a small town and everyone knows when something happens. We heard that there was some Americans in town and that they were staying at the local hotel.

One night we decided to eat at the same hotel. They were there and easy to spot.

My wife and I decided to order before going over to introduce ourselves.

It was a very handsome family, the grandparents, a couple and their son.

We were sitting at the other end of the dining room but we could hear every word they said. They were discussing how bad the service was and how it was impossible to get ice in your drinks.

I doubt that they talked that loud at home but I suppose it was force of habit by then. Some visitors try to overcome the language problem by raising their voices.

The language barrier could probably be compared to someone from New York visiting Alabama. It is a definite problem, but one that cannot be solved by increasing the volume.

What they didn't seem to realize is that a man from Dublin would have the same problem if he visited Cork.

Soon the waiter came to their table and they began by asking for the dinner menu. He explained that it was tea time, which they refused to accept.

High tea in Ireland can be soup, fish, steak, several vegetables and half a sack of potatoes.

SIU Fair Exhibit Housed in Dome

The SIU exhibit at the Du-Quoin State Fair is housed in a geodesic dome adjacent to the Teen A Go Go pavilion. The Fair opens Saturday.

The dome is of the type designed by R. Buckminster Fuller, research professor at SIU.

The display features a photo story of campus life at Southern and a panorama of the University.

After a while they all decided what everyone wanted and yelled it to the waiter. As he passed our table he shrugged and beseeched heaven for help.

They then launched into the topic of dinner conversation.

This was to make fun of the grandfather. All of us in the dining room soon knew that the old man had lived in this town before he emigrated to America.

They pointed out what a backward place it was and how simple minded all the people were.

This was interesting to us and to the rest of the people in the room, almost all of whom were from the town.

The old man defended himself by pointing out that he was smart enough to get out, wasn't he?

At this they all broke up with laughter. As a matter of fact from then on every time he said it, which was often, they broke up with laughter.

They seemed to be the only ones in the dining room talking but this didn't seem to bother them.

However we did overhear one other conversation. An English couple were sitting near our table. She said

ART AND MUSIC WERE TAUGHT AT THE SCHOOL WITHIN A SCHOOL

At SIU's Mini School

Teacher Training Is Modernized

By Bonita Troutt

Inside the Wham Education Building there is a little red schoolhouse. Inside this little red schoolhouse there are 11 student teachers and 22 pupils from the Murphysboro system.

"The Little Red Schoolhouse of '66" or "Mini School" as it is also known, is an experimental program for honor students through which the Department of Student Teaching is attempting to find better ways to train student teachers.

"Generally speaking, the current student teaching as we know it in the United States is archaic, old-fashioned and out of date," said Charles D. Neal, director of student teaching in the College of Education.

"Colleges and universities have done very little to improve student teaching programs in the past 30 or 40 years," Neal said. "In the 'good old days' student teachers were two years younger, were lacking two years in education and were less sophisticated. Yet, we find practically the same kind of student teaching programs today as then."

The program at the Mini School is built under the umbrella of "Today: Living and Learning." It is an experiment in team teaching. Before the school started, the student teachers met in seminar sessions and planned the curriculum.

They decided upon four areas of learning: the art of communication which includes reading, writing, spelling, listening and speaking; the area of mathematical thinking which is mathematics and science; the area of fine arts—music and art; and the area of physical fitness which combines physical education and health.

Classes meet from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. each Tuesday and Thursday. All four areas of learning are taught each day. Four afternoons a week the student teachers meet in a seminar to evaluate and plan.

The students are divided into two blocks. The primary block includes grades one, two and three. Grades four, five and six are in the intermediate block. A team of student teachers works with each group.

Cleo D. Carter, supervisor of student teachers, works closely with the teachers in the Mini School.

"While training of teachers is the primary purpose of the Mini School, the child has been our focal point," said Mrs. Carter. "New concepts in education are being tried. In everything we do, we first ask, 'Is this good for the child?'"

"For instance, while learning the facts about the American Indian the primary group made a teepee, tomahawks and a campfire.

"We are opposed to 'just busy work,'" said Mrs. Carter. "Everything we do is connected in some way with their studies. We have access to material from the museum and the library, and to resource people from within the community."

"Any good student teaching program always results in a good pupil learning program," Mrs. Carter said. "Why do we have to go?" is the usual reaction of the pupils at the end of the day at the Mini School.

Neal pointed out that the cooperation between area schools and the SIU student teaching program is the "best found anywhere in the United States but the student teacher lacks much of the contact with the individual student when there is a regular room teacher in charge of the class as must be the case in a traditional student teaching program."

Because the Mini School is an experimental program, it is possible to charge the responsibility directly to the student teacher, not to a regular room teacher, Neal said.

"We might compare teaching school to taking a long journey. To walk 1,000 miles, we start by taking a single step. To be qualified to teach 40 students, the teacher must know how to teach each single student in that class. He must know and understand the technique of teaching children.

"There is a difference between teaching 'books' and teaching individuals. Due to the large enrollment in most colleges and universities, it is difficult to teach individually. Students come to college and they are generally taught books.

"Like begets like and for the past 30 or 40 years many teachers have been teaching by habit or the way they were taught. Consequently, such teachers permit student teachers to play school. It is hard for the student teacher to get the feel of teaching because the authority is actually delegated to the regular teacher instead of the student teacher.

"In the Mini School the student teacher is charged with the responsibility of learning each child—his likes, his dislikes, his interests and his ability. Otherwise, a teaching experience is much like looking at a forest with no knowledge of individual trees."

Student Deplores 'Ugly American'

 simply, "Americans." Unfortunately she had summed up the entire situation. Her husband nodded and they both continued to eat and to listen to the entertainment.

My wife and I decided against patriotism and did not go over to introduce ourselves.

Instead we quietly finished our dinner, gave our sympathy to the waiter and left as soon as possible.

The next day we were talking to an English friend of ours who was also staying in the hotel.

I asked him, "Did you meet the American family staying at the hotel?"

Being very English and very polite, he merely said, "Yes."

Again the English talent for understatement had more than said enough.

4 Sociologists Participating In Meeting

Four members of the sociology faculty are attending meetings of the American Sociological Association in Miami, Fla. through Sept. 1. Two of them will present papers.

Charles R. Snyder, chairman, will be in Miami two days prior to the meetings for sessions of the society council, of which he is a member. The council is the governing body of the organization.

Hugh D. Duncan, who holds a joint SIU appointment as professor of sociology and English, will present a paper on models of the symbolic act during a session on social linguistics.

Elmer H. Johnson will present a paper, "Correctional Reform: Work Release as a Case Study." Johnson is a staff member in the SIU Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections.

Fourth SIU faculty member attending the Florida meetings will be Herman R. Lantz, professor of sociology. Johnson and Snyder also will participate in meetings of the Society for the Study of Social Problems, a national organization concerned with the application of sociology to major social issues, which meets in conjunction with the association each year.

Bork to Advise Texas College On New Institute

Albert W. Bork, director of SIU Latin American Institute, has been invited to serve as a member of a special advisory board for the Inter-American Institute at Pan American College, Edinburg, Tex.

Bork was one of the experts on Latin American problems invited to attend a conference at Edinburg last April to survey the school's resources and recommend a course to be followed in its future growth. Proceedings of the April session contain a presentation by Bork of the general problems and practices in summer study and "junior year abroad" programs in Mexico.

The newly established institute at Pan American College has a student body with 70 per cent Spanish-speaking origin or background.

Food, Population Balance Required

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones
(General Features Corp.)

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman showed up in New Delhi this summer with bad news for the people of India.

The American wheat surplus, he said, has vanished. Not only is the end in sight of our 1.2 million-ton monthly shipments of American grain to help keep the Indians eating, but we must soon discontinue accepting rupees in payment.

Freeman was too polite to say so, but we have little use for our huge backlog of rupees and our balance of payments problem is getting no better. So we'll want dollars for what food we can send.

Many years from now Freeman's statement may be looked back upon as historic, for it represents the end of an era. It was an anesthetic era in which India gradually slipped into a condition of insolvency and beggary, but did so with relatively little pain because of American surplus and our policy of gifts, loans and sales for counterpart funds.

Now, if Indians must pay hard money and get less grain, reality will burst upon New Delhi. For India has practically no foreign exchange left. She produces little that the nations with food to sell would want. What can she do?

Well, she could eat all the sacred cows and kill the food-stealing sacred monkeys and the grain-destroying rats. But this would require a philosophical and religious revolution.

Or India could become a highly industrialized nation like Japan if she could develop the capital, the skills, find the raw materials and markets. She must also find a foundation for a major industrial future.

India is going to be the first great nation in the world to arrive at a condition of permanent and progressive starvation. For no combination of technology, energy and luck can overcome a net yearly population rise of 12, 000,000.

There will be others—and quickly. Nasser is in an impossible situation with a runaway birthrate in a country with only one natural resource—the Nile.

The population of Ceylon has doubled in 30 years. The only quick cure for Red China's food problem is military conquest of rice-surplus Southeast Asia.

Of course, as the optimists are forever pointing out, we will learn to produce more food. The ox and the forked stick will be replaced by the gang plow. We will step up synthetic fertilizers. We will grow vegetables and feed in hydroponic tanks of enriched water. We will mine the seas scientifically for fish, seine for plankton, make human fodder out of algae. One oil company has even learned to create an edible protein out of natural gas.

But, with the earth's population rising 125,00 a day, increased food production is only a palliative. Some day the deathrate must equal the birthrate. And, as Harrison Brown has pointed out in his "Challenge of Man's Future," our only choice is between a high rate of both and a low rate of both.

We can achieve the high-rate solution in two ways. We can clear away surplus human beings by atomic or bacterial war. Or we can resort to cannibalism. Of the two, cannibalism is much to be preferred. It provides a new source of food and it can be discontinued any time other food sources get into balance. Super-war, on the other hand, could poison the atmosphere or eliminate all men by uncontrollable plagues.

There remains the low-rate solution—long, secure, prosperous lives for the living made possible by the balanced birthrate. The longer human beings imagine that over-population is no problem, or, just a local problem, the more devastating will be its consequences—and the more painful its cure.

Americans, of all people, are perhaps the most foolishly optimistic, for we have more of everything, and we share with our chambers of commerce the old belief of our lonely pioneer ancestors: "The more people the merrier." a day in Calcutta or Cairo would change our minds.

We are still in the beef-steak age. We can afford to feed corn through a steer and eat the steer. Hundreds of millions of the world's people have already been forced to munch the grain direct, and if we stay complacent it will happen to us.

A hamburger for Thanksgiving? This could be our legacy to our great-grandchildren. Unless, of course, there'd be neither child nor cow left after the Great Food War.

Market Has Hard-to-Find Item Bargains

By John Parker
Copley News Service

SANTIAGO, Chile—Need a crankshaft for a 1936 U.S. car? A few feet of copper wire? A new wheel for a baby carriage? A couple of radio tubes that aren't made anymore?

The place to go is the Persian Market here.

Why "Persian," nobody seems to know. The name was somehow affixed to the collection of small stalls that sell anything and everything in hardware the mind can imagine. Items include tools, bits and pieces of machinery, pipes, bolts, nuts and odd pieces which only a specialist could recognize.

During the week the Persian Market is an orderly place compared with Sunday morning. The sellers who come on Sunday have no stalls; they just lay their wares out along the sidewalk. Most of them are regulars, spreading out what they have been able to glean in their week's wanderings.

To the Persian Market come repair men from factories and garages, husbands and wives with their "sample" in their hands, all looking in the hope that somebody, somewhere in this city, may have given up and finally thrown away a similar machine in disgust.

Many times they find just what they are seeking.

The market is next door to the jail. People used to say it was just the right place for it. Rumor had it that if you lost anything, or had anything stolen, you could hurry right down to the Persian Market that same day and buy it back.

Today's traders indignantly reject the old legend. They stoutly maintain that they are honest dealers to the last man.

Countries Expand Exports

United States Must Hustle To Keep Foreign Markets

By Harold Y. Jones
Copley News Service

MEXICO CITY—More and more U.S. manufacturers are going abroad to try to beat growing competition from the Japanese, West Germans and British.

Nations that needed U.S. aid to get back on their feet after World War II have in recent years cut deeply into markets which once bought most of their imports from the United States.

European countries and Japan have stepped up their business activities in Mexico and Latin America in the last six years, through sales agencies and by direct investment.

Even so, Mexico is still one of the five nations of the world, with Canada, Japan, Britain and West Germany, that buy more than $1 billion worth of U.S. goods each year.

Not only are Europe and Japan stepping up their exports but the underdeveloped countries are now making goods they formerly imported from countries such as the United States.

"That is fine with us," said a U.S. Commerce Department official. "The more countries industrialize, the more likely they are to buy more sophisticated machinery from the United States.

It was this target the Commerce Department and U.S. businessmen shot at in August by setting up the first U.S. industrial equipment exhibition here.

American firms brought samples of metal-working machine tools, packaging machinery and complicated scientific and industrial instruments, none made in Mexico.

"We sold practically everything on the floor in the first week—for about $1 million," said Charles T. Reyner, the department's press officer. "The businessmen have prospects for more sales later."

Trouble is, Reyner said, during and since World War II American producers have had easy selling and expanding home market.

But as Europe and Japan and even some of the underdeveloped nations, like Brazil and Czechoslovakia, become more competitive with the United States, Americans are going to have to hop on international jets and start knocking on doors.

THE THEORY OF WALL STREET QUADRANGLES

Wall Street Quadrangles is owned and managed by a student for the benefit of students and is established upon the following principles:

1. Respect and protect the privacy and individuality of each and every resident.
2. Provide each student with 250% more living space than maximum competing standards.
3. Furnish the finest in interior residential furnishings— not cheap, lifeless carpeting and drab institutional decor.
4. Make living at Wall Street Quadrangles so attractive that a prospective tenant might even think about cutting down on his drinking in order to pay the rent.

In fact, the Wall Street Quadrangles residences reflect this theoretical framework:

1. Co-educational living on a sensible basis.
2. Unusual bi-level suites - not 7x10 cubicles
3. Plush wall to wall carpeting, deep walnut paneling, complete commissary and recreational opportunities.

WALL STREET QUADRANGLES Winner of national acclaim for excellence in design and the proud possessor of an unmatched local reputation.

WALL STREET QUADRANGLES is superior in every respect to Carbondale's norms - but don't ask us; talk to the student who lives there.

Located on Wall Street 2 blocks south of Park Street, adjacent to the Campus.

Four Torpedo Boats Hit in Gulf; Saigon River Being Harassed

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Navy pilots Monday blasted four North Vietnamese torpedo boats in the Gulf of Tonkin while the Viet Cong in the south continued harassment tactics on Saigon's water links to the sea—but without success. Ground action remained light and scattered.

Two of the torpedo boats were reported sunk, two damaged.

The U.S. Command in Saigon reported new air attacks on northern oil depots—11 miles from Haiphong—as well as military installations and communications lines leading south. B52 bombers from Guam returned to hammer Viet Cong concentrations near the Cambodian border, 55 and 65 miles northwest of Saigon.

South Vietnamese officials reported a sharp increase in the number of military desertions in the first six months of 1966, mainly due to political unrest in the northern provinces earlier in the year. Few went over to the Viet Cong, the officials said. They added that most quit the army to take more lucrative jobs. Many left to visit their families, and later returned to their units.

U. S. Military Strength Reaches 3.1 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military strength around the world now stands at more than 3.1 million, the Pentagon said Monday.

The Defense Department placed the overall figure as of July 31 at 3,136,259, up 42,201 from the previous month.

The Navy pilots hit the torpedo boats in two separate areas early Monday while patrolling the North Vietnamese coast around Haiphong, the chief seaport.

A flight of Navy A6 Intruder jets located three torpedo boats 70 miles southeast of Haiphong. The North Vietnamese craft opened fire on the Navy planes, which had run out of ammunition. The Intruder pilots then radioed the U.S. 7th Fleet carrier Constellation which sent out a flight of A4 Skyhawks.

The Skyhawks located the boats, and dove in on them with rockets and cannon blazing. One enemy vessel was stopped dead in the water while the other two fled in rain and poor visibility. An hour later another flight of Skyhawks spotted the vessels and attacked. The pilots reported one vessel exploded in a bright orange fireball and the other was damaged.

A third flight of Navy jets encountered the fourth torpedo boat concealed in a group of islands northeast of Haiphong. The pilots made several strafing runs then saw the craft burst into flames, a U.S. spokesman said.

The attacks brought to five the number of torpedo boats destroyed by U.S. planes this month. Five others have been damaged.

In the waterways near Saigon, a Viet Cong mine barely missed a 57-foot American minesweeper. Navy officials said the vessel was conducting a chain-drag sweep out of the Long Tao River 18 miles southeast of Saigon when the mine exploded about 15 feet away.

None of the minesweeper's crew of six was hit.

Guard Fears Violence Likely in Wauwatosa

MILWAUKEE (AP)—After 10 consecutive nights of roaring demonstrations along the shady streets and among the stately homes of Wauwatosa, not a drop of blood has been shed, yet.

But National Guardsmen detailed to protect the demonstrators fear that it will come. "All it would take is a little spark," said the commanding officer, Adj. Gen. Ralph Olson.

Wauwatosa is a pocket of old-line gentility, with Milwaukee hemming it in on two sides, and the factories and furnaces of West Allis on a third. Wisconsin Avenue, up which demonstrators marched five miles from the central city, is one of the oldest and loveliest streets in the Midwest.

The demonstrators are demanding that Circuit Judge Robert C. Cannon resign from the Fraternal Order of Eagles, claiming that the order limits its membership to whites. Cannon was chosen from among several public officials as a target because, say demonstrators, they felt his "liberal views" would make him "easiest to convince."

Before the crowds came—the young hecklers and the counter-pickets and the stolid masses of the curious—Wauwatosans stood on their sidewalks and munched popcorn.

Residents arranged chairs on the deep, soft lawns and invited friends to come to watch the demonstrations.

Sunday night, while the National Guard gathered at Hawthorne Junior High School, a block from the intersection where the demonstrations have been concentrated, curbs were lined by children, keeping an alert eye for the ice cream vendor.

Spokesmen for the pickets said they were protesting against an agreement by government, religious and business, and Negro civil rights leaders to end a month of violence-marked marches in white neighborhoods.

Steven Telo, president of the Kilburne Organization, said the group had sought to confer with Mayor Richard J. Daley but was told he was out of the office on business.

Telo said property owners from Northwest and Southwest neighborhoods were among the pickets. He said his organization will seek to organize political opposition to Daley's re-election next year.

Chicago's Pact On Civil Rights

CHICAGO (AP)— Approximately 50 pickets carrying signs which read, "Daley sold out Chicago" and "The Summit Conference: Another Munich," appeared at City Hall today.

Spokesmen for the pickets said they were protesting against an agreement by government, religious and business, and Negro civil rights leaders to end a month of violence-marked marches in white neighborhoods.

Steven Telo, president of the Kilburne Organization, said the group had sought to confer with Mayor Richard J. Daley but was told he was out of the office on business.

Telo said property owners from Northwest and Southwest neighborhoods were among the pickets. He said his organization will seek to organize political opposition to Daley's re-election next year.

House Unit OKs Bill on Reserves

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Armed Services Committee approved by a 32-1 vote Monday a bill that would enable the President call up some 190,000 Reserves and National Guard troops if he desired.

The President has not asked for this authority and there has been no indication he will use it.

Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the committee, said this will eliminate any false notion that some have found a draft-haven" by signing up for the Reserves.

The bill will allow the President to order active duty, non-drilling Reservists in the reserve pool, something more than 56,000.

It would also allow the President temporary authority, until July 1, 1968, to order to active duty those members of the Reserves attached to drilling units.

200,000 In Peking Hit Russia

TOKYO (AP)— A massive rally of 200,000 youths led by the Red Guards shouted, "Down with the Russian revisionists" in front of the Soviet Embassy in Peking Monday, Japanese press reports said.

The rally, which continued into the night, was orderly and Chinese soldiers two-deep kept the crowds back about 150 yards from the embassy.

Chinese authorities, while heaping abuse on the Soviet leadership, apparently have no desire to bring about a rupture in diplomatic relations.

These relations were strained to the breaking point last weekend when the Soviet Union angrily protested that some of its embassy personnel had been harassed by the youths. It demanded effective measures to protect its diplomats from "hooligan pranks."

"When these anti-Soviet actions take such concrete form, they will irritate our people and possibly evoke anti-Chinese demonstrations in the Soviet Union," a Japanese correspondent quoted a Russian as saying.

The demonstration, which the youths said in advance would be continued for three days, apparently was well-planned. Foreign correspondents received passes to cover it.

Japanese newsmen said the Soviet Embassy was vacant, its gates shut and all the blinds drawn. The youths taking part appeared to have come from many parts of China. Thousands of them have been seen arriving daily by train.

No Recession Coming, Johnson Tells Truman

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)— President Johnson expressed concern Monday over rising interest rates, but said he disagreed with former President Harry S. Truman that they could result in a serious depression.

Johnson said in a statement that Truman "in his usual forthright manner has spoken out against the rapid escalation in interest rates," adding: "As I said in December, and have repeated several times since, I too am concerned about the interest rate rise and what it means for many Americans."

FBI's Help Urged In Bombing Case

WASHINGTON (AP)— The FBI should help investigate an attempt to kill the head of Chicago's Metropolitan Sanitary District, Rep. Edward J. Derwinski, R-Ill., said Monday.

He referred to an incident in which the car of Vinton W. Bacon, district general superintendent, was found rigged with dynamite last week.

"Despite the intense effort of local and state law enforcement officials, there has not been any major breakthrough in obtaining clues in this attempted murder," Derwinski said in a statement.

Jury to Get Convict Case

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — A prosecutor argued Monday that evidence in the murder trial of four Menard prisoners was "overwhelming and uncontradicted" as to their guilt.

State's Atty. Howard Clotfelter of Randolph County, who opened the final arguments, said the slaying of three guards in a riot last November was cold-blooded and premeditated.

"If there ever was a case in this country which required the death penalty, this is it," Clotfelter told the jury.

Circuit Judge Creel Douglas plans to give his instructions today and send the case to the jury.

Boys Can't Keep Big 'Bundle' They Found in Vacant House

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Two teenage boys found $19,658 in a vacant house last week and police said Monday the find resulted in the seizure of five boys and four men.

Officers said the two youths entered an abandoned house, noticed a trap door sealed with putty, forced it open and found a metal box and a tin can filled with bills of various denominations.

Envelopes filled with cash bore the name of Roy Schroerer, the late owner of the house.

Police said the boys decided to keep their new-found wealth a secret. But they gave more than $10,000 of the money to three teen-age friends and to two adults.

Two other men — Donald Simmons, 32 and Irving Smith, 23 — learned of the windfall and approached one of the finders, police said. The boy became frightened and told his father.

Police said all the money found was recovered and is being held for Mrs. Mary Schroerer, the executrix of her late husband's estate.

Powless Wins 3rd Crown In Open Tennis Tourney

John Powless, coming back eight years after his last Southern Illinois Open Tennis Tournament crown in 1958, captured the 1966 title Sunday by defeating Pachito Castillo in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2.

Powless, now head tennis coach at the University of Wisconsin, gained permanent possession of the traveling trophy in gaining his third win victory in the 11-year-old tournament.

He won the title in 1957 and 1958 and came into this year's competition as the favorite.

Younger brother Bob teamed with Powless to make it a family sweep in the men's division as they took the doubles title by defeating Roy Spengelmeier and Lornie Kuhle, 6-4, 6-4.

Kuhle is from LaJolla, Calif., and Spengelmeier is another former SIU player.

In the men's over-35 division, Tom Henderson of Ottawa won the title by defeating Bill Gatlin of St. Louis, 6-0, 6-1.

Carlisle Favored in Hambletonian

Three horses loom as favorites for Wednesday's 41st running of the Hambletonian

Dallas Has Edge In 1966 NFL Pace

NEW YORK (AP)—With Jim Brown gone the Eastern Conference of the National Football League looks like a wide open race. Dallas, Cleveland and New York all have a chance with St. Louis and Philadelphia on the fringe. Washington, Pittsburgh and the new Atlanta Falcons should be fighting it out for what's left.

Here's the way the race looks from here:

1. Dallas
2. Cleveland
3. New York
4. St. Louis
5. Philadelphia
6. Washington
7. Pittsburgh
8. Atlanta

The retirement of Jim Brown has to bring the Browns back to the pack. Leroy Kelly is a 6-foot, 195-pound back with good speed and fine moves but he is not Jim Brown.

at the DuQuoin State Fair.

The three top entries in the field of 12 are Carlisle, Polaris and Kerry Way, who all drew good post positions Sunday at the fair.

Carlisle, a 3-to-1 favorite, is given the best chance to win the $122,540 purse at the trotter classic. The purse is the fourth highest in history. The winner's share of the money will be $60,044 with second place good for $30,022.

Although being rated as the fastest in the field, Carlisle has not been consistent this year and could be bumped off by one of the slower trotters.

Carlisle has already won more than $63,000 on the circuit this year.

The starting positions for Wednesday's race are:

- 1, Rocket Rodney; 2, Careless Vlado; 3, Broker's Choice; 4, Kerry Way; 5, Shatter Way; 6, Polaris; 7, Carlisle; 8, All American; 9, Our Rainbow; 10, Governor Armbr; 11, Starlight Way; and 12, Armbr Gazele.

This will be the 10th year in which the classic for three-year-old trotters has been run at the DuQuoin State Fair. It was moved there from earlier runnings at Goshen, N.Y.
